treat·ment (trēt'mənt) n. 1. a. The act, manner, or method of handling or dealing with someone or something: "the right to equal treatment in the criminal and juvenile justice system" (Susan C. Ross). b. Informal. The usual methods of dealing with a given situation: gave the opposing team the treatment. 2. a. Administration or application of remedies to a patient or for a disease or an injury; medicinal or surgical management; therapy. b. The substance or remedy so applied.

trea·ty (trē'tē) n. pl. trea·ties. 1. a. A formal agreement between two or more states, as in reference to terms of peace or trade. b. The document in which such an agreement is set down. 2. A contract or an agreement. 3. Obsolete.

a. Negotiation for the purpose of reaching an agreement. b. An entreaty. [Middle English tretee, from Old French traite, from Latin trāctātus, discussion, from past participle of trāctāre, to drag about, deal with. See TREAT.]

treaty port (trē'tē pōrt) n. A port kept open for foreign trade according to the terms of a treaty, especially formerly in China, Korea, and Japan.

Treb·bia (trēb'yä) A river, about 113 km (70 mi) long, of northwest Italy flowing northward to the Po River. Hannibal defeated the Romans on the banks of the river in 218 B.C.

Treb·i·zond (trēb'ī-zōnd') 1. A former Greek empire occupying much of the land bordering the Black Sea. It was founded as an offshoot of the Byzantine Empire by Alexius I Comnenus in 1204 and retained its autonomy until it was conquered by Ottoman Turks in 1461. 2. See Trabzon.

treb·le (trēb'əl) adj. 1. Triple: “treble reason for loving as well as working while it is day” (George Eliot). 2. Music. Relating to or having the highest part, voice, or range. 3. High-pitched; shrill. — n. 1. Music. a. The highest part, voice, instrument, or range. b. A singer or player that performs this part. 2. A high, shrill sound or voice. — v. tr. intr. treb·led, treb·ling, treb·les. To make or become triple. [Middle English, from Old French, from Medieval Latin triplum, from Latin, neuter of tripulus, triple. See TRIPLE.] — treb'le·ness n. — treb'ly (trēb'lē) adv.

treble clef (trēb'əl klēf) n. Music. A symbol indicating that the second line from the bottom of a staff represents the pitch of G above middle C. Also called G clef treb·u·chet (trēb'yə-shēt') also treb·uc·ket (-ə-kēt') n. A medieval catapult for hurling heavy stones. [Middle English, from Old French, from trebucher, to overthrow : tre-, over (from Latin trāns-); see TRANS- + but, trunk of the body (of Germanic origin).]

tre·cen·to (trā-chēn'tō) n. The 14th century, especially with reference to Italian art and literature. [Italian, from (mil) trecento, (one thousand) three hundred : tre, three (from Latin trēs); see trei- in Appendix + cento, hundred (from Latin centum); see dekṃ in Appendix.]

tree (trē) n. 1. a. A perennial woody plant having a main trunk and usually a distinct crown. b. A plant or shrub resembling a tree in form or size. 2. Something, such as a clothes tree, that resembles a tree in form. 3. A wooden beam, post, stake, or bar used as part of a framework or structure. 4. A saddle-tree. 5. A diagram showing a family lineage; a family tree. 6. Archaic. a. A gallows. b. The cross on which Jesus was crucified. — v. tr. treed, tree·ing, trees. 1. To force up a tree: Dogs treed the raccoon. 2. Informal. To force into a difficult position; corner. 3. To supply with trees: a field that had been treed with oak saplings. 4. To stretch (a shoe or boot) onto a shoetree. —idiom. up a tree. Informal. In a situation of great difficulty or perplexity; helpless. [Middle English, from Old English trēow. See deru- in Appendix.] —tree/less adj.

Tree (trē), Sir Herbert Beerbohm. 1853-1917. British actor and theatrical producer who founded the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art (1904).

tree farm (trē färm) n. An area of forest land on which trees are grown for commercial use.

tree fern (trē fûrn) n. Any of various tropical treelike ferns having a woody, trunklike stem and a terminal crown of large, pinnately divided fronds.

tree frog (trē frôg) n. Any of various small arboreal frogs of the family Hylidae having long toes terminating in adhesive disks. Also called tree toad tree heath (trē hēth) n. A Mediterranean evergreen shrub or small tree (Erica arborea) having fragrant, white flowers grouped in large terminal panicles. It is the source of briarroot.

tree-hop-per (trē'höp'ər) n. Any of numerous, generally small, often oddly shaped homopterous insects of the family Membracidae, found mostly in the tropics and having mouthparts adapted to sucking the sap from trees.

tree house (trē hous) n. A structure built among the limbs of a tree, usually for recreation.

tree line (trē līn) n. 1. The limit of northern or southern latitude beyond which trees will not grow except as stunted forms. 2. See timberline.

tre-en (trē'ən) n. Cookware, tableware, or eating utensils made of wood. [From Middle English, made of wood, from Old English trēowen, from trēow, tree. See TREE.]

tree-nail or tre-nail (trē'nāl', trēn'əl, trūn'əl) also trun-nel (trūn'əl) n. A wooden peg that swells when wet and is used to fasten timbers, especially in ship-building.

tree-of-heav-en (trē'əv-hēv'ən) n. A deciduous, rapidly growing tree (Ailanthus altissima) native to China, having sweetish, fetid male flowers and widely planted in the United States as a street tree because of its resistance to pollution, disease, and insects.

tree of knowledge (trē ūv nōl'ij) n. The tree in the Garden of Eden whose forbidden fruit Adam and Eve tasted.

tree of life (trē ūv lif) n. pl. trees of life. 1. A tall palm (Mauritia flexuosa) of northern South America having large fan-shaped leaves and used for food, fiber, and building. 2. A tree in the Garden of Eden whose fruit, if eaten, gave everlasting life.

tree poppy (trē pöp'ē) n. An evergreen shrub (Dendromecon rigidum) of southern California and northern Baja California, having minutely toothed, lance-shaped leaves and showy yellow flowers.

tree shrew (trē shrōō) n. Any of various small squirrellike arboreal mammals of the family Tupaiidae found in southeast Asia, India, and southern China.

Though sometimes placed in a separate taxonomic order, tree shrews are thought to be related to both insectivores and primates.

tree snail (trē snāl) n. Any of various tropical snails of the genus Liguus, having a colorful shell in the shape of a teardrop.

tree sparrow (trē spār'ō) n. 1. A sparrow (Spizella arborea) of northern North America having a reddish-brown crown and a dark spot on the breast.

2. A European sparrow (Passer montanus) related to the house sparrow.

tree squirrel (trē skwûr'əl) n. See squirrel (n., sense 1).

tree surgery (trē sûr'jə-rē) n. Treatment of diseased or damaged trees by filling cavities and pruning and bracing branches. — tree surgeon n.

tree toad (trē tōd) n. See tree frog.

tree tobacco (trē tə-bāk'ō) n. A South American shrub or small tree (Nicotiana glauca) naturalized in the United States and having yellow flowers and thick, rubbery, oval or lance-shaped leaves.

tree-top (trē'tōp') n. The uppermost part of a tree.

tref (trāf) adj. Judaism. Unclean and unfit for consumption according to dietary law; not kosher. [Yiddish treyf, from Hebrew ṭērēpâ, carrion, from ṭārap, to tear.]

tre-foil (trē'foil', trēf'oil') n. 1. Any of various plants of the genera Trifolium, Lotus, and related genera of the pea family, having compound trifoliate leaves.

2. An ornament, a symbol, or an architectural form having the appearance of a trifoliate leaf. [Middle English, from Anglo-Norman trifoil, from Latin trifolium : tri-, tri- + folium, leaf; see bhel-³ in Appendix.]

tre-ha-la (trī-hä'lə) n. A sugarlike, edible substance obtained from the pupal case of an Old World beetle of the genus Larinus. [New Latin trehāla, from Turkish tīqāla, from Persian tīghāl.]

tre-ha-lase (trī-hä'lās', -lāz') n. An enzyme that catalyzes the hydrolysis of trehalose.

tre-ha-lose (trī-hä'lōs', -lōz') n. A sweet-tasting, crystalline disaccharide, C₁₂H₂₂O₁₁, found in trehala and in many fungi.

treil-lage (trē-yāzh', trā'līj) n. Latticework, especially a trellis for a vine.

[French, from Old French treille, bower supported by trelliswork, from Latin trichila, bower, arbor.]

Treitsch-ke (trīch'kə), Heinrich Gotthard von. 1834-1896. German historian who wrote the seven-volume History of Germany in the 19th Century (1879-1894).

trek (trĕk) v. intr. trekked, trek-king, treks. 1. To make a slow or arduous journey. 2. To journey on foot, especially to hike through mountainous areas.

3. South African. To travel by ox wagon. — n. 1. A journey or leg of a journey, especially when slow or difficult. 2. South African. A journey by ox wagon, especially a migration such as that of the Boers from 1835 to 1837. [Afrikaans, to travel by ox wagon, from Dutch trekken, to travel, from Middle Dutch trecken, to pull.] —trek'ker n.

WORD HISTORY: Fans of Star Trek and others may be interested to know that the word trek originally had to do with a slow journey by a very different mode of transportation, a wagon drawn by oxen. Trek was borrowed into English in South Africa, where the word was used by speakers of Afrikaans for a journey by ox wagon. The British, who at the turn of the century were to seize control of South Africa from the descendants of the original Dutch settlers, borrowed the word trek during the 19th century. Trek is recorded earliest in 1822 in the compound trektow, “a rope joining the wagon pole and the yoke to which oxen were fastened.” Trek in this compound is either the noun or the stem of the corresponding verb in Afrikaans, trekken. The earliest recorded use of the noun by itself is found in 1849, where it means “a stage in a journey by ox wagon.” The word has long since migrated from South African into general English—and into space travel.

trellis (trɛl'is) n. 1. A structure of open latticework, especially one used as a support for vines and other creeping plants. 2. An arbor or arch made of latticework. — v. tr. trellised, trellis-ing, trellis-es. 1. To provide with a trellis, especially to train (a vine) on a trellis. 2. To make (something) in the form of a trellis. [Middle English trellis, from Old French, from Vulgar Latin trilicius*, from Latin trilix, trilic-, woven with three threads : tri-, tri- + licium, thread.]

trellis-work (trɛl'is-wûrk') n. Latticework.

trem-a-tode (trɛm'ə-tōd') n. Any of numerous flatworms of the class Trematoda, including both external and internal parasites of animal hosts, that have a thick outer cuticle and one or more suckers or hooks for attaching to host tissue. Also called *fluke*¹ — adj. Of or belonging to the Trematoda. [From New Latin Trematoda, class name, from Greek trēmatōdēs, having holes, from trēma, trēmat-, perforation. See terə⁻¹ in Appendix.]

trem-a-to-di-a-sis (trɛm'ə-tō-dī'ə-sīs) n. Infestation or infection with trematodes, often caused by ingestion of inadequately cooked food.

trem-ble (trɛm'bəl) v. intr. trem-bled, trem-bling, trem-bles. 1. To shake involuntarily, as from excitement, weakness, or anger; quake. See Synonyms at shake. 2. To feel fear or anxiety: I tremble at the very thought of it. 3. To vibrate or quiver: leaves trembling in the breeze. — n. 1. The act or state of trembling. 2. Often trembles. A convulsive fit of shaking. Often used with the. 3. trembles. (used with a sing. verb). a. An infectious viral disease of sheep that is transmitted by the tick Ixodes ricinus and affects the nervous system, causing galloping and trotting by little leaps and often prolonged trembling. Also called loupng ill b. Poisoning of domestic animals, especially cattle and sheep, caused by eating white snakeroot or rayless goldenrod and characterized by muscular tremors and weakening. Also called milk sickness [Middle English tremblen, from Old French trembler, from Vulgar Latin tremulāre*, from Latin tremulus, trembling. See TREMULOUS.] —trem'bler n. —trem'bling-ly adv. —trem'bly adj.

tre·men·dous (trī-mě'n'dəs) adj. 1. a. Extremely large in amount, extent, or degree; enormous: a tremendous task. See Synonyms at enormous.

b. Informal. Marvelous; wonderful: had a tremendous night at the theater last night. 2. Capable of making one tremble; terrible. [From Latin tremendus, gerundive of tremere, to tremble.] —tre·men'dous-ly adv. —tre·men'dous-ness n.

trem·o·lite (trēm'ə-līt') n. A white to dark gray amphibole mineral, $\text{Ca}_2\text{Mg}_5\text{Si}_8\text{O}_{22}(\text{OH})_2$, typically occurring in aggregates and used as a substitute for asbestos and in paints and ceramics. [French trémolite, after Tremola, a valley in the Swiss Alps.]

trem·o·lo (trēm'ə-lō') *n. pl. trem·o·los. Music. 1. a. A tremulous effect produced by rapid repetition of a single tone. b. A similar effect produced by rapid alternation of two tones. 2. A device on an organ for producing a tremulous effect. 3. A vibrato in singing, often excessive or poorly controlled. [Italian, from Latin tremulus, tremulous. See TREMULOUS.]*

trem·or (trēm'ər) n. 1. A shaking or vibrating movement, as of the earth. 2. A trembling or quivering effect: a tremor of aspen leaves. 3. An involuntary trembling or quivering, as from nervous agitation or weakness. 4. A nervous quiver or thrill: felt a tremor of joy. 5. A state or feeling of nervous agitation or tension. 6. A tremulous sound; a quaver. [Middle English, terror, from Old French, from Latin, a trembling, from tremere, to tremble.]

trem·u·lant (trēm'yə-lənt) adj. Tremulous; trembling.

trem·u·lous (trēm'yə-ləs) adj. 1. Marked by trembling, quivering, or shaking. 2. Timid or fearful; timorous. [From Latin tremulus, from tremere, to tremble.] —trem'u·lous-ly adv. —trem'u·lous-ness n.

tre·nail (trē'nāl', trěn'əl, trүн'əl) n. Variant of treenail.

trench (trěntch) n. 1. A deep furrow or ditch. 2. A long, narrow ditch embanked with its own soil and used for concealment and protection in warfare. 3. A long, steep-sided valley on the ocean floor. — v. trenched, trench-ing, trench-es. — v. tr. 1. To cut a trench in. 2. To fortify with trenches. 3. To place in a trench. 4. To make a cut in; carve. — v. intr. 1. To dig trenches or a trench. 2. To verge or encroach. Often used with on or upon. [Middle English trenche, from Old French, from trenchier, to cut, perhaps from Vulgar Latin trincāre*, variant of Latin truncāre, from truncus, trunk. See terə-² in Appendix.]

Trench (trĕnch), Richard Chenevix. 1807-1886. British poet and philologist whose works include On the Study of Words (1851) and English Past and Present (1855).

trench·ant (trĕn'chənt) adj. 1. Keen; incisive: a trenchant comment.

2. Forceful, effective, and vigorous: a trenchant argument. See Synonyms at incisive. 3. Caustic; cutting: trenchant criticism. 4. Distinct; clear-cut. [Middle English, from Old French, cutting, from present participle of trenchier, to cut. See TRENCH.] —trench'an·cy n. —trench'ant·ly adv.

trench coat (trĕnch kōt) n. A belted raincoat in a military style, having straps on the shoulders and deep pockets.

trench·er¹ (trĕn'chər) n. 1. A wooden board or platter on which food is carved or served. 2. Archaic. The pleasure of the table; food. [Middle English trenchur, from Anglo-Norman trenchour, from trencher, to cut, perhaps from Vulgar Latin trincāre*. See TRENCH.]

trench·er² (trĕn'chər) n. One that digs trenches.

trench·er·man (trĕn'chər-mən) n. 1. A hearty eater. 2. Archaic. One who frequents another's table; a hanger-on or parasite.

trench fever (trĕnch fĕ'vər) n. An acute infectious disease characterized by chills and fever, caused by the microorganism Rickettsia quintana and transmitted by the louse Pediculus humanus. [From its occurrence among soldiers in trenches.]

trench foot (trĕnch fōt) n. A condition of the foot resembling frostbite, caused by prolonged exposure to cold and dampness and often affecting soldiers in trenches. [From its occurrence among soldiers in trenches.]

trench mortar (trĕnch mōr'tər) n. See mortar (n., sense 3a).

trench mouth (trĕnch mouth) n. A painful infection of the mouth and throat characterized by ulcerations of the mucous membranes, bleeding, and foul breath. It is caused by the bacterium Fusobacterium fusiforme in combination with the spirochete Treponema vincentii. Also called Vincent's angina, Vincent's infection. [From its occurrence among soldiers in trenches.]

trend (trĕnd) n. 1. The general direction in which something tends to move.

2. A general tendency or inclination. See Synonyms at tendency. 3. Current style; vogue: the latest trend in fashion. — v. intr. trend·ed, trend·ing, trends. 1. To extend, incline, or veer in a specified direction: The prevailing wind trends east-northeast. 2. To show a general tendency; tend: "The gender gap was trending down" (James J. Kilpatrick). [From Middle English trenden, to revolve, from Old English trendan.]

trend·set·ter (trĕnd'sĕt'ər) n. One that initiates or popularizes a trend: "The Golden State, ever the trendsetter, reformed its property tax" (New York).

—trend'set'ting adj.

trend·y (trĕn'dē) Informal. adj. trend·ier, trend·iest. Of or in accord with the latest fad or fashion: trendy clothes. See Synonyms at fashionable. — n. pl. trend·ies. One who is drawn to and represents the latest trends: “International trendies have spread the word about the area’s new nightclubs” (Lynn Langway). — trend’i·ly adv. — trend’i·ness n.

Trent (trĕnt) also Tren·to (trĕn'tō) A city of northern Italy northwest of Venice. Probably founded in the fourth century B.C., it was the site of the Council of Trent (1545-1563), which established the foundations of the Counter Reformation. Population, 98,833.

Tren·ti·no-Al·to-A·di·ge (trĕn-tē'nō-äl'tō-ä'dē-jě') A region of northeast Italy bordering on Switzerland and Austria. Annexed by Austria in 1814, it was ceded to Italy in sections between 1866 and 1919.

Tren·to (trĕn'tō) See Trent.

Tren·ton (trĕn'tən) 1. A town of southeast Ontario, Canada, on an inlet of Lake Ontario east-northeast of Toronto. It is a processing and industrial center. Population, 15,085. 2. A city of southeast Michigan, an industrial suburb of Detroit. Population, 20,586. 3. The capital of New Jersey, in the west-central part of the state on the Delaware River northeast of Philadelphia. Settled c. 1679 by Quakers, it was the site of a pivotal battle in the American Revolution in which George Washington’s troops captured a Hessian encampment in a surprise attack (December 26, 1776). Population, 88,675.

Trent River (trĕnt rĭv'ər) 1. A river, about 241 km (150 mi) long, of southeast Ontario, Canada. It is part of the Trent Canal system, about 386 km (240 mi) long, that connects Lake Ontario with Georgian Bay. 2. A river, about 274 km (170 mi) long, of central England flowing generally northeast to join the Ouse River and form the Humber estuary.

tre·pan¹ (trĭ-păn') n. 1. A rock-boring tool used in mining for sinking shafts. 2. Medicine. A trephine. — v. tr. tre·panned, tre·pan·ning, tre·pans. 1. To bore (a shaft) with a trepan. 2. Medicine. To trephine. [Middle English trepane, surgical crown saw, from Medieval Latin trepanum, from Greek trupanon, borer, from trupan, to pierce, from trupē, hole. See terə⁻¹ in Appendix.] — trep'a·na·tion (trĕp'ə-nā'shən) n.

tre·pan² (trĭ-păn') also tra·pan (trə-) Archaic. v. tr. tre·panned, tre·pan·ning, tre·pans. To trap; ensnare. — n. 1. A trickster. 2. A trick or snare. [Origin unknown.]

tre·pang (trĭ-păng') n. A sea cucumber of the genus Holothuria of the southern Pacific and Indian oceans, dried or smoked for use as an ingredient in soup, especially in China and Indonesia. Also called bêche-de-mer [Malay tĕripang.]

tre·phine (trĭ-fĭn') Medicine. n. A surgical instrument having circular, sawlike edges, used to cut out disks of bone, usually from the skull. — v. tr.

tre·phined, tre·phin·ing, tre·phines. To operate on with a trephine. [French tréphine, from obsolete English tréfine, from Latin trēs fīnēs, three ends : trēs, three; see trei- in Appendix + fīnēs, pl. of fīnis, end.] —trēph'ī-na'tion (trĕf'ə-nā'shən) n.

trep-id (trĕp'ɪd) adj. Timid; timorous. [Latin trepidus, anxious.]

trep-i-da-tion (trĕp'ɪ-dā'shən) n. 1. A state of alarm or dread; apprehension. See Synonyms at fear. 2. An involuntary trembling or quivering. [Latin trepidātiō, trepidātiōn-, from trepidātus, past participle of trepidāre, to be in a state of confusion, from trepidus, anxious.]

trep-o-ne-ma (trĕp'ə-nĕ'mə) n. pl. trep-o-ne-ma-ta (-mə-tə) or trep-o-ne-mas. Any of a group of spirochetes of the genus Treponema, including those that cause syphilis, pinta, and yaws. [New Latin Treponema, genus name : Greek trepein, to turn; see trep- in Appendix + Greek nĕma, thread; see (s)nĕ- in Appendix.] —trep'o-ne'mal, trep'o-nem'a-tous (-nĕm'ə-təs) adj.

trep-o-ne-ma-to-sis (trĕp'ə-nĕ'mə-tō'sis) n. pl. trep-o-ne-ma-to-ses (-sĕz). An infection or a disease caused by a treponema.

trep-o-neme (trĕp'ə-nĕm') n. A treponema.

tres-pass (trĕs'pəs, -päs') v. intr. tres-passed, tres-pass-ing, tres-pass-es. 1. To commit an offense or a sin; transgress or err. 2. Law. To commit an unlawful injury to the person, property, or rights of another, with actual or implied force or violence, especially to enter onto another's land wrongfully. 3. To infringe on the privacy, time, or attention of another: "I must... not trespass too far on the patience of a good-natured critic" (Henry Fielding). — n. (trĕs'päs', -pəs)

1. Transgression of a moral or social law, code, or duty. 2. Law. a. The act of trespassing. b. A suit brought for trespassing. 3. An intrusion or infringement on another. See Synonyms at breach. [Middle English trespassen, from Old French trespasser : tres-, over (from Latin trāns-); see TRANS- + passer, to pass; see PASS.] —tres'pass-er n.

tress (trĕs) n. 1. A long lock or ringlet of hair. 2. Archaic. A plait or braid of hair. [Middle English tresse, from Old French, perhaps from Vulgar Latin trichia*, tricia, rope, braid, from Greek trikhia, rope, from thrix, trikh-, hair.]

tres-tle (trĕs'əl) n. 1. A horizontal beam or bar held up by two pairs of divergent legs and used as a support. 2. A framework consisting of vertical, slanted supports and horizontal crosspieces supporting a bridge. [Middle English trestel, from Old French, alteration of Vulgar Latin trāstellum*, trānstellum, diminutive of Latin trānstrum, beam. See TRANSOM.]

tres-tle-tree (trĕs'əl-trĕ') n. Nautical. One of a pair of horizontal beams set into a masthead to support the crosstrees.

tres-tle-work (trĕs'əl-wŭrk') n. A trestle or system of trestles, as that supporting a bridge.

tret-i-noin (trĕt'ɪ-noin') n. An isomer of retinoic acid, used in the treatment of acne. [T(RANS-), type of chemical bond + retinoic acid (RETINO- + -IC) + -IN.]

tre·val·ly (trə-văl'ē) n. pl. tre·val·lies. An Australian food fish of the genus Caranx. [Perhaps alteration of CAVALLA.]

Tre·vel·yan (trə-věl'yən, -vīl'-), Sir George Otto. 1838-1928. British historian and politician who was secretary for Ireland (1882-1884) and Scotland (1886 and 1892-1895) and wrote the four-volume American Revolution (1899-1907). His son George Macaulay Trevelyan (1876-1962) was a historian and biographer whose works include three books on Garibaldi (1907-1911).

Trèves (trěv) See Trier.

Tre·vi·no (trə-vē'no), Lee. Born 1939. American golfer who won the U.S. Open (1968 and 1971), the British Open (1971 and 1972), and the Professional Golfers' Association title (1974 and 1984).

Tre·vi·so (trə-vē'zō, trě-) A city of northeast Italy north-northwest of Venice. An ancient Roman town, it was later the seat of a Lombard duchy and passed to Venice in the 14th century. Population, 87,089.

Trev·i·thick (trěv'ə-thīk'), Richard. 1771-1833. British railroad engineer and inventor who built the first high-pressure steam engine (1800) and the first steam-powered passenger vehicle (1801).

trews (trōōz) pl.n. Close-fitting trousers, usually of tartan. [Variant of obsolete trouse. See TROUSER.]

trey (trā) n. pl. treys. Games. A card, die, or domino with three pips. [Middle English treye, from Old French treie, from Latin tria, neuter of trēs, three. See trei- in Appendix.]

tri- pref. 1. Three: trilobate. 2. a. Occurring at intervals of three: trimonthly. b. Occurring three times during: triweekly. [Middle English, from Latin, and Greek; see trei- in Appendix.]

tri·a·ble (trī'ə-bəl) adj. 1. That can be tried or tested: a triable plan. 2. Law. Subject to judicial examination: a triable case. —tri·a·ble·ness n.

tri·ac·id (trī-ās'īd) adj. 1. Capable of reacting with three molecules of a monobasic acid. Used of a base. 2. Containing three replaceable hydrogen atoms. Used of an acid or acid salt. — n. An acid containing three replaceable hydrogen atoms.

tri·ad (trī'äd', -əd) n. 1. A group of three. 2. Music. A chord of three tones, especially one built on a given root tone plus a major or minor third and a perfect fifth. 3. A section of a Pindaric ode consisting of the strophe, antistrophe, and epode. [Late Latin trias, triad-, from Greek, the number three. See trei- in Appendix.] —tri·ad'ic (trī-äd'īk) adj.

tri·age (trē-äzh', trē'äzh') n. 1. A process for sorting injured people into groups based on their need for or likely benefit from immediate medical treatment. Triage is used on the battlefield, at disaster sites, and in hospital emergency rooms when limited medical resources must be allocated. 2. A system used to allocate a scarce commodity, such as food, only to those capable of deriving the greatest benefit from it. [French, from trier, to sort, from Old French.]

tri-al (trī'əl, trīl) n. 1. Law. Examination of evidence and applicable law by a competent tribunal to determine the issue of specified charges or claims. 2. a. The act or process of testing, trying, or putting to the proof: a trial of one's faith. b. An instance of such testing, especially as part of a series of tests or experiments. 3. An effort or attempt: succeeded on the third trial. 4. A state of pain or anguish that tests patience, endurance, or belief: "the fiery trial through which we pass" (Abraham Lincoln). 5. A trying, troublesome, or annoying person or thing: The child was a trial to his parents. 6. A preliminary competition or test to determine qualifications, as in a sport. — adj. 1. Of, relating to, or used in a trial. 2. Attempted or advanced on a provisional or experimental basis: a trial separation. 3. Made or done in the course of a trial or test. — idioms. on trial. In the process of being tried, as in a court of law. trial by fire. A test of one's abilities, especially the ability to perform well under pressure. [Middle English triall, a testing, from Anglo-Norman trial, from trier, to sort, try.]

SYNONYMS: trial, affliction, crucible, ordeal, tribulation, visitation. The central meaning shared by these nouns is "distress or suffering that severely tests resiliency and character": no consolation in their hour of trial; the affliction of a bereaved family; the crucible of revolution; the ordeal of being an innocent murder suspect; domestic tribulations; an epidemic considered to be a visitation. See also Synonyms at burden¹ trial and error (trī'əl ənd ər'ər) n. A method of reaching a correct solution or satisfactory result by trying out various means or theories until error is sufficiently reduced or eliminated. — tri'al-and-er'ror (trī'əl-ən-ər'ər, trīl'-) adj.

trial balance (trī'əl bəl'əns) n. Abbr. t.b. A statement of all the open debit and credit items in a double-entry ledger, made to test their equality.

trial balloon (trī'əl bə-lōn') n. An idea or a plan advanced tentatively to test public reaction. [From the use of balloons to test weather conditions.]

trial jury (trī'əl jōōr'ē) n. Law. See petit jury.

tri-a-logue (trī'ə-lŏg', -lŏg') n. A conversation or discussion in which three people or groups participate. [TRI- + (DI)ALOGUE.]

trial run (trī'əl rŭn) n. A test, as of performance or acceptance.

tri-am-cin-o-lone (trī'əm-sīn'ə-lŏn') n. A synthetic glucocorticoid, C₂₁H₂₇FO₆, used as an anti-inflammatory drug in the treatment of allergic and respiratory disorders. [Perhaps from TRI- + AM(YL) + cin(ene), a turpene + (prednis)olone, a corticoid.]

tri-an-gle (trī'äng'gəl) n. 1. a. The plane figure formed by connecting three points not in a straight line by straight line segments; a three-sided polygon.

b. Something shaped like such a figure: a triangle of land. 2. Any of various flat, three-sided drawing and drafting guides, used especially to draw straight lines at specific angles. 3. Music. A percussion instrument consisting of a piece of metal in the shape of a triangle open at one angle. 4. A relationship involving three people, especially a ménage à trois. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin triangulum, from neuter of triangulus, three-angled : tri-, tri- + angulus, angle.]

tri-an-gu-lar (trī-äng'gyə-lər) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or shaped like a triangle. 2. Having a triangle for a base: a triangular pyramid. 3. Relating to or involving three entities, such as three people, objects, or ideas. —tri-an'gu-lar'i-ty (-lä'r'i-tē) n. —tri-an'gu-lar-ly adv.

tri-an-gu-late (trī-äng'gyə-lāt') v. tr. tri-an-gu-lat-ed, tri-an-gu-lat-ing, tri-an-gu-lates. 1. To divide into triangles. 2. To survey by triangulation. 3. To make triangular. 4. To measure by using trigonometry. — adj. (trī-äng'gyə-līt)

1. Of or relating to triangles; triangular. 2. Made up of or marked with triangles. tri-an-gu-la-tion (trī-äng'gyə-lā'shən) n. 1. a. A surveying technique in which a region is divided into a series of triangular elements based on a line of known length so that accurate measurements of distances and directions may be made by the application of trigonometry. b. The network of triangles so laid out. 2. The location of an unknown point, as in navigation, by the formation of a triangle having the unknown point and two known points as the vertices.

Tri-an-gu-lum (trī-äng'gyə-ləm) n. A constellation in the northern sky near Aries and Andromeda. [Latin triangulum, triangle. See TRIANGLE.]

Triangulum Aus-tra-le (trī-äng'gyə-ləm ô-strā'lē) n. A constellation in the polar region of the southern sky near Apus and Norma. [New Latin : Latin triangulum, triangle + Latin austrālis, southern.]

tri-ar-chy (trī-är'kē) n. pl. tri-ar-chie. 1. Government by three people; a triumvirate. 2. A country governed by three rulers.

Tri-as-sic (trī-äs'īk) adj. Of, belonging to, or being the geologic time, system of rocks, and sedimentary deposits of the first period of the Mesozoic Era, after the Permian Period of the Paleozoic Era and before the Jurassic Period of the Mesozoic Era. — n. The Triassic Period or its system of deposits. [Late Latin trias, triad (from the subdivision of this period into three parts); see TRIAD + -IC.]

tri-ath-lete (trī-äth'lēt) n. Sports. One who competes in a triathlon.

tri-ath-lon (trī-äth'lən, -lön') n. Sports. An athletic contest in which participants compete without stopping in three successive events, usually long-distance swimming, bicycling, and running. [TRI- + (DEC)ATHLON.]

tri-a-tom-ic (trī'ə-töm'īk) adj. 1. Containing three atoms per molecule. 2. Containing three replaceable atoms or radicals.

tri-ax-i-al (trī-äk'sē-əl) adj. Having three axes. —tri-ax'i-al'i-ty (-äl'i-tē) n.

tri·a·zine (trī'ə-zēn', trī-ăz'ēn') n. 1. Any of three isomeric compounds, $C_3H_3N_3$, each having three carbon and three nitrogen atoms in a six-membered ring. 2. A compound derived from one of these isomers.

tri·a·zole (trī'ə-zōl', trī-ăz'ōl') n. Any of several compounds with composition $C_2H_3N_3$, having a five-membered ring of two carbon atoms and three nitrogen atoms.

trib. abbr. Tributary.

trib·ade (trīb'əd) n. A lesbian. [French, from Latin tribas, tribad-, from Greek, from tribein, to rub. See TRIBOLOGY.] —trib'a·dism n.

trib·al (trīb'bəl) adj. Of, relating to, or characteristic of a tribe. —trib'al·ly adv.

trib·al·ism (trīb'bə-līz'əm) n. 1. The organization, culture, or beliefs of a tribe.

2. A strong feeling of identity with and loyalty to one's tribe or group.

—trib'al·ist n. —trib'al·is'tic adj.

tri·ba·sic (trī-bā'sīk) adj. 1. Containing three replaceable hydrogen atoms per molecule. Used of an acid. 2. Containing three univalent basic atoms or radicals per molecule. Used of a base or salt.

tribe (trīb) n. 1. A unit of social organization consisting of a number of families, clans, or other groups who share a common ancestry, culture, and leadership.

2. A political, ethnic, or ancestral division of ancient states and cultures, especially:

a. Any of the three divisions of the ancient Romans, namely, the Latin, Sabine, and Etruscan. b. Any of the 12 divisions of ancient Israel. c. A phyle of ancient Greece. 3. A group of people sharing an occupation, an interest, or a habit: a tribe of graduate students. 4. Informal. A large family. 5. Biology. A taxonomic category placed between a subfamily and a genus or between a suborder and a family and usually containing several genera. [Middle English, from Old French tribu, from Latin tribus, division of the Roman people, perhaps of Etruscan origin, or possibly from tri-, three; see trei- in Appendix.]

tribes·man (trībzb'mən) n. 1. A man who is a member of one's own tribe. 2. A member of an aboriginal people living in tribes.

tribes·peo·ple (trībzb'pē'pəl) pl.n. 1. The people of one's own tribe. 2. An aboriginal people living in tribes: the tribespeople of the Kalahari Desert.

tribes·wom·an (trībzb'wōm'ən) n. 1. A woman who is a member of one's own tribe. 2. A woman who is a member of an aboriginal people living in tribes.

tri·bo·e·lec·tric·i·ty (trī'bō-ī-lĕk-trīs'ī-tē, -ē'lĕk-, trīb'ō-) n. pl.

tri·bo·e·lec·tric·i·ties. An electrical charge produced by friction between two objects. [Greek tribos, a rubbing from tribein, to rub; see terə⁻¹ in Appendix + ELECTRICITY.] —tri'bo·e·lec'tric adj.

tri·bol·o·gy (trī-bōl'ə-jē, trīb-) n. The science of the mechanisms of friction, lubrication, and wear of interacting surfaces that are in relative motion. [Greek tribos, a rubbing (from Greek tribein, to rub); see terə⁻¹ in Appendix + -LOGY.]

—tri'bo·log'i·cal (trī'bə-lōj'ī-kəl, trīb'ə-) adj. —tri·bol'o·gist n.

tri-brach (trī'brāk') n. A metrical foot having three short or unstressed syllables. [Latin tribrachys, from Greek tribrakhos : tri-, tri- + brakhos, short; see mregh-u- in Appendix.]

tri-bro-mo-eth-a-nol (trī-brō'mō-ěth'ə-nōl', -nōl', -nōl') n. A white crystalline compound, $\text{CBr}_3\text{CH}_2\text{OH}$, that has a slight aromatic odor and taste and is used as a basal anesthetic.

trib-u-la-tion (trīb'yə-lā'shən) n. 1. Great affliction, trial, or distress; suffering: the tribulations of the persecuted. See Synonyms at trial. 2. An experience that tests one's endurance, patience, or faith. See Synonyms at burden¹. [Middle English tribulacioun, from Old French tribulacion, from Latin tribulātiō, tribulātiōn-, from tribulātus, past participle of tribulāre, to oppress, from Latin tribulum, threshing-sledge. See terə⁻¹ in Appendix.]

tri-bu-nal (trī-byōō'nəl, trī-) n. 1. Law. a. A seat or court of justice. b. The bench on which a judge or other presiding officer sits in court. 2. A committee or board appointed to adjudicate in a particular matter. 3. Something that has the power to determine or judge: the tribunal of public opinion. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin tribūnal, judge's platform, from tribūnus, tribune. See TRIBUNE¹.]

trib-u-nate (trīb'yə-nāt', trī-byōō'nīt) n. The rank, office, dignity, or authority of a tribune.

trib-une¹ (trīb'yōōn', trī-byōōn') n. 1. An officer of ancient Rome elected by the plebeians to protect their rights from arbitrary acts of the patrician magistrates. 2. A protector or champion of the people. [Middle English, from Old French tribun, from Latin tribūnus, from tribus, tribe. See TRIBE.] —trib'u-nar'y (trīb'yə-nēr'ē) adj.

trib-une² (trīb'yōōn', trī-byōōn') n. A raised platform or dais from which a speaker addresses an assembly. [French, from Old French, part of a church, speaking platform, from Old Italian tribuna, from Medieval Latin tribūna, alteration of Latin tribūnal. See TRIBUNAL.]

trib-u-tar-y (trīb'yə-tēr'ē) adj. 1. Making additions or yielding supplies; contributory. 2. Paid in tribute. 3. Paying tribute: a tributary colony. — n. pl.

trib-u-tar-ies. Abbr. trib. 1. A stream that flows into a larger stream or other body of water. 2. A ruler or nation that pays tribute. [Middle English tributarie, paying tribute, from Latin tribūtārius, from tribūtum, tribute. See TRIBUTE.]

trib-ute (trīb'yōōt) n. 1. A gift, payment, declaration, or other acknowledgment of gratitude, respect, or admiration: put up a plaque as a tribute to his generosity. 2. Evidence attesting to some praiseworthy quality or characteristic: Her home is a tribute to her good taste. 3. a. A payment in money or other valuables made by one ruler or nation to another in acknowledgment of submission or as the price of protection or security. b. A tax imposed for such payment. 4. Any payment exacted for protection. 5. a. A payment or tax given by a feudal vassal to an overlord. b. The obligation to make such a payment. [Middle English tribut, from Old French, from Latin tribūtum, from neuter past participle of tribuere, to pay, distribute, from tribus, tribe. See TRIBE.]

tri·cam·er·al (trī-kām'ər-əl) adj. Of or being a legislature composed of three chambers. [TRI- + Latin camera, chamber; see CAMERA + -AL¹.]

tri·car·box·yl·ic (trī'kär-bök-sil'ik) adj. Having three carboxyl groups.

tricarboxylic acid cycle (trī'kär-bök-sil'ik äs'id sī'kəl) n. See Krebs cycle.

trice (trīs) n. A very short period of time; an instant: came back in a trice. — v. tr. triced, tric-ing, tric-es. Nautical. To hoist and secure with a rope: trice a sail. [From Middle English (at a) trise, at one pull, from trisen, to hoist, from Middle Dutch trīsen, from trīse, pulley. V., from Middle English trisen.]

tri·cen·ten·ni·al (trī'sĕn-tĕn'ē-əl) adj. Tercentenary. — n. A tercentenary event or celebration.

tri·ceps (trī'sĕps') n. pl. tri·ceps·es (-sĕp'sĭz) also triceps. A large three-headed muscle running along the back of the upper arm and serving to extend the forearm. [From Latin, three-headed : tri-, tri- + caput, head; see kaput- in Appendix.]

tri·cer·a·tops (trī-sĕr'ə-tŏps') n. A herbivorous dinosaur of the genus Triceratops, of the Cretaceous Period, having a bony plate covering the neck, a large horn above either eye, and a smaller horn on the nose. [New Latin Triceratops, genus name : Greek tri-, tri- + Greek keras, kerat-, horn; see ker-¹ in Appendix + Greek ōps, eye, face; see ok^w- in Appendix.]

trich- pref. Variant of tricho-.

tri·chi·a·sis (trī-kī'ə-sĭs) n. A condition of ingrowing hairs about an orifice, especially ingrowing eyelashes.

tri·chi·na (trī-kī'nə) n. pl. tri·chi·nae (-nĕ) or tri·chi·nas. A small, slender parasitic nematode worm (Trichinella spiralis) that infests the intestines of various mammals and whose larvae move through the bloodstream, becoming encysted in muscles. [New Latin, from Greek trikhinē, feminine of trikhinos, hairy, from thrix, trikh-, hair.]

trich·i·nize (trĭk'ə-nĭz') v. tr. trich·i·nized, trich·i·niz·ing, trich·i·niz·es. To infect with trichinae. — trich'i·ni·za'tion (-nĭ-zā'shən) n.

trich·i·no·sis (trĭk'ə-nŏ'sĭs) n. A disease caused by eating undercooked meat, usually pork, that contains trichinae, which develop as adults in the intestines and as larvae in the muscles, causing intestinal disorders, fever, nausea, muscular pain, and edema of the face.

tri·chi·nous (trī-kī'nəs, trĭk'ə-nəs) adj. 1. Containing trichinae: trichinous pork. 2. Of or relating to trichinae or trichinosis: a trichinous infection.

trich·ite (trĭk'it') n. A small, dark, needle-shaped crystal. — tri·chit'ic (trī-kĭt'ik) adj.

tri-chlor-eth-yl-ene (trī'klôr-ěth'ə-lēn', -klôr-) n. Variant of trichloroethylene.

tri-chlor-fon (trī-klôr'fōn', -klôr'-) n. A colorless crystalline compound, $C_4H_8Cl_3O_4P$, used as an agricultural insecticide. [TRI- + CHLOR(O)- + -fon (from phosphonate, a chemical compound).]

tri-chlo-ride (trī-klôr'id', -klôr'-) also tri-chlo-rid (-klôr'id, -klôr'-) n. A compound containing three chlorine atoms per molecule.

tri-chlo-ro-a-ce-tic acid (trī-klôr'ō-ə-sē'tik əs'id, -klôr'-) n. A colorless, deliquescent, corrosive, crystalline compound, CCl_3COOH , used as a herbicide and topically as an astringent and antiseptic.

tri-chlo-ro-eth-yl-ene (trī-klôr'ō-ěth'ə-lēn', -klôr'-) also tri-chlor-eth-yl-ene (trī'klôr-, -klôr-) n. A heavy, colorless, toxic liquid, $CHCl:CCl_2$, used to degrease metals, as an extraction solvent for oils and waxes, as a refrigerant, in dry cleaning, and as a fumigant.

tricho- or trich- pref. Hair; thread; filament: trichocyst. [Greek trikho-, from thrix, trikh-, hair.]

trich-o-cyst (trik'ə-sist') n. A stinging or grasping organ in the outer cytoplasm of certain protozoans, especially ciliates, consisting of a threadlike or bristlelike filament that can be discharged suddenly from a minute capsule.

—trich'o-cys'tic adj.

trich-o-gyne (trik'ə-jīn', -gīn') n. A hairlike terminal process forming the receptive part of the female reproductive structure in certain fungi or algae.

trich-oid (trik'oid', trī'koid') adj. Resembling hair.

trich-ome (trik'ōm', trī'kōm') n. A hairlike or bristlelike outgrowth, as from the epidermis of a plant. [Greek trikhōma, growth of hair, from trikhoun, to cover with hair, from thrix, trikh-, hair.] —tri-chom'ic (trī-kōm'ik, -kō'mik, trī-) adj.

trich-o-mo-nad (trik'ə-mō'nād') n. Any of various flagellate protozoans of the genus Trichomonas, occurring as parasites in the digestive and urogenital tracts of vertebrates. [New Latin Trichomonas, Trichomonad-, genus name : TRI-CHO- + Late Latin monas, monad-, unit; see MONAD.] —trich'o-mo-nad'al (-nād'l), trich'o-mon'al (-mō'nəl) adj.

trich-o-mo-ni-a-sis (trik'ə-mə-nī'ə-sīs) n. pl. trich-o-mo-ni-a-ses (-sēz').

1. A vaginal inflammation caused by a trichomonad (Trichomonas vaginalis) and resulting in a refractory discharge and itching. 2. An infection caused by trichomonads, as a disease of cattle that commonly results in infertility or abortion in infected cows.

tri-chop-ter-an (trī-kōp'tər-ən) n. An insect of the order Trichoptera, constituting the caddis flies. [From New Latin Trichoptera, order name : Greek trikho-, tricho- + Greek -ptera, pl. of -pteros, winged (from pteron, wing); see -PTER.]

tri·cho·sis (trī-kō'sis) n. pl. tri·cho·ses (-sēz). Any disease of or affecting the hair.

tri·chot·o·my (trī-kōt'ə-mē) n. pl. tri·chot·o·mies. 1. Division into three parts or elements. 2. A system based on three parts or elements. [New Latin trichotomia : Greek trikha, in three parts; see trei- in Appendix + New Latin -tomia, -tomy.] —tri·chot'o·mous adj. —tri·chot'o·mous·ly adv.

-trichous suff. Having a specified kind of hair or hairlike part: peritrichous. [From Greek -trikhos, from thrix, trikh-, hair.]

tri·chro·ism (trī'krō-iz'əm) n. The property possessed by certain minerals of exhibiting three different colors when viewed from three different directions under white lights. [From Greek trikhroos, three-colored : tri-, tri- + khros, color.] —tri·chro'ic adj.

tri·chro·mat (trī'krō-măt') n. A person who has trichromatic vision.

tri·chro·mat·ic (trī'krō-măt'ik) also tri·chrome (trī'krōm') or tri·chro·mic (trī-krō'mik) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or having three colors, as in photography or printing. 2. Having perception of the three primary colors, as in normal vision: trichromatic vision; a trichromatic individual. —tri·chro'ma·tism (trī-krō'mə-tiz'əm) n.

trich·u·ri·a·sis (trik'yə-rī'ə-sis) n. pl. trich·u·ri·a·ses (-sēz). Infestation of the large intestine with whipworms of the genus Trichuris. [New Latin Trichuris, genus name (TRICH(O)- + Greek oura, tail); see ors- in Appendix + -IASIS.]

trick (trik) n. 1. An act or a procedure intended to achieve an end by deceptive or fraudulent means. See Synonyms at artifice. 2. A mischievous action; a prank. 3. A stupid, disgraceful, or childish act or performance. 4. a. A peculiar trait or characteristic; a mannerism: "Mimicry is the trick by which a moth or other defenseless insect comes to look like a wasp" (Marston Bates). b. A peculiar event with unexpected, often deceptive results: "One of history's cruelest tricks is to take words that sounded good at the time and make them sound pretty stupid" (David Owen). c. A deceptive or illusive appearance; an illusion: a trick of sunlight. 5. a. A special skill; a knack: Is there a trick to getting this window to stay up? b. A convention or specialized skill peculiar to a particular field of activity: learned the tricks of the winemaking trade. 6. A feat of magic or legerdemain. 7. A difficult, dexterous, or clever act designed to amuse. 8. Games. a. All the cards played in a single round, one from each player. b. One such round. 9. a. A period or turn of duty, as at the helm of a ship. b. Slang. A prison term. 10. Slang. a. An act of prostitution. b. A prostitute's customer. c. A session carried out by a prostitute with a client. 11. Slang. A robbery or theft. — v. tr. intr. tricked, trick·ing, tricks. To cheat or deceive or to practice trickery or deception. — adj. 1. Of, relating to, or involving tricks. 2. Capable of performing tricks: a trick dog. 3. Designed or made for doing a trick or tricks: trick cards; trick dice. 4. Weak, defective, or liable to fail: a trick knee. —phrasal verb. trick out (or trick up). Informal. To ornament or adorn, often garishly: was all tricked out in beads and fringe. —idioms. do the trick (or turn the trick). To bring about the desired result. how's tricks. Informal. Used to make a friendly inquiry about a person or that person's affairs. not miss a trick. To be extremely alert: The teacher was known for not missing a trick. [Middle English trik, from Old North French trique, from trikier, to deceive, probably from Vulgar Latin triccāre*, from Latin trīcārī, to play tricks, from trīcae, tricks.] —trick'er n.

trick·er·y (trɪk'ə-rē) n. pl. trick·er·ies. The practice or use of tricks; deception by stratagem.

trick·ish (trɪk'ɪʃ) adj. Characterized by or tending to use tricks or trickery. —trick'ish·ly adv. —trick'ish·ness n.

trick·le (trɪk'əl) v. trick·led, trick·ling, trick·les. — v. intr. 1. To flow or fall in drops or in a thin stream. 2. To move or proceed slowly or bit by bit: The audience trickled in. — v. tr. To cause to trickle. — n. 1. The act or condition of trickling. 2. A slow, small, or irregular quantity that moves, proceeds, or occurs intermittently. [Middle English triklen, perhaps variant of striklen, frequentative of striken, to flow. See STRIKE.]

trickle charge (trɪk'əl chärj) n. An electric charge supplied to a storage battery at a continuous low rate to keep it fully charged.

trick·le·down also trick·le·down (trɪk'əl-doun') adj. Of or relating to the trickle-down theory: the trickle-down effect.

trickle-down theory (trɪk'əl-doun' thē'ə-rē) n. A theory in economics that financial benefits accorded to big business enterprises will in turn pass down to smaller businesses and consumers.

trick or treat (trɪk ðr trēt) interj. Used as a greeting by children when trick-or-treating.

trick-or-treat (trɪk'ər-trēt') v. intr. trick-or-treat·ed, trick-or-treat·ing, trick-or-treats. To engage in the practice of asking for treats on Halloween and threatening to play tricks on those who refuse.

trick·ster (trɪk'stər) n. One that swindles or plays tricks.

trick·sy (trɪk'sē) adj. trick·si·er, trick·si·est. 1. Smartly attired; dapper. 2. Sportive; mischievous. 3. Crafty; cunning; devious. 4. Likely to cause trouble and therefore requiring special care or skilled, delicate treatment.

trick·y (trɪk'ē) adj. trick·i·er, trick·i·est. 1. Given to or characterized by trickery. See Synonyms at sly. 2. Requiring caution or skill: a tricky recipe. —trick'i·ly adv. —trick'i·ness n.

tri·clin·ic (trī-klɪn'ɪk) adj. Having three unequal axes intersecting at oblique angles. Used of certain crystals.

tri·clin·i·um (trī-klɪn'ē-əm) n. pl. tri·clin·i·a (-ē-ə). 1. A couch facing three sides of a rectangular table, used by the ancient Greeks, Etruscans, and Romans for reclining at meals. 2. A room containing such a couch or couches; a dining room. [Latin triclīnium, from Greek triklinion, diminutive of triklinos, room with three couches : tri-, three; see trei- in Appendix + klinē, couch; see klei- in Appendix.]

tri-col-or (trī'kŭl'ər) n. 1. A flag having three colors. 2. Also Tricolor. The French flag. — adj. also tri-col-ored (-ərd) Having three colors.

tri-corn also tri-corne (trī'kôrn') n. A hat having the brim turned up on three sides. — adj. Having three corners, horns, or projections. [French tricorné, from Latin tricornis, three-horned : tri-, tri- + cornū, horn; see ker-¹ in Appendix.]

tri-cor-nered (trī'kôr'nərd) adj. Having three corners.

tri-cos-tate (trī-kôs'tāt') adj. Having three costae.

tri-cot (trē'kō) n. 1. A plain, warp-knitted cloth of any of various yarns. 2. A soft, ribbed cloth of wool or a wool blend, usually used for dresses. [French, from tricoter, to knit, from Old French, to beat, run, from tricote, short thick stick, diminutive of estrique, trique, stick for leveling measures of grain, from estriquier, to strike off, of Germanic origin. See streig- in Appendix.]

tric-o-tine (trīk'ə-tēn', trē'kə-) n. A sturdy, worsted fabric with a double twill, used for dresses and suits. [French, from tricot, tricot. See TRICOT.]

tri-crot-ic (trī-krōt'ik) adj. Medicine. Having three waves or elevations to one beat of the pulse. [From Greek trikrotos, having a triple beat : tri-, three; see trei- in Appendix + krotein, to beat.] — tri'cro-tism (trī'krə-tīz'əm) n.

tri-cus-pid (trī-kŭs'pīd) n. An organ or a part, especially a tooth, having three cusps. — adj. also tri-cus-pi-dal (-pī-dəl) or tri-cus-pi-date (-pī-dāt') 1. Having three cusps, especially a molar tooth. 2. Of or relating to the tricuspid valve. [From Latin tricuspis, tricuspid-, having three points : tri-, tri- + cuspis, point.]

tricuspid valve (trī-kŭs'pīd vālv) n. The three-segmented valve of the heart that keeps blood in the right ventricle from flowing back into the right atrium.

tri-cy-cle (trī'sīk'əl, -sī-kəl) n. A vehicle, used especially by small children, that has three wheels, one at the front and two at the back, and is usually propelled by pedals. [French : tri-, three (from Greek tri-); see TRI- + Greek kuklos, wheel; see CYCLE.]

tri-cy-clic (trī-sī'klīk, -sīk'lik) adj. Chemistry. Having or being a molecular structure that contains three closed rings: a tricyclic molecule. — n. A tricyclic antidepressant drug.

tri-dac-tyl (trī-dāk'təl) also tri-dac-ty-lous (-tə-ləs) adj. Having three toes, claws, or similar parts on each limb. [Greek tridaktulos, three-fingered : tri-, tri-; see trei- in Appendix + daktulos, finger.]

tri-dent (trīd'nt) n. 1. A long, three-pronged fork or weapon, especially a three-pronged spear used for fishing. 2. Greek Mythology & Roman Mythology. The three-pronged spear carried by Neptune or Poseidon. — adj. also tri-den-tate

(trī-dĕn'tāt) Having three teeth, prongs, or similar protrusions. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin tridēns, trident- : tri-, tri- + dēns, tooth; see dent- in Appendix.]

Tri-den-tine (trī-dĕn'tīn', -tĕn') adj. 1. Of or relating to an ecumenical council held by the Roman Catholic Church in Trent, Italy, from 1545 to 1563. 2. Of or relating to the decrees, reforms, or results of that council: the Tridentine Catechism. — n. A Roman Catholic who rigorously conforms to the Tridentine Creed formulated at that council. [Medieval Latin Tridentīnus, from Latin, area around Tridentum, from Tridentum (Trent).]

tri-di-men-sion-al (trī'dī-mĕn'shə-nəl, -dī-) adj. Of, relating to, or having three dimensions.

tried (trīd) v. Past tense and past participle of try. — adj. 1. Thoroughly tested and proved to be good or trustworthy. 2. Made to undergo trials or distress. Often used in combination: a much-tried teacher.

tried and true (trīd ənd trō) adj. Tested and proved to be worthy or good.

tri-en-ni-al (trī-ĕn'ĕ-əl) adj. 1. Occurring every third year. 2. Lasting three years. — n. 1. A third anniversary. 2. A ceremony or celebration occurring every three years. [From Latin triennis, from triennium, triennium. See TRIENNIIUM.] — tri-en'ni-al-ly adv.

tri-en-ni-um (trī-ĕn'ĕ-əm) n. pl. tri-en-ni-ums or tri-en-ni-a (-ĕn'ĕ-ə). A period of three years. [Latin : tri-, tri- + annus, year; see at- in Appendix.]

tri-er (trī'ər) n. 1. a. One that tries; a test or tester. b. One who keeps attempting something despite failure. 2. Law. One who examines and settles a case; a judge or juror. 3. a. An instrument or a device that sifts, filters, or separates ore or grain, for example, from impurities. b. An instrument or a device, such as a tube or siphon, for taking samples of wine, for example.

Trier (trīr) also Trèves (trĕv) A city of southwest Germany on the Moselle River near the Luxembourg border. Settled by the Treveri, an eastern Gaulish people, it was an important commercial center under the Romans and later as part of the Holy Roman Empire. The city was under French control from 1797 until 1815. Population, 94,190.

tri-er-arch (trī'ər-rärk') n. 1. The captain of a Greek trireme. 2. An Athenian who outfitted and maintained a trireme as a part of his civic duties. [Latin triērarchus, from Greek triērarkhos : triērēs, trireme; see trei- in Appendix + arkhos, ruler; see -ARCH.] tri-er-ar-chy (trī'ər-rär'kĕ) n. pl. tri-er-ar-chie. 1. The authority or office of the commander of a trierarch. 2. The ancient Athenian system whereby individual citizens furnished and maintained triremes as a part of their public duty.

tries (trīz) v. Third person singular present tense of try. — n. Plural of try.

Tri-este (trĕ-ĕst', -ĕs'tĕ) A city of extreme northeast Italy on the Gulf of Trieste, an inlet of the Gulf of Venice at the head of the Adriatic Sea. Held by Austria from 1382 until 1919, Trieste became in 1947 the center of the Free Territory of Trieste administered by the United Nations. In 1954 the city and the northern zone of the territory were returned to Italy; the remainder of the area became part of Yugoslavia. Population, 251,380.

tri-fa-cial (trī-fā'shəl) adj. Trigeminal.

tri-fec-ta (trī-fĕk'tə) n. Sports & Games. A system of betting in which the bettor must pick the first three winners in the correct sequence. Also called triple [TRI- + (PER)FECTA.]

tri-fid (trī'fid') adj. Divided or cleft into three narrow parts or lobes: a trifid tail; a trifid organ. [Latin trifidus: tri-, tri- + findere, fid-, to split.]

tri-fle (trī'fəl) n. 1. Something of little importance or value. 2. A small amount; a jot. 3. A dessert typically consisting of plain or sponge cake soaked in sherry, rum, or brandy and topped with layers of jam or jelly, custard, and whipped cream. 4. a. A moderately hard variety of pewter. b. trifles. Utensils made from this variety of pewter. — v. tri-fled, tri-fling, tri-fles. — v. intr. 1. To deal with something as if it were of little significance or value. 2. To act, perform, or speak with little seriousness or purpose; jest. 3. To play or toy with something: She trifled with my affections. See Synonyms at flirt. — v. tr. To waste (time or money, for example). — idiom. a trifle. Very little; somewhat: a trifle stingy. [Middle English truffle, trifle, from Old French truffle, mockery, diminutive of truffe, deception.] — tri'fler (trī'flər) n.

tri-fling (trī'flīŋ) adj. 1. Of slight worth or importance. See Synonyms at trivial. 2. Frivolous or idle. — tri'fling-ly adv.

tri-flu-ra-lin (trī-flōŕ'ə-līn) n. A crystalline compound, C₁₃H₁₆F₃N₃O₄, used as a herbicide. [TRI- + FLU(O)R(O)- + A(NI)LIN(E).]

tri-fo-cal (trī-fō'kəl, trī'fō'-) adj. 1. Having three focal lengths. 2. Having one section that corrects for distant vision, a second section that corrects for medium vision, and a third that corrects for near vision, as an eyeglass lens. — n. 1. A lens having three focal lengths. 2. trifocals. Eyeglasses having trifocal lenses.

tri-fo-li-ate (trī-fō'lĕ-ĭt) also tri-fo-li-at-ed (-ā'tĭd) adj. Having three leaves or leaflike parts, as in the trillium.

tri-fo-li-o-late (trī-fō'lĕ-ə-lāt') adj. Having three leaflets, as a leaf of clover or string bean.

tri-fo-ri-um (trī-fôr'ĕ-əm, -fôr'-) n. pl. tri-fo-ri-a (-fôr'ĕ-ə, -fôr'-). Architecture. A gallery of arches above the side-aisle vaulting in the nave of a church. [Medieval Latin, a gallery in Canterbury Cathedral (later taken to mean “with three openings”).]

tri-formed (trī'fôrm'd') also tri-form (-fôrm') adj. Having three different forms or parts.

tri-fur-cate (trī-fūr'kīt, -kāt', trī'fər-kāt') also tri-fur-cat-ed (trī'fər-kā'tīd)
adj. Having three forks or branches: trifurcate antennae; trifurcate ribs. —tri'- fur-ca'tion n.

trig¹ (trīg) adj. 1. Smart and trim, as in appearance. See Synonyms at neat¹.

2. Being in good condition. — v. tr. trigged, trig-ging, trigs. To make trim or neat, especially in dress. [Middle English, true, from Old Norse tryggr, loyal, true. See deru- in Appendix.] —trig'ly adv. —trig'ness n.

trig² (trīg) v. tr. trigged, trig-ging, trigs. 1. To stop (a wheel) from rolling, as with a wedge. 2. To prop up; support. — n. A wedge or other braking device. [Perhaps of Scandinavian origin; akin to Old Norse tryggr, firm. See TRIG¹.]

trig. abbr. Mathematics. 1. Trigonometric. 2. Trigonometry.

tri-gem-i-nal (trī-jēm'ə-nəl) adj. Of or relating to the trigeminal nerves; trifacial.

trigeminal nerve (trī-jēm'ə-nəl nûrv) n. Either of the fifth pair of cranial nerves, having sensory and motor functions in the face, teeth, mouth, and nasal cavity. Also called trigeminus trigeminal neuralgia (trī-jēm'ə-nəl nōō-rāl'jə) n. Paroxysmal shooting pains of the facial area around one or more branches of the trigeminal nerve, of unknown cause, but often precipitated by irritation of the affected area. Also called tic douloureux tri-gem-i-nus (trī-jēm'ə-nəs) n. pl. tri-gem-i-ni (-nī'). See trigeminal nerve. [New Latin, from Latin, born as three twins, triple : tri-, tri- + geminus, twin.]

trig-ger (trīg'ər) n. 1. a. The lever pressed by the finger to discharge a firearm. b. A similar device used to release or activate a mechanism. 2. An event that precipitates other events. 3. Electronics. A pulse or circuit that initiates the action of another component. — v. tr. trig-gered, trig-ger-ing, trig-gers. 1. To set off; initiate: a high-level meeting that triggered bitter bureaucratic debates. 2. To fire or explode (a weapon or an explosive charge). [Dutch trekker, from Middle Dutch trecker, from trecken, to pull.]

trig-ger-fish (trīg'ər-fish') n. pl. triggerfish or trig-ger-fish-es. Any of various brightly colored fishes of the family Balistidae of warm coastal waters, having a roundish body and an erectile spine on the anterior dorsal fin that locks upright when the fish is threatened.

trig-ger-hap-py (trīg'ər-hăp'ē) adj. Slang. 1. Having a tendency or desire to shoot a firearm before adequately identifying the target. 2. Inclined to react violently at the slightest provocation.

trig-ger-man (trīg'ər-mən) n. 1. An underworld gunman who in premeditation shoots a victim. 2. A gunman; a shooter: "Where is the moral justification... in offering the platoon survivors—the actual triggermen—immunity?" (Nelson DeMille).

tri-glyc-er-ide (trī-glīs'ə-rīd') n. A naturally occurring ester of three fatty acids and glycerol that is the chief constituent of fats and oils.

tri-glyph (trī'glīf') adj. Architecture. An ornament in a Doric frieze, consisting of a projecting block having on its face two parallel vertical glyphs or grooves and two half grooves or chamfers on either vertical end, that separates the metopes. [Latin trīglyphus, from Greek trīgluphos : tri-, three; see trei- in Appendix + gluphē, carving; see GLYPH.] —tri-glyph'ic adj.

tri-gon (trī'gŏn') n. 1. Music. A triangular lyre or harp of Roman and Greek antiquity. 2. See triplicity (n., sense 3). 3. Archaic. A triangle. [Latin trīgŏnum, from Greek trīgŏnon, from neuter of trīgŏnos, triangular : tri-, tri- + gŏnia, angle; see -GON.]

trigon. abbr. Mathematics. 1. Trigonometric. 2. Trigonometry.

trigonometric function (trīg'ə-nə-mēt'rik fūŋgk'shən) n. Mathematics. A function of an angle expressed as the ratio of two of the sides of a right triangle that contains that angle; the sine, cosine, tangent, cotangent, secant, and cosecant. Also called circular function trig·o·nom·e·try (trīg'ə-nŏm'ī-trē) n. Abbr. trig., trigon. Mathematics. The branch of mathematics that deals with the relationships between the sides and the angles of triangles and the calculations based on them, particularly the trigonometric functions. [New Latin trīgŏnomētria : Greek trīgŏnon, triangle; see TRIGON + Greek -metria, -metry.] —trig'o·no·met'ric (-nə-mēt'rik), trig'o·no·met'ri·cal (-rī-kəl) adj. —trig'o·no·met'ri·cal·ly adv.

tri-gram (trī'grām') n. 1. A figure composed of three solid or interrupted parallel lines, especially as used in Chinese philosophy or divination according to the I Ching. 2. See trigraph (n., sense 3). —tri'gram·mat'ic (-grə-măt'ik) adj. —tri'gram·mat'i·cal·ly adv.

tri-graph (trī'gräf') n. 1. Three letters spelling one consonant, vowel, or diphthong, such as Sch in Schiller or igh in high or thigh. 2. A group of three letters, especially of frequent occurrence in a given language, as the or ing in English or gli in Italian. 3. Any combination of three letters of an alphabet. In this sense, also called trigram tri-graph-ic (trī-gräf'ik) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or being a trigraph. 2. Of, relating to, or being a substitution or procedure by groups of three characters or elements at a time in encoding, decoding, or cryptanalysis. —tri-graph'i·cal·ly adv.

tri-he-dra (trī-hē'drə) n. A plural of trihedron.

tri-he-dral (trī-hē'drəl) adj. Having or formed by three planes meeting at a point. — n. See trihedron.

tri-he-dron (trī-hē'drən) n. pl. tri-he-drons or tri-he-dra (-drə). A figure formed by three planes meeting at a point. Also called trihedral tri-hy-brid (trī-hī'brīd) n. Genetics. The hybrid of parents that differ at only three gene loci, for which each parent is homozygous.

tri-i-o-do-thy-ro-nine (trī'ī-ō'dō-thī'rə-nēn', -ī-ōd'ō-) n. A thyroid hormone, $C_{15}H_{12}I_3NO_4$, similar to thyroxine but more potent, used in the treatment of hypothyroidism. [TRI- + IODO- + thyronine (THYR(O)- + -ON(E) + -INE²).]

trike (trīk) n. Informal. A tricycle.

tri-lat-er-al (trī-lăt'ər-əl) adj. Having or involving three sides, countries, or parties. [From Latin trilaterus : tri-, tri- + latus, later-, side.] —tri-lat'er-al-ly adv.

tri-lat-er-al-ism (trī-lăt'ər-ə-līz'əm) n. 1. The practice of engaging in three-party relations, agreements, or negotiations. 2. The political and economic policy of encouraging friendly relations among three nations or regions, especially the United States, Western Europe, and Japan, or North America, Europe, and the Pacific Rim. —tri-lat'er-al-ist n.

tril-by (trīl'bē) n. pl. tril-bies. A soft felt hat with a deeply creased crown.

[After the novel Trilby by George du Maurier, because such a hat was worn in the original London stage production.]

tri-lin-e-ar (trī-līn'ē-ər) adj. Relating to, having, or bounded by three lines.

tri-lin-gual (trī-līng'gwəl) adj. 1. Using or able to use three languages, especially with equal or nearly equal fluency. 2. Of, relating to, or expressed in three languages. — n. A person who is able to use three languages, especially with equal fluency. —tri-lin'gual-ism n.

tri-lit-er-al (trī-līt'ər-əl) adj. Consisting of three letters, especially of three consonants. Used chiefly of roots in Semitic languages. — n. 1. A three-letter word or word element. 2. A trilateral root or word.

tri-lith-on (trī-līth'ŏn, trī'lī-thŏn') also tri-lith (trī'līth) n. A prehistoric structure consisting of two large stones set upright to support a third on their tops.

[Greek, neuter of trilithos, having three stones : tri-, tri- + lithos, stone.]

trill (trīl) n. 1. A fluttering or tremulous sound, as that made by certain birds; a warble. 2. Music. a. The rapid alternation of two tones either a whole or a half tone apart. b. A vibrato. 3. Linguistics. a. A rapid vibration of one speech organ against another, as of the tongue against the alveolar ridge in Spanish rr. b. A speech sound pronounced with such a vibration. — v. trilled, tril-ling, trills. — v. tr. 1. To sound, sing, or play with a trill. 2. To articulate (a sound) with a trill. — v. intr. To produce or give forth a trill. [Italian trillo, from trillare, to trill, ultimately probably of imitative origin.]

Tril-ling (trīl'īng), Lionel. 1905-1975. American literary critic whose works include Beyond Culture (1965) and Sincerity and Authenticity (1972).

tril-lion (trīl'yən) n. 1. The cardinal number equal to 10^{12} . 2. Chiefly British. The cardinal number equal to 10^{18} . [French : tri-, third power (from Latin tri-, tri-) + (m)illion, million (from Old French milion); see MILLION.] —tril'lion adj.

tril·lionth (trīl'yənth) n. 1. The ordinal number matching the number one trillion in a series. 2. One of a trillion equal parts. — tril'lionth adv. & adj.

tril·li·um (trīl'ē-əm) n. Any of various plants of the genus Trillium, of North America, the Himalaya Mountains, and eastern Asia, usually having a single cluster of three leaves and a variously colored, three-petaled flower. Also called birthroot, wake-robin. [New Latin Trillium, genus name, probably from Swedish trilling, triplet (from its three leaves), from obsolete Swedish tri, three, from Old Swedish thrīr. See trei- in Appendix.]

tri·lo·bate (trī-lō'bāt') or tri·lo·bat·ed (-bā'tīd) also tri·lobed (trī'lōbd') adj. Having three lobes, as certain leaves.

tri·lo·bite (trī'lō-bīt') n. Any of numerous extinct marine arthropods of the class Trilobita, of the Paleozoic Era, having a segmented body divided by grooves into three vertical lobes and found as fossils throughout the world. [New Latin Trilobitēs, former class name, from Greek trilobos, three-lobed : tri-, tri- + lobos, lobe.] — tri'lo·bit'ic (-bīt'ik) adj.

tri·loc·u·lar (trī-lōk'yə-lər) adj. Having three chamberlike divisions or cavities, as the capsule of a plant or the heart of a reptile.

tril·o·gy (trī'lə-jē) n. pl. tril·o·gies. A group of three dramatic or literary works related in subject or theme. [Greek trilogia, series of three related tragedies : tri-, tri- + -logia, -logy.]

trim (trīm) v. trimmed, trim·ming, trims. — v. tr. 1. To make neat or tidy by clipping, smoothing, or pruning: trimmed his moustache. 2. a. To remove (excess) by cutting: trim a budget. b. To remove the excess from by or as if by cutting: trimmed off the rotten wood. 3. To ornament; decorate. 4. Informal. a. To thrash; beat. b. To defeat soundly. c. To cheat. d. To rebuke; scold. 5. Nautical. a. To adjust (the sails and yards) so that they receive the wind properly. b. To balance (a ship) by shifting its cargo or contents. 6. To balance (an aircraft) in flight by regulating the control surfaces and tabs. 7. To furnish or equip. — v. intr. 1. Nautical. a. To be in or retain equilibrium. b. To make sails and yards ready for sailing. 2. a. To affect or maintain cautious neutrality. b. To fashion one's views for momentary popularity or advantage. — n. 1. a. State of order, arrangement, or appearance; condition: in good trim. b. A condition of good health or fitness. 2. a. Exterior ornamentation, such as moldings or framework, on a building or vehicle. b. Decoration or ornament, as for clothing. 3. Material used in commercial window displays. 4. Dress or equipment. 5. Excised or rejected material, such as film that has been cut in editing. 6. Personal quality; character. 7. A cutting or clipping to make neat: My hair needs a trim. 8. Nautical. a. The readiness of a vessel for sailing with regard to ballast, sails, and yards. b. The balance of a ship. c. The difference between the draft at the bow and at the stern. 9. The position of an aircraft relative to its horizontal axis. — adj. trim·mer, trim·mest. 1. a. In good or neat order. b. In good physical condition; fit; slim. 2. Having lines, edges, or forms of neat and pleasing simplicity. See Synonyms at neat¹. — adv. In a trim manner. [Middle English trimmen, to make firm, from Old English trymman, from trum, strong. See deru- in Appendix.] —trim/ly adv. —trim/ness n.

tri-ma-ran (trī'mə-rän') n. Nautical. A fast sailboat with three parallel hulls. [TRI- + (CATA)MARAN.]

Trim-ble (trĭm'bəl), Robert. 1777-1828. American jurist who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1826-1828).

tri-mer (trī'mər) n. A molecule formed by combining three identical smaller molecules. [TRI- + (POLY)MER.] —tri-mer/ic (-mēr'ik) adj.

trim-er-ous (trĭm'ər-əs) adj. 1. Having three similar segments or parts.

2. Botany. Having flower parts, such as petals, sepals, and stamens, in sets of three. —trim'er-ism n.

tri-mes-ter (trī-mēs'tər, trī'mēs'-) n. 1. A period or term of three months.

2. One of three terms into which an academic year is divided in some universities and colleges. [French trimestre, from Latin trimēstris, of three months : tri-, tri- + mēnsis, month; see mē-² in Appendix.] —tri-mes'tral (-trəl), tri-mes'tri-al (-trē-əl) adj.

trim-e-ter (trĭm'ī-tər) n. A line of verse consisting of three metrical feet. [Late Latin, from Latin trimetrus, from Greek trimetros : tri-, tri- + metron, measure; see METER¹.] —tri-met'ric (trī-mēt'rik), tri-met'ri-cal (-rĭ-kəl) adj.

tri-meth-a-di-one (trī-mēth'ə-dī'ōn') n. A white crystalline substance, C₆H₉NO₃, used as an anticonvulsant in the treatment of epilepsy. [TRI- + METH(YL) + DI-¹ + -ONE.]

tri-met-ro-gon (trī-mēt'rə-gŏn') n. A system of aerial photography in which one vertical and two oblique photographs are simultaneously taken for use in topographic mapping. [TRI- + Metrogon, a kind of camera lens.]

trim-mer (trĭm'ər) n. 1. a. One that trims: a hedge trimmer. b. A device or machine, such as a lumber trimmer, that is used for trimming. 2. One who changes one's opinions, especially political opinions, to suit the needs of the moment. 3. Electronics. A variable component used to make fine adjustments to capacity or resistance. 4. Architecture. A beam across an opening, such as a hearth, into which the ends of joists can be fitted.

trim-ming (trĭm'ing) n. 1. The act of one that trims. 2. Something added as decoration or ornament, especially a band of lace or embroidery on clothing.

3. trimmings. Accessories; extras: roast turkey with all the trimmings.

4. trimmings. Scraps or material removed when something is trimmed.

5. Informal. A sound defeat, beating, or punishment.

tri-mo-lec-u-lar (trī'mə-lĕk'yə-lər) adj. Relating to or formed from three molecules.

tri-month-ly (trī-mūnth/lē) adj. Done, occurring, or appearing every three months. —tri-month/ly adv.

tri-morph (trī/môrf') n. 1. A substance that occurs in three distinct crystalline forms. 2. One of the crystalline forms in which a trimorphic substance occurs.

tri-mor-phic (trī-môr'fik) also tri-mor-phous (-fəs) adj. 1. Biology. Having or occurring in three differing forms. 2. Chemistry. Crystallizing in three distinct forms. —tri-mor'phi-cal-ly adv. —tri-mor'phism n.

Tri-mur-ti (trī-mōr'tē) n. Hinduism. The triad of gods consisting of Brahma the creator, Vishnu the preserver, and Shiva the destroyer as the three highest manifestations of the one ultimate reality. [Sanskrit trimūrtiḥ : tri-, three; see trei- in Appendix + mūrtiḥ, form.]

tri-nal (trī/nəl) adj. Having three parts; threefold. [Late Latin trīnālis, from Latin trīnus, trine. See TRINE.]

tri-na-ry (trī/nə-rē) adj. Consisting of three parts or proceeding by threes; ternary. [Late Latin trīnārius, from Latin trīnus, trine. See TRINE.]

trine (trīn) adj. 1. Threefold; triple. 2. a. Of or relating to an astrologically favorable positioning of two celestial bodies 120° apart. b. In astrology, situated 120° apart. — n. 1. A group of three. 2. In astrology, the aspect of two planets when 120° apart. 3. Trine. Theology. See Trinity (n., sense 2). [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin trīnus, sing. of trīnī, three each. See trei- in Appendix.]

Trin-i-dad (trīn'ī-dād') An island of Trinidad and Tobago in the Atlantic Ocean off northeast Venezuela. First sighted by Columbus in 1498, it was not settled until the 1570's and was a frequent target for Dutch, French, and British buccanniers. Ceded to Great Britain in 1802, Trinidad was joined with Tobago in 1888 to form the colony of Trinidad and Tobago (1898). —Trin'i-dad/i-an adj. & n.

Trinidad and To-ba-go (trīn'ī-dād' ənd tə-bā'gō) A country of the southeast West Indies in the Atlantic Ocean off northeast Venezuela. It comprises the islands of Trinidad and Tobago, which became independent in 1962. Port of Spain, on Trinidad, is the capital. Population, 1,059,825.

Trin-i-tar-i-an (trīn'ī-târ'ē-ən) adj. 1. a. Of or relating to the Christian Trinity. b. Believing or professing belief in the Christian Trinity or the doctrine of the Trinity. 2. trinitarian. Having three members, parts, or facets. — n. 1. One who believes in the Christian doctrine of the Trinity. 2. A member of a Roman Catholic religious congregation founded in 1198 and now devoted to teaching, nursing, and pastoral work. —Trin'i-tar/i-an-ism n.

tri-ni-tro-ben-zene (trī-nī'trō-bēn'zēn', -bēn-zēn') n. A yellow crystalline compound, $C_6H_3(N_3O_2)_3$, derived from trinitrotoluene and used as an explosive.

tri-ni-tro-cre-sol (trī-nī'trō-krē'sōl', -sōl', -sōl') n. A yellow crystalline compound, $(NO_2)_3C_6H(CH_3)OH$, used in high explosives.

tri-ni-tro-phe-nol (trī-nī'trō-fē'nōl', -nōl', -nōl') n. Picric acid.

tri-ni-tro-tol-u-ene (trī-nī'trō-tōl'yōō-ēn') also tri-ni-tro-tol-u-ol (-ôl', -ôl', -ôl') n. TNT.

trin-i-ty (trĭn'ī-tē) n. pl. trin-i-ties. 1. A group consisting of three closely related members. Also called triunity 2. Trinity. Theology. The union of three divine persons, the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit, in one God. Also called Trine 3. Trinity. Trinity Sunday. [Middle English trinite, from Old French, from Latin trīnitās, from trīnus, trine. See TRINE.]

Trinity River (trĭn'ī-tē rĭv'ər) A river, about 821 km (510 mi) long, of eastern Texas formed near Dallas by the juncture of three forks and flowing generally southeast to Trinity Bay, an arm of Galveston Bay.

Trinity Sunday (trĭn'ī-tē sūn'dē) n. The first Sunday after Pentecost, celebrated by a feast in honor of the Trinity.

trin-ket (trĭng'kĭt) n. 1. A small ornament, such as a piece of jewelry. 2. A trivial thing; a trifle. [Origin unknown.]

tri-no-mi-al (trī-nō'mē-əl) adj. 1. Consisting of three names or terms, as a taxonomic designation. 2. Mathematics. Consisting of three terms. — n. 1. A three-part taxonomic designation indicating genus, species, and subspecies or variety, such as Brassica oleracea botrytis, the cauliflower. 2. Mathematics. An algebraic expression consisting of three terms connected by plus or minus signs. [TRI- + (BI)NOMIAL.] — tri-no/mi-al-ism n.

tri-nu-cle-o-tide (trī-nōō'klē-ə-tĭd', -nyōō'-) n. A triplet of nucleotides; a codon.

tri-o (trē'ō) n. pl. tri-os. 1. A group of three people or things joined or associated. 2. Music. a. A composition for three performers. b. The group performing such a composition. c. The middle section of a minuet or scherzo, a march, or of various dance forms. [French, composition for three voices, from Italian : tri-, three (from Latin); see trei- in Appendix + (du)o, duet; see DUO.]

tri-ode (trī'ōd') n. A highly evacuated electron tube containing an anode, a cathode, and a control grid.

tri-ol (trī'ôl', -ôl', -ôl') n. A chemical compound containing three hydroxyl groups.

tri-o-let (trē'ə-lĭt, trī'-, trē'ə-lā') n. A poem or stanza of eight lines with a rhyme scheme abaaabab, in which the fourth and seventh lines are the same as the first, and the eighth line is the same as the second. [French, diminutive of trio, trio. See TRIO.]

tri-ose (trī'ôs') n. One of a group of monosaccharides that contain three carbon atoms.

tri-ox-ide (trī-ôk'sĭd') also tri-ox-id (-ôk'sĭd) n. An oxide containing three oxygen atoms per molecule.

trip (trĭp) n. 1. A going from one place to another; a journey. 2. A stumble or fall. 3. A maneuver causing someone to stumble or fall. 4. A mistake. 5. Slang.

a. A hallucinatory experience induced by a psychedelic drug: an acid trip. b. An intense, stimulating, or exciting experience: a power trip. 6. Slang. a. A usually temporary but absorbing interest: a health food trip. b. A certain way of life or situation: “deny that his reclusiveness is some sort of deliberate star trip” (Patricia Bosworth). 7. A light or nimble tread. 8. a. A device, such as a pawl, for triggering a mechanism. b. The action of such a device. — v. tripped, trip·ping, trips. — v. intr. 1. To stumble. 2. To move nimbly with light, rapid steps; skip. 3. To be released, as a tooth on an escapement wheel in a watch. 4. To make a trip. 5. Slang. To have a drug-induced hallucination. — v. tr. 1. To cause to stumble or fall. 2. To trap or catch in an error or inconsistency. 3. To release a catch, trigger, or switch, thereby setting something in operation. 4. Nautical. a. To raise (an anchor) from the bottom. b. To tip or turn (a yardarm) into a position for lowering. c. To lift (an upper mast) in order to remove the fid before lowering. — idioms. trip the light fantastic. To dance. trip up on. To make a mistake: tripped up on the last question. [Middle English, act of tripping, from trippen, to trip, from Old French tripper, to stamp the foot, of Germanic origin.]

tri·pal·mi·tin (trī-pāl'mī-tĭn) n. See palmitin.

tri·par·tite (trī-pär'tīt) adj. 1. Composed of or divided into three parts.

2. Relating to or executed by three parties: a tripartite agreement.

tri·par·ti·tion (trī'pär-tĭsh'ən) n. Division into three parts or among three parties: the tripartition of Poland among Austria, Prussia, and Russia in the 18th century.

tripe (trĭp) n. 1. The light-colored, rubbery lining of the stomach of cattle or other ruminants, used as food. 2. Informal. Something of no value; rubbish. [Middle English, from Old French tripes, intestines, tripe.]

tri·ped·al (trī-pĕd'l) adj. Having three feet or legs; tripod.

tri·pep·tide (trī-pĕp'tĭd) n. A peptide containing three amino acids.

tri·pet·al·ous (trī-pĕt'l-əs) adj. Botany. Having three petals.

trip ham·mer also trip·ham·mer or trip·ham·mer (trĭp'hām'ər) n. A heavy, power-operated hammer that is lifted by a cam or lever and then dropped.

tri·phen·yl·meth·ane (trī-fĕn'əl-mĕth'ān', -fĕ'nəl-) n. A colorless crystalline hydrocarbon, (C₆H₅)₃CH, from which a large number of synthetic dyes are derived by substitution.

tri·phib·i·an (trī-fĭb'ē-ən) adj. Designed to operate on land, water, or in air. — n. A triphibian aircraft. [TRI- + (AM)PHIBIAN.]

tri·phos·phate (trī-fös'fāt') n. A salt or an ester containing three phosphate groups.

tri·phos·pho·py·ri·dine nucleotide (trī-fös'fō-pĭr'ĭ-dĕn' nōō'klĕ-ə-tĭd') n. NADP.

triph·thong (tríf'thông', -thõng', trĭp'-) n. Linguistics. A compound vowel sound resulting from the succession of three simple ones and functioning as a unit, as (wou) in wow. [TRI- + (DI)PHTHONG.] — triph·thon'gal (-thõng'əl, -thõng'əl) adj.

tri·pin·nate (trī-pĭn'āt') adj. Botany. Divided into pinnae that are subdivided into smaller, further subdivided leaflets or lobes, as in many ferns.

— tri·pin'nate'ly adv.

tripl. abbr. Triplicate.

tri·plane (trī'plān') n. An airplane with wings placed above each other in three levels.

tri·ple (trĭp'əl) adj. 1. Consisting of three parts. 2. Three times as many or as much. 3. Repeated three times. 4. Music. Characterized by three beats in a measure. — n. 1. A number or quantity three times as great as another. 2. A group or set of three; a triad. 3. Baseball. See three-base hit. 4. Sports & Games. See trifecta. — v. tri·pled, tri·pling, tri·ples. — v. tr. To make three times as great in number or amount. — v. intr. 1. To be or become three times as great in number or amount. 2. Baseball. To make a three-base hit. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin tripplus (on the model of Greek triploos): Latin tri-, three; see trei- in Appendix + -plus, -fold; see pel-² in Appendix.]

triple bond (trĭp'əl bönd) n. A covalent bond in which three electron pairs are shared between two atoms.

Tri·ple Crown (trĭp'əl kroun) n. 1. Sports & Games. An unofficial championship title attained by a horse that wins the three traditional races for a specified category. 2. Baseball. An unofficial championship title achieved by a player who is at the head of the league in batting average, home runs, and runs batted in.

tri·ple·deck·er (trĭp'əl-dĕk'ər) n. Informal. Something, such as a structure or sandwich, that has three decks, floors, or layers.

tri·ple·head·er also tri·ple·head·er (trĭp'əl-hĕd'ər) n. Sports. A contest consisting of three games or events in a row.

triple measure (trĭp'əl mĕzh'ər) n. Music. See triple time.

triple play (trĭp'əl plā) n. Baseball. A defensive play in which three putouts are executed during one turn at bat on two base runners and the batter, thereby ending suddenly the offensive threat and the inning.

triple rhyme (trĭp'əl rĭm) n. A rhyme involving three syllables, as in vanity/humanity.

trip·let (trĭp'lĭt) n. 1. A group or set of three of one kind. 2. One of three children born at one birth. 3. A group of three lines of verse. 4. Music. A group of three notes having the time value of two notes of the same kind. Also called tercet. 5. Physics. A multiplet with three components. 6. Genetics. A unit of three successive nucleotides in a molecule of DNA or RNA that codes for a specific amino acid; a codon or anticodon. [TRIPL(E) + (DOUBL)ET.]

tri-ple-tail (trĭp'əl-tāl') n. Any of several chiefly marine percoid fishes of the family Lobotidae, especially Lobotes surinamensis, of warm waters of the western Atlantic, having prominent dorsal and anal fins that resemble extra tails.

triple time (trĭp'əl tīm) n. Music. A time or rhythm having three beats to the measure, with the accent on the first beat. Also called triple measure —tri/ple-time' (trĭp'əl-tīm') adj.

tri-plex (trĭp'lĕks', trĭ'plĕks') adj. 1. Composed of three parts; threefold; triple. 2. Having three apartments, divisions, or floors: a triplex apartment building; a triplex cinema. — n. Something, such as an apartment, that is triplex: We live in a triplex. [Latin. See trei- in Appendix.]

trip-li-cate (trĭp'li-kĭt) n. Abbr. tripl. One of a set of three identical objects or copies. — v. tr. trip-li-cat-ed, trip-li-cat-ing, trip-li-cates (-kāt'). Abbr.

tripl. 1. To make threefold; triple. 2. To make three identical copies of. [From Middle English, triple, from Latin triplicātus, past participle of triplicāre, to triple, from triplex, triplic-, threefold. See TRIPLEX.] —trip/li-cate-ly adv. —trip/li-ca-tion n.

tri-plic-i-ty (trĭ-plĭs'ĭ-tē, trĭ-) n. pl. tri-plic-i-ties. 1. The quality or condition of being triple. 2. A group or set of three. 3. In astrology, one of four groups of the zodiac, each consisting of three signs separated from each other by 120°. In this sense, also called trigon [Middle English, three signs of zodiac, from Late Latin triplicitās, triplicity, from Latin triplex, triplic-, triplex. See TRIPLEX.]

trip-lo-blas-tic (trĭp'lō-blās'tĭk) adj. Having three germ layers. Used of the vertebrate embryo. [Greek triploos, triple; see pel-² in Appendix + -BLASTIC.]

trip-loid (trĭp'lōid') Genetics. adj. Having three times the haploid number of chromosomes in the cell nucleus: triploid somatic cells. — n. A triploid organism or cell. —trip/loi-dy n.

trip-ly (trĭp'lē) adv. 1. In three ways: As an actor, a singer, and a juggler, she was triply qualified for the role. 2. To a triple degree: a triply redundant navigational system. 3. Three times: Prices were triply inflated.

tri-pod (trĭ'pŏd') n. 1. A three-legged object, such as a caldron, stool, or table. 2. An adjustable three-legged stand, as for supporting a transit or camera. [Latin tripūs, tripod-, from Greek tripous, three-footed : tri-, tri- + pous, foot; see -POD.] —trip/o-dal (trĭp'ə-dl, trĭ'pŏd'l) adj.

trip-o-li (trĭp'ə-lē) n. pl. trip-o-lis. A porous, lightweight, siliceous sedimentary rock composed of the shells of diatoms or radiolarians or of finely weathered chert, used as an abrasive and a polish. [French, probably after Tripoli, Lebanon.]

Trip-o-li (trĭp'ə-lē) 1. A historical region of northern Africa roughly coextensive with the ancient region of Tripolitania. It became part of the Barbary States in the 16th century and later passed to Turkey and Italy. 2. A city of northwest Lebanon on the Mediterranean Sea north-northeast of Beirut. Probably founded after the seventh century B.C., it was capital of a Phoenician federation and later flourished under the Seleucid and Roman empires. Tripoli was captured by the Arabs in A.D. 638 and taken by the Crusaders in 1109 after a long siege. Population, 198,000.

3. The capital and largest city of Libya, in the northwest part of the country on the Mediterranean Sea. Settled by Phoenicians from Tyre, it has Roman and Byzantine remains. Population, 858,500. —Tri-pol/i-tan (trī-pōl'ī-tn) adj. & n.

Tri-pol-i-ta-ni-a (trī-pōl'ī-tā'nē-ə, -tān'yə, trīp'ə-lī-) A historical region of northern Africa bordering on the Mediterranean Sea. Originally a Phoenician colony, it was later held by Carthage, Numidia, and Rome (after 46 B.C.). Tripolitania fell to the Vandals in A.D. 435, to the Arabs in the seventh century, and finally to the Ottoman Turks in 1553. —Tri-pol'i-ta'ni-an adj. & n.

trip-pos (trī'pōs') n. pl. tri-pos-es. Any of the examinations for the B.A. degree with honors at Cambridge University in England. [Alteration of Latin tripūs, tripod-, tripod (from the stool upon which a degree holder was appointed to sit and dispute humorously with candidates for that degree). See TRIPOD.]

trip-per (trīp'ər) n. 1. Slang. One who is undergoing a hallucinatory experience induced by a psychedelic drug. 2. A tripping or triggering device on a mechanism. 3. Chiefly British. One who is taking a short pleasure trip.

trip-pet (trīp'īt) n. A cam or projection in a mechanism designed to strike another part at regular intervals. [Middle English tripet, piece of wood used in a game, from trippen, to trip. See TRIP.]

trip-ping-ly (trīp'ɪŋ-lē) adv. Lightly and easily; fluently.

trip-tane (trīp'tān') n. A colorless liquid antiknock additive, C₇H₁₆, used in aviation fuels. [Shortening and alteration of trimethylbutane : TRI- + METHYL + BUTANE.]

trip-tych (trīp'tik) n. 1. A hinged writing tablet consisting of three leaves, used in ancient Rome. 2. A work consisting of three painted or carved panels that are hinged together. [From Greek triptukhos, threefold : tri-, tri- + ptux, ptukh-, fold.]

trip-wire (trīp'wīr') n. 1. A wire stretched near ground level to trip or ensnare an enemy. 2. A wire or line that activates a weapon, trap, or camera, for example, when pulled. 3. A relatively small frontline military force whose involvement in hostilities will trigger the use of a larger force: “a demilitarized West Bank, with an Israeli military tripwire on the Jordan” (New Statesman).

tri-que-trous (trī-kwē'trəs, -kwět'rəs) adj. Three-edged; having three salient angles: triquetrous mandibles. [From Latin triquetrus, three-cornered : tri-, tri- + -quetrus, -cornered.]

tri-que-trum (trī-kwē'trəm, -kwět'rəm) n. pl. tri-que-tra (-kwē'trə, -kwět'rə). A bone of the wrist in the proximal row of carpal bones. [Latin, neuter of triquetrus, three-cornered. See TRIQUETROUS.] —tri-que'tral (-trəl) adj.

- tri-reme (trī'rēm') n. Nautical. An ancient Greek or Roman galley or warship, having three tiers of oars on each side. [Latin trirēmis : tri-, tri- + rēmus, oar; see erə- in Appendix.]
- tri-sac·cha·ride (trī-sāk'ə-rīd', -rīd) n. A carbohydrate that yields three monosaccharides upon hydrolysis.
- tri-sect (trī'sēkt', trī-sēkt') v. tr. tri-sect·ed, tri-sect·ing, tri-sects. To divide into three equal parts. —tri'sec'tion (trī'sēk'shən, trī-sēk'-) n. —tri'sec'tor (trī'sēk'tər, trī-sēk'-) n.
- tri-sep·al·ous (trī-sēp'ə-ləs) adj. Botany. Having three sepals. Used of the calyx of a flower.
- tris-kai-dek·a·pho·bi·a (trīs'kī-dēk'ə-fō'bē-ə, trīs'kī-) n. An abnormal fear of the number 13. [Greek triskaideka, thirteen (treis, tris, three; see trei- in Appendix + kai, and + deka, ten); see DECA- + PHOBIA.]
- tri-skel·i·on (trī-skēl'ē-ən, trī-) also tri-skele (trī'skēl', trīs'kēl') n. pl. tri-skel·i·a (-skēl'ē-ə) also tri-skeles. A figure consisting of three curved lines or branches, or three stylized human arms or legs, radiating from a common center. [New Latin, from Greek triskelēs, three-legged : tri-, tri- + skelos, leg.]
- tris-mus (trīz'məs) n. See lockjaw (n., sense 2). [New Latin, from Greek trismos, a grinding.] —tris'mic (-mīk) adj.
- tris-oc·ta·he·dron (trīs-ōk'tə-hē'drən) n. pl. tris-oc·ta·he·drons or tris-oc·ta·he·dra (-drə). Mathematics. A solid figure having 24 equal faces, every three of which correspond to one face of an octahedron. [Greek tris, thrice; see trei- in Appendix + OCTAHEDRON.] —tris-oc'ta·he'dral (-drəl) adj.
- tri-so·di·um (trī-sō'dē-əm) adj. Containing three sodium atoms.
- tri-so·my (trī-sō'mē, trī'sō'-) n. pl. tri-so·mies. The condition of having three copies of a given chromosome in each somatic cell rather than the normal number of two. [TRI- + -SOM(E)³ + -Y².] —tri'some' n. —tri-so'mic adj.
- trisomy 21 (trī-sō'mē;) n. See Down syndrome.
- Trist (trīst), Nicholas Philip. 1800-1874. American diplomat and public official who negotiated the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo with Mexico (1848).
- Tris-tan (trīs'tən, -tān', -tān') or Tris-tram (-trəm) n. In Arthurian legend, a knight who fell in love with the Irish princess Iseult, who was betrothed to his uncle King Mark of Cornwall.
- Tris-tan da Cun·ha (trīs'tən də kōō'nə) An island and volcanic island group of the southern Atlantic Ocean between southern Africa and southern South America. Discovered by the Portuguese in 1506, the islands were annexed by Great Britain in 1816 and are now administered as a dependency of St. Helena.
- triste (trēst) adj. Sad; wistful. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin tristis.]
- tri-ste·a·rin (trī-stē'ə-rīn, -stīr'īn) n. See stearin (n., sense 1).

trist·ful (trɪst'fəl) adj. Sorrowful; gloomy. [Middle English : triste, sad; see TRISTE + -ful, -ful.] —trist'ful·ly adv. —trist'ful·ness n.

tris·tich (trɪs'tɪk) n. A strophe, stanza, or poem consisting of three lines. [TRI- + (DI)STICH.]

Tris·tram (trɪs'trəm) n. Variant of Tristan.

tri·sul·fide (trī-sŭl'fɪd') n. A sulfide containing three sulfur atoms per molecule.

tri·syl·la·ble (trī'sɪl'ə-bəl) n. Linguistics. A three-syllable word. —tri'-syl·lab'ic (-sɪ-lăb'ɪk), tri'syl·lab'i·cal (-ɪ-kəl) adj. —tri'syl·lab'i·cal·ly adv.

tri·tan·o·pi·a (trī'tə-nō'pē-ə) n. A visual defect characterized by the inability to discern blue and yellow. [Greek tritros, third; see trei- in Appendix + Greek anōpia, blindness (an-, not; see a-¹ + -ōpia, -opia).]

trite (trīt) adj. trit·er, trit·est. 1. Lacking power to evoke interest through overuse or repetition; hackneyed. 2. Archaic. Frayed or worn out by use. [Latin trītus, from past participle of terere, to wear out. See tera-¹ in Appendix.] —trite'ly adv. —trite'ness n.

SYNONYMS: trite, hackneyed, shopworn, stereotyped, threadbare, stale, banal.

These adjectives describe something, such as writing or speech, that lacks appeal or power because it lacks freshness. Trite, hackneyed, and shopworn imply overfamiliarity resulting from overuse or repetition; the terms often suggest reduction of something once forceful to an empty formula or cliché: a trite saying; a soap opera with a hackneyed plot; shopworn slogans. Stereotyped refers to what is so lacking in originality or creative force that it seems a mechanical reproduction: stereotyped phrases of condolence. Threadbare suggests that something has been overworked until it is worn out: a threadbare argument. Stale implies that something has lost novelty or interest because it has been overused or because it is dated or passé: stale jokes. Banal applies to what is commonplace or inane: banal lyrics.

tri·the·ism (trī'thē-iz'əm) n. Theology. The belief that the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit are three separate and distinct gods, heretical in orthodox Christianity. —tri'the·ist n. —tri'the·is'tic, tri'the·is'ti·cal adj.

trit·i·ca·le (trɪt'ɪ-kālē) n. 1. A hardy hybrid of wheat and rye having a high yield. 2. The grains of this hybrid. [Latin trīticum, wheat (from trītus, past participle of terere, to rub, thresh); see TRITE + sēcale, rye.]

trit·i·um (trɪt'ē-əm, trɪsh'ē-) n. A rare radioactive hydrogen isotope with atomic mass 3 and half-life 12.5 years, prepared artificially for use as a tracer and as a constituent of hydrogen bombs. [From Greek tritros, third. See trei- in Appendix.]

tri·ton¹ (trɪt'n) n. Any of various chiefly tropical marine gastropod mollusks of the family Cymatiidae, having a pointed, spirally twisted, often colorfully marked shell. [Latin Tritōn, Triton (from representations of the sea god holding a conch shell). See TRITON.]

tri-ton² (trī'tōn') n. The nucleus of tritium, consisting of two neutrons and one proton. [TRIT(IUM) + -ON¹.]

Tri-ton (trīt'n) n. 1. Greek Mythology. A god of the sea, son of Poseidon and Amphitrite, portrayed as having the head and trunk of a man and the tail of a fish. 2. Astronomy. The satellite of Neptune that is second in distance from the planet. [Latin Tritōn, from Greek.]

tri-tone (trī'tōn') n. Music. An interval composed of three whole tones. [Medieval Latin tritonus, from Greek tritonos, having three tones : tri-, three; see trei- in Appendix + tonos, tone; see TONE.]

trit-u-rate (trīch'ə-rāt') v. tr. trit-u-rat-ed, trit-u-rat-ing, trit-u-rates. To rub, crush, grind, or pound into fine particles or a powder; pulverize. — n. (-ər-īt) A triturated substance, especially a powdered drug. [Late Latin trītūrāre, trītūrāt-, to thresh, from Latin trītūra, a threshing, from trītus, past participle of terere, to thresh. See terə⁻¹ in Appendix.] — trit'u-ra-ble adj. — trit'u-ra'tor n.

trit-u-ra-tion (trīch'ə-rā'shən) n. 1. The act or process of triturating. 2. The composing of a dental amalgam by mortar and pestle.

tri-umph (trī'əmf) v. intr. tri-umphed, tri-umph-ing, tri-umphs. 1. To be victorious or successful; win. 2. To rejoice over a success or victory; exult. 3. To receive honors upon return from a victory in ancient Rome. Used of a general. — n. 1. The fact of being victorious; victory or conquest. See Synonyms at vic-tory. 2. A noteworthy or spectacular success. 3. Exultation or rejoicing over victory or success. 4. A public celebration in ancient Rome to welcome a returning victorious commander and his army. 5. Obsolete. A public celebration or spectacular pageant. [Middle English triomfen, from Old French triumpher, from Latin triumphāre, from triumphus, triumph (probably via Etruscan), from Greek thriambos, hymn to Dionysus.]

tri-um-phal (trī-ūm'fəl) adj. 1. Relating to or having the nature of a triumph. 2. Celebrating or commemorating a victory or triumph: a triumphal arch; a triumphal ode.

tri-um-ph-al-ism (trī-ūm'fə-līz'əm) n. The attitude or belief that a particular doctrine, especially a religion or political theory, is superior to all others.

—tri-um-ph'al-ist n.

tri-um-ph-ant (trī-ūm'fənt) adj. 1. Exulting in success or victory.

2. Victorious; conquering. 3. Archaic. Triumphant. 4. Obsolete. Magnificent; splendid. —tri-um'phant-ly adv.

tri-um-vir (trī-ūm'vər) n. pl. tri-um-virs or tri-um-vi-ri (-və-rī'). 1. One of three men sharing public administration or civil authority in ancient Rome.

2. One of three people sharing public administration or civil authority. [Middle English, from Latin, back-formation from triumvirī, board of three, from trium virum, of three men : trium, genitive pl. of trēs, three; see trei- in Appendix + virum variant of virōrum, genitive pl. of vir, man. See wī-ro- in Appendix.]

—tri-um/vi-ral adj.

tri-um-vi-rate (trī-ŭm/vər-ĭt) n. 1. Government by triumvirs. 2. The office or term of a triumvir. 3. A body or group of triumvirs. 4. An association or a group of three. In this sense, also called troika [Latin triumvirātus, from triumvirī, board of three. See TRIUMVIR.]

tri-um-vi-ri (trī-ŭm/və-rī') n. A plural of triumvir.

tri-une (trī'yōōn') adj. Being three in one. Used especially of the Christian Trinity. — n. A trinity. [TRI- + Latin ūnus, one; see oi-no- in Appendix.]

tri-u-ni-ty (trī-yōō'nī-tē) n. pl. tri-u-ni-ties. See trinity (n., sense 1).

tri-va-lent (trī-vā'lənt) adj. Having valence 3. —tri-va/lence, tri-va/len-cy n.

tri-valve (trī'vālv') adj. Having three valves.

Tri-van-drum (trə-vān'drəm) A city of southwest India on the Arabian Sea south-southwest of Bangalore. It is a port and manufacturing center. Population, 483,086.

triv-et (trīv'ĭt) n. 1. A metal stand with short feet, used under a hot dish on a table. 2. A three-legged stand made of metal, used for supporting cooking vessels in a hearth. [Middle English trevet, stand for cooking vessels, from Old English trefet, probably alteration (influenced by Old English thrifēte, three-footed), of Latin tripēs, triped- : tri-, tri- + pēs, foot; see ped- in Appendix.]

triv-i-a¹ (trīv'ē-ə) pl.n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). Insignificant or inessential matters; trifles. [Latin trivia, neuter pl. of trivium, crossroads, gutter (influenced by TRIVIAL),. See TRIVIAM.]

triv-i-a² (trīv'ē-ə) n. Plural of trivium.

triv-i-al (trīv'ē-əl) adj. 1. Of little significance or value. 2. Ordinary; commonplace. 3. Concerned with or involving trivia. 4. Biology. Relating to or designating a species; specific. 5. Mathematics. a. Of, relating to, or being the solution of an equation in which every variable is equal to zero. b. Of, relating to, or being the simplest possible case; self-evident. [Middle English trivialle, of the trivium (from Medieval Latin triviālis, from trivium, trivium); see TRIVIAM, Latin triviālis, ordinary (from trivium, crossroads).] —triv/i-al-ly adv.

SYNONYMS: trivial, trifling, paltry, petty, picayune. These adjectives all apply to what is small and unimportant. Trivial refers principally to what is so insignificant as to be utterly commonplace or unremarkable: “I think all Christians... agree in the essential articles, and that their differences are trivial, and rather political than religious” (Samuel Johnson). Something trifling is so unimportant or so small as to be scarcely worth notice: “I regret the trifling narrow contracted education of the females of my own country” (Abigail Adams). Paltry especially describes what falls so far short of what is required or desired that it arouses contempt: “He... considered the prize too paltry for the lives it must cost” (John Lothrop Motley). Petty can refer to what is of minor or secondary significance or size; the term can suggest meanness of spirit: “Our knights are limited to petty enterprises” (Sir Walter Scott). “Always give your best, never get discouraged, never be petty” (Richard M. Nixon). What is picayune is of negligible value or importance: Giving a police officer a free meal may be against the law, but it seems to be a picayune infraction.

WORD HISTORY: Trivial Pursuit is an etymologically sound name, because roads and traveling, which might involve pursuit, are involved in the origin of the word trivial. The history of trivial begins with the Latin word trivium, formed from the prefix tri-, “consisting of three of the things named,” and via, “road.” Trivium meant “the meeting place of three roads, especially as a place of public resort.” Hence it also had a pejorative sense, which we express by the phrase the gutter, as in “His manners were formed in the gutter.” The adjective triviālis, derived from trivium, meant “appropriate to the street corner, commonplace, vulgar.” Trivial entered Middle English in senses that need not detain us here, first being recorded in a sense identical to that of triviālis in 1589. Shortly after that trivial is recorded in the sense most familiar to us, “of little importance or significance.”

triv·i·al·i·ty (trĭv'ē-ăl'ī-tē) n. pl. triv·i·al·i·ties. 1. The quality or condition of being trivial. 2. Something trivial.

triv·i·al·ize (trĭv'ē-ə-līz') v. tr. triv·i·al·ized, triv·i·al·iz·ing, triv·i·al·iz·es.

To reduce to triviality: “one of the deep perceptions of a feminism which looks with fresh eyes on all that has been trivialized, devalued, forbidden, or silenced” (Adrienne Rich). —triv'·i·al·i·za'tion (-ə-lī-zā'shən) n.

trivial name (trĭv'ē-əl nām) n. 1. A common or vernacular name as distinguished from a specific name, as chimpanzee for Pan troglodytes. 2. See specific epithet. 3. Chemistry. A common, historic, or convenient name for a substance, derived often from the source in which the substance was discovered, but unsystematic and not used in modern official nomenclature, as sucrose for α -D-Glucopyranosyl β -D-fructo-furanoside.

triv·i·um (trĭv'ē-əm) n. pl. triv·i·a (-ē-ə). The lower division of the seven liberal arts in medieval schools, consisting of grammar, logic, and rhetoric. [Medieval Latin, from Latin, crossroads : tri-, tri- + via, road; see wegh- in Appendix.]

tri·week·ly (trī-wēk'lē) adj. 1. Happening, done, or appearing three times a week. 2. Happening, done, or appearing every three weeks. — adv. 1. Three times a week. 2. Every three weeks. — n. pl. tri·week·lies. A periodical published triweekly.

-trix suff. 1. A female that is connected with a specified thing: testatrix. 2. A geometric point, line, or surface: directrix. [Middle English, from Latin -trīx, feminine of -tor, noun suff.] tRNA (tē'är-ën-ā') n. See transfer RNA.

Tro-as (trō'ās') also Tro-ad (-äd') An ancient region of northwest Asia Minor surrounding the city of Troy. It formed the setting for the events recounted in the Iliad.

Tro-bri-and Islands (trō'brē-änd' ī'ləndz, -änd') An island group of Papua New Guinea in the Solomon Sea off eastern New Guinea. The islands were occupied by Allied forces in June 1943.

tro-car (trō'kär') n. A sharp-pointed surgical instrument, used with a cannula to puncture a body cavity for fluid aspiration. [French trocart: trois, three (from Old French, from Latin trēs); see trei- in Appendix + carre, side of an instrument (from Old French, from carrer, to square, from Latin quadrāre, from quadrūm, square); see k^wetwer- in Appendix.]

tro-cha-ic (trō-kā'īk) adj. Of, relating to, or consisting of trochees. [Latin trochāicus, from Greek trokhaikos, from trokhaios, trochee. See TROCHEE.]

—tro-cha'ic n.

tro-chal (trō'kəl) adj. Shaped like or resembling a wheel, as the ciliated ring of a rotifer. [From Greek trokhos, wheel. See TROCHE.]

tro-chan-ter (trō-kän'tər) n. 1. Any of several bony processes on the upper part of the femur of many vertebrates. 2. The second proximal segment of the leg of an insect. [New Latin, from Greek trokhanter, ball of the hip joint, from trekhein, to run.] —tro-chan'ter-al, tro'chan-ter'ic (trō'kən-tēr'īk, -kän-) adj.

tro-che (trō'kē) n. A small, circular medicinal lozenge; a pastille. [Back-formation from Middle English trocis, troches (taken as pl.), from Old French trocisse, from Late Latin trochiscus, from Greek trokhiskos, diminutive of trokhos, wheel, from trekhein, to run.]

tro-chee (trō'kē) n. A metrical foot consisting of a stressed syllable followed by an unstressed syllable, as in season, or of a long syllable followed by a short syllable. [French trochée, from Latin trochaeus, from Greek trokhaios, from trokhos, a running, from trekhein, to run.]

troch-le-a (trök'lē-ə) n. pl. troch-le-ae (-lē-ē'). An anatomical structure that resembles a pulley, especially the part of the distal end of the humerus that articulates with the ulna. [Latin, system of pulleys, from Greek trokhileia; akin to trekhein, to run.]

troch-le-ar (trök'lē-ər) adj. 1. Of, resembling, or situated near a trochlea. 2. Of or relating to the trochlear nerve. 3. Botany. Shaped like a pulley.

trochlear nerve (trök'lē-ər nûrv) n. Either of the fourth pair of cranial nerves that innervate the superior oblique muscles of the eyeballs.

tro·choid (trō'koid', trök'oid') n. A curve traced by a point on or connected with a circle as the circle rolls along a fixed straight line. — adj. also tro·choi·dal (trō-koid'l, trök-oid'l) 1. Capable of or exhibiting rotation about a central axis. 2. Permitting rotation, as a pulley or pivot. [Greek trokhoeidēs, wheellike : trokhos, wheel; see TROCHEE + -oeidēs, -oid.] —tro·choi'dal·ly adv.

troch·o·phore (trök'ə-fôr', -fōr') n. The small, free-swimming, ciliated aquatic larva of various invertebrates, including certain mollusks and annelids. [Greek trokhos, wheel (from trekhein, to run) + -PHORE.] trod (tröd) v. Past tense and a past participle of tread.

trod·den (tröd'n) v. A past participle of tread.

trof·fer (tröf'ər, trô'fər) n. An inverted, usually metal trough suspended from a ceiling as a fixture for fluorescent lighting tubes. [Alteration of TROUGH.]

trog·lo·dyte (trög'lə-dīt') n. 1. a. A member of a fabulous or prehistoric race of people that lived in caves, dens, or holes. b. A person considered to be reclusive, reactionary, out of date, or brutish. 2. a. An anthropoid ape, such as a gorilla or chimpanzee. b. An animal that lives underground, as an ant or a worm. [From Latin Trōglodytae, a people said to be cave dwellers, from Greek Trōglodutai, alteration (influenced by trōglē, hole, and -dutai, those who enter), of Trōgodutai.] —trog'lo·dyt'ic (-dīt'ik), trog'lo·dyt'i·cal (-i-kəl) adj.

tro·gon (trō'gŏn') n. Any of various colorful tropical or subtropical birds of the family Trogonidae, which includes the quetzal. [Greek trōgōn, present participle of trōgein, to gnaw. See terə⁻¹ in Appendix.]

troi·ka (troi'kə) n. 1. A Russian carriage drawn by a team of three horses abreast. 2. See triumvirate (n., sense 4). [Russian troika, from troe, group of three. See trei- in Appendix.]

Troi·lus (troi'ləs, trō'ə-ləs) n. A son of King Priam of Troy, depicted as Cressida's lover in medieval romance.

Trois·dorf (trös'dôrf') A city of west-central Germany north-northeast of Bonn. It is a manufacturing center. Population, 60,267.

Trois Ri·vières or Trois-Rivières (trwä rē-vyēr') A city of southern Quebec, Canada, at the confluence of the St. Lawrence and St. Maurice rivers. Founded in 1634, it is a river port and manufacturing center with a pulp and paper industry. Population, 50,466.

Tro·jan (trō'jən) n. 1. A native or inhabitant of ancient Troy. 2. A person of courageous determination or energy. [Middle English, from Latin Trōiānus, from Trōia, Troy, from Greek Trōia, from Trōs, the mythical founder of Troy.] —Tro'jan adj.

Trojan horse (trō'jən hōrs) n. 1. A subversive group or device placed within enemy ranks. 2. The hollow wooden horse in which, according to legend, Greeks hid and gained entrance to Troy, later opening the gates to their army.

3. Computer Science. A set of instructions hidden inside a legitimate program, causing a computer to perform illegitimate functions.

Trojan War (trō'jən wōr) n. Greek Mythology. The ten-year war waged against Troy by the Greeks, caused by the abduction of Helen by Paris and resulting in the burning and destruction of Troy.

troll¹ (trōl) v. trolled, troll·ing, trolls. — v. tr. 1. a. To fish for by trailing a baited line from behind a slowly moving boat. b. To fish in by trailing a baited line: troll the lake for bass. c. To trail (a baited line) in fishing. 2. Slang. To patrol (an area) in search for someone or something: “[Criminals] troll bus stations for young runaways” (Pete Axthelm). 3. Music. a. To sing in succession the parts of (a round, for example). b. To sing heartily: troll a carol. 4. To roll or revolve. — v. intr. 1. To fish by trailing a line, as from a moving boat. 2. a. To wander about; ramble. b. Slang. To patrol an area in search for someone or something. 3. Music. To sing heartily or gaily. 4. To roll or spin around. — n. 1. a. The act of trolling for fish. b. A lure, such as a spoon or spinner, that is used for trolling. 2. Music. A vocal composition in successive parts; a round. [Middle English trollen, to wander about, from Old French troller, of Germanic origin.] —troll'er n.

troll² (trōl) n. A supernatural creature of Scandinavian folklore, variously portrayed as a friendly or mischievous dwarf or as a giant, that lives in caves, in the hills, or under bridges. [Ultimately from Old Norse.]

trol·ley also trol·ly (trōl'ē) n. pl. trol·leys also trol·lies. 1. A streetcar. 2. A device that collects electric current from an underground conductor, an overhead wire, or a third rail and transmits it to the motor of an electric vehicle. 3. A small truck or car operating on a track and used in a mine, quarry, or factory for conveying materials. 4. A wheeled carriage, cage, or basket that is suspended from and travels on an overhead track. 5. Chiefly British. A cart. — v. tr. intr.

trol·leyed also trol·lied (-lēd), trol·ley·ing also trol·ly·ing, trol·leys also trol·lies (-lēz). To convey (passengers) or travel by trolley. [Probably from TROLL¹.]

trolley bus (trōl'ē būs) n. An electric bus that does not run on tracks and is powered by electricity from an overhead wire.

trolley car (trōl'ē kār) n. A streetcar.

trol·lop (trōl'əp) n. 1. A woman regarded as slovenly or untidy; a slattern. 2. A strumpet. [Perhaps from TROLL¹, to roll about, wallow.]

Trol·lope (trōl'əp), Anthony. 1815-1882. British writer best known for a series of novels set in the imaginary county of Barsetshire, including Barchester Towers (1857) and The Last Chronicle of Barset (1867). —Trol·lo·pi·an (trə-lōp'ē-ən, -lō'pē-, trōl'ə-pē'-) adj.

trol·ly (trōl'ē) n. & v. Variant of trolley.

trom-bic-u-li-a-sis (tröm-bīk'yə-lī'ə-sīs) also trom-bic-u-lo-sis (-lō'sīs) n.
Infestation with chiggers. [New Latin Trombicula, genus of mites, diminutive of Trombidium + -IASIS.]

trom-bone (tröm-bōn', trəm-, tröm'bōn') n. Music. 1. A brass instrument consisting of a long cylindrical tube bent upon itself twice, ending in a bell-shaped mouth, and having a movable U-shaped slide for producing different pitches. 2. A member of an orchestra who plays the trombone. [French, from Italian, augmentative of tromba, trumpet, of Germanic origin.] —trom-bon'ist n.

trom-mel (tröm'məl) n. A revolving cylindrical sieve used for screening or sizing rock and ore. [German, from Middle High German trummel, diminutive of trumme, drum, probably of imitative origin.]

tromp (trömp) v. tromped, tromp-ing, tromps. Informal. — v. intr. 1. To walk heavily and noisily; tramp. 2. To apply heavy foot pressure on something: tromped on the accelerator and sped off. — v. tr. 1. To trample underfoot. 2. To defeat soundly; trounce. [Alteration of TRAMP.]

Tromp (trômmp, trömp), Maarten Harpertzoon. 1597-1653. Dutch admiral noted for his victories over the Spanish and Portuguese in 1639. He was defeated and killed in a battle against the English (1653).

trompe (trömp) n. An apparatus in which water falling through a perforated pipe entrains air into and down the pipe to produce an air blast for a furnace or forge. [French, from Old French, trumpet. See TRUMP².]

trompe l'oeil (trômpp'loi') n. pl. trompe l'oeils (loi'). 1. A style of painting that gives an illusion of photographic reality. 2. A painting or effect created in this style. [French : trompe, third person sing. present tense of tromper, to deceive + le, the + oeil, eye.]

Trom-sø (tröm'sō', trööm'sœ) A city of northern Norway on an offshore island in the Arctic Ocean. Founded as a center for herring fisheries, it is the chief city of northern Norway. Population, 47,322.

-tron suff. 1. Vacuum tube: dynatron. 2. Device for manipulating subatomic particles: betatron. [Greek, instrumental noun suff.]

tro-na (trō'nə) n. A natural vitreous gray or white mineral, $\text{Na}_2\text{CO}_3 \cdot \text{NaHCO}_3 \cdot 2\text{H}_2\text{O}$, used as a source of sodium compounds. [Swedish, probably from Arabic dialectal ṭrōn, variant of Arabic naṭrūn, natron. See NATRON.]

Trond-heim (trön'hām', trôn'-) A city of central Norway on Trondheim Fjord, an inlet of the Norwegian Sea. Founded in 997, it was the capital of Norway until 1380. Population, 134,652.

troop (trōōp) n. Abbr. tr., trp. 1. A group or company of people, animals, or things. See Synonyms at band². See Synonyms at flock¹. 2. a. A group of soldiers. b. troops. Military units; soldiers. 3. A unit of at least five Boy Scouts or Girl Scouts under the guidance of an adult leader. 4. A great many; a lot. — v. intr. trooped, troop-ing, troops. 1. To move or go as a throng. 2. To assemble or move in crowds. 3. To consort; associate. [French troupe, from Old French trope, probably from Vulgar Latin troppu-*.]

troop-er (trōō'pər) n. 1. a. A member of a unit of cavalry. b. A cavalry horse. 2. a. A mounted police officer. b. A state police officer.

troop-ship (trōōp'shīp') n. A ship for transporting troops.

troost-ite (trōō'stīt') n. A white or colored crystalline mineral, a variety of willemite, in which the zinc is partly replaced by manganese. [After Gerard Troost (1776-1850), Dutch-born American geologist.]

trop. abbr. Tropic; tropical.

trop- pref. Variant of tropo-.

trope (trōp) n. 1. a. The figurative use of a word or an expression, as metaphor or hyperbole. b. An instance of this use; a figure of speech. 2. Music. A word or phrase interpolated as an embellishment in the sung parts of certain medieval liturgies. [Latin tropus, from Greek tropos, turn, figure of speech. See trep- in Appendix.] —trop'i-cal (trō'pī-kəl) adj.

troph- pref. Variant of tropho-.

troph-al-lax-is (trōf'ə-lăk'sīs, trō'fə-) n. pl. troph-al-lax-es (-lăk'sēz).

Mutual exchange of food between adults and larvae of certain social insects such as bees or wasps. [TROPH(O)- + Greek allaxis, exchange (from allassein, to exchange, from allos, other); see al-¹ in Appendix.]

troph-ic (trōf'īk, trō'fīk) adj. 1. Of or relating to nutrition. 2. Ecology. Of or involving the feeding habits or food relationship of different organisms in a food chain.

-trophic suff. 1. Of, relating to, or characterized by a specified kind of nutrition: polytrophic. 2. Acting on something specified: gonadotrophic. [From TROPHIC.] trophic level (trōf'īk lēv'əl) n. Ecology. A group of organisms that occupy the same position in a food chain.

tropho- or troph- pref. Nutrition; nutritive: trophoblast. [Greek, from trophē, from trephein, to nourish.]

tro-pho-blast (trō'fə-blăst') n. The outermost layer of cells of the blastocyst that attaches the fertilized ovum to the uterine wall and serves as a nutritive pathway for the embryo. Also called trophoderm —tro'pho-blas'tic adj.

tro-pho-derm (trō'fə-dûrm') n. See trophoblast.

tro-pho-zo-ite (trō'fə-zō'īt') n. A protozoan, especially of the class Sporozoa, in the active stage of its life cycle.

tro-phy (trō'fē) n. pl. tro-phies. 1. a. A prize or memento, such as a cup or plaque, received as a symbol of victory, especially in sports. b. A specimen or part, such as a lion's head, preserved as a token of a successful hunt. c. A memento, as of one's personal achievements. d. The spoils of war, dedicated in classical antiquity with an inscription to a deity and set up as a temporary monument on or near a battlefield, hung or placed in an existing temple, or housed in a permanent, new structure. 2. Architecture. An ornamental marble carving or bronze casting depicting a group of weapons or armor placed upon a square or circular base. [French trophée, from Old French trophee, from Latin trophaeum, monument to victory, variant of tropaeum, from Greek tropaion, from neuter of tropaïos, of defeat, from tropē, a turning, rout. See trep- in Appendix.]

-troph suff. Nutrition; growth: hypertrophy. [Greek -trophia, from trophē, from trephein, to nourish.]

trop-ic (tröp'ik) n. Abbr. trop. 1. a. Either of two parallels of latitude on the earth, one 23°27' north of the equator and the other 23°27' south of the equator, representing the points farthest north and south at which the sun can shine directly overhead and constituting the boundaries of the Torrid Zone. b. Tropics or tropics. The region of the earth's surface lying between these latitudes.

2. Astronomy. Either of two corresponding parallels of celestial latitude that are the limits of the apparent northern and southern passages of the sun. — adj.

Abbr. trop. Of or relating to the Tropics; tropical. [Middle English tropik, from Old French tropique, from Late Latin tropicus, from Latin, of a turn, from Greek tropikos, from tropē, a turning. See trep- in Appendix.]

-tropic suff. 1. Turning or changing in a specified way or in response to a specified stimulus: heliotropic. 2. Affecting or attracted to something specified: gonadotropic. [From Greek tropē, a turning. See TROPIC.] trop-i-cal (tröp'ī-kəl) adj. Abbr. trop. 1. Of, occurring in, or characteristic of the Tropics. 2. Hot and humid; torrid. — n. A tropical plant. —trop'i-cal-ly adv.

tropical almond (tröp'ī-kəl ä'mənd) n. See Indian almond.

tropical cyclone (tröp'ī-kəl sī'klōn') n. A cyclone originating over tropical oceans, characterized by violent rainstorms and winds with velocities of up to 320 kilometers (200 miles) per hour.

tropical fish (tröp'ī-kəl fīsh) n. Any of various small, brightly colored fishes native to tropical waters and often kept in home aquariums.

tropical storm (tröp'ī-kəl stōrm) n. A cyclonic storm having winds ranging from approximately 48 to 121 kilometers (30 to 75 miles) per hour.

tropical year (tröp'ī-kəl yîr) n. See solar year.

trop-ic-bird (tröp'ik-bûrd') n. Any of several predominantly white, swift-flying sea birds of the genus Phaethon, of warm regions, having small weak legs and a pair of long, slender, central tail feathers.

tropic of Cancer (tröp'ik üv kăn'sər) n. The parallel of latitude 23°27' north of the equator, the northern boundary of the Torrid Zone, and the most northerly latitude at which the sun can shine directly overhead.

- tropic of Capricorn (tröp'ík üv kăp'ri-kôrn') n. The parallel of latitude 23°27' south of the equator, the southern boundary of the Torrid Zone, and the most southerly latitude at which the sun can shine directly overhead.
- tro·pine (trō'pēn', -pĭn) also tro·pin (-pĭn) n. A white, crystalline, poisonous alkaloid, C₈H₁₅NO, obtained chiefly by hydrolysis of atropine. [From ATROPINE.]
- tro·pism (trō'pĭz'əm) n. The turning or bending movement of an organism or a part toward or away from an external stimulus, such as light, heat, or gravity. [From -TROPISM.] —tro'pic, tro·pis'tic adj. —tro·pis'ti·cal·ly adv.
- tropism suff. Tropism: phototropism. [From Greek tropē, a turning. See -TROPIC.]
- tropo- or trop- pref. 1. Turning; change: troposphere. 2. Tropism: tropotaxis. [Greek, from tropē, turn. See trep- in Appendix.]
- tro·po·col·la·gen (trō'pə-kōl'ə-jən, tröp'ə-) n. The molecular component of a collagen fiber, consisting of three polypeptide chains coiled around each other.
- tro·pol·o·gy (trō-pōl'ə-jē) n. pl. tro·pol·o·gies. 1. The use of tropes in speech or writing. 2. A mode of biblical interpretation insisting on the morally edifying sense of tropes in the Scriptures. [Late Latin tropologia, from Late Greek : Greek tropos, trope; see TROPE + Greek -logia, -logy.] —tro'po·log'ic (trō'pə-lōj'ĭk, tröp'ə-), tro'po·log'i·cal (-ĭ-kəl) adj. —tro'po·log'i·cal·ly adv.
- tro·po·my·o·sin (trō'pə-mī'ə-sĭn, tröp'ə-) n. Any of a group of muscle proteins that bind to molecules of actin and troponin to regulate the interaction of actin and myosin.
- tro·po·nin (trō'pə-nĭn, tröp'ə-) n. A calcium-regulated protein in muscle tissue occurring in three subunits with tropomyosin. [TROPO(MYOSI)N + -IN.]
- tro·po·pause (trō'pə-pôz', tröp'ə-) n. The boundary between the troposphere and the stratosphere varying in altitude from approximately 8 kilometers (5 miles) at the poles to approximately 18 kilometers (11 miles) at the equator.
- tro·po·phyte (trō'pə-fĭt', tröp'ə-) n. A plant adapted to climatic conditions in which periods of heavy rainfall alternate with periods of drought. —tro'po·phyt'ic (-fĭt'ĭk) adj.
- tro·po·sphere (trō'pə-sfĭr', tröp'ə-) n. The lowest region of the atmosphere between the earth's surface and the tropopause, characterized by decreasing temperature with increasing altitude. —tro'po·spher'ic (-sfĭr'ĭk, -sfēr'-) adj.
- tro·po·tax·is (trō'pə-tăk'sĭs, tröp'ə-) n. The movement or orientation of an organism in response to two stimuli, especially lights, by means of different sense organs. —tro'po·tac'tic (-tăk'tĭk) adj. —tro'po·tac'ti·cal·ly adv.
- tropous suff. Turning in a specified way or from a specified stimulus: amphotropous. [From Greek -tropos, of turning, from tropos, changeable, from trepein, to turn. See trep- in Appendix.]
- tropy suff. The state of turning in a specified way or from a specified stimulus: thixotropy. [Greek -tropia, from -tropos, -tropous.]

trot (tröt) n. 1. a. The gait of a horse or other four-footed animal, between a walk and a canter in speed, in which diagonal pairs of legs move forward together. b. A ride on a horse at this pace. 2. A gait of a person, faster than a walk; a jog. 3. Sports. A race for trotters. 4. See pony (n., sense 4). 5. trots. Informal. Diarrhea. Used with the. 6. A toddler. 7. Archaic. An old woman; a crone. — v. trot-ted, trot-ting, trots. — v. intr. 1. To go or move at a trot. 2. To proceed rapidly; hurry. — v. tr. To cause to move at a trot. — phrasal verb. trot out. Informal. To bring out and show for inspection or admiration: “His novel trots out an Irish president named Finn” (Charles E. Claffey). [Middle English, from Old French, from trotter, to trot, of Germanic origin.]

troth (trôth, tröth, tröth) n. 1. a. Betrothal. b. One’s pledged fidelity. 2. Good faith; fidelity. — v. tr. trothed, troth-ing, troths. To pledge or betroth. [Middle English trouthe, trothe, variant of treuthe, from Old English trēowth, truth. See deru- in Appendix.]

troth-plight (tröth’plīt’, tröth’-, tröth’-) Archaic. n. A betrothal. — v. tr. troth-plight-ed, troth-plight-ing, troth-plights. To betroth.

trot-line (tröt’līn’) n. See setline. [Perhaps from TROT.]

Trot-sky or Trot-ski (tröt’skē, tröt’-), Leon. 1879-1940. Russian revolutionary theoretician. A leader of the Bolshevik Revolution (1917), he was later expelled from the Communist Party (1927) and banished (1929) for his opposition to the authoritarianism of Stalin and his emphasis on world revolution. His writings include Literature and Revolution (1925) and the autobiographical My Life (1930). Trotsky was murdered while in exile in Mexico.

Trots-ky-ism (tröt’skē-īz’əm) n. The political and economic theories of Communism advocated by Leon Trotsky and his followers, usually including the principle of worldwide revolution. — Trots’ky-ist, Trots’ky-ite’ (-īt’) n.

trot-ter (tröt’ər) n. 1. A horse that trots, especially one trained for harness racing. 2. Informal. A foot, especially the foot of a pig or sheep prepared as food.

trou-ba-dour (trōō’bā-dôr’, -dôr’, -dōōr’) n. 1. One of a class of 12th-century and 13th-century lyric poets in Provence, northern Italy, and northern Spain, who composed songs in langue d’oc often about courtly love. 2. A strolling minstrel. [French, from Provençal trobador, from Old Provençal, from trobar, to compose, perhaps from Vulgar Latin tropāre*, from Late Latin tropus, trope, song, from Latin, trope. See TROPE.]

trou-ble (trüb’əl) n. 1. A state of distress, affliction, danger, or need: in trouble with the police. 2. A cause or source of distress, disturbance, or difficulty: One trouble after another delayed the job. 3. An effort, especially one that causes inconvenience or bother: went to a lot of trouble to find this book. 4. A condition of pain, disease, or malfunction: heart trouble. — v. troub-led, troub-ling, troub-les. — v. tr. 1. To agitate; stir up. 2. To afflict with pain or discomfort. 3. To cause mental agitation or distress to; worry. 4. To inconvenience; bother:

May I trouble you to close the window? — v. intr. To take pains: They trouble over every detail. [Middle English, from Old French, from troubler, to trouble, from Vulgar Latin turbulāre*, alteration (influenced by Latin turbula, small group, diminutive of turba, crowd), of Late Latin turbidāre, from Latin turbidus, confused. See TURBID.] —trou'bler n. —trou'bling-ly adv.

SYNONYMS: trouble, ail, distress, worry. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to cause anxious uneasiness in”: suffers memory lapses that trouble her children; asked him what's ailing him; a turn of events that has distressed us; has a high fever that worries the doctor. See also Synonyms at effort trou·ble·mak·er (trüb'əl-mā'kər) n. One that stirs up trouble or strife.

trou·ble·shoot also trou·ble·shoot (trüb'əl-shōōt') v. trou·ble·shot (-shōt'), trou·ble·shoot·ing, trou·ble·shoots. — v. intr. To work or serve as a troubleshooter. — v. tr. To investigate as a troubleshooter and eliminate or settle problems with: “cited the service it performed in trouble-shooting an employee problem” (Vance Packard).

trou·ble·shoot·er also trou·ble·shoot·er (trüb'əl-shōō'tər) n. 1. A worker whose job is to locate and eliminate sources of trouble, as in mechanical operations. 2. A mediator skilled in settling disputes especially of a diplomatic, political, or industrial nature.

trou·ble·some (trüb'əl-səm) adj. 1. Causing trouble or anxiety; worrisome. 2. Difficult; trying. —trou'ble·some·ly adv. —trou'ble·some·ness n.

trouble spot (trüb'əl spōt) n. A location or site of possible difficulty: “They suggested that arms control negotiations should not be convened until Soviet behavior in the world's trouble spots improved” (Charles William Maynes).

trou·blous (trüb'ləs) adj. 1. a. Full of trouble. b. Uneasy; troubled. 2. Causing trouble; troublesome.

trough (trōf, trōf) n. 1. a. A long, narrow, generally shallow receptacle for holding water or feed for animals. b. Any of various similar containers for domestic or industrial use, such as kneading or washing. 2. A gutter under the eaves of a roof. 3. A long, narrow depression, as between waves or ridges. 4. A low point in a business cycle or on a statistical graph. 5. Meteorology. An elongated region of relatively low atmospheric pressure, often associated with a front. 6. Physics. A minimum point in a wave or an alternating signal. [Middle English, from Old English trog. See deru- in Appendix.]

trounce (trouns) v. trounced, trounc·ing, trounc·es. — v. tr. 1. To thrash; beat. 2. To defeat decisively. — v. intr. To censure something or someone forcefully: “I was out to trounce on every digression and indiscretion conducted (or should I say semiconducted) in this performance” (Robert Maxwell Stern). [Origin unknown.]

- troupe (trōōp) n. A company or group, especially of touring actors, singers, or dancers. See Synonyms at band². — v. intr. trouped, trouping, troupes. To tour with a theatrical company. [French, troop. See TROOP.]
- trouper (trōō'pər) n. 1. A member of a theatrical company. 2. A veteran actor or performer. 3. A reliable, uncomplaining, often hard-working person.
- trou-pi-al (trōō'pē-əl) n. Any of several tropical American birds of the genus Icterus, related to the orioles and New World blackbirds, especially I. icterus, having orange and black plumage. [French troupiale, from troupe, flock. See TROOP.]
- trou-ser also trow-ser (trou'zər) n. An outer garment for covering the body from the waist to the ankles, divided into sections to fit each leg separately, worn especially by men and boys. Often used in the plural. — adj. Of, designed for, or to be found on trousers: trouser legs; trouser cuffs. [Back-formation from trousers, alteration of obsolete trouse, from Scottish Gaelic triubhas.]
- trous-seau (trōō'sō, trōō-sō') n. pl. trous-seaux (-sōz, -sōz') or trous-seaus. The possessions, such as clothing and linens, that a bride assembles for her marriage. [French, from Old French, diminutive of trousse, bundle. See TRUSS.]
- trout (trout) n. pl. trout or trouts. 1. a. Any of various freshwater or anadromous food and game fishes of the family Salmonidae, especially of the genera Salmo and Salvelinus, usually having a streamlined, speckled body with small scales. b. Any of various similar but unrelated fishes, such as the troutperch. 2. Chiefly British. An elderly woman regarded as being silly. [Middle English troute, from Old English trūht, from Late Latin tructa, perhaps from Greek trōktēs, a kind of sea fish with sharp teeth, from trōgein, to gnaw. See terə⁻¹ in Appendix.]
- trout lily (trout līl'ē) n. See dogtooth violet. [Probably from its speckled leaves.]
- troutperch (trout'pûrch') n. pl. troutperch or trout-perch-es. A small North American freshwater fish (Percopsis omiscomaycus) having a translucent body, an adipose fin, and fine saw-toothed edges on its scales.
- trou-vère (trōō-vâr') also trou-veur (-vûr', -vœr') n. One of a class of poet-musicians flourishing in northern France in the 12th and 13th centuries, who composed chiefly narrative works, such as the chansons de geste, in langue d'oïl. [French, from Old French trovere, from trover, to compose, from Vulgar Latin tropāre*. See TROUBADOUR.]
- Trou-ville (trōō-vēl') or Trou-ville-sur-Mer (-sōor-mēr', -sür-) A town of northwest France on the English Channel south of Le Havre. It is a popular resort. Population, 6,008.
- trove (trōv) n. A collection of valuable items discovered or found; a treasure-trove. [Short for (TREASURE-)TROVE.]

tro-ver (trō'vər) n. Law. A common-law action to recover damages for property illegally withheld or wrongfully converted to use by another. [From Anglo-Norman, to compose, invent, find, probably from Vulgar Latin tropāre*. See TROUBADOUR.]

throw (trō) v. intr. trowed, trow-ing, trows. 1. Archaic. To think. 2. Obsolete. To suppose. [Middle English trowen, from Old English trēowian, to trust. See deru- in Appendix.]

trow-el (trou'əl) n. 1. A flat-bladed hand tool for leveling, spreading, or shaping substances such as cement or mortar. 2. A small implement with a pointed, scoop-shaped blade used for digging, as in setting plants. — v. tr. trow-eled or trow-elled, trow-el-ing or trow-el-ling, trow-els or trow-els. To spread, smooth, form, or scoop with a trowel. [Middle English trowell, from Old French truele, from Late Latin truella, diminutive of Latin trua, ladle.] — trow'el-er, trow'el-ler n.

trow-ser (trou'zər) n. Variant of trouser.

troy (troi) adj. Abbr. t Of or expressed in troy weight. [Middle English troye, after Troyes.]

Troy (troi) 1. Also Il-i-on (il'ē-ən, -ŏn') or Il-i-um (-ē-əm). An ancient city of northwest Asia Minor near the Dardanelles. Originally a Phrygian city dating from the Bronze Age, it is the legendary site of the Trojan War and was captured and destroyed by Greek forces c. 1200 B.C. The ruins of Troy were discovered by Heinrich Schliemann in 1871. 2. A city of southeast Michigan, a residential and industrial suburb of Detroit. Population, 72,884. 3. A city of eastern New York on the Hudson River northeast of Albany. Settled in the 1780's, it is a manufacturing center with a clothing industry. Population, 54,269. 4. A city of west-central Ohio north of Dayton. It is a processing center. Population, 19,478.

Troyes (trwä) A city of northeast France on the Seine River east-southeast of Paris. A pre-Roman town, it was a prosperous commercial center in the Middle Ages and was noted for its annual fairs, which set standards of weights and measures for all of Europe. Population, 63,581.

Troy-on (trwä-yŏn'), Constant. 1813-1865. French painter who was associated with the Barbizon school. He is known for his landscapes and animal subjects.

troy weight (troi wāt) n. A system of units of weight in which the grain is the same as in the avoirdupois system and the pound contains 12 ounces, 240 pennyweights, or 5,760 grains.

trp. abbr. Troop.

tru-an-cy (trō'ən-sē) also tru-ant-ry (-ən-trē) n. pl. tru-an-cies also tru-ant-ries. The act or condition of being absent without permission.

tru-ant (trō'ənt) n. 1. One who is absent without permission, especially from school. 2. One who shirks work or duty. — adj. 1. Absent without permission, especially from school. 2. Idle, lazy, or neglectful. — v. intr. tru-ant-ed, tru-ant-ing, tru-ants. To be truant. [Middle English, beggar, from Old French. See terə⁻¹ in Appendix.]

truant officer (trōō'ənt ô'fī-sər) n. An official who investigates unauthorized absences from school.

tru-ant-ry (trōō'ən-trē) n. Variant of truancy.

truce (trōos) n. 1. A temporary cessation or suspension of hostilities by agreement of the opposing sides; an armistice. 2. A respite from a disagreeable state of affairs. — v. tr. intr. truced, trucing, truces. To end or be ended with a truce. [Middle English trewes, pl. of trew, treaty, pledge, from Old English trēow. See deru- in Appendix.]

Tru-chas Peaks (trōō'chəs pēks) Three mountains in northern New Mexico northeast of Santa Fe, rising to 3,998.6 m (13,110 ft) at North Truchas Peak.

Tru-cial O-man (trōō'shəl ô-män') See United Arab Emirates.

truck¹ (trūk) n. Abbr. tk. 1. Any of various heavy motor vehicles designed for carrying or pulling loads. 2. A two-wheeled barrow for moving heavy objects by hand. 3. A wheeled platform, sometimes equipped with a motor, for conveying loads in a warehouse or freight yard. 4. One of the swiveling frames of wheels under each end of a railroad car or trolley car. 5. A set of bookshelves mounted on four wheels or casters, used in libraries. 6. Nautical. A small piece of wood placed at the top of a mast or flagpole, usually having holes through which hal-yards can be passed. 7. Chiefly British. A railroad freight car without a top. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: truck drivers; truck transport. — v. trucked, trucking, trucks. — v. tr. To transport by truck. — v. intr. 1. To carry goods by truck. 2. To drive a truck. 3. Slang. To move or travel in a steady but easy manner. [Short for TRUCKLE, or from Latin trochus, iron hoop (from Greek trokhos, wheel).]

truck² (trūk) v. trucked, trucking, trucks. — v. tr. 1. To exchange; barter. 2. To peddle. — v. intr. To have dealings or commerce; traffic. — n. 1. Articles of commerce; trade goods. 2. Garden produce raised for the market. 3. Informal. Worthless goods; stuff or rubbish: "Look at your hands. And look at your mouth. What is that truck?" (Mark Twain). 4. Barter; exchange. 5. Informal. Dealings; business: We'll have no further truck with them. [Middle English truk-ien, from Old North French troquer.]

truck-age (trūk'ij) n. 1. Transportation of goods by truck. 2. A charge for transportation by truck.

Truck-ee (trūk'ē) A river, about 193 km (120 mi) long, rising in eastern California and flowing east and northeast into northwest Nevada.

truck-er (trūk'ər) n. 1. One who drives a truck. 2. One that is engaged in trucking goods.

truck farm (trūk färm) n. A farm producing vegetables for the market. [From TRUCK².] —truck farmer n. —truck farm'ing n.

truck-le (trūk'əl) n. A small wheel or roller; a caster. — v. intr. truck-led, truck-ling, truck-les. To be servile or submissive. See Synonyms at fawn¹.

[Middle English trocle, pulley, from Anglo-Norman, from Latin trochlea, system of pulleys. See TROCHLEA.] —truck/ler n.

truckle bed (trūk'əl bĕd) n. A trundle bed.

truck-load (trūk'lōd') n. The quantity that a truck can hold.

truck stop (trūk stōp) n. An establishment that sells fuel for trucks and usually maintains a restaurant for truck drivers.

truc-u-lence (trūk'yə-ləns) also truc-u-len-cy (-lən-sē) n. 1. A disposition or apparent disposition to fight, especially fiercely. 2. Ferociously cruel actions or behavior.

truc-u-lent (trūk'yə-lənt) adj. 1. Disposed to fight; pugnacious. 2. Expressing bitter opposition; scathing: a truculent speech against the new government.

3. Disposed to or exhibiting violence or destructiveness; fierce. [Latin truculentus, from trux, truc-, fierce. See terə-² in Appendix.] —truc/u-lent-ly adv.

Tru-deau (trōō-dō', trōō'dō'), Pierre Elliott. Born 1919. Canadian prime minister (1968-1979 and 1980-1984) whose administration was marked by efforts to contain the French separatist movement in Quebec and by the Constitution Act of 1982, which granted Canada full independence.

trudge (trūj) v. intr. trudged, trudg-ing, trudg-es. To walk in a laborious, heavy-footed way; plod. — n. A long, tedious walk. [Origin unknown.] —trudg'er n.

trudg-en also trudg-eon (trūj'ən) n. Sports. A swimming stroke in which an alternating overarm movement is combined with a scissors kick. [After John Trudgen (1852-1902), British swimmer.]

true (trōō) adj. tru-er, tru-est. 1. a. Consistent with fact or reality; not false or erroneous. See Synonyms at real¹. See Usage Note at fact. b. Truthful. 2. Real; genuine. See Synonyms at authentic. 3. Reliable; accurate: a true prophecy.

4. Faithful, as to a friend, vow, or cause; loyal. See Synonyms at faithful.

5. Sincerely felt or expressed; unfeigned: true grief. 6. Fundamental; essential:

his true motive. 7. Rightful; legitimate: the true heir. 8. Exactly conforming to a rule, standard, or pattern: trying to sing true B. 9. Accurately shaped or fitted: a true wheel. 10. Accurately placed, delivered, or thrown. 11. Quick and exact in sensing and responding. 12. Determined with reference to the earth's axis, not the magnetic poles: true north. 13. Conforming to the definitive criteria of a natural group; typical: The horseshoe crab is not a true crab. 14. Narrowly particularized; highly specific: spoke of probity in the truest sense of the word. — adv.

1. In accord with reality, fact, or truthfulness. 2. Unswervingly; exactly: The archer aimed true. 3. So as to conform to a type, standard, or pattern. — v. tr. trued, tru-ing or true-ing, trues. To position (something) so as to make it balanced, level, or square: trued up the long planks. — n. 1. Truth or reality. Used with the. 2. Proper alignment or adjustment: out of true. [Middle English trewe, from Old English trēowe, firm, trustworthy. See deru- in Appendix.] —true/-ness n.

true believer (trōō bĭ-lēv'ər) n. One who is deeply, sometimes fanatically devoted to a cause, an organization, or a person: “a band of true believers bonded together against all those who did not agree with them” (Theodore Draper).

true bill (trōō bĭl) n. Law. A bill of indictment endorsed by a grand jury.

true-blue (trōō'blōō') adj. Loyal or faithful; staunch. [From the adoption of the color blue by 17th-century Scottish Presbyterians in opposition to the Royalists' red.]

true-born (trōō'bōrn') adj. Being authentically or genuinely such by birth.

true bug (trōō bŭg) n. A wingless or four-winged insect of the order Hemiptera, especially of the suborder Heteroptera, including the bedbug, louse, and chinch bug, having mouthparts adapted for piercing and sucking.

true-false test (trōō'fōls' tĕst) n. A test in which statements are to be marked either true or false.

true-life (trōō'lĭf') adj. Presenting conditions and especially human relationships accurately; true to life: a true-life romance.

true-love (trōō'lŭv') n. One's beloved; a sweetheart.

true lovers' knot (trōō lŭv'ərz nōt) n. See love knot.

true-pen·ny (trōō'pĕn'ē) n. pl. true-pen-nies. An honest, trustworthy person.

true rhyme (trōō rĭm) n. See perfect rhyme (n., sense 1).

true rib (trōō rĭb) n. Any of the ribs that are attached to the sternum by a costal cartilage, especially any of the seven upper ribs on either side of the thorax in human beings.

true seal (trōō sĕl) n. See earless seal.

Truf·faut (trōō-fō'), François. 1932-1984. French New Wave filmmaker whose works include The 400 Blows (1959) and Jules and Jim (1961).

truf·fle (trŭf'əl) n. 1. Any of various fleshy, ascomycetous, edible fungi, chiefly of the genus Tuber, that grow underground on or near the roots of trees and are valued as a delicacy. 2. Any of various chocolate confections, especially one made of a mixture including chopped nuts, rolled into balls and covered with cocoa powder. [Alteration of French trufe, from Old French, from Old Provençal trufa, from Vulgar Latin tūfera*, truffles, from dialectal variant of Latin tūber, lump. See teuə- in Appendix.]

tru·ism (trōō'ĭz'əm) n. A self-evident truth. See Synonyms at cliché.

—tru-is'tic (trōō-ĭs'tĭk) adj.

Tru·ji·llo (trōō-hĕ'ō, -yō) A city of northwest Peru northwest of Lima. Founded in 1534, it was provisional capital of Peru in 1825 and is now a processing center. Population, 202,469.

Trujillo Mo-li-na (trōō-hē'ō mō-lē'nə, -nä), Rafael Leónidas. 1891-1961.

Dominican soldier and dictator who ran unopposed for president in 1930 and controlled the country until his assassination in 1961.

Truk Islands (trūk ī'ləndz, trōök) An island group of the western Pacific Ocean in the central Caroline Islands. Site of a major Japanese naval base in World War II, the islands are part of the U.S. Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands.

trull (trül) n. A prostitute; a harlot. [Perhaps from German Trulle, from Middle High German trulle; akin to Old Norse troll, creature, troll.]

tru-ly (trōō'lē) adv. 1. Sincerely; genuinely: We are truly sorry for the inconvenience. 2. Truthfully; accurately: reported the matter truly. 3. Indeed: truly ugly. 4. Properly: not truly civilized.

Tru-man (trōō'mən), Elizabeth. Known as "Bess." 1885-1982. First Lady of the United States (1945-1953) as the wife of President Harry S Truman. She was a valued adviser to her husband.

Tru-man (trōō'mən), Harry S. 1884-1972. The 33rd President of the United States (1945-1953). He authorized the use of the atomic bomb against Japan (1945), implemented the Marshall Plan (1948), initiated the establishment of NATO (1949), and ordered U.S. involvement in the Korean War (1950-1953).

Trum-bo (trüm'bō), Dalton. 1905-1976. American screenwriter who was blacklisted and imprisoned for his refusal to participate in the anti-Communist investigations of the House Un-American Activities Committee. His screenplays include Spartacus (1960) and The Fixer (1968).

Trum-bull (trüm'bəl) A town of southwest Connecticut north of Bridgeport. It is a residential community with varied industries. Population, 32,016.

Trum-bull¹ (trüm'bəl), John. 1750-1831. American poet noted for his satirical works, including The Progress of Dulness (1772-1773).

Trum-bull² (trüm'bəl), John. 1756-1843. American painter of historical scenes, such as The Battle of Bunker's Hill (1786) and The Declaration of Independence (1786-1797).

Trum-bull (trüm'bəl), Jonathan. 1710-1785. American politician. As governor of Connecticut (1769-1784) he provided supplies and support for the Continental Army during the American Revolution.

trump¹ (trümp) n. 1. Games. a. Often trumps. A suit in card games that outranks all other suits for the duration of a hand. b. A card of such a suit. c. A trump card. 2. A key resource to be used at an opportune moment. 3. Informal. A reliable or admirable person. — v. trumped, trump-ing, trumps. — v. tr. 1. Games. To take (a card or trick) with a trump. 2. To get the better of (an adversary or a competitor, for example) by using a key, often hidden resource. — v. intr. Games. To play a trump. — phrasal verb. trump up. To devise fraudulently: trumped up a charge of conspiracy. [Alteration of TRIUMPH.]

WORD HISTORY: The history of the word trump gives meaning to this seemingly nonsensical word and also relates to the history of the game of bridge. Trump is an alteration of the word triumph used in special senses that are now obsolete. These senses, first recorded in a sermon of 1529 by the English prelate Hugh Latimer, are “a card game” and “trump” as it is used in card games. In the same 1529 text one may find the first instances of trump, used in the same two senses as triumph. From trump and other games came the card game whist, which in turn developed into bridge. The term trump survived even though the game of trump did not.

trump² (trŭmp) n. Music. A trumpet. [Middle English trompe, from Old French. See TRUMPET.]

trump card (trŭmp kărd) n. 1. Games. A card in the trump suit, held in reserve for winning a trick. 2. A key resource to be used at the opportune moment; a trump: “[They] seem determined to use the agreement as a trump card to obtain... all the advantages they feel they deserve” (Christian Science Monitor).

trump-er-y (trŭm'pə-rē) n. pl. trump-er-ies. 1. Showy but worthless finery; bric-a-brac. 2. Nonsense; rubbish. 3. Deception; trickery; fraud. [Middle English tromperie, deceit, from Old French tromperie, from tromper, to deceive.]

trum-pet (trŭm'pĭt) n. 1. a. Music. A soprano brass wind instrument consisting of a long metal tube looped once and ending in a flared bell, the modern type being equipped with three valves for producing variations in pitch. b. Something shaped or sounding like this instrument. 2. Music. An organ stop that produces a tone like that of the brass wind instrument. 3. A resounding call, as that of the elephant. — v. trum-pet-ed, trum-pet-ing, trum-pets. — v. intr.

1. Music. To play a trumpet. 2. To give forth a resounding call. — v. tr. To sound or proclaim loudly. [Middle English trumpette, from Old French trompette, diminutive of trompe, horn, from Old High German trumpa.]

trumpet creeper (trŭm'pĭt krē'pər) n. A deciduous woody vine (Campsis radicans) of the eastern United States, having opposite compound leaves and trumpet-shaped reddish-orange flowers. Also called trumpet vine trum-pet-er (trŭm'pĭ-tər) n. 1. Music. One who plays the trumpet. 2. One who announces something, as a herald. 3. Any of several large cranelike birds of the genus Psophia of tropical South America, having a loud resonant call.

4. a. The trumpeter swan. b. A variety of domestic pigeon having a shell-shaped crest and heavily feathered feet.

trumpeter swan (trŭm'pĭ-tər swŏn) n. A large white swan (Olor buccinator) of western North America, having a loud buglelike call.

trumpet honeysuckle (trŭm'pĭt hŭn'ē-sŭk'əl) n. A vine (Lonicera sempervirens) of the eastern United States, having tubular reddish flowers.

trumpet vine (trŭm'pĭt vĭn) n. See trumpet creeper.

trun-cate (trŭng'kāt') v. tr. trun-cat-ed, trun-cat-ing, trun-cates. 1. To shorten by or as if by cutting off. See Synonyms at shorten. 2. To shorten (a number) by dropping one or more digits after the decimal point. 3. To replace (the edge of a crystal) with a plane face. — adj. 1. Appearing to terminate abruptly, as a leaf of a tulip tree or a coiled gastropod shell that lacks a spire. 2. Truncated. [Latin truncāre, truncāt-, from truncus, trunk. See terə-² in Appendix.] — trun'cate'ly adv. — trun-ca'tion n.

trun-ca-ted (trŭng'kā'tĭd) adj. 1. Having the apex cut off and replaced by a plane, especially one parallel to the base. Used of a cone or pyramid.

2. a. Lacking one or more syllables, especially in the final foot; catalectic.

b. Lacking an initial or final syllable. Used of a line of verse. 3. Truncate.

trun-cheon (trŭn'chən) n. 1. A short stick carried by police; a billy club. 2. A staff carried as a symbol of office or authority; a baton. 3. Obsolete. a. A heavy club; a cudgel. b. A thick cutting from a plant, as for grafting. [Middle English tronchon, piece broken off, club, from Old North French, from Vulgar Latin trunciō, trunciōn-*, from Latin truncus, trunk. See TRUNK.] — trun'cheon v.

trun-dle (trŭn'dl) n. 1. A small wheel or roller. 2. The motion or noise of rolling. 3. A trundle bed. 4. A low-wheeled cart; a dolly. — v. trun-dled, trun-dling, trun-dles. — v. tr. 1. To push or propel on wheels or rollers: "I doubt if Emerson could trundle a wheelbarrow through the streets" (Henry David Thoreau). 2. To spin; twirl. — v. intr. To move along by or as if by rolling or spinning. [Variant of dialectal trendle, wheel, from Middle English, from Old English trendel, circle.] — trun'dler n.

trundle bed (trŭn'dl bĕd) n. A low bed on casters that can be rolled under another bed for storage.

trunk (trŭngk) n. 1. a. The main woody axis of a tree. b. Architecture. The shaft of a column. 2. a. The body of a human being or an animal excluding the head and limbs. b. The thorax of an insect. 3. A proboscis, especially the long prehensile proboscis of an elephant. 4. a. A main body, apart from tributaries or appendages. b. The main stem of a blood vessel or nerve apart from the branches. 5. A trunk line. 6. A chute or conduit. 7. Nautical. a. A shaft connecting two or more decks. b. The housing for the centerboard of a vessel. 8. Nautical. Any of certain structures projecting above part of a main deck, as: a. A covering over the hatches of a ship. b. An expansion chamber on a tanker. c. A cabin on a small boat. 9. a. A covered compartment for luggage and storage, generally at the rear of an automobile. b. A large packing case or box that clasps shut, used as luggage or for storage. 10. trunks. Shorts worn for swimming or other athletics. [Middle English trunke, from Old French tronc, from Latin truncus. See terə-² in Appendix.]

trunk·fish (trŭngk'fĭsh') n. pl. trunkfish or trunk·fish·es. Any of various colorful tropical marine fishes of the family Ostraciidae, having a body enclosed in bony armorlike plates with only the mouth, eyes, fins, and vent exposed. Also called boxfish trunk hose (trŭngk hōz) pl.n. Short, ballooning breeches, extending from the waist to mid thigh, worn by men in Europe in the 16th and 17th centuries. [Perhaps from obsolete trunk, to cut off, from Latin truncāre. See TRUNCATE.]

trunk line (trŭngk lĭn) n. 1. A direct line between two telephone switchboards. 2. The main line of a communications or transportation system.

trunk show (trŭngk shō) n. A traveling collection of designer clothing or jewelry, displayed in various stores.

trun·nel (trŭn'əl) n. Variant of treenail.

trun·nion (trŭn'yən) n. A pin or gudgeon, especially either of two small cylindrical projections on a cannon forming an axis on which it pivots. [French trognon, stump.]

Tru·ro (trōor'ō) A town of central Nova Scotia, Canada, north-northeast of Halifax. A major Acadian settlement, it was destroyed in 1755 when the Acadians were expelled by the British but was resettled by New Englanders a few years later. Population, 12,552.

truss (trŭs) n. 1. Medicine. A supportive device, usually consisting of a pad with a belt, worn to prevent enlargement of a hernia or the return of a reduced hernia.

2. a. A rigid framework, as of wooden beams or metal bars, designed to support a structure, such as a roof. b. Architecture. A bracket. 3. Something gathered into a bundle; a pack. 4. Nautical. An iron fitting by which a lower yard is secured to a mast. 5. Botany. A compact cluster of flowers at the end of a stalk.

— v. tr. trussed, trussing, truss·es. 1. To tie up or bind tightly. 2. To bind or skewer the wings or legs of (a fowl) before cooking. 3. To support or brace with a truss. [Middle English trusse, bundle, from Old French trousse, from torser, trousser, to truss, possibly from Vulgar Latin torsāre*, from torsus*, variant of Latin tortus, past participle of torquēre, to twist. See terk^w- in Appendix.]

truss bridge (trŭs brĭj) n. A bridge supported by trusses.

trust (trŭst) n. 1. Firm reliance on the integrity, ability, or character of a person or thing. 2. Custody; care. 3. Something committed into the care of another; charge. 4. a. The condition and resulting obligation of having confidence placed in one: violated a public trust. b. One in which confidence is placed. 5. Reliance on something in the future; hope. 6. Reliance on the intention and ability of a purchaser to pay in the future; credit. 7. Abbr. tr. Law. a. A legal title to property held by one party for the benefit of another. b. The confidence reposed in a trustee when giving the trustee legal title to property to administer for another, together with the trustee's obligation regarding that property and the beneficiary. c. The property so held. 8. A combination of firms or corporations for the purpose of reducing competition and controlling prices throughout a business or an industry. — v. trust-ed, trust-ing, trusts. — v. intr. 1. To have or place reliance; depend: Trust in the Lord. Trust to destiny. 2. To be confident; hope. 3. To sell on credit. — v. tr. 1. To have or place confidence in; depend on. 2. To expect with assurance; assume: I trust that you will be on time. 3. To believe: I trust what you say. 4. To place in the care of another; entrust. 5. To grant discretion to confidently: Can I trust them with the boat? 6. To extend credit to. —idiom. in trust. In the possession or care of a trustee. [Middle English truste, perhaps from Old Norse traust, confidence. See deru- in Appendix.] —trust'er n.

SYNONYMS: trust, faith, confidence, reliance, dependence. These nouns denote a feeling of certainty that a person or thing will not fail. Trust implies depth and assurance of feeling that is often based on inconclusive evidence: The new President said he would try to justify the trust the electorate had placed in him. Faith connotes unquestioning, often emotionally charged belief: “Faith and knowledge lean largely upon each other in the practice of medicine” (Peter M. Latham). “Often enough our faith beforehand in an uncertified result is the only thing that makes the result come true” (William James). Confidence, which suggests less emotional intensity, frequently implies stronger grounds for assurance: “Confidence is a plant of slow growth in an aged bosom: youth is the season of credulity” (William Pitt). Reliance connotes a confident and trustful commitment to another: “What reliance could they place on the protection of a prince so recently their enemy?” (William Hickling Prescott). Dependence suggests reliance on the help or support of another to whom one is often subordinate: “I fared like a distressed Prince who calls in a powerful Neighbor to his Aid... when I had once called him in, I could not subsist without Dependence on him” (Richard Steele). See also Synonyms at care rely trust·bust·er (trʌst'büs'tər) n. Informal. One that seeks to prosecute or dissolve business trusts. —trust'burst'ing adj. & n.

trust company (trʌst kʌm'pə-nē) n. A commercial bank or other corporation that manages trusts.

trust·tee (trʌ-stē') n. 1. Abbr. tr. Law. One, such as a bank, that holds legal title to property in order to administer it for a beneficiary. 2. A member of a board elected or appointed to direct the funds and policy of an institution. 3. A country responsible for supervising a trust territory. See Usage Note at -ee¹. — v. tr. intr. trust·teed, trust·tee-ing, trust·tees. To place (property) in the care of a trustee or to function or serve as a trustee.

trust·tee·ship (trʌ-stē'shɪp') n. 1. The position or function of a trustee. 2. a. Administration of a territory by a country or countries so commissioned by the United Nations. b. See trust territory.

trust·ful (trʌst'fəl) adj. Inclined to believe or confide readily; full of trust.

—trust'ful·ly adv. —trust'ful·ness n.

trust fund (trʌst fʌnd) n. Property, especially money and securities, held or settled in trust.

trust territory (trʌst tɛr'ɪ-tôr'ē) n. Abbr. TT A colony or territory placed under the administration of a country or countries by commission of the United Nations. Also called trusteeship trust·wor·thy (trʌst'wûr'thē) adj. trust·wor·thi·er, trust·wor·thi·est.

Warranting trust; reliable. See Synonyms at reliable. —trust'wor'thi·ly adv.

—trust'wor'thi·ness n.

trust·y (trʌs'tē) adj. trust·i·er, trust·i·est. Meriting trust; trustworthy. See Synonyms at reliable. — n. pl. trust·ies. 1. A convict regarded as worthy of trust and therefore granted special privileges. 2. A trusted person. —trust'i·ly adv. —trust'i·ness n.

truth (trʊθ) n. pl. truths (trʊθz, trʊθs). 1. Conformity to fact or actuality. 2. A statement proven to be or accepted as true. 3. Sincerity; integrity.

4. Fidelity to an original or a standard. 5. Reality; actuality. 6. Truth. Christian Science. God. [Middle English trewthe, loyalty, from Old English trēowth. See deru- in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: truth, veracity, verity, verisimilitude. These nouns refer to the quality of being in accord with fact or reality. Truth is a comprehensive term that in all of its nuances implies accuracy and honesty: “Every man is fully satisfied that there is such a thing as truth, or he would not ask any questions” (Charles S. Peirce). “We seek the truth, and will endure the consequences” (Charles Seymour). Veracity is adherence to the truth: “Veracity is the heart of morality” (Thomas H. Huxley). Verity often applies to an enduring or repeatedly demonstrated truth: “beliefs that were accepted as eternal verities” (James Harvey Robinson). Verisimilitude is the quality of having the appearance of truth or reality: “merely corroborative detail, intended to give artistic verisimilitude to an otherwise bald and unconvincing narrative” (W.S. Gilbert).

Truth (trʊθ), Sojourner. 1797?-1883. American abolitionist and feminist.

Born into slavery, she was freed in 1827 and became a leading preacher against slavery and for the rights of women.

truth·ful (trʊθ'fəl) adj. 1. Consistently telling the truth; honest.

2. Corresponding to reality; true. —truth'ful·ly adv. —truth'ful·ness n.

truth quark (trʊθ kwôrk) n. See top quark.

truth serum (trʊθ sîr'əm) n. Any of various hypnotic or anesthetic drugs, such as scopolamine or thiopental sodium, used to induce a subject under questioning to talk without inhibition.

truth table (trōōth tā'bəl) n. Logic. A table that displays the truth-value of a compound sentence as a function of the varying truth-values of its components.

truth-val-ue (trōōth'vāl'yōō) n. Logic. The truth or falsity of a statement or sentence.

try (trī) v. tried (trīd), try-ing, tries (trīz). — v. tr. 1. To make an effort to do or accomplish (something); attempt: tried to ski. 2. To taste, sample, or otherwise test in order to determine strength, effect, worth, or desirability: Try this casserole. Try the door. 3. Law. a. To examine or hear (evidence or a case) by judicial process. b. To put (an accused person) on trial. 4. To subject to great strain or hardship; tax: The last steep ascent tried my every muscle. 5. To melt (lard, for example) to separate out impurities; render. 6. To smooth, fit, or align accurately. — v. intr. To make an effort; strive. — n. pl. tries (trīz). An attempt; an effort. —phrasal verbs. try on. 1. To don (a garment) to test its fit. 2. To test or use experimentally. try out. 3. To undergo a competitive qualifying test, as for a job or athletic team. 4. To test or use experimentally. —idiom. try (one's) hand. To attempt to do something for the first time: I tried my hand at skiing. [Middle English trien, from Old French trier, to pick out, from Vulgar Latin triāre*.]

USAGE NOTE: The phrase try and is commonly used as a substitute for try to, as in Could you try and make less noise? A number of grammarians have labeled the construction incorrect. To be sure, associated with informal style, the usage strikes an inappropriately conversational note in formal writing. In the most recent survey 65 percent of the Usage Panel rejected the use in writing of the sentence Why don't you try and see if you can work the problem out between yourselves? See Usage Note at and.

try-ing (trī'ing) adj. Causing strain, hardship, or distress. —try'ing-ly adv.

try-out (trī'out') n. 1. A test to ascertain the qualifications of applicants, as for an athletic team or for a theatrical role. 2. An experimental performance of a play before its official opening.

try-pan-o-some (trī-păn'ə-sōm') n. Any of various parasitic flagellate protozoans of the genus Trypanosoma, transmitted to the vertebrate bloodstream, lymph, and spinal fluid by certain insects and often causing diseases such as sleeping sickness and nagana. [From New Latin Trypanosoma, genus name : Greek trupanon, auger (from trupan, to bore, from trupē, hole); see terə⁻¹ in Appendix + Greek sōma, body; see -SOME³.] —try-pan'o-so'mal, try-pan'o-som'ic (-sōm'ik) adj.

try-pan-o-so-mi-a-sis (trī-păn'ə-sō-mī'ə-sīs) n. pl. try-pan-o-so-mi-a-ses (-sēz'). A disease or an infection caused by a trypanosome.

- try·pars·a·mide (trĭ-pär'sə-mīd') n. A white crystalline powder, $C_8H_{10}AsN_2NaO_4$, used in the treatment of trypanosomiasis. [TRYP(ANOSOME) + ARS(ENIC) + AMIDE.]
- tryp·sin (trĭp'sĭn) n. An enzyme of pancreatic juice that hydrolyzes proteins to form smaller polypeptide units. [Perhaps Greek tripsis, a rubbing (from its having been first obtained by rubbing a pancreas with glycerin) from tribein, to rub; see terə⁻¹ in Appendix + -IN.] —tryp'tic (-tĭk) adj.
- tryp·sin·o·gen (trĭp-sĭn'ə-jən) n. The inactive precursor of trypsin, produced by the pancreas and converted to trypsin in the small intestine by enterokinase.
- tryp·ta·mine (trĭp'tə-mēn') n. A crystalline substance, $C_{10}H_{12}N_2$, that is formed in plant and animal tissues from tryptophan and is an intermediate in various metabolic processes. [TRYPT(OPHAN) + AMINE.]
- tryp·to·phan (trĭp'tə-fān') also tryp·to·phane (-fān') n. An essential amino acid, $C_{11}H_{12}N_2O_2$, formed from proteins during the digestive process by the action of proteolytic enzymes. [tryptic, of trypsin; see TRYPSIN + -PHAN(E).]
- try·sail (trĭ'səl, -sāl') n. Nautical. A small fore-and-aft sail hoisted abaft the foremast and mainmast in a storm to keep a ship's bow to the wind. [From obsolete try, a lying to, heaving to.]
- try square (trĭ skwâr) n. A carpenter's tool consisting of a ruled metal straight-edge set at right angles to a straight piece, used for measuring and marking square work.
- tryst (trĭst) n. 1. An agreement, as between lovers, to meet at a certain time and place. 2. A meeting or meeting place that has been agreed on. See Synonyms at engagement. — v. intr. tryst·ed, tryst·ing, trysts. To keep a tryst. [Middle English trist, from Old French triste, a waiting place (in hunting). See deru- in Appendix.] —tryst'er n.
- T.S. or t.s. abbr. Tensile strength.
- tsa·de (tsä'də, -dē) n. Variant of sadhe.
- Tsa·na (tsä'nə, -nä), Lake. See Lake Tana.
- tsar (zär, tsär) n. Variant of czar (n., sense 1). See Usage Note at czar.
- tsats·ke (tsäts'kə) n. Variant of chachka.
- Tse·lin·o·grad (tsə-lĭn'ə-gräd', tsĭ-lyĭ-nə-grät') A city of north-central Kazakhstan north-northwest of Karaganda. It is a railroad junction in a mining region. Population, 262,000.
- tset·se disease (tsĕ'tsĕ dĭ-zĕz', tsĕ'tsĕ) n. See nagana.
- tsetse fly also tzet·ze fly (tsĕt'sĕ flĭ, tsĕ'tsĕ) n. Any of several two-winged bloodsucking African flies of the genus Glossina, often carrying and transmitting pathogenic trypanosomes to human beings and livestock. [Afrikaans, from Sotho (Setswana) tsĕtsĕ.]

WORD HISTORY: By its spelling a word such as tsetse proclaims that it has not passed into English by the usual channels. We must look to Africa, the home of the more than 20 species of fly known by the term tsetse, for its source. The word comes into English from Setswana, a language spoken by the Tswana people, who live in Botswana and western South Africa. The term passed from Setswana into Afrikaans and from there into English, being first recorded in 1849. The first instance of the word in English refers to the death of horses and oxen caused by this insect, which transmits diseases to human beings and animals. The first instance of the compound tsetse fly is found in 1865.

T.Sgt. abbr. Technical sergeant.

TSH abbr. Thyroid-stimulating hormone.

Tshi·lu·ba (chǐ-lōō'bə) n. See Luba (n., sense 2).

T-shirt also tee shirt (tē'shûrt') n. 1. A short-sleeved, collarless undershirt. 2. An outer shirt of a design similar to the T-shirt. [From its being shaped like the letter T when spread out.]

Tsiao·tso (jyou'jō') See Jiaozuo.

tsim·mes or tzim·mes (tsĭm'is) n. 1. A stew of vegetables or fruits cooked slowly over very low heat. 2. Informal. A state of confusion. [Yiddish tsimes: Middle High German ze, zuo, to, for (from Old High German); see de- in Appendix + Middle High German imbiz, light meal (from Old High German, from enbizzan, to eat : in, in; see en in Appendix + bīzan, bizzan, to bite); see bheid- in Appendix.]

Tsi·mshi·an (chĭm'shē-ən, tsĭm'-) n. pl. Tsimshian or Tsi·mshi·ans. 1. a. A Native American people inhabiting a coastal area of western British Columbia and extreme southeast Alaska. b. A member of this people. 2. The family of languages spoken by the Tsimshian and related peoples.

Tsi·nan (jē'nän') See Jinan.

Tsing·hai (tsĭng'hī') See Qinghai.

Tsing·tao (tsĭng'dou') See Qingdao.

Tsi·tsi·har (tsē'tsē'här') See Qiqihar.

tsk (a t-like sound produced by suction rather than plosion; conventional spelling pronunciation, tĭsk) interj. Used to express disappointment or sympathy. — n. A sucking noise made by suddenly releasing the tongue from the hard palate, used to express disappointment or sympathy. — tsk v.

tsp. or tsp abbr. Teaspoon; teaspoonful.

T-square (tē'skwâr') n. A rule having a short, sometimes sliding, perpendicular crosspiece at one end, used by drafters for establishing and drawing parallel lines.

TSS abbr. Toxic shock syndrome.

Tsu·ga·ru Strait (tsōō-gă'rōō strāt) A channel between Honshu and Hokkaido in northern Japan.

tsu·na·mi (tsōō-nā'mē) n. pl. tsu·na·mis. A very large ocean wave caused by an underwater earthquake or volcanic eruption. [Japanese : tsu, port + nami, wave.] — tsu·na'mic adj.

tsu·ris also tzu·ris (tsōōr'is, tsûr'-) n. Informal. Trouble; aggravation. [Yiddish tsores, pl. of tsure, from Hebrew šarā.]

Tsu·shi·ma (tsōō-shē'mā, tsōō'shē-mā') Two islands of southwest Japan in Korea Strait between Kyushu and southeast South Korea. They are separated from Kyushu by Tsushima Strait, the site of a major naval battle (May 1905) in the Russo-Japanese War in which the Russian fleet was largely destroyed.

tsu·tsu·ga·mu·shi disease (tsōō'tsōō-gā-mōō'shē dĩ-zēz') n. See scrub typhus. [Japanese tsutsugamushi, typhus mite : tsutsuga, illness + mushi, tick.]

Tswa·na (tswä'nā, swä'-) *n. pl. Tswana or Tswa·nas. 1. A member of a Bantu people inhabiting Botswana and western South Africa. Also called Batswana, Bechuana. 2. The Sotho language of the Tswana. Also called *Setswana

Tt abbr. Bible. Titus.

TT abbr. 1. Telegraphic transfer. 2. Teletypewriter. 3. Transit time. 4. Trust territory.

T-top (tē'töp') n. An automobile roof with removable panels.

TTY abbr. Teletypewriter.

Tu. abbr. Tuesday.

T.U. abbr. 1. Trade union. 2. Transmission unit.

Tu·a·mo·tu Archipelago (tōō'ə-mōō'ā-r'kə-pěl'ə-gō') An island group of French Polynesia in the southern Pacific Ocean east of Tahiti. Discovered by the Spanish in 1606, the islands were annexed by France in 1881.

Tuan (twän) n. Used in Malay as a form of respectful address for a man, equivalent to sir or mister. [Malay.]

Tua·reg (twä'rëg') n. pl. Tuareg or Tua·regs. A member of a Muslim, Berber-speaking people inhabiting the western and central Sahara and western Sahel of northwest Africa. [Arabic Tawāriq.]

tu·a·ta·ra (tōō'ə-tär'ə) n. A lizardlike reptile (Sphenodon punctatus) that is found only on certain islands off New Zealand and is the sole extant member of the Rhynchocephalia, an order that flourished during the Mesozoic Era. Also called sphenodon [Maori tuatàra : tua, back + tàra, spine.]

tub (tüb) n. 1. a. An open, flat-bottomed vessel, usually round and typically wider than it is deep, used for washing, packing, or storing. b. The amount that such a vessel can hold. c. The contents of such a vessel. 2. a. A bathtub. b. Informal. A bath taken in a bathtub. 3. Informal. A wide, clumsy, slow-moving boat. 4. a. A bucket used for conveying ore or coal up a mine shaft. b. A coal car used in a mine. — v. tubbed, tub·bing, tubs. — v. tr. 1. To pack or store in a tub. 2. To wash or bathe in a tub. — v. intr. To take a bath. [Middle English, from Middle Dutch, or Middle Low German.] —tub'ba-ble adj.

—tub'ber n.

tu·ba (tōō'bə, tyōō'-) n. Music. 1. A large, valved, brass wind instrument with a bass pitch. 2. A reed stop in an organ, having eight-foot pitch. [Italian, from Latin, trumpet; akin to tubus, tube.] —tu'ba-ist, tu'bist n.

tu·bal (tōō'bəl, tyōō'-) adj. Of, relating to, or occurring in a tube, such as the fallopian tube or the eustachian tube.

tubal ligation (tōō'bəl lī-gā'shən) n. A method of female sterilization in which the fallopian tubes are surgically tied.

tu·bate (tōō'bāt', tyōō'-) adj. Forming or having a tube.

tub·by (tüb'ē) adj. tub·bi·er, tub·bi·est. 1. Short and fat. 2. Having a dull sound; lacking resonance. —tub'bi-ness n.

tube (tōōb, tyōōb) n. 1. a. A hollow cylinder, especially one that conveys a fluid or functions as a passage. b. An organic structure having the shape or function of a tube; a duct: a bronchial tube. 2. A small, flexible cylindrical container sealed at one end and having a screw cap at the other, for pigments, toothpaste, or other pastelike substances. 3. Music. The cylindrical part of a wind instrument. 4. Electronics. a. An electron tube. b. A vacuum tube. 5. Botany. The lower, cylindrical part of a gamopetalous corolla or a gamosepalous calyx. 6. Chiefly British. A subway; an underground. 7. A tunnel. 8. An inner tube. 9. Slang. a. Television: What's on the tube? b. A television set. — v. tubed, tub-ing, tubes. — v. tr. 1. To provide with a tube; insert a tube in. 2. To place in or enclose in a tube. — v. intr. Informal. To float down a stream or river for recreation in an inner tube: went tubing on Sunday afternoon. — idiom. down the tubes (or down the tube). Slang. Into a state of failure or ruin: saw all her plans go down the tubes. [French, from Old French, from Latin tubus.]

tu·bec·to·my (tōō-bĕk'tə-mē, tyōō-) n. pl. tu·bec·to·mies. See salpingectomy.

tube foot (tōōb fōōt) n. One of the numerous external, fluid-filled muscular tubes of echinoderms, such as the starfish or sea urchin, serving as organs of locomotion, food handling, and respiration.

tube·less tire (tōōb'līs tīr, tyōōb'-) n. A pneumatic vehicular tire in which the air is held in the assembly of casing and rim without an inner tube.

tube·nose (tōōb'nōz', tyōōb'-) n. A small marine fish (Aulorhynchus flavidum) similar to the stickleback, ranging from southern California to Alaska.

tube pan (tōōb păn) n. A round pan with a hollow cylindrical or conical projection in the middle, used for baking or molding foods in the shape of a ring.

tu·ber (tōō'bər, tyōō'-) n. 1. Botany. A swollen, fleshy, usually underground stem, such as the potato, bearing buds from which new plant shoots arise.

2. Biology. A rounded projection or swelling; a tubercle. [Latin tūber, lump. See teuə- in Appendix.]

tu·ber·cle (tōō'bər-kəl, tyōō'-) n. 1. Pathology. A nodule or swelling, especially a mass of lymphocytes and epithelioid cells forming the characteristic lesion of tuberculosis. 2. A small, rounded prominence or process, such as a wartlike excrescence on the roots of some leguminous plants or a knoblike process in the skin or on a bone. [Latin tūberculum, diminutive of tūber, lump. See TUBER.]

tubercle bacillus (tōō'bər-kəl bə-sīl'əs) n. Abbr. t.b., T.B. A rod-shaped aerobic bacterium (Mycobacterium tuberculosis) that causes tuberculosis.

tu·ber·cu·lar (tōō-bûr'kyə-lər, tyōō-) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or covered with tubercles; tuberculate. 2. Of, relating to, or affected with tuberculosis. — n. A person having tuberculosis.

tu·ber·cu·late (tōō-bûr'kyə-līt, tyōō-) also tu·ber·cu·la·ted (-lā'tīd) adj.

1. Having or affected with tubercles. 2. Tubercular. —tu·ber'cu·late·ly adv.
—tu·ber'cu·la'tion n.

tu·ber·cu·lin (tōō-bûr'kyə-līn, tyōō-) n. A sterile liquid containing proteins extracted from cultures of tubercle bacilli and used in tests for tuberculosis.

[Latin tūberculum, tubercle; see TUBERCLE + -IN.]

tuberculin test (tōō-bûr'kyə-līn tĕst) n. Any of various tests used to determine past or present infection with the tubercle bacillus and based on hypersensitivity to tuberculin.

tu·ber·cu·loid (tōō-bûr'kyə-loīd', tyōō-) adj. 1. Resembling tuberculosis. 2. Resembling a tubercle.

tu·ber·cu·lo·sis (tōō-bûr'kyə-lō'sīs, tyōō-) n. Abbr. TB, T.B. 1. An infectious disease of human beings and animals caused by the tubercle bacillus and characterized by the formation of tubercles on the lungs and other tissues of the body, often developing long after the initial infection. 2. Tuberculosis of the lungs, characterized by the coughing up of mucus and sputum, fever, weight loss, and chest pain. [Latin tūberculum, tubercle; see TUBERCLE + -OSIS.]

tu·ber·cu·lous (tōō-bûr'kyə-ləs, tyōō-) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or having tuberculosis. 2. Of, affected with, or caused by tubercles. —tu·ber'cu·lous·ly adv.

tube·rose¹ (tōōb'rōz', tyōōb'-, tōō'bə-) n. A tuberous perennial Mexican herb (Polianthes tuberosa) having grasslike leaves and cultivated for its highly fragrant white flowers. [From New Latin tūberōsa, species name, from feminine of Latin tūberōsus, full of lumps, from tūber, lump. See TUBER.]

tu·ber·ose² (tōō'bə-rōs', tyōō'-) adj. Variant of tuberous.

tu·ber·os·i·ty (tōō'bə-rōs'ī-tē, tyōō'-) n. pl. tu·ber·os·i·ties. 1. The quality or condition of being tuberous. 2. A projection or protuberance, especially one at the end of a bone for the attachment of a muscle or tendon.

tu·ber·ous (tōō'bər-əs, tyōō'-) also tu·ber·ose (-bə-rōs') adj. 1. Producing or bearing tubers. 2. Being or resembling a tuber: a tuberous root.

tube·worm (tōōb' wūrm', tyōōb'-) n. Any of various annelids living within tubular cases that they secrete or glue together from grit.

tu·bic·o·lous (tōō-bīk'yə-ləs, tyōō-) adj. Inhabiting a tube or tubular structure: a tubicolous marine worm.

tu·bi·fex (tōō'bə-fēks', tyōō'-) n. pl. tubifex or tu·bi·fex·es. Any of various small, slender, reddish freshwater worms of the genus Tubifex, often used as food for tropical aquarium fish. [New Latin Tubifex, genus name : Latin tubus, tube + Latin -fex, maker; see dhē- in Appendix.]

tub·ing (tōō'bīng, tyōō'-) n. 1. a. Tubes considered as a group. b. A system of tubes. c. A piece or length of tube. 2. Tubular fabric, such as that used for making pillowcases. 3. Informal. The sport or recreation of floating down a stream or river in an inner tube.

Tü·bing·en (tōō'bīng-ən, tü'-) A city of southwest Germany on the Neckar River south of Stuttgart. Its university was founded in 1477. Population, 75,333.

Tub·man (tüb'mən), Harriet. 1820?-1913. American abolitionist. Born a slave on a Maryland plantation, she escaped to the North in 1849 and became the most renowned conductor on the Underground Railroad, leading more than 300 slaves to freedom.

Tub·man (tüb'mən), William Vacanarat Shadrach. 1895-1971. Liberian politician. As president of Liberia (1944-1971) he modernized the country and maintained a close relationship with the United States.

tu·bo·cu·ra·rine (tōō'bō-kōō-rä'rīn, -rēn', -kyōō, tyōō'-) n. 1. An alkaloid that is the active component of curare. 2. The chloride of this alkaloid, $C_{38}H_{44}Cl_2N_2O_6$, used as a muscle relaxant. [Latin tubus, tube (from the practice of shipping it in bamboo tubes) + curarine (CURARE + -INE²).]

tu·bo·plas·ty (tōō'bō-pläs'tē, tyōō'-) n. pl. tu·bo·plas·ties. Surgical repair of one or both fallopian tubes.

tub·thump (tüb'thūmp') v. intr. tub--thumped, tub--thump·ing, tub·thumps. Slang. To argue for or promote something vigorously: "is tub-thumping for a six-month limit on the legislative session" (David Nyhan). —tub'·thump'er n.

Tu·bu·a·i Islands (tōōb-wä'ē ī'lændz, tōō'bōō-ī') An island group of southern French Polynesia in the southern Pacific Ocean south of Tahiti. Visited by Capt. James Cook in 1769 and 1777, the islands were annexed by France between 1850 and 1889.

tu·bu·lar (tōō'byə-lər, tyōō'-) adj. 1. Of or relating to a tube. 2. Constituting or consisting of tubes or a tube. 3. Shaped like a tube. —tu'bu·lar'i·ty (-lär'ī-tē) n. —tu'bu·lar·ly adv.

tu·bu·late (tōō'byə-līt, -lāt', tyōō'-) also tu·bu·lat·ed (-lā'tīd) adj. 1. Formed into or resembling a tube; tubular. 2. Having a tube. [Latin tubulātus, from tubulus, diminutive of tubus, tube.] —tu'bu·la'tion n. —tu'bu·la'tor n.

tu·bule (tōō'byōōl, tyōō'-) n. A very small tube or tubular structure. [Latin tubulus, diminutive of tubus, tube.]

tu·bu·lif·er·ous (tōō'byə-lif'ər-əs, tyōō'-) adj. Having or consisting of tubules.

tu·bu·li·flo·rous (tōō'byə-lə-flōr'əs, -flōr'-, tyōō'-) adj. Having flowers or florets with tubular corollas.

tu·bu·lin (tōō'byə-līn, tyōō'-) n. A globular protein that is the basic structural constituent of microtubules.

tu·bu·lous (tōō'byə-ləs, tyōō'-) adj. 1. Shaped like a tube; tubular.

2. a. Composed of tubes. b. Having tubular parts. —tu'bu·lous·ly adv.

Tu·ca·na (tōō-kā'nə, -kā'-, tyōō-) n. A constellation in the polar region of the Southern Hemisphere near Indus and Hydrus, containing the smaller Magellanic Clouds. [Tupi tucana, toucan.]

Tuch·man (tŭk'mən), Barbara Wertheim. 1912-1989. American historian who won a Pulitzer Prize for The Guns of August (1962) and for Stilwell and the American Experience in China (1971).

tu·chun (tōō'chōōn', dōō'jŭn') n. pl. tu·chuns or tuchun. A Chinese provincial military governor. [Chinese (Mandarin) dū jūn : dū, to supervise + jūn, army.]

tuck¹ (tŭk) v. tucked, tuck·ing, tucks. — v. tr. 1. To make one fold or several folds in. 2. To gather up and fold, thrust, or turn in so as to secure or confine: She tucked her scarf into her blouse. 3. a. To put in a snug spot. b. To put in an out-of-the-way, snug place: a cabin that was tucked among the pines. c. To store in a safe spot; save: tuck away a bit of lace; tuck away millions. 4. a. To draw in; contract: He tucked his chin into his chest. b. Sports. To bring (a body part) into a tuck position. — v. intr. To make tucks. — n. 1. The act of tucking.

2. A flattened pleat or fold, especially a very narrow one stitched in place.

3. Nautical. The part of a ship's hull under the stern where the ends of the bottom planks come together. 4. Sports. a. A bodily position used in some sports, such as diving, in which the knees are bent, the thighs are drawn close to the chest, and the hands are clasped around the shins. b. A position in skiing in which the skier squats while holding the poles parallel to the ground and under the arms.

5. Chiefly British. Food, especially sweets and pastry. —phrasal verbs. tuck away. Informal. To consume (food) heartily. tuck in. To make (a child, for example) secure in bed for sleep, especially by tucking bedclothes into the bed. [Middle English tukken, possibly from Middle Low German, or Middle Dutch token, tucken.]

tuck² (tŭk) n. A beat or tap, especially on a drum. [From Middle English tukken, to beat a drum, from Old North French toquer, to strike, from Vulgar Latin toccare*.]

tuck³ (tŭk) n. Archaic. A slender sword; a rapier. [Perhaps from French dialectal étoc, from Old French estoc, of Germanic origin.]

tuck⁴ (tŭk) n. Energy; vigor. [Origin unknown.]

tuck-a-hoe (tŭk'ə-hō') n. 1. Any of various plants or plant parts used by certain Native American peoples as food, especially the edible root of certain arums or the sclerotium of certain fungi. 2. See arrow arum. [Of Virginia Algonquian origin.]

tuck-er¹ (tŭk'ər) n. 1. One that tucks, especially an attachment on a sewing machine for making tucks. 2. A piece of linen or frill of lace formerly worn by women around the neck and shoulders.

tuck-er² (tŭk'ər) v. tr. tuck-ered, tuck-er-ing, tuck-ers. Informal. To make weary; exhaust. [Perhaps from TUCK¹.]

Tuck-er (tŭk'ər), Benjamin Ricketson. 1854-1939. American anarchist whose own writings and translations of Proudhon and Bakunin influenced American radical thought before World War I.

Tuck-er (tŭk'ər), Richard. 1914?-1975. American tenor who performed with the New York Metropolitan Opera from 1945 to 1975.

Tuck-er (tŭk'ər), Sophie. 1884-1966. Russian-born American entertainer known for her flamboyant vaudeville performances and her signature tune, "Some of These Days."

tuck-er-bag (tŭk'ər-bāg') n. Australian. A bag for carrying food, used by a traveler in the bush or by a swagman. [From Australian English tucker, food, provisions, from TUCK¹.]

tuck-et (tŭk'ĭt) n. Music. A trumpet fanfare. [Probably from obsolete tuk, from Middle English, from tukken, to beat a drum. See TUCK².]

tuck-point (tŭk'point') v. tr. tuck--point-ed, tuck--point-ing, tuck--points. To point (grooved mortar joints) with a thin ridge of fine lime mortar or putty.

tuck-shop (tŭk'shŏp') n. Chiefly British. A shop where candy and other sweets are sold; a confectionery. [From British slang tuck, food, sweets, from TUCK¹.]

Tuc-son (tōō'sŏn') A city of southeast Arizona south-southeast of Phoenix. A Spanish mission was founded nearby in 1700, and the present city was first settled in 1775 as a walled presidio. It became part of the United States after the Gadsen Purchase (1853) and served as territorial capital from 1867 until 1877. Population, 405,390.

Tu-cu-mán (tōō'kə-män', -kōō-) See San Miguel de Tucumán.

-tude suff. Condition, state, or quality: exactitude. [French, from Old French, from Latin -tūdō, -tūdin-.]

Tu-dor¹ (tōō'dər, tyōō'-) English ruling dynasty (1485-1603), including Henry VII and his descendants Henry VIII, Edward VI, Mary I, and Elizabeth I.

Tu-dor² (tōō'dər, tyōō'-) adj. 1. Of or relating to the royal house of Tudor.

2. a. Of, relating to, or characteristic of the period of the Tudors. b. Of, relating to, or characteristic of an architectural style derived from this period, having exposed beams as a typical feature.

Tu-dor (tōō'dər, tyōō'-), Antony. 1909-1987. British-born American dancer and choreographer known for his psychological ballets, such as Undertow (1945) and The Leaves Are Fading (1975).

Tues-day (tōōz'dē, -dā', tyōōz'-) n. Abbr. T., Tu., Tue., Tues. The third day of the week. [Middle English Tuesdai, from Old English Tīwesdæg, Tiu's day : Tīwes, genitive of Tīw, Tiu; see TIU + dæg, day (translation of Latin diēs Mārtis, Mars' day); see DAY.]

tu-fa (tōō'fə, tyōō'-) n. 1. The calcareous and siliceous rock deposits of springs, lakes, or ground water. 2. See tuff. [Obsolete Italian, from Latin tōfus.]

—tu-fa'ceous (-fā'shəs) adj.

tuff (tŭf) n. A rock composed of compacted volcanic ash varying in size from fine sand to coarse gravel. Also called tufa [French tuf, from Old French, from Old Italian tufo, tufa. See TUFA.] —tuff-a'ceous (tŭ-fā'shəs) adj.

tuf-fet (tŭf'it) n. 1. A clump or tuft of grass. 2. A low seat, such as a stool. [Alteration of TUFT.]

tuft (tŭft) n. 1. A short cluster of elongated strands, as of yarn, hair, or grass, attached at the base or growing close together. 2. A dense clump, especially of trees or bushes. 3. A goatee. — v. tuft-ed, tuft-ing, tufts. — v. tr. 1. To furnish or ornament with tufts or a tuft. 2. To pass threads through the layers of (a quilt, mattress, or upholstery), securing the thread ends with a knot or button. — v. intr. 1. To separate or form into tufts. 2. To grow in a tuft. [Middle English, probably alteration of Old French tofe, from Late Latin tufa, helmet crest, and or of Germanic origin.] —tuft'er n. —tuft'y adj.

tuft-ed duck (tŭf'tid dŭk) n. An Old World duck (Aythya fuligula) having a short, plump body and a crest on its head, the male of which has mostly black plumage.

tufted titmouse (tŭf'tid tīt'mous') n. A bluish-gray titmouse (Parus bicolor) of the eastern and southern United States, having a crest on its head and brown flanks.

tug (tŭg) v. tugged, tug-ging, tugs. — v. tr. 1. To pull at vigorously; strain at. 2. To move by pulling with great effort or exertion; drag. 3. Nautical. To tow by tugboat. — v. intr. 1. To pull hard: tugged at her boots. See Synonyms at pull. 2. To toil or struggle; strain. 3. To vie; contend. — n. 1. A strong pull or pulling force: the tug of the sea. 2. A contest; a struggle: a tug between loyalty and desire. 3. a. Nautical. A tugboat. b. A land, air, or space vehicle that moves or tows other vehicles: an airplane tug. 4. A rope, chain, or strap used in hauling, especially a harness trace. [Middle English tuggen, from Old English tēon. See deuk- in Appendix.] —tug'ger n.

tug-boat (tŭg'bōt') n. Nautical. A small powerful boat designed for towing or pushing larger vessels. Also called towboat

Tu-ge-la Falls (tōō-gā'lə fōlz) A series of five waterfalls in the Tugela River, about 483 km (300 mi) long, of eastern South Africa. The falls have a total drop of 915 m (3,000 ft).

tug of war (tŭg ŭv wôr) n. pl. tugs of war. 1. Games. A contest of strength in which two teams tug on opposite ends of a rope, each trying to pull the other across a dividing line. 2. A struggle for supremacy: a political tug of war between those in favor of the new legislation and those against it.

tu-grik (tōō'grĭk) n. A basic unit of currency in Mongolia. See Table at currency. [Mongolian dughurik, wheel, tugrik.]

tu-i (tōō'ē) n. pl. tu-is. A honeyeater (Prothemadera novaeseelandiae) of New Zealand, having dark plumage with white feathers on the throat. Also called parson bird [Maori tūi.]

tuille (twēl) n. A steel plate used in medieval armor for protecting the thigh. [Middle English toile, from Old French teuille, tuille, from Latin tēgula, tile. See (s)teg- in Appendix.]

tu-i-tion (tōō-īsh'ən, tyōō-) n. 1. A fee for instruction, especially at a formal institution of learning. 2. Instruction; teaching. 3. Archaic. Guardianship. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: tuition payments; tuition assistance. [Middle English tuicion, protection, from Old French, from Latin tuitiō, tuitiōn-, from tuitus, past participle of tuērī, to protect.] —tu-i'tion-al, tu-i'tion-ar'y (-īsh'ə-nĕr'ē) adj.

Tu-la (tōō'lə) 1. A town of central Mexico north of Mexico City. Impressive Toltec ruins have been discovered on the site. Population, 10,720. 2. A city of western Russia south of Moscow. First mentioned in 1146, it was an important fortress in the 16th century and became an armament-manufacturing center in 1712. Population, 532,000.

Tu-lare (tōō-lār'ē, -lār') A city of south-central California southeast of Fresno in the San Joaquin Valley. It is a processing center. Population, 33,249.

tu-la-re-mi-a (tōō'lə-rĕ'mĕ-ə, tyōō'-) n. An infectious disease caused by the bacterium Francisella tularensis that chiefly affects rodents but can also be transmitted to human beings through the bite of various insects or contact with infected animals. In human beings, the disease is characterized by intermittent fever and swelling of the lymph nodes. Also called rabbit fever [New Latin, after Tulare, a county of south-central California.] —tu'la-re'mic adj.

tu-le (tōō'lē) n. 1. Any of several bulrushes of the genus Scirpus, growing in marshy lowlands of the southwest United States. 2. tu-les (tōō'lĕz). Northern California. Marshy or swampy land. Regional. Also called tule land [American Spanish, from Nahuatl tollin, reed.]

REGIONAL NOTE: Low, swampy land is tules or tule land in the parlance of northern California. When the Spanish colonized Mexico and Central America, they borrowed from the native inhabitants the Nahuatl word tollin, “bulrush.” The English-speaking settlers of the West in turn borrowed the Spanish word tule to refer to certain varieties of bulrushes native to California. Eventually the meaning of the word was extended to the marshy land where the bulrushes grew.

tu·lip (tōō’lĭp, tyōō’-) n. 1. Any of several bulbous plants of the genus Tulipa, native chiefly to Asia and widely cultivated for their showy, variously colored flowers. 2. The flower of any of these plants. [French tulipe, alteration of tulipan, from Ottoman Turkish tülbend, muslin, gauze.]

WORD HISTORY: Although we associate tulips with Holland and windmills, the history of the word takes us on an odyssey to the Middle East, where the tulip is associated with turbans and whence the flower was brought to Europe in the 16th century. The word tulip, which earlier in English appeared in such forms as tulipa or tulipant, comes to us by way of French tulipe and its obsolete form tulipan or by way of Modern Latin tulĭpa, from Ottoman Turkish tülbend, “muslin, gauze.” (Our word turban, first recorded in English in the 16th century, can also be traced to Ottoman Turkish tülbend.) The Turkish word for gauze, with which turbans can be wrapped, seems to have been used for the flower because a fully opened tulip was thought to resemble a turban.

tulip tree (tōō’lĭp trē) n. 1. A tall, deciduous, eastern North American tree (Liriodendron tulipifera) having large, tuliplike green and orange flowers, aromatic twigs, and yellowish, easily worked wood. Also called poplar 2. See African tulip tree.

tu·lip·wood (tōō’lĭp-wōōd’, tyōō’-) n. 1. The wood of the tulip tree. 2. The irregularly striped, ornamental wood of any of several related or similar trees.

Tul·la·ho·ma (tŭl’ə-hō’mə) A city of south-central Tennessee northwest of Chattanooga. It is a resort and processing center. Population, 16,761.

tulle (tōōl) n. A fine, often starched net of silk, rayon, or nylon, used especially for veils, tutus, or gowns. [French, after Tulle, a city of south-central France.]

tul·li·bee (tŭl’ə-bē’) n. A large, thick-backed cisco (Coregonus artedi or Leucichthys artedi) of the Great Lakes. [Canadian French toulibi, from Ojibwa dialectal *oto·lipi·.]

Tul·sa (tŭl’sə) A city of northeast Oklahoma on the Arkansas River northeast of Oklahoma City. A port and manufacturing center, it grew rapidly after the discovery of oil nearby in the early 20th century. Population, 367,302.

Tul-si Das (tōōl'sē dās'), 1543?-1623. Hindu poet whose Ramcaritmanas is considered one of the greatest works of Hindi literature.

tum·ble (tūm'bəl) v. tum·bled, tum·bling, tum·bles. — v. intr. 1. To perform acrobatic feats such as somersaults, rolls, or twists. 2. a. To fall or roll end over end: The kittens tumbled over each other. b. To spill or roll out in confusion or disorder: Schoolchildren tumbled out of the bus. c. To pitch headlong; fall: tumbled on the ice. d. To proceed haphazardly. 3. a. To topple, as from power or a high position; fall. b. To collapse: The walls came tumbling down. c. To drop: Prices tumbled. 4. To come upon accidentally; happen on: We tumbled on a first-rate restaurant. 5. Slang. To come to a sudden understanding; catch on: I finally tumbled to the reality that I was being cheated. — v. tr. 1. To cause to fall; bring down: a scandal that tumbled the government. 2. To put, spill, or toss haphazardly: tumbled the extra parts into a box. 3. To toss or whirl in a drum, tumbler, or tumbling box. — n. 1. An act of tumbling; a fall. 2. Confusion; disorder. [Middle English tumblen, frequentative of tumben, to dance about, from Old English tumbian.]

tum·ble·bug (tūm'bəl-büg') n. Any of various dung beetles, especially of the genera Canthon and Phanaeus, that roll up balls of fresh dung, inside which the female deposits her eggs and on which the larvae feed.

tum·ble·down (tūm'bəl-doun') adj. Being in such bad repair as to seem in danger of collapsing; very dilapidated or rickety: a tumbledown shack.

tum·ble·dry (tūm'bəl-drī') v. tr. intr. tum·ble·dried (-drīd'), tum·ble·dry·ing, tum·ble·dries (-drīz'). To make or become dry by rolling about in the heated rotating drum of a clothes dryer.

tum·ble·home (tūm'bəl-hōm') n. Nautical. The inward curve of a ship's topsides. [From TUMBLE, to slope inward (obsolete).]

tum·bler (tūm'blər) n. 1. One that tumbles, especially an acrobat or a gymnast. 2. a. A drinking glass, originally with a rounded bottom. b. A flat-bottomed glass having no handle, foot, or stem. c. The contents of such a drinking glass. 3. A toy made with a weighted, rounded base so that it can rock over and then right itself. 4. One of a breed of domestic pigeons characteristically tumbling or somersaulting in flight. 5. A piece in a gunlock that forces the hammer forward by action of the mainspring. 6. The part in a lock that releases the bolt when moved by a key. 7. a. The drum of a clothes dryer. b. A tumbling box. 8. a. A projecting piece on a revolving or rocking part in a mechanism that transmits motion to the part it engages. b. The rocking frame that moves a gear into place in a selective transmission, as in an automobile.

tumbleset (tūm'bəl-sēt') n. Lower Southern U.S. See somersault (n., sense 1). [Blend of TUMBLE, somerset (alteration of somersaut, variant of SOMERSAULT).]

REGIONAL NOTE: The Lower Southern word tumbleset for somersault combines tumble with -set, which at first glance seems not to have any relationship to -sault in somersault. However, -set is an old l-less variant of -sault (from Latin saltus, “a leap”) that has been an alternative pronunciation throughout the word’s history; hence, the variant somerset. Somer- is an alteration of Old French sobre-, from Latin supra, “over.” In the word tumbleset, as in a folk etymology, somer-, part of a compound word that no longer bears any meaning for the speakers, has been replaced by tumble, a word that makes more sense in the context.

tum·ble·weed (tŭm’bəl-wēd’) n. Any of various densely branched annual plants, such as amaranth and Russian thistle, that break off from the roots at the end of the growing season and are rolled about by the wind.

tum·bling (tŭm’blīŋ) n. Sports. Gymnastics, such as somersaults, rolls, and handsprings, performed without the use of specialized apparatus.

tumbling box (tŭm’blīŋ bŏks) n. A revolving drum in which objects are dried, reduced in size, polished, or cleaned. Also called tumbling barrel tum·brel or tum·bril (tŭm’brəl) n. 1. A two-wheeled cart, especially a farmer’s cart that can be tilted to dump a load. 2. A crude cart used to carry condemned prisoners to their place of execution, as during the French Revolution. [Middle English tumberell, from Old French tomberel, from tomber, to let fall, perhaps of Germanic origin.]

tu·me·fa·cient (tōō’mə-fā’shənt, tyōō’-) adj. Producing or tending to produce swelling or tumefaction. [Latin tumefaciēns, tumefacient- present participle of tumefacere, to tumefy : tumēre, to swell; see teuə- in Appendix + facere, to make; see dhē- in Appendix.]

tu·me·fac·tion (tōō’mə-fāk’shən, tyōō’-) n. 1. a. The act or process of puffing or swelling. b. A swollen condition. 2. A puffy or swollen part. [French tuméfaction, from Latin tumefacere, to tumefy. See TUMEFACIENT.] —tu’me·fac·tive (-tīv) adj.

tu·me·fy (tōō’mə-fī’, tyōō’-) v. intr. tr. tu·me·fied (-fid’), tu·me·fy·ing, tu·me·fies (-fīz’). To swell or cause to swell. [French tuméfier, Latin tumefacere. See TUMEFACCTION.]

tu·mes·cence (tōō-mēs’əns, tyōō-) n. 1. a. A swelling or an enlarging. b. A swollen condition. 2. A swollen part or organ.

tu·mes·cent (tōō-mēs’ənt, tyōō-) adj. 1. Somewhat tumid. 2. Becoming swollen; swelling. [Latin tumēscēns, tumēscēt- present participle of tumēscere, to begin to swell inchoative of tumēre, to swell. See teuə- in Appendix.]

tu·mid (tōō’mīd, tyōō’-) adj. 1. Swollen; distended. Used of a body part or organ. 2. Of a bulging shape; protuberant. 3. Overblown; bombastic: tumid political prose. [Latin tumidus, from tumēre, to swell. See teuə- in Appendix.] —tu·mid’i·ty, tu’mid·ness n. —tu’mid·ly adv.

tumm-ler (tōm/lər) n. 1. One, such as a social director or an entertainer, who encourages guest or audience participation. 2. One who incites others to action. [Yiddish tumler, from tumlen, to make a racket.]

tum-my (tŭm/ē) n. pl. tum-mies. Informal. The human stomach or belly. [Baby-talk alteration of STOMACH.]

tu-mor (tōō/mər, tyōō/-) n. 1. An abnormal growth of tissue resulting from uncontrolled, progressive multiplication of cells and serving no physiological function; a neoplasm. 2. A swollen part; a swelling. [Middle English tumour, from Latin tumor, from tumēre, to swell. See teuə- in Appendix.] —tu/mor-al, tu/mor-ous adj.

tu-mor-i-gen-e-sis (tōō/mər-ə-jĕn/ĭ-sĭs, tyōō/-) n. pl. tu-mor-i-gen-e-ses (-sēz'). Formation or production of tumors.

tu-mor-i-gen-ic (tōō/mər-ə-jĕn/ĭk, tyōō/-) adj. Capable of causing tumors. —tu/mor-i-gen-ic/i-ty (-jə-nĭs/ĭ-tē) n.

tumor necrosis factor (tōō/mər nə-krō/sĭs fāk/tər) n. A protein produced by macrophages in the presence of an endotoxin and shown experimentally to be capable of attacking and destroying cancerous tumors.

tump¹ (tŭmp) v. tumped, tump-ing, tumps. Chiefly Southern U.S. — v. tr. To overturn. Often used with over: You're about to tump that thing over. — v. intr. To fall over. Often used with over: Is that wheelbarrow going to tump over? [; akin to Probably akin to TUMBLE.]

REGIONAL NOTE: The verb tump, used almost invariably with over in the intransitive sense “to fall over” and the transitive sense “to overturn,” is in common use in the South. The editors of the Dictionary of American Regional English have collected evidence of its use in Arkansas, Texas, and Kentucky; it is also common in Alabama, Tennessee, and Georgia. This example supplied by DARE is typical: “When he brushed against the coffee table his Coke tumped over” (Little Rock, Arkansas, informant). But another citation, taken from Gregory Jaynes’s parody of detective fiction, “In New York State: Who Poisoned the Pudding?” in the June 17, 1985, issue of Time, indicates that tump may not be exclusively Southern: “At the end he tumps over into his rice pudding, poisoned. Whodunit?” As for its ultimate origin, tump is probably related to tumble as a separate development from the same Old English verb tumbian.

tump² (tŭmp) n. 1. A mound. 2. A clump of trees, shrubs, or grass. [Origin unknown.]

tump-line (tŭmp/lĭn') n. A strap slung across the forehead or the chest to support a load carried on the back. [tump (alteration of mattump, of Southern New England Algonquian origin) + LINE¹.]

tu·mu·lar (tōō'myə-lər, tyōō'-) adj. Relating to or having the shape of a tumulus.

tu·mu·li (tōō'myə-lī', tyōō'-) n. Plural of tumulus.

tu·mu·lose (tōō'myə-lōs', tyōō'-) also tu·mu·lous (-ləs) adj. Having many mounds or small hills. [Latin tumulōsus, from tumulus, mound. See TUMULUS.]

—tu'mu·los'i·ty (-lōs'ī-tē) n.

tu·mult (tōō'mült', tyōō'-) n. 1. The din and commotion of a great crowd.

2. a. A disorderly commotion or disturbance. b. A tempestuous uprising; a riot.

3. Agitation of the mind or emotions: "I spend much time in a tumult of anger and disbelief" (Scott Turow). [Middle English tumulte, from Latin tumultus.]

tu·mul·tu·ar·y (tōō-mül'chōō-ēr'ē, tyōō-) adj. Marked by haste, confusion, disorder, and irregularity. [Latin tumultuārius, from tumultus, commotion. See TUMULT.]

tu·mul·tu·ous (tōō-mül'chōō-əs, tyōō-) adj. 1. Characterized by tumult; noisy and disorderly: tumultuous applause. 2. Tending to cause tumult.

3. Confusedly or violently agitated. —tu·mul'tu·ous·ly adv.

—tu·mul'tu·ous·ness n.

tu·mu·lus (tōō'myə-ləs, tyōō'-) n. pl. tu·mu·li (-lī'). An ancient grave mound; a barrow. [Latin. See teuə- in Appendix.]

tun (tŭn) n. 1. A large cask for liquids, especially wine. 2. A measure of liquid capacity, especially one equivalent to approximately 252 gallons (954 liters).

[Middle English, from Old English tunne, possibly of Celtic origin.]

Tun. abbr. Tunisia; Tunisian.

tu·na¹ (tōō'nə, tyōō'-) n. pl. tuna or tu·nas. 1. a. Any of various often large scombroid marine food and game fishes of the genus Thunnus and related genera, many of which, including T. thynnus and the albacore, are commercially important sources of canned fish. Also called tunny b. Any of several related fishes, such as the bonito. 2. The edible flesh of tuna, often canned or processed. In this sense, also called tuna fish [American Spanish, from Spanish atún, from Arabic at-tūn, the tuna, from Latin thunnus. See TUNNY.]

tu·na² (tōō'nə, tyōō'-) n. 1. Any of several flat-jointed tropical American cacti of the genus Opuntia, which includes the prickly pears, especially O. tuna of Jamaica, having yellow flowers and edible red fruit. 2. The edible fruit of any of these cacti. Also called cactus pear [American Spanish, from Taino.]

tun·a·ble also tune·a·ble (tōō'nə-bəl, tyōō'-) adj. 1. That can be tuned: a tunable wind instrument; a tunable radio. 2. Archaic. Tuneful.

—tun'a·ble·ness n. —tun'a·bly adv.

tuna fish (tōō'nə fīsh) n. See tuna¹ (n., sense 2).

tun·dra (tŭn'drə) n. A treeless area between the icecap and the tree line of Arctic regions, having a permanently frozen subsoil and supporting low-growing vegetation such as lichens, mosses, and stunted shrubs. [Russian, from Sami tūndar, flat-topped hill.]

tune (tōōn, tyōōn) n. 1. Music. a. A melody, especially a simple and easily remembered one. b. A song. c. Correct pitch. d. The state of being properly adjusted for pitch: a piano out of tune. e. Agreement in pitch: play in tune with the piano. f. Obsolete. A musical tone. 2. a. Concord or agreement; harmony: in tune with the times. b. Archaic. Frame of mind; disposition. 3. Electronics. Adjustment of a receiver or circuit for maximum response to a given signal or frequency. — v. tuned, tun-ing, tunes. — v. tr. 1. a. Music. To put into proper pitch: tuned the violin. b. Archaic. To utter musically; sing. 2. To adopt or adjust, especially in order to bring into harmony. 3. Electronics. a. To adjust (a receiver) to a desired frequency. b. To adjust (a circuit) so as to make it resonant with a given input signal. 4. To adjust (an engine, for example) for maximum usability or performance. — v. intr. To become attuned. — phrasal verbs.
tune in. 1. Electronics. To adjust a receiver to receive signals at a particular frequency or a particular program. 2. Slang. To make or become aware or responsive: “Nobody tunes in to what anybody else is saying” (Bruce Allen). tune out. 3. Electronics. To adjust a receiver so as not to receive a particular signal. 4. Slang. a. To disassociate oneself from one’s environment: “The average reader, used to seeing the world in three-dimensional color, tunes out” (Carlin Romano). b. To become unresponsive to; ignore: tuned out the children’s screaming. 5. Slang. a. To disassociate oneself from one’s environment: “The average reader, used to seeing the world in three-dimensional color, tunes out” (Carlin Romano). b. To become unresponsive to; ignore: tuned out the children’s screaming. tune up. 6. Music. To adjust an instrument to a desired pitch or key. 7. To adjust a machine so as to put it into proper condition. 8. To prepare (oneself) for a specified activity. — idiom. to the tune of. To the sum or extent of: produced profits to the tune of about $20 million. [Middle English, variant of tone, tone. See TONE.]

tune-a-ble (tōōn’nə-bəl, tyōōn’-) adj. Variant of tunable.

tune-ful (tōōn’fəl, tyōōn’-) adj. 1. Full of tune; melodious. 2. Producing musical sounds. — tune/ful-ly adv. — tune/ful-ness n.

tune-less (tōōn’līs, tyōōn’-) adj. 1. Deficient in melody; not tuneful.

2. Producing no music; silent. — tune/less-ly adv. — tune/less-ness n.

tun-er (tōōn’nər, tyōōn’-) n. 1. One that tunes: a piano tuner. 2. A device for tuning, especially an electronic circuit or device used to select signals at a specific radio frequency for amplification and conversion to sound.

tune-smith (tōōn’smith’, tyōōn’-) n. Music. One who composes melodies, especially for popular songs.

tune-up (tōōn’ŭp’, tyōōn’-) n. 1. An adjustment, as of a motor or an engine, made to improve working order or efficiency. 2. An engine warm-up.

tung oil (tũng oil) n. A yellow or brownish oil extracted from the seeds of the tung tree and used as a drying agent in varnishes and paints and for waterproofing. Also called Chinawood oil tung-oil tree (tũng'oil' trē) n. The tung tree.

tung-state (tũng'stāt') n. A salt of tungstic acid.

tung-sten (tũng'stən) n. Symbol W A hard, brittle, corrosion-resistant, gray to white metallic element extracted from wolframite, scheelite, and other minerals, having the highest melting point and lowest vapor pressure of any metal. Tungsten and its alloys are used in high-temperature structural materials; in electrical elements, notably lamp filaments; and in instruments requiring thermally compatible glass-to-metal seals. Atomic number 74; atomic weight 183.85; melting point 3,410°C; boiling point 5,900°C; specific gravity 19.3 (20°C); valence 2, 3, 4, 5, 6. Also called wolfram [Swedish : tung, heavy (from Old Norse thungr) + sten, stone (from Old Norse steinn); see stei- in Appendix.] —tung-sten'ic (-stē-n'ik) adj.

tungsten carbide (tũng'stən kär'bīd') n. An extremely hard, fine gray powder whose composition is WC, used in tools, dies, wear-resistant machine parts, and abrasives.

tungsten lamp (tũng'stən lămp) n. An incandescent electric lamp with a tungsten filament.

tungsten steel (tũng'stən stēl) n. A very hard, heat-resistant steel containing tungsten.

tung-stic (tũng'stik) adj. Of, relating to, or containing tungsten, especially with valence 6.

tungstic acid (tũng'stik äs'id) n. A yellow powder, H₂WO₄, used in textiles and plastics.

tung-stite (tũng'stīt') n. A yellow or yellowish-green mineral, essentially WO₃, often occurring with tungsten ores.

tung tree (tũng trē) n. Any of several eastern Asian trees of the genus Aleurites, especially A. montana and A. fordii, cultivated for their seeds that yield a commercially valuable drying oil. [Chinese (Mandarin) tóng.]

Tun-gus (tõng-gõoz', tũn-) n. pl. Tungus or Tun-gus-es. See Evenki. [Russian, from East Turkic tunguz, wild pig, boar, from Old Turkic tonguz.]

Tun-gus-ic (tõng-gõo'zik, tũn-) n. A subfamily of the Altaic language family spoken in eastern Siberia and northern Manchuria that includes Tungus and Manchu. Also called Manchu-Tungus — adj. Of or relating to Tungusic or its speakers.

Tun-gus-ka (tõng-gõo'skə, tõn-) The name of three rivers of central Russia. The Upper Tunguska is the lower course of the Angara River. The Lower Tunguska flows about 3,218 km (2,000 mi) north and west to the Yenisei River. The tu·nic (tōō'nik, tyōō'-) n. 1. a. A loose-fitting garment, sleeved or sleeveless, extending to the knees and worn by men and women especially in ancient Greece and Rome. b. A medieval surcoat. 2. a. A long, plain, close-fitting military jacket, usually with a stiff high collar. b. A long, plain, sleeved or sleeveless blouse. c. A short pleated and belted dress worn by women for some sports. 3. Anatomy. A coat or layer enveloping an organ or a part. 4. Botany. A loose, membranous outer covering of a bulb or corm, as of the onion, tulip, or crocus. 5. See tunicle. [Middle English tunik, from Old French tunique, from Latin tunica, probably of Semitic origin.]

Stony Tunguska, about 1,609 km (1,000 mi) long, flows generally west-northwest to the Yenisei.

tu·ni·ca (tōō'nī-kə, tyōō'-) n. pl. tu·ni·cae (-kē', -sē'). An enclosing membrane or layer of tissue. [Latin, tunic. See TUNIC.]

tu·ni·cate (tōō'nī-kīt, -kāt', tyōō'-) n. Any of various chordate marine animals of the subphylum Tunicata or Urochordata having a cylindrical or globular body enclosed in a tough outer covering and including the sea squirts and salps. — adj. 1. Of or relating to the tunicates. 2. Anatomy. Having a tunic. 3. Botany. Having a tunic, as the bulb of an onion. [Latin tunicātus, past participle of tunicāre, to clothe with a tunic, from tunica, tunic. See TUNIC.]

tu·ni·cle (tōō'nī-kəl, tyōō'-) n. A sleeved outer vestment reaching to the knees, worn over the alb by a subdeacon or sometimes under the dalmatic by a bishop or cardinal. Also called tunic [Middle English, from Latin tunicula, diminutive of tunica, tunic. See TUNIC.]

tun·ing fork (tōō'nīng fôrĕk, tyōō'-) n. A small two-pronged metal device that when struck produces a sound of fixed pitch that is used as a reference, as in tuning musical instruments.

Tu·nis (tōō'nīs, tyōō'-) 1. A former Barbary state on the northern coast of Africa south and west of the ancient city of Carthage. It was conquered by the Turks in 1575 and later became a French protectorate (1881). 2. The capital and largest city of Tunisia, in the northern part of the country on the Gulf of Tunis, an inlet of the Mediterranean Sea. It occupies a site near the ruins of ancient Carthage. Population, 550,404.

Tu·ni·sia (tōō-nē'zhə, -shə, -nīzh'ə, -nīsh'ə, tyōō-) Abbr. Tun. A country of northern Africa bordering on the Mediterranean Sea. The region was settled in the 12th century B.C. by Phoenicians, was later controlled by Romans, Carthaginians, and Turks, among others, and became a French protectorate in 1881. Full independence was achieved in 1956. Tunis is the capital and the largest city. Population, 5,588,209.

Tu·ni·sian (tōō-nē'zhən, -shən, -nīzh'ən, -nīsh'-, tyōō-) adj. Abbr. Tun. Of or relating to Tunisia or Tunis or their inhabitants. — n. A native or inhabitant of Tunisia or Tunis.

tun·nel (tŭn'əl) n. 1. An underground or underwater passage. 2. A passage through or under a barrier. 3. Obsolete. The main flue on a chimney. — v. tun·neled or tun·nelled, tun·nel·ing or tun·nel·ling, tun·nels or tun·nels. — v. tr. 1. To make a tunnel through or under. 2. To produce, shape, or dig in the form of a tunnel. — v. intr. To make a tunnel. [Middle English tonel, tubular net, from Old French tonnelle, diminutive of tonne, tun, possibly of Celtic origin.] — tun'nel·er, tun'nel·ler n.

tunnel disease (tŭn'əl dī-zēz') n. See ancyllostomiasis.

tunnel vision (tŭn'əl vīzh'ən) n. 1. Vision in which the visual field is severely constricted, as from within a tunnel looking out. 2. An extremely narrow point of view; narrow-mindedness.

Tun·ney (tŭn'ē), James Joseph. Known as “Gene.” 1898-1978. American prizefighter who won the world heavyweight championship in 1926 by defeating Jack Dempsey, defeated him again in 1927, and retired as champion in 1928.

tun·ny (tŭn'ē) n. pl. tunny or tun·nies. See tuna¹ (n., sense 1a). [Italian tonno, or French thon both from Old Provençal ton, from Latin thynnus, from Greek thunnos.]

Tu·ol·um·ne (tōō-əl'ə-mē) A river, about 249 km (155 mi) long, of central California flowing generally westward to the San Joaquin River.

tup (tŭp) n. 1. Chiefly British. A male sheep; a ram. 2. A heavy metal body, especially the head of a power hammer. — v. tupped, tup·ping, tups. — v. tr. To copulate with (a ewe). Used of a ram. — v. intr. To copulate with a ewe. [Middle English tupe.]

tu·pe·lo (tōō'pə-lō', tyōō'-) n. pl. tu·pe·los. 1. Any of several trees of the genus Nyssa, especially N. aquatica, of the southeast United States, having soft, light wood. 2. The wood of this tree. [Probably Creek 'topilwa : ító, tree + opilwa, swamp.]

Tu·pe·lo (tōō'pə-lō', tyōō'-) A city of northeast Mississippi north-northwest of Columbus. It was the site of a Civil War battle (July 14, 1864) in which Union forces defeated the Confederate troops led by Gen. Nathan B. Forrest. Population, 30,685.

Tu·pi (tōō'pē, tōō-pē') n. pl. Tupi or Tu·pis. 1. A member of any of a group of South American Indian peoples living along the coast of Brazil, in the Amazon River valley, and in Paraguay. 2. The Tupian language of the Tupi.

Tu·pi·an (tōō'pē-ən, tōō-pē'-) n. 1. A subdivision of Tupi-Guarani that includes Tupi. 2. A member of a Tupian-speaking people. — adj. Of or relating to Tupian or to a Tupian-speaking people.

Tu·pi·Gua·ra·ni (tōō-pē'gwär-ə-nē', tōō'pē-) n. A language family widely spread throughout the Amazon River valley, coastal Brazil, and northeast South America. — Tu·pi'-Gua·ra·ni', Tu·pi'-Gua·ra·ni'an adj.

tup·pence (tŭp'əns) n. Variant of twopence.

tup·pen·ny (tŭp'nē) Chiefly British. adj. Variant of twopenny.

Tup·per (tŭp'ər), Sir Charles. 1821-1915. Canadian politician who helped establish Nova Scotia as a province of Canada (1867) and served as prime minister (1896).

Tu·pun·ga·to (tōō'pōōng-gä'tō) A mountain, 6,804.6 m (22,310 ft) high, in the Andes on the Chile-Argentina border east of Santiago, Chile.

tuque (tōōk, tyōōk) n. A knitted woolen cap in the form of a cylindrical bag often with tapered ends that is worn with one end tucked into the other. [Canadian French, from French toque, toque. See TOQUE.]

tu quo·que (tōō kwō'kwē, -kwā, tyōō) n. A retort accusing an accuser of a similar offense or similar behavior. [Latin tū quoque, you also : tū, you + quoque, also.]

Tur. abbr. Turkey; Turkish.

tu·ra·co (tōōr'ə-kō') n. Variant of touraco.

Tu·ra·ni·an (tōō-rā'nē-ən, -rā'-, tyōō-) adj. Of or relating to the Ural-Altai languages or to the peoples who speak them. — n. 1. See Ural-Altai. 2. A member of any of the peoples who speak languages of the Ural-Altai group. [From Persian Tūrān, Turkistan.]

tur·ban (tŭr'bən) n. 1. A traditionally Muslim headdress consisting of a long scarf of linen, cotton, or silk that is wound around a small cap or directly around the head. 2. A woman's close-fitting hat that consists of material wound around a small inner cap. [French turbant, from Italian turbante, from Ottoman Turkish tülbend, muslin, gauze.]

tur·ba·ry (tŭr'bə-rē) n. pl. tur·ba·ries. A place where peat can be dug; a peat bog. [Middle English turbarie, from Anglo-Norman turberie, from Medieval Latin turbāria, from turba, turf, of Germanic origin.]

tur·bel·lar·i·an (tŭr'bə-lār'ē-ən) n. Any of various free-living chiefly aquatic ciliate flatworms of the class Turbellaria, which includes the common planarians of the genus Dugesia. — adj. Of or belonging to the Turbellaria. [From New Latin Turbellāria, class name, from Latin turbella, bustle, diminutive of turba, turmoil (from the motion of their cilia in the water). See TURBID.]

tur·bid (tŭr'bīd) adj. 1. Having sediment or foreign particles stirred up or suspended; muddy: turbid water. 2. Heavy, dark, or dense, as smoke or fog. 3. In a state of turmoil; muddled: turbid feelings. [Latin turbidus, disordered, from turba, turmoil, probably from Greek turbē.] —tur'bid·ly adv. —tur'bid·ness, tur·bid'i·ty n.

tur·bi·dim·e·ter (tŭr'bī-dīm'ī-tər) n. An instrument for measuring the loss in intensity of a light beam through a solution that contains suspended particulate matter. —tur'bi·di·met'ric (-də-mēt'rik) adj. —tur'bi·di·met'ri·cal·ly adv. —tur'bi·dim'e·try n.

tur·bi·nal (tûr'bə-nəl) adj. Having the shape of a cone resting on its apex. — n. Anatomy. A turbinate bone. [From Latin turbō, turbin-, spinning top. See TURBINE.]

tur·bi·nate (tûr'bə-nīt, -nāt') also tur·bi·nat·ed (-nā'tīd) adj. 1. Shaped like a top. 2. Spinning like a top. 3. Zoology. Spiral and decreasing sharply in diameter from base to apex. Used especially of shells. 4. Anatomy. Of, relating to, or designating a small curved bone that extends horizontally along the lateral wall of the nasal passage in higher vertebrates. [Latin turbinātus, from turbō, turbin-, spinning top. See TURBINE.]

tur·bi·na·tion (tûr'bə-nā'shən) n. A turbinate formation, as a shell or bone.

tur·bine (tûr'bīn, -bīn') n. Any of various machines in which the kinetic energy of a moving fluid is converted to mechanical power by the impulse or reaction of the fluid with a series of buckets, paddles, or blades arrayed about the circumference of a wheel or cylinder. [French, from Latin turbō, turbin-, spinning top, perhaps from Greek turbē, turmoil.]

tur·bit (tûr'bīt) n. Any of a breed of domestic pigeons having a small crested head and a ruffled breast. [Origin unknown.]

turbo- pref. 1. Turbine: turbocharger. 2. Driven by a turbine: turbojet. [From TURBINE.]

tur·bo·charg·er (tûr'bō-chär'jər) n. See turbosupercharger.
—tur'bo·charg·ed' adj.

tur·bo·fan (tûr'bō-fän') n. 1. A turbojet engine in which a fan supplements the total thrust by forcing air directly into the hot turbine exhaust. 2. An aircraft in which a turbofan is used.

tur·bo·jet (tûr'bō-jět') n. 1. A jet engine having a turbine-driven compressor and developing thrust from the exhaust of hot gases. 2. An aircraft in which a turbojet is used.

tur·bo·prop (tûr'bō-pröp') n. 1. A turbojet engine used to drive an external propeller. 2. An aircraft in which a turboprop is used. Also called propjet tur·bo·ram·jet (tûr'bō-räm'jět') n. 1. A turbojet engine that can be operated as a ramjet. 2. An aircraft in which a turboramjet is used.

tur·bo·su·per·charg·er (tûr'bō-sōō'pər-chär'jər) n. A supercharger that uses an exhaust-driven turbine to maintain air-intake pressure especially in high-altitude aircraft. Also called turbocharger —tur'bo·su·per·charg·ed' adj.

tur·bot (tûr'bət) n. pl. turbot or tur·bots. 1. A European flatfish, Scophthalmus maximus, that has a brown, knobby upper side and is prized as food. 2. Any of various flatfishes similar or related to this fish. [Middle English turbut, from Old French tourbout, probably of Scandinavian origin; akin to Old Swedish törnbut: törn, thorn + but, flatfish; see bhau- in Appendix.]

tur·bu·lence (tûr'byə-ləns) n. 1. The state or quality of being turbulent: times of turbulence and confusion. 2. Physics. Turbulent flow. 3. An eddying motion of the atmosphere that interrupts the flow of wind.

tur·bu·lent (tûr'byə-lənt) adj. 1. Violently agitated or disturbed; tumultuous: turbulent rapids. 2. Having a chaotic or restless character or tendency: a turbulent period in history. 3. Causing unrest or disturbance; unruly: turbulent, revolutionary undercurrents. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin turbulentus, from turba, turmoil. See TURBID.] —tur·bu·lent·ly adv.

turbulent flow (tûr'byə-lənt flō) n. Physics. The motion of a fluid having local velocities and pressures that fluctuate randomly.

Tur·co·man (tûr'kə-mən) n. & adj. Variant of Turkmen.

turd (tûrd) n. Vulgar Slang. 1. A piece of excrement. 2. A person regarded as contemptible. [Middle English, from Old English tord. See der- in Appendix.]

tu·reen (tōō-rēn', tyōō-) n. A broad, deep, usually covered dish used for serving foods such as soups or stews. [French terrine, from Old French, from feminine of terrin, earthen, from Vulgar Latin terrīnus*, from Latin terra, earth. See ters- in Appendix.]

Tu·renne (tōō-rēn', tü-), Vicomte de Title of Henri de La Tour d'Auvergne. 1611-1675. French military leader noted for his campaigns in France and Italy (1635-1642) during the Thirty Years' War and for his victory in the Battle of the Dunes (1658).

turf (tûrf) n. pl. turfs also turves (tûrvz). 1. a. A surface layer of earth containing a dense growth of grass and its matted roots; sod. b. An artificial substitute for such a grassy layer, as on a playing field. 2. A piece cut from a layer of earth or sod. 3. A piece of peat that is burned for use as fuel. 4. Slang. a. The range of the authority or influence of a person, group, or thing; a bailiwick: "a bureaucracy like any other, chiefly concerned with turf, promotions, the budget, and protecting the retirement system" (Harper's). b. A geographical area; a territory. c. The area claimed by a gang, as of youths, as its personal territory. 5. Sports. a. A racetrack. b. The sport or business of racing horses. — v. tr. turfed, turf-ing, turfs. 1. To spread with turf: turfed the front yard. 2. Chiefly British. To discard or eject. 3. Slang. To kill: "These guys can't... make sure nobody gets turfed" (Scott Turow). [Middle English, from Old English.] —turf'y adj.

Tur·ge·nev (tōōr-gān'yəf, -gēn'-, tōōr-gyě'nyĭf), Ivan Sergeevich. 1818-1883. Russian writer whose works include the collection of stories A Sportsman's Sketches (1852), plays, such as A Month in the Country (1850), and novels, most notably Fathers and Sons (1862).

tur·ges·cence (tûr-jēs'əns) n. 1. a. The condition of being swollen. b. The process of swelling. 2. Pomposity; self-importance. [From Latin turgēscere, to begin to swell, inchoative of turgēre, to be swollen.] —tur·ges'cent adj.

tur-gid (tûr'jid) adj. 1. Excessively ornate or complex in style or language; grandiloquent: turgid prose. 2. Swollen or distended, as from a fluid; bloated: a turgid bladder; turgid veins. [Latin turgidus, from turgere, to be swollen.]

—tur-gid/i-ty, tur-gid-ness n. —tur-gid-ly adv.

tur-gor (tûr'gær, -gôr') n. 1. The state of being turgid. 2. Biology. The normal fullness or tension produced by the fluid content of blood vessels, capillaries, and plant or animal cells. [Late Latin, from Latin turgere, to be swollen.]

Tur-got (töör-gō', tür-), Anne Robert Jacques. 1727-1781. French economist. Appointed controller general under Louis XVI (1774), he was dismissed (1776) after proposing reforms that were unpopular with the aristocracy.

Tu-rin (töör'in, työör'-) also To-ri-no (tô-rē'nô) A city of northwest Italy on the Po River west-southwest of Milan. An important Roman town, it was later a Lombard duchy and the capital of the kingdom of Sardinia (1720-1861). It was also the first capital of the new kingdom of Italy. Population, 1,103,520.

tu-ri-on (töör'ē-ön', työör'-) n. A thick, fleshy, young shoot or sucker, such as an emerging stem of asparagus. [Latin turiō, turiōn-.]

Turk (tûrk) n. 1. A native or inhabitant of Turkey. 2. A member of the principal ethnic group of modern-day Turkey or, formerly, of the Ottoman Empire. 3. A member of any of the Turkic-speaking peoples. 4. A Muslim. [Middle English, from Old French Turc, from Turkish Türk, from Old Turkic türk, strong.]

Turk. abbr. Turkey; Turkish.

Tur-ka-na (tær-kän'ə, töör-kä'nə), Lake. Also, Lake. Ru-dolf (rōō'dölf'). A lake of northwest Kenya in the Great Rift Valley bordering on Ethiopia.

Tur-ke-stan (tûr'kī-stän', -stän') See Turkistan.

tur-key (tûr'kē) n. pl. tur-keys. 1. a. A large North American bird (Meleagris gallopavo) that has brownish plumage and a bare, wattled head and neck and is widely domesticated for food. b. A related bird (Agriocharis ocellata) of Mexico and Central America, brilliantly colored and having eyelike spots on its tail. 2. Slang. a. A person considered inept or undesirable. b. A failure, especially a failed theatrical production or movie. 3. Sports. Three consecutive strikes in bowling. —idiom. talk turkey. Informal. To speak frankly and get down to the basic facts of a matter. [After Turkey, from a confusion with the guinea fowl, once believed to have originated in Turkish territory.]

Tur-key (tûr'kē) Abbr. Tur., Turk. A country of southwest Asia and southeast Europe between the Mediterranean and the Black seas. One of the oldest inhabited regions in the world, Turkey was the center of the Ottoman Empire for more than 600 years. Its modern history dates to the rise of the Young Turks (after 1908) and the collapse of the empire in 1918. Under the leadership of Kemal Atatürk, a republic was proclaimed in 1923. Ankara is the capital and Istanbul the largest city. Population, 44,736,957.

turkey buzzard (tûr'kē büz'ərd) n. See turkey vulture.

turkey cock (tûr'kē kők) n. 1. A male turkey. 2. A strutting, conceited person.

Turkey red (tûr'kē rěd) n. Color. A moderate red.

turkey trot (tûr'kē tröt) n. A ragtime dance characterized by a springy walk with the feet well apart and a swinging up-and-down movement of the shoulders.

turkey vulture (tûr'kē vül'chər) n. A New World vulture (Cathartes aura) having dark plumage and a bare red head and neck similar to that of the turkey. Also called turkey buzzard

Tur·ki (tûr'kē) adj. Of or relating to the Turkic language subfamily, especially the eastern Turkic languages, or their speakers. — n. pl. Turki or Tur·kis. 1. The Turkic language subfamily, especially the eastern Turkic languages. 2. A member of a Turki-speaking people. [Persian turkī, from Turk, Turk, from Turkish Türk. See TURK.]

Turk·ic (tûr'kĭk) n. A subfamily of the Altaic language family that includes Turkish. — adj. 1. Of or relating to Turkic or the peoples who speak Turkic. 2. Turkish.

Turk·ish (tûr'kĭsh) adj. Abbr. Tur., Turk. Of or relating to Turkey or its peoples, languages, or cultures. — n. Abbr. Tur., Turk. Ottoman Turkish.

Turkish bath (tûr'kĭsh bāth) n. 1. a. A steam bath that induces heavy perspiration in the bather and is followed by a shower and massage. b. An establishment where facilities are available for Turkish baths. 2. An extremely hot place.

Turkish coffee (tûr'kĭsh kô'fē) n. A sweetened brew of pulverized coffee.

Turkish delight (tûr'kĭsh dĭ-lĭt') n. A candy usually consisting of jellylike cubes covered with powdered sugar.

Turkish Empire (tûr'kĭsh ěm'pĭr') See Ottoman Empire.

Turkish towel (tûr'kĭsh tou'əl) n. A thick towel with a nap of uncut pile.

Turk·ism (tûr'kĭz'əm) n. The culture, religion, or social system of the Turks.

Tur·ki·stan also Tur·ke·stan (tûr'kĭ-stān', -stān') A historical region of west-central Asia extending east from the Caspian Sea to the border of China and south from the Aral Sea into Afghanistan. It has long been a crossroads for trade and conquest between East and West.

Turk·men (tûrk'měn, -mən) also Tur·ko·man or Tur·co·man (tûr'kə-mən) n. pl. Turkmen or Turk·mens also Tur·ko·mans or Tur·co·mans. 1. A member of a traditionally nomadic Turkic people inhabiting Turkmenistan and neighboring areas in Iran and Afghanistan. 2. The Turkic language of the Turkmen. — adj. Of or relating to the Turkmen or their language or culture. [Medieval Latin Turcomannus, from Persian Turkmān, from turkmān, like a Turk, from Turk, Turk. See TURKI.]

Turk·men·i·stan (tûrk'měn-ĭ-stān', -stān') A region and republic of west-central Asia east of the Caspian Sea. Inhabited by Turkic-speaking peoples since the tenth century, it was annexed by Russia in 1881 and was a constituent republic of the U.S.S.R. from 1925 to 1991. Ashkhabad is the capital. Population, 3,189,000.

Turks and Cai-cos Islands (tûrks ənd kă'kəs ī'ləndz, kī'kōs) Two island groups of the British West Indies in the Atlantic Ocean in the southeast part of the Bahama Islands. The islands were a dependency of Jamaica after 1848 and became a crown colony in 1962.

Turk's-cap lily (tûrks'kăp' lī'ē) n. 1. Either of two North American lilies, Lilium michauxii or L. superbum, having orange-red, spotted flowers with a reflexed perianth. 2. See martagon.

Turk's-head (tûrks'hĕd') n. A turban-shaped knot made by winding a smaller rope around a larger one.

Tur-ku (tōōr'kōō') A city of southwest Finland on the Baltic Sea west of Helsinki. Settled in the early 13th century, it was the capital of Finland until 1812. Population, 162,282.

Tur-lock (tûr'lŏk') A city of central California southeast of Modesto. It is the center of an irrigated farming region. Population, 42,198.

tur-ma-line (tōōr'mə-līn, -lēn') n. Variant of tourmaline.

tur-mer-ic (tûr'mər-īk) n. 1. A widely cultivated tropical plant (Curcuma domestica) of India, having yellow flowers and an aromatic, somewhat fleshy rhizome. 2. The powdered rhizome of this plant, used as a condiment and a yellow dye. 3. Any of several other plants having similar rhizomes. [Alteration of Middle English termeryte, from Old French terre-merite, saffron, from Medieval Latin terra merita: Latin terra, earth; see ters- in Appendix + Latin merita, feminine past participle of merĕre, to deserve; see (s)mer-² in Appendix.]

turmeric paper (tûr'mər-īk pā'pər) n. Paper saturated with turmeric and used to detect the presence of alkalis, which turn the paper brown, or boric acid, which turns it red-brown.

tur-moil (tûr'moil') n. A state of extreme confusion or agitation; commotion or tumult: a country in turmoil over labor strikes. [Origin unknown.]

turn (tûrn) v. turned, turn-ing, turns. — v. tr. 1. To cause to move around an axis or a center; cause to rotate or revolve. 2. To cause to move around in order to achieve a result, such as opening, closing, tightening, or loosening: turn the key; turn a screw. 3. To alter or control the functioning of (a mechanical device, for example) by the use of a rotating or similar movement: Please turn the iron to a hotter setting. 4. To perform or accomplish by rotating or revolving: turn a somersault. 5. a. To change the position of so that the underside becomes the upper side: turn the steak; turn a page. b. To spade or plow (soil) to bring the undersoil to the surface. c. To reverse and resew the material of (a collar, for example). 6. To revolve in the mind; meditate on; ponder. 7. a. To give a rounded form to (wood, for example) by rotating against a cutting tool. b. To give a rounded shape to (clay, for example) by rotating and shaping with the hands or tools. c. To give a rounded form to: turn a heel in knitting a sock. d. To give distinctive, artistic, or graceful form to: “They know precisely how to turn a dramatic line or phrase that is guaranteed to make the evening news” (William Safire). 8. a. To change the position of by traversing an arc of a circle; pivot: turned his chair toward the speaker. b. To cause (a scale) to move up or down so as to register weight: Even a feather will turn a delicate scale. 9. a. To fold, bend, or twist (something). b. To change the position or disposition of by folding, bending, or twisting: Turn the design right side up on all your jacket buttons. Turn the hat inside out. c. To make a bend or curve in: He could turn a bar of steel. d. To blunt or dull (the edge of a cutting instrument). e. To injure by twisting: turn an ankle. f. To upset or make nauseated: That story turns my stomach. 10. To change the direction or course of: turn the car to the left. 11. a. To divert or deflect: turn a stampede. b. To reverse the course of; cause to retreat: “Then turn your forces from this paltry siege/And stir them up against a mightier task” (Shakespeare). 12. To make a course around or about: turn a corner. 13. To change the purpose, intention, or content of by persuasion or influence: His speech turned my thinking. 14. To change the order or disposition of; unsettle: “Sudden prosperity had turned [his] head” (Macaulay). 15. a. To set in a specified way or direction by or as if by rotating or pivoting; point: turn the antenna east. b. To present in a specified direction by or as if by rotating or pivoting: turn one’s face to the wall. 16. a. To aim or focus; train: turn one’s gaze to the sky. b. To devote or apply (oneself, for example) to something: She turned herself to music. 17. To cause to act or go against; make antagonistic: News of the scandal turned public opinion against the candidate. 18. To cause to go in a specific direction; direct: They turned their way back. 19. To send, drive, or let go: turn the bully out of the bar; turned the dog loose. 20. To pour, let fall, or otherwise release (contents) from or into a receptacle: Turn the dough onto a floured board. 21. To cause to take on a specified character, nature, identity, or appearance; change or transform. Used with to or into: water that had been turned to ice; turn a rundown house into a show place. 22. To make sour; ferment: Lack of refrigeration turned the milk. 23. To affect or change the color of: Autumn turns the green leaves golden. 24. To exchange; convert. Used with to or into: turns her singing talent into extra money. 25. To keep in circulation; sell and restock: We turned a great deal of merchandise during the holidays. 26. To get by buying and selling: turn a fair profit. 27. Slang. To perform (an act of prostitution): turning tricks. — v. intr. 1. To move around an axis or a center; rotate or revolve. 2. To have a sensation of revolving or whirling, especially as a result of dizziness or giddiness. 3. To change position from side to side or back and forth: I tossed and turned all night. 4. To progress through pages so as to arrive at a given place: Please turn to page 361. 5. a. To operate a lathe. b. To be formed on a lathe: a softwood that turns easily. 6. To direct one’s way or course: The truck turned into the service station.

We turned off the highway at the first exit. 7. To change or reverse one's way, course, or direction: Too tired to go farther, we turned toward home. 8. To have a specific reaction or effect, especially when adverse. 9. To change one's actions or attitudes adversely; become hostile or antagonistic: The once servile peasants turned against the cruel king. 10. To attack suddenly and violently with no apparent motive: The tiger turned on the animal trainer. 11. To channel one's attention, interest, or thought toward or away from something: "In the spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love" (Tennyson). 12. To devote or apply oneself to something, as to a field of study: Unsuccessful in mathematics, the student turned to biology. 13. To convert to a religion. 14. To switch one's loyalty from one side or party to another. 15. To have recourse to a person or thing for help, support, or information. 16. To depend on something for success or failure; hinge: "The election would turn not on ideology but on competence" (George F. Will). 17. a. To change so as to be; become: His hair turned gray. I am a lawyer turned novelist. b. To change; become transformed. Used with to or into: The sky turned to pink at dawn. The night turned into day. c. To reach and pass (a certain age, for example): My niece has turned three. 18. To become sour: The milk turned because we did not refrigerate it. 19. To change color: The leaves have turned. 20. To be stocked and sold: This merchandise will turn easily. 21. To become dull or blunt by bending back. Used of the edge of a cutting instrument.

— n. 1. The act of turning or the condition of being turned; rotation or revolution. 2. A change of direction, motion, or position: Make a left turn at the corner. 3. A place, as in a road or path, where a change in direction occurs; a curve: a sharp turn in the road. 4. A departure or deviation, as in a trend: a strange turn of events. 5. A point marking the end of one period of time and the beginning of the next: the turn of the century. 6. a. A chance or an opportunity. b. One of a series of such opportunities accorded people in succession or in scheduled order: waiting for her next turn at bat. 7. A period of participation: a turn at wrestling. 8. a. An attack of illness or severe nervousness. b. Informal. A momentary shock or scare: I had quite a turn when I first heard the crash. 9. A characteristic mood, style, or habit; a natural inclination: a curious and speculative turn of mind. 10. A propensity or an adeptness: a turn for carpentry. 11. A distinctive, graceful, or artistic expression or arrangement of words: the poetic turn of a phrase. 12. a. A movement or development in a particular direction: a turn for the worse. b. A variation of a given kind or type: "His muse occasionally takes a humorous and satirical turn" (Albert C. Baugh). 13. A deed or an action having a good or bad effect on another: "He thought some friend had done him an ill turn" (Stephen Crane). 14. Advantage or purpose: It served his turn. 15. A short walk or excursion out and back: took a turn in the park. 16. A distortion in shape. 17. The condition of being twisted or wound. 18. a. A winding of one thing about another. b. A single wind or convolution, as of wire on a spool. 19. Something that winds or turns around a center axis. 20. Music. A figure or an ornament consisting of four or more notes in rapid succession and including in addition to the principal note the one that is a degree above and the one that is a degree below it. 21. A brief theatrical act or stage appearance. 22. A transaction on the stock market involving both a sale and a purchase. 23. South Atlantic U.S. The amount that can be carried in the arms in one load: a turn of firewood. —phrasal verbs. turn away. 1. To send away; dismiss: turned away the salesperson. 2. To repel: The poor location of the condominium turned away many prospective buyers. 3. To avert; deflect: turned away all criticism. turn back. 4. To reverse one's direction of motion: stopped on the road and had to turn back. 5. To drive back and away: turned back the uninvited comers. 6. To halt the advance of: managed to turn back the advancing army. 7. To fold down: Turn back the corner of the page to save your place in the book. turn down. 8. To diminish the speed, volume, intensity, or flow of: Turn down the radio, please. 9. To reject or refuse, as a person, advice, or a suggestion: We politely turned down the invitation. 10. To fold or be capable of folding down: turn a collar down; a collar that turns down. turn in. 11. To hand in; give over: turned in the final exam. 12. To inform on or deliver: The criminal turned herself in. 13. To produce: turns in a consistent performance every day. 14. Informal. To go to bed: I turned in early last night. turn off. 15. To stop the operation, activity, or flow of; shut off: turned off the television. 16. Slang. a. To affect with dislike, displeasure, or revulsion: That song really turns me off. b. To affect with boredom: The play turned the audience off. c. To lose or cause to lose interest; withdraw: turning off to materialism. d. To cease paying attention to: Unable to leave my seat, I turned off the boring speaker and thought about vacation. 17. To divert; deflect. 18. Chiefly British. To dismiss (an employee). 19. Slang. a. To affect with dislike, displeasure, or revulsion: That song really turns me off. b. To affect with boredom: The play turned the audience off. c. To lose or cause to lose interest; withdraw: turning off to materialism. d. To cease paying attention to: Unable to leave my seat, I turned off the boring speaker and thought about vacation. turn on. 20. To cause to begin the operation, activity, or flow of: Turn on the light bulb. 21. To begin to display, employ, or exude: turn on the charm. 22. Slang. a. To take or cause to take a mind-altering drug, especially for the first time. b. To be or cause to become interested, pleurably excited, or stimulated. Often used with to: My uncle turned me on to jazz. She turned on to surfing this summer. c. To excite or become excited sexually. 23. Slang. a. To take or cause to take a mind-altering drug, especially for the first time. b. To be or cause to become interested, pleurably excited, or stimulated. Often used with to: My uncle turned me on to jazz. She turned on to surfing this summer. c. To excite or become excited sexually. turn out. 24. To shut off: turned out the lights. 25. To arrive or assemble, as for a public event or entertainment: A large group of protesters have turned out. 26. To produce, as by a manufacturing process; make: an assembly line turning out cars.

27. To be found to be, as after experience or trial: The rookie turned out to be the best hitter on the team. 28. To end up; result: The cake turned out beautifully.

29. To equip; outfit: troops that were turned out beautifully. 30. Informal. To get out of bed. 31. To evict; expel: The tenants were turned out. turn over. 32. To bring the bottom to the top or vice versa; invert. 33. a. To shift the position of, as by rolling from one side to the other. b. To shift one's position by rolling from one side to the other. 34. To rotate; cycle: The engine turned over but wouldn't start. 35. To think about; consider: She turned over the problem in her mind.

36. To transfer to another; surrender: turned over the illegal funds. 37. To do business to the extent or amount of: turn over a million dollars a year. 38. To seem to lurch or heave convulsively: My stomach turned over. 39. a. To shift the position of, as by rolling from one side to the other. b. To shift one's position by rolling from one side to the other. turn to. To begin work: If you quit dawdling and just turn to, the cleaning will be done in a day. turn up. 41. To increase the speed, volume, intensity, or flow of: turn up the public-address system. 42. a. To find: She turned up the missing papers under her blotter. b. To be found: The papers will turn up sooner or later. 43. To make an appearance; arrive: Several old friends turned up at the reunion. 44. To fold or be capable of folding up: turning up his cuffs; cuffs that will turn up. 45. To happen unexpectedly: Something turned up and I was unable to go. 46. To be evident: Her name constantly turns up in art circles. 47. a. To find: She turned up the missing papers under her blotter. b. To be found: The papers will turn up sooner or later. —idioms. at every turn. In every place; at every moment. by turns. One after another; alternately: "From the... testimony emerges a man by turns devious and honest, vulgar and gallant, scatterbrained and shrewd" (Life). in turn. In the proper order or sequence. out of turn. 4. Not in the proper order or sequence. 5. At an inappropriate time or in an inappropriate manner: I may be speaking out of turn, but you might like to know that your attire does not conform to the dress code here. to a turn. To a precise degree; perfectly: The roast was done to a turn. turn a blind eye. To refuse to see or recognize something: turned a blind eye to government corruption. turn a deaf ear. To refuse to listen to or hear something: turned a deaf ear to the protests. turn a hair. To become afraid or upset: didn't turn a hair during the bank robbery. turn (one's) back on. 10. To deny; reject. 11. To abandon; forsake. turn (one's) hand. To apply oneself, as to a task: turned her hand to writing the dissertation; was lazy and wouldn't turn his hand. turn (one's) head. 13. To cause to become infatuated. 14. To cause to become egotistical and conceited: Success has turned his head. turn over a new leaf. To change, as one's attitude or conduct, for the better. turn tail. To run away. turn the corner (or turn a corner). To reach and surpass a midpoint or milestone. turn the other cheek. To respond to insult or injury by patiently eschewing retaliation. turn the scales. To offset the balance of a situation. turn the tables. To reverse a situation and gain the upper hand. turn turtle. To capsize or turn upside-down: Our sailboat turned turtle during the squall. turn up (one's) nose. To regard (something) with disdain or scorn: turned up her nose at the food. [Middle English turnen, from Old English turnian, tyrnan, and Old French torner both from Latin tornāre, to turn in a lathe, from tornus, lathe, from Greek tornos. See terə-¹ in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: turn, rotate, revolve, gyrate, spin, whirl, circle, eddy, swirl. These verbs all mean to move or cause to move in a circle. Turn, the most general, means to move in a circular course: a planet turning on its axis; turned and stared at me. Rotate usually involves movement around an object's own axis or center: The top rotated with decreasing speed as the spring wound down. Revolve can have the same meaning as rotate, while in certain contexts it is distinguished from rotate as involving orbital movement: The earth revolves around the sun. Gyrate usually refers to revolving in or as if in a spiral course: waltzers gyrating giddily. To spin is to rotate rapidly, often within a narrow compass: "He... spun round, flung up his arms, and fell on his back, shot through" (John Galsworthy). Whirl applies to rapid or forceful revolution or rotation: whirling snowflakes. Circle refers to circular or approximately circular motion: sea gulls circling above the ocean. Eddy usually denotes rapid circular movement like that of a whirlpool: Storm clouds eddied overhead. Swirl, often interchangeable with eddy, sometimes connotes a graceful undulation, spiral, or whorl: The flood waters swirled wildly under the bridge. The milliner swirled tulle lavishly above the brim of the hat. See also Synonyms at resort turn-a-bout (tûrn'ə-bout') n. 1. The act of turning about and facing or moving in the opposite direction. 2. A shift or change in opinion, loyalty, or allegiance. 3. A dance or party to which girls invite boys.

turn-a-round (tûrn'ə-round') n. 1. A space, as in a driveway, permitting the turning around of a vehicle. 2. The act or an instance of turning about and facing or moving in the opposite direction; a reversal: Stock prices fell in the morning but rallied in a dramatic afternoon turnaround. 3. A shift or change in opinion, loyalty, or allegiance. 4. a. The process of or time needed for loading, unloading, and servicing a ship, an airplane, or other vehicle. b. The process of or time needed for performing a task, especially receiving, completing, and returning an assignment.

turn-buck-le (tûrn'bûk'əl) n. A metal coupling device consisting of an oblong piece internally threaded at both ends into which the two sections of a threaded rod are screwed in order to adjust the tension of the rod.

turn-coat (tûrn'kõt') n. One who traitorously switches allegiance.

- turn-down (tŭrn'daun') n. 1. A rejection. 2. One who has been turned down or rejected. 3. Something that is folded down, as on a garment. 4. A downturn. — adj. Being or capable of being turned or folded down: a turndown collar.
- turned-on (tŭrnd'ŏn', -ŏn') adj. Slang. 1. Highly aware of and responsive to what is fashionable and up-to-date. 2. a. Pleasantly excited or stimulated. b. Sexually aroused. c. Under the influence of a mind-altering drug.
- turn-er¹ (tŭr'nər) n. One that turns, especially a person who operates a lathe or similar device.
- turn-er² (tŭr'nər) n. Sports. A tumbler or gymnast, especially a member of a turnverein. [German, from turnen, to do gymnastics, from Old High German turnēn, to turn, from Latin tornāre, to turn in a lathe. See TURN.]
- Tur-ner (tŭr'nər), Frederick Jackson. 1861-1932. American historian who emphasized the importance of the frontier in American history.
- Tur-ner (tŭr'nər), Joseph Mallord William. 1775-1851. British painter whose abstract treatment of light, color, and space influenced the French impressionists. Among his works are Sun Rising Through Vapour (1807) and Rain, Steam, and Speed (1844).
- Tur-ner (tŭr'nər), Nat. 1800-1831. American slave leader who organized about 70 followers and led a rebellion in Virginia, during which approximately 50 whites were killed (1831). He was subsequently captured and executed.
- Tur-ner's syndrome (tŭr'nərz sĭn'drŏm') n. A congenital condition of females associated with a defect or an absence of an X-chromosome, characterized by short stature, sexual underdevelopment, and other physical abnormalities. [After Henry Hubert Turner (1892-1970), American endocrinologist.]
- turn-er-y (tŭr'nə-rē) n. pl. turn-er-ies. The work or workshop of a lathe operator.
- turn-ing (tŭr'nĭŋ) n. 1. A deviation from a straight course; a turn. 2. a. The shaping of metal or wood on a lathe. b. turnings. Shavings produced in shaping metal on a lathe.
- turning point (tŭr'nĭŋ point) n. 1. The point at which a very significant change occurs; a decisive moment. 2. Mathematics. A maximum or minimum point on a curve.
- tur-nip (tŭr'nĭp) n. 1. A widely cultivated Eurasian plant (Brassica rapa) of the mustard family, having a large, fleshy, edible yellow or white root. 2. The root of this plant, eaten as a vegetable. [tur-, of unknown origin + dialectal nepe, turnip (from Middle English, from Old English nāep, from Latin nāpus).]
- turnip cabbage (tŭr'nĭp kăb'ĭj) n. See kohlrabi.
- tur-nip-root-ed celery (tŭr'nĭp-rŏŏtĭd sĕl'ə-rē, -rŏŏt'ĭd) n. See celeriac.
- turn-key (tŭrn'kē') n. pl. turn-keys. The keeper of the keys in a prison; a jailer. — adj. 1. Supplied, installed, or purchased in a condition ready for immediate use, occupation, or operation: a turnkey computer system; a turnkey housing project; a turnkey factory. 2. Of or relating to something supplied, installed, or purchased in this manner: a turnkey agreement.

turn-off (tûrn'ôf', -ôf') n. 1. A branch of a road or path leading away from a main thoroughfare, especially an exit on a highway. 2. The act or an instance of turning off. 3. Slang. a. One that is distasteful: The evening was a real turnoff. b. Something that causes loss of interest.

turn-on (tûrn'ôn', -ôn') n. Slang. Something that causes pleasure or excitement: "The real turn-on... is that he is a visionary as well as a scientist" (Village Voice).

turn-out (tûrn'out') n. 1. The number of people gathered for a particular event or purpose; attendance: The peace march attracted a large turnout. 2. A number of things produced; output. 3. The act or an instance of turning out. 4. Chiefly British. a. A labor strike. b. A laborer on strike. 5. An array of equipment; an outfit. 6. An outfit of a carriage with its horse or horses; equipage. 7. A railroad siding. 8. A widening in a highway to allow vehicles to pass or park. 9. The rotation of a dancer's legs from the hip sockets in classical ballet.

turn-over (tûrn'ô'vər) n. Abbr. t.o. 1. The act of turning over; an upset or overthrow. 2. An abrupt change; a reversal. 3. A small pastry made by covering one half of a piece of dough with fruit, preserves, or other filling and folding the other half over on top. 4. a. The number of times a particular stock of goods is sold and restocked during a given period of time. b. The amount of business transacted during a given period of time. c. The number of shares of stock sold on the market during a given period of time. 5. a. The number of workers hired by an establishment to replace those who have left in a given period of time. b. The ratio of this number to the number of employed workers. 6. Sports. A loss of possession of the ball to the opposing team, as by a misplay or an infraction of the rules. — adj. Capable of being turned or folded down or over: a turnover collar.

turn-pike (tûrn'pik') n. Abbr. tnpk., tpk. 1. A toll road, especially an expressway with tollgates. 2. A tollgate. [Middle English turnepike, spiked barrier : turnen, to turn; see TURN + pike, sharp point; see PIKE⁵.]

turn signal (tûrn sɪg'nəl) n. See directional signal.

turn-sole (tûrn'sōl') n. 1. Any of various plants that move or are believed to move in response to the sun. 2. See heliotrope (n., sense 1a). [Middle English turnesole, purple dye obtained from the plant, from Old French ournesol, from Old Italian tornasole, heliotrope : tornare, to turn (from Latin tornāre); see TURN + sole, sun (from Latin sōl); see sāwel- in Appendix.]

turn-spit (tûrn'spīt') n. 1. a. One that turns a roasting spit. b. A roasting spit that can be turned. 2. A dog formerly used in a treadmill to turn a roasting spit.

turn-stile (tûrn'stīl') n. 1. A mechanical device used to control passage from one public area to another, typically consisting of several horizontal arms supported by and radially projecting from a central vertical post and allowing only the passage of individuals on foot. 2. A similar structure that permits the passage of an individual once a charge has been paid or that counts the number of individuals passing through.

turn-stone (tûrn'stôn') n. Either of two wading birds, Arenaria interpres, a widely distributed species that is dark brown above with large areas of chestnut and black, or A. melanocephala, having black and white plumage, that breeds along the coast of Alaska and winters from there to Baja California. [From its method of finding food.]

turn-table (tûrn'tā'bəl) n. 1. a. The circular horizontal rotating platform of a phonograph on which the record is placed. b. A phonograph exclusive of amplifying circuitry and speakers. 2. A circular horizontal rotating platform equipped with a railway track, used for turning locomotives, as in a roundhouse. 3. A rotating platform or disk, such as a lazy Susan.

turn-up (tûrn'üp') n. Something, such as the cuff on a trouser leg, that is turned up or can be turned up. — adj. Turned up or capable of being turned up.

turn-ver-ein (tûrn'və-rīn', tōörn'-) n. Sports. A club of tumblers or gymnasts. [German : turnen, to do gymnastics; see TURNER² + Verein, club (from obsolete vereine, back-formation from Middle High German vereinen, to unite : ver-, intensive pref. from Old High German far-; see per¹ in Appendix + einen, to make one from ein, one, from Old High German); see oi-no- in Appendix.]

tur-pen-tine (tûr'pən-tīn') n. 1. A thin volatile essential oil, C₁₀H₁₆, obtained by steam distillation or other means from the wood or exudate of certain pine trees and used as a paint thinner, solvent, and medicinally as a liniment. Also called oil of turpentine, spirit of turpentine. 2. The sticky mixture of resin and volatile oil from which turpentine is distilled. 3. A brownish-yellow resinous liquid obtained from the terebinth. — v. tr. tur-pen-tined, tur-pen-tin-ing, tur-pen-tines. 1. To apply turpentine to or mix turpentine with. 2. To extract turpentine from (a tree). [Middle English, resin of the terebinth, from Old French terebentine, from Latin terebinthina (rēsina), terebinth (resin), from Greek terebinthinē, feminine of terebenthinos, from terebinthos, terebinth tree.]

—tur'pen-tin'ic (-tīn'īk), tur'pen-tin'ous (-tīn'əs) adj.

tur-pi-tude (tûr'pī-tōōd', -tyōōd') n. 1. Depravity; baseness. 2. A base act. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin turpitūdō, from turpis, shameful.]

turps (tûrps) pl.n. (used with a sing. verb). Informal. Turpentine. [Shortening and alteration of TURPENTINE.]

tur-quoise (tûr'kwoiz', -koiz') n. 1. A blue to blue-green mineral of aluminum and copper, mainly CuAl₆(PO₄)₄(OH)₈·4H₂O, prized as a gemstone in its polished blue form. 2. Color. A light to brilliant bluish green. [Middle English turkeis, and French turquoise both from Old French (pierre) turquoise, Turkish

(stone), turquoise, feminine of turqueis, Turkish, from Turc, Turk. See TURK.]

—tur'quoise' adj.

tur-ret (tûr'î't, tûr'(-)) n. 1. A small tower or tower-shaped projection on a building. 2. a. A low, heavily armored structure, usually rotating horizontally, containing mounted guns and their gunners or crew, as on a warship or tank. b. A domelike gunner's enclosure projecting from the fuselage of a combat aircraft. 3. A tall wooden structure mounted on wheels and used in ancient warfare by besiegers to scale the walls of an enemy fortress. 4. An attachment for a lathe consisting of a rotating cylindrical block holding various cutting tools. 5. A rotating device holding various lenses, as for a microscope, allowing easy switching from one lens to another. [Middle English turet, from Old French torete, diminutive of tor, tower. See TOWER.]

tur-ret-ed (tûr'î-tîd, tûr'(-)) adj. 1. Furnished with turrets or a turret. 2. Having the shape or form of a turret, as certain long-spined gastropod shells.

tur-tle¹ (tûr'tl) n. 1. Any of various aquatic or terrestrial reptiles of the order Testudines (or Chelonia), having horny toothless jaws and a bony or leathery shell into which the head, limbs, and tail can be withdrawn in most species. 2. Chiefly British. A sea turtle. — v. intr. tur-tled, tur-tling, tur-tles. 1. To hunt for turtles, especially as an occupation. 2. Nautical. To capsize. [Perhaps from French tortue, from Old French, from Medieval Latin tortūca*, perhaps alteration of Vulgar Latin tartarūca*, feminine of tartarūcus*, of Tartarus, from Late Latin tartarūchus, from Late Greek tartaroukhos, occupying Tartarus : Tartaros, Tartarus + ekhein, to hold; see EUNUCH.] —tur'tler n.

tur-tle² (tûr'tl) n. Archaic. A turtledove. [Middle English, from Old English, from Latin turtur, probably of imitative origin.]

tur-tle³ (tûr'tl) n. A turtleneck.

tur-tle-back (tûr'tl-băk') n. Something shaped like the back of a turtle, especially: a. Nautical. An arched structure erected over the deck of a ship as protection from heavy seas. b. Archaeology. A stone tool with a convex side.

—tur'tle-back', tur'tle-backed' adj.

tur-tle-dove (tûr'tl-düv') n. 1. A small, slender European dove (Streptopelia turtur) having a white-edged tail and a soft, purring voice. 2. See mourning dove.

tur-tle-head (tûr'tl-hěd') n. Any of several perennial North American herbs of the genus Chelone, especially C. glabra, having a white or pink bilabiate corolla with a bearded lower lip. Also called snakehead [From the shape of its flowers.]

tur-tle-neck (tûr'tl-něk') n. 1. A high, tubular, turned-down collar that fits closely about the neck. 2. A garment, such as a sweater, that has this type of collar.

turves (tûrvz) n. A plural of turf.

Tus-ca-loo-sa (tʊs'kə-lōō'sə) A city of west-central Alabama southwest of Birmingham. Established in 1819 on the site of a Creek village, it was the state capital from 1826 to 1846. Population, 77,759.

Tus-can (tʊs'kən) adj. 1. Of or relating to Tuscany, its people, or their language. 2. Architecture. Of or relating to the Tuscan order. — n. 1. A native or inhabitant of Tuscany. 2. a. Any of the dialects of Italian spoken in Tuscany. b. The standard literary form of Italian. [Middle English, from Latin Tuscānus, Etruscan, from Tuscus, an Etruscan.]

Tuscan order (tʊs'kən ôr'dər) n. Architecture. A classical order similar to Roman Doric but having columns with an unfluted shaft and a simplified base, capital, and entablature.

Tus-ca-ny (tʊs'kə-nē') A region of northwest Italy between the northern Apennines and the Ligurian and Tyrrhenian seas. Inhabited in ancient times by the Etruscans, it fell to Rome in the mid-fourth century B.C. Tuscany was a grand duchy under the Medicis (1569-1860) and subsequently became united with the kingdom of Sardinia.

Tus-ca-ro-ra (tʊs'kə-rôr'ə, -rôr'ə) n. pl. Tuscarora or Tus-ca-ro-ras. 1. a. A Native American people formerly inhabiting parts of North Carolina, with present-day populations in western New York and southeast Ontario, Canada. The Tuscarora migrated northward in the 18th century, joining the Iroquois confederacy in 1722 and adopting aspects of the Iroquois culture. b. A member of this people. 2. The Iroquoian language of the Tuscarora.

tu-sche (tōōsh'ə) n. A black liquid used for drawing in lithography and as a resist in etching and silk-screen work. [German, back-formation from tuschen, to lay on colors, from French toucher, from Old French tochier, touchier, to touch. See TOUCH.]

Tus-cu-lum (tʊs'kə-ləm, -kyə-) A city of ancient Latium southeast of modern-day Rome, Italy. Pliny the Younger, Cicero, and the emperors Nero and Titus were among the prominent Romans who built villas here.

tush¹ (tʊsh) interj. Used to express mild reproof, disapproval, or admonition.

tush² (tʊsh) n. 1. A canine tooth, especially of a horse. 2. Chiefly Southern U.S. See tusk (n., sense 1). [Middle English tusche, from Old English tūsc. See TUSK.]

tush³ (tōōsh) n. Slang. The buttocks. [Alteration of Yiddish tokhes, from Hebrew taḥat, under, buttocks.]

tush-y also tush-ie (tōōsh'ē) n. pl. tush-ies. Slang. The buttocks. [From TUSH³.]

tusk (tʊsk) n. 1. An elongated, pointed tooth, usually one of a pair, extending outside of the mouth in certain animals such as the walrus, elephant, or wild boar. Regional. Also called *tush*² 2. A long, projecting tooth or toothlike part. — v. tr. intr. tusked, tusk-ing, tusks. To gore or dig with the tusks or a tusk.

[Middle English tux, tusce, from Old English tūx, tūsc, canine tooth. See dent- in Appendix.] —tusked adj.

Tus-ke-gee (tūs-kē'gē) A city of eastern Alabama east of Montgomery. It is the seat of the Tuskegee Institute, founded by Booker T. Washington in 1881. Population, 12,257.

tusk-er (tūs'kər) n. An animal, such as a wild boar, that has tusks.

tusk shell (tūsk shĕl) n. See tooth shell.

tus-sah (tūs'ə, tūs'ô') also tus-sore (tūs'ôr', -ôr') n. 1. An Asian silkworm, the larva of a large saturniid moth (Antheraea paphia), that produces a coarse brownish or yellowish silk. 2. The silk produced by this worm or a fabric woven from it. [Hindi tasar, from Sanskrit tasaram, shuttle (probably from the shape of its cocoon).]

tus-sie-mus-sie (tūs'ē-mūs'ē) or tuz-zy-muz-zy (tūz'ē-mūz'ē) n. pl.

tus-sie-mus-sies or tuz-zy-muz-zies. 1. A small bouquet of flowers; a nose-gay. 2. A cone-shaped holder for such a bouquet. [Middle English tussemose, perhaps reduplication of tusse*.]

tus-sis (tūs'is) n. pl. tus-ses (-sēz). A cough. [Latin.] —tus'sal (tūs'əl) adj.

tus-sle (tūs'əl) v. intr. tus-sled, tus-sling, tus-sles. To struggle roughly; scuffle. — n. A rough or vigorous struggle; a scuffle. [Middle English tussillen, frequentative of -tousen, to pull roughly.]

tus-sock (tūs'ək) n. 1. A clump or tuft, as of growing grass. 2. A tuft of hair or feathers. [Origin unknown.] —tus'sock-y adj.

tussock moth (tūs'ək mōth) n. Any of various dull-colored moths of the family Lymantriidae, the caterpillars of which have tufts of hair along the back and are often destructive to deciduous trees.

tus-sore (tūs'ôr', -ôr') n. Variant of tussah.

Tus-tin (tūs'tin) A city of southern California, a residential and manufacturing suburb of the Greater Los Angeles area. Population, 50,689.

tut (a t-like sound produced by suction rather than plosion; conventional spelling pronunciation, tüt) interj. Used to express annoyance, impatience, or mild reproof: "Tut, tut, child!... Everything's got a moral, if only you can find it" (Lewis Carroll). —tut n. & v.

Tut-ankh-a-men (tōōt'äng-kä'mən), fl. c. 1358 B.C. King of Egypt during the XVIII Dynasty. His tomb was found almost intact by Howard Carter in 1922.

tu-tee (tōō-tē', tyōō-) n. One that is being tutored. [tut(or) + -EE¹.]

tu-te-lage (tōōt'l-ij, tyōōt'-) n. 1. The capacity or activity of a guardian; guardianship. 2. The capacity or activity of a tutor; instruction or teaching. 3. The state of being under the direction of a guardian or tutor. [Latin tūtēla (from tūtus, variant past participle of tuērī, to guard) + -AGE.]

tu-te-lar-y (tōōt'l-ēr'ē, tyōōt'-) also tu-te-lar (tōōt'l-ər, -är', tyōōt'-) adj.

1. Being or serving as a guardian or protector: tutelary gods. 2. Of or relating to a guardian or guardianship. — n. pl. tu-te-lar-ies also tu-te-lars. One that serves as a guardian or protector. [From Latin tūtēlārius, guardian, from tūtēla, tutelage. See TUTELEGE.]

tu-tor (tōō'tər, tyōō'-) n. 1. a. A private instructor. b. One that gives additional, special, or remedial instruction. 2. A teacher or teaching assistant in some universities and colleges having a rank lower than that of an instructor. 3. A graduate, usually a fellow, responsible for the supervision of an undergraduate at some British universities. 4. Law. The legal guardian of a minor and of the minor's property. — v. tu-tored, tu-tor-ing, tu-tors. — v. tr. 1. To act as a tutor to; instruct or teach privately. 2. To have the guardianship, tutelage, or care of. — v. intr. 1. To function as a tutor. 2. To be instructed by a tutor; study under a tutor. [Middle English tutour, from Old French, from Latin tūtor, from tūtus, variant past participle of tuērī, to guard.]

tu-to-ri-al (tōō-tôr'ē-əl, -tôr'-, tyōō-) adj. Of or relating to tutors or a tutor. — n. Something that provides special, often individual instruction, especially: a. A book or class that provides instruction in a particular area. b. Computer Science. A program that instructs the user of a system or software package by simulating the capabilities of the system or software.

tut-ti (tōō'tē) Music. adv. & adj. All. Used chiefly as a direction to indicate that all performers are to take part. — n. pl. tut-tis. A passage of ensemble music intended to be executed by all the performers simultaneously. [Italian, pl. of tutto, all, from Vulgar Latin tōttus*, variant of Latin tōtus. See teutā- in Appendix.]

tut-ti-frut-ti (tōō'tē-frōō'tē) n. pl. tut-ti-frut-tis. 1. A confection, especially ice cream, containing a variety of chopped and usually candied fruits. 2. A flavoring simulating the flavor of many fruits. — adj. Having a combination of fruit flavors. [Italian : tutti, pl. of tutto, all + frutti, pl. of frutto, fruit.]

tut-tut (two t-like sounds produced by suction rather than plosion; conventional spelling pronunciation, tüt'tüt') v. intr. tut-tut-ted, tut-tut-ting, tut-tuts. To express annoyance, impatience, or mild reproof: "those fussy fellows at the State Department tut-tutting about lack of reform in the political system" (John Hughes). [Imitative.]

tut-ty (tüt'tē) n. pl. tut-ties. An impure zinc oxide obtained as a sublimate from the flues of zinc-smelting furnaces and used as a polishing powder. [Middle English tutie, from Old French, from Arabic tūtiyā, from Persian, from Sanskrit tuttham, blue vitriol.]

tu-tu (tōō'tōō) n. A short skirt, often consisting of many layers of gathered sheer fabric, worn by ballerinas. [French, perhaps alteration of cucu, baby-talk reduplication of cul, buttocks. See CULOTTE.]

Tu·tu (tōō'tōō), Desmond. Born 1931. South African prelate. A leader in the antiapartheid struggle, he has been a prominent advocate of international economic sanctions against South Africa. He won the 1984 Nobel Peace Prize.

Tu·tu·i·la (tōō'tōō-ē'lə) An island of American Samoa in the southwest-central Pacific Ocean. It is the largest island in the group.

Tut·wi·ler (tüt'wī'lər), Julia Strudwick. 1841-1916. American educator and reformer who was president of Livingston Normal College in Alabama (1890-1910) and gained admission for women to the University of Alabama (1896).

Tu·va·lu (tōō-vä'lōō, tōō'və-lōō') Formerly El·lice Islands (əl'is). An island country of the western Pacific Ocean north of Fiji. Organized as a British protectorate in 1892, the islands became part of the Gilbert and Ellice Islands colony in 1915 and achieved independence in 1978. Fongafale, on Funafuti Island, is the capital. Population, 7,349.

tux (tüks) n. Informal. A tuxedo.

tux·e·do (tük-sē'dō) n. pl. tux·e·dos or tux·e·does. 1. A man's dress jacket, usually black with satin or grosgrain lapels, worn for formal or semiformal occasions. Also called dinner jacket 2. A complete outfit including this jacket, trousers usually with a silken stripe down the side, a bow tie, and often a cummerbund. [Short for Tuxedo coat, after a country club at Tuxedo Park, a village of southeast New York.] —tux·e·doed adj.

Tux·tla Gu·tiér·rez (tōōs'tlə gōō-tyēr'ēs) A city of southeast Mexico near the Isthmus of Tehuantepec. It is an agricultural trade center. Population, 131,096.

tu·yère (twē-yâr') n. The pipe, nozzle, or other opening through which air is forced into a blast furnace or forge to facilitate combustion. [French, from Old French, from tuyau, pipe, probably of Germanic origin.]

Tuz·la (tōōz'lä) A city of eastern Bosnia-Herzegovina north-northeast of Sarajevo. It is an industrial center with salt springs known since Roman times. Population, 61,100.

tuz·zy·muz·zy (tüz'ē-müz'ē) n. Variant of tussie-mussie.

TV (tē'vē') n. pl. TVs or TV's. Television.

TVA abbr. Tennessee Valley Authority.

TV dinner (tē'vē' dīn'ər) n. A frozen prepared meal, usually packaged in a disposable serving tray, that needs only to be heated before serving.

twa (twä, twô) n., adj. & pron. Scots. Two. [Middle English, variant of two. See TWO.]

twad·dle (twöd'l) v. intr. twad·dled, twad·dling, twad·dles. To talk foolishly; prate. — n. Foolish, trivial, or idle talk or chatter. [Probably variant of dialectal twattle, perhaps alteration of TATTLE.] —twad·dler n.

twain (twān) n., adj. & pron. Two. [Middle English tweien, twaine, from Old English twēgen. See dwo- in Appendix.]

Twain (twān), Mark. See Samuel Langhorne Clemens.

twang (twǎŋ) v. twanged, twang·ing, twangs. — v. intr. 1. To emit a sharp, vibrating sound, as the string of a musical instrument does when it is plucked. 2. To resound with a sharp, vibrating sound. 3. To speak in a strongly nasal tone of voice. — v. tr. 1. To cause to make a sharp, vibrating sound: twanged the car antenna. 2. To utter with a strongly nasal tone of voice. — n. 1. A sharp, vibrating sound, as that of a plucked string. 2. A strongly nasal tone of voice, especially as a peculiarity of certain regional dialects. [Imitative.] —twang'y adj.

'twas (twüz, twöz, twəz when unstressed) It was.

twat (twöt) n. Obscene. 1. The vulva. 2. Used as a disparaging term for a woman. [Origin unknown.]

tway·blade (twā'blād') n. Any of numerous small terrestrial orchids of the genera Liparis and Listera, having usually two basal leaves and a terminal cluster of greenish or purplish flowers. [Obsolete tway, two (short for Middle English twaine); see TWAIN + BLADE (translation of Medieval Latin bifolium, two-leaf).]

tweak (twēk) v. tr. tweaked, tweak·ing, tweaks. 1. To pinch, pluck, or twist sharply. 2. To adjust; fine-tune. — n. A sharp, twisting pinch. [Probably variant of dialectal twick, from Middle English twikken, from Old English twic-cian.] —tweak'y adj.

twee (twē) adj. Chiefly British. Overly precious or nice. [Alteration of tweet, baby-talk alteration of SWEET.]

tweed (twēd) n. 1. A coarse, rugged, often nubby woolen fabric made in any of various twill weaves and used chiefly for casual suits and coats. 2. tweeds. Clothing made of this fabric. [Alteration (possibly influenced by the river Tweed), of Scots tweel, twill, from Middle English twile. See TWILL.]

WORD HISTORY: Calling the word tweed an alteration of the form tweel obscures the fact that in this case, as in many others, human error has helped create a word. Tweed is indeed possibly the result of a misreading of tweel, an originally Scots form of twill. Tweed also could be a misreading of an abbreviated form of tweeled, a form of twilled. Association with Tweed, the name of the river that is part of the border between England and Scotland, helped support the misreading, which was originally a trade name. The word is said to have first been used around 1831, but it is not recorded until 1847. Thus had it not been for the misreading, the tweedy look might have been the tweely look or the tweeledy look.

Tweed (twēd) A river, 156 km (97 mi) long, of southeast Scotland forming part of the Scottish-English border. It flows eastward to the North Sea and has rich salmon fisheries.

Tweed (twēd), William Marcy. Known as “Boss Tweed.” 1823-1878. American politician. The Democratic boss of New York City in the 1860’s, he defrauded the city of millions of dollars before being exposed and convicted (1873).

twee-dle-dum and twee-dle-dee (twēd’l-dŭm’ ən twēd’l-dē’) n. Two people or two groups resembling each other so closely that they are practically indistinguishable. [After Tweedledum and Tweedledee, names of two proverbial rival fiddlers, of imitative origin.]

tweed-y (twē’dē) adj. tweed-i-er, tweed-i-est. 1. Made of tweed.

2. Wearing tweeds. 3. Informal. Suggestive of casual, informal taste, habits, and lifestyle: “He’s rumpled and tweedy... and you get the feeling that if he were preparing to drink a martini, he might casually stir it with his finger” (Phil McCombs).

’tween (twēn) prep. Between.

tweet (twēt) n. A weak chirping sound, as of a young or small bird. — v. intr.

tweet-ed, tweet-ing, tweets. To utter a weak chirping sound. [Imitative.]

tweet-er (twē’tər) n. A small loudspeaker designed to reproduce high-pitched sounds in a high-fidelity audio system.

tweeze (twēz) v. tr. tweezed, tweez-ing, tweez-es. To handle or extract with tweezers. [Back-formation from TWEEZERS.]

tweezer (twē’zər) n. Tweezers.

tweez-ers (twē’zərz) pl.n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). Small pincers, usually of metal, used for plucking or handling small objects. [From obsolete tweezes, pl. of tweeze, a case for tweezers or other small instruments, alteration of etweese, from French étuis, pl. of étui. See ÉTUI.]

twelfth (twēlfth) n. 1. The ordinal number matching the number 12 in a series.

2. One of 12 equal parts. 3. Music. a. A 12-degree interval in a diatonic scale.

b. A tone 12 degrees below or above a given tone. [Middle English twelfth, alteration of Old English twelfta. See dwo- in Appendix.] —twelfth adv. & adj.

Twelfth Day (twēlfth dā) n. Ecclesiastical. Epiphany.

Twelfth Night (twēlfth nīt) n. January 5, the eve of Epiphany and the beginning of Carnival, celebrated as a holiday in parts of Europe and the United States and marked by feasting, merrymaking, and the lighting of bonfires.

twelve (twēlv) n. 1. The cardinal number equal to the sum of 11 + 1. 2. The twelfth in a set or sequence. 3. Twelve. A book of the Bible. See Table at Bible. [Middle English, from Old English twelf. See dwo- in Appendix.] —twelve adj. & pron.

twelve-mo (twēlv’mō’) n. pl. twelve-mos. Printing. See duodecimo (n., sense 1).

twelve-month (twēlv’mŭnth’) n. A year.

twelve-pen-ny nail (twēlv’pĕn’ē nāl) n. A nail 34 inches (8.25 centimeters) long. [From the original price per hundred.]

twelve-tone (twɛlv'tōn') adj. Music. Relating to, consisting of, or based on an atonal arrangement of the traditional 12 chromatic tones.

twen-ti-eth (twɛn'tē-ĭth, twŭn'-) n. 1. The ordinal number matching the number 20 in a series. 2. One of 20 equal parts. —twen'ti-eth adv. & adj.

twen-ty (twɛn'tē, twŭn'-) n. 1. The cardinal number equal to 2×10 .

2. twenties. a. Often Twenties. The decade from 20 to 29 in a century. b. A decade or the numbers from 20 to 29: The children are now in their twenties. The temperature dipped into the twenties. [Middle English, from Old English twēntig. See dwo- in Appendix.] —twen'ty adj. & pron.

twen-ty-one (twɛn'tē-wŭn', twŭn'-) n. Games. See blackjack (n., sense 3).

twen-ty-twen-ty or 20/20 (twɛn'tē-twɛn'tē, twŭn'tē-twŭn'tē) adj. Having normal visual acuity. [From a method of testing vision by reading charts at a distance of 20 feet.]

'twere (twûr) It were: “to hold as 'twere the mirror up to nature” (Shakespeare).

twerp also twirp (twûrp) n. Slang. A person regarded as insignificant and contemptible. [Origin unknown.]

Twɪ (chwē, chē) n. A variety of the Akan language spoken in Ghana.

twi-bill (twī'bĭl') n. Archaic. 1. A battle-ax with two cutting edges. 2. A mattock with one blade like an ax and the other like an adz. [Middle English, from Old English : twi-, two; see dwo- in Appendix + bil, billhook.]

twice (twīs) adv. 1. In two cases or on two occasions; two times: I rewrote the essay twice. 2. In doubled degree or amount: twice as many. [Middle English, from Old English twiga. See dwo- in Appendix.]

twice-laid (twīs'lād') adj. Made from strands of old or used rope. Used of rope.

twice-told (twīs'töld') adj. Very familiar because of repeated telling: “Tis hard to... lend fresh interest to a twice-told tale” (Byron).

twid-dle (twĭd'l) v. twid-dled, twid-dling, twid-dles. — v. tr. To turn over or around idly or lightly; fiddle with: “Couples are twiddling swizzle sticks while waiting for their tables” (Bryan Miller). — v. intr. 1. To trifle with something. 2. To be busy about trifles. 3. To twirl or rotate without purpose. — n. The act or an instance of twiddling. —idiom. twiddle (one's) thumbs. To do little or nothing; be idle. [Possibly blend of twist, and fiddle.] —twid'dler n.

twig¹ (twĭg) n. 1. A young shoot representing the current season's growth of a woody plant. 2. Any small, leafless branch of a woody plant. [Middle English, from Old English twigge. See dwo- in Appendix.]

twig² (twĭg) v. twigged, twig-ging, twigs. Chiefly British. — v. tr. 1. To observe or notice. 2. To understand or figure out: “The layman has twigged what the strategist twigged almost two decades ago” (Manchester Guardian Weekly). — v. intr. To be or become aware of the situation; understand: “As Europe is now

twigging, the best breeding ground for innovators who know how to do business is often big, competitive companies" (Economist). [Irish Gaelic tuigim, I understand, from Old Irish tuicse, variant of to-ucc-, to understand.]

twig³ (twĭg) n. Chiefly British. The current style; the fashion. [Origin unknown.]

twig borer (twĭg bôr'ər) n. Any of various small beetles or moths whose larvae bore into the twigs of certain trees, especially fruit trees.

twig-gy (twĭg'ĕ) adj. twig-gi-er, twig-gi-est. 1. Resembling a twig or twigs, as in slenderness or fragility. 2. Abounding in twigs: a twiggy branch.

twilight (twī'lit') n. 1. a. The diffused light from the sky during the early evening or early morning when the sun is below the horizon and its light is refracted by the earth's atmosphere. b. The time of the day when the sun is just below the horizon, especially the period between sunset and dark. 2. Dim or diffused illumination. 3. A period or condition of decline following growth, glory, or success: in the twilight of his life. 4. A state of ambiguity or obscurity. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: the twilight glow of the sky; a twilight area in the interpretation of the Constitution. [Middle English twilichte : Old English twi-, two, half; see dwo- in Appendix + Old English liht, light; see LIGHT¹.]

twilight sleep (twī'lit' slēp) n. An amnesic condition characterized by insensibility to pain without loss of consciousness, induced by an injection of morphine and scopolamine, especially to relieve the pain of childbirth.

twilight zone (twī'lit' zōn) n. An area of ambiguity between two distinct states or conditions: a twilight zone between good and evil.

twill (twīl) n. 1. A fabric with diagonal parallel ribs. 2. The weave used to produce such a fabric. — v. tr. twilled, twill-ing, twills. To weave (cloth) so as to produce a pattern of diagonal parallel ribs. [Middle English twile, from Old English twilīc, woven of double thread. See dwo- in Appendix.]

twin (twīn) n. 1. One of two offspring born at the same birth. 2. One of two identical or similar people, animals, or things; a counterpart. 3. twins. Mineralogy. Two interwoven crystals that are mirror images of each other. 4. A twin-size bed. — adj. 1. Being two or one of two offspring born at the same birth: twin sisters. 2. Being two or one of two identical or similar people, animals, or things: twin executives; twin cities; a twin bed. 3. Consisting of two identical or similar parts: a twin lamp fixture. — v. twinned, twin-ning, twins. — v. intr. 1. a. To give birth to twins. b. Archaic. To be one of twin offspring. 2. To be paired or coupled. — v. tr. 1. To pair or couple. 2. To provide a match or counterpart to. [Middle English, from Old English twinn, twofold. See dwo- in Appendix.]

twin·ber·ry (twɪn'ber'ē) n. 1. See partridgeberry. 2. A deciduous North American shrub (Lonicera involucrata) having shiny purple-black berries and paired flowers with a yellow tubular corolla.

twin bill (twɪn bɪl) n. 1. A double feature. 2. Sports. A double-header, especially in baseball.

twin·born (twɪn'bôrn') adj. Born a twin or twins: twinborn sisters.

twine (twɪn) v. twined, twin·ing, twines. — v. tr. 1. To twist together (threads, for example); intertwine. 2. To form by twisting, intertwining, or interlacing. 3. To encircle or coil about: The fence post was twined by vines. 4. To wind, coil, or wrap around something: "She was twining a wisp of hair very slowly around her fingers" (Anne Tyler). — v. intr. 1. To become twisted, interlaced, or interwoven. 2. To go in a winding course; twist about: a stream twining through the forest. — n. 1. A strong string or cord made of two or more threads twisted together. 2. Something formed by twining: a twine of bread dough. 3. A tangle; a knot. [Middle English twinen, from twin, twine, from Old English twīn, double thread. See dwo- in Appendix.] — twin'er n.

twin-en·gine (twɪn'ɛn'jɪn) adj. Powered by two engines: a twin-engine aircraft.

Twin Falls (twɪn fôlz) A city of south-central Idaho west of Pocatello near the Twin Falls of the Snake River. The southern falls are a source of hydroelectric power. The city is a processing and trade center. Population, 27,591.

twin·flow·er (twɪn'flou'ər) n. A shrubby, creeping evergreen plant (Linnaea borealis) of northern regions, having roundish, opposite leaves and paired, bell-shaped, pinkish flowers.

twinge (twɪnj) n. 1. A sharp, sudden physical pain. See Synonyms at pain. 2. A mental or emotional pain: a twinge of guilt. — v. twinged, twing·ing, twing·es. — v. tr. 1. To cause to feel a sharp pain. 2. Obsolete. To tweak; pinch. — v. intr. To feel a twinge or twinges. [From Middle English twengen, to pinch, from Old English twengan.]

twi·night (twī'nīt') adj. Baseball. Relating to or being a double-header in which the first game begins in late afternoon. [TWI(LIGHT) + NIGHT.]

twin·jet (twɪn'jɛt') n. An aircraft powered by two jet engines.

twin·kle (twɪŋg'kəl) v. twin·kled, twin·kling, twin·kles. — v. intr. 1. To shine with slight, intermittent gleams, as distant lights or stars; flicker; glimmer. See Synonyms at flash. 2. To be bright or sparkling, as with merriment or delight: eyes that twinkled with joy. 3. To blink or wink the eyes. See Synonyms at blink. 4. To move about or to and fro rapidly and gracefully; flit. — v. tr. To emit (light) in slight, intermittent gleams. — n. 1. A slight, intermittent gleam of light; a sparkling flash; a glimmer. 2. A sparkle of merriment or delight in the eye. 3. A brief interval; a twinkling. 4. A rapid to-and-fro movement. [Middle twin·kling (twɪŋ'klɪŋ) n. 1. The act of blinking. 2. A blink or twinkle: the twinkling of a starry sky. 3. The time it takes to blink once; an instant: disappeared in the twinkling of an eye.

English twinklen, from Old English twinclian, frequentative of twincan, to blink.]

—twink'ler n. —twink'ly adj.

twin·leaf (twɪn'lēf') n. pl. twin-leaves (-lēvz'). An eastern North American woodland plant (Jeffersonia diphylla) having basal leaves deeply cleft into two kidney-shaped lobes and a solitary white flower borne on a long scape.

twinned (twɪnd) adj. 1. Born two in a single birth. 2. Paired or coupled with something identical or similar. 3. Mineralogy. Formed by the process of twinning. Used of crystals.

twin·ning (twɪn'ɪŋ) n. 1. The bearing of twins. 2. A pairing or union of two similar or identical objects. 3. Mineralogy. The formation of twin crystals.

Twin Peaks (twɪn pēks) A mountain, 3,153.7 m (10,340 ft) high, in the Salmon River Mountains of central Idaho. It is the highest elevation in the range.

Twins (twɪnz) pl.n. (used with a sing. verb). See Gemini.

twin-screw (twɪn'skrō') adj. Nautical. Having two propellers, one on either side of the keel, that usually revolve in opposite directions.

twin-size (twɪn'sɪz') adj. 1. Measuring about 39 by 75 inches (99 by 190 centimeters). Used of a bed: a twin-size bed. 2. Being of a size that will fit such a bed: twin-size sheets. [From twin bed, one of a matching pair of single beds.]

twirl (twɪrl) v. twirled, twirl-ing, twirls. — v. tr. 1. To rotate or revolve briskly; swing in a circle; spin: twirled a baton to lead the band. 2. To twist or wind around: twirl thread on a spindle. — v. intr. 1. To move or spin around rapidly, suddenly, or repeatedly: The pinwheel twirled in the breeze. 2. To whirl or turn suddenly; make an about-face: twirled in the direction of the noise.

3. Baseball. To pitch. — n. 1. The act of twirling or the condition of being twirled; a quick spinning or twisting. 2. Something twirled; a twist: a twirl of cotton candy. [Origin unknown.] —twirl'er n.

twirp (twɪrp) n. Slang. Variant of twerp.

twist (twɪst) v. twist-ed, twist-ing, twists. — v. tr. 1. a. To wind together (two or more threads, for example) so as to produce a single strand. b. To form in this manner: twist a length of rope from strands of hemp. 2. To wind or coil (vines or rope, for example) about something. 3. To interlock or interlace: twist flowers in one's hair. 4. To make (one's way) in a tortuous manner: twisted my way through the briar patch. 5. To turn so as to face another direction: twisted their heads around at the sound of the doorbell. 6. To impart a spiral or coiling shape to, as by turning the ends in opposite directions: twisting wire into a loop. 7. a. To turn or open by turning: twisted off the bottle cap. b. To pull, break, or snap by turning: twist off a dead branch. 8. To wrench or sprain: twist one's wrist. 9. To alter the normal aspect of; contort: twist one's mouth into a wry smile.

10. To alter or distort the intended meaning of: The cross-examiner twisted the words of the witness. See Synonyms at distort. 11. To alter or distort the mental, moral, or emotional character of: The trauma twisted the child's outlook. — v. intr. 1. To be or become twisted. 2. To move or progress in a winding course; meander: The river twisted toward the sea. 3. To squirm; writhe: twist with pain. 4. To rotate or revolve. 5. To dance the twist. 6. To move so as to face in another direction. — n. 1. Something twisted or formed by twisting, especially: a. A length of yarn, cord, or thread, especially a strong silk thread used mainly to bind the edges of buttonholes. b. Tobacco leaves processed into the form of a rope or roll. c. A loaf of bread or other bakery product made from pieces of dough twisted together. d. A sliver of citrus peel twisted over or dropped into a beverage for flavoring. 2. The act of twisting or the condition of being twisted; a spin, twirl, or rotation. 3. Sports. a. A complete rotation of the body around its vertical axis, as in diving and gymnastics. b. A spinning motion given to a ball when thrown or struck in a specific way. 4. a. The state of being twisted into a spiral; torsional stress or strain. b. The degree or angle of torsional stress. 5. a. A contortion or distortion of the body, especially the face. b. A distortion of meaning: gave my words a misleading twist. 6. A sprain or wrench, as of an ankle. 7. A change in direction; a turn: a sharp twist in the path. 8. An unexpected change in a process or a departure from a pattern, often producing a distortion or perversion: a twist of fate; a story with a quirky twist. 9. A personal inclination or eccentricity; a penchant or flaw: an odd twist to his character. 10. A dance characterized by vigorous gyrations of the hips and arms. — idiom. twist (some-one's) arm. Slang. To coerce by or as if by physical force: If you twist my arm, I'll stay for a second beer. [Middle English twisten, from twist, a divided object, fork, rope, from Old English -twist. See dwo- in Appendix.] — twist'a-bil'i-ty n. — twist'a-ble adj. — twist'ing-ly adv. — twist'y adj.

twist drill (twɪst drɪl) n. A drill having deep helical grooves along the shank from the point.

twist-er (twɪs'tər) n. 1. One that twists, as in the manufacture of rope or yarn. 2. Sports. A ball thrown or batted with a twist. 3. Informal. a. A cyclone. b. A tornado.

twit (twɪt) v. tr. twit-ted, twit-ting, twits. To taunt, ridicule, or tease, especially for embarrassing mistakes or faults. See Synonyms at ridicule. — n.

1. The act or an instance of twitting. 2. A reproach, gibe, or taunt. 3. Slang. A person regarded as foolishly annoying. [Short for obsolete atwite, from Middle English atwiten, from Old English æt wītan : æt, at; see AT¹ + wītan, to reproach; see weid- in Appendix.] — twit'ter n.

twitch (twɪtʃ) v. twitched, twitch-ing, twitch-es. — v. tr. To draw, pull, or move suddenly and sharply; jerk: I twitched my fishing line. — v. intr. 1. To move jerkily or spasmodically. See Synonyms at jerk¹. 2. To ache sharply from time to time; twinge. — n. 1. A sudden involuntary or spasmodic muscular movement: a twitch of the eye. 2. A sudden pulling; a tug: The fish gave my line a twitch. 3. A looped cord used to restrain a horse by tightening it around the animal's upper lip. [Middle English twicchen, possibly akin to Low German twikken.] — twitch'ing-ly adv.

twitch-y (twɪtʃ'ē) adj. twitch-i-er, twitch-i-est. 1. Characterized by jerky or spasmodic motion: the twitchy whiskers of a cat. 2. Nervous; jittery. — twitch'i-ly adv. — twitch'i-ness n.

twite (twīt) n. A small songbird (Carduelis flavirostris) of northern Great Britain and Scandinavia that resembles the linnet. [Imitative of its call.]

twit-ter (twɪt'ər) v. twit-tered, twit-ter-ing, twit-ters. — v. intr. 1. To utter a succession of light chirping or tremulous sounds; chirrup. 2. a. To speak rapidly and in a tremulous manner: twittering over office gossip. b. To giggle nervously; titter. 3. To tremble with nervous agitation or excitement. — v. tr. To utter or say with a twitter: twittered a greeting. — n. 1. a. The light chirping sound made by certain birds. b. A similar sound, especially light, tremulous speech or laughter. 2. Agitation or excitement; flutter. [Middle English twiteren, ultimately of imitative origin.] — twit'ter-er n. — twit'ter-y adj.

twixt also 'twixt (twɪkst) prep. Betwixt.

two (tō) n. 1. The cardinal number equal to the sum of 1 + 1. 2. The second in a set or sequence. 3. Something having two parts, units, or members, especially a playing card, the face of a die, or a domino with two pips. — idiom. in two. Into two separate parts; in half: cut the sandwich in two. [Middle English, from Old English twā. See dwo- in Appendix.] — two adj. & pron.

two-bag-ger (tō'bæg'ər) n. Baseball. See two-base hit.

two-base hit (tō'bās' hīt) n. Baseball. A hit enabling the batter to reach second base. Also called double, two-bagger.

two-bit (tō'bɪt') adj. 1. Informal. Costing or worth 25 cents: a two-bit cigar. 2. Slang. Worth very little; petty or insignificant: a two-bit thief.

two bits (tō bɪts) pl.n. 1. Informal. Twenty-five cents. 2. Slang. A petty sum.

two-by-four (tō'bī-fôr', -fôr', tō'bə-) adj. 1. Measuring two units by four units, especially inches. 2. Slang. Small in size; boxed in or cramped: a two-by-four apartment. — n. A length of lumber that is 2 inches thick and 4 inches wide, or that is trimmed to slightly smaller dimensions.

two cents worth (tō sents wŭrth) n. Informal. A usually unsolicited opinion on a subject: offered my two cents worth on the new policy.

two-di-men-sion-al (tō'dī-měn'shə-nəl, -dī-) adj. 1. Having only two dimensions, especially length and width. 2. Lacking the requisite or expected range or depth: a movie with two-dimensional characters.

- two-edged (tōō'ēj'd/) adj. 1. Having two keen edges. 2. Being such that two contrasting meanings, effects, or interpretations are possible: a two-edged compliment.
- two-faced (tōō'fāst/) adj. 1. Having two faces or surfaces. 2. Hypocritical or double-dealing; deceitful. —two'-fac'ed·ly (-fā'sid-lē, -fāst'lē) adv. —two'-fac'ed-ness n.
- two-fer (tōō'fər) n. Informal. 1. A coupon offering two items, especially tickets for a play, for the price of one. 2. An offer, a deal, or an arrangement in which a single expense yields a dual return: Going to a wedding in New Orleans during Mardi Gras was a twofer. 3. One who belongs to two minority groups and can be counted, as by an employer, as part of two quotas. [Shortening and alteration of two for (the price of one).]
- two-fisted (tōō'fis'tid) adj. 1. Using or able to use two fists: a two-fisted backhand stroke in tennis. 2. Informal. Characterized by great vigor, energy, or enthusiasm: a two-fisted drinker; a two-fisted card player.
- two-grained spelt (tōō'grānd' spēlt) n. See emmer.
- two-hand-ed (tōō'hān'did) adj. 1. Requiring the use of two hands at once: a two-handed sledgehammer. 2. Made to be operated by two people: a two-handed crosscut saw. 3. Able to use both hands with equal facility; ambidextrous.
- 4. Having two hands.
- two-mast-er (tōō'mās'tər) n. Nautical. A sailing vessel having two masts.
- two-name (tōō'nām') adj. Relating to or being a commercial paper bearing the signatures of two persons liable for the obligation.
- two-pence or tup-pence (tŭp'əns) n. 1. a. Chiefly British. Two pennies regarded as a monetary unit. b. A very small amount; a whit: didn't care twopence about politics. 2. pl. twopence or two-penc-es. A British coin worth two pennies.
- two-pen-ny (tŭp'ə-nē, tōō'pēn'ē) adj. 1. Worth or costing two pennies: twopenny candy. 2. Cheap; worthless.
- two-phase (tōō'fāz') adj. Electricity. Relating to two alternating currents with phases at 90°.
- two-piece (tōō'pēs') adj. Made in or consisting of two parts or pieces. — n. A garment, such as a swimsuit, consisting of two parts.
- two-ply (tōō'pli') adj. 1. Made of two interwoven layers. 2. Consisting of two thicknesses or strands: two-ply yarn.
- two-seat-er (tōō'sē'tər) n. A vehicle with seats for two people.
- Two Sic-i-lies (tōō sīs'ə-lēz) A former kingdom comprising Sicily and Naples. The two territories were ruled jointly at various times and were united in 1816. Garibaldi conquered the kingdom in 1860 and annexed it to Italy.
- two-some (tōō'səm) n. 1. Two people or things together; a pair or couple.
- 2. Sports. A round of golf played by two people.

two-spot (tōō'spōt') n. 1. Games. A playing card bearing two spots or pips; a deuce. 2. Slang. a. A two-dollar bill. b. Two dollars.

two-step (tōō'stēp') n. 1. A ballroom dance in 2/4 time, characterized by long, sliding steps. 2. The music for this dance.

two-time (tōō'tīm') v. tr. two--timed, two--tim-ing, two--times. Slang.
1. To be unfaithful to (a spouse or lover). 2. To deceive; double-cross. —two/-tim'er n.

two-toed sloth (tōō'tōd' slōth) n. See sloth (n., sense 2b).

two-tone (tōō'tōn') or two-toned (-tōnd') adj. Having two colors or two shades of a single color.

two-way (tōō'wā') adj. 1. a. Affording passage in two directions: a two-way street. b. Moving in two directions: two-way traffic. 2. a. Permitting communication in two directions: a two-way radio. b. Permitting flow in two directions: a two-way valve. 3. a. Expressive of or involving mutual action, relationship, or responsibility. b. Involving two participants: a two-way treaty.

two-wheel-er (tōō'hwē'lər, -wē'-) n. A vehicle with two wheels, especially a bicycle.

twp. abbr. Township.

TWX abbr. Teletypewriter exchange.

TX abbr. Texas.

-ty suff. Condition; quality: reality. [Middle English -te, from Old French, from Latin -tās.]

Ty-chy (tik'ē) A town of south-central Poland south of Katowice. It was largely developed as a resettlement community after World War II. Population, 181,800.

ty-coon (tī-kōōn') n. 1. A wealthy and powerful businessperson or industrialist; a magnate. 2. Used formerly as a title for a Japanese shogun. [Japanese taikun, title of a shogun, of Chinese origin.]

WORD HISTORY: Business tycoons may consider themselves captains or even princes of industry, but by virtue of being called tycoons, they have already achieved princely status, at least from an etymological point of view. Tycoon came into English from Japanese, which had borrowed the title, meaning “great prince,” from Chinese. Use of the word was intended to make the shogun, the commander in chief of the Japanese army, more impressive to foreigners (his official title shōgun merely meant “general”). In fact, the shogun actually ruled Japan, although he was supposedly acting for the emperor. When Matthew C. Perry opened Japan to the West in 1854, he negotiated with the shogun, thinking him to be the emperor. The shogun’s title, taikun, was brought back to the United States after Perry’s visit. Abraham Lincoln’s cabinet members used tycoon as an affectionate nickname for the President. The word soon came to be used for business and industry leaders—perhaps at times for those who had as much right to such an impressive title as did the shogun. The word itself now has an old-fashioned sound, but when we encounter it, we should think back to the days of Commodore Perry and President Lincoln, both of whom were real tycoons in their own ways.

Ty·gart (tī'gərt) A river, about 257 km (160 mi) long, of northern West Virginia flowing northward as a tributary of the Monongahela River.

ty·ing (tī'ing) v. Present participle of tie.

tyke also tike (tik) n. 1. A small child, especially a boy. 2. A mongrel or cur. 3. Chiefly British. A man considered uncouth or mean; a boor. [Middle English, mongrel, from Old Norse tīk, bitch.]

ty·lec·to·my (tī-lĕk'tə-mē) n. pl. ty·lec·to·mies. Surgical removal of a lump, especially a cancerous one. [Greek tulos, lump; see teuə- in Appendix + -ECTOMY.]

Ty·le·nol (tī'lə-nōl', -nōl') A trademark used for a brand of acetaminophen.

Ty·ler (tī'lər) A city of northeast Texas east-southeast of Dallas. It is a refining and manufacturing center noted for its rose-growing industry. Population, 75,450.

Ty·ler (tī'lər), John. 1790-1862. The 10th President of the United States (1841-1845), who succeeded to office after the death of President William Henry Harrison. His administration was marked by the annexation of Texas (1845).

Ty·ler (tī'lər), Moses Coit. 1835-1900. American scholar and educator who was a founder (1884) of the American Historical Association.

Ty·ler (tī'lər), Royall. 1757-1826. American jurist and writer considered the founder of American drama. His plays include The Contrast (first produced 1787).

Ty·ler (tī'lər), Wat. Died 1381. English revolutionary who led the Peasants' Revolt against Richard II's poll tax in June 1381. The uprising ended when he was killed.

ty·lose (tī'lōs) n. Botany. A balloonlike outgrowth of a parenchyma cell through a pit into the cavity of a plant vessel. Also called *tylosis*² [French.]

ty·lo·sin (tī'lə-sin') n. An antibiotic, C₄₆H₇₇NO₁₇, obtained from the actinomycete Streptomyces fradiae and used to treat respiratory infections in animals. [Origin unknown.]

ty·lo·sis¹ (tī-lō'sīs) n. pl. ty·lo·ses (-sēz). 1. Inflammation of the eyelids, characterized by thickening and hardening of the edges. 2. A thickening of the horny layer of the skin as a result of chronic pressure or friction. [New Latin tylōsis, from Greek tulōsis, a making callous : tulos, callus; see teuə- in Appendix + -ōsis, -osis.]

ty·lo·sis² (tī-lō'sīs) n. pl. ty·lo·ses (-sēz). Botany. See tylose.

ty·bal (tīm'bəl) n. Variant of timbal.

tym·pan (tĭm'pən) n. 1. Printing. A padding, as of paper or cloth, placed over the platen of a press to regulate the pressure on the sheet being printed.

2. Architecture. A tympanum. 3. A tightly stretched sheet or membrane, as on the head of a drum. [Middle English timpan, drum, from Old English timpana, from Latin tympanum, from Greek tumpanon.]

tym·pa·na (tĭm'pə-nə) n. A plural of tympanum.

tym·pa·nal (tĭm'pə-nəl) adj. Anatomy. Variant of tympanic (adj., sense 2).

tym·pa·ni (tĭm'pə-nē) pl.n. Music. Variant of timpani.

tym·pan·ic (tĭm-păn'ĭk) adj. 1. Relating to or resembling a drum. 2. Also tym·pa·nal (tĭm'pə-nəl). Anatomy. Of or relating to the middle ear or eardrum. [From Latin tympanum, drum. See TYMPANUM.]

tympanic bone (tĭm-păn'ĭk bōn) n. The part of the temporal bone of the skull that partially encloses the middle ear and supports the eardrum.

tympanic cavity (tĭm-păn'ĭk kăv'ĭ-tē) n. A large, irregularly shaped cavity of the middle ear.

tympanic membrane (tĭm-păn'ĭk mēm'brān') n. Anatomy. See eardrum.

tym·pa·nist (tĭm'pə-nĭst) n. Music. Variant of timpanist.

tym·pa·ni·tes (tĭm'pə-nī'tēz) n. A distention of the abdomen resulting from the accumulation of gas or air in the intestine or peritoneal cavity. Also called tympany [Middle English, from Late Latin tympanitēs, from Greek tumpanitēs, from tumpanon, drum.] —tym'pa·nit'ic (-nĭt'ĭk) adj.

tym·pa·ni·tis (tĭm'pə-nī'tĭs) n. Inflammation of the inner ear. [TYMPAN(UM) + -ITIS.]

tym·pa·no·plas·ty (tĭm'pə-nə-plăs'tē, -nō-) n. pl. tym·pa·no·plas·ties.

Surgical repair or reconstruction of the middle ear. [TYMPAN(UM) + -PLASTY.]

tym·pa·num also tim·pa·num (tĭm'pə-nəm) n. pl. tym·pa·na (-nə) or tym·pa·nums. 1. a. Anatomy. See middle ear. b. See eardrum. 2. Zoology. A membranous external auditory structure, as in certain insects. 3. Architecture. a. The ornamental recessed space or panel enclosed by the cornices of a triangular pediment. b. A similar space between an arch and the lintel of a portal or window. 4. The diaphragm of a telephone. [Medieval Latin, from Latin, drum, from Greek tumpanon.]

tym·pa·ny (tĭm'pə-nē) n. pl. tym·pa·nies. 1. Archaic. Inflated manner or style; bombast. 2. See tympanites. [Medieval Latin tympanias, tympanites, from Greek tumpanias, from tumpanon, drum.]

Tyn·dale also Tin·dal or Tin·dale (tĭn'dl), William. 1494?-1536. English religious reformer and martyr whose translation of the New Testament was the basis of the King James Bible.

Tyn·dall (tĭn'dl), John. 1820-1893. Irish-born British physicist known for his work on the transparency of gases and the absorption by gases of radiant heat.

Tyndall, Mount. A mountain, 4,275.8 m (14,019 ft) high, in the Sierra Nevada of south-central California.

Tyn·dar·e·us (tĭn-dâr'ē-əs) n. Greek Mythology. A king of Sparta and the husband of Leda.

Tyne (tĭn) A river, about 129 km (80 mi) long, of northern England flowing eastward to the North Sea.

Tyne·mouth (tĭn'mouth', -məθ) A borough of northeast England on the North Sea at the mouth of the Tyne River. It is a port, shipbuilding center, and seaside resort. Population, 200,100.

typ. abbr. Typographer; typography.

typ·al (tĭ'pəl) adj. Of, relating to, or serving as a type; typical.

type (tĭp) n. 1. A number of people or things having in common traits or characteristics that distinguish them as a group or class. 2. The general character or structure held in common by a number of people or things considered as a group or class. 3. A person or thing having the features of a group or class. 4. An example or a model having the ideal features of a group or class; an embodiment: “He was the perfect type of a military dandy” (Joyce Cary). 5. A person regarded as exemplifying a particular profession, rank, or social group: a group of executive types; a restaurant frequented by tourist types. 6. A figure, representation, or symbol of something to come, such as an event in the Old Testament that foreshadows another in the New Testament. 7. a. A taxonomic group, especially a genus or species, chosen as the representative example in characterizing the larger taxonomic group to which it belongs. b. The specimen on which the original description and naming of a taxon is based. 8. Printing. a. A small block of metal or wood bearing a raised letter or character on the upper end that leaves a printed impression when inked and pressed on paper. b. Such pieces considered as a group. c. Printed or typewritten characters; print. d. A size or style of printed or typewritten characters; a typeface: a sans-serif type. 9. A pattern, a design, or an image impressed or stamped onto the face of a coin. — v. typed, typ·ing, types. — v. tr. 1. To write (something) with a typewriter; typewrite. 2. To determine the antigenic characteristics of (a blood or tissue sample). 3. To typecast. 4. To represent or typify. 5. To prefigure. — v. intr. To write with a typewriter; typewrite. [Middle English, symbol, from Late Latin typus, type, from Latin, image, from Greek tupos, impression.]

SYNONYMS: type, kind, sort, nature, character, ilk. These nouns refer to groups of people or things regarded as constituting a class because of their shared attributes or characteristics. Type in strict usage implies such similarity in traits among members of the group that the group is clearly and unmistakably distinguished from all others: “I seem to discern six types [of judicial writing] which divide themselves from one another with measurable distinctness” (Benjamin N. Cardozo). Kind can refer to a class whose members are linked by innate characteristics: “Material objects are of two kinds, atoms and compounds of atoms” (Lucretius). Often, however, type and kind, like sort, are applied when the resemblance or relationship is not precisely defined: I don’t enjoy that type of show. “What kind of people do they think we are?” (Winston S. Churchill). “Here dies the dusky torch of Mortimer, / Chok’d with ambition of the meaner sort” (Shakespeare). Nature in this comparison refers to native or inherent traits: Most of the articles in the magazine are of a didactic nature. Character emphasizes qualities peculiar to individual members of a group: Her criticism had the character of a bit of kindly advice. Ilk refers, often disparagingly, to classification by character, disposition, point of view, or standing: a larcenous tendency restricted to shady operators and others of that ilk.

type A or Type A (tīp ā) adj. Of or relating to a behavior pattern characterized by tenseness, impatience, and aggressiveness, often resulting in stress-related symptoms such as insomnia and indigestion and possibly increasing the risk of heart disease. — n. pl. type A’s or Type A’s. One who exhibits this behavior pattern.

type B or Type B (tīp bē) adj. Of or relating to a behavior pattern characterized by a relaxed manner, patience, and friendliness that possibly decreases one’s risk of heart disease. — n. pl. type B’s or Type B’s. One who exhibits this behavior pattern.

type bar (tīp bār) n. One of the thin movable bars on many typewriters and some computer printers that carry the letters or characters.

type-cast (tīp/’kăst’) v. tr. type-cast, type-cast-ing, type-casts. 1. To cast in an acting role akin or natural to one’s own personality or fitted to one’s physical appearance. 2. To assign (a performer) repeatedly to the same kind of part.

type-face (tīp/’fās’) n. Printing. 1. a. The surface of a block of type that makes the impression. b. The impression made by this surface. 2. The size or style of the letter or character on a block of type. 3. The full range of type of the same design.

type genus (tīp jē’nəs) n. Abbr. t.g. The taxonomic genus that is designated as representative of the family to which it belongs.

type-high (tīp/’hī’) adj. Printing. As high as the standard height of type, measured from the face to the foot, 23.3 millimeters (0.9186 inch).

type locality (tīp lō-kăl/’ī-tē) n. 1. Biology & Paleontology. The place or source where a holotype or type specimen was found. 2. Geology. The place or region in which a rock, series of rock, or formation is typically exposed.

type metal (tīp mēt/’l) n. Printing. An alloy used for making metal type, consisting mainly of lead, antimony, and tin.

type-script (tīp/'skrīpt') n. 1. A typewritten copy, as of a manuscript.

2. Typewritten matter. [TYPE + (MANU)SCRIPT.]

type-set (tīp/'sēt') v. tr. type-set, type-set-ting, type-sets. Printing. To set (written material) into type; compose. —type/set/ter n.

type-site (tīp/'sīt') n. An archaeological site regarded as definitively characteristic of a particular culture and whose name is often applied to the culture.

type species (tīp spē/'shēz) n. The taxonomic species that is designated as representative of the genus to which it belongs.

type specimen (tīp spēs/'ə-mən) n. The individual specimen used as a basis for determining the characteristics of a species.

type-style or type style (tīp/'stīl') n. Printing. A specific style of type, as Roman.

type-write (tīp/'rīt') v. intr. tr. type-wrote (-rōt'), type-writ-ten (-rīt'n), type-writ-ing, type-writes. To engage in writing or to write (matter) with a typewriter. [Back-formation from TYPEWRITER.]

type-writ-er (tīp/'rī'tər) n. 1. A writing machine that produces characters similar to typeset print by means of a manually operated keyboard that actuates a set of raised types, which strike the paper through an inked ribbon. 2. Printing. A typestyle like that of typewritten copy.

type-writ-ing (tīp/'rī'tīng) n. 1. The act, process, or skill of using a typewriter. 2. Copy produced on a typewriter; typescript.

type-writ-ten (tīp/'rīt'n) v. Past participle of typewrite.

type-wrote (tīp/'rōt') v. Past tense of typewrite.

typh-li-tis (tīf-'lī'tīs) n. Inflammation of the cecum of the large intestine.

[Greek tuphlon, cecum, from neuter of tuphlos, blind + -ITIS.] —typh-lyt'ic (-līt'ik) adj.

typh-ol-o-gy (tīf-'lōl'ə-jē) n. The medical study of blindness. [Greek tuphlos, blind + -LOGY.]

typh-lo-sole (tīf/'lə-sōl') n. Zoology. A longitudinal fold of the intestinal wall in certain invertebrates and lower vertebrates that increases the absorptive and digestive surface area of the intestine. [Greek tuphlos, blind + Greek sōlēn, pipe.]

ty-pho-gen-ic (tī'fə-'jēn'ik) adj. Causing typhus.

ty-phoid (tī'foid') n. Typhoid fever. — adj. also ty-phoi-dal (tī-'foid'l) Of, relating to, or resembling typhoid fever. [TYPH(US) + -OID.]

typhoid fever (tī'foid' fē'vər) n. An acute, highly infectious disease caused by a bacillus (Salmonella typhi) transmitted chiefly by contaminated food or water and characterized by high fever, headache, coughing, intestinal hemorrhaging, and rose-colored spots on the skin. Also called enteric fever ty-phoi-din (tī-'foi'dīn) n. A culture of typhoid bacilli, used to test for the presence of typhoid fever.

Ty-phoid Mar-y (tī'foid' mâr'ē) n. A person from whom something undesirable or deadly spreads to those nearby. [After Mary Mallon, a carrier of typhoid.]

Ty-phon (tī'fōn') n. Greek Mythology. A monster with one hundred heads, thrown by Zeus into Tartarus.

ty-phoon (tī-fōon') n. A tropical cyclone occurring in the western Pacific or Indian oceans. [Probably alteration of Chinese (Cantonese) toi fung: Mandarin tái, great + Mandarin fēng, wind.]

WORD HISTORY: Perhaps few words better illustrate the polyglot background of English than typhoon, with its Chinese, Arabic, East Indian, and Greek background. The Greek word typhon, both the name of the father of the winds and a common noun meaning “whirlwind, typhoon,” was borrowed into Arabic (as was many a Greek word during the Middle Ages, when Arabic learning both preserved the classical heritage and expanded upon it, passing it on to Europe). Ṭūfān, the Arabic version of the Greek word, passed into languages spoken in India, where Arabic-speaking Muslim invaders had settled in the 11th century. Thus the descendant of the Arabic word, passing into English (first recorded in 1588) through an Indian language and appearing in English in forms such as touffon and tufan, originally referred specifically to a severe storm in India. China, another great empire, gave us yet another word for a storm, in this case the hurricane that occurred in the waters around China. This Chinese word in its Cantonese form, toi fung, was similar to our Arabic borrowing and is first recorded in English guise as tuffoon in 1699. The various forms coalesced and finally became typhoon.

ty-phus (tī'fəs) n. Any of several forms of infectious disease caused by rickettsia, especially those transmitted by fleas, lice, or mites, and characterized generally by severe headache, sustained high fever, depression, delirium, and the eruption of red rashes on the skin. Also called prison fever, ship fever, typhus fever. [New Latin, from Greek tuphos, stupor arising from a fever, vapor, from tuphein, to smoke.] —ty'phous (-fəs) adj.

typ-i-cal (tīp'ī-kəl) adj. 1. Exhibiting the qualities, traits, or characteristics that identify a kind, class, group, or category: a typical suburban community. See Synonyms at normal. 2. Of or relating to a representative specimen; characteristic or distinctive. 3. Conforming to a type: a composition typical of the baroque period. 4. Also typ-ic (-īk). Of the nature of, constituting, or serving as a type; emblematic. [Late Latin typicālis, from typicus, from Greek tupikos, from tupos, impression.] —typ'i-cal-ly adv. —typ'i-cal-ness, typ'i-cal/i-ty (-kāl'ī-tē) n.

typ-i-fy (tīp'ə-fī') v. tr. typ-i-fied (-fīd'), typ-i-fy-ing, typ-i-fies (-fīz'). 1. To serve as a typical example of; embody the essential characteristics of: a painting that typifies the artist's work. 2. To represent by an image, a form, or a model; symbolize or prefigure. —typ'i-fi-ca'tion (-fī-kā'shən) n. —typ'i-fi'er n.

typ·ist (tī'pĭst) n. One who operates a typewriter.

ty·po (tī'pō) n. pl. ty·pos. Informal. A typographical error.

typo. abbr. Printing. Typographer; typography.

ty·pog·ra·pher (tī-pōg'rə-fər) n. Abbr. typ., typo. Printing. One that sets written material into type; a compositor or printer.

typographical error (tī'pə-grăf'ī-kəl ər'ər) n. Printing. A mistake in printing, typesetting, or typing, especially one caused by striking an incorrect key on a keyboard.

ty·pog·ra·phy (tī-pōg'rə-fē) n. pl. ty·pog·ra·phies. Abbr. typ., typo. Printing. 1. a. The art and technique of printing with movable type. b. The composition of printed material from movable type. 2. The arrangement and appearance of printed matter. [French typographie, from Medieval Latin typographia : Greek typos, impression + Latin -graphia, -graphy.]

—ty'po·graph'i·cal (tī'pə-grăf'ī-kəl), ty'po·graph'ic (-grăf'ik) adj.

—ty'po·graph'i·cal·ly adv.

ty·pol·o·gy (tī-pōl'ə-jē) n. pl. ty·pol·o·gies. 1. The study or systematic classification of types that have characteristics or traits in common. 2. A theory or doctrine of types, as in scriptural studies. —ty'po·log'i·cal (tī'pə-lōj'ī-kəl), ty'po·log'ic (-lōj'ik) adj. —ty'po·log'i·cal·ly adv. —ty·pol·o·gist n.

Tyr (tĭr) n. Mythology. A Norse god of war, son of Odin. [Old Norse Týr. See deiw- in Appendix.]

ty·ra·mine (tī'rə-mēn') n. A colorless crystalline amine, C₈H₁₁NO, found in mistletoe, putrefied animal tissue, certain cheeses, and ergot and also produced synthetically, used in medicine as a sympathomimetic agent. [TYR(OSINE) + AMINE.]

ty·ran·ni·cal (tĭ-răn'ī-kəl, tī-) also ty·ran·nic (-răn'ik) adj. 1. Of or relating to a tyrant or tyranny: a tyrannical government. 2. Characteristic of a tyrant or tyranny; despotic and oppressive: a tyrannical supervisor. —ty·ran'ni·cal·ly adv. —ty·ran'ni·cal·ness n.

tyr·an·nize (tĭr'ə-nĭz') v. tyr·an·nized, tyr·an·niz·ing, tyr·an·niz·es. — v. tr. To treat tyrannically; oppress. — v. intr. 1. To exercise absolute power: "So it is the nature of such persons to insult and tyrannize over little people" (Henry Fielding). 2. To rule as a tyrant. [Middle English, from Old French tyranniser, from tyran, tyrant. See TYRANT.] —tyr'an·niz'er n. —tyr'an·niz'ing·ly adv.

ty·ran·no·saur (tĭ-răn'ə-sôr', tī-) also ty·ran·no·saur·us (tĭ-răn'ə-sôr'əs, tī-) n. A large carnivorous dinosaur of the Upper Cretaceous Period of North America, characterized by small forelimbs and a large head. [New Latin Tyrannosaurus, genus name : Greek turannos, tyrant + Greek sauros, lizard.]

tyr·an·nous (tĭr'ə-nəs) adj. Characterized by tyranny; despotic.

—tyr'an·nous·ly adv.

tyr-an-ny (tĭr'ə-nē) n. pl. tyr-an-nies. 1. A government in which a single ruler is vested with absolute power. 2. The office, authority, or jurisdiction of an absolute ruler. 3. Absolute power, especially when exercised unjustly or cruelly: "I have sworn... eternal hostility against every form of tyranny over the mind of man" (Thomas Jefferson). 4. a. Use of absolute power. b. A tyrannical act.

5. Extreme harshness or severity; rigor. [Middle English tyrannie, from Old French, from Late Latin tyrannia, from Greek turannia, from turannos, tyrant.]

ty-rant (tĭ'rənt) n. 1. An absolute ruler who governs without restrictions. 2. A ruler who exercises power in a harsh, cruel manner. 3. An oppressive, harsh, arbitrary person. [Middle English, from Old French, alteration of tyran, from Latin tyrannus, from Greek turannos.]

tyrant flycatcher (tĭ'rənt flī'käch'ər) n. See flycatcher (n., sense 2).

tyre (tĭr) n. Chiefly British. Variant of tire².

Tyre (tĭr) An ancient Phoenician city on the eastern Mediterranean Sea in present-day southern Lebanon. The capital of Phoenicia after the 11th century B.C., it was a flourishing commercial center noted for its purple dyestuffs and rich, silken clothing. Tyre was besieged and captured by Alexander the Great in 332 B.C. and was finally destroyed by Muslims in A.D. 1291.

Tyr-i-an purple (tĭr'ē-ən pŭr'pəl) n. A reddish dyestuff obtained from the bodies of certain mollusks of the genus Murex and highly prized in ancient times. [After Tyre.]

ty-ro also ti-ro (tĭ'rō) n. pl. ty-ros. A beginner in learning something. See Synonyms at amateur. [Medieval Latin tŷrō, squire, variant of Latin tĭrō, recruit.]

ty-ro-ci-dine also ty-ro-ci-din (tĭ'rə-sĭd'n) n. A polypeptide antibiotic, produced by the soil microorganism Bacillus brevis, that is a major constituent of tyrothricin. [TYRO(THRICIN) + (GRAMI)CID(IN) + -INE².]

Ty-rol or Ti-rol (tə-rōl', tĭ-, tĭ'rōl') A region of the eastern Alps in western Austria and northern Italy. Inhabited in ancient times by Celtic peoples, the Tyrol constantly passed back and forth, in whole or in part, between Austria and Italy in the 1800's. Its present division dates from the Treaty of St. Germain in 1919. The Tyrolean Alps are a popular tourist area. —Ty-rol'le-an, Tyr'o-lese' (tĭr'ə-lēz', -lēz', tĭ'rə-) adj. & n.

ty-ros-i-nase (tĭ-rōs'ə-nās', -nāz') n. A copper-containing enzyme of plant and animal tissues that catalyzes the production of melanin and other pigments from tyrosine by oxidation, as in the blackening of a peeled or sliced potato exposed to air.

ty-ro-sine (tĭ'rə-sēn') n. A white crystalline amino acid, C₉H₁₁NO₃, that is derived from the hydrolysis of proteins such as casein and is a precursor of epinephrine, thyroxine, and melanin. [Greek turos, cheese; see teuə- in Appendix + -INE².]

ty-ro-thri-cin (tī'rō-thrī'sīn) n. A gray-brown mixture consisting mainly of tryocidine and gramicidin, used as a topical antibiotic in treating infections caused by gram-positive bacteria. [New Latin Tyrothrix, former bacteria genus name (Greek turos, cheese; see teuə- in Appendix + Greek thrix, hair) + -IN.]

Tyr-rhe-ni-an Sea (tə-rē'nē-ən sē) An arm of the Mediterranean Sea between the Italian peninsula and the islands of Corsica, Sardinia, and Sicily. The Strait of Messina connects it with the Ionian Sea.

Tyr-whitt-Wil-son (tîr'īt-wîl'sən), Sir Gerald Hugh. 1883-1950. British composer and painter whose musical compositions include the orchestral work Fantasie Espagnole (1918) and the ballet Luna Park (1930).

Tyu-men (tyōō-mě'n') A city of west-central Russia east of Sverdlovsk. Founded in 1585, it is the oldest Russian settlement east of the Ural Mountains. Population, 425,000.

tzar (zär, tsär) n. Variant of czar (n., sense 1). See Usage Note at czar.

Tze-kung (tsŭ'kōōng', dzŭ'gōōng') See Zigong.

Tze-po (tsŭ'pō', dzŭ'bō') See Zibo.

tzet-ze fly (tsět'sē flī, tsē'tsē) n. Variant of tsetse fly.

tzim-mes (tsīm'is) n. Variant of tsimmes.

Tzu Hsi (tsōō' shē'), 1835-1908. The dowager empress of China (1861-1908) who was hostile to foreign influences in China and supported the Boxer Rebellion (1898-1900).

tzu-ris (tsōōr'is, tsŭr'-) n. Variant of tsuris.

u¹ or U (yōō) n. pl. u's or U's. 1. The 21st letter of the modern English alphabet.

2. Any of the speech sounds represented by the letter u. 3. The 21st in a series.

4. Something shaped like the letter U.

u² abbr. Physics. Up quark.

U¹ (yōō) adj. Chiefly British. Of or appropriate to the upper class, especially in language usage. [U(PPER CLASS).]

U² (ōō) n. Used as a courtesy title before the name of a man in a Burmese-speaking area. [Burmese.]

U³ 1. The symbol for the element uranium. 2. The symbol for internal energy.

u. abbr. 1. Or U. Uncle. 2. Unit. 3. Or U. Upper.

U. or U abbr. University.

U.A.E. abbr. United Arab Emirates.

U.A.R. abbr. United Arab Republic.

Uau-pés (wou-pěs') In its upper course called Vau-pés (vou-pās', -pěs'). A river of northwest South America rising in south-central Colombia and flowing about 805 km (500 mi) east-southeast through northwest Brazil to the Río Negro.

UAW or U.A.W. abbr. 1. United Automobile, Aerospace, and Agricultural Implement Workers. 2. United Automobile Workers.

U-ban-gi (yōō-bǎng'gē, ōō-bǎng'-) A river of central Africa flowing about 1,126 km (700 mi) along the northwest border of Zaire to the Congo River.

U-be-ra-ba (ōō'bī-rā'bə, -bä) A city of eastern Brazil west of Belo Horizonte. It is the center of an important stock-raising area. Population, 180,228.

U-ber-lân-di-a (ōō'bīr-lān'dē-ə, -dyä) A city of eastern Brazil west-northwest of Belo Horizonte. It is a shipping and trade center. Population, 230,185.

u·bi·e·ty (yōō-bī'ī-tē) n. The condition of being located in a particular place. [Latin ubi, where; see UBIQUITY + -TY.]

u·bi·qui·none (yōō'bī-kwī-nōn', -kīn'ōn) n. A quinone compound that serves as an electron carrier between flavoproteins and in cellular respiration. [Latin ubi(que), everywhere; see UBIQUITY + QUINONE.]

u·biq·ui·tous (yōō-bīk'wī-təs) adj. Being or seeming to be everywhere at the same time; omnipresent: "plodded through the shadows fruitlessly like an ubiquitous spook" (Joseph Heller). —u·biq'ui·tous·ly adv. —u·biq'ui·tous·ness n.

u·biq·ui·ty (yōō-bīk'wī-tē) n. Existence or apparent existence everywhere at the same time; omnipresence: "the repetitiveness, the selfsameness, and the ubiquity of modern mass culture" (Theodor Adorno). [New Latin ubiquitās, from Latin ubique, everywhere : ubi, where; see k^wo- in Appendix + -que, and, generalizing particle; see k^we in Appendix.]

U-boat (yōō'bōt') n. A submarine of the German navy. [Translation of German U-Boot, short for Unterseeboot : unter, under (from Middle High German under, from Old High German untar); see ndher- in Appendix + See, sea (from Middle High German sē, from Old High German) + Boot, boat.]

U-bolt (yōō'bōlt') n. A bolt shaped like the letter U, fitted with threads and a nut at each end.

UBV photometry (yōō'bē-vē' fō-tōm'ī-trē) n. Photometry used to obtain stellar magnitudes by comparing observed magnitudes to a standard sequence of stars. [U(LTRAVIOLET) + B(LUE) + V(ISUAL).]

u.c. also UC abbr. Printing. Uppercase.

U-ca-ya-li (ōō'kā-yā'lē) A river of eastern Peru flowing about 1,609 km (1,000 mi) northward to join the Marañón River and form the Amazon River.

Uc-cel-lo (ōō-chēl'lō), Paolo. Originally Paolo di Dono. 1397-1475. Italian painter of the Florentine school known for his experimentation with perspective. His works include The Battle of San Romano (c. 1456).

Uc-cle (ōōk'lə, ü'klə) A city of central Belgium, a manufacturing suburb of Brussels. Population, 75,675.

UCMJ abbr. Uniform Code of Military Justice.

UCS abbr. Universal character set.

U-dai-pur (ōō-dī'pōōr, ōō'dī-pōōr') A city of northwest India north-northeast of Ahmadabad. Center of a former princely state, it is noted for its 16th-century palace. Population, 232,588.

UDC abbr. Universal decimal system.

ud-der (ūd'ər) n. A baglike organ containing the mammary glands, characteristic of certain female mammals, such as cows, sheep, and goats. [Middle English, from Old English ūder. See euə-dh-r in Appendix.]

U-di-ne (ōō'dē-nā') A city of northeast Italy northeast of Venice. It was the headquarters (1915-1917) of the Italian army in World War I. Population, 101,264.

u-do (ōō'dō) n. pl. u-dos. A perennial Japanese plant (Aralia cordata) having bipinnately compound leaves and young shoots that are cooked and eaten as a vegetable. [Japanese.]

u-dom-e-ter (yōō-dōm'ī-tər) n. See rain gauge. [Latin ūdus, wet (contraction of ūvidus) + -METER.]

Ue-le (wēl'ē, wēl'ā) A river, about 1,126 km (700 mi) long, of northern Zaire flowing westward as a tributary of the Ubangi River.

U-fa (ōō-fā') A city of western Russia in the southern Ural Mountains at the confluence of the Belaya and Ufa rivers. The Ufa flows about 965 km (600 mi) northwest and southwest. The city was founded as a fortress (1586) and is now a major industrial center. Population, 1,064,000.

UFO (yōō'ēf-ō') n. pl. UFOs or UFO's. An unidentified flying object.

u-fol-o-gy (yōō-fōl'ə-jē) n. The study of unidentified flying objects. [UFO + -LOGY.] —u'fo-log'i-cal (yōō'fə-lōj'ī-kəl) adj. —u-fol'o-gist n.

U-gan-da (yōō-gǎn'də, oō-gǎn'-dä) A country of east-central Africa. Inhabited in Paleolithic and Neolithic times, the region was an important conglomeration of native states by the 14th century but became a British protectorate in 1894. Uganda achieved its independence in 1962. Kampala is the capital and the largest city. Population, 12,636,179. —U-gan'dan adj. & n.

U-ga-rit (oō'gə-rēt') An ancient city of western Syria on the Mediterranean Sea. It flourished as a trade center from c. 1450 to 1195 B.C. but was destroyed soon after by an earthquake. Excavation of the ruins (beginning in 1929) have unearthed important cuneiform tablets.

U-ga-rit-ic (oō'gə-rit'ik, yōō'-) n. The Semitic language of Ugarit.
—U'ga-rit'ic adj.

ugh (üg, ŭk) interj. Used to express horror, disgust, or repugnance.

Ug-li (üg'lē) A trademark used for a citrus fruit produced by a cross of a grapefruit, an orange, and a tangerine and having a loose, wrinkled yellowish rind.

ug-li-fy (üg'lə-fī') v. tr. ug-li-fied (-fīd'), ug-li-fy-ing, ug-li-fies (-fīz'). To make ugly; disfigure. —ug'li-fi-ca'tion (-fī-kā'shən) n. —ug'li-fi'er n.

ug-ly (üg'lē) adj. ug-li-er, ug-li-est. 1. Displeasing to the eye; unsightly.

2. a. Repulsive or offensive; objectionable: an ugly remark. b. Chiefly Southern U.S. Rude: Don't be ugly to your grandparents. c. New England. Unmanageable. Used of animals, especially cows or horses. 3. Morally reprehensible; bad.

4. Threatening or ominous: ugly black clouds in the sky. 5. a. Likely to cause embarrassment or trouble: "Public opinion in both nations could take an ugly turn" (George R. Packard). b. Marked by or inclined to anger or bad feelings; cross or disagreeable: an ugly temper; an ugly scene. — n. pl. ug-lies. Informal. One that is ugly. [Middle English, frightful, repulsive, from Old Norse uggligr, from uggr, fear.] —ug'li-ly adv. —ug'li-ness n.

SYNONYMS: ugly, hideous, ill-favored, unsightly. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is "offensive to the sense of sight": ugly furniture; a hideous scar; an ill-favored countenance; an unsightly billboard.

ANTONYM: beautiful

REGIONAL NOTE: The standard sense of the adjective ugly becomes figurative in the common expression an ugly temper. Regional American speech shares this figurative sense and makes it even more specific. In New England ugly as applied to animals, especially large farm animals such as cows and horses, means "balky, hard to manage." In the South, on the other hand, ugly with the specific sense of "rude" is used of persons: Don't be ugly, son. Interestingly, the word clever (senses 4 through 6) follows the same regional pattern as ugly: in New England the specialized senses refer to animals; in the South, to persons.

ugly duckling (üɡ'lē dük'līŋ) n. One that is considered ugly or unpromising at first but has the potential of becoming beautiful or admirable in maturity.

[After The Ugly Duckling, a story by Hans Christian Andersen.]

U-gri-an (ōō'grē-ən, yōō'-) n. 1. A member of a group of Finno-Ugric peoples of western Siberia and Hungary, including the Magyars. 2. Ugric. [From Old Russian Ugre, Hungarians, of Turkic origin.] —U'gri-an adj.

U-gric (ōō'grīk, yōō'-) n. The branch of the Finno-Ugric subfamily of languages that includes Hungarian. —U'gric adj.

ug·some (üɡ'səm) adj. Disgusting; loathsome. [Middle English : uggen, to fear (from Old Norse ugga, from uggr, fear) + -some, characterized by; see *-SOME*¹.]

—ug'some-ness n.

UGT abbr. Urgent (telegram).

uh (ü) interj. Used to express hesitation or uncertainty.

uhf or UHF abbr. Ultrahigh frequency.

uh-huh (ə-hü') interj. Informal. Used to express agreement or an answer in the affirmative.

uh·lan also u·lan (ōō'län', yōō'lən) n. One of a body of horse cavalry that formed part of the former Polish army, and later, the former German army.

[German, from Polish ulan, from Turkish oĝlan, youth, from oĝul, son.]

Uh·land (ōō'länt'), Johann Ludwig. 1787-1862. German romantic poet known for his lyrical ballads and plays, including Ludwig the Bavarian (1819).

uh-uh (üN'ün') interj. Informal. Used to express disagreement or an answer in the negative.

Ui-gur also Ui-ghur (wē'göör) n. pl. Uigur or Ui-gurs also Uighur or Ui-ghurs. 1. A member of a mainly agricultural Turkic people inhabiting the Xinjiang region in China. 2. The Turkic language of the Uigurs. [Uigur.]

—Ui-gu'ri-an (-göör'ē-ən), Ui-gu'ric (-göör'ik) adj.

u·in·ta·ite (yōō-ïn'tə-īt') n. A natural black bitumen used in the manufacture of acid, alkali, and waterproof coatings. [After the Uinta (Mountains).]

U·in·ta Mountains (yōō-ïn'tə moun'tənz) A range of the Rocky Mountains extending about 193 km (120 mi) eastward from northeast Utah to southwest Wyoming. It rises to 4,116.9 m (13,498 ft) at King's Peak in Utah.

uit·land·er (oit'län'dər, it'-) n. South African. 1. An outlander; a foreigner.

2. Uitlander. A native of Great Britain who resided in either of the former republics of the Orange Free State and Transvaal. [Afrikaans, from Middle Dutch utelander, from utelant, foreign land : ute, out; see ud- in Appendix + land, land; see lendh- in Appendix.]

Uj·jain (ōō'jīn') A city of west-central India east of Ahmadabad. A Hindu pilgrimage site, it is one of the oldest cities in India and was a noted center of Sanskrit learning. Population, 278,454.

U·jung Pan·dang (ōō-jōōng' pän-däng') Formerly Ma·kas·sar or Ma·ka·sar (mə-käs'ər). A city of central Indonesia on southwest Celebes Island. First visited by the Portuguese in 1512, it was settled by the Dutch in 1607. Population, 709,038.

U.K. or UK abbr. United Kingdom.

u·kase (yōō-kās', -kāz', yōō'kās', -kāz') n. 1. An authoritative order or decree; an edict. 2. A proclamation of a czar having the force of law in imperial Russia. [French, from Russian ukaz, decree, from Old Church Slavonic ukazŭ, a showing, proof : u-, at, to + kazati, to point out, show.]

uke (yōōk) n. Music. A ukulele.

U·kraine (yōō-krān') A region and republic of eastern Europe. Inhabited in early times by Scythians and Sarmatians, the area was ruled by a number of conquerors until it came under the control of Lithuania in the mid-14th century. The Ukraine later passed to Poland and then to Russia (between 1680 and 1793). A short-lived independent republic was proclaimed in 1918. Ukraine was constituent republic of the U.S.S.R. from 1922 to 1991. Kiev is the capital. Population, 50,840,000.

U·krain·i·an (yōō-krā'nē-ən) n. 1. A native or inhabitant of the Ukraine. 2. The Slavic language of the Ukrainians, which is closely related to Russian. —U·krain'i·an adj.

u·ku·le·le (yōō'kə-lā'lē, ōō'kə-) n. Music. A small four-stringed guitar popularized in Hawaii. [Hawaiian 'ukulele : 'uku, flea + lele, jumping.]

REGIONAL NOTE: The word ukulele is one of a small stock of Polynesian borrowings into American English. Other Hawaiian words now common in American English are aloha (a greeting or farewell) and luau (an outdoor picnic usually featuring a whole barbecued pig). Haole, a word common in Hawaii itself but not well known on the American mainland, is the Hawaiian word for a white resident of Hawaii.

u·la·ma (ōō'lə-mä') n. Variant of ulema.

u·lan (ōō'län', yōō'lən) n. Variant of uhlan.

U·lan Ba·tor (ōō'län bā'tôr') The capital and largest city of Mongolia, in the north-central part of the country. It was founded as a monastery town in 1649 and was long a trading center on various caravan routes between Russia and China. Population, 488,200.

U·la·no·va (ōō-lä'nə-və), Galina. Born 1910. Russian-born dancer who was a prima ballerina with the Bolshoi Ballet from 1944 to 1962.

U·lan-U·de (ōō'län-ōō-dä', ōō-län'ōō-dě') A city of south-central Russia near Lake Baikal and the Mongolian border. Founded as a Cossack fortress in 1649, it is a transportation hub and a processing and manufacturing center. Population, 335,000.

-ular suff. Of, relating to, or resembling: tubular. [Latin -ulāris, from -ulus, diminutive suff.]

Ul-bricht (ōōl'brīkt, -brīkht), Walter. 1893-1973. German politician who was general secretary of East Germany's Socialist Unity Party (1953-1971) and chairman of the council of state (1960-1973). He ordered the building of the Berlin Wall (1961).

ul-cer (ūl'sər) n. 1. A lesion of the skin or a mucous membrane such as the one lining the stomach or duodenum that is accompanied by formation of pus and necrosis of surrounding tissue, usually resulting from inflammation or ischemia.

2. A corrupting condition or influence. [Middle English, from Old French ulcere, from Latin ulcus, ulcer-.]

ul-cer-ate (ūl'sə-rāt') v. ul-cer-at-ed, ul-cer-at-ing, ul-cer-ates. — v. intr.

To develop an ulcer; become ulcerous. — v. tr. To cause ulceration of.

—ul'cer-a'tive (-sə-rā'tīv, -sər-ə-tīv) adj.

ul-cer-a-tion (ūl'sə-rā'shən) n. 1. Development of an ulcer. 2. An ulcer or an ulcerous condition.

ul-cer-o-gen-ic (ūl'sə-rō-jən'īk) adj. Tending to cause an ulcer.

ul-cer-ous (ūl'sər-əs) adj. 1. Of the nature of ulcers or an ulcer. 2. Having ulcers or an ulcer. —ul'cer-ous-ly adv. —ul'cer-ous-ness n.

-ule suff. Small one: valvule. [French, from Latin -ulus, -ula, -ulum, diminutive suff.]

u-le-ma or u-la-ma (ōō'lə-mä') pl.n. Muslim scholars trained in Islam and Islamic law. [Turkish 'ulemā, from Arabic 'ulamā', wise men, from pl. of 'alim, wise, learned, from 'alimā, to know.]

u-lex-ite (yōō'līk-sīt', yōō-lēk'-) n. A white mineral, $\text{NaCaB}_5\text{O}_9 \cdot 8\text{H}_2\text{O}$, that forms rounded masses of very fine needle-shaped crystals. [After G.L. Ulex 19th-century German chemist.]

ULF abbr. Ultra low frequency.

Ul-has-na-gar (ōōl'hās-nūg'ər) A city of west-central India, a suburb of Bombay. Population, 273,668.

ul-lage (ūl'īj) n. 1. The amount of liquid within a container that is lost, as by leakage, during shipment or storage. 2. The amount by which a container, such as a bottle, cask, or tank, falls short of being full. [Middle English ulage, from Old French ouillage, from ouiller, to fill up a cask, from ouil, eye, bung-hole, from Latin oculus, eye. See ok^w- in Appendix.] —ul'laged adj.

Ulm (ōōlm) A city of southern Germany on the Danube River southeast of Stuttgart. First mentioned in 854, it was later a free imperial city and reached the height of its influence in the 15th century. Napoleon defeated Austrian troops here in October 1805. Population, 98,604.

ul-na (ül'nə) n. pl. ul-nas or ul-nae (-nē). Anatomy. 1. The bone extending from the elbow to the wrist on the side opposite to the thumb in human beings. 2. A corresponding bone in the forelimb of other vertebrates. [Latin, elbow, forearm. See el- in Appendix.] —ul/nar adj.

Ul-pi-an (ül'pē-ən), Died A.D. 228. Roman jurist who wrote elegantly and prolifically on many aspects of law.

Ul-san (ōöl'sän') A city of southwest South Korea on Korea Strait north-northeast of Pusan. It is an industrial center. Population, 345,700.

ul-ster (ül'stər) n. A loose, long overcoat made of heavy, rugged fabric and often belted. [After Ulster.]

Ul-ster (ül'stər) A historical region and ancient kingdom of northern Ireland. Largely annexed by the English Crown during the reign of James I, it is now divided between Ireland and Northern Ireland, which is often called Ulster.

ult. abbr. 1. Ultimate. 2. Ultimately. 3. Ultimo.

ul-te-ri-or (ül-tîr'ē-ər) adj. 1. Lying beyond what is evident, revealed, or avowed, especially being concealed intentionally so as to deceive: an ulterior motive. 2. Lying beyond or outside the area of immediate interest. 3. Occurring later; subsequent. [Latin, farther, comparative of ulter, on the other side. See al-¹ in Appendix.] —ul-te'ri-or-ly adv.

ul-ti-ma (ül'tə-mə) n. Linguistics. The last syllable of a word. [Latin, feminine of ultimus, last. See ULTIMATE.] ul-ti-ma-ta (ül'tə-mā'tə, -mä'tə) n. A plural of ultimatum.

ul-ti-mate (ül'tə-mīt) adj. Abbr. ult. 1. Being last in a series, process, or progression: “As the ultimate arbiter of the Constitution, the Supreme Court occupies a central place in our scheme of government” (Richard A. Epstein). 2. Fundamental; elemental: an ultimate truth. 3. a. Of the greatest possible size or significance; maximum: Has the ultimate diamond been found? b. Representing or exhibiting the greatest possible development or sophistication: the ultimate bicycle.

c. Utmost; extreme: the ultimate insult. 4. Being most distant or remote; farthest. See Synonyms at last¹. 5. Eventual: hoped for ultimate victory. — n.

1. The basic or fundamental fact, element, or principle. 2. The final point; the conclusion. 3. The greatest extreme; the maximum: actions that represented the ultimate in political expediency. [Latin ultimatus, past participle of ultimāre, to come to an end, from ultimus, last, superlative of ulter, on the other side. See al-¹ in Appendix.]

ul-ti-mate-ly (ül'tə-mīt-lē) adv. Abbr. ult. At last; in the end; eventually.

ultima Thu-le (ül'tə-mə thōō'lē) n. 1. The northernmost region of the habitable world as thought of by ancient geographers. 2. A distant territory or destination. 3. A remote goal or ideal: “the ultima Thule of technology, the ne plus ultra... the answer to every earthly problem” (John Gould). [Latin ultima Thūlē: ultima, feminine of ultimus, farthest + Thūlē, Thule.]

ul·ti·ma·tum (ŭl'tə-mā'təm, -mä'-) n. pl. ul·ti·ma·tums or ul·ti·ma·ta (-tə).

1. A final statement of terms made by one party to another. 2. A statement, especially in diplomatic negotiations, that expresses or implies the threat of serious penalties if the terms are not accepted. [New Latin, from neuter of Latin ultimātus, last. See ULTIMATE.]

ul·ti·mo (ŭl'tə-mō') adv. Abbr. ult. In or of the month before the present one. [Latin ultimō (mēnse), in the last (month), ablative of ultimus, last. See ULTIMATE.]

ul·tra (ŭl'trə) adj. Immoderately adhering to a belief, fashion, or course of action; extreme. — n. An extremist. [French, from Latin ultrā-, ultra-.]

ultra- pref. 1. Beyond; on the other side of: ultraviolet. 2. Beyond the range, scope, or limit of: ultrasonic. 3. Beyond the normal or proper degree; excessively: ultraconservative. [Latin ultrā-, from ultrā, beyond. See al-¹ in Appendix.]

ul·tra·ba·sic (ŭl'trə-bā'sīk) adj. Geology. Containing magnesium and iron and only a very small amount of silica. Used of igneous rock.

ul·tra·cen·tri·fuge (ŭl'trə-sĕn'trə-fyōōj') n. A high-velocity centrifuge used in the separation of colloidal or submicroscopic particles.

—ul'tra·cen·trif'u·gal (-trīf'yə-gəl, -trīf'ə-gəl) adj.

—ul'tra·cen·trif'u·gal·ly adv. —ul'tra·cen'tri·fu·ga'tion (-fyōō-gā'shən) n.

ul·tra·con·ser·va·tive (ŭl'trə-kən-sûr'və-tīv) adj. Conservative to an extreme, especially in political beliefs; reactionary. — n. One who is extremely conservative. —ul'tra·con·ser'va·tism n.

ul·tra·di·an (ŭl-trā'dē-ən) adj. Relating to or exhibiting periodic physiological activity that occurs more than once every 24 hours. [ULTRA- + (CIRCA)DIAN.]

ul·tra·fiche (ŭl'trə-fĕsh') n. A microfiche on which material is reduced by a factor of 100 or more. Also called ultramicrofiche ul·tra·fil·tra·tion (ŭl'trə-fīl-trā'shən) n. The filtration of a colloidal substance through a semipermeable medium that allows only the passage of small molecules.

ul·tra·high (ŭl'trə-hī') adj. Exceedingly high: an ultrahigh vacuum.

ultrahigh frequency (ŭl'trə-hī' frĕ'kwən-sĕ) n. Abbr. uhf, UHF A band of radio frequencies from 300 to 3,000 megahertz.

ul·tra·ism (ŭl'trə-īz'əm) n. Extremism, especially in politics or government; radicalism. —ul'tra·ist n.

ul·tra·lib·er·al (ŭl'trə-līb'ər-əl, -līb'rəl) adj. Liberal to an extreme, especially in political beliefs; radical. — n. One who is extremely liberal.

ul·tra·light (ŭl'trə-līt', ŭl'trə-līt') n. A recreational aircraft that is constructed of lightweight materials such as aluminum, graphite compositions, or high-strength plastics, having an engine of 15 to 40 horsepower and resembling a motorized hang glider with wings. —ul'tra·light' adj.

ultra low frequency (ül'trə lō frē'kwən-sē) n. Abbr. ULF An extrapolated radio frequency in the range of 300 to 3,000 hertz.

ul·tra·maf·ic (ül'trə-mäf'ik) adj. Geology. Ultrabasic.

ul·tra·mar·a·thon (ül'trə-mär'ə-thōn') n. Sports. A cross-country footrace with distances of 30 miles (48 kilometers) or more. —ul'tra·mar'a·thon'er n.

ul·tra·ma·rine (ül'trə-mə-rēn') n. 1. a. A blue pigment made from powdered lapis lazuli. b. A similar pigment made synthetically by heating clay, sodium carbonate, and sulfur together. 2. Color. A vivid or strong blue to purplish blue. — adj. 1. Color. Of the color ultramarine. 2. Of or from a place beyond the sea. [From Medieval Latin ultramarinus, from beyond the sea : Latin ultrā, ultra- + Latin marinus, of the sea (from mare, sea); see mori- in Appendix.]

ul·tra·mi·cro·fiche (ül'trə-mī'krō-fēsh', -krə-) n. See ultrafiche.

ul·tra·mi·crom·e·ter (ül'trə-mī-krōm'ī-tər) n. An extremely accurate micrometer.

ul·tra·mi·cro·scope (ül'trə-mī'krə-skōp') n. A microscope with high-intensity illumination used to study very minute objects, such as colloidal particles that scatter the light and appear as bright spots against a dark background.

—ul'tra·mi·cros'co·py (-krōs'kə-pē) n.

ul·tra·mi·cro·scop·ic (ül'trə-mī'krə-skōp'ik) adj. 1. Too minute to be seen with an ordinary microscope. 2. Of or relating to an ultramicroscope.

ul·tra·mi·cro·tome (ül'trə-mī'krə-tōm') n. A microtome for cutting very thin sections of material for use in electron microscopy. —ul'tra·mi·crot'o·my (-mī-krōt'ə-mē) n.

ul·tra·mil·i·tant (ül'trə-mīl'ī-tənt) adj. Militant to an extreme. — n. One who is extremely militant.

ul·tra·min·i·a·ture (ül'trə-mīn'ē-ə-choōr', -chər, -mīn'ə-) adj. Subminiature. —ul'tra·min'ī·a·tur·ize' (-īz') v. —ul'tra·min'ī·a·tur·i·za'tion (-chər-ī-zā'shən) n.

ul·tra·mod·ern (ül'trə-mōd'ərən) adj. Extremely modern in ideas or style; completely up-to-date. —ul'tra·mod'ern·ism n. —ul'tra·mod'ern·ist n. —ul'tra·mod'ern·is'tic adj.

ul·tra·mon·tane (ül'trə-mōn'tān', -mōn-tān') adj. 1. Of or relating to peoples or regions lying beyond the mountains, especially the Alps. 2. Roman Catholic Church. a. Supporting the authority of the papal court over national or diocesan authority. b. Relating to or supporting the doctrine of papal supremacy. — n. 1. One who lives beyond the mountains, especially south of the Alps. 2. Often Ultramontane. Roman Catholic Church. One who advocates support of papal policy in ecclesiastical and political matters. [Medieval Latin ultrāmontānus : Latin ultrā-, ultra- + Latin montānus, of mountains (from mōns, mont-, mountain); see men² in Appendix.]

ul·tra·mon·ta·nism or Ul·tra·mon·ta·nism (ül'trə-mōn'tə-nīz'əm) n.

Roman Catholic Church. The policy that absolute authority in the Church should be vested in the pope. —ul'tra·mon'ta·nist n.

ul·tra·mun·dane (ül'trə-mүн'dān', -mүн-dān') adj. Extending or being beyond the world or the limits of the universe. [Latin ultrāmundānus: ultrā-, ultra- + mundānus, of the world; see MUNDANE.]

ul·tra·na·tion·al·ism (ül'trə-nāsh'ə-nə-līz'əm) n. Extreme nationalism, especially when opposed to international cooperation. —ul'tra·na'tion·al adj. —ul'tra·na'tion·al·ist n. —ul'tra·na'tion·al·is'tic adj.

ul·tra·pure (ül'trə-pyōōr') adj. Exceedingly pure.

ul·tra·short (ül'trə-shōrt') adj. 1. Of or relating to radio waves with a wavelength less than 10 meters (33 feet). 2. Of extremely short duration: an ultrashort flash. 3. Extremely short: an ultrashort skirt.

ul·tra·son·ic (ül'trə-sōn'ik) adj. 1. Of or relating to acoustic frequencies above the range audible to the human ear, or above approximately 20,000 hertz. 2. Of, relating to, or involving ultrasound. —ul'tra·son'i·cal·ly adv.

ul·tra·son·ics (ül'trə-sōn'iks) n. (used with a sing. verb.) 1. The acoustics of ultrasonic sound. 2. The science and technology that deals with the study and application of ultrasound.

ul·tra·son·o·gram (ül'trə-sōn'ə-grām', -sō'nə-) n. See sonogram.

ul·tra·son·o·graph (ül'trə-sōn'ə-grāf', -sō'nə-) n. An apparatus for producing images obtained by ultrasonography.

ul·tra·so·nog·ra·phy (ül'trə-sə-nōg'rə-fē) n. Diagnostic imaging in which ultrasound is used to visualize an internal body structure or a developing fetus. Also called echography [ULTRASON(IC) + -GRAPHY.] —ul'tra·so·nog'ra·pher n. —ul'tra·son'o·graph'ic (-sōn'ə-grāf'ik, -sō'nə-) adj.

ul·tra·so·phis·ti·cat·ed (ül'trə-sə-fis'tī-kā'tīd) adj. Very sophisticated.

ul·tra·sound (ül'trə-sound') n. 1. Ultrasonic sound. 2. Medicine. The use of ultrasonic waves for diagnostic or therapeutic purposes, specifically to visualize an internal body structure, monitor a developing fetus, or generate localized deep heat to the tissues. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: ultrasound pictures; ultrasound waves; an ultrasound test.

ul·tra·struc·ture (ül'trə-strūk'chər) n. Biology. The detailed structure of a biological specimen, such as a cell, a tissue, or an organ, that can be observed only by electron microscopy. Also called fine structure ul·tra·thin (ül'trə-thīn') adj. Very thin.

ul·tra·vi·o·let (ül'trə-vī'ə-līt) adj. Abbr. UV, U.V. Of or relating to the range of invisible radiation wavelengths from about 4 nanometers, on the border of the x-ray region, to about 380 nanometers, just beyond the violet in the visible spectrum. — n. Ultraviolet light or the ultraviolet part of the spectrum.

ultraviolet lamp (ül'trə-vī'ə-līt lämp) n. A lamp, especially a mercury-vapor lamp, that produces ultraviolet light.

ul·tra·vi·rus (ül'trə-vī'rəs) n. pl. ul·tra·vi·rus·es. See filterable virus.

U·lugh Muz·tagh (ōō'lə məz-tä', -täg') A mountain, 7,729 m (25,341 ft) high, of the Kunlun Mountains in western China.

ul·u·late (ül'yə-lāt', yōōl'-) v. intr. ul·u·lat·ed, ul·u·lat·ing, ul·u·lates. To howl, wail, or lament loudly. [Latin ululāre, ululāt-, ultimately of imitative origin.] —ul'u·lant (-lənt) adj. —ul'u·la'tion n.

Ul·ya·novsk (ōōl-yä'nəfsk) A city of western Russia on the Volga River east-southeast of Moscow. Founded in 1648 on the site of an earlier fort, it was the birthplace of V.I. Lenin. Population, 544,000.

U·lys·ses (yōō-līs'ēz') n. Mythology. Odysseus.

um also umm (üm, əm) interj. Used to express doubt or uncertainty or to fill a pause when hesitating in speaking.

U·ma·til·la (yōō'mə-tīl'ə) n. pl. Umatilla or U·ma·til·las. 1. a. A Native American people of northeast Oregon. b. A member of this people. 2. The dialect of Sahaptin spoken by the Umatilla.

U·may·yad (ōō-mī'äd) or Om·mi·ad also O·may·yad (ō-mī'äd) The first dynasty of Arab caliphs (661-750). Its capital was Damascus.

um·bel (üm'bəl) n. A flat-topped or rounded flower cluster in which the individual flower stalks arise from about the same point, as in the geranium, milkweed, onion, and chive. [New Latin umbella, from Latin, parasol, diminutive of umbra, shadow.]

um·bel·late (üm'bə-lāt', üm-bəl'īt) also um·bel·lat·ed (-bə-lā'tīd) adj. Having, forming, or of the nature of an umbel. —um'bel·late'ly adv.

um·bel·let (üm'bə-līt) n. Botany. A secondary umbel in a compound umbel, as in the carrot. Also called umbellule um·bel·lif·er (üm-bəl'ə-fər) n. An umbelliferous plant.

um·bel·lif·er·ous (üm'bə-lif'ər-əs) adj. Botany. Bearing umbels.

um·bel·lule (üm'bəl-yōōl', üm-bəl'-) n. Botany. See umbellet. [New Latin umbellula, diminutive of umbella, umbel. See UMBEL.]

um·ber (üm'bər) n. 1. A natural brown earth containing ferric oxide and manganese oxides, used as pigment. 2. Color. Any of the shades of brown produced by umber in its various states. — adj. 1. Of or related to umber. 2. Color. Having a brownish color. — v. tr. um·bered, um·ber·ing, um·bers. To darken with or as if with umber. [French (terre d')ombre, or Italian (terra di) ombra, shadow (earth) both possibly from alteration (influenced by ombre, and ombra, shadow from Latin umbra), of Latin Umbria, a region of ancient Italy.]

Um·ber·to I (ōōm-bēr'tō), 1844-1900. King of Italy (1878-1900) who entered the Triple Alliance with Austria-Hungary and Germany (1882). He was assassinated by an anarchist.

um·bil·i·cal (ŭm-bĭl'ĭ-kəl) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or resembling a navel or an umbilical cord. 2. Located near the central area of the abdomen. — n. Aero-space. An umbilical cord. — um·bil'ĭ-cal·ly adv.

umbilical cord (ŭm-bĭl'ĭ-kəl kôrd) n. 1. a. Anatomy. The flexible cordlike structure connecting a fetus at the navel with the placenta and containing two umbilical arteries and one vein that transport nourishment to the fetus and remove its wastes. b. Something likened to this structure; a source or means of support or sustenance: “All the umbilical cords of dependency still exist because the public wants them” (David A. Stockman). 2. Aerospace. a. Any of various external electrical lines or fluid tubes that supply a rocket before launch. b. The line that supplies an astronaut with oxygen and in some cases with communications while outside the spacecraft.

umbilical hernia (ŭm-bĭl'ĭ-kəl hŭr'nē-ə) n. A usually self-correcting hernia of the intestines in which protrusion occurs through the abdominal wall in the region of the navel.

um·bil·i·cate (ŭm-bĭl'ĭ-kĭt) also um·bil·i·cat·ed (-kā'tĭd) adj. 1. Having a central mark or depression resembling a navel. 2. Having a navel. — um·bil'ĭ-ca'tion n.

um·bil·i·cus (ŭm-bĭl'ĭ-kəs, ŭm'bə-lĭ'kəs) n. pl. um·bil·i·ci (-sĭ'). 1. See navel (n., sense 1). 2. Biology. A small opening or depression similar to a navel, as the hollow at the base of the shell of some gastropod mollusks, one of the openings in the shaft of a feather, or the hilum of a seed. [Latin umbilicus. See nobh- in Appendix.]

um·bo (ŭm'bō) n. pl. um·bo·nes (ŭm-bō'nēz) or um·bos. 1. The boss or knob at the center of a shield. 2. a. Biology. A knoblike protuberance arising from a surface, as the prominence near the hinge of a bivalve shell or the projection at the scale tip of a seed-bearing cone. b. Anatomy. A small projection at the center of the outer surface of the eardrum. [Latin umbō, umbōn-. See nobh- in Appendix.] — um'bo·nal (ŭm'bə-nəl, ŭm-bō'nəl), um·bon'ic (ŭm-bōn'ĭk) adj.

um·bo·nate (ŭm'bə-nāt', ŭm-bō'nĭt) adj. Having or resembling a knob or knoblike protuberance.

um·bo·nes (ŭm-bō'nēz) n. A plural of umbo.

um·bra (ŭm'brə) n. pl. um·bras or um·brae (-brē). 1. A dark area, especially the blackest part of a shadow from which all light is cut off. See Synonyms at shade. 2. Astronomy. a. The completely dark portion of the shadow cast by the earth, moon, or other body during an eclipse. b. The darkest region of a sunspot. [Latin, shadow.] — um'bral adj.

um·brage (ŭm'brĭj) n. 1. Offense; resentment: took umbrage at their rudeness. 2. a. Something that affords shade. b. Shadow or shade. See Synonyms at shade. 3. A vague or indistinct indication; a hint. [Middle English, shade, from Old French, from Latin umbrāticum, neuter of umbrāticus, of shade, from Latin umbra, shadow.]

um·bra·geous (ŭm-brā'jəs) adj. 1. Affording or forming shade; shady.

2. Easily offended; irritable. —um·bra'geous·ly adv. —um·bra'geous·ness n.

um·brel·la (ŭm-brĕl'ə) n. 1. A device for protection from the weather consisting of a collapsible, usually circular canopy mounted on a central rod.

2. a. Something that covers or protects. b. Air cover, especially during a military operation. 3. Something that encompasses or covers many different elements or groups. 4. Zoology. The gelatinous, rounded mass that is the major part of the body of most jellyfish. [Italian ombrella, from Late Latin umbrella, alteration (influenced by umbra, shade), of Latin umbella, parasol. See UMBEL.]

—um·brel'la·less adj.

umbrella bird (ŭm-brĕl'ə būrd) n. Any of several tropical American birds of the genus Cephalopterus, especially C. ornatus, having a retractile, umbrellalike black crest and a long, feathered wattle.

umbrella leaf (ŭm-brĕl'ə lĕf) n. A perennial herb (Diphylleia cymosa) of the southeast United States, having a broad, peltate basal leaf, a terminal cluster of white flowers, and small blue berries.

umbrella palm (ŭm-brĕl'ə päm) n. An Australian palm tree (Hedyscepe canterburyana) cultivated as an ornamental for its feathery, drooping leaves with silvery-blue sheaths.

umbrella plant (ŭm-brĕl'ə plänt) n. 1. A widely cultivated, ornamental, robust sedge (Cyperus alternifolius) native to Madagascar and Mauritius, having long triangular leafless stems, a terminal umbrellalike cluster of grasslike leaves, and a compound umbel of spikelets with drooping rays. 2. Midland U.S. The May apple.

umbrella tree (ŭm-brĕl'ə trĕ) n. 1. Either of two trees, Magnolia fraseri or M. tripetala, of the southeast United States, having large leaves clustered in an umbrellalike form at the ends of the branches. 2. An Australian evergreen tree (Brassasia actinophylla), having palmately compound leaves and widely cultivated in its smaller forms as a houseplant. 3. See schefflera.

um·brette (ŭm-brĕt') n. See hammerhead (n., sense 3). [New Latin umbretta, species name, from French ombrette, shadow, diminutive of ombre, shade, from Old French, from Latin umbra.]

Um·bri·a (ŭm'brĕ-ə, ōm'brĕ-ä) A region of central Italy in the Apennines. Occupied by the Umbrians in ancient times, it later fell to the Etruscans and then the Romans (c. 300 B.C.). After passing to various powers, Umbria came under the control of the papacy in the 16th century and joined the kingdom of Sardinia in 1860.

Um·bri·an (ŭm'brē-ən) adj. Of or relating to Umbria. — n. 1. The Italic language of ancient Umbria. 2. A native or inhabitant of Umbria.

Um·bri·el (ŭm'brē-əl') n. The satellite of Uranus that is third in distance from the planet. [After Umbriel, a character in The Rape of the Lock by Alexander Pope.]

Um·bun·du (ōm-bōon'dōō, əm-) n. See Mbundu (n., sense 2).

U·me (ōō'mə, ŭ'mə) A river, about 459 km (285 mi) long, of northern Sweden flowing southeast into the Gulf of Bothnia.

U·me·å (ōō'mə-ô', ŭ'mə-ô') A city of northeast Sweden on an inlet of the Gulf of Bothnia at the mouth of the Ume River. Founded in 1622, it is a manufacturing center. Population, 54,900.

u·mi·ak also oo·mi·ak (ōō'mē-āk') n. Nautical. A large open Eskimo boat made of skins stretched on a wooden frame, usually propelled by paddles. [Canadian, and Greenlandic Eskimo umiaq.]

um·laut (ōōm'lout') Linguistics. n. 1. a. A change in a vowel sound caused by partial assimilation especially to a vowel or semivowel occurring in the following syllable. b. A vowel sound changed in this manner. Also called vowel mutation. 2. The diacritic mark (¨) placed over a vowel to indicate an umlaut, especially in German. — v. tr. um·laut·ed, um·laut·ing, um·lauts. 1. To modify by umlaut. 2. To write or print (a vowel) with an umlaut. [German : um-, around, alteration (from Middle High German umb-, from umbe, from Old High German umbi); see ambhi in Appendix + Laut, sound (from Middle High German lūt, from Old High German hlūt); see kleu- in Appendix.]

Um·nak Island (ōōm'nāk' ī'lənd) An island of southwest Alaska in the east-central Aleutian Islands. It is separated from Unalaska Island by Umnak Pass.

ump (ŭmp) Sports. n. An umpire. — v. intr. umped, ump·ing, umps. To serve as an umpire.

um·pir·age (ŭm'pīr'ij, -pər-ij) n. 1. The position, function, or authority of an umpire. 2. A ruling or decision of an umpire.

um·pire (ŭm'pīr') n. 1. Sports. A person appointed to rule on plays, especially in baseball. 2. A person appointed to settle a dispute that mediators have been unable to resolve; an arbitrator. See Synonyms at judge. — v. um·pired, um·pir·ing, um·pires. — v. tr. To act as referee for; rule or judge. — v. intr. To be or act as a referee or an arbitrator. [Middle English (an) oumpere, (an) umpire, alteration of (a) noumpere, a mediator, from Old French nonper : non-, non- + per, equal, even, paired (from Latin pār); see PAIR.]

WORD HISTORY: The anguished, hostile cry “Kill the ump” could have been “kill the nump” had it not been for the linguistic process known as false splitting or juncture loss. In the case of umpire we can almost see the process in action if we study the Middle English Dictionary entry for noumpere, the Middle English ancestor of our word. Noumpere comes from the Old French nonper, made up of non, “not,” and per, “equal,” as is someone who is requested to act as arbiter of a dispute between two people; that is, the arbiter is not paired with one of them. In Middle English the earliest recorded form is noumper (about 1350). The earliest dated form without an n in the entry is owmpere (a Middle English variant spelling), in a text composed in 1440. How the n was lost can be seen if we compare the sequence a nounpier in a text written in 1426-1427 with the sequence an Oumper from a text written probably around 1475. The n of noumpere became attached to the indefinite article, giving us an instead of a and, eventually, umpire instead of ·numpire.

Ump·qua (ũmp'kwô') A river, about 322 km (200 mi) long, of southwest Oregon rising in two branches and flowing north and west to the Pacific Ocean.

ump·teen (ũmp'tēn', ũm'-) adj. Informal. Relatively large but unspecified in number: umpteen reasons; umpteen guests. [Slang ump(ty), dash in Morse code (of imitative origin) + -teen (as in THIRTEEN).] —ump'teenth' adj.

Um·ta·ta (õm-tä'tə) The capital of Transkei, in the west-central part of the homeland. It was founded in 1860 as a military post. Population, 30,000.

UMW abbr. United Mine Workers.

UN or U.N. abbr. United Nations.

un-¹ pref. 1. Not: unhappy. 2. Opposite of; contrary to: unrest. [Middle English, from Old English. See ne in Appendix.]

USAGE NOTE: There is occasional uncertainty as to the choice between the prefixes un- and in-. In general, the native English form un- is the more widely applicable. It is the usual choice with simple stems, as in unfair, unclean, uneven, or unripe, and with words bearing native English endings: unceasing, unmindful, unwealthy, unselfish, or unwholesome. In- is used primarily with established words originally having Latin endings: inaccurate, incapacity, indivisible, insignificant, illegal, impossible, or irregular. Sometimes the addition of a Latinate suffix to a word changes it from the un- category to the in- category: thus, we have unable, unequal, unjust, undivided, and unstable but inability, inequality, injustice, indivisible, and instability. A few words with Latinate suffixes do take un-: unadventurous, unceremonious, unconditional, and unconventional. A few stems appear with both prefixes with distinctions of meaning. Inhuman means “brutal, monstrous,” while unhuman means “not of human form, superhuman.” • When used with adjectives, un- often has a sense distinct from that of non-. Non- picks out the set of things that are not in the category denoted by the stem to which it is attached, whereas un- picks out properties unlike those of the prototypical exemplars of the category. Thus nonmilitary personnel are those who are not members of the military, whereas someone who is unmilitary is unlike a prototypical soldier in dress, habits, or attitudes.

un-² pref. 1. To reverse or undo the result of a specified action: unbind. 2. a. To deprive of or remove a specified thing: unfrock. b. To release, free, or remove from: unyoke. 3. Used as an intensive: unloose. [Middle English, from Old English on-, alteration (influenced by un-, not); see UN-¹, of ond-, and-, an-, against, opposing. See ant- in Appendix.]

USAGE NOTE: Strictly speaking, the intensive use of un- in words such as unloose, unravel, unthaw, unstrip, or unrid is redundant: unloose has exactly the same sense as loose; unravel, as ravel; and so on. For this reason, many grammarians have suggested that the prefix be avoided, although they allow that it is well established in certain cases, such as unloose and unravel, and has been used by reputable writers: “Pretended patriotism unstripped of its mask” (Oliver Goldsmith). “The weak wanton Cupid/Shall from your neck unloose his amorous fold” (Shakespeare). Some constructions require the prefixed form: During the storm all the insulation came unstripped (not stripped).

un·a·bashed (ŭn'ə-bāsh'tʃ) adj. 1. Not disconcerted or embarrassed; poised. 2. Not concealed or disguised; obvious: unabashed disgust. —un'·a·bash'ed·ly (-bāsh'īd-lē) adv.

un·a·bat·ed (ŭn'ə-bā'tīd) adj. Sustaining an original intensity or maintaining full force with no decrease: an unabated windstorm; a battle fought with unabated violence. —un'·a·bat'ed·ly adv.

un·a·ble (ŭn-ā'bəl) adj. 1. Lacking the necessary power, authority, or means; not able; incapable: unable to get to town without a car. 2. Lacking mental or physical capability or efficiency; incompetent: unable to walk.

un·a·bridged (ŭn'ə-brījdʃ) adj. Containing the original content; not condensed. Used of books, articles, and documents.

un·ac·cent·ed (ŭn-āk'sĕn-tīd) adj. Linguistics. 1. Having no diacritical mark. Used of a word, syllable, or letter. 2. Having weak stress or no stress.

un·ac·cept·a·ble (ŭn'īk-sĕp'tə-bəl, -āk-) adj. Not acceptable; unsatisfactory. —un'·ac·cept'a·bil'i·ty n. —un'·ac·cept'a·bly adv.

un·ac·com·mo·dat·ed (ŭn'ə-kŏm'ə-dā'tīd) adj. 1. Not adapted or accommodated: new arrivals who were unaccommodated to the heat of the tropics. 2. Lacking accommodations: an unaccommodated guest.

un·ac·com·pa·nied (ŭn'ə-kŏm'pə-nēd) adj. 1. Going or acting without companions or a companion: unaccompanied children on a flight. 2. Music. Performed or scored without accompaniment.

un·ac·com·plished (ŭn'ə-kŏm'plīsh't) adj. 1. Not completed or done; unfinished. 2. Lacking special skills or abilities; unpolished, as in the social graces.

un·ac·count·a·ble (ŭn'ə-koun'tə-bəl) adj. 1. Impossible to account for; inexplicable: unaccountable absences; unaccountable errors. 2. Free from accountability; not responsible: an executive unaccountable to anyone but the president. —un'ac·count'a·bil'i·ty, un'ac·count'a·ble·ness n. —un'ac·count'a·bly adv.

un·ac·count·ed·for (ŭn'ə-koun'tid-fôr') adj. 1. Not explained, understood, or taken into account. 2. Missing or absent without explanation, as from a roll call or after a military operation.

un·ac·cred·it·ed (ŭn'ə-krəd'ī-tid) adj. 1. Not having the proper credentials; unauthorized: an unaccredited school. 2. Not being ascribed or attributed to a source: an unaccredited quotation.

un·ac·cus·tomed (ŭn'ə-kūs'təmd) adj. 1. Not common or usual: "The legislature has produced a new budget of unaccustomed austerity" (People). 2. Not being habituated. Used with to: is still unaccustomed to a life of stress.

—un'ac·cus'tomed·ly adv. —un'ac·cus'tomed·ness n.

un·a·chiev·a·ble (ŭn'ə-čē'və-bəl) adj. Impossible to achieve or attain: an unachievable goal.

un·ac·knowl·edged (ŭn'āk-nōl'ījd) adj. Not accepted or recognized: an unacknowledged inventor; an unacknowledged greeting.

u·na cor·da (ōō'nə kôr'də) adv. & adj. Music. With the soft pedal of the piano depressed. Used chiefly as a direction. [Italian : una, one + corda, string (so called because depressing the soft pedal causes only one string to be struck of the two or three provided for each note).]

un·ac·quaint·ed (ŭn'ə-kwān'tid) adj. 1. Not familiar or acquainted with another. 2. Not informed or knowledgeable: unacquainted with the legal issues at hand.

un·ad·dressed (ŭn-ə-drĕst') adj. 1. Not brought up for discussion or solution: questions that remain unaddressed. 2. Not containing the required address: unaddressed letters.

un·ad·just·ed (ŭn'ə-jūs'tid) adj. 1. Not having been adjusted to conform to new data or information: an unadjusted figure of 8.5 percent. 2. Not having adapted to new conditions: several unadjusted refugees. 3. Needing to be made operable or accurate by adjusting or regulating: an unadjusted clock that is running fast.

un·a·dopt·a·ble (ŭn'ə-döp'tə-bəl) adj. Difficult to place in an adoptive home.

un·a·dorned (ŭn'ə-dôrnd') adj. Without adornment or embellishment; simple or plain.

un·a·dul·ter·at·ed (ŭn'ə-dül'tə-rā'tid) adj. 1. Not mingled or diluted with extraneous matter; pure. See Synonyms at pure. 2. Out-and-out; utter: the unadulterated truth.

un·ad·ven·tur·ous (ŭn'äd-vĕn'chər-əs) adj. Not inclined to undertake new, risky enterprises.

un·ad·ver·tised (ŭn-äd'vŭr-tīzd') adj. Not having been advertised to the public: unadvertised sale merchandise.

un·ad·vised (ŭn'əd-vīzd') adj. 1. Having received no advice; not informed.

2. Carried out without careful deliberation; imprudent: took the unadvised measure of going public with the accusations. —un'ad·vis'ed·ly (-vī'zīd-lē) adv.

—un'ad·vis'ed·ness n.

un·af·fect·ed (ŭn'ə-fĕk'tīd) adj. 1. Not changed, modified, or affected.

2. Marked by lack of affectation; genuine. See Synonyms at naive. See Synonyms at sincere. —un'af·fect'ed·ly adv. —un'af·fect'ed·ness n.

un·af·fil·i·at·ed (ŭn'ə-fīl'ē-ā'tīd) adj. Not associated with another or others as a subordinate, subsidiary, or member; independent.

un·af·ford·a·ble (ŭn'ə-fôr'də-bəl) adj. Too expensive: medical care that has become unaffordable for many. —un'af·ford'a·bil'i·ty n. —un'af·ford'a·bly adv.

un·a·fraid (ŭn'ə-frād') adj. Feeling, exhibiting, or expressing no fear.

un·nai (yōō'nô, oō'nou) n. Variant of unau.

un·aid·ed (ŭn-ā'dīd) adj. Carried out or functioning without aid or assistance: made an unaided attempt to climb the sheer cliff.

Un·a·las·ka Island (ŭn'ə-lās'kə ī'lənd) An island of southwest Alaska in the eastern Aleutian Islands southwest of Unimak Island. It was discovered c. 1759 by Russian explorers and used as a fur-trading center.

un·al·ien·a·ble (ŭn-āl'yə-nə-bəl, -āl'lē-ə-) adj. Not to be separated, given away, or taken away; inalienable: "All of them... claim unalienable dignity as individuals" (Garrison Keillor).

un·a·ligned (ŭn'ə-līnd') adj. Nonaligned: unaligned nations.

un·al·loyed (ŭn'ə-loīd') adj. 1. Not in mixture with other metals; pure.

2. Complete; unqualified: unalloyed blessings; unalloyed relief.

—un'al·loy'ed·ly (-loi'īd-lē) adv.

un·al·ter·a·ble (ŭn-ōl'tər-ə-bəl) adj. Impossible to alter: the unalterable season of bitter cold in Siberia. —un'al'ter·a·bil'i·ty, un'al'ter·a·ble·ness n.

—un'al'ter·a·bly adv.

un·am·big·u·ous (ŭn'ăm-bīg'yōō-əs) adj. Having or exhibiting no ambiguity or uncertainty; clear: "As a horror, apartheid... is absolutely unambiguous. There are... no shades of interpretation or circumstances to weigh that might make coming to a moral judgment more difficult" (Mario Vargas Llosa).

—un'am·big'u·ous·ly adv.

un·A·mer·i·can (ŭn'ə-mĕr'ī-kən) adj. Considered contrary to the institutions or principles of the United States.

U·na·mi (ōō-nă'mē, yōō-năm'ē) n. pl. Unami or U·na·mis. 1. One of the two Algonquian languages of the Delaware peoples, originally spoken in central and southern New Jersey, eastern Pennsylvania, and northern Delaware. 2. A speaker of this language.

U·na·mu·no (ōō'nə-mōō'nō, -nă-), Miguel de. 1864-1936. Spanish philosopher and writer primarily concerned with the conflict between reason and faith and the solitary nature of human existence. His works include short novels, poetry, and philosophical studies, such as The Tragic Sense of Life (1913).

unan. abbr. Unanimous.

un·an·a·lyz·a·ble (ŭn-ăn'ə-lī'zə-bəl) adj. Difficult or impossible to analyze: unanalyzable data. —un·an·a·lyz·a·bly adv.

un·a·neled (ŭn'ə-nēld') adj. Archaic. Not having received extreme unction.

u·na·nim·i·ty (yōō'nə-nīm'ī-tē) n. The condition of being unanimous.

u·nan·i·mous (yōō-năn'ə-məs) adj. Abbr. unan. 1. Sharing the same opinions or views; being in complete harmony or accord. 2. Based on or characterized by complete assent or agreement. [From Latin ūnanimus: ūnus, one; see oi·no- in Appendix + animus, mind; see anə- in Appendix.] —u·nan'·i·mous·ly adv. —u·nan'·i·mous·ness n.

un·an·swer·a·ble (ŭn-ăn'sər-ə-bəl) adj. Impossible to answer or refute; incontrovertible: unanswerable accusations. —un·an'swer·a·bil'·i·ty, un·an'swer·a·ble·ness n. —un·an'swer·a·bly adv.

un·an·tic·i·pat·ed (ŭn'ăn-tīs'ə-pā'tid) adj. 1. Not anticipated: We experienced some unanticipated problems. 2. Usage Problem. Not having been expected; unexpected: unanticipated guests. See Usage Note at anticipate. —un'·an·tic'·i·pat'·ed·ly adv.

un·a·pol·o·get·ic (ŭn'ə-pŏl'ə-jět'ik) adj. Unwilling to make or express an apology; not feeling apologetic. —un'·a·pol'·o·get'·i·cal·ly adv.

un·ap·peal·a·ble (ŭn'ə-pē'lə-bəl) adj. Not subject to appeal: an unappealable grievance; an unappealable sentence of life imprisonment. —un'·ap·peal'·a·bly adv.

un·ap·peal·ing (un'ə-pē'ling) adj. Not appealing to the senses, as in appearance, taste, or aroma. —un'·ap·peal'ing·ly adv.

un·ap·peas·a·ble (ŭn'ə-pē'zə-bəl) adj. Impossible to appease or satisfy: unappeasable thirst and hunger. —un'·ap·peas'·a·bly adv.

un·ap·pe·tiz·ing (ŭn-ăp'ī-tī'zing) adj. Not appetizing in appearance, aroma, or taste. —un·ap'·pe·tiz'ing·ly adv.

un·ap·pre·ci·at·ed (un'ə-prē'shē-ă'tid) adj. 1. Not recognized, as to quality or worth: an unappreciated gesture of good will. 2. Not having risen in price or value: an unappreciated investment.

un·ap·pre·cia·tive (ŭn'ə-prē'shə-tiv, -shē-ă'tiv) adj. Not feeling or exhibiting appreciation. —un'·ap·pre'cia·tive·ly adv.

un·ap·proach·a·ble (ŭn'ə-prō'chə-bəl) adj. 1. Not friendly; aloof: an unapproachable executive. 2. Not accessible; inapproachable: an unapproachable chalet high in the Alps. —un'ap·proach'a·bil'i·ty, un'ap·proach'a·ble·ness n.
—un'ap·proach'a·bly adv.

un·ap·pro·pri·at·ed (ŭn'ə-prō'prē-ā'tīd) adj. 1. Not designated for a specific use. 2. Not possessed by, spoken for, or formally assigned to a particular person or organization.

un·ap·proved (ŭn'ə-prōōvd') adj. Not approved or sanctioned: an unapproved vaccine; an unapproved protest march.

un·apt (ŭn-ăpt') adj. 1. Not suitable or appropriate. 2. Not likely or liable.
—un·apt'ly adv. —un·apt'ness n.

un·ar·gu·a·ble (ŭn-är'gyō-ə-bəl) adj. Not open to argument or further discussion: the plain, unarguable facts. —un·ar'gu·a·bly adv.

un·arm (ŭn-ärm') v. tr. un·armed, un·arm·ing, un·arms. To divest of armor or arms; disarm.

un·armed (ŭn-ärmd') adj. 1. a. Lacking weapons or armor; defenseless.
b. Not carrying, using, or displaying arms: an unarmed spotter plane; unarmed robbery. 2. Biology. Having no thorns, spines, teeth, claws, or other protective parts.

un·ar·tic·u·lat·ed (ŭn'är-tīk'yə-lā'tīd) adj. 1. a. Not articulated: our unarticulated fears. b. Not carefully or thoroughly thought out. 2. Biology. Not having joints or segments.

un·a·shamed (ŭn'ə-shāmd') adj. 1. Feeling or showing no remorse, shame, or need for apology. 2. Exhibiting no embarrassment; unabashed: lived in unashamed luxury. —un'a·sham'ed·ly (-shā'mīd-lē) adv.
—un'a·sham'ed·ness n.

un·asked (ŭn-ăskt') adj. 1. Not asked: Several unasked questions remain.
2. Not invited: Unasked guests arrived at the party. 3. Not requested: Such unasked suggestions are less than welcome.

un·as·sail·a·ble (ŭn'ə-sā'lə-bəl) adj. 1. Impossible to dispute or disprove; undeniable: unassailable truths. 2. Not subject to attack or seizure; impregnable: an unassailable fortress. —un'as·sail'a·bil'i·ty, un'as·sail'a·ble·ness n.
—un'as·sail'a·bly adv.

un·as·sem·bled (ŭn'ə-sēm'bəld) adj. Made or manufactured with parts or sections ready to be joined or fitted together before use: working with unassembled metal shelving.

un·as·ser·tive (ŭn'ə-sûr'tīv) adj. Not assertive; reserved. —un'as·ser'tive·ly adv. —un'as·ser'tive·ness n.

un·as·sist·ed (ŭn'ə-sīs'tīd) adj. 1. Not having assistance; unaided.
2. Baseball. Of, relating to, or being a play handled by only one fielder.

un·as·sum·ing (ŭn'ə-sōō'mĭng) adj. Exhibiting no pretensions, boastfulness, or ostentation; modest. —un'as·sum'ing·ly adv. —un'as·sum'ing·ness n.

un·at·tached (ŭn'ə-tächt') adj. 1. Not joined, especially to surrounding tissue. 2. a. Not committed to or dependent on another person, group, or organization. b. Not engaged, married, or involved in a serious sexual or romantic relationship. 3. Law. Not possessed or seized as security.

un·at·tain·a·ble (ŭn'ə-tā'nə-bəl) adj. Impossible to attain: unattainable goals. —un'at·tain'a·bil'i·ty, un'at·tain'a·ble·ness n. —un'at·tain'a·bly adv.

un·at·tend·ed (ŭn'ə-tĕn'dĭd) adj. 1. Not being attended to, looked after, or watched: an unattended fire. 2. Having no attendants: unattended gasoline pumps. 3. Not being paid attention to or listened to: an unattended question.

un·at·test·ed (ŭn'ə-tĕs'tĭd) adj. Not attested: a series of unattested quotations.

un·at·trib·ut·ed (ŭn'ə-trib'yōō-tĭd) adj. Not attributed to a source, creator, or possessor: an unattributed opinion.

u·nau also u·nai (yōō'nô, oō'nou) n. pl. u·naus also u·nais. See sloth (n., sense 2b). [Portuguese, from Tupi uná, lazy.]

un·au·dit·ed (ŭn-ô'dĭ-tĭd) adj. Not having been audited: an unaudited financial statement.

un·a·vail·a·ble (ŭn'ə-vā'lə-bəl) adj. Not available, accessible, or at hand. —un'a·vail'a·bil'i·ty n.

un·a·vail·ing (ŭn'ə-vā'lĭng) adj. Not availing; ineffectual or useless. See Synonyms at futile. —un'a·vail'ing·ly adv. —un'a·vail'ing·ness n.

u·na vo·ce (yōō'nə vō'sē, oō'nə vō'kā) adv. With one voice; unanimously. [Latin ŭnā vōce: ŭnā, feminine ablative of ŭnus, one + vōce, ablative of vōx, voice.]

un·a·void·a·ble (ŭn'ə-voi'də-bəl) adj. Impossible to avoid; inevitable. See Synonyms at certain. —un'a·void'a·bil'i·ty, un'a·void'a·ble·ness n. —un'a·void'a·bly adv.

un·a·ware (ŭn'ə-wâr') adj. Not aware or cognizant. — adv. Unawares. —un'a·ware'ly adv. —un'a·ware'ness n.

USAGE NOTE: Unaware, followed by of (expressed or implied), is the usual adjectival form modifying a noun or pronoun or following a linking verb: Unaware of the difficulty, I went ahead. He was unaware of my presence. Unawares is the usual adverbial form: The rain caught them unawares (without warning). They came upon it unawares (without design or plan).

un·a·wares (ŭn'ə-wârz') adv. 1. By surprise; unexpectedly: “Sorrow comes to all, and to the young it comes with bittered agony because it takes them unawares” (Abraham Lincoln). 2. Without forethought or plan. See Usage Note at unaware.

unb. abbr. Unbound.

un·backed (ŭn-băkt') adj. 1. Lacking backing or support. 2. Not having a back. 3. Never having been ridden, as a horse.

un·baked (ŭn-băkt') adj. Not having been baked or cooked, especially in an oven: unbaked bricks; an unbaked pie crust.

un·bal·ance (ŭn-băl'əns) v. tr. un·bal·anced, un·bal·anc·ing,

un·bal·anc·es. 1. To upset the balance, stability, or equilibrium of: "By being too good a singer, too hell-bent an actress, and too strong a presence, the star unbalances the proceedings" (John Simon). 2. To derange (the mind). — n. The condition of being unbalanced. — un·bal'ance·a·ble adj.

un·bal·anced (ŭn-băl'ənst) adj. 1. Not in balance or in proper balance.

2. a. Mentally deranged. b. Not exhibiting sound judgment; irrational.

3. Accounting. Not satisfactorily adjusted so that debit and credit correspond.

un·bal·last·ed (ŭn-băl'ə-stīd) adj. 1. Not stabilized or properly stabilized by ballast. 2. Unsteady; wavering.

un·bar (ŭn-bär') v. tr. intr. un·barred, un·bar·ring, un·bars. To remove the bars from or become unbarred.

un·bat·ed (ŭn-bā'tīd) adj. 1. Unabated. 2. Archaic. Not blunted by a guard on the tip, as a sword or fencing foil.

unbd. abbr. Unbound.

un·bear·a·ble (ŭn-bâr'ə-bəl) adj. So unpleasant, distasteful, or painful as to be intolerable: unbearable heat. — un·bear'a·ble·ness n. — un·bear'a·bly adv.

un·beat·a·ble (ŭn-bē'tə-bəl) adj. Impossible to defeat or surpass: an unbeatable team; an unbeatable sales record. — un·beat'a·bly adv.

un·beat·en (ŭn-bēt'n) adj. 1. Not defeated: an unbeaten football team. 2. Not traversed before; untrampled: an unbeaten path through jungle growth. 3. Not beaten or pounded, as in cooking: unbeaten eggs.

un·be·com·ing (ŭn'bī-kŭm'īng) adj. 1. Not appropriate, attractive, or flattering: an unbecoming dress. 2. Not in accord with the standards implied by one's character or position: conduct unbecoming an officer. See Synonyms at improper. — un'be·com'ing·ly adv. — un'be·com'ing·ness n.

un·be·got·ten (ŭn'bī-gŏt'n) adj. 1. Not yet begotten; as yet unborn. 2. Self-existent; eternal.

un·be·known (ŭn'bī-nŏn') adj. Occurring or existing without the knowledge of; unknown: a crisis unbeknown to us. [UN-¹ + obsolete beknown, known (from Middle English beknowen, past participle of beknowen, to get to know, from Old English becnāwan : be-, be- + cnāwan, to know); see KNOW.]

un·be·knownst (ʊn'bi-nōnst') adj. Unbeknown. — adv. Without the knowledge of a specified party. Used with to: Our cousin had been ill for years, unbeknownst to the family. [UNBEKNOWN + -st (as in amongst).]

un·be·lie (ʊn'bi-lēf') n. Lack of belief or faith, especially in religious matters.

un·be·liev·a·ble (ʊn'bi-lē'və-bəl) adj. Not to be believed; incredible: unbelievable luck. — un'be·liev'a·bly adv.

un·be·liev·er (ʊn'bi-lē'vər) n. One who lacks belief or faith, especially in a particular religion; a nonbeliever.

un·be·liev·ing (ʊn'bi-lē'vɪŋ) adj. Not believing; doubting: The incident occurred right before our unbelieving eyes. — un'be·liev'ing·ly adv.

— un'be·liev'ing·ness n.

un·belt·ed (ʊn-běl'tɪd) adj. 1. Made or designed to be worn without a belt: an unbelted jacket. 2. Not having or using a seat belt: tests of unbelted dummies at various impact speeds.

un·bend (ʊn-bënd') v. un·bent (-bënt'), un·bend·ing, un·bends. — v. tr.

1. To release from mental tension, strain, or formality; relax. 2. To release (a bow, for example) from flexure or tension. 3. Nautical. To untie or loosen (a rope or sail). 4. To straighten (something crooked or bent): unbend a paper clip.

— v. intr. 1. To become less tense; relax. 2. To become less strict. 3. To become straight. — un·bend'a·ble adj.

un·bend·ing (ʊn-bënd'dɪŋ) adj. 1. Not yielding; inflexible: an unbending will to dominate. 2. Aloof and often antisocial; extremely reserved: an unbending manner. — un·bend'ing·ly adv.

un·bent (ʊn-bënt') v. Past tense and past participle of unbend.

un·bi·ased also un·bi·assed (ʊn-bī'æst) adj. Without bias or prejudice; impartial. See Synonyms at fair¹. — un·bi'ased·ly adv. — un·bi'ased·ness n.

un·bid·den (ʊn-bɪd'n) also un·bid (-bɪd') adj. Not invited, asked, or requested; unasked: unbidden guests; comments unbid and unwelcome.

un·billed (ʊn-bɪld') adj. 1. Not having been billed or charged for: unbilled medical charges. 2. Appearing, as in a movie, without being credited: an unbilled walk-on.

un·bind (ʊn-bɪnd') v. tr. un·bound (-bound'), un·bind·ing, un·binds.

1. To untie or unfasten, as wrappings or bindings. 2. To release from restraints or bonds; free.

un·bleached (ʊn-blēcht') adj. Not bleached or whitened: unbleached flour; unbleached linen.

un·blem·ished (ʊn-blēm'ɪst) adj. Lacking blemishes or faults: an unblemished peach; an unblemished political record.

un·blenched (ʊn-blēncht') adj. Undaunted; unflinching.

un·blessed also un·blest (ʊn-blēst') adj. 1. Deprived of a blessing.

2. Unholy; evil. — un·bless'ed·ness (-blēs'ɪd-nɪs) n.

un·blink·ing (ŭn-blĭng'kĭng) adj. 1. Without blinking: an unblinking stare.

2. Without visible emotion: an unblinking answer to a very personal question.

3. Fearless in facing reality: engaged in unblinking self-analysis.

—un·blink'ing·ly adv.

un·block (ŭn-blŏk') v. tr. un·blocked, un·block·ing, un·blocks. To remove or clear an obstruction from: unblock a road; unblock a coronary artery.

un·blush·ing (ŭn-blŭsh'ĭng) adj. 1. Lacking or exhibiting a lack of shame or embarrassment. See Synonyms at shameless. 2. Not blushing. —un·blush'ing·ly adv. —un·blush'ing·ness n.

un·bod·ied (ŭn-bŏd'ēd) adj. 1. Having no body or form; incorporeal.

2. Being disembodied.

un·bolt (ŭn-bŏlt') v. tr. un·bolt·ed, un·bolt·ing, un·bolts. To release the bolts of (a door, for example); unlock.

un·bolt·ed¹ (ŭn-bŏl'tĭd) adj. Not bolted or fastened; unlocked.

un·bolt·ed² (ŭn-bŏl'tĭd) adj. Not sifted: unbolted flour.

un·born (ŭn-bŏrn') adj. 1. Not yet born: an unborn child. 2. Not yet appeared; future: unborn inventions.

un·bos·om (ŭn-bŏŏz'əm, -bŏŏ'zəm) v. un·bos·omed, un·bos·om·ing, un·bos·oms. — v. tr. 1. To confide (one's thoughts or feelings). 2. To relieve (oneself) of troublesome thoughts or feelings. — v. intr. To reveal one's thoughts or feelings. —un·bos'om·er n.

un·bound (ŭn-bound') v. Past tense and past participle of unbind. — adj.

1. Abbr. unb., unbd. Not bound: unbound manuscripts; an unbound book.

2. Freed from bonds or restraints; released: an unbound captive.

un·bound·ed (ŭn-boun'dĭd) adj. 1. Having no boundaries or limits: unbounded space. 2. Not kept within bounds; unrestrained: unbounded enthusiasm. —un·bound'ed·ly adv. —un·bound'ed·ness n.

un·bowed (ŭn-boud') adj. 1. Not bowed; unbent. 2. Not subdued; unyielding: "My head is bloody but unbowed" (W.E. Henley).

un·brace (ŭn-brās') v. tr. un·braced, un·brac·ing, un·brac·es. 1. To set free by removing bands or braces. 2. To release from tension; relax. 3. To make slack; weaken.

un·brand·ed (ŭn-brän'dĭd) adj. Not branded or carrying a brand name: unbranded cattle; unbranded merchandise.

un·break·a·ble (un-brā'kə-bəl) adj. 1. Impossible to break; able to withstand rough usage: unbreakable dinnerware. 2. Able to withstand an attempt to break. Used of a horse. — n. An article or object that is not easily broken.

—un·break'a·ble·ness n. —un·break'a·bly adv.

un·breath·a·ble (ŭn-brē'thə-bəl) adj. Not fit or suitable to be breathed: unbreathable exhaust fumes.

un·bred (ün-brəd') adj. 1. Not instructed; untaught. 2. Not yet bred: an unbred mare. 3. Obsolete. Ill-bred; impolite.

un·bridge·a·ble (ün-brīj'ə-bəl) adj. Impossible to span: an unbridgeable chasm; unbridgeable differences. —un·bridge·a·bly adv.

un·bri·dle (ün-brīd'l) v. tr. un·bri·dled, un·bri·dling, un·bri·dles. 1. To free from restriction or restraint. 2. To free from a bridle.

un·bri·dled (ün-brīd'ld) adj. 1. Unrestrained; uncontrolled: unbridled anger. 2. Not wearing or being fitted with a bridle: an unbridled pony. —un·bri·dled·ly adv.

un·bro·ken (ün-brō'kən) adj. 1. Not tampered with; intact: an unbroken dozen. 2. Not violated or breached: unbroken promises. 3. Uninterrupted; continuous: unbroken silence. 4. Not tamed or broken to harness: unbroken horses. 5. Not disordered or disturbed: unbroken family ties. —un·bro·ken·ly adv.
—un·bro·ken·ness n.

un·buck·le (ün-būk'əl) v. un·buck·led, un·buck·ling, un·buck·les. — v. tr. To loosen or undo the buckle or buckles of. — v. intr. 1. To undo buckles. 2. Informal. To relax.

un·budg·ing (ün-būj'ɪŋ) adj. Not moving or willing to move from a position or place: unbudging honesty; an unbudging foe. —un·budg·ing·ly adv.

un·build (un-bīld') v. un·built (-bīlt'), un·build·ing, un·builds. — v. tr. To dismantle, take apart, or demolish; raze. — v. intr. To dismantle something built.

un·build·a·ble (ün-bīl'də-bəl) adj. 1. That cannot be built: an unbuildable house, given the eccentric design. 2. Unsuitable to be built upon: unbuildable wetlands.

un·built (ün-bīlt') v. Past tense and past participle of unbuild.

un·bun·dling (ün-bүн'dlɪŋ) n. The separate pricing of goods and services.

un·bur·den (ün-būr'dn) v. tr. un·bur·dened, un·bur·den·ing, un·bur·dens. To free from or relieve of a burden or trouble: unburden one's mind.

un·but·ton (ün-büt'n) v. un·but·toned, un·but·ton·ing, un·but·tons. — v. tr. 1. To unfasten the buttons of. 2. To free or remove (a button) from a buttonhole. 3. To open as if by unbuttoning: unbutton the hatches. — v. intr. To undo buttons.

un·caged (ün-kāj'd') adj. 1. Not being confined in or as if in a cage: uncaged birds. 2. Having been released from a cage: an uncaged lion in the arena.

un·cal·cu·lat·ed (ün-kāl'kyə-lā'tid) adj. Not thought out in advance; spontaneous.

un·cal·cu·lat·ing (ün-kāl'kyə-lā'tɪŋ) adj. Not using or involving calculation.

un·called·for (ŭn-kôld'fôr') adj. 1. Not required or requested; unwanted: uncalled-for suggestions. 2. Not justified or deserved; unwarranted: uncalled-for rudeness.

un·can·ny (ŭn-kăn'ē) adj. un·can·ni·er, un·can·ni·est. 1. Peculiarly unsettling, as if of supernatural origin or nature; eerie. See Synonyms at weird. 2. So keen and perceptive as to seem preternatural. —un·can'ni·ly adv.
—un·can'ni·ness n.

un·cap (ŭn-kăp') v. un·capped, un·cap·ping, un·caps. — v. tr. To remove the cap or covering of. — v. intr. To remove one's head covering as a sign of deference.

un·cared·for (ŭn-kârd'fôr') adj. Not looked after; neglected.

un·car·ing (ŭn-kâr'ing) adj. Devoid of concern or sympathy.

Un·cas (ŭng'kəs), 1588?-1683?. Native American leader who rebelled against his father's leadership of the Pequot and with his followers formed the Mohegan tribe.

un·caused (ŭn-kôzd') adj. Existing without a perceptible cause; spontaneous.

un·ceas·ing (ŭn-sē'sing) adj. Not stopping; continuous. —un·ceas'ing·ly adv. —un·ceas'ing·ness n.

un·cel·e·brat·ed (ŭn-sĕl'ə-brā'tid) adj. 1. Not famous or well known; obscure. 2. Not formally or officially honored.

un·cen·sored (ŭn-sĕn'sərd) adj. Not examined, expurgated, or given a rating for inclusion of improper or inappropriate material: received uncensored correspondence from a theater of military operations; sells uncensored movies and novels.

un·cer·e·mo·ni·ous (ŭn-sĕr'ə-mō'nĕ-əs) adj. 1. Without the due formalities; abrupt: an unceremonious departure. 2. Not ceremonious; informal: made an unceremonious presentation. —un·cer'e·mo'ni·ous·ly adv.
—un·cer'e·mo'ni·ous·ness n.

un·cer·tain (ŭn-sŭr'tn) adj. 1. Not known or established; questionable: domestic changes of great if uncertain consequences. 2. Not determined; undecided: uncertain plans. 3. Not having sure knowledge: an uncertain recollection of the sequence of events. 4. a. Subject to change; variable: uncertain weather. b. Unsteady; fitful: uncertain light. —un·cer'tain·ly adv.
—un·cer'tain·ness n.

un·cer·tain·ty (ŭn-sŭr'tn-tĕ) n. pl. un·cer·tain·ties. 1. The condition of being uncertain; doubt. 2. Something uncertain: the uncertainties of modern life. 3. Statistics. The estimated amount or percentage by which an observed or calculated value may differ from the true value.

SYNONYMS: uncertainty, doubt, dubiety, skepticism, suspicion, mistrust. These nouns all refer to the condition of being unsure about someone or something. Uncertainty, the least forceful, merely denotes a lack of assurance or conviction: I regarded my decision with growing uncertainty. Doubt and dubiety imply a questioning state of mind that leads to hesitation in accepting a premise or in making a decision: “Doubt is part of all religion” (Isaac Bashevis Singer). On this point there can be no dubiety. Skepticism generally suggests an instinctive or habitual tendency to question and demand proof, as of truth or merit: “A wise skepticism is the first attribute of a good critic” (James Russell Lowell). Suspicion is doubt as to the innocence, truth, integrity, honesty, or soundness of someone or something; the word often suggests an uneasy feeling that the person or thing is evil: “I had rather take my chance that some traitors will escape detection than spread abroad a spirit of general suspicion and distrust” (Learned Hand). Mistrust denotes lack of trust or confidence, as in a person’s motives, arising from suspicion: Corporate leaders viewed the economist’s recommendations with mistrust.

uncertainty principle (ŭn-sŭr'tn-tē prĭn'sə-pəl) n. A principle in quantum mechanics holding that increasing the accuracy of measurement of one observable quantity increases the uncertainty with which other quantities may be known.

un-cer-ti-fied (ŭn-sŭr'tə-fīd') adj. Not officially verified, guaranteed, or registered; not certified: an uncertified check; an uncertified teacher.

un-chain (ŭn-chān') v. tr. un-chained, un-chain-ing, un-chains. To release from or as if from chains or bonds; set free. —un-chain'a-ble adj.

un-chal-lenge-a-ble (ŭn-chāl'ən-jə-bəl) adj. Not open to challenge: unchallengeable facts; an unchallengeable legal position. —un-chal'lenge-a-bly adv.

un-change-a-ble (ŭn-chān'jə-bəl) adj. Not to be altered; immutable: the unchangeable seasons. —un-change'a-bil'i-ty, un-change'a-ble-ness n. —un-change'a-bly adv.

un-chang-ing (ŭn-chān'jĭng) adj. Remaining the same; showing or undergoing no change: unchanging weather patterns; unchanging friendliness. —un-chang'ing-ly adv. —un-chang'ing-ness n.

un-char-ac-ter-is-tic (ŭn'kär-ək-tə-rĭs'tĭk) adj. Unusual or atypical: an uncharacteristic display of anger. —un'char-ac-ter-is'ti-cal-ly adv.

un-charged (ŭn-chärjd') adj. 1. Not loaded. Used of a weapon. 2. Law. a. Not being formally accused. b. Not subject to a charge. Used of land. 3. Lacking electric charge.

un-char-i-ta-ble (ŭn-chär'i-tə-bəl) adj. 1. Exhibiting no charity or generosity. 2. Unfair or unkind: uncharitable remarks. —un-char'i-ta-ble-ness n. —un'-char'i-ta-bly adv.

un-chart-ed (ŭn-chär'tĭd) adj. 1. Not charted or recorded on a map or plan: uncharted waterways; the uncharted desert. 2. Unknown: The nation’s geopolitical strategy is yet uncharted.

un·chaste (ŭn-chāst') adj. un·chast·er, un·chast·est. Not chaste or modest. —un·chaste'ly adv. —un·chaste'ness, un·chas'ti·ty (-chās'tī-tē) n.

un·checked (ŭn-chĕkt') adj. 1. Not held in check; unrestrained: an unchecked flow of water; an unchecked temper. 2. Not checked for accuracy, efficiency, or flaws: an unchecked list.

un·chris·tian (ŭn-křis'chən) adj. 1. Not in accord with the spirit or principles of Christianity. 2. Not Christian. 3. Uncivilized; barbaric.

un·church (ŭn-chŭrch') v. tr. un·churched, un·church·ing, un·church·es. 1. To expel from a church or from church membership; excommunicate. 2. To deprive (a congregation, sect, or building) of the status of a church.

un·ci (ŭn'sī) n. Plural of uncus.

un·cial also Un·cial (ŭn'shəl, -sē-əl) adj. Of or relating to a style of writing characterized by somewhat rounded capital letters and found especially in Greek and Latin manuscripts of the fourth to the eighth century A.D. — n. 1. A style of writing characterized by somewhat rounded capital letters. It provided the model from which most of the capital letters in the modern Latin alphabet are derived. 2. A capital letter written in this style. [From Late Latin unciālēs (litterae), inch-high (letters), uncials, pl. of Latin unciālis, inch-high, from uncia, a twelfth part, ounce, inch. See oi·no- in Appendix.]

un·ci·form (ŭn'sə-fōrm') adj. Shaped like a hook. — n. See hamate. [Latin uncus, hook + -FORM.]

un·ci·nar·i·a (ŭn'sə-nār'ē-ə) n. See hookworm. [New Latin Uncināria, hookworm genus, from Latin uncīnus, barb. See UNCINATE.]

un·ci·nate (ŭn'sə-nāt', -nīt) adj. Bent at the end like a hook; unciform. [Latin uncinātus, from uncīnus, barb, from uncus, hook.]

un·cir·cu·lat·ed (ŭn-sŭr'kyə-lā'tīd) adj. Not circulated or in circulation; not moving around or flowing freely: uncirculated coins; uncirculated air.

un·cir·cum·cised (ŭn-sŭr'kəm-sīzd') adj. 1. Not circumcised. 2. a. Not Jewish; Gentile. b. Not Christian. —un·cir'cum·ci'sion (-sīzh'ən) n.

un·civ·il (ŭn-sīv'əl) adj. 1. Discourteous; rude: "The street was quiet; slamming the car door seemed an uncivil disturbance" (Anthony Hyde). 2. Archaic. Uncivilized; barbarous. —un·civ'il·ly adv. —un·civ'il·ness n.

un·civ·i·lized (ŭn-sīv'ə-līzd') adj. Not civilized; barbarous. —un·civ'i·liz·ed·ly (-lī'zīd-lē, -līzd'lē) adv. —un·civ'i·liz'ed·ness n.

un·clad (ŭn-klād') adj. Not wearing clothes; naked.

un·claimed (ŭn-klāmd') adj. Not claimed: unclaimed luggage.

un·clasp (ŭn-klāsp') v. un·clasped, un·clasp·ing, un·clasps. — v. tr. 1. To release or loosen the clasp of. 2. To release or loosen from a clasp or an embrace. — v. intr. 1. To become unfastened. 2. To release or relax a clasp or grasp; let go.

un-classi-fied (ün-kläs'ə-fīd') adj. 1. Not placed or included in a class or category: unclassified mail. 2. Of, relating to, or being official matter not requiring the application of security safeguards: unclassified defense documentation.

un-cle (üng'kəl) n. 1. Abbr. u., U. a. The brother of one's mother or father. b. The husband of one's aunt. 2. Used as a form of address for an older man, especially by children. 3. A kindly counselor. 4. Slang. A pawnbroker. 5. Uncle. Uncle Sam. —idiom. cry uncle (or say uncle). Informal. To indicate a willingness to give up a fight or surrender: Members of the gang held him down until at last he cried uncle. [Middle English, from Anglo-Norman, from Latin avunculus, maternal uncle. See awo- in Appendix.] —un/cle-less adj.

un-clean (ün-klēn') adj. un-clean-er, un-clean-est. 1. Foul or dirty. 2. Morally defiled; unchaste. 3. Ceremonially impure. —un-clean/ness n.

un-clean-ly (ün-klēn'lē) adj. un-clean-li-er, un-clean-li-est. Unclean. — adv. (-klēn'-) In an unclean manner. —un-clean/li-ness n.

un-clear (ün-klīr') adj. un-clear-er, un-clear-est. Not clearly defined; not explicit.

un-clench (ün-klēnch') v. un-clenched, un-clench-ing, un-clench-es. — v. tr. To loosen from a clenched position; relax: unclench one's fists. — v. intr. To become unclenched.

Uncle Sam (üng'kəl sām) n. Abbr. U.S., US 1. The government of the United States, often personified by a representation of a tall, thin man having a white beard and wearing a blue swallow-tailed coat, red-and-white-striped trousers, and a tall hat with a band of stars: "intent on giving states greater incentive to save both their dollars and Uncle Sam's" (New York Times). 2. The American nation or its people. [From U.S., abbr. of United States.]

WORD HISTORY: Obvious explanations of word origins often meet resistance simply because they are dull compared with less reliable ones. Such a conclusion seems justified on the basis of the disagreement about the origin of the name Uncle Sam. The term is first recorded in the Troy, New York, Post of September 7, 1813, and right along with it is found the explanation that "The letters U.S. on the government waggons, &c are supposed to have given rise to it." Nonetheless, attempts have since been made to connect the name to such people as Samuel Wilson, an army yard inspector of Troy, New York. None of these attempts, including the one involving Samuel Wilson, has been successful. This expansion of initials was carried yet further with those in the name U.S. Grant, which were variously explained as "Unconditional Surrender," "United We Stand," "United States," and "Uncle Sam."

Uncle Tom (ŭng'kəl tŏm) n. Offensive. A Black person who is regarded as being humiliatingly subservient or deferential to white people. [After Uncle Tom, a character in Uncle Tom's Cabin, a novel by Harriet Beecher Stowe.]

Uncle Tom-ism (ŭng'kəl tŏm'iz'əm) n. Offensive. Deferential, subservient behavior and attitudes believed characteristic of an Uncle Tom: "Some will seek 'status' through renewed acquiescence and Uncle Tomism" (Alvin F. Poussaint).

un-cloak (ŭn-klŏk') v. tr. un-cloaked, un-cloak-ing, un-cloaks. 1. To remove a cloak or cover from. 2. To expose; reveal.

un-clog (ŭn-klŏg') v. tr. un-clogged, un-clog-ging, un-clogs. To clear a blockage from (a drain, for example).

un-close (ŭn-klŏz') v. un-closed, un-clos-ing, un-clos-es. — v. tr. 1. To open. 2. To disclose. — v. intr. 1. To be opened. 2. To undergo disclosure.

un-clothe (ŭn-klŏth') v. tr. un-clothed, un-cloth-ing, un-clothes. To remove the clothing or cover from; strip.

un-clut-tered (ŭn-klüt'ərd) adj. Not being cluttered; orderly: a neat, uncluttered room; an uncluttered mind.

un-co (ŭng'kŏ) Scots. adj. So unusual as to be surprising; uncanny. — n. pl. un-cos. 1. An unusual or amazing person. 2. A stranger. 3. uncoss. News. — adv. To an excessive degree; remarkably. [Middle English unkow, variant of uncouth, strange. See UNCOUTH.] un-coat-ed (ŭn-kŏ'tid) adj. 1. Not furnished with or wearing a coat. 2. Not being covered with a layer: an uncoated pill; uncoated paper.

un-coil (ŭn-koil') v. tr. intr. un-coiled, un-coil-ing, un-coils. To unwind or untwist or to become unwound or untwisted.

un-col-lect-ed (ŭn'kə-lĕk'tid) adj. Not having been collected; ungathered: uncollected garbage; uncollected taxes; uncollected thoughts.

un-com-fort-a-ble (ŭn-kŭm'fər-tə-bəl, -kŭmf'tə-) adj. 1. Experiencing physical discomfort. 2. Ill at ease; uneasy. 3. Causing anxiety; disquieting. — un-com'fort-a-ble-ness n. — un-com'fort-a-bly adv.

un-com-mer-cial (ŭn'kə-mŭr'shəl) adj. 1. Not engaged in or involving trade or commerce. 2. Not in accord with the spirit or methods of commerce. 3. Uneconomical.

un-com-mit-ted (ŭn'kə-mit'id) adj. Not pledged to a specific cause or course of action: an uncommitted delegate.

un-com-mon (ŭn-kŏm'ən) adj. un-com-mon-er, un-com-mon-est. 1. Not common; rare. 2. Wonderful; remarkable. — un-com'mon-ly adv. — un-com'mon-ness n.

un-com-mu-ni-ca-tive (ŭn'kə-myŏō'nĭ-kā'tiv, -kə'tiv) adj. Not disposed to be communicative. See Synonyms at silent. — un'com-mu'ni-ca'tive-ly adv. — un'com-mu'ni-ca'tive-ness n.

Un·com·pah·gre Peak (ŭn'kəm-pā'grē pēk) A mountain, 4,364.2 m (14,309 ft) high, in the San Juan Mountains of southwest Colorado. It is the highest elevation in the range.

un·com·pen·sat·ed (ŭn-kŏm'pən-sā'tīd) adj. Not having been compensated; serving without compensation; unpaid.

un·com·pet·i·tive (ŭn'kəm-pēt'ī-tīv) adj. Not competitive; not liking or inclined to compete. —un'com·pet'i-tive·ly adv. —un'com·pet'i-tive·ness n.

un·com·plain·ing (ŭn'kəm-plā'nīng) adj. Showing patience and tolerance; not complaining. —un'com·plain'ing·ly adv.

un·com·plet·ed (ŭn'kəm-plē'tīd) adj. As yet unfinished.

un·com·pli·cat·ed (ŭn-kŏm'plī-kā'tīd) adj. 1. Not complex or involved; simple: found an uncomplicated solution to the problem. 2. Not involving medical complications.

un·com·pli·men·ta·ry (ŭn'kŏm-plə-mĕn'tə-rĕ, -mĕn'trĕ) adj. Not complimentary; derogatory.

un·com·pre·hend·ing (ŭn'kŏm-pri-hĕn'dīng) adj. Not understanding; having little or no comprehension. —un'com·pre·hend'ing·ly adv.

un·com·pro·mis·a·ble (ŭn-kŏm'prə-mī'zə-bəl) adj. That cannot be compromised: uncompromisable honesty.

un·com·pro·mis·ing (ŭn-kŏm'prə-mī'zīng) adj. Unwilling to grant concessions or negotiate; inflexible: took an uncompromising stance during the peace talks; displayed uncompromising honesty. —un·com'pro·mis'ing·ly adv.

un·com·put·er·ized (ŭn'kəm-pyŏŏ'tə-rīzd') adj. Computer Science. Not equipped with or using computers.

un·con·ceiv·a·ble (ŭn'kən-sĕ'və-bəl) adj. Inconceivable: unconceivable beauty. —un'con·ceiv'a·ble·ness n. —un'con·ceiv'a·bly adv.

un·con·cern (ŭn'kən-sŭrn') n. 1. Lack of interest; indifference. 2. Lack of worry or apprehensiveness.

un·con·cerned (ŭn'kən-sŭrnd') adj. 1. Not interested; indifferent. See Synonyms at indifferent. 2. Not anxious or apprehensive; unworried. —un'-con·cern'ed·ly (-sŭrn'īd-lĕ) adv. —un'con·cern'ed·ness n.

un·con·di·tion·al (ŭn'kən-dīsh'ə-nəl) adj. Without conditions or limitations; absolute: demanded unconditional surrender. —un'con·di'tion·al·ly adv. —un'con·di'tion·al·ness, un'con·di'tion·al'i·ty (-dīsh'ə-nāl'ī-tĕ) n.

un·con·di·tioned (ŭn'kən-dīsh'ənd) adj. 1. Unconditional; unrestricted. 2. Psychology. Not dependent on or resulting from conditioning; unlearned or natural. —un'con·di'tioned·ness n.

unconditioned response (ŭn'kən-dīsh'ənd rī-spŏns') n. Psychology. A natural, usually unvarying response evoked by a stimulus in the absence of learning or conditioning.

unconditioned stimulus (ŭn'kən-dīsh'ənd stīm'yə-ləs) n. Psychology. A stimulus that evokes an unconditioned response.

un·con·form·a·ble (ŭn'kən-fôr'mə-bəl) adj. 1. Incapable of conformity; not conforming. 2. Geology. Showing unconformity. —un'con·form'a·bil'i·ty, un'con·form'a·ble·ness n. —un'con·form'a·bly adv.

un·con·for·mi·ty (ŭn'kən-fôr'mī-tē) n. pl. un·con·for·mi·ties. 1. Lack of conformity; nonconformity. 2. Geology. A surface of erosion between rock layers of different ages indicating that deposition was not continuous.

un·con·gen·ial (ŭn'kən-jēn'yəl) adj. 1. Not compatible or sympathetic, as in character. See Synonyms at inconsistent. 2. Not appropriate; unsuitable. 3. Not pleasing; disagreeable. —un'con·ge'ni'al'i·ty (-jē'nē-ăl'i-tē) n.

un·con·nect·ed (ŭn'kə-nĕk'tĭd) adj. 1. Not joined or connected. 2. Not coherent; disconnected: unconnected sentences. —un'con·nect'ed·ly adv. —un'con·nect'ed·ness n.

un·con·quer·a·ble (ŭn-kŏng'kær-ə-bəl) adj. Impossible to overcome or defeat: unconquerable obstacles to success; an unconquerable faith. —un·con·quer·a·bly adv.

un·con·scion·a·ble (ŭn-kŏn'shə-nə-bəl) adj. 1. Not restrained by conscience; unscrupulous: unconscionable behavior. 2. Beyond prudence or reason; excessive: unconscionable spending. —un·con'scion·a·ble·ness n. —un·con'scion·a·bly adv.

un·con·scious (ŭn-kŏn'shəs) adj. 1. Lacking awareness and the capacity for sensory perception; not conscious. 2. Temporarily lacking consciousness. 3. Occurring in the absence of conscious awareness or thought: unconscious resentment; unconscious fears. 4. Without conscious control; involuntary or unintended: an unconscious mannerism. — n. The division of the mind in psychoanalytic theory containing elements of psychic makeup, such as memories or repressed desires, that are not subject to conscious perception or control but that often affect conscious thoughts and behavior. —un·con'scious·ly adv. —un·con'scious·ness n.

un·con·sid·ered (ŭn'kən-sĭd'ərd) adj. Not reasoned or considered; rash: an unconsidered remark.

un·con·sol·i·dat·ed (ŭn'kən-sŏl'i-dā'tĭd) adj. Not yet consolidated: unconsolidated subsidiaries.

un·con·sti·tu·tion·al (ŭn'kŏn-stĭ-tōō'shə-nəl, -tyōō'-) adj. Not in accord with the principles set forth in the constitution of a nation or state. —un'-con·sti·tu'tion·al'i·ty (-shə-năl'i-tē) n. —un'con·sti·tu'tion·al·ly adv.

un·con·struct·ed (ŭn'kən-strŭk'tĭd) adj. Designed or made with little or no interfacing, padding, or lining to produce a loose, soft shape. Used of apparel: an unconstructed jacket.

un·con·tam·i·nat·ed (ŭn'kən-tām'ə-nā'tid) adj. Not contaminated: uncontaminated blood; an uncontaminated island paradise.

un·con·test·ed (ŭn'kən-tēs'tid) adj. Not contested: an uncontested divorce; the uncontested leader.

un·con·trol·la·ble (ŭn'kən-trō'lə-bəl) adj. Impossible to control or govern: an uncontrollable urge for a chocolate bar; uncontrollable rebels. —un' con·trol'la·bil'i·ty, un'con·trol'la·ble·ness n. —un'con·trol'la·bly adv.

un·con·trolled (ŭn'kən-trōld') adj. Not under control, discipline, or governance. —un'con·trolled'ness n.

un·con·tro·ver·sial (ŭn'kōn-trə-vûr'shəl, -sē-əl) adj. Engendering no controversy. —un'con·tro·ver·sial·ly adv.

un·con·ven·tion·al (ŭn'kən-věn'shə-nəl) adj. Not adhering to convention; out of the ordinary. —un'con·ven·tion·al'i·ty (-shə-nāl'i-tē) n. —un'con·ven·tion·al·ly adv.

un·con·vinc·ing (ŭn'kən-vīn'sing) adj. Not convincing: gave an unconvincing excuse. —un'con·vinc·ing·ly adv. —un'con·vinc·ing·ness n.

un·cooked (ŭn-kōōkt') adj. Not cooked; raw.

un·cool (ŭn-kōōl') adj. Slang. 1. Lacking assurance, self-control, or sophistication. 2. Not in accord with the standards or mores of a specified group: “trying to teach children simply to reject drugs as uncool” (Larry Martz).

un·co·op·er·a·tive (ŭn'kō-ōp'ər-ə-tīv, -ōp'rə-tīv, -ōp-ə-rā'tīv) adj. Not cooperative: an uncooperative witness. —un'co·op·er·a·tive·ly adv. —un'co·op·er·a·tive·ness n.

un·co·or·di·nat·ed (ŭn'kō-ōr'dn-ā'tid) adj. 1. Lacking physical or mental coordination. 2. Lacking planning, method, or organization. —un'co·or·di·nat·ed·ly adv.

un·cork (ŭn-kōrk') v. tr. un·corked, un·cork·ing, un·corks. 1. To draw the cork from. 2. To free from a sealed or constrained state.

un·cor·rect·ed (ŭn'kə-rĕk'tid) adj. Not corrected: an uncorrected manuscript; a host of uncorrected abuses.

un·cor·rob·o·rat·ed (ŭn'kə-rōb'ə-rā'tid) adj. Not corroborated: uncorroborated testimony.

un·count·a·ble (ŭn-koun'tə-bəl) adj. Too many to be counted; innumerable: an uncountable number of tourists.

un·count·ed (ŭn-koun'tid) adj. 1. Not counted: The uncounted money is in the safe. 2. Uncountable; innumerable: There are uncounted reasons for my declining the invitation.

un·cou·ple (ŭn-kūp'əl) v. un·cou·pled, un·cou·pling, un·cou·ples. — v. tr. 1. To disconnect: uncouple railroad cars. 2. To set loose or release from a couple. — v. intr. To come or break loose. —un·cou·pler n.

un·couth (ŭn-kōōth') adj. 1. Crude; unrefined. 2. Awkward or clumsy; ungraceful. 3. Archaic. Foreign; unfamiliar. [Middle English, unknown, strange, from Old English uncūth: un-, not; see UN-¹ + cūth, known; see gnō- in Appendix.] —un·couth/ly adv. —un·couth/ness n.

un·cov·e·nant·ed (ŭn-kŭv'ə-nən-tīd) adj. 1. Not bound by a covenant. 2. Not promised or guaranteed by a covenant.

un·cov·er (ŭn-kŭv'ər) v. un·cov·ered, un·cov·er·ing, un·cov·ers. — v. tr. 1. To remove the cover from: uncovered the saucepan. 2. To manifest or disclose; reveal: uncovered new evidence. 3. To remove the hat from, as in respect or reverence. — v. intr. 1. To remove a cover. 2. To bare the head in respect or reverence.

un·cov·ered (ŭn-kŭv'ərd) adj. 1. Having no cover or protection. 2. Lacking the protection of insurance or collateral security. 3. Bareheaded.

uncovered option (ŭn-kŭv'ərd ɔp'shən) n. See naked option.

un·cre·at·ed (ŭn'krē-ā'tīd) adj. 1. Not having been created; not yet in existence. 2. Existing of itself; uncaused.

un·cred·it·ed (ŭn-krəd'ī-tīd) adj. 1. Not having been credited, as on a ledger: an uncredited deposit. 2. Not having been accorded due recognition: an uncredited discovery.

un·crewed (ŭn-krōōd') adj. Not having a crew; crewless: uncrewed missile launch.

un·crit·i·cal (ŭn-krīt'ī-kəl) adj. 1. Not critical; indiscriminating or indulgent. 2. Not using critical standards or methods, as in evaluation. —un·crit'ī·cal·ly adv.

un·cross (ŭn-krōs', -krōs') v. tr. un·crossed, un·cross·ing, un·cross·es. To move (one's legs, for example) from a crossed position.

un·crowd·ed (ŭn-krou'dīd) adj. Not crowded: an uncrowded museum; an uncrowded bus.

un·crowned (ŭn-kround') adj. 1. Yet to be crowned: an uncrowned queen. 2. Having the power or influence of a monarch or other prominent figure but not the title: the uncrowned king of the espionage world.

unc·tion (ŭngk'shən) n. 1. The act of anointing as part of a religious, ceremonial, or healing ritual. 2. An ointment or oil; a salve. 3. Something that serves to soothe; a balm. 4. Affected or exaggerated earnestness, especially in choice and use of language. [Middle English, from Latin unctiō, unctiōn-, from unctus, past participle of unguere, to anoint.]

unc·tu·ous (ŭngk'chōō-əs) adj. 1. Characterized by affected, exaggerated, or insincere earnestness: "the unctuous, complacent court composer who is consumed with envy and self-loathing" (Rhoda Koenig). 2. Having the quality or characteristics of oil or ointment; slippery. 3. Containing or composed of oil or fat.

4. Abundant in organic materials; soft and rich: unctuous soil. [Middle English, from Old French unctueus, from Medieval Latin ūnctuosus, from Latin ūnctum, ointment, from neuter past participle of unguere, to anoint.] —unc'tu-ous-ly adv. —unc'tu-ous-ness, unc'tu-os'i-ty (-ōs'ī-tē) n.

SYNONYMS: unctuous, fulsome, oily, oleaginous, smarmy. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “insincerely, self-servingly, or smugly agreeable or earnest”: an ambitious and unctuous assistant; gave the dictator a fulsome introduction; oily praise; oleaginous hypocrisy; smarmy self-importance.

un·cul·ti·vat·ed (үн-kül'tə-vā'tid) adj. 1. Not cultivated by standard agricultural methods: uncultivated vegetables; uncultivated ground. 2. Socially unpolished, uncultured, or unrefined.

un·cul·tured (үн-kül'chərd) adj. Not cultured or cultivated: an uncultured coal-mining town; regarded him as an uncultured brute.

un·curl (үн-kûrl') v. un·curled, un·curl·ing, un·curls. — v. tr. To unwind from or as if from a curl, a coil, a spiral, or a curled position: uncurled my fists. — v. intr. To become unwound from a curl: fern fronds uncurling in the spring air.

un·cus (üng'kəs) *n. pl. un·ci (үн'sī). Biology. A hook-shaped part or process. [Latin, hook.]*

un·cut (үн-küt') adj. 1. Not cut: uncut hair. 2. Printing. Having the page edge not slit or trimmed. Used of a book. 3. Not cut or ground to a specific shape. Used of a gemstone. 4. Not condensed, abridged, or shortened, as by an editor or a censor: the uncut version of the scandalous story. —un·cut'ta·ble adj.

un·dam·aged (үн-dām'ijd) adj. Not damaged, injured, or harmed: an undamaged nuclear reactor; undamaged feelings.

un·damp·ed (үн'dāmp't') adj. 1. Physics. Not tending toward a state of rest; not damped. Used of oscillations. 2. Not stifled or discouraged; unchecked: undamped ardor.

un·dat·ed (үн-dā'tid) adj. 1. Not marked with or showing a date: an undated letter; an undated portrait. 2. Being such as to have long-lasting appeal without ever going out of style: a classic, undated dress.

un·daunt·a·ble (үн-dôn'tə-bəl, -dän'-) adj. Not admitting of discouragement: undaunting heroism; undaunting optimism.

un·daunt·ed (үн-dôn'tid, -dän'-) adj. Not discouraged or disheartened; resolutely courageous. See Synonyms at brave. —un·daunt'ed-ly adv.

—un·daunt'ed-ness n.

un·de·bat·a·ble (үн'dī-bā'tə-bəl) adj. Closed to debate or further discussion: undebatable facts. —un'de·bat'a·bly adv.

un·de·ceive (ŭn'dĭ-sēv') v. tr. un·de·ceived, un·de·ceiv·ing, un·de·ceives. To free from illusion or deception. —un'de·ceiv'a·ble adj.
—un'de·ceiv'a·bly adv.

un·de·cid·ed (ŭn'dĭ-sī'dĭd) adj. 1. Not yet determined or settled; open: Our position on this bill is still undecided. 2. Not having reached a decision; uncommitted: undecided voters. — n. pl. un·de·cid·eds. One, such as a voter, that has not yet reached a decision: "Will this joint interview make up minds among the vast throng of undecideds?" (William Safire). —un'de·cid'ed·ly adv.
—un'de·cid'ed·ness n.

un·decked¹ (ŭn-dĕkt') adj. Not decorated; unornamented.

un·decked² (ŭn-dĕkt') adj. Nautical. Having no deck. Used of a ship.

un·de·clared (ŭn'dĭ-klârd') adj. 1. Not having been formally declared: an undeclared war. 2. Not having formally declared oneself: an undeclared candidate.

un·de·liv·er·a·ble (ŭn'dĭ-lĭv'ər-ə-bəl) adj. Difficult or impossible to deliver: undeliverable mail. —un'de·liv'er·a·bly adv.

un·de·mon·stra·tive (ŭn'dĭ-mŏn'strə-tĭv) adj. Not disposed to expressions of feeling; reserved. —un'de·mon'stra-tive·ly adv.

—un'de·mon'stra-tive·ness n.

un·de·ni·a·ble (ŭn'dĭ-nĭ'ə-bəl) adj. Difficult or impossible to deny; irrefutable: undeniable facts. —un'de·ni'a·bly adv. —un'de·ni'a·ble·ness n.

un·de·pend·a·ble (ŭn'dĭ-pĕn'də-bəl) adj. Not easily relied or depended on: an undependable worker; an undependable lamp socket.

—un'de·pend'a·bil'i·ty n.

un·der (ŭn'dər) prep. 1. a. In a lower position or place than: a rug under a chair. b. To or into a lower position or place than: rolled the ball under the couch. 2. Beneath the surface of: under the ground; swam under water. 3. Beneath the assumed surface or guise of: traveled under a false name. 4. Less than; smaller than: The jar's capacity is under three quarts. 5. Less than the required amount or degree of: under voting age. 6. Inferior to in status or rank: nine officers under me at headquarters. 7. Subject to the authority, rule, or control of: under a dictatorship. 8. Subject to the supervision, instruction, or influence of: under parental guidance. 9. Undergoing or receiving the effects of: under constant care. 10. Subject to the restraint or obligation of: under contract. 11. Within the group or classification of: listed under biology. 12. In the process of: under discussion. 13. In view of; because of: under these conditions. 14. With the authorization of: under the monarch's seal. 15. Sowed or planted with: an acre under oats. 16. Nautical. Powered or propelled by: under sail; under steam. 17. During the time conventionally assigned to (a sign of the zodiac): born under Aries. — adv. 1. In or into a place below or beneath: struggled in the water but then slipped under. 2. In or into a subordinate or inferior condition or position. 3. So as to be covered or enveloped. 4. So as to be less than the required amount or degree.

— adj. 1. Located or situated on a lower level or beneath something else: the under parts of a machine. 2. Lower in rank, power, or authority; subordinate.

3. Less than is required or customary: an under dose of medication. — idiom.

out from under. Informal. Having gotten free of worries or difficulties: Credit counseling helped us get out from under. [Middle English, from Old English. See ndher- in Appendix.]

under- pref. 1. Beneath or below in position: underground. 2. Inferior or subordinate in rank or importance: undersecretary. 3. Less in degree, rate, or quantity than normal or proper: undersized. [Middle English, from Old English. See ndher- in Appendix.]

USAGE NOTE: Many compounds other than those entered here may be formed with under-. In forming compounds, under- is joined with the following element without space or a hyphen: underrate; undergrow. Note, however, that the adjective under may combine with other words as a unit modifier. In such cases the words are joined by hyphens: an under-the-table deal.

un·der·a·chieve (ʊn'dər-ə-čēv') v. intr. un·der·a·chieved, un·der·a·chiev·ing, un·der·a·chieves. To perform worse or achieve less success than expected. — un'dər-ə-čiev'ment n. — un'dər-ə-čiev'er n.

un·der·act (ʊn'dər-äkt') v. un·der·act·ed, un·der·act·ing, un·der·acts.

— v. tr. 1. To perform (a role) weakly or with insufficient expressiveness. 2. To understate (a role) intentionally; underplay. — v. intr. To perform in an understated way.

un·der·age¹ (ʊn'dər-ij) n. 1. An amount, as of money or goods actually on hand, that falls short of the listed amount in records or books of account. 2. A deficient amount; a shortfall.

un·der·age² (ʊn'dər-āj') also un·der·aged (-āj'd') adj. Below the customary or legal age, as for drinking or voting.

un·der·arm (ʊn'dər-ärm') adj. 1. Located, placed, or used under the arm.

2. Sports. Executed with the hand brought forward and up from below the level of the shoulder; underhand. — adv. With an underarm motion or delivery.

— n. The armpit. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: underarm perspiration; underarm deodorant.

un·der·bel·ly (ʊn'dər-bəl'ē) n. pl. un·der·bel·lies. 1. The soft belly or underside of an animal's body. Also called underbody. 2. The vulnerable or weak part: "the soft underbelly of the Axis" (Winston S. Churchill). "So much... can be learned from these and other neglected sources from the underbelly of traditional scholarship" (Stephen Jay Gould).

un-der-bid (ŭn'dər-bīd') v. un-der-bid, un-der-bid-ding, un-der-bids. — v. tr. 1. To bid lower than (a competitor). 2. Games. To bid less than the full value of (one's hand) in bridge. — v. intr. To make an unnecessarily low bid. — un'der-bid' n. — un'der-bid'der n.

un-der-bod-y (ŭn'dər-bōd'ē) n. pl. un-der-bod-ies. 1. See underbelly (n., sense 1). 2. The under parts of the body of a motor vehicle.

un-der-boss (ŭn'dər-bōs', -bōs') n. An assistant to a chief, especially in a crime syndicate.

un-der-bought (ŭn'dər-bōt') v. Past tense and past participle of underbuy.

un-der-bred (ŭn'dər-brēd') adj. 1. Poorly brought up; ill-bred. 2. Of mixed breed; not thoroughbred.

un-der-brush (ŭn'dər-brūsh') n. Small trees, shrubs, or similar plants growing beneath the taller trees in a forest.

un-der-buy (ŭn'dər-bī') v. un-der-bought (-bōt'), un-der-buy-ing, un-der-buys. — v. tr. 1. To buy less (of something) than one wants or needs. 2. To buy at a lower price than a competitor. 3. To buy (something) at less than a proper or expected price. — v. intr. 1. To buy less of something than what is wanted or needed. 2. To buy something at a price lower than proper or expected.

un-der-cap-i-tal-ize (ŭn'dər-kăp'ī-tl-īz') v. tr. un-der-cap-i-tal-ized, un-der-cap-i-tal-iz-ing, un-der-cap-i-tal-iz-es. To supply (a business or government, for example) with so little capital that operations are hindered. — un'der-cap'i-tal-iz-a'tion (-ī-zā'shən) n.

un-der-car-riage (ŭn'dər-kăr'ij) n. 1. A supporting framework or structure, as for the body of a motor vehicle. 2. The landing gear of an aircraft.

un-der-charge (ŭn'dər-chărj') v. tr. un-der-charged, un-der-charg-ing, un-der-charg-es. 1. To charge (a customer, for example) less than is customary or required. 2. To load (a firearm) with an insufficient charge. — n. (ŭn'dər-chărj') An insufficient or improper charge.

un-der-class (ŭn'dər-klăs') n. The lowest societal stratum, usually composed of the disadvantaged: "America can no longer afford racism and a neglect of the underclass" (Lance Morrow). "Divorced women and their children are becoming a new underclass" (Barbara Fisher Williamson).

un-der-class-man (ŭn'dər-klăs'mən) n. A student in the freshman or sophomore class at a secondary school or college. Also called lowerclassman un-der-clothes (ŭn'dər-klōz', -klōthz') pl.n. Clothes worn next to the skin, beneath one's outer clothing. Also called underclothing, underwear.

un-der-cloth-ing (ŭn'dər-klō'thĭng) n. See underclothes.

un-der-coat (ŭn'dər-kōt') n. 1. A coat worn beneath another coat. 2. A covering of short hairs lying underneath the longer outer hairs of an animal's coat. 3. Also un-der-coat-ing (-kō'tĭng). a. A coat of sealing material applied to a surface before the outer coats, as of paint, are applied. b. The sealing material used for this purpose. c. A tarlike substance sprayed on the underside of a vehicle to prevent rusting. — v. tr. un·der·coat·ed, un·der·coat·ing, un·der·coats. To apply an undercoat to.

un·der·cool (ŭn'dər-kōōl') v. tr. un·der·cooled, un·der·cool·ing, un·der·cools. To supercool.

un·der·count (ŭn'dər-kount') v. tr. un·der·count·ed, un·der·count·ing, un·der·counts. To record fewer than the actual number of (persons in a census, for example). — un'dər·count' n.

un·der·cov·er (ŭn'dər-kŭv'ər) adj. 1. Performed or occurring in secret: an undercover investigation. 2. Engaged or employed in spying or secret investigation: undercover FBI agents.

un·der·croft (ŭn'dər-krōft', -krōft') n. A crypt, especially one used for burial under a church. [Middle English : under-, under- + croft, crypt (from Middle Dutch crofte, from Medieval Latin crupta, from Latin crypta, crypt); see CRYPT.]

un·der·cur·rent (ŭn'dər-kŭr'ənt, -kŭr'-) n. 1. A current, as of air or water, below another current or beneath a surface. 2. An underlying tendency, force, or influence often contrary to what is superficially evident; an intimation: "The Gaucho began to talk, calmly but with an undercurrent of passion" (Thomas Pynchon).

un·der·cut (ŭn'dər-kŭt') v. un·der·cut, un·der·cut·ting, un·der·cuts. — v. tr. 1. To diminish or destroy the province or effectiveness of; undermine: "This celebration of opulence and wealth and power undercuts the character of the Statue of Liberty" (Jesse Jackson). "The partnership between the United States and Western Europe is undercut by diverging economic interests" (Scott Sullivan). 2. To sell at a lower price than or to work for lower wages or fees than (a competitor). 3. To make a cut under or below. 4. To create an overhang by cutting material away from, as in carving. 5. Sports. a. To impart backspin to (a ball) by striking downward as well as forward, as in golf and baseball. b. To cut or slice (a ball) with an underarm stroke, as in tennis. — v. intr. To engage in undercutting. — n. (ŭn'dər-kŭt') 1. a. A cut made in the under part to remove material. b. The material so removed. 2. A notch cut in a tree to direct its fall and insure a clean break. 3. Chiefly British. The tenderloin of beef; the fillet. 4. Sports. a. A spin given to a ball opposite to its direction of flight; a backspin. b. A cut or slice imparting such a spin. c. A cut or slice made with an underarm motion.

un·der·de·vel·oped (ŭn'dər-dī-vĕl'əpt) adj. 1. Not adequately or normally developed; immature: underdeveloped leaves and flowers. 2. Processed in too weak a developing solution, or for too short a time, or at too low a temperature to produce a normal degree of contrast. Used of film. 3. Having a low level of economic productivity and technological sophistication within the contemporary range of possibility; developing: underdeveloped countries.

—un'dər·de·vel'op·ment n.

un·der·do (ŭn'dər-dōō') v. tr. un·der·did (-dīd'), un·der·done (-dŭn'), un·der·do·ing, un·der·does (-dŭz'). To do to an insufficient degree, especially to cook for too short a time.

un·der·dog (ŭn'dər-dôg', -dôg') n. 1. One that is expected to lose a contest or struggle, as in sports or politics. 2. One that is at a disadvantage.

un·der·done (ŭn'dər-dŭn') v. Past participle of underdo. — adj. Not sufficiently cooked: an underdone turkey.

un·der·draw·ers (ŭn'dər-drôrz') pl.n. Undershorts; underpants.

un·der·dress (ŭn'dər-drēs') n. 1. Apparel worn beneath outer garments; underclothing. 2. An outer garment, such as a dress beneath a tunic or coat, that is worn as part of a costume or suit. — v. intr. un·der·dressed, un·der·dress·ing, un·der·dress·es (ŭn'dər-drēs'). 1. To dress too informally for the occasion. 2. To dress without sufficient warmth: You're underdressing that baby for such a cold day.

un·der·drive (ŭn'dər-drīv') n. A gearing device that causes the output drive shaft to rotate at a slower rate than the engine input shaft.

un·der·ed·u·cat·ed (ŭn'dər-ēj'ə-kā'tīd) adj. Poorly or insufficiently educated.

un·der·em·pha·size (ŭn'dər-ēm'fə-sīz') v. tr. un·der·em·pha·sized, un·der·em·pha·siz·ing, un·der·em·pha·siz·es. To fail to give enough emphasis to. — un·der·em·pha·sis (-sīs) n.

un·der·em·ployed (ŭn'dər-ēm-plōid') adj. 1. Employed only part-time when one needs and desires full-time employment. 2. Inadequately employed, especially employed at a low-paying job that requires less skill or training than one possesses. 3. Not fully or adequately used or employed. — n. (used with a pl. verb). Underemployed persons considered as a group. Used with the. — un·der·em·ploy·ment n.

un·der·en·dow (ŭn'dər-ĕn-dou') v. tr. un·der·en·dowed, un·der·en·dow·ing, un·der·en·dows. To supply with insufficient gifts or attributes, especially of money or features deemed attractive. — un·der·en·dow·ment n.

un·der·es·ti·mate (ŭn'dər-ĕs'tə-māt') v. tr. un·der·es·ti·mat·ed, un·der·es·ti·mat·ing, un·der·es·ti·mates. To make too low an estimate of the quantity, degree, or worth of. — n. (-ĕs'tə-mīt) An estimate that is or proves to be too low. — un·der·es'ti·ma'tion n.

un·der·ex·pose (ŭn'dər-ĭk-spōz') v. tr. un·der·ex·posed, un·der·ex·pos·ing, un·der·ex·pos·es. 1. To expose (film) to light for too short a time or to light or radiation insufficient to produce normal image contrast. 2. To provide with too little publicity. — un·der·ex·po'sure (-ĭk-spō'zhər) n.

un·der·feed (ŭn'dər-fēd') v. tr. un·der·fed (-fēd'), un·der·feed·ing, un·der·feeds. 1. To feed insufficiently. 2. To supply (an engine) with fuel from the underside.

un·der·flow (ŭn'dər-flō') n. Computer Science. A data-processing error arising when a computed quantity is a smaller number than the device is capable of displaying.

un·der·foot (ŭn'dər-fōot') adv. 1. Below or under the foot or feet; against the ground: trampled the beans underfoot. 2. At or under the foot or feet; on the ground: moist, cool, soft grass growing underfoot. 3. Hindering progress; in the way: pets, toys, and children underfoot.

un·der·fund (ŭn'dər-fünd') v. tr. un·der·fund·ed, un·der·fund·ing, un·der·funds. To provide insufficient funding for.

un·der·fur (ŭn'dər-fūr') n. The soft, fine undercoat of certain mammals, such as otters, beavers, and seals.

un·der·gar·ment (ŭn'dər-gär'mənt) n. A garment worn under outer garments, especially one worn next to the skin.

un·der·gird (ŭn'dər-gûrd') v. tr. un·der·gird·ed or un·der·girt (-gûrt'), un·der·gird·ing, un·der·girds. To support or strengthen from beneath.

un·der·glaze (ŭn'dər-glāz') n. Coloring or decoration applied to pottery before glazing.

un·der·go (ŭn'dər-gō') v. tr. un·der·went (-wēnt'), un·der·gone (-gōn', -gōn'), un·der·go·ing, un·der·goes (-gōz'). 1. To pass through; experience: a house that is undergoing renovations. See Synonyms at experience. 2. To endure; suffer: undergo great hardship.

un·der·grad (ŭn'dər-grād') n. & adj. Informal. Undergraduate.

un·der·grad·u·ate (ŭn'dər-grāj'ōō-īt) n. 1. A college or university student who has not yet received a bachelor's or similar degree. 2. A high-school student who has not yet received a diploma. — adj. 1. Of, relating to, or characteristic of undergraduates: undergraduate courses; undergraduate humor. 2. Having the standing of an undergraduate: an undergraduate transfer student.

un·der·ground (ŭn'dər-ground') adj. 1. Situated, occurring, or operating below the surface of the earth: underground caverns; underground missile sites. 2. a. Hidden or concealed; clandestine: underground resistance to the tyrant. b. Of or relating to an organization involved in secret or illegal activity: underground trade in weapons. 3. Of or relating to an avant-garde movement or its films, publications, and art, usually privately produced and of special appeal and often concerned with social or artistic experiment. — n. 1. A clandestine, often nationalist, organization fostering or planning hostile activities against, or the overthrow of, a government in power, such as an occupying military government: "an underground of dissident intellectuals" (Kenneth L. Woodward). 2. Chiefly British. A subway system. 3. An avant-garde movement or publication. — adv.

(ŭn'dər-ground') 1. Below the surface of the earth. 2. In secret; stealthily. — v. tr. un-der-ground-ed, un-der-ground-ing, un-der-grounds. To situate under the ground: workers undergrounding telephone lines.

Un-der-ground Railroad (ŭn'dər-ground' rāl'rōd') n. 1. A secret cooperative network that aided fugitive slaves in reaching sanctuary in the free states or in Canada in the years before the abolition of slavery in the United States.

2. underground railroad. A secret cooperative network engaged in the clandestine movement and housing of fugitives, such as children removed illegally from the custody of a parent charged with child abuse.

un-der-grown (ŭn'dər-grōn') adj. 1. Not fully grown; puny. 2. Covered with undergrowth.

un-der-growth (ŭn'dər-grōth') n. 1. Low-growing plants, saplings, and shrubs beneath trees in a forest. 2. A growth of short, fine hairs underlying the longer and thicker outer hairs of an animal's coat; underfur or underwool.

3. The condition of being less than fully grown.

un-der-hair (ŭn'dər-hâr') n. A covering of soft downy hairs lying underneath the outer hairs of an animal's coat; an undercoat.

un-der-hand (ŭn'dər-händ') also un-der-hand-ed (ŭn'dər-hän'did) adj.

1. Marked by or done in a deceptive, secret, or sly manner; dishonest and sneaky. See Synonyms at secret. 2. Sports. Executed with the hand brought forward and up from below the level of the shoulder; underarm: an underhand pitch; an underhand stroke. — adv. 1. With an underhand movement: Throw the ball underhand. 2. In a sly and secret way. — un'der-hand' n.

— un'der-hand/ed-ly adv. — un'der-hand/ed-ness n.

un-der-hung (ŭn'dər-hŭng') adj. 1. a. Protruding from beneath.

b. Supported by or lying over something that projects. 2. Resting on or mounted along a supporting track, as a sliding door on rollers. 3. Underslung, as a machine. 4. Having the lower jaw projecting beyond the upper jaw.

un-der-in-sure (ŭn'dər-ĭn-shōōr') v. tr. un-der-in-sured, un-der-in-sur-ing, un-der-in-sures. To insure under a policy that provides inadequate benefits: Be certain that you are not underinsured against catastrophic illness. — un'der-in-sur/ance n.

un-der-kill (ŭn'dər-kĭl') n. Insufficient force to defeat an enemy.

un-der-laid (ŭn'dər-lād') v. Past tense and past participle of underlay¹. — adj. 1. Placed or laid underneath. 2. Supported or raised by something from beneath; having an underlay.

un-der-lain (ŭn'dər-lān') v. Past participle of underlie.

un-der-lay¹ (ŭn'dər-lā') v. tr. un-der-laid (-lād'), un-der-lay-ing, un-der-lays. 1. To put (one thing) under another. 2. To provide with a base or support. 3. Printing. To raise or support (the level of a bed) by inserting a piece of paper or other material under the type. — n. (ŭn'dər-lā') 1. Something, such as felt under a carpet, that is underlaid. Also called underlayment

2. Printing. Paper or other material used to underlay.

un·der·lay² (ŭn'dər-lā') v. Past tense of underlie.

un·der·lay·ment (ŭn'dər-lā'mənt) n. See underlay¹ (n., sense 1).

un·der·let (ŭn'dər-lět') v. tr. un·der·let, un·der·let·ting, un·der·lets. 1. To lease for less than the proper value. 2. To sublet.

un·der·lie (ŭn'dər-lī') v. tr. un·der·lay (-lā'), un·der·lain (-lān'), un·der·ly·ing, un·der·lies. 1. To be located under or below. 2. To be the support or basis of; account for: Many factors underlie my decision. 3. To constitute a prior financial claim over: Dividends for preferred stock underlie those of common stock.

un·der·line (ŭn'dər-līn', ŭn'dər-līn') v. tr. un·der·lined, un·der·lin·ing, un·der·lines. 1. To draw a line under; emphasize or cause to stand out; underscore. 2. To emphasize; stress. — n. (ŭn'dər-līn') A line under something, such as a symbol, word, or phrase, used to indicate emphasis or italic type.

un·der·ling (ŭn'dər-līng) n. One of lesser rank or authority than another; a subordinate.

WORD HISTORY: People trying to build their vocabulary often study affixes, a not unreasonable way to proceed. But studying a group of words that share an affix can be fascinating in its own right in the way that studying common features in a photograph of an extended family can be fascinating. The suffix -ling is Germanic in origin and had several uses already in Old English. For example, it could be added to a noun to make a second noun that referred to something connected with or similar to the first noun; thus, adding the suffix to the Old English word yrth, “ploughland,” produced the Old English word yrthling, “plowman.” The suffix could also be added to an adjective to make a noun that referred to something having the quality denoted by the adjective: from Old English dēore, “dear, beloved,” was derived dēorling (Modern English darling). Adding -ling to an adverb produced a noun referring to something having the position or condition denoted by the adverb: from Old English under came underling. The last use of the -ling family to be described here was actually borrowed from another Germanic source, Old Norse. The Old Norse version of the -ling suffix was used to form diminutives; thus, our word gosling was a borrowing in Middle English of an Old Norse word, gæslingr, “gosling.”

un·der·lin·ing (ŭn'dər-lī'nīng) n. 1. The act of drawing a line under; underscoring. 2. Emphasis or stress, as in instruction or argument.

un·der·lip (ŭn'dər-līp') n. The lower lip.

un·der·ly·ing (ŭn'dər-lī'īng) adj. 1. Lying under or beneath something: underlying strata. 2. Basic; fundamental. 3. Present but not obvious; implicit:

an underlying meaning. 4. Taking precedence; prior: an underlying financial claim.

un·der·mine (ŭn'dər-mīn') v. tr. un·der·mined, un·der·min·ing, un·der·mines. 1. To weaken by wearing away a base or foundation: Water has undermined the stone foundations. 2. To weaken, injure, or impair, often by degrees or imperceptibly; sap: Late hours can undermine one's health. 3. To dig a mine or tunnel beneath.

un·der·mod·u·late (ŭn'dər-mōj'ə-lāt') v. tr. un·der·mod·u·lat·ed, un·der·mod·u·lat·ing, un·der·mod·u·lates. To use a sound reproduction or transmission device less than optimally possible. — un'der·mod'u·la'tion n.

un·der·most (ŭn'dər-mōst') adj. Lowest in position, rank, or place; bottom. — adv. In or to the lowest place.

un·der·neath (ŭn'dər-nēth') adv. 1. In or to a place beneath; below. 2. On the lower face or underside. — prep. 1. Under; below; beneath. 2. Under the power or control of. — adj. Lower; under. — n. The part or side below or under. [Middle English undernethe, from Old English underneothan : under, under; see UNDER + neothan, below; see BENEATH.]

un·der·nour·ish (ŭn'dər-nūr'ish, -nūr'-) v. tr. un·der·nour·ished, un·der·nour·ish·ing, un·der·nour·ish·es. To provide with insufficient quantity or quality of nourishment to sustain proper health and growth. — un'der·nour'ish·ment n.

un·der·nu·tri·tion (ŭn'dər-nōō-trīsh'ən, -nyōō-) n. Inadequate nutrition resulting from lack of food or failure of the body to absorb or assimilate nutrients properly.

un·der·paid (ŭn'dər-pād') v. Past tense and past participle of underpay.

un·der·pants (ŭn'dər-pānts') pl.n. Briefs or shorts worn as underwear.

un·der·part (ŭn'dər-pärt') n. 1. A lower part or a portion of a lower part or underside, especially of an animal's body: We recognized the robin by its reddish underparts. 2. A subordinate role, as in a play.

un·der·pass (ŭn'dər-pās') n. 1. A passage underneath something, especially a section of road that passes under another road or a railroad. 2. An intersection formed in this way.

un·der·pay (ŭn'dər-pā') v. tr. un·der·paid (-pād'), un·der·pay·ing, un·der·pays. To pay insufficiently or less than is deserved. — un'der·pay'ment n.

un·der·per·form (ŭn'dər-pər-fôrm') v. un·der·per·formed, un·der·per·form·ing, un·der·per·forms. — v. tr. 1. To perform not as well as (something else): three stocks that underperformed the market as a whole. 2. To perform (a musical or theatrical work, for example) too seldom: In recent years, her plays have been underperformed. — v. intr. To exhibit a level of performance that is below the standard: Defense industry companies have underperformed dur- ing the last two quarters. —un'der-per-form'ance n. —un'der-per-form'er n.

un·der·pin (ʊn'dər-pɪn') v. tr. un·der·pinned, un·der·pin·ning, un·der·pins. 1. To support from below, as with props, girders, or masonry. 2. To give support or substance to: “the public awareness that must underpin a sustained and concerted development effort for Africa and its youth” (Barber B. Conable).

un·der·pin·ning (ʊn'dər-pɪn'ɪŋ) n. 1. Material or masonry used to support a structure, such as a wall. 2. Often underpinnings. A support or foundation. 3. Often underpinnings. Informal. The human legs.

un·der·play (ʊn'dər-plā', ʊn'dər-plā') v. un·der·played, un·der·play·ing, un·der·plays. — v. tr. 1. To act (a role) subtly or with restraint. 2. To present or deal with subtly or with restraint; play down. — v. intr. 1. To act a role subtly or with restraint. 2. Games. To play a low card while holding a higher card in the same suit.

un·der·plot (ʊn'dər-plɒt') n. See subplot (n., sense 1).

un·der·pop·u·lat·ed (ʊn'dər-pɒp'yə-lā'tɪd) adj. Lacking the normal or required population density. —un'der·pop·u·la'tion n.

un·der·price (ʊn'dər-prɪs') v. tr. un·der·priced, un·der·pric·ing, un·der·pric·es. 1. To price lower than the real, normal, or appropriate value. 2. To sell at a lower price than (a competitor): one store that underpriced others of its kind.

un·der·priv·i·leged (ʊn'dər-prɪv'ə-lɪjd) adj. Lacking opportunities or advantages enjoyed by other members of one's community; deprived. —un'der·priv'i·leged n.

un·der·pro·duce (ʊn'dər-prə-dōs', -dyōs') v. un·der·pro·duced, un·der·pro·duc·ing, un·der·pro·duces. — v. tr. To produce (goods, for example) at a level below full capacity or beneath the degree of demand. — v. intr. To produce goods, for example, in a quantity insufficient to meet demand. —un'der·pro·duc'tion (-dük'shən) n. —un'der·pro·duc'tive (-dük'tɪv) adj.

un·der·proof (ʊn'dər-prōf') adj. Abbr. UP Having a smaller proportion of alcohol than proof spirit.

un·der·prop (ʊn'dər-prɒp') v. tr. un·der·propped, un·der·prop·ping, un·der·props. To prop (something) from below.

un·der·quote (ʊn'dər-kwɒt') v. tr. un·der·quot·ed, un·der·quot·ing, un·der·quotes. 1. To offer (goods or services) for sale at a price lower than the official list or market price. 2. To quote a lower price than that quoted by (another); undersell.

un·der·ran (ʊn'dər-rän') v. Past tense of underrun.

un·der·rate (ŭn'dər-rāt') v. tr. un·der·rat·ed, un·der·rat·ing, un·der·rates. To rate too low; underestimate.

un·der·re·act (ŭn'dər-rē-ăkt') v. intr. un·der·re·act·ed, un·der·re·act·ing, un·der·re·acts. To react with insufficient enthusiasm, force, or emphasis.
—un'der·re·ac'tion n.

un·der·re·port (ŭn'dər-rĭ-pōrt', -pōrt') v. tr. un·der·re·port·ed, un·der·re·port·ing, un·der·re·ports. To report (income, for example) as being less than actually is the case.

un·der·rep·re·sent (ŭn'dər-rĕp'rĭ-zĕnt') v. tr. un·der·rep·re·sent·ed, un·der·rep·re·sent·ing, un·der·rep·re·sents. To imply or suggest a lower amount, quantity, quality, or degree of than is actually present: Management has seriously underrepresented the firm's financial problems.
—un'der·rep're·sen·ta'tion n.

un·der·rep·re·sent·ed (ŭn'dər-rĕp'rĭ-zĕn'tĭd) adj. Insufficiently or inadequately represented: the underrepresented minority groups, ignored by the government.

un·der·run (ŭn'dər-rŭn') v. tr. un·der·ran (-răn'), un·der·run, un·der·run·ning, un·der·runs. 1. To run, pass, or go beneath. 2. Nautical. To haul (a line or cable) onto a boat for inspection or repair. — n. 1. Something that runs under, as: a. An amount or a quantity produced that is less than what has been estimated. b. The difference between this amount or quantity and what has been estimated. 2. An undercurrent.

un·der·score (ŭn'dər-skōr', -skōr') v. tr. un·der·scored, un·der·scor·ing, un·der·scores. 1. To underline. 2. To emphasize; stress. — n. A line drawn under writing to indicate emphasis or italic type.

un·der·sea (ŭn'dər-sē') adj. Existing, relating to, or created for use beneath the surface of the sea: undersea life; undersea cameras. — adv. (-sēz') also un·der·seas (ŭn'dər-sē') Beneath the surface of the sea.

un·der·sec·re·tar·y (ŭn'dər-sĕk'rə-tĕr'ĕ) n. pl. un·der·sec·re·tar·ies. An official directly subordinate to a member of a cabinet.
—un'der·sec're·tar'i·at (-târ'ĕ-ĭt) n.

un·der·sell (ŭn'dər-sĕl') v. tr. un·der·sold (-sōld'), un·der·sell·ing, un·der·sells. 1. To sell goods for a lower price than (another seller): undersell the competition. 2. To sell (something) at a price less than the actual value. 3. To present (an idea, for example) with such mild or insufficient enthusiasm as to engender a lack of interest: Now that our proposal has failed, it's obvious that we undersold it. —un'der·sell'er n.

un·der·serve (ŭn'dər-sŭrv') v. tr. un·der·served, un·der·serv·ing, un·der·serves. To supply with insufficient services, especially social and health services.

un·der·set (ŭn'dər-sĕt') n. An ocean undercurrent.

un-der-sexed (үн'дәр-сәкст') adj. Having less sexual desire or potency than what is regarded as normal.

un-der-shirt (үн'дәр-шұрт') n. An upper undergarment, typically having short or no sleeves, worn next to the skin under a shirt.

un-der-shoot (үн'дәр-шōт') v. un-der-shot (-шōт'), un-der-shoot-ing, un-der-shoots. — v. tr. 1. To shoot a projectile short of (a target). 2. a. To start the approach of one's aircraft to (a landing area) too low or too soon. b. To land an aircraft short of (a landing area). — v. intr. 1. To shoot short of a target. 2. To land short of a landing area.

un-der-shorts (үн'дәр-шōrts') pl.n. Shorts or briefs worn as undergarments, especially those for a man; underpants.

un-der-shot (үн'дәр-шōт') v. Past tense and past participle of undershoot. — adj. (үн'дәр-шōт') 1. Driven by water passing from below, as a water wheel. 2. Having the lower jaw or teeth projecting beyond the upper; underhung.

un-der-shrub (үн'дәр-шрүб') n. A very low-growing shrub.

un-der-side (үн'дәр-сід') n. 1. The side or surface that is underneath; the bottom side. Also called undersurface 2. The side that is less desirable, reputable, or noble than the obverse: "hunger, isolation, filth, the underside of [a] hellish regime" (National Review).

un-der-sign (үн'дәр-сін') v. tr. un-der-signed, un-der-sign-ing, un-der-signs. To sign one's name at the bottom of (a letter or document).

un-der-signed (үн'дәр-сінд') adj. 1. Having signatures or a signature at the bottom or end. Used of documents. 2. Signed at the bottom or end of a document: the undersigned names. 3. Having placed one's signature at the bottom or end of a document: You are undersigned on page 6. — n. pl. undersigned. A signer whose name appears at the bottom or end of a document. Often used with the.

un-der-sized (үн'дәр-сизд') also un-der-size (-сиз') adj. Of less than normal or sufficient size.

un-der-skirt (үн'дәр-скұрт') n. 1. A skirt worn under another skirt; a petticoat. 2. One skirt of a layered gown over which outer skirts are formed and draped.

un-der-sleeve (үн'дәр-слēв') n. 1. A sleeve worn under another. 2. An ornamental sleeve worn under another sleeve, designed to extend below or show through slashes in the outer sleeve.

un-der-slung (үн'дәр-слүнг') adj. 1. Having springs attached to the axles from below. Used of a vehicle or of its frame. 2. Supported from above.

3. Having a low center of gravity.

un-der-soil (үн'дәр-соил') n. Soil below the ground surface.

un-der-sold (үн'дәр-сōлд') v. Past tense and past participle of undersell.

un-der-spin (үн'дәр-спін') n. A backspin.

un·der·staff (ŭn'dər-stăf') v. tr. un·der·staffed, un·der·staff·ing, un·der·staffs. To supply with fewer employees than required: Management was careful not to understaff the agency.

un·der·stand (ŭn'dər-stănd') v. un·der·stood (-stööd'), un·der·stand·ing, un·der·stands. — v. tr. 1. To perceive and comprehend the nature and significance of; grasp. See Synonyms at apprehend. 2. To know thoroughly by close contact or long experience with: That teacher understands children. 3. a. To grasp or comprehend the meaning intended or expressed by (another): They have trouble with English, but I can understand them. b. To comprehend the language, sounds, form, or symbols of. 4. To know and be tolerant or sympathetic toward: I can understand your point of view even though I disagree with it. 5. To learn indirectly, as by hearsay: I understand his departure was unexpected. 6. To infer: Am I to understand you are staying the night? 7. To accept (something) as an agreed fact: It is understood that the fee will be 50 dollars. 8. To supply or add (words or a meaning, for example) mentally. — v. intr. 1. a. To have understanding, knowledge, or comprehension. b. To have sympathy or tolerance. 2. To learn something indirectly or secondhand; gather. [Middle English understanden, from Old English understandan : under-, under- + standan, to stand; see stā- in Appendix.] —un'der-stand'a-bil'i-ty n. —un'der-stand'a-ble adj. —un'der-stand'a-bly adv.

un·der·stand·ing (ŭn'dər-stăn'dĩng) n. 1. The quality or condition of one who understands; comprehension. 2. The faculty by which one understands; intelligence. See Synonyms at reason. 3. Individual or specified judgment or outlook; opinion. 4. a. A compact implicit between two or more people or groups. b. The matter implicit in such a compact. 5. A reconciliation of differences; a state of agreement: They finally reached an understanding. 6. A disposition to appreciate or share the feelings and thoughts of others; sympathy. — adj. 1. Characterized by or having comprehension, good sense, or discernment. 2. Compassionate; sympathetic. —un'der-stand'ing-ly adv.

un·der·state (ŭn'dər-stăt') v. un·der·stat·ed, un·der·stat·ing, un·der·states. — v. tr. 1. To state with less completeness or truth than seems warranted by the facts. 2. To express with restraint or lack of emphasis, especially ironically or for rhetorical effect. 3. To state (a quantity, for example) that is too low: understate corporate financial worth. — v. intr. To give an understatement.

un·der·stat·ed (ŭn'dər-stăt'id) adj. Exhibiting restrained good taste: "The waiting room is comfortable and understated" (Tony Schwartz). —un'der-stat'ed-ly adv.

un·der·state·ment (ŭn'dər-stăt'mənt, ŭn'dər-stăt'-) n. 1. A disclosure or statement that is less than complete. 2. Restraint or lack of emphasis in expression, as for rhetorical effect. 3. Restraint in artistic expression.

un·der·steer (ŭn'dər-stîr') v. intr. un·der·steered, un·der·steer·ing, un·der·steers. To turn less sharply than the operator would expect. Used of vehicles, especially automobiles. — n. 1. An instance of understeering. 2. A tendency to understeer.

un·der·stood (ŭn'dər-stōod') v. Past tense and past participle of understand. — adj. 1. Agreed on; assumed: the understood conditions of troop withdrawal. 2. Not expressed in writing; implied: the understood provisos of a custody agreement.

un·der·stra·tum (ŭn'dər-strā'təm, -strāt'əm) n. pl. un·der·stra·ta (-strā'tə, -strāt'ə) or un·der·stra·tums. A substratum.

un·der·stud·y (ŭn'dər-stüd'ē) v. un·der·stud·ied (-ēd), un·der·stud·y·ing, un·der·stud·ies (-ēz). — v. tr. 1. To study or know (a role) so as to be able to replace the regular performer when required. 2. To act as an understudy to. — v. intr. To be engaged in studying a role so as to be able to replace the regular performer when required. — n. pl. un·der·stud·ies. 1. A performer who understudies. 2. A person trained to do the work of another.

un·der·sub·scribe (ŭn'dər-səb-skrīb') v. tr. un·der·sub·scribed, un·der·sub·scrib·ing, un·der·sub·scribes. To subscribe for (something), leaving supply or accommodation still available: This course is usually undersubscribed. — un'der·sub·scrip'tion (-skrīp'shən) n.

un·der·sup·ply (ŭn'dər-sə-plī') n. pl. un·der·sup·plies. A supply smaller than what is appropriate or required. — v. tr. un·der·sup·plied (-plīd'), un·der·sup·ply·ing, un·der·sup·plies (-plīz'). To supply in an amount insufficient to what is appropriate or required: undersupplied the troops with blankets; undersupplied blankets to the troops.

un·der·sur·face (ŭn'dər-sûr'fəs) n. See underside (n., sense 1).

un·der·take (ŭn'dər-tāk') v. un·der·took (-tōok'), un·der·tak·en, un·der·tak·ing, un·der·takes. — v. tr. 1. To take upon oneself; decide or agree to do: undertake a task. 2. To pledge or commit (oneself) to: undertake oneself to care for an elderly relative. 3. To set about; begin. 4. Obsolete. To accept combat with. — v. intr. Archaic. To make oneself responsible. Used with for.

un·der·tak·er (ŭn'dər-tā'kər) n. 1. (ŭn'dər-tā'kər) See funeral director. 2. One, especially an entrepreneur, that undertakes a task or job.

un·der·tak·ing (ŭn'dər-tā'kīng) n. 1. A task or an assignment undertaken; a venture. 2. A guaranty, an engagement, or a promise. 3. The profession or duties of a funeral director.

un·der·the·count·er (ŭn'dər-thə-koun'tər) adv. & adj. Transacted, given, or sold illicitly.

un·der·the·ta·ble (ŭn'dər-thə-tā'bəl) adv. & adj. Not straightforward; secret or underhand.

un·der·things (ŭn'dər-thīngz') pl.n. Underwear, especially of women or girls.

un·der·tint (үн'дәр-тінт') n. A slight or subtle tint.

un·der·tone (үн'дәр-төн') n. 1. An underlying or implied tendency or meaning; an undercurrent. 2. A tone of low pitch or volume, especially of spoken sound. 3. Color. a. A pale or subdued color. b. A color applied under or seen through another color.

un·der·took (үн'дәр-төөк') v. Past tense of undertake.

un·der·tow (үн'дәр-тө') n. 1. The seaward pull of receding waves after they break on a shore. 2. A tendency, especially in thought or feeling, contrary to what seems the strongest: “As she talks nostalgically of her days of glory... a poignant undertow emerges” (Tina Brown).

un·der·trick (үн'дәр-трик') n. Games. A trick in card games, especially bridge, the loss of which prevents a declarer from making a contract.

un·der·trump (үн'дәр-трүмп') v. intr. un·der·trumped, un·der·trump·ing, un·der·trumps. Games. To play a trump lower than another card player's trump when trump has not been led.

un·der·val·ue (үн'дәр-вэл'уоо) v. tr. un·der·val·ued, un·der·val·u·ing, un·der·val·ues. 1. To assign too low a value to; underestimate. 2. To have too little regard or esteem for. —un·der·val·u·a'tion n.

un·der·vest (үн'дәр-вөст') n. Chiefly British. An undershirt.

un·der·wa·ter (үн'дәр-вөт'тәр, -вөт'әр) adj. 1. Relating to, occurring, used, or performed beneath the surface of water. 2. Nautical. Below the water line of a vessel. —un·der·wa'ter adv.

un·der way or un·der·way (үн'дәр-вә') adv. & adj. 1. In motion or operation. 2. Already commenced or initiated; in progress. 3. Nautical. Neither anchored nor moored to a fixed object.

un·der·wear (үн'дәр-вәт') n. See underclothes.

un·der·weight (үн'дәр-вәт') adj. Weighing less than is normal, healthy, or required. — n. Insufficiency of weight.

un·der·went (үн'дәр-вөнт') v. Past tense of undergo.

un·der·whelm (үн'дәр-хвөлм', -вөлм') v. tr. un·der·whelmed, un·der·whelm·ing, un·der·whelms. To fail to excite, stimulate, or impress: “He is just as entitled to be underwhelmed by the prospect of reigning over a fourth-class nation as the rest of us are by the prospect of living in it” (Peter Jay). [UNDER- + (OVER)WHELM.]

un·der·wing (үн'дәр-вөнг') n. 1. One of a pair of hind wings of an insect, such as a moth. 2. Any of various noctuid moths of the genus Calocala, having brightly colored hind wings visible only during flight.

un·der·wood (үн'дәр-вөөд') n. Shrubs and small trees growing beneath taller trees; underbrush.

Un-der-wood (ŭn'dər-wōōd'), Oscar Wilder. 1862-1929. American politician. A U.S. representative (1895-1915) and senator (1915-1927) from Kentucky, he sponsored the Underwood Tariff Act of 1913.

un-der-wool (ŭn'dər-wōōl') n. The soft woolly undercoat of certain animals, especially sheep.

un-der-world (ŭn'dər-wŭrld') n. 1. The part of society that is engaged in and organized for the purpose of crime and vice. 2. A region, realm, or dwelling place conceived to be below the surface of the earth. 3. The opposite side of the earth; the antipodes. 4. Greek Mythology & Roman Mythology. The world of the dead, located below the world of the living; Hades. 5. Archaic. The world beneath the heavens; the earth.

un-der-write (ŭn'dər-rīt') v. un-der-wrote (-rōt'), un-der-writ-ten (-rīt'n), un-der-writ-ing, un-der-writes. — v. tr. 1. To assume financial responsibility for; guarantee against failure: underwrite a theatrical production. 2. a. To sign (an insurance policy) so as to assume liability in case of specified losses. b. To insure. c. To insure against losses totaling (a given amount). 3. a. To guarantee the purchase of (a full issue of stocks or bonds). b. To agree to buy the unsold part of (stock not yet sold publicly) at a fixed time and price. 4. a. To write under or at the end of something. b. To subscribe to, especially to sign or endorse (a document). 5. To support or agree to (a decision, for example). — v. intr. To act as an underwriter, especially to issue an insurance policy.

un-der-writ-er (ŭn'dər-rīt'tər) n. Abbr. UW One that underwrites, especially: a. A person or firm engaged in the insurance business. b. An insurance agent who assesses the risk of enrolling an applicant for coverage or a policy. c. One that guarantees the purchase of a full issue of stocks or bonds.

un-der-writ-ten (ŭn'dər-rīt'n) v. Abbr. UW Past participle of underwrite.

un-der-wrote (ŭn'dər-rōt') v. Past tense of underwrite.

un-de-scend-ed testicle (ŭn'dī-sĕn'dīd tĕs'tī-kəl) n. A testicle that has remained within the inguinal canal and has not descended to the scrotum.

un-de-served (ŭn'dī-zŭrvd') adj. Not merited; unjustifiable or unfair. — un-de-serv-ed-ly (-zŭr'vīd-lē) adv.

un-de-sign-ing (ŭn'dī-zī'nĭng) adj. Having no ulterior motives; straightforward.

un-de-sir-a-ble (ŭn'dī-zīr'ə-bəl) adj. 1. Not likely to please; objectionable: undesirable intrusions. 2. Not wanted: undesirable aliens. — n. A person regarded as undesirable: "men tentatively regarded as scoundrels—or at least as undesirables" (New York). — un-de-sir'a-bil'i-ty n. — un-de-sir'a-bly adv.

un-de-ter-mined (ŭn'dī-tŭr'mĭnd) adj. 1. Not yet determined; undecided: Our lawsuit is still undetermined. 2. Not specifically known or ascertained: a fire of undetermined origin.

un-did (ŭn-dīd') v. Past tense of undo.

un·dies (ŭn'dēz) pl.n. Informal. Underwear, especially for women or girls.

un·dig·ni·fied (ŭn-dĭg'nə-fĭd') adj. Lacking in or damaging to dignity.

un·dine (ŭn-dēn', ŭn'dēn') n. According to Paracelsus, a female water spirit who could earn a soul by marrying a mortal and bearing his child. [New Latin undīna, from Latin unda, wave. See wed-¹ in Appendix.]

un·dip·lo·mat·ic (ŭn-dĭp'lə-măt'ĭk) adj. Not tactful or diplomatic.

—un·dip·lo·mat·i·cal·ly adv.

un·di·rect·ed (ŭn'dĭ-rĕk'tĭd, -dĭ-) adj. 1. Having no object or purpose; not guided. 2. Having no prescribed destination. Used of mail.

un·dis·charged (ŭn'dĭs-chärjd') adj. 1. Not fulfilled: an undischarged obligation. 2. Not paid: an undischarged debt. 3. Not unloaded. Used of a ship's cargo.

un·dis·crim·i·nat·ing (ŭn'dĭ-skrĭm'ə-nā'tĭng) adj. 1. Lacking sensitivity, taste, or judgment. 2. Indiscriminate.

un·dis·posed (ŭn'dĭ-spōzd') adj. 1. Not settled, removed, or resolved: undisposed assets. 2. Disinclined; unwilling: undisposed to help us.

un·dis·tin·guished (ŭn'dĭ-stĭng'gwĭsh) adj. 1. a. Marked by no peculiar quality; not distinguished; ordinary: an undistinguished appearance. b. Lacking particularly good qualities; mediocre: an undistinguished performance. 2. Not separated from others into categories. 3. a. Incapable of being noticed or perceived individually from others; indistinguishable: an undistinguished cry amid all the uproar. b. Unnoticed; unperceived: an undistinguished face in the crowd.

un·dis·turbed (ŭn'dĭ-stŭrbd') adj. Not disturbed; calm.

un·do (ŭn-dōo') v. un·did (-dĭd'), un·done (-dŭn'), un·do·ing (-dōo'ĭng), un·does (-dŭz'). — v. tr. 1. To reverse or erase; annul: impossible to undo the suffering caused by the war. 2. To untie, disassemble, or loosen: undo a shoelace. 3. To open (a parcel, for example); unwrap. 4. a. To cause the ruin or downfall of; destroy. b. To throw into confusion; unsettle. 5. Obsolete. To solve or interpret; unravel. — v. intr. To come open or unfastened. —un·do'er n.

un·dock (ŭn-dŏk') v. tr. un·docked, un·dock·ing, un·docks. 1. Nautical. To move (a ship) away from a dock. 2. To uncouple (spacecraft).

un·doc·u·ment·ed (ŭn-dŏk'yə-mĕn'tĭd) adj. 1. Not supported by written evidence: undocumented income tax deductions; undocumented accusations.

2. Not having the needed documents, as for permission to live or work in a foreign country. — n. A person not having proper documentation, especially for immigration.

un·do·ing (ŭn-dōo'ĭng) v. Present participle of undo. — n. 1. The act of unfastening or loosening. 2. a. Ruin; destruction. b. The act of bringing to ruin. c. A cause or source of ruin; downfall: Greed was his undoing. 3. The act of reversing or annulling something accomplished; a cancellation.

un·done (ŭn-dŭn') v. Past participle of undo.

un·dou·ble (ŭn-dŭb'əl) v. tr. un·dou·bled, un·dou·bling, un·dou·bles. To unfold, as a piece of paper money.

un·doubt·ed (ŭn-dou'tĭd) adj. Accepted as beyond question; undisputed. See Synonyms at authentic. — un·doubt'ed·ly adv.

un·draw (ŭn-drô') v. tr. un·drew (-drōō'), un·drawn (-drôn'), un·draw·ing, un·draws. To draw to one side, as a curtain.

un·dreamed (ŭn-drēm'd') also un·dreamt (-drēm't') adj. Beyond what could be imagined; unimaginable. Often used with of: undreamed luxuries; a peaceful settlement undreamed of a generation ago.

un·dress (ŭn-drēs') v. un·dressed, un·dress·ing, un·dress·es. — v. tr.

1. To remove the clothing of; disrobe. 2. To remove the bandages from (a wound, for example). — v. intr. To take off one's clothing. — n. 1. Informal attire or uniform. 2. a. Nakedness or partial nakedness. b. Partial but incomplete dress.

un·dressed (ŭn-drēs't') adj. 1. a. Naked. b. Partially but not fully dressed. 2. Not specially treated or processed: undressed leather. 3. a. Not prepared for cooking or eating. Used of certain meats. b. Lacking sauce or dressing. Used of a salad. 4. Not treated or bandaged: an undressed wound.

un·drew (ŭn-drōō') v. Past tense of undraw.

Und·set (ōōn'sēt'), Sigrid. 1882-1949. Danish-born Norwegian writer whose novels, including the trilogy Kristin Lavransdatter (1920-1922), concern Catholicism and the struggles of women and are often set in medieval Scandinavia. She won the 1928 Nobel Prize for literature.

un·due (ŭn-dōō', -dyōō') adj. 1. Exceeding what is appropriate or normal; excessive: "I was grateful, without showing undue excitement" (Katherine Mansfield). 2. Not just, proper, or legal: undue use of force. 3. Not yet payable or due: an undue loan.

un·du·lant (ŭn'jə-lənt, ŭn'dyə-, -də-) adj. Resembling waves in occurrence, appearance, or motion.

undulant fever (ŭn'jə-lənt fē'vər) n. See brucellosis (n., sense 1).

un·du·late (ŭn'jə-lāt', ŭn'dyə-, -də-) v. un·du·lat·ed, un·du·lat·ing, un·du·lates. — v. tr. 1. To cause to move in a smooth wavelike motion. 2. To give a wavelike appearance or form to. — v. intr. 1. To move in waves or with a smooth, wavelike motion. See Synonyms at swing. 2. To have a wavelike appearance or form. 3. To increase and decrease in volume or pitch as if in waves. — adj. (-lĭt, -lāt') Having a wavy outline or appearance: leaves with undulate margins. [From Late Latin undula, small wave, diminutive of Latin unda, wave. See wed⁻¹ in Appendix.] — un'du·la·to'ry (-lə-tôr'ē, -tôr'ē) adj.

un·du·la·tion (ŭn'jə-lā'shən, ŭn'dyə-, -də-) n. 1. A regular rising and falling or movement to alternating sides; movement in waves. 2. A wavelike form, outline, or appearance. 3. One of a series of waves or wavelike segments.

un·du·ly (ÿn-dōō'lē, -dyōō'-) adv. Excessively; immoderately: unduly familiar with strangers.

un·du·ti·ful (ÿn-dōō'tī-fəl, -dyōō'-) adj. 1. Lacking a sense of duty.

2. Unreliable or disobedient. —un·du'ti·ful·ly adv. —un·du'ti·ful·ness n.

un·dy·ing (ÿn-dī'ing) adj. Endless; everlasting; immortal: my undying gratitude.

un·earned (ÿn-ûrnd') adj. 1. Not gained by work or service: unearned income. 2. Not deserved: unearned luck. 3. Not yet earned: unearned interest.

unearned increment (ÿn-ûrnd' ÿn'krə-mənt) n. The increase in property value resulting from factors independent of the owner, such as a general rise in demand for land, as opposed to increase of value earned directly by the efforts of the owner.

un·earth (ÿn-ûrth') v. tr. un·earthed, un·earth·ing, un·earths. 1. To bring up out of the earth; dig up. 2. To bring to public notice; uncover.

un·earth·ly (ÿn-ûrth'lē) adj. un·earth·li·er, un·earth·li·est. 1. Not of this earth; preternatural; supernatural. 2. Unnaturally strange and frightening; eerie. See Synonyms at weird. 3. Ridiculously unreasonable or uncustomary; absurd: telephoned me at an unearthly hour. —un·earth/li·ness n.

un·eas·y (ÿn-ē'zē) adj. un·eas·i·er, un·eas·i·est. 1. Lacking a sense of security; anxious or apprehensive: The farmers were uneasy until it finally rained.

2. Affording no ease or reassurance: an uneasy calm. 3. a. Awkward or unsure in manner; constrained: uneasy with strangers. b. Causing constraint or awkwardness: an uneasy silence. 4. Not conducive to rest: fell into a fitful, uneasy sleep. —un·ease', un·eas/i·ness n. —un·eas/i·ly adv.

un·ed·it·ed (ÿn-ēd'ī-tīd) adj. 1. Not edited or revised. 2. Not adapted for a special audience or purpose.

un·ed·u·cat·ed (ÿn-ēj'ə-kā'tīd) adj. Not educated. See Synonyms at ignorant.

un·e·lect·a·ble (ÿn'ī-lĕk'tə-bəl) adj. Being such that election, as to high office, is difficult or impossible: The candidate's private life rendered him unelectable.

un·e·mo·tion·al (ÿn'ī-mō'shə-nəl) adj. 1. Not easily stirred or moved in feeling. 2. Involving little or no emotion; rational. —un·e·mo'tion·al·ly adv.

un·em·ploy·a·ble (ÿn'ĕm-ploi'ə-bəl, -Ŀm-) adj. Not able to find or hold a job: unemployable people. —un'employ/a·ble n.

un·em·ployed (ÿn'ĕm-ploid', -Ŀm-) adj. 1. Not having work; jobless. 2. Not being used; idle. — n. One not having a job. Often used with the. —un'employ/ment n.

unemployment compensation (ÿn'ĕm-ploi'mənt kŏm'pən-sā'shən) n. Financial compensation for unemployed workers, provided in the United States chiefly by state governments.

un-Eng-lish (ŭn-ĭng'glĭsh) adj. 1. Not having the characteristics of British people or practices: The purple shutters on her house had a decidedly un-English look. 2. Not in agreement with standard English usage.

un-e-qual (ŭn-ĕ'kwəl) adj. 1. Not the same in any measurable aspect, such as extent or quantity. 2. Not the same as another in rank or social position. 3. Consisting of ill-matched opponents: an unequal race. 4. Having unbalanced sides or parts; asymmetrical. 5. Not even or consistent; variable. 6. Not having the required abilities; inadequate: "It was maddening to be unequal to many enterprises" (D.H. Lawrence). 7. Not fair. See Usage Note at equal. — n. One that is not the equal of another. —un-e'qual-ly adv.

un-e-qualified also un-e-qualled (ŭn-ĕ'kwəld) adj. Not matched or paralleled by others of its kind; unrivaled.

un-e-quiv-o-cal (ŭn'ĭ-kwĭv'ə-kəl) adj. Admitting of no doubt or misunderstanding; clear and unambiguous: an unequivocal success.

—un'e-quiv'o-cal-ly adv.

un-err-ing (ŭn-ĕr'ĭng, -ĕr'ĭng) adj. Committing no mistakes; consistently accurate. —un-err'ing-ly adv.

UNESCO abbr. United Nations Educational, Scientific, and Cultural Organization.

un-es-sen-tial (ŭn'ĭ-sĕn'shəl) adj. Not necessary or important; dispensable. — n. One that is unnecessary.

un-e-ven (ŭn-ĕ'vən) adj. un-e-ven-er, un-e-ven-est. 1. a. Not equal, as in size, length, or quality. b. Having ill-matched opponents: an uneven contest.

2. Not consistent or uniform: an uneven color. 3. Not smooth or level: the uneven surface of a cobblestone road. See Synonyms at rough. 4. Not straight or parallel: uneven margins. 5. Of, relating to, or being an odd number.

6. Obsolete. Not fair or equitable. —un-e'ven-ly adv. —un-e'ven-ness n.

un-e-vent-ful (ŭn'ĭ-vĕnt'fəl) adj. 1. Lacking in significant events.

2. Occurring without disruption. —un'e-vent'ful-ly adv. —un'e-vent'-ful-ness n.

un-ex-am-pled (ŭn'ĭg-zămp'əld) adj. Without precedent; unparalleled: "Witchcraft blazed forth with unexampled virulence" (Montague Summers).

un-ex-cep-tion-a-ble (ŭn'ĭk-sĕp'shə-nə-bəl) adj. Beyond any reasonable objection; irreproachable. —un'ex-cep'tion-a-ble-ness n. —un'ex-cep'tion-a-bly adv.

USAGE NOTE: Unexceptional and unexceptionable are sometimes confused. Unexceptionable is derived from the word exception in the sense "objection," as in the idiom take exception. Thus unexceptionable means "not open to any objection," as in A judge's ethical standards should be unexceptionable. Unexceptional, in contrast, is related to the common sense of exception and generally means "not exceptional, not varying from the usual,” as in Some judges’ ethical standards have unfortunately been unexceptional.

un·ex·cep·tion·al (ŭn’ĭk-sĕp’shə-nəl) adj. 1. Not varying from a norm; usual. 2. Not subject to exceptions; absolute. See Usage Note at unexceptionable. —un’ex·cep’tion·al·ly adv.

un·ex·pect·ed (ŭn’ĭk-spĕk’tĭd) adj. Coming without warning; unforeseen. —un’ex·pect’ed·ly adv. —un’ex·pect’ed·ness n.

un·ex·ploit·ed (ŭn’ĭk-sploi’tĭd) adj. Not exploited or developed.

un·ex·pres·sive (ŭn’ĭk-sprĕs’ĭv) adj. 1. Not conveying the meaning intended or the emotion felt. 2. Obsolete. Inexpressible. —un’ex·pres’sive·ly adv. —un’ex·pres’sive·ness n.

un·fad·ing (ŭn-fā’dĭŋ) adj. Retaining color, freshness, value, or usefulness. —un·fad’ing·ly adv.

un·fail·ing (ŭn-fā’lĭŋ) adj. 1. Always able to supply more; inexhaustible: an unfailing source of good stories. 2. Constant; unflagging: unfailing loyalty. 3. Incapable of error; infallible. —un·fail’ing·ly adv. —un·fail’ing·ness n.

un·fair (ŭn-fār’) adj. un·fair·er, un·fair·est. 1. Not just or evenhanded; biased: an unfair call by an umpire. 2. Contrary to laws or conventions, especially in commerce; unethical: unfair trading. —un·fair’ly adv. —un·fair’ness n.

un·faith (ŭn-fāth’) n. Absence of faith, especially in religion.

un·faith·ful (ŭn-fāth’fəl) adj. 1. Not adhering to promises, obligations, or allegiances; disloyal. See Synonyms at faithless. 2. a. Not true or constant to one’s sexual partner. b. Not true to one’s spouse; guilty of adultery. 3. Not justly representing or reflecting the original; inaccurate. 4. Obsolete. Deficient in or lacking religious faith; unbelieving. —un·faith’ful·ly adv. —un·faith’-ful·ness n.

un·fa·mil·iar (ŭn’fə-mĭl’yər) adj. 1. Not being acquainted with; not conversant: unfamiliar with the roads here. 2. Not within one’s knowledge; strange: unfamiliar faces. —un’fa·mil·iar’i·ty (-mĭl-yār’ĭ-tĕ, -mĭl’ĕ-ār’ĭ-tĕ) n. —un’fa·mil·iar·ly adv.

un·fash·ion·a·ble (ŭn-fāsh’ə-nə-bəl) adj. 1. Not in current fashion: unfashionable attire. 2. Not socially approved: an unfashionable part of town. —un·fash’ion·a·bly adv.

un·fas·ten (ŭn-fās’tən) v. un·fas·tened, un·fas·ten·ing, un·fas·tens. — v. tr. To separate the connected parts of. — v. intr. To become loosened or separated.

un·fa·thered (ŭn-fā’tħərd) adj. 1. a. Having no father; fatherless. b. Having no known father; illegitimate. 2. Of uncertain origin or authenticity: unfathered rumors.

- un·fath·om·a·ble (ŭn-făth'ə-mə-bəl) adj. 1. Difficult or impossible to understand; incomprehensible: unfathomable theories. 2. Difficult or impossible to measure: the unfathomable depths.
- un·fa·vor·a·ble (ŭn-fā'vər-ə-bəl, -fāv'rə-bəl) adj. 1. Likely to be a hindrance; disadvantageous: unfavorable winds. 2. Having or showing opposition; adverse: an unfavorable reaction to our proposal. —un'fa'vor·a·ble·ness n.
—un·fa'vor·a·bly adv.
- un·feel·ing (ŭn-fē'līng) adj. 1. Having no physical feeling or sensation; insentient. 2. Not sharing in the pleasures or pains of others; callous.
—un·feel'ing·ly adv. —un·feel'ing·ness n.
- un·feigned (ŭn'fānd') adj. Not feigned; genuine. See Synonyms at sincere.
—un·feign'ed·ly (ŭn-fā'nīd-lē) adv.
- un·fet·ter (ŭn-fēt'ər) v. tr. un·fet·tered, un·fet·ter·ing, un·fet·ters. To set free or keep free from restrictions or bonds.
- un·fin·ished (ŭn-fīn'isht) adj. 1. Not brought to an end; incomplete: unfinished business. 2. Not having received special processing, such as dyeing or varnishing: unfinished furniture.
- un·fit (ŭn-fīt') adj. 1. Not meant or adapted for a given purpose; inappropriate: a solvent that is unfit for use on wood surfaces. 2. Below the required standard; unqualified: an unfit parent. 3. Not in good physical or mental health. — v. tr. un·fit·ted, un·fit·ting, un·fits. To cause to be unsuited or unqualified: "Having run for president... often unfits a man for lesser or more useful subsequent work" (Garry Wills). —un·fit'ly adv. —un·fit'ness n.
- un·fix (ŭn-fiks') v. tr. un·fixed, un·fix·ing, un·fix·es. 1. To detach from what secures; unfasten. 2. To cause to leave a tranquil condition; disturb.
- un·flag·ging (ŭn-flăg'īng) adj. Not flagging; untiring. See Synonyms at tireless. —un·flag'ging·ly adv.
- un·flap·pa·ble (ŭn-flăp'ə-bəl) adj. Persistently calm, whether when facing difficulties or experiencing success; not easily upset or excited: "cherubic, unflappable, not quite successful in obscuring his penetrating intelligence behind the bland exterior of the perfect civil servant" (Henry A. Kissinger). —un·flap'pa·bil'i·ty n. —un·flap'pa·bly adv.
- un·flapped (ŭn-flăpt') adj. Not upset or excited; calm: "went about her business outwardly unflapped" (Laurie Colwin).
- un·flat·ter·ing (ŭn-flăt'ər-īng) adj. Acknowledging few or no good aspects; unfavorable: gave the film an unflattering review. —un·flat'ter·ing·ly adv.
- un·fledged (ŭn-flēj'd') adj. 1. Not having the feathers necessary to fly. Used of a young bird. 2. Inexperienced, immature, or untried.
- un·flinch·ing (ŭn-flīn'chīng) adj. Showing neither fear nor indecision; resolute. —un·flinch'ing·ly adv. —un·flinch'ing·ness n.

un·fo·cused also un·fo·cussed (ŭn-fō'kəst) adj. 1. Not brought into focus: an unfocused lens. 2. Not centered on anything specific: "my unfocused broodings about love and loyalty" (John le Carré).

un·fold (ŭn-fōld') v. un·fold·ed, un·fold·ing, un·folds. — v. tr. 1. To open and spread out (something folded); extend. 2. To remove the coverings from; disclose to view. 3. To reveal gradually by written or spoken explanation; make known. — v. intr. 1. a. To become spread out; open out: Spring flowers unfolded everywhere. b. To develop, as if by spreading out: A brilliant career unfolded. 2. To be revealed gradually to the understanding: The solution to the problem unfolded as they spoke. — un·fold·ment n.

un·fore·seen (ŭn'fər-sēn', -fôr-) adj. Not felt or realized beforehand; unexpected: unforeseen difficulties.

un·for·get·ta·ble (ŭn'fər-gět'ə-bəl) adj. Earning a permanent place in the memory; memorable: an unforgettable experience. — un'for·get'ta·bil'i·ty, un'for·get'ta·ble·ness n. — un'for·get'ta·bly adv.

un·for·giv·ing (ŭn'fər-giv'ɪŋ) adj. 1. Reluctant or refusing to forgive: an unforgiving creditor. 2. Providing little or no opportunity to forestall undesired results or mistakes: an unforgiving computer program.

un·for·mat·ted (ŭn-fôr'măt'tid) adj. Computer Science. Of or relating to a disk that has not been prepared for writing or reading.

un·formed (ŭn-fôrmd') adj. 1. Having no definite shape or structure; unorganized. See Synonyms at shapeless. 2. Not yet developed to maturity: "a headstrong, unformed young man" (Rod Nordland). 3. Not yet given a physical existence; uncreated.

un·for·tu·nate (ŭn-fôr'chə-nīt) adj. 1. Characterized by undeserved bad luck; unlucky. 2. Causing misfortune; disastrous. 3. Regrettable; deplorable: an unfortunate lack of good manners. — n. A victim of bad luck.

— un·for'tu·nate·ly adv. — un·for'tu·nate·ness n.

SYNONYMS: unfortunate, hapless, ill-fated, ill-starred, luckless, unlucky. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is "marked by, affected by, or promising bad fortune": an unfortunate turn of events; a hapless victim; an ill-fated business venture; an ill-starred romance; a luckless prisoner of war; an unlucky accident.

ANTONYM: fortunate

un·found·ed (ŭn-foun'dīd) adj. 1. Not based on fact or sound evidence; groundless. See Synonyms at baseless. 2. Not yet established.

— un·found'ed·ly adv. — un·found'ed·ness n.

un·fre·quent·ed (ŭn-frē'kwən-tīd, ŭn'frē-kwěn'tīd) adj. Receiving few or no travelers or visitors: unfrequented inns.

un·friend·ed (ŭn-frēn'dīd) adj. Having no friends.

- un·friend·ly (ŭn-frĕnd'lē) adj. un·friend·li·er, un·friend·li·est. 1. Not disposed to friendship. 2. Indicating a bad prospect; unfavorable: unfriendly clouds. —un·friend'li·ness n.
- un·frock (ŭn-frŏk') v. tr. un·frocked, un·frock·ing, un·frocks. 1. To strip of priestly privileges and functions. 2. To deprive of the right to practice a profession. 3. To deprive of an honorary position.
- un·fruit·ful (ŭn-frŭot'fəl) adj. 1. Not bearing fruit or offspring; barren. 2. Not productive of a good or useful result. See Synonyms at sterile. —un·fruit'ful·ly adv. —un'fruit'ful·ness n.
- un·fund·ed (ŭn-fŭn'dĭd) adj. 1. Not funded, as a floating debt. 2. Not furnished with funds: an unfunded project.
- un·furl (ŭn-fŭrl') v. tr. intr. un·furl·ed, un·furl·ing, un·furls. To spread or open (something) out or become spread or opened out.
- un·fuss·y (ŭn-fŭs'ē) adj. 1. Not particular about or concerned with details. 2. Not cluttered or complicated, as with extraneous matters or details.
- un·gain·ly (ŭn-gān'lē) adj. un·gain·li·er, un·gain·li·est. 1. Lacking grace or ease of movement or form; clumsy. See Synonyms at awkward. 2. Difficult to move or use; unwieldy. [UN⁻¹ + gainli, proper (from Middle English, from gain, from Old Norse gegn, direct).] —un·gain'li·ness n.
- Un·ga·va Bay (ŭn-gā'və bā, -gā'-) An inlet of Hudson Strait in northeast Quebec, Canada, between northern Labrador and Ungava Peninsula, which is bordered on the west by Hudson Bay. The peninsula has vast mineral resources.
- un·gen·er·ous (ŭn-jĕn'ər-əs) adj. 1. Slow or reluctant in giving, forgiving, or sharing; stingy. 2. Harsh in judgment; unkind. 3. Mean-spirited; illiberal; ignoble. —un·gen'er·ous·ly adv.
- un·girt (ŭn-gŭrt') adj. 1. Having the belt or girdle removed or loosened. 2. Loose or free; slack.
- un·glue (ŭn-glŭ) v. tr. un·glued, un·glu·ing, un·glues. To separate by or as if by dissolving a glue or other adhesive.
- un·glued (ŭn-glŭd') adj. 1. Loosened or separated; unfastened. 2. Slang. In confused distress; upset. —idiom. come unglued. Slang. To lose one's composure.
- un·god·ly (ŭn-gŏd'lē) adj. un·god·li·er, un·god·li·est. 1. Not revering God; impious. 2. Sinful; wicked. 3. Outrageous: had to leave for work at an ungodly hour. —un·god'li·ness n.
- un·gov·ern·a·ble (ŭn-gŭv'ər-nə-bəl) adj. Incapable of being governed, restrained, or controlled. See Synonyms at unruly. —un·gov'ern·a·ble·ness n. —un·gov'ern·a·bly adv.
- un·gra·cious (ŭn-grā'shəs) adj. 1. Lacking social grace or graciousness; rude. 2. Not welcome or acceptable; unattractive. 3. Archaic. Evil; wicked. —un·gra'cious·ly adv. —un·gra'cious·ness n.

un·gram·mat·i·cal (ün'grə-mät'ī-kəl) adj. 1. Not in accord with the rules of a prescriptive grammar. 2. Not in accord with a language as used by a native speaker. —un'gram·mat'ī·cal'ī·ty (-käl'ī-tē) n. —un'gram·mat'ī·cal·ly adv.

un·grate·ful (ün-grāt'fəl) adj. 1. Not feeling or exhibiting gratitude, thanks, or appreciation. 2. Not agreeable or pleasant; repellent: “I will not perform the ungrateful task of comparing cases of failure” (Abraham Lincoln). —un·grate'·ful·ly adv. —un·grate'ful·ness n.

un·gual (üng'gwəl) adj. 1. Of, resembling, or bearing a hoof, nail, or claw. 2. Of or relating to fingernails or toenails. [From Latin unguis, nail. See UNGUIS.]

un·guard·ed (ün-gär'dīd) adj. 1. Lacking protection or a guard; vulnerable: an unguarded gate. 2. Displaying, having, or feeling no wariness; incautious: an unguarded remark; an unguarded glance. —un·guard'ed·ly adv. —un·guard'ed·ness n.

un·guent (üng'gwənt) n. A salve for soothing or healing; an ointment. [Middle English, from Latin unguentum, from unguere, to anoint.] —un'guen·tar'y (-tēr'ē) adj.

un·gues (üng'gwēz) n. Botany & Zoology. Plural of unguis.

un·guic·u·late (üng-gwīk'yə-līt, -lāt') also un·guic·u·lat·ed (-lā'tīd) adj. 1. Having or resembling nails or claws. 2. Zoology. Having nails or claws, as opposed to hooves. Used of mammals. 3. Botany. Having a claw-shaped base: an unguiculate petal. — n. Zoology. A mammal having nails or claws. [New Latin unguiculātus, from Latin unguiculus, fingernail, diminutive of unguis. See UNGUIS.]

un·guid·ed missile (ün'gī'dīd mīs'əl) n. 1. A missile lacking a guidance system. 2. Slang. One that is insufficiently controlled in movements, effects, words, or actions and that is potentially harmful: Their sales manager is an unguided missile at meetings like this.

un·guis (üng'gwīs) n. pl. un·gues (-gwēz). 1. Zoology. A nail, claw, or hoof. 2. Botany. The clawlike base of some petals. [Latin. See nogh- in Appendix.]

un·gu·late (üng'gyə-līt, -lāt') adj. 1. a. Having hoofs. b. Resembling hoofs; hooflike. 2. Of or belonging to the former order Ungulata, now divided into the orders Perissodactyla and Artiodactyla and composed of the hoofed mammals such as horses, cattle, deer, swine, and elephants. — n. An ungulate mammal. [Latin ungulātus, from ungula, hoof, diminutive of unguis, nail. See UNGUIS.]

un·gu·li·grade (üng'gyə-lī-grād') adj. Walking on hoofs. — n. An unguligrade mammal. [Latin ungula, hoof; see UNGULATE + -gradus, walking; see PLAN-TIGRADE.]

un·hal·low (ün-häl'ō) v. tr. un·hal·lowed, un·hal·low·ing, un·hal·lows. Archaic. To violate the holiness of; profane or desecrate.

un·hal·lowed (ŭn-hăl'ōd) adj. 1. Not hallowed or consecrated. 2. a. Lacking reverence; impious or irreligious. b. Not conforming to accepted ethical standards; immoral.

un·hand (ŭn-händ') v. tr. un·hand·ed, un·hand·ing, un·hands. To remove one's hand from; let go.

un·hand·some (ŭn-hăn'səm) adj. 1. Not attractive or beautiful; homely. 2. Not courteous or in good taste; ungracious. —un·hand'some·ly adv. —un·hand'some·ness n.

un·hand·y (ŭn-hăn'dē) adj. un·hand·i·er, un·hand·i·est. 1. Difficult to handle or manage; unwieldy. 2. Lacking manual skill or dexterity. —un·hand'i·ly adv. —un·hand'i·ness n.

un·hap·py (ŭn-hăp'ē) adj. un·hap·pi·er, un·hap·pi·est. 1. Not happy or joyful; sad or sorrowful: unhappy over his friend's departure. 2. Not satisfied; displeased or discontented: unhappy with her raise. 3. Not attended by or bringing good fortune; unlucky. 4. Not suitable; inappropriate: an unhappy choice of words. —un·hap'pi·ly adv. —un·hap'pi·ness n.

un·har·ness (ŭn-här'nīs) v. tr. un·har·ness·ed, un·har·ness·ing, un·har·ness·es. 1. To remove the harness or similar equipment from. 2. To release or liberate (energy or passions, for example). 3. To remove the armor from (a wearer).

un·health·y (ŭn-hěł'thē) adj. un·health·i·er, un·health·i·est. 1. a. Being in a state of ill health; sick. b. Characterized by or symptomatic of ill health: an unhealthy pallor. c. Causing or conducive to poor health; unwholesome: an unhealthy diet. 2. Harmful to character or moral health; corruptive: unhealthy reading material. 3. Characterized by or symptomatic of disturbed mental health: took an unhealthy interest in violence and fires. 4. Of a risky nature; dangerous: an unhealthy predicament. —un'health'i·ly adv. —un·health'i·ness n.

un·heard (ŭn-hûrd') adj. 1. Not heard: unheard pleas for help. 2. Not given a hearing; not listened to: unheard objections. 3. Archaic. Not heard of; obscure.

un·heard·of (ŭn-hûrd'ŭv', -ōv') adj. 1. Not previously known; unknown. 2. Without precedent; unparalleled. 3. Highly offensive; outrageous or brazen.

un·hes·i·tat·ing (ŭn-hěz'ī-tā'tīng) adj. 1. Prompt to act, move, or express oneself; ready: I gave my unhesitating approval. 2. Unflinching; steadfast. —un·hes'i·tat'ing·ly adv.

un·hinge (ŭn-hīnj') v. tr. un·hinged, un·hing·ing, un·hing·es. 1. To remove from hinges. 2. To remove the hinges from. 3. To confuse; disrupt. 4. To derange; unbalance: He was unhinged by his wife's death.

un·hip (ŭn-hīp') adj. Slang. Not aware of or following the latest fashions or developments.

un-his-tor-i-cal (ŭn'hĭ-stôr'ĭ-kəl, -stôr'-) adj. Taking little or no account of history: "It is simply unhistorical and self-indulgent to prosecute, convict, and condemn him by our own standards of civil rights, animal welfare, or women's rights" (David Cannadine).

un-hitch (ŭn-hĭch') v. tr. un-hitched, un-hitch-ing, un-hitch-es. To release from or as if from a hitch; unfasten.

un-ho-ly (ŭn-hō'lē) adj. un-ho-li-er, un-ho-li-est. 1. Wicked; immoral.

2. Not hallowed or consecrated. 3. Informal. Outrageous: took unholy risks to win the downhill race. —un-ho/li-ly adv. —un-ho/li-ness n.

un-hook (ŭn-hoök') v. tr. un-hooked, un-hook-ing, un-hooks. 1. To release or remove from or as if from a hook. 2. To unfasten the hooks of.

un-hoped (ŭn-hōpt') adj. Archaic. Not hoped or looked for.

un-hoped-for (ŭn-hōpt'fôr') adj. Not expected or hoped for.

un-horse (ŭn-hôrs') v. tr. un-horsed, un-hors-ing, un-hors-es. 1. To cause to fall from a horse. 2. To overthrow or dislodge; upset.

un-hou-seled (ŭn-hou'zəld) adj. Archaic. Not having received the Eucharist. Used of a dead or dying person.

uni- pref. Single; one: unicycle. [Latin ūni-, from ūnus, one. See oi-no- in Appendix.]

U-ni-at (yōō'nē-ăt', -ĭt) also U-ni-ate (-ĭt, -ăt') adj. Of or relating to any of several Eastern Christian churches that are in communion with the Roman Catholic Church but retain their own languages, rites, and codes of canon law. — n. A member of any of these churches. [Russian uniyat, from Polish uniat, the Union of Brest-Litovsk (1596), from unija, union, from Latin ūniō, ūniōn-. See UNION.]

u-ni-ax-i-al (yōō'nē-ăk'sē-əl) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or affecting one axis.

2. Botany. Of, relating to, or being a plant with one primary stem that has no branches and terminates in a flower. 3. Having one direction along which double refraction of light does not take place. Used of a crystal.

u-ni-cam-er-al (yōō'nĭ-kăm'ər-əl) adj. Having or consisting of a single legislative chamber. [UNI- + Latin camera, chamber; see CAMERA + -AL¹.]

—u'ni-cam'er-al-ly adv.

UNICEF abbr. United Nations Children's Fund (formerly United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund).

u-ni-cel-lu-lar (yōō'nĭ-sĕl'yə-lər) adj. Having or consisting of one cell; one-celled: unicellular organisms. —u'ni-cel'lu-lar'i-ty (-lăr'ĭ-tē, -lăr'-) n.

u-ni-col-or (yōō'nĭ-kŭl'ər) adj. Monochromatic.

u-ni-corn (yōō'nĭ-kôrn') n. 1. a. A fabled creature symbolic of virginity and usually represented as a horse with a single straight spiraled horn projecting from its forehead. b. Heraldry. A representation of this beast, having a horse's body, a stag's legs, a lion's tail, and a straight spiraled horn growing from its forehead, especially employed as a supporter for the Royal Arms of Great Britain or of Scot-

- land. 2. Unicorn. Astronomy. The constellation Monoceros. [Middle English unicorne, from Old French, from Late Latin unicornis, from Latin, having one horn : ūnus, one; see oi-no- in Appendix + cornū, horn; see ker-¹ in Appendix.]
- unicorn plant (yōō'ni-kōrn' plānt) n. Any of several annual North American herbs of the genus Proboscidea, having large leaves with long petioles and axillary racemes of large purple flowers and grown as an ornamental or for the young edible fruit that may be pickled like cucumbers.
- u·ni·cos·tate (yōō'nī-kōs'tāt') adj. Having a single main costa, rib, or riblike part: a unicastate leaf.
- u·ni·cus·pid (yōō'nī-kūs'pīd) adj. Having only one cusp. Used of a tooth. — n. A unicuspid tooth.
- u·ni·cy·cle (yōō'nī-sī'kəl) n. A vehicle consisting of a frame mounted over a single wheel and usually propelled by pedals. [UNI- + -cycle perhaps on the model of BICYCLE.] — u·ni·cy·clist n.
- un·i·den·ti·fied flying object (ŭn'ī-dĕn'tə-fīd' flī'ing ōb'jĕkt) n. 1. A flying or apparently flying object of an unknown nature, especially one suspected to have been sent by extraterrestrial beings. 2. A flying saucer.
- u·ni·di·rec·tion·al (yōō'nī-dī-rĕk'shə-nəl, -dī-) adj. Having, operating, or moving in one direction only: a unidirectional microphone.
- u·ni·fac·to·ri·al (yōō'nə-fāk-tōr'ē-əl, -tōr'-) adj. Involving, dependent on, or controlled by a single gene.
- u·ni·fied field theory (yōō'nə-fīd' fĕld thĕ'ə-rĕ) n. A physical theory that combines the treatment of two or more types of fields in order to deduce previously unrecognized interrelationships, especially such a theory unifying the theories of nuclear, electromagnetic, and gravitational forces.
- u·ni·fi·lar (yōō'nə-fī'lər) adj. Having or using only one filament, such as a thread or wire.
- u·ni·fo·li·ate (yōō'nə-fō'lĕ-ĭt, -āt') adj. Botany. Having a single leaf.
- u·ni·fo·li·o·late (yōō'nī-fō'lĕ-ə-lāt') adj. Botany. Compound in structure but having a single leaflet, as the leaf of a citrus plant.
- u·ni·form (yōō'nə-fōrm') adj. 1. Always the same, as in character or degree; unvarying. 2. Conforming to one principle, standard, or rule; consistent. 3. Being the same as or consonant with another or others. 4. Unvaried in texture, color, or design. See Synonyms at steady. — n. A distinctive outfit intended to identify those who wear it as members of a specific group. — v. tr.
- u·ni·formed, u·ni·form·ing, u·ni·forms. 1. To make (something) uniform. 2. To provide or dress with a uniform. [Latin uniformis : ūni-, uni- + fōrma, shape.] — u·ni·for·mi·ty, u·ni·form·ness n. — u·ni·form·ly adv.
- u·ni·for·mi·tar·i·an·ism (yōō'nə-fōr'mī-tār'ē-ə-nīz'əm) n. The theory that all geologic phenomena may be explained as the result of existing forces having operated uniformly from the origin of the earth to the present time.

—u'ni-for'mi-tar'i-an adj. & n.

uniform resource locator (yōō'nə-fōrm' rē'sōrs' lō'kā'tər) n. Computer Science. URL.

u·ni·fy (yōō'nə-fī') v. tr. intr. u·ni·fied (-fīd), u·ni·fy·ing, u·ni·fies (-fīz). To make into or become a unit; consolidate. [French unifier, from Old French, from Late Latin ūnificāre: Latin ūni-, uni- + Latin -ficāre, -fy.] —u'ni-fi'a-ble adj.

—u'ni-fi-ca'tion (-fī-kā'shən) n. —u'ni-fi'er n.

u·ni·lat·er·al (yōō'nə-lāt'ər-əl) adj. 1. Of, on, relating to, involving, or affecting only one side: “a unilateral advantage in defense” (New Republic).

2. Performed or undertaken by only one side: unilateral disarmament.

3. Obligating only one of two or more parties, nations, or persons, as a contract or an agreement. 4. Emphasizing or recognizing only one side of a subject.

5. Having only one side. 6. Tracing the lineage of one parent only: a unilateral genealogy. 7. Botany. Having leaves, flowers, or other parts on one side only.

—u'ni-lat'er-al-ly adv.

u·ni·lat·er·al·ism (yōō'nə-lāt'ər-ə-līz'əm) n. A tendency of nations to conduct their foreign affairs individualistically, characterized by minimal consultation and involvement with other nations, even their allies. —u'ni-lat'er-a-list adj. & n.

u·ni·lin·e·ar (yōō'nī-līn'ē-ər) adj. Of or developing in a progressive sequence usually from the primitive to the advanced.

u·ni·lin·gual (yōō'nī-līng'gwəl) adj. Making use of or written in one language only.

u·ni·lo·bar (yōō'nə-lō'bər, -bär') adj. Having only one lobe.

u·ni·loc·u·lar (yōō'nə-lōk'yə-lər) adj. Botany. Having a single compartment in the ovary or fruit, as in a melon.

U·ni·mak Island (yōō'nə-māk' ī'lənd) An island of southwest Alaska in the eastern Aleutian Islands separated from the Alaska Peninsula by a narrow strait. It is the largest island of the archipelago.

un·im·pas·sioned (үн'īm-pāsh'ənd) adj. Not impassioned; marked by a reasonable approach totally devoid of emotional influence or appeal: answered the charges with an unimpassioned defense.

un·im·peach·a·ble (үн'īm-pē'chə-bəl) adj. 1. Difficult or impossible to impeach: an unimpeachable witness. 2. Beyond reproach; blameless: unimpeachable behavior. 3. Beyond doubt; unquestionable: “works of such unimpeachable greatness” (Musical Heritage Review). —un'im·peach'a-bly adv.

un·im·por·tant (үн'īm-pōrt'nt) adj. Not important; petty.

—un'im·por'tance n.

un·im·proved (үн'ім-прōōvd') adj. 1. Not improved; not made better.

2. Not made use of or put to advantage. 3. Not built on or cultivated so as to increase in value. Used of land.

un·in·form·a·tive (үн'ін-фôr'mə-tív) adj. Providing little or no information; not informative. —un'in·form'a·tive·ly adv.

un·in·formed (үн'ін-фôrmd') adj. Not having, showing, or making use of information; not informed: uninformed voters; an uninformed decision.

un·in·hab·it·a·ble (үн'ін-һăb'ĭ-tə-bəl) adj. Unfit for habitation: an uninhabitable island. —un·in·hab'it·a·bil'ĭ·ty n.

un·in·hab·it·ed (үн'ін-һăb'ĭ-tĭd) adj. Having no residents; not inhabited.

un·in·hib·it·ed (үн'ін-һĭb'ĭ-tĭd) adj. 1. Open and unrestrained: uninhibited laughter. 2. Free from traditional social or moral constraints.

—un'in·hib'it·ed·ly adv. —un'in·hib'it·ed·ness n.

un·in·i·ti·ate (үн'ĭ-nĭsh'ē-ĭt) adj. Not experienced. —un'in·i'ti·ate n.

un·in·i·ti·at·ed (үн'ĭ-nĭsh'ē-ā'tĭd) adj. Not knowledgeable or skilled; inexperienced. — n. An uninformed, unskilled, or inexperienced person or group of people. Often used with the: “What's the difference, the uninitiated may ask, between eggshell white and wedding gown white?” (Wall Street Journal).

un·in·spired (үн'ін-spĭrd') adj. Having no intellectual, emotional, or spiritual excitement; dull. See Synonyms at dull.

un·in·struct·ed (үн'ін-strŭk'tĭd) adj. 1. Not educated or informed: an uninstructed young mind. 2. Not provided with directives on how to vote or proceed: an uninstructed representative at a political convention.

un·in·sur·a·ble (үн'ін-shōōr'ə-bəl) adj. That cannot be covered by insurance: uninsurable risks; an uninsurable client. —un·in·sur'a·bil'ĭ·ty n.

un·in·sured (үн'ін-shōōrd') adj. Not covered by insurance: an uninsured motorist. — n. pl. un·in·sureds. A party that is not insured.

un·in·tel·li·gent (үн'ін-tĕl'ĭ-jənt) adj. 1. Having or displaying a lack of intelligence. 2. Not invested with intelligence. —un'in·tel/li·gence n.

—un'in·tel/li·gent·ly adv.

un·in·tel·li·gi·ble (үн'ін-tĕl'ĭ-jə-bəl) adj. Being such that understanding or comprehension is difficult or impossible; incomprehensible: unintelligible remarks; an unintelligible prose passage. —un'in·tel/li·gi·bil'ĭ·ty, un'in·tel/li·gi·ble·ness n. —un'in·tel/li·gi·bly adv.

un·in·tend·ed (үн'ін-tĕn'dĭd) adj. Not deliberate or intentional; unplanned: an unintended slight.

un·in·ten·tion·al (үн'ін-tĕn'shə-nəl) adj. Not deliberate or intentional; inadvertent: an unintentional pun. —un'in·ten'tion·al·ly adv.

un·in·ter·est (үн-ĭn'trĭst, -tər-ĭst, -trĕst') n. Lack of interest or concern; indifference.

un-in-ter-est-ed (ŭn-ĭn'trĭ-stĭd, -tər-ĭ-stĭd, -tə-rĕs'tĭd) adj. 1. a. Without an interest: uninterested parties. b. Not having a financial interest. 2. Marked by or exhibiting a lack of interest. See Synonyms at indifferent. See Usage Note at disinterested. —un-in/ter-est-ed-ly adv. —un-in/ter-est-ed-ness n.

un-in-ter-est-ing (ŭn-ĭn'trĭ-stĭng, -tər-ĭ-stĭng, -tə-rĕs'tĭng) adj. Arousing little or no interest or curiosity; boring. —un-in/ter-est-ing-ly adv.

u-ni-nu-cle-ate (yŭōō'nĭ-nŭōō'klĕ-ĭt, -nyŭōō'-) adj. Having one nucleus.

un-in-vit-ed (ŭn'ĭn-vĭ'tĭd) adj. Not welcome or wanted: uninvited guests.

un-in-vit-ing (ŭn'ĭn-vĭ'tĭng) adj. Not pleasant or attractive; disagreeable: an uninviting prospect. —un'in-vit/ing-ly adv.

un-in-volved (ŭn'ĭn-vŏlvd') adj. Feeling or showing no interest or involvement; unconcerned: an uninvolved bystander.

un-ion (yŭōōn'yən) n. 1. a. The act of uniting or the state of being united. b. A combination so formed, especially an alliance or confederation of people, parties, or political entities for mutual interest or benefit. 2. Mathematics. A set, every member of which is an element of one or another of two or more given sets.

3. Agreement or harmony resulting from the uniting of individuals; concord. See Synonyms at unity. 4. a. The state of matrimony; marriage: "The element that was to make possible such a union was trust in each other's love" (Kate Chopin).

b. Sexual intercourse. 5. a. A combination of parishes for joint administration of relief for the poor in Great Britain. b. A workhouse maintained by such a union. 6. A labor union. 7. A coupling device for connecting parts, such as pipes or rods. 8. A device on a flag or an ensign, occupying the upper inner corner or the entire field, that signifies the union of two or more sovereignties. 9. Often Union.

a. An organization at a college or university that provides facilities for recreation; a student union. b. A building housing such facilities.

10. Union. The United States of America regarded as a national unit, especially during the Civil War. — adj. 1. Union. Of, relating to, or loyal to the United States of America during the Civil War: a Union cause; a Union soldier. 2. Of or relating to a labor union or labor union organizing: the union movement; union negotiations. [Middle English, from Old French, from Late Latin ūniō, ūniōn-, from Latin ūnus, one. See oi-no- in Appendix.]

Union A community of northeast New Jersey west-northwest of Elizabeth. Settled c. 1749 by colonists from Connecticut, it is a manufacturing center. Population, 50,024.

union catalog (yŭōōn'yən kăt'l-ôg') n. A library catalog combining in alphabetical sequence the contents of a number of catalogs or the contents of more than one library.

union church (yŭōōn'yən chŭrch) n. A local interdenominational church bringing together worshipers of different denominational backgrounds.

Union City (yōōn'yən sīt'ē) 1. A city of western California southeast of Oakland. It is a residential community with some manufacturing. Population, 53,762.

2. A city of northeast New Jersey on the Hudson River adjoining Jersey City. Its varied manufactures include embroidery and perfumes. Population, 58,012.

Un-ion·dale (yōōn'yən-dāl') An unincorporated community of southeast New York on southwest Long Island. It is mainly residential. Population, 20,328.

un-ion-ism (yōōn'yə-nīz'əm) n. 1. The principle or theory of forming a union.

2. The principles, theory, or system of a union, especially a trade union.

3. Unionism. Loyalty to the federal government during the Civil War.

un-ion-ist (yōōn'yə-nīst) n. 1. One who believes in or supports a union or unionism. 2. A member of a labor or trade union. 3. Unionist. One loyal to the federal government during the Civil War. —un'ion-is'tic adj.

un-ion-ize (yōōn'yə-nīz') v. un-ion-ized, un-ion-iz-ing, un-ion-iz-es. — v. tr. 1. To organize into a labor union. 2. To cause to join a labor union. — v. intr. To organize or join a labor union. —un'ion-i-za'tion (-yə-nī-zā'shən) n. —un'ion-iz'er n.

union jack (yōōn'yən jāk) n. 1. A flag consisting entirely of a union.

2. Union Jack. The flag of the United Kingdom.

union label (yōōn'yən lā'bəl) n. An identifying mark attached to a product indicating it has been produced by members of a trade union.

Union of So·vi·et Socialist Republics (yōōn'yən ūv sō'vē-ēt' sō'shə-list rī-pūb'līks, -īt, sōv'ē-, sō'vē-ēt') Commonly called Soviet Union or Rus-sia (rūsh'ə). Abbr. U.S.S.R., USSR A former country of eastern Europe and northern Asia with coastlines on the Baltic and Black seas and the Arctic and Pacific oceans. It was established in December 1922 with the union of the Russian S.F.S.R. (proclaimed after the Russian Revolution of 1917) and various other soviet republics, including Belarus and the Ukraine. After a strife-torn beginning, marked by internal power struggles and disastrous economic plans, it became a major industrial and manufacturing nation, with influence far beyond its borders. In 1991 a number of constituent republics, including Estonia, Latvia, and Lithuania, gained their independence, and the U.S.S.R. was officially dissolved on December 31, 1991.

union shop (yōōn'yən shōp) n. A business or industrial establishment whose employees are required to be union members or to agree to join the union within a specified time after being hired. Also called closed shop union suit (yōōn'yən sōöt) n. A one-piece undergarment combining shirt and long pants.

u·nip·a·rous (yōō-nīp'ər-əs) adj. 1. Producing only one egg or offspring at a time. 2. Having produced only one offspring; primiparous. 3. Botany. Forming a single axis at each branching, as certain flower clusters.

u·ni·per·son·al (yōō' nī-pûr'sə-nəl) adj. Manifested as or existent in the form of only one person: a unipersonal spirit.

u·ni·pla·nar (yōō' nī-plā'nər, -när') adj. Situated or occurring in one plane.

u·ni·po·lar (yōō' nī-pō'lər) adj. 1. Having, acting by means of, or produced by a single magnetic or electric pole. 2. Biology. Having a single fibrous process.

Used of a neuron. —u·ni·po·lar'i·ty (-pō-lăr'ī-tē, -pə-) n.

u·ni·po·tent (yōō-nīp'ə-tənt) adj. Capable of developing into only one type of cell or tissue.

u·nique (yōō-nēk') adj. 1. Being the only one of its kind: the unique existing example of Donne's handwriting. See Synonyms at single. 2. Without an equal or equivalent; unparalleled. 3. a. Characteristic of a particular category, condition, or locality: a problem unique to coastal areas. b. Informal. Unusual; extraordinary: spoke with a unique accent. [French, from Old French, from Latin ūnicus. See oi-no- in Appendix.] —u·nique'ly adv. —u·nique'ness n.

USAGE NOTE: Over the course of the century unique has become the paradigmatic example of the class of terms that do not allow comparison or modification by an adverb of degree such as very, somewhat, or quite. Thus, most grammarians believe that it is incorrect to say that something is very unique or more unique than something else, though phrases such as nearly unique and almost unique are acceptable. In the most recent survey the sentence Her designs are quite unique in today's fashion scene was unacceptable to 80 percent of the Usage Panel. • Critical objections to the comparison and degree modification of absolute terms date to the 18th century and have been applied to a wide group of adjectives including equal, fatal, omnipotent, parallel, perfect, and unanimous. According to the standard argument, such words denote properties that a thing either does or does not have but cannot have to a qualifiable degree. Thus if unique is properly used to mean “without equal or equivalent,” something either is unique or it isn't, and phrases such as very unique and more unique can only betray a weakening of the sense to mean something like “unusual” or “distinctive.” It is true that comparison and modification of unique are often associated with the style favored by copywriters, as in the advertisement announcing that Omaha's most unique restaurant is now even more unique or in the claim that a new automobile is So unique, it's patented. But modification of unique is also found in the work of reputable writers, where it may lack any connotations of hyperbole. A painting is described as the most unique of Beckman's self-portraits, and a travel writer states that Chicago is no less unique an American city than New York or San Francisco. The relative acceptability of these usages reflects the semantic subtlety of unique itself. If we were to use unique only according to the strictest criteria of logic, after all, we might freely apply the term to anything in the world since nothing is wholly equivalent to anything else. Clearly, then, when we say that a restaurant or painting is unique, we mean that it is worthy of inclusion in a class by itself according to certain implicit but generally accepted criteria. Thus a legitimately unique painting might be one that realizes an unparalleled aesthetic vision, but not one that is rendered only in pigments whose names begin with the letter o; and a legitimately unique restaurant might be one that serves 18th-century French cuisine according to the original recipes, not one that has been installed in a converted sardine cannery. Given this understanding, it is not inherently impossible to think of uniqueness as a matter of degree, in the sense that one painting or restaurant may be more or less worthy of inclusion in a class by itself than some other. • What is troubling about the copywriters' use of unique is not that the word has become a synonym for unusual. Rather, it is the copywriters who are using the word in conformity with strict logic. Uniqueness is claimed for a restaurant in virtue of some trivial properties of its decor or menu, or for a resort hotel that simply happens to have a singularly picturesque view of the bay. Though it may be true that such properties render these things logically unique, they do not constitute legitimate grounds for putting the things into a class by themselves according to the criteria ordinarily invoked when things are sorted into classes. In fact, the abuse of unique can be cloying even when no modification or comparison is involved; when we read an advertisement for a line of sportswear that features a unique selection of colors, we may suspect that the distinctive properties of the color selection are not so remarkable as the advertiser would have us believe. But it is not surprising that these uses of unique should lend themselves to promiscuous modification and comparison; for once it is granted that uniqueness can be claimed for any product or service that is somehow distinctive from all its competitors, it is inevitable that an increase in uniqueness will be seen in every minor innovation. See Usage Note at equal. See Usage Note at infinite. See Usage Note at parallel. See Usage Note at perfect.

u·ni·se·ri·ate (yōō'nī-sîr'ē-āt', -īt) adj. Arranged in one row, as the seeds of a pea or string bean.

u·ni·sex (yōō'nī-sěks') adj. 1. Designed for or suitable to both sexes: unisex clothing; unisex hairstyles. 2. Not distinguished or distinguishable on the basis of sex; androgynous in appearance: cultivated a unisex look. — n. Elimination or absence of sexual distinctions, especially in dress.

u·ni·sex·u·al (yōō'nī-sěk'shōō-əl) adj. 1. Of or relating to only one sex. 2. Having only one type of sexual organ; not a hermaphrodite. 3. Botany. Having either stamens or pistils but not both. 4. Unisex. — u'ni·sex'u·al'i·ty (-ăl'ī-tē) n. — u'ni·sex'u·al·ly adv.

u·ni·son (yōō'nī-sən, -zən) n. 1. Music. a. Identity of pitch; the interval of a perfect prime. b. The combination of parts at the same pitch or in octaves. 2. The act or an instance of speaking the same words simultaneously by two or more speakers. 3. An instance of agreement; concord. —idiom. in unison.

1. In complete agreement; harmonizing exactly. 2. At the same time; at once. [Middle English, from Old French, from Medieval Latin ūnisonus, in unison, from Late Latin, monotonous : Latin ūni-, uni- + Latin sonus, sound; see swen- in Appendix.]

u·nit (yōō'nīt) n. Abbr. u. 1. An individual, a group, a structure, or other entity regarded as an elementary structural or functional constituent of a whole. 2. A group regarded as a distinct entity within a larger group. 3. a. A mechanical part or module. b. An entire apparatus or the equipment that performs a specific function. 4. A precisely specified quantity in terms of which the magnitudes of other quantities of the same kind can be stated. 5. Medicine. The quantity of a vaccine, serum, drug, or other agent necessary to produce a specific effect. 6. a. A fixed amount of scholastic study used as a basis for calculating academic credits, usually measured in hours of classroom instruction or laboratory work. b. A section of an academic course focusing on a selected theme: a unit on Native Americans. 7. The number immediately to the left of the decimal point in the Arabic numeral system. 8. Mathematics. The lowest positive whole number. [Back-formation from UNITY.]

Unit. abbr. 1. Unitarian. 2. Unitarianism.

u·ni·tard (yōō'nī-tārd') n. A one-piece tight-fitting leotard and tights combination, sometimes with foot straps. [UNI- + (LEO)TARD.]

U·ni·tar·i·an (yōō'nī-tār'ē-ən) n. Abbr. Unit. 1. An adherent of Unitarian Universalism. 2. A monotheist who is not a Christian. 3. A Christian who is not a Trinitarian. [From New Latin ūnitārius, monotheist, from Latin ūnitās, unity. See UNITY.] —U'ni-tar'i-an adj. —U'ni-tar'i-an-ism n.

Unitarian Universalism (yōō'nī-tār'ē-ən yōō'nə-vûr'sə-līz'əm) n. A religious association derived from Christianity that considers God to be unipersonal, salvation to be granted to the entire human race, and reason and conscience to be the criteria for belief and practice. —Unitarian Universalist adj. & n.

u·ni·tar·y (yōō'nī-tēr'ē) adj. 1. Of or relating to a unit. 2. Having the nature of a unit; whole. 3. Based on or characterized by one or more units. —u'ni-tar'i-ly adv.

unit character (yōō'nīt kār'ək-tər) n. Genetics. A character inherited in accordance with Mendel's law of segregation.

unit cost (yōō'nīt kôst) n. The cost of a given unit of a product.

u·nite (yōō-nīt') v. u-nit-ed, u-nit-ing, u-nites. — v. tr. 1. To bring together so as to form a whole. 2. To combine (people) in interest, attitude, or action: "the love that unites humanity" (Germaine Greer). 3. To join (a couple) in marriage. 4. To cause to adhere. 5. To have or demonstrate in combination: She unites common sense with vision. — v. intr. 1. To become or seem to become joined, formed, or combined into a unit. 2. To join and act together in a common purpose or endeavor. See Synonyms at join. 3. To be or become bound together by adhesion. [Middle English uniten, from Latin ūnīre, ūnīt-, from ūnus, one. See oi-no- in Appendix.]

u-nit-ed (yōō-nī'tīd) adj. 1. Combined into a single entity. 2. Concerned with, produced by, or resulting from mutual action. 3. Being in harmony; agreed.
—u-nit'ed-ly adv. —u-nit'ed-ness n.

U-nit-ed Ar-ab E-mir-ates (yōō-nī'tīd ār'əb ĭ-mīr'īts, ěm'ər-) Formerly Tru-cial O-man (trōō'shəl ō-män'). Abbr. U.A.E. A country of eastern Arabia, a federation of seven sheikdoms on the Persian Gulf and the Gulf of Oman. It was formed in 1971 from the former Trucial Oman, so called because the sheikdoms were bound by treaties with Great Britain signed in 1820, 1839, 1853, and 1892. Abu Dhabi is the capital. Population, 980,000.

United Arab Republic (yōō-nī'tīd ār'əb rĭ-pŭb'lik) Abbr. U.A.R. 1. A former union of Egypt and Syria that lasted from 1958 until 1961. Yemen also joined the union in 1958, thus creating the United Arab States. 2. See Egypt.

United Kingdom (yōō-nī'tīd kĭng'dəm) or United Kingdom of Great Brit-ain and Northern Ire-land (yōō-nī'tīd kĭng'dəm ũv grāt brĭt'n ənd nŏr'thərn ĭr'lənd) Commonly called Great Britain or Britain. Abbr. U.K., UK A country of western Europe comprising England, Scotland, Wales, and Northern Ireland. Beginning with the kingdom of England, it was created by three acts of union: with Wales (1536), Scotland (1707), and Northern Ireland (1800). At the height of its power in the 19th century it ruled an empire that spanned the globe. London is the capital and the largest city. Population, 55,648,994.

United Nations (yōō-nī'tīd nā'shənz) Abbr. UN, U.N. An international organization composed of most of the countries of the world. It was founded in 1945 to promote peace, security, and economic development.

United States (yōō-nī'tīd stātz) or United States of A-mer-i-ca (yōō-nī'tīd stātz ũv ə-mĕr'ĭ-kə) Abbr. U.S., US, U.S.A., USA A country of central and northwest North America with coastlines on the Atlantic and Pacific oceans. It includes the noncontiguous states of Alaska and Hawaii and various island territories in the Caribbean Sea and Pacific Ocean. The original Thirteen Colonies declared their independence from Great Britain in 1776 and formed a government under the Articles of Confederation in 1781. A new constitution, adopted in 1787 and in effect after 1789, provided for a strong central government, and the nation soon began to expand westward. The Civil War (1861-1865) was a brief but tragic disruption in the unity of the nation. Since that time the United States has evolved into a vast, diversified economic power. Washington, D.C., is the capital and New York the largest city. Population, 249,632,692.

u-ni-tive (yōō'nĭ-tĭv, yōō-nĭ'-) adj. Serving to unite; tending to promote unity.

u-nit-ize (yōō'nĭ-tīz') v. tr. u-nit-ized, u-nit-iz-ing, u-nit-iz-es. 1. To separate, classify, or package in discrete units. 2. To make or transform into a single unit. — u-nit-i-za'tion (yōō'nĭ-tī-zā'shən) n.

unit pric-ing (yōō'nĭt pri'sĭng) n. The pricing of goods on the basis of cost per unit of measure.

unit rule (yōō'nĭt rōol) n. A rule holding that a state's entire vote must go to the candidate preferred by the majority of that state's delegates in a Democratic Party national convention.

u-ni-ty (yōō'nĭ-tē) n. pl. u-ni-ties. 1. The state or quality of being one; singleness. 2. The state or quality of being in accord; harmony. 3. a. The combination or arrangement of parts into a whole; unification. b. A combination or union thus formed. 4. Singleness or constancy of purpose or action; continuity: "In an army you need unity of purpose" (Emmeline Pankhurst). 5. a. An ordering of all elements in a work of art or literature so that each contributes to a unified aesthetic effect. b. The effect thus produced. 6. One of the three principles of dramatic structure derived by French neoclassicists from Aristotle's Poetics, stating that a drama should have but one plot, which should take place in a single day and be confined to a single locale. 7. Mathematics. a. The number 1. b. See identity element. [Middle English unite, from Old French, from Latin unitās, from ūnus, one. See oi-no- in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: unity, union, solidarity. These nouns denote the condition of accord resulting from an identity or coincidence of interests, purposes, or sympathies among the members of a group. Unity implies agreement and collaboration among interdependent, usually varied components: "Religion... calls for the integration of lands and peoples in harmonious unity" (Vine Deloria, Jr.). Union connotes harmony, cohesiveness, and often unanimity among individuals united in a whole: "All your strength is in your union./All your danger is in discord" (Henry Wadsworth Longfellow). Solidarity refers to the community of objectives and responsibilities that enables a group of people to think and act as one: "A downtrodden class... will never be able to make an effective protest until it achieves solidarity" (H.G. Wells).

univ. abbr. 1. Universal. 2. Or Univ. University.

Univ. abbr. Universalist.

u-ni-va-lent (yōō'nĭ-vā'lənt) adj. 1. Chemistry. a. Having valence 1.

b. Having only one valence. 2. Genetics. Of or relating to a chromosome that is not paired or united with its homologous chromosome during synapsis. — n. Genetics. A univalent chromosome.

u·ni·valve (yōō'nī-vālv') adj. 1. Having a shell consisting of a single valve or piece. Used of a mollusk. 2. Composed of a single valve or piece. Used of a shell. — n. A univalve mollusk or shell.

u·ni·ver·sal (yōō'nə-vûr'səl) adj. Abbr. univ. 1. Of, relating to, extending to, or affecting the entire world or all within the world; worldwide: "This discovery of literature has as yet only partially penetrated the universal consciousness" (Ellen Key). 2. Including, relating to, or affecting all members of the class or group under consideration: the universal skepticism of philosophers. See Synonyms at general. 3. Applicable or common to all purposes, conditions, or situations: a universal remedy. 4. Of or relating to the universe or cosmos; cosmic. 5. Knowledgeable about or constituting all or many subjects; comprehensively broad. 6. Adapted or adjustable to many sizes or mechanical uses. 7. Logic. Encompassing all of the members of a class or group. Used of a proposition. — n. 1. Logic. a. A universal proposition. b. A general or abstract concept or term considered absolute or axiomatic. 2. A general or widely held principle, concept, or notion. 3. A trait or pattern of behavior characteristic of all the members of a particular culture or of all human beings. —u'ni-ver'sal-ly adv.

—u'ni-ver'sal-ness n.

universal coupling (yōō'nə-vûr'səl kûp'lîng) n. See universal joint.

universal donor (yōō'nə-vûr'səl dō'nər) n. A person who has group O blood and is therefore able to serve as a donor to a person of any other blood group in the ABO system.

u·ni·ver·sal·ism (yōō'nə-vûr'sə-lîz'əm) n. 1. Universalism. a. Theology. The doctrine of universal salvation. b. Unitarian Universalism. 2. The condition of being universal; universality. 3. A universal scope or range, as of knowledge.

U·ni·ver·sal·ist (yōō'nə-vûr'sə-lîst) n. Abbr. Univ. An adherent of Unitarian Universalism. —U'ni-ver'sal-ist adj.

u·ni·ver·sal·is·tic (yōō'nə-vûr'sə-lîs'tîk) adj. Universal in character or scope: universalistic values.

u·ni·ver·sal·i·ty (yōō'nə-vər-sāl'î-tē) n. pl. u·ni·ver·sal·i·ties. 1. The quality, fact, or condition of being universal. 2. Universal inclusiveness in scope or range, especially great or unbounded versatility of the mind.

u·ni·ver·sal·ize (yōō'nə-vûr'sə-lîz') v. tr. u·ni·ver·sal·ized, u·ni·ver·sal·iz·ing, u·ni·ver·sal·iz·es. To make universal; generalize. —u'ni-ver'sal-i-za'tion (-sə-lî-zā'shən) n.

universal joint (yōō'nə-vûr'səl joint) n. A joint or coupling that allows parts of a machine not in line with each other limited freedom of movement in any direction while transmitting rotary motion. Also called universal coupling

U·ni·ver·sal Product Code (yōō' nə-vûr'səl pröd'əkt kōd) n. Abbr. UPC A series of vertical bars of varying widths printed on consumer product packages and used especially for computerized inventory control. Also called bar code universal recipient (yōō' nə-vûr'səl rī-sīp'ē-ənt) n. A person who has group AB blood and is therefore able to receive blood from any other group in the ABO system.

universal resource locator (yōō' nə-vûr'səl rē'sôrs' lō'kā'tər) n. Computer Science. URL.

universal set (yōō' nə-vûr'səl sēt) n. Mathematics. A set containing all elements of a problem under consideration.

universal time (yōō' nə-vûr'səl tīm) n. Abbr. UT The mean solar time for the meridian at Greenwich, England, used as a basis for calculating time throughout most of the world. Also called Greenwich time u·ni·verse (yōō' nə-vûrs') n. 1. All matter and energy, including Earth, the galaxies and all therein, and the contents of intergalactic space, regarded as a whole.

2. a. The earth together with all its inhabitants and created things. b. The human race. 3. The sphere or realm in which something exists or takes place.

4. Logic. See universe of discourse. 5. Statistics. See population (n., sense 5). [Middle English, from Old French univers, from Latin ūniversum, from neuter of ūniversus, whole : ūnus, one; see oi-no- in Appendix + versus, past participle of vertere, to turn; see wer-² in Appendix.]

universe of discourse (yōō' nə-vûrs' ūv dīs'kôrs') n. Logic. A class containing all the entities referred to in a discourse or an argument. Also called universe

u·ni·ver·si·ty (yōō' nə-vûr'sī-tē) n. pl. u·ni·ver·si·ties. Abbr. univ., Univ., U., U 1. An institution for higher learning with teaching and research facilities constituting a graduate school and professional schools that award master's degrees and doctorates and an undergraduate division that awards bachelor's degrees.

2. The buildings and grounds of such an institution. 3. The body of students and faculty of such an institution. [Middle English universite, from Old French, from Medieval Latin ūniversitās, from Latin, the whole, a corporate body, from ūniversus, whole. See UNIVERSE.]

WORD HISTORY: The universe in the word university is not the universe as we know it, though university is derived from the ancestor of our word universe. This ancestor, Latin ūniversus, was made up of ūnus, “one,” and versus, “in a specified direction.” Ūniversus thus literally meant “in one specified direction” but actually meant “the whole of, entire,” and “regarded as a whole, regarded as a group.” Ūniversum, the neuter singular of ūniversus, used as a noun, meant “the universe,” as did the derivative ūniversitās, which also meant “a corporate body of persons, community.” During the Middle Ages, when Latin continued to be used in areas such as government, religion, and education, the word ūniversitās was applied to the new corporate bodies of teachers and students, as at Salerno, Paris, and Oxford, that were the ancestors of our universities of today. Our word university, going back to the Latin word, is first recorded around 1300, with reference to this corporate body.

U·ni·ver·si·ty City (yōō'nə-vûr'sī-tē sīt'ē) A city of eastern Missouri, a suburb of St. Louis. Population, 40,087.

University Heights (yōō'nə-vûr'sī-tē hīts) A city of northeast Ohio, a residential suburb of Cleveland. Population, 15,401.

University Park (yōō'nə-vûr'sī-tē pārk) A city of northeast Texas, a residential suburb entirely surrounded by Dallas. Population, 22,259.

u·niv·o·cal (yōō-niv'ə-kəl) adj. Having only one meaning; unambiguous. — n. A word or term having only one meaning. [From Late Latin ūnivōcus: Latin ūni-, uni- + Latin vōx, vōc-, voice; see wek^w- in Appendix.] — u·niv'·o·cal·ly adv.

UNIX (yōō'nīks) A trademark used for a computer disk operating system.

un·joint (ŭn-joint') v. tr. un·joint·ed, un·joint·ing, un·joints. To dislocate a joint of; disjoint.

un·just (ŭn-jüst') adj. 1. Violating principles of justice or fairness; unfair: "monstrously unjust and socially harmful" (Anna Garlin Spencer). 2. Archaic. Faithless; dishonest. — un·just'ly adv. — un·just'ness n.

un·jus·ti·fi·a·ble (ŭn-jūs'tə-fī'ə-bəl, ŭn'jūs-tə-fī'-) adj. Impossible to excuse, pardon, or justify: took an unjustifiable risk. — un·jus'ti·fi'a·bly adv.

un·kempt (ŭn-kēmt') adj. 1. a. Not combed: unkempt hair. b. Not properly maintained; disorderly or untidy: an unkempt garden. See Synonyms at sloppy. 2. Unpolished; rude. [Middle English unkemd: un-, not; see UN⁻¹ + kembed, past participle of kemben, to comb (from Old English cemban); see gembh- in Appendix.]

un·ken·nel (ŭn-kēn'əl) v. tr. un·ken·neled or un·ken·nelled, un·ken·nel·ing or un·ken·nel·ling, un·ken·nels or un·ken·nels. 1. a. To drive from a lair or den. b. To loose from a kennel. 2. To bring to light; uncover or disclose.

un·kept (ŭn-kēpt') adj. 1. Unkempt: an unkept cemetery plot. 2. Not kept or fulfilled: an unkept promise.

un·kind (ŭn-kīnd') adj. un·kind·er, un·kind·est. 1. Lacking kindness; inconsiderate or unsympathetic. 2. Harsh; severe: unkind winters. — un·kind'ness n.

un·kind·ly (ŭn-kīnd'lē) adj. un·kind·li·er, un·kind·li·est. Not kindly; unkind. — adv. In an unkind manner. — un·kind'li·ness n.

un·kink (ŭn-kīngk') v. un·kinked, un·kink·ing, un·kinks. — v. tr. To remove kinks from; make straight. — v. intr. To become relaxed.

un·knit (ŭn-nĭt') v. tr. intr. un·knit or un·knit·ted, un·knit·ting, un·knits.

To unravel or undo (something knit or tied) or become unraveled or undone.

un·know·a·ble (ŭn-nō'ə-bəl) adj. Impossible to know, especially being beyond the range of human experience or understanding: the unknowable mysteries of life. —un·know'a·bil'i·ty, un·know'a·ble·ness n.

—un·know'a·ble n. —un·know'a·bly adv.

un·know·ing (ŭn-nō'ing) adj. Not knowing; unaware. —un·know'ing·ly adv.

un·known (ŭn-nōn') adj. 1. Not known; unfamiliar: a modern-day problem unknown in earlier times. 2. a. Not identified or ascertained: received flowers from an unknown admirer. b. Not established or verified. 3. Not well known or widely known: an unknown artist. — n. 1. a. A person or thing that is unknown: "the abyss of the unknown" (Helena Petrovna Blavatsky). b. A person who is not well known, as to the general public: cast an unknown in the starring role. 2. Mathematics. A quantity of unknown numerical value.

Un·known Soldier (ŭn'nōn' sōl'jər) n. An unidentified soldier killed in war and chosen to be interred with national honors as a representative of all those who died in a war.

un·la·bored (ŭn-lā'bərd) adj. 1. Done with or requiring little effort; effortless. 2. Not tilled or cultivated.

un·lace (ŭn-lās') v. tr. un·laced, un·lac·ing, un·lac·es. 1. a. To loosen or undo the lacing or laces of. b. To loosen or remove the clothing of. 2. Obsolete. To disgrace.

un·lade (ŭn-lād') v. un·lad·ed, un·lad·ing, un·lades. Nautical. — v. tr. 1. To unload (cargo) from a ship. 2. To unload (a ship). — v. intr. To discharge a cargo.

un·laid (ŭn-lād') v. Nautical. Past tense and past participle of unlay.

un·lash (ŭn-lāsh') v. tr. un·lashed, un·lash·ing, un·lash·es. To untie the lashing of; loose.

un·latch (ŭn-läch') v. un·latched, un·latch·ing, un·latch·es. — v. tr. To unfasten or open by releasing the latch. — v. intr. To become unfastened or opened.

un·law·ful (ŭn-lô'fəl) adj. 1. Not lawful; illegal. 2. Contrary to accepted morality or convention; illicit. 3. Of, relating to, or being a child or children born to unmarried parents. —un·law'ful·ly adv. —un·law'ful·ness n.

un·lay (ŭn-lā') v. un·laid (-lād'), un·lay·ing, un·lays. Nautical. — v. tr. To untwist the strands of (a rope). — v. intr. To untwist.

un·lead (ŭn-lēd') v. tr. un·lead·ed, un·lead·ing, un·leads. 1. To remove the lead from. 2. Printing. To extricate the leads from between (lines of type).

un·lead·ed (ŭn-lēd'ĭd) adj. 1. Not containing tetraethyl lead: unleaded gasoline. 2. Printing. Not spaced or separated with lead, as lines of type.

un·learn (ŭn-lûrn') v. tr. un·learned also un·learnt (-lûrnt'), un·learn·ing, un·learns. 1. To put (something learned) out of the mind; forget. 2. To undo the effect of; put aside the practice of: tried to unlearn smoking.

un·learn·ed (ŭn-lûr'nĭd) adj. 1. Not educated; ignorant or illiterate. See Synonyms at ignorant. 2. Not skilled or versed in a specified discipline. 3. (-lûrnd') Not acquired by training or studying: an unlearned response.

—un·learn'ed·ly adv.

un·leash (ŭn-lēsh') v. tr. un·leashed, un·leash·ing, un·leash·es. To release or loose from or as if from a leash: unleashed the guard dogs; unleashed his pent-up rage.

un·leav·ened (ŭn-lēv'ənd) adj. Made without yeast or any other leavening agent: unleavened bread.

un·less (ŭn-lēs') conj. Except on the condition that; except under the circumstances that: "Exceptional talent does not always win its reward unless favored by exceptional circumstances" (Mary Elizabeth Braddon). — prep. Except for; except. [Middle English unlesse, alteration (influenced by un-, not), of onlesse: on, on; see ON + lesse, less; see LESS.]

un·let·tered (ŭn-lēt'ərd) adj. 1. a. Not adept at reading and writing; deficient in the knowledge that can be acquired from books. See Synonyms at ignorant. b. Illiterate. 2. Having no lettering: unlettered poster board.

un·li·censed (ŭn-lī'sənst) adj. 1. Having no official license. 2. Done without permission; not authorized. 3. Lacking moral restraint; unrestrained.

un·licked (ŭn-lĭkt') adj. Archaic. 1. Not licked clean. 2. Not having proper shape or form.

un·like (ŭn-lĭk') adj. 1. Not alike; different: For twins, they are very unlike.

2. Not equal, as in amount. — prep. 1. Different from; not like: She's unlike the rest of her family. 2. Not typical of: It's unlike him not to call.

un·like·li·hood (ŭn-lĭk'lē-hōöd') n. 1. The state of being unlikely or improbable; improbability. 2. Something unlikely.

un·like·ly (ŭn-lĭk'lē) adj. un·like·li·er, un·like·li·est. 1. Not likely; improbable. 2. Not promising; likely to fail. —un·like'li·ness n.

un·like·ness (ŭn-lĭk'nĭs) n. The quality or condition of being unlike. See Synonyms at difference.

un·lim·ber (ŭn-lĭm'bər) v. un·lim·bered, un·lim·ber·ing, un·lim·bers. — v. tr. 1. To make ready for action. 2. To detach (a gun or caisson) from its limber. — v. intr. To prepare something for action.

un·lim·it·ed (ŭn-lĭm'ĭ-tĭd) adj. 1. Having no restrictions or controls: an unlimited travel ticket. 2. Having or seeming to have no boundaries; infinite: an unlimited horizon. 3. Without qualification or exception; absolute: unlimited self-confidence. —un·lim'it·ed·ly adv. —un·lim'it·ed·ness n.

un·link (үн-лiнгк') v. un·linked, un·link·ing, un·links. — v. tr. 1. To disconnect the links of; unfasten. 2. To separate as if by undoing links: unlink arms. — v. intr. To become unfastened.

un·list·ed (үн-лiс'тiд) adj. 1. Not appearing on a list, especially not listed in a telephone directory. 2. Relating to or being stock or securities not listed on a stock exchange.

un·lis·ten·a·ble (үн-лiс'ә-nә-bәл) adj. Being such that listening with comfort or pleasure is impossible: an unlistenable operatic solo; an unlistenable diatribe.

un·liv·a·ble (үн-лiв'ә-bәл) adj. Unfit for habitation; uninhabitable: an unlivable apartment.

un·live (үн-лiв') v. tr. un·lived, un·liv·ing, un·lives. To undo the effects of; annul.

un·load (үн-лōд') v. un·load·ed, un·load·ing, un·loads. — v. tr. 1. a. To remove the load or cargo from. b. To discharge (cargo or a load). 2. a. To relieve of something burdensome or oppressive; unburden: unloaded the donkeys. b. To give expression to (one's troubles or feelings); pour forth. 3. To remove the charge from (a firearm). 4. To dispose of, especially by selling in great quantity; dump. — v. intr. To discharge a cargo or some other burden.

—un·load'er n.

un·lock (үн-лōк') v. un·locked, un·lock·ing, un·locks. — v. tr. 1. a. To undo (a lock) by turning a key or corresponding part. b. To undo the lock of. 2. To give access to; open. 3. To set free; release: The news unlocked a torrent of emotion. 4. To provide a key to; disclose or reveal: unlock a mystery. — v. intr. To become unfastened, loosened, or freed from something that restrains.

un·looked-for (үн-лōōкт'fōr') adj. Not expected; unforeseen: unlooked-for riches.

un·loose (үн-лōōс') v. tr. un·loosed, un·loos·ing, un·loos·es. 1. To unfasten; untie. 2. To set free from or as if from restraints. 3. To relax: unloosed my grip on the handlebars.

un·loos·en (үн-лōō'сән) v. tr. un·loos·ened, un·loos·en·ing, un·loos·ens. To unloose.

un·love·ly (үн-лiв'лi) adj. un·love·li·er, un·love·li·est. 1. Not deemed visually attractive. 2. Not pleasant; disagreeable: an unlovely ride to work on a crowded train.

un·luck·y (үн-лiк'ē) adj. un·luck·i·er, un·luck·i·est. 1. Subjected to or marked by misfortune. 2. Resulting or likely to result in misfortune; inauspicious. See Synonyms at unfortunate. 3. Not producing the desired outcome; disappointing. —un·luck'i·ly adv. —un·luck'i·ness n.

un·made (үн-mād') adj. Not made: an unmade bed; plans still unmade.

un·make (ŭn-māk') v. tr. un·made (-mād'), un·mak·ing, un·makes. 1. To deprive of position, rank, or authority; depose. 2. To cause the ruin of; destroy. 3. To alter the nature or characteristics of.

un·man (ŭn-măn') v. tr. un·manned, un·man·ning, un·mans. 1. To cause to give up manly courage or spirit. 2. To take away virility from; emasculate.

un·man·age·a·ble (ŭn-măn'ĭ-jə-bəl) adj. Difficult or impossible to manage, as: a. Not submitting to discipline; unruly: an unmanageable child. b. Difficult to keep under control or within limits: unmanageable traffic congestion; an unmanageable federal deficit. c. Awkward; unwieldy: unmanageable bundles.
—un·man'age·a·bil'i·ty n. —un·man'age·a·bly adv.

un·man·ly (ŭn-măn'lē) adj. un·man·li·er, un·man·li·est.
1. a. Dishonorable; degrading. b. Lacking courage; cowardly. 2. Regarded as unbecoming to a man. —un·man'li·ness n.

un·manned (ŭn-mänd') adj. 1. Not crewed: an unmanned spacecraft.
2. Obsolete. Not trained. Used of a hawk.

un·man·nered (ŭn-măn'ər-d) adj. 1. Lacking good manners; rude. 2. Natural and unaffected. —un·man'nered·ly adv.

un·man·ner·ly (ŭn-măn'ər-lē) adj. Ill-mannered; rude.
—un·man'ner·li·ness n. —un·man'ner·ly adv.

un·marked (ŭn-märkt') adj. 1. Not bearing an identifying mark: an unmarked police car; unmarked merchandise. 2. Not observed or noticed.

un·mar·ried (ŭn-mär'ēd) adj. Not married; having no spouse. — n. One who is not married.

un·mask (ŭn-mäsk') v. un·masked, un·mask·ing, un·masks. — v. tr.
1. To remove a mask from. 2. To disclose the true character of; expose. — v. intr. To remove one's mask.

un·matched (ŭn-mächt') adj. 1. Not matched: unmatched socks. 2. Without equal or rival; peerless: unmatched skill.

un·mean·ing (ŭn-mē'nĭng) adj. 1. Devoid of meaning or sense; meaningless: gave a vapid and unmeaning response to a difficult query. 2. Lacking intelligence or liveliness of expression; vacant: an unmeaning face. —un·mean'ing·ly adv.

un·meant (ŭn-měnt') adj. Not intentional.

un·me·chan·i·cal (ŭn'mĭ-kăn'ĭ-kəl) adj. Lacking ability or skill in the use of machinery and tools. —un'me·chan'i·cal·ly adv.

un·meet (ŭn-mēt') adj. Not fitting or proper; unseemly.

un·men·tion·a·ble (ŭn-měn'shə-nə-bəl) adj. Not fit to be mentioned or discussed; unspeakable: unmentionable words. — n. 1. One that is not to be mentioned. 2. unmentionables. Underwear. —un·men'tion·a·ble·ness n.
—un·men'tion·a·bly adv.

un·mer·ci·ful (ŭn-mûr'sî-fəl) adj. 1. Having or exhibiting no mercy; merciless. 2. Exceeding a normal or reasonable limit; excessive: unmerciful heat.

—un·mer'ci·ful·ly adv. —un·mer'ci·ful·ness n.

un·met (ŭn-mět') adj. Not satisfied or fulfilled: unmet demands.

un·mind·ful (ŭn-mīnd'fəl) adj. Failing to give due heed, care, or attention; inattentive. See Synonyms at forgetful. —un·mind'ful·ly adv. —un·mind'ful·ness n.

un·mis·tak·a·ble (ŭn'mī-stā'kə-bəl) adj. Impossible to mistake or misinterpret; obvious: unmistakable signs of illness. —un'mis·tak'a·bly adv.

un·mit·i·gat·ed (ŭn-mīt'i-gā'tid) adj. 1. Not diminished or moderated in intensity or severity; unrelieved: unmitigated suffering. 2. Without qualification or exception; absolute: an unmitigated lie. —un·mit'i·gat'ed·ly adv.

—un·mit'i·gat'ed·ness n.

un·mixed (ŭn-mīkst') adj. Free from other elements; pure: unmixed pleasure; was not an unmixed blessing. —un·mix'ed·ly (-mīk'sīd-lē) adv.

un·mold (ŭn-möld') v. tr. un·mold·ed, un·mold·ing, un·molds. To remove from a mold: unmold a lemon mousse.

un·mo·lest·ed (ŭn'mə-lēs'tid) adj. Not interfered with, disturbed, or harmed.

un·moor (ŭn-mōōr') v. tr. un·moored, un·moor·ing, un·moors. — v. tr.

1. To release from or as if from moorings. 2. Nautical. To release (a ship) from all but one anchor. — v. intr. To cast off moorings.

un·mor·al (ŭn-môr'al, -môr'-) adj. 1. Having no moral quality; amoral.

2. Unrelated to moral or ethical considerations; nonmoral. —un'mo·ral'i·ty (-mə-rāl'i-tē, -mô-) n. —un·mor'al·ly adv.

un·mor·tise (ŭn-môr'tīs) v. tr. un·mor·tised, un·mor·tis·ing, un·mor·tis·es. 1. To loosen a mortised joint of. 2. To separate.

un·mo·ti·vat·ed (ŭn-mō'tə-vā'tid) adj. Having no motive or incentive: unmotivated students; an unmotivated episode in a movie.

un·moved (ŭn-mōōvd') adj. Emotionally unaffected.

un·mov·ing (ŭn-mōō'vīng) adj. 1. Not moving; motionless. 2. Not affecting the emotions: a curiously unmoving dramatic work.

un·muf·fle (ŭn-müf'əl) v. un·muf·fled, un·muf·fling, un·muf·fles. — v. tr. To free from a garment or device that muffles. — v. intr. To remove or cast off something that muffles.

un·mu·si·cal (ŭn-myōō'zī-kəl) adj. 1. Lacking in musical qualities, such as melody or harmony. 2. Sounding harsh to the ear; dissonant. 3. Not skilled or interested in music. —un·mu'si·cal·ly adv. —un·mu'si·cal·ness n.

un·muz·zle (ŭn-müz'əl) v. tr. un·muz·zled, un·muz·zling, un·muz·zles.

1. To remove a muzzle from: unmuzzle a dog. 2. Informal. To free from restraint or censorship: unmuzzle the press.

un·my·e·lin·at·ed (ŭn-mī'ə-lī-nā'tīd) adj. Lacking a myelin sheath. Used of a nerve fiber.

Un·na (ōōn'ə) A city of west-central Germany, an industrial suburb of Essen. Population, 57,569.

un·name·a·ble or un·nam·a·ble (ŭn-nā'mə-bəl) adj. Not to be named or identified: "We lived in dread of various unnameable calamities" (Garrison Keillor).

un·nat·u·ral (ŭn-näch'ər-əl) adj. 1. In violation of a natural law.

2. Inconsistent with an individual pattern or custom. 3. Deviating from a behavioral or social norm: an unnatural attachment. 4. Contrived or constrained; artificial: smiled in an unnatural manner. 5. In violation of natural feelings; inhuman. —un·nat'·u·ral·ly adv. —un·nat'·u·ral·ness n.

un·nec·es·sar·y (ŭn-nēs'ī-sēr'ē) adj. Not necessary; needless.

—un·nec'·es·sar'·i·ly (-sâr'ə-lē) adv.

un·nerve (ŭn-nûrv') v. tr. un·nerved, un·nerv·ing, un·nerves. 1. To deprive of fortitude, strength, or firmness of purpose. 2. To make nervous or upset. —un·nerv'ing·ly adv.

un·nil·quad·i·um (yōō'nīl-kwöd'ē-əm) n. Element 104. [Latin ūnus, one; see UNION + nīl, nothing; see NIL + QUAD(RI)- + -IUM.]

un·nil·quin·ti·um (yōō'nīl-kwīn'tē-əm) n. Element 105. [Latin ūnus, one; see UNION + nīl, nothing; see NIL + quīntus, fifth; see QUINTET + -IUM.]

un·no·tice·a·ble (ŭn-nō'tī-sə-bəl) adj. Not readily noticeable.

—un·no'tice·a·bly adv.

un·num·bered (ŭn-nŭm'bərd) adj. 1. Innumerable; countless: the unnumbered stars. 2. Not marked with an identifying number: unnumbered pages.

un·ob·jec·tion·a·ble (ŭn'əb-jĕk'shə-nə-bəl) adj. Raising no objections; acceptable: unobjectionable goals.

un·ob·struct·ed (ŭn'əb-strŭk'tīd, -ŏb-) adj. Free from obstructions; clear: an unobstructed view.

un·ob·tru·sive (ŭn'əb-trōō'sīv) adj. Not undesirably noticeable or blatant; inconspicuous. —un'ob·tru'sive·ly adv. —un'ob·tru'sive·ness n.

un·oc·cu·pied (ŭn-ŏk'yə-pīd') adj. 1. a. Not being used: an unoccupied telephone booth. b. Not inhabited: an unoccupied house. 2. Not busy, employed, or engaged; idle.

un·of·fi·cial (ŭn'ə-fīsh'əl) adj. 1. Not official: the unofficial election results. 2. Not acting officially: an unofficial adviser. —un'of·fi·cial·ly adv.

un·op·posed (ŭn'ə-pōzd') adj. Not challenged by another: The candidate was unopposed in the campaign.

un·or·gan·ized (ŭn-ŏr'gə-nīzd') adj. 1. Lacking order, system, or unity; disorganized. 2. Having no organic qualities; inorganic. 3. Not represented by a labor union.

un·o·rig·i·nal (ŭn'ə-rĭj'ə-nəl) adj. Lacking originality; trite.

un·or·na·ment (ŭn-ôr'nə-mĕnt') v. tr. un·or·na·ment·ed, un·or·na·ment·ing, un·or·na·ments. To divest of ornamentation; make unadorned.

un·or·tho·dox (ŭn-ôr'thə-dōks') adj. Breaking with convention or tradition; not orthodox. —un·or'tho·dox'ly adv. —un·or'tho·dox'y n.

un·os·ten·ta·tious (ŭn-ôs'tĕn-tā'shəs, -tən-) adj. Not ostentatious; unpretentious. See Synonyms at plain. —un·os'ten·ta'tious·ly adv.

—un·os'ten·ta'tious·ness n.

unp. abbr. 1. Unpaged. 2. Unpaginated.

un·pack (ŭn-pāk') v. un·packed, un·pack·ing, un·packs. — v. tr. 1. To remove the contents of (a suitcase, for example). 2. To remove from a container, from packaging, or from packing. 3. To remove a pack from (a pack animal). — v. intr. To unpack objects from a container.

un·paged (ŭn-pājd') adj. Abbr. unp. Having no page numbers.

un·pag·i·nat·ed (ŭn-pāj'ə-nā'tĭd) adj. Unpaged.

un·paid (ŭn-pād') adj. 1. Not yet paid: unpaid bills. 2. Serving without pay; unsalaried: unpaid research assistants.

un·pal·at·a·ble (ŭn-pāl'ə-tə-bəl) adj. 1. Not pleasing to the taste: an unpalatable meal. 2. Not pleasant or agreeable: unpalatable truths. —un'pal·at·a·bil'i·ty n. —un·pal'at·a·bly adv.

un·par·al·leled (ŭn-pār'ə-lĕld') adj. Without parallel, equal, or match; unequaled.

un·par·lia·men·ta·ry (ŭn'pār-lə-mĕn'tə-rĕ, -mĕn'trĕ) adj. Not in accord with parliamentary procedure.

un·peo·ple (ŭn-pĕ'pəl) v. tr. un·peo·pled, un·peo·pling, un·peo·ples. To reduce sharply the population of (an area); depopulate.

un·peo·pled (ŭn-pĕ'pəld) adj. Uninhabited: unpeopled Arctic wastelands.

un·per·fo·rat·ed (ŭn-pûr'fə-rā'tĭd) adj. 1. Lacking perforations.

2. Imperforate. Used of a postage stamp.

un·per·son (ŭn'pûr'sən) n. A nonperson.

un·per·turbed (ŭn'pĕr-tûrbd') adj. Calm and serene; unruffled.

un·pick (ŭn-pĭk') v. tr. un·picked, un·pick·ing, un·picks. To undo (sewing) by removing stitches: unpick a seam.

un·pile (ŭn-pĭl') v. tr. un·piled, un·pil·ing, un·piles. To remove from a pile.

un·pin (ŭn-pĭn') v. tr. un·pinned, un·pin·ning, un·pins. 1. To remove pins or a pin from. 2. a. To open or unfasten by or as if by removing pins. b. To free.

un·planned (ŭn-plānd') adj. 1. Not intended; unintentional. 2. a. Having no particular purpose, organization, or structure; random. b. Not thought out or prepared in advance; spontaneous: an unplanned adventure; an unplanned picnic.

un·pleas·ant (ŭn-plĕz'ənt) adj. Not pleasing; disagreeable.

—un·pleas'ant·ly adv.

un·pleas·ant·ness (ŭn-plĕz'ənt-nĭs) n. 1. The quality or condition of being unpleasant. 2. An unpleasant experience or situation.

un·pleas·ant·ry (ŭn-plĕz'ən-trĕ) n. pl. un·pleas·ant·ries. A disagreeable remark, situation, or act.

un·plug (ŭn-plŭg') v. tr. un·plugged, un·plug·ging, un·plugs. 1. a. To remove a plug from. b. To free from an obstruction. 2. a. To remove (an electric plug) from an outlet. b. To disconnect (an electric appliance) by removing a plug from an outlet.

un·plumbed (ŭn-plŭmd') adj. 1. Not measured or sounded with a plumb: unplumbed ocean depths. 2. Not fully examined or explored: unplumbed ideas.

un·pol·ished (ŭn-pŏl'ĭsht) adj. 1. Not polished, as: a. Not smooth and shiny: unpolished shoes; unpolished gemstones. b. Not elaborated, perfected, or completed: an unpolished performance. c. Not having attained a high degree of skill: an unpolished tenor. 2. a. Lacking good manners, culture, or refinement. b. Natural and unsophisticated: The service was friendly and unpolished.

un·po·lit·i·cal (ŭn'pə-lĭt'ĭ-kəl) adj. Not politically structured, oriented, or focused; not interested in politics.

un·polled (ŭn-pŏld') adj. 1. Not interviewed in a poll: unpolled constituents. 2. Not registered at the polls: unpolled voters.

un·pop·u·lar (ŭn-pŏp'yə-lər) adj. Lacking general approval or acceptance.
—un'pop·u·lar'i·ty (-lăr'ĭ-tĕ) n.

un·prac·ticed (ŭn-prăk'tĭst) adj. 1. Not yet tested or tried. 2. Lacking the benefit of experience; unskilled.

un·prec·e·dent·ed (ŭn-prĕs'ĭ-dĕn'tĭd) adj. Having no previous example: unprecedented economic growth. —un·prec'e·dent'ed·ly adv.

un·pre·dict·a·ble (ŭn'prĭ-dĭk'tə-bəl) adj. Difficult to foretell or foresee: unpredictable test results; unpredictable behavior. — n. Something difficult or impossible to foretell or foresee. —un·pre·dict'a·bil'i·ty n.

—un'pre·dict'a·bly adv.

un·prej·u·diced (ŭn-prĕj'ə-dĭst) adj. Free from prejudice; impartial. See Synonyms at fair¹.

un·pre·med·i·tat·ed (ŭn'prĭ-mĕd'ĭ-tā'tĭd) adj. Not planned or thought out in advance. See Synonyms at extemporaneous. —un'pre·med'i·tat'ed·ly adv.

un·pre·pared (ŭn'prĭ-pârd') adj. 1. Having made no preparations. 2. Not equipped to meet a contingency. 3. Impromptu: unprepared remarks.

—un'pre·par'ed·ly (-pâr'id-lĕ) adv. —un'pre·par'ed·ness (-pâr'id-nĭs, -pârd'nĭs) n.

un·pre·pos·sess·ing (ŭn'prē-pə-zēs'ing) adj. Failing to impress favorably; nondescript: an unprepossessing little hotel. —un'pre·pos·sess'ing·ly adv.

un·pre·tend·ing (ŭn'prī-tĕn'ding) adj. Unpretentious.

un·pre·ten·tious (ŭn'prī-tĕn'shəs) adj. Lacking pretension or affectation; modest. See Synonyms at plain. —un'pre·ten'tious·ly adv. —un'pre·ten'tious·ness n.

un·priced (ŭn-prīst') adj. Having no assigned price: unpriced merchandise.

un·prin·ci·pled (ŭn-prīn'sə-pəld) adj. Lacking principles or moral scruples; unscrupulous: unprincipled behavior. —un·prin'ci·pled·ness n.

un·print·a·ble (ŭn-prīn'tə-bəl) adj. Not proper for publication for legal or social reasons: unprintable remarks.

un·pro·duc·tive (ŭn'prə-dŭk'tiv) adj. 1. Not productive; idle. 2. Economics. Adding nothing to exchangeable value. —un'pro·duc'tive·ly adv. —un'pro·duc'tive·ness n.

un·pro·fes·sion·al (ŭn'prə-fĕsh'ə-nəl) adj. 1. a. Not in a profession. b. Not a qualified member of a professional group. 2. Not conforming to the standards of a profession: unprofessional behavior. 3. Characteristic of an amateur; inexperienced. —un'pro·fes'sion·al·ism n. —un'pro·fes'sion·al·ly adv.

un·prof·it·a·ble (ŭn-prŏf'ī-tə-bəl) adj. 1. Bringing in no profit or profits: an unprofitable business venture. 2. Serving no useful purpose: an unprofitable argument. —un·prof'it·a·bil'i·ty, un·prof'it·a·ble·ness n. —un·prof'it·a·bly adv.

un·prom·is·ing (ŭn-prŏm'ī-sing) adj. Not likely to develop in a desirable manner: an unpromising beginning to the relationship. —un·prom'is·ing·ly adv.

un·pro·nounce·a·ble (ŭn'prə-noun'sə-bəl) adj. 1. Difficult or impossible to pronounce correctly: an unpronounceable last name. 2. Not fit to be mentioned.

un·pro·pi·tious (ŭn'prə-pīsh'əs) adj. Unfavorable; inauspicious: arrived at an unpropitious moment. —un'pro·pi'tious·ly adv.

un·pro·vid·ed (ŭn'prə-vī'did) adj. Not supplied, furnished, or equipped. —un'pro·vid'ed·ly adv.

un·pro·voked (ŭn'prə-vŏkt') adj. Not provoked or prompted: an unprovoked attack.

un·pub·lish·a·ble (ŭn-pŭb'li-shə-bəl) adj. Unfit for publication: an unpub-lishable manuscript.

un·put·down·a·ble (ŭn'pŏt-dou'nə-bəl) adj. Informal. So well written and entertaining as to be difficult to put down: “Unless the story is at once as unput-downable to a taxi driver as to a university professor, it is not good enough” (Brian Burland).

- un·qual·i·fied (ŭn-kwŏl'ə-fid') adj. 1. Lacking the proper or required qualifications: unqualified for the job. 2. Not modified by conditions or reservations; absolute: an unqualified refusal. —un·qual'i·fied'ly adv.
- un·quench·a·ble (ŭn-kwĕn'chə-bəl) adj. 1. Impossible to slake or satisfy: unquenchable thirst. 2. Impossible to suppress or destroy: unquenchable enthusiasm. —un·quench'a·bly adv.
- un·ques·tion·a·ble (ŭn-kwĕs'chə-nə-bəl) adj. Beyond question or doubt; indisputable. See Synonyms at authentic. —un·ques'tion·a·bil'i·ty, un'ques'tion·a·ble·ness n. —un·ques'tion·a·bly adv.
- un·ques·tioned (ŭn-kwĕs'chənd) adj. 1. Not subjected to questioning; not interrogated. 2. Being such as to debar questioning or doubts; indisputable. 3. Not called into question or examination; not doubted.
- un·ques·tion·ing (ŭn-kwĕs'chə-nĭng) adj. Not marked by or exhibiting uncertainty or indecision: unquestioning faith. —un·ques'tion·ing·ly adv.
- un·qui·et (ŭn-kwī'it) adj. un·qui·et·er, un·qui·et·est. 1. Emotionally or mentally restless or uneasy. 2. Characterized by unrest or disorder; turbulent. —un·qui'et·ly adv. —un·qui'et·ness n.
- un·quote (ŭn-kwŏt') n. Used by a speaker to indicate the end of a quotation.
- un·raised (ŭn-rāzd') adj. Containing no yeast; not leavened: an unraised doughnut.
- un·rav·el (ŭn-rāv'əl) v. un·rav·eled or un·rav·elled, un·rav·el·ing or un·rav·el·ling, un·rav·els or un·rav·els. — v. tr. 1. a. To undo or ravel the knitted fabric of. b. To separate (entangled threads). 2. To separate and clarify the elements of (something mysterious or baffling); solve. See Synonyms at solve. — v. intr. To become unraveled.
- un·reach·a·ble (ŭn-rē'chə-bəl) adj. Inaccessibly located or situated: an unreachable canyon; an executive unreachable by telephone. —un·reach'a·bil'i·ty n. —un·reach'a·bly adv.
- un·read (ŭn-rĕd') adj. 1. Not read, studied, or perused: a book that is yet unread. 2. a. Having read little; lacking in knowledge acquired by reading. b. Not versed in a specified subject: unread in anthropology.
- un·read·a·ble (ŭn-rĕ'də-bəl) adj. 1. Not legible or decipherable; illegible: unreadable handwriting. 2. Unsuitable for or not worth reading: unreadable prose. 3. Not interesting; dull: wholly unreadable statistics. 4. Incomprehensible; opaque: an unreadable look in his eyes. —un·read'a·bil'i·ty n.
- un·read·y (ŭn-rĕd'ē) adj. un·read·i·er, un·read·i·est. 1. Not ready or prepared. 2. Slow to see or respond; not prompt. —un·read'i·ly adv. —un·read'i·ness n.
- un·re·al (ŭn-rē'əl, -rĕl') adj. 1. Not real or substantial; illusory. 2. Slang. So remarkable as to elicit disbelief; fantastic. 3. Surreal.

un·re·al·is·tic (ŭn'rē-ə-lis'tik) adj. Not compatible with reality or fact; unrealistically idealistic: unrealistic expectations. —un're-al-is'ti-cal·ly adv.

un·re·al·i·ty (ŭn'rē-äl'i-tē) n. pl. un·re·al·i·ties. 1. The quality or state of being unreal. 2. Something unreal, insubstantial, or imaginary. 3. A lack of ability to deal with reality.

un·re·al·ized (ŭn-rē'ə-līzd') adj. Not brought to realization; not made actual or real: unrealized aspirations.

un·rea·son (ŭn-rē'zən) n. 1. Absence or lack of reason; irrationality. 2. Nonsense; absurdity.

un·rea·son·a·ble (ŭn-rē'zə-nə-bəl) adj. 1. Not governed by reason: an unreasonable attitude. 2. Exceeding reasonable limits; immoderate: unreasonable demands. —un·rea'son·a·ble·ness n. —un·rea'son·a·bly adv.

SYNONYMS: unreasonable, irrational. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “not guided by or predicated on reason”: an unreasonable expectation; irrational fears. See also Synonyms at excessive un·rea·soned (ŭn-rē'zənd) adj. Not based on or guided by reason; unreasonable: unreasoned prejudices.

ANTONYM: reasonable

un·rea·son·ing (ŭn-rē'zə-nīng) adj. Not governed or moderated by reason. —un·rea'son·ing·ly adv.

un·reck·on·a·ble (ŭn-rĕk'ə-nə-bəl) adj. Difficult or impossible to calculate or determine; incalculable: unreckonable distances.

un·re·con·struct·ed (ŭn'rē-kən-strŭk'tid) adj. Not reconciled to social, political, or economic change; maintaining outdated attitudes, beliefs, and practices.

un·reel (ŭn-rēl') v. tr. intr. un·reeled, un·reel·ing, un·reels. To unwind (something) from or as if from a reel or become unwound.

un·reeve (ŭn-rēv') v. un·reeved or un·rove (-rōv'), un·reeved or un·ro·ven (-rō'vən), un·reev·ing, un·reeves. Nautical. — v. tr. To withdraw (a rope, for example) from an opening, such as a block or thimble. — v. intr. 1. To become unreeved. 2. To unreeve a rope.

un·re·flect·ing (ŭn'rī-flĕk'tīng) adj. Marked by or exhibiting a lack of serious thought or consideration: unreflecting impulses. —un're·flect'ing·ly adv.

un·re·flec·tive (ŭn'rī-flĕk'tiv) adj. Not reflective; unthinking. —un're·flec'tive·ly adv.

un·re·gen·er·ate (ŭn'rī-jĕn'ər-īt) adj. 1. a. Not spiritually renewed or reformed; not repentant. b. Sinful; dissolute. 2. a. Not reconciled to change; unreconstructed. b. Stubborn; obstinate. —un're·gen'er·a·ble adj. —un're·gen'er·a·cy (-ə-sē) n. —un're·gen'er·ate·ly adv.

un·re·hearsed (ŭn'ri-hŭrst') adj. Not rehearsed. See Synonyms at extem·poraneous.

un·re·lent·ing (ŭn'ri-lĕn'ting) adj. 1. Having or exhibiting uncompromising determination; unyielding: an unrelenting human rights worker. 2. Not diminishing in intensity, pace, or effort: an unrelenting ice storm.

—un'·re·lent'ing·ly adv.

un·re·li·a·ble (ŭn'ri-lī'ə-bəl) adj. Marked by or exhibiting a lack of reliability. —un're·li'a·bil'i·ty, un're·li'a·ble·ness n. —un're·li'a·bly adv.

un·re·lieved (ŭn'ri-lĕvd') adj. Utter; complete: unrelieved boredom.

—un're·liev'ed·ly (-lĕ'vid-lĕ) adv.

un·re·lig·ious (ŭn'ri-lĭj'əs) adj. 1. Indifferent to religion; irreligious. 2. Not related to religion.

un·re·mark·a·ble (ŭn'ri-mär'kə-bəl) adj. Lacking distinction; ordinary.

—un're·mark'a·bly adv.

un·re·marked (ŭn'ri-märkt') adj. Not noticed.

un·re·mit·ting (ŭn'ri-mĭt'ting) adj. Never slackening; persistent.

—un're·mit'ting·ly adv. —un're·mit'ting·ness n.

un·re·pent·ant (ŭn'ri-pĕn'tənt) adj. Having or exhibiting no remorse.

—un're·pent'ant·ly adv.

un·re·proved (ŭn'ri-prōvd') adj. Not rebuked for a fault or misdeed.

un·re·quit·ed (ŭn'ri-kwĭ'tĭd) adj. Not reciprocated or returned in kind: unrequited love; an unrequited injury. —un're·quit'ed·ly adv.

un·re·serve (ŭn'ri-zŭrv') n. Frankness of manner; candor.

un·re·served (ŭn'ri-zŭrvd') adj. 1. Not held back for a particular person: an unreserved seat. 2. Given without reservation; unqualified: unreserved praise.

3. Exhibiting no reserve: an unreserved grin of approval. —un're·serv'ed·ly (-zŭrv'vid-lĕ) adv. —un're·serv'ed·ness n.

un·re·spon·sive (ŭn'ri-spŏn'sĭv) adj. Exhibiting a lack of responsiveness.

—un're·spon'sive·ly adv. —un're·spon'sive·ness n.

un·rest (ŭn-rĕst', ŭn'rĕst') n. An uneasy or troubled condition: social unrest.

un·re·strained (ŭn'ri-strānd') adj. 1. Not controlled or held in check; immoderate: unrestrained exploitation of natural resources. 2. Free of constraint; spontaneous and natural: an unrestrained laugh. —un're·strain'ed·ly (-strā'nĭd-lĕ) adv. —un're·strain'ed·ness n.

un·re·straint (ŭn'ri-strānt') n. Want of or freedom from restraint.

un·rid·dle (ŭn-rĭd'l) v. tr. un·rid·dled, un·rid·dling, un·rid·dles. To solve or explain (a riddle or mystery). —un·rid'dler n.

un·ri·fled (ŭn-rĭ'fĕld) adj. Having a smooth bore. Use of a gun barrel.

un·rig (ŭn-rĭg') v. tr. un·rigged, un·rig·ging, un·rigs. Nautical. To strip (a vessel) of rigging.

un·right·eous (ŭn-rī'chəs) adj. 1. Not righteous; wicked. 2. Not right or fair; unjust. —un·right'eous·ly adv. —un·right'eous·ness n.

un·rip (ŭn-rīp') v. tr. un·ripped, un·rip·ping, un·rips. To separate or detach by ripping; rip open.

un·ripe (ŭn-rīp') adj. un·rip·er, un·rip·est. 1. Not ripe or matured; immature. 2. Not fully ready or prepared. —un·ripe'ness n.

un·ri·valed or un·ri·valled (ŭn-rī'væld) adj. Having no rival or equal; incomparable.

un·roll (ŭn-rōl') v. un·rolled, un·roll·ing, un·rolls. — v. tr. 1. To unwind and open (something rolled up). 2. To unfold and present to view; reveal. — v. intr. To become unrolled.

un·roof (ŭn-rōof', -rōof') v. tr. un·roofed, un·roof·ing, un·roofs. To remove the roof or covering of.

un·root (ŭn-rōot', -rōot') v. tr. un·root·ed, un·root·ing, un·roots. To uproot.

un·round (ŭn-round') v. tr. un·round·ed, un·round·ing, un·rounds. Linguistics. To pronounce (a sound) with the lips in a flattened or neutral position.

un·rove (ŭn-rōv') v. Nautical. A past tense of unreeve.

un·ro·ven (ŭn-rō'vən) v. Nautical. A past participle of unreeve.

UNRRA abbr. United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration.

un·ruf·fled (ŭn-rūf'æld) adj. 1. Not agitated; calm. See Synonyms at cool. 2. Regular and smooth, as the surface of water.

un·ru·ly (ŭn-rōo'lē) adj. un·ru·li·er, un·ru·li·est. Difficult or impossible to discipline, control, or rule. [Middle English unreuli : un-, not; see UN-¹ + reuli, easy to govern (from reule, rule); see RULE.] —un·ru'li·ness n.

SYNONYMS: unruly, ungovernable, intractable, refractory, recalcitrant, willful, headstrong, wayward. These adjectives all mean resistant or marked by resistance to control. Unruly implies failure to submit to rule or discipline: The little boy's parents think he is spirited, but his teacher finds him unruly. One that is ungovernable is not capable of or amenable to being governed or restrained: an ungovernable temper. Intractable refers to what is obstinate and difficult to manage or control: "Fox, as the less proud and intractable of the refractory pair, was preferred" (Macaulay). Refractory implies stubborn resistance to control or authority: as refractory as a mule. One that is recalcitrant not only resists authority but rebels against it: The university suspended the most recalcitrant demonstrators. Willful and headstrong describe one obstinately bent on having his or her own way: Willful people cannot tolerate the slightest frustration of their wishes. His headstrong daughter is destined to learn from her own mistakes. One who is wayward willfully and often perversely departs from what is desired, advised, expected, or required in order to gratify his or her own impulses or inclinations: "a lively child, who had been spoilt and indulged, and therefore was sometimes wayward” (Charlotte Brontë).

UNRWA abbr. United Nations Relief and Works Agency.

uns. abbr. Unsymmetrical.

un·sad·dle (ŭn-săd'ł) v. un·sad·dled, un·sad·dling, un·sad·dles. — v. tr.

1. To remove a saddle from. 2. To throw (a rider) from the saddle. Used of a horse. — v. intr. To remove a saddle from a horse.

un·safe (ŭn-săf') adj. un·saf·er, un·saf·est. Not safe; dangerous.

un·said (ŭn-sěd') v. Past tense and past participle of unsay. — adj. Not said, especially not uttered out loud: Their unsaid objections were almost palpable to the rest of the group.

un·san·i·tar·y (ŭn-săn'ĩ-těr'ē) adj. Not sanitary.

un·sat·is·fac·to·ry (ŭn-săt'is-făk'tə-rē) adj. Not satisfactory; inadequate.

—un·sat'is·fac·to'ri·ly adv. —un·sat'is·fac·to'ri·ness n.

un·sat·u·rate (ŭn-săch'ə-rīt) n. An unsaturated compound.

un·sat·u·rat·ed (ŭn-săch'ə-ră'tīd) adj. 1. Of or relating to a compound, especially of carbon, containing atoms that share more than one valence bond: unsaturated fats. 2. Capable of dissolving more of a solute at a given temperature.

un·sa·vor·y (ŭn-să'və-rē) adj. 1. Distasteful or disagreeable: an unsavory task.

2. Not savory: an unsavory meal. 3. Morally offensive: an unsavory scandal.

—un·sa'vor·i·ly adv. —un·sa'vor·i·ness n.

un·say (ŭn-să') v. tr. un·said (-sěd'), un·say·ing, un·says. To retract (something said).

un·say·a·ble (ŭn-să'ə-bəl) adj. Not readily spoken or expressed: unsayable fears. — n. 1. Something not readily said. 2. Something unfit to be said.

un·scathed (ŭn-skăthd') adj. Not injured or harmed: escaped the hurricane unscathed.

un·schooled (ŭn-skōold') adj. 1. Not educated or instructed; having little or no formal schooling. 2. Not the result of training; natural: an artist of unschooled talents.

un·sci·en·tif·ic (ŭn'sī-ən-tīf'ik) adj. 1. Not adhering to the principles of science. 2. Not knowledgeable about science or the scientific method.

—un'sci·en·tif'i·cal·ly adv.

un·scram·ble (ŭn-skrăm'bəl) v. tr. un·scram·bled, un·scram·bling, un·scram·bles. 1. To straighten out or disentangle (a jumble or tangle); resolve.

2. To restore (a scrambled message) to intelligible form. —un·scram'bler n.

un·screw (ŭn-skrōō') v. un·screwed, un·screw·ing, un·screws. — v. tr.

1. To take out the screw or screws from. 2. To loosen, adjust, or remove by rotating. — v. intr. To become or allow to become unscrewed.

un·script·ed (ŭn-skřip'tid) adj. Not adhering to or in accordance with a script written beforehand: "his unscripted encounters with the press" (Eleanor Clift).

un·scru·pu·lous (ŭn-skrōō'pyə-ləs) adj. Devoid of scruples; oblivious to or contemptuous of what is right or honorable. —un·scru'pu·lous·ly adv.

—un·scru'pu·lous·ness n.

un·seal (ŭn-sēl') v. tr. un·sealed, un·seal·ing, un·seals. To break or remove the seal of; open.

un·seam (ŭn-sēm') v. tr. un·seamed, un·seam·ing, un·seams. To undo the seams of.

un·search·a·ble (ŭn-sûr'chə-bəl) adj. Beyond search or investigation; inscrutable: the unsearchable ways of the gods. —un·search'a·bly adv.

un·sea·son·a·ble (ŭn-sē'zə-nə-bəl) adj. 1. Not suitable to or appropriate for the season. 2. Not characteristic of the time of year: unseasonable weather.

3. Poorly timed; inopportune. —un·sea'son·a·ble·ness n. —un·sea'son·a·bly adv.

un·sea·soned (ŭn-sē'zənd) adj. 1. Lacking experience and the knowledge gained from it; inexperienced. 2. a. Inadequately aged or seasoned; not ripe or mature: unseasoned wood. b. Having no added seasoning: unseasoned meat and carrots.

un·seat (ŭn-sēt') v. tr. un·seat·ed, un·seat·ing, un·seats. 1. To remove from a seat, especially from a saddle. 2. To dislodge from a location or position, especially to remove from office.

un·seem·ly (ŭn-sēm'lē) adj. un·seem·li·er, un·seem·li·est. 1. Not in accord with accepted standards of good taste; grossly improper. See Synonyms at improper. 2. Not suited to the circumstances; inappropriate. — adv. In an improper or inappropriate manner. —un·seem'li·ness n.

un·seen (ŭn-sēn') adj. 1. Not directly evident; invisible. 2. Recognized or grasped without previous study; understood or done as soon as seen.

un·seg·re·gat·ed (ŭn-sĕg'rĭ-gā'tid) adj. Not segregated, especially not racially segregated.

un·se·lec·tive (ŭn'sĭ-lĕk'tĭv) adj. 1. Not selective; indiscriminate. 2. Marked by random selection.

un·self·cons·cious or un·self·cons·cious (ŭn'sĕlf-kōn'shəs) adj. Not self-conscious; natural and genuine. —un'self·cons'cious·ly adv. —un'self·con'scious·ness n.

un·sel·fish (ŭn-sĕl'fĭsh) adj. Generous or altruistic. —un·sel'fish·ly adv. —un·sel'fish·ness n.

un·sell (ŭn-sĕl') v. tr. un·sold (-sōld'), un·sell·ing, un·sells. To persuade not to believe in the advisability, worth, or truth of something.

un·set (ŭn-sĕt') adj. 1. Not yet firm or solidified: unset gelatin; unset cement.

2. Not mounted in a setting: an unset gem.

un·set·tle (ŭn-sět'l) v. un·set·tled, un·set·tling, un·set·tles. — v. tr.

1. To displace from a settled condition; disrupt. 2. To make uneasy; disturb. — v. intr. To become unsettled. —un·set'tle·ment n. —un·set'tling·ly adv.

un·set·tled (ŭn-sět'ld) adj. 1. Not in a state of order or calmness; disturbed: these unsettled times. 2. Likely to change or vary; variable: unsettled weather.

3. a. Not determined or resolved: an unsettled issue. b. Uncertain or doubtful: were still unsettled with respect to their future plans. 4. Not paid or adjusted; outstanding: an unsettled bill. 5. Not populated; uninhabited: unsettled territory.

6. Not fixed or established: an unsettled lifestyle.

un·sex (ŭn-sěks') v. tr. un·sexed, un·sex·ing, un·sex·es. 1. To deprive of sexual capacity or sexual attributes. 2. To castrate.

un·shack·le (ŭn-shăk'lə) v. tr. un·shack·led, un·shack·ling, un·shack·les.
To free from or as if from shackles.

un·shak·a·ble (ŭn-shā'kə-bəl) adj. Incapable of being shaken: unshakable faith. —un·shak'a·bly adv.

un·shaped (ŭn-shāpt') adj. 1. Not shaped or formed. See Synonyms at shapeless. 2. Imperfectly shaped or formed.

un·shap·en (ŭn-shā'pən) adj. Unshaped.

un·sheathe (ŭn-shēth') v. tr. un·sheathed, un·sheath·ing, un·sheathes.
To draw from or as if from a sheath or scabbard.

un·shell (ŭn-shě'l') v. tr. un·shelled, un·shell·ing, un·shells. To remove from a shell.

un·shift (ŭn-shift') v. intr. un·shift·ed, un·shift·ing, un·shifts. To release the shift key on a typewriter or computer keyboard.

un·ship (ŭn-shīp') v. un·shipped, un·ship·ping, un·ships. — v. tr. Nautical. 1. To unload from a ship; discharge. 2. To remove (a piece of gear) from its proper place; detach: unship an oar. — v. intr. To become or be capable of becoming removed or detached.

un·shod (ŭn-shöd') adj. Not having or wearing shoes or a shoe: unshod horses.

un·sight·ed (ŭn-sī'tīd) adj. Having no sight for aiming. Used of a firearm.

un·sight·ly (ŭn-sīt'lē) adj. un·sight·li·er, un·sight·li·est. Unpleasant or offensive to look at; unattractive. See Synonyms at ugly. —un'sight/li·ness n.

un·skilled (ŭn-skīld') adj. 1. Lacking skill or technical training: unskilled laborers. 2. Requiring no training or skill: unskilled jobs; unskilled labor.

3. Exhibiting a lack of skill; inexpert: an unskilled painting.

un·skill·ful (ŭn-skīl'fəl) adj. 1. Unskilled; inexpert. 2. Obsolete. Ignorant. —un·skill'ful·ly adv. —un'skill'ful·ness n.

un·sling (ŭn-slīng') v. tr. un·slung (-slŭng'), un·sling·ing, un·slings. 1. To remove from a sling or a slung position: unslung a backpack. 2. Nautical. To remove the slings of (a yard, for example).

un·snag (ŭn-snăg') v. tr. un·snagged, un·snag·ging, un·snags. To free of snags: “unsnags fine legal problems for the lawyers presenting their cases” (Savvy).

un·snap (ŭn-snăp') v. tr. un·snapped, un·snap·ping, un·snaps. To loosen, unfasten, or free by or as if by undoing snaps.

un·snarl (ŭn-snărl') v. tr. un·snarled, un·snarl·ing, un·snarls. To free of snarls; disentangle.

un·so·cia·ble (ŭn-sō'shə-bəl) adj. 1. Not disposed to seek the company of others; reserved. 2. Not congenial; incompatible. 3. Not conducive to social exchange: an unsociable atmosphere. —un·so'cia·bil'i·ty, un·so'cia·ble·ness n. —un·so'cia·bly adv.

un·so·cial (ŭn-sō'shəl) adj. Having or showing a lack of desire for the company of others. —un·so'cial·ly adv.

un·sold (ŭn-söld') v. Past tense of unsell.

un·so·lic·it·ed (ŭn'sə-līs'ī-tīd) adj. Not looked for or requested; unsought: an unsolicited manuscript; unsolicited opinions.

un·so·phis·ti·cat·ed (ŭn'sə-fīs'tī-kā'tīd) adj. Not sophisticated. See Synonyms at naive. —un'so·phis'ti·cat'ed·ly adv.

—un'so·phis'ti·cat'ed·ness n. —un'so·phis'ti·ca'tion n.

un·sought (ŭn-sôt', ŭn'sôt') adj. Not looked for or requested: received some unsought advice.

un·sound (ŭn-sound') adj. un·sound·er, un·sound·est. 1. Not dependably strong or solid. 2. Not physically or mentally healthy. 3. Not true or logically valid; fallacious: an unsound conclusion. —un·sound'ly adv. —un·sound'·ness n.

un·spar·ing (ŭn-spâr'ing) adj. 1. Unmerciful; severe: an unsparing superior officer; unsparing criticism. 2. Not frugal; generous. —un·spar'ing·ly adv. —un·spar'ing·ness n.

un·speak (ŭn-spēk') v. tr. un·spoke (-spōk'), un·spo·ken (-spō'kən), un·speak·ing, un·speaks. Obsolete. To retract (something spoken); unsay.

un·speak·a·ble (ŭn-spē'kə-bəl) adj. 1. Beyond description; inexpressible: unspeakable happiness. 2. Inexpressibly bad or objectionable: unspeakable poverty. 3. Not to be spoken: unspeakable thoughts; an unspeakable word.

—un·speak'a·ble·ness n. —un·speak'a·bly adv.

SYNONYMS: unspeakable, indefinable, indescribable, ineffable, inexpressible, unutterable. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “defying expression or description”: unspeakable misery; indefinable yearnings; indescribable beauty; ineffable ecstasy; inexpressible anguish; unutterable contempt.

un·spe·cial·ized (ŭn-spësh'ə-līzd') adj. Having no special function; without specialty or specialization.

un·sphere (ŭn-sfir') v. tr. un-sphered, un-spher-ing, un-spheres. To remove from a sphere or position in the heavens.

un·spoke (ŭn-spōk') v. Past tense of unspeak.

un·spo·ken (ŭn-spō'kən) v. Past participle of unspeak. — adj. Not orally articulated: unspoken fears of failure.

un·sports·man·like (ŭn-spōrts'mən-lik', -spōrts'-) adj. Not displaying the qualities or behavior befitting a good sport.

un·spot·ted (ŭn-spōt'ɪd) adj. 1. Having no spots. 2. Morally upright.
—un·spot'ted·ness n.

un·sta·ble (ŭn-stā'bəl) adj. un·sta·bler, un·sta·blest. 1. a. Tending strongly to change: unstable weather. b. Not constant; fluctuating: unstable vital signs.

2. a. Fickle. b. Lacking control of one's emotions; characterized by unpredictable behavior. 3. Not firmly placed; unsteady: an unstable ladder. 4. Chemistry. a. Decomposing readily. b. Highly or violently reactive. 5. Physics. a. Decaying with relatively short lifetime. Used of subatomic particles. b. Radioactive.

—un·sta'ble·ness n. —un·sta'bly adv.

un·stead·y (ŭn-stēd'ē) adj. un·stead·i·er, un·stead·i·est. 1. Not firm, solid, or securely in place; unstable. 2. Marked by fluctuation or changeableness; inconstant: an unsteady market. 3. Not even or regular; wavering: an unsteady voice. — v. tr. un·stead·ied (-ēd), un·stead·y·ing, un·stead·ies (-ēz). To cause to become unsteady. —un·stead'i·ly adv. —un·stead'i·ness n.

un·steel (ŭn-stēl') v. tr. un·steeled, un·steel-ing, un·steels. To make less obdurate or hardhearted; disarm.

un·step (ŭn-stēp') v. tr. un·stepped, un·step-ping, un·steps. Nautical. To remove (a mast) from a step.

un·stick (ŭn-stīk') v. tr. un·stuck (-stūk'), un·stick-ing, un·sticks. To free from a condition of adhesion: couldn't unstick the window.

un·stint-ing (ŭn-stīn'tīng) adj. Bestowed liberally: unstinting approval.
—un·stint'ing·ly adv.

un·stop (ŭn-stōp') v. tr. un·stopped, un·stop-ping, un·stops. 1. To remove a stopper from. 2. To remove an obstruction from; open. 3. Music. To pull out the stops of (a pipe organ).

un·stop·pa·ble (ŭn-stōp'ə-bəl) adj. Difficult or impossible to preclude or stop: "This movement toward freedom is natural and unstoppable and good" (Pauline Kael). —un·stop'pa·bly adv.

un·stopped (ŭn-stōpt') adj. 1. Not stopped: an era of unstopped progress in medicine. 2. Linguistics. Capable of being prolonged, as the consonants z and l.

un·strap (ŭn-strāp') v. tr. un·strapped, un·strap-ping, un·straps. To loosen or remove a strap on or from.

un·strat·i·fied (ŭn-strāt'ə-fīd') adj. Lacking definite layers: unstratified rock.

un·stressed (ÿn-strĕst') adj. 1. Linguistics. Not stressed or accented: an unstressed syllable in a word. 2. Not exposed or subjected to stress.

un·stri·at·ed (ÿn-strĭ'ā'tĭd) adj. Lacking striations; smooth-textured.

un·string (ÿn-strĭng') v. tr. un·strung (-strĭng'), un·string·ing, un·strings. 1. To remove from a string. 2. To unfasten or loosen the strings of. 3. To deprive of composure or emotional stability; unnerve.

un·struc·tured (ÿn-strŭk'chĕrd) adj. 1. Lacking a definite structure or organization; not formally organized or systematized. 2. Not regulated or regimented: an unstructured environment. 3. Psychology. Having no intrinsic or objective meaning; meaningful by subjective interpretation only: unstructured inkblot tests.

un·strung (ÿn-strĭng') v. Past tense and past participle of unstring. — adj. 1. Having a string or strings loosened or removed. 2. Emotionally upset.

un·stuck (ÿn-stŭk') v. Past tense and past participle of unstick. — adj. 1. Freed from a condition of adhesion. 2. a. Thrown into a state of disorder or confusion; undone. b. Slang. Emotionally upset or unbalanced.

un·stud·ied (ÿn-stŭd'ĕd) adj. 1. Not contrived for effect; natural: unstudied grace. 2. Not gained by study or instruction: unstudied talent.

un·sub·stan·tial (ÿn'sĕb-stĕn'shĕl) adj. 1. Lacking material substance; insubstantial. 2. Lacking firmness or strength; flimsy. 3. Lacking basis in fact. — un'sub·stan'ti·al'i·ty (-shĕ-ĕl'ĭ-tĕ) n. — un'sub·stan'tial·ly adv.

un·suc·cess (ÿn'sĕk-sĕs') n. Failure to achieve a desired end.

un·suc·cess·ful (ÿn'sĕk-sĕs'fĕl) adj. 1. Having an unfavorable outcome: an unsuccessful business venture. 2. Failing to attain something desired or intended: an unsuccessful entrepreneur. — un'suc·cess'ful·ly adv. — un'suc·cess'ful·ness n.

un·suit·a·ble (ÿn-sŭo'tĕ-bĕl) adj. Not appropriate: unsuitable attire. — un·suit'a·bil'i·ty, un·suit'a·ble·ness n. — un·suit'a·bly adv.

un·sung (ÿn-sŭng') adj. 1. Not honored or praised; uncelebrated: a war won by unsung heroes. 2. Music. Not sung: unsung hymns.

un·sus·cep·ti·ble (ÿn'sĕ-sĕp'tĕ-bĕl) adj. Not susceptible to or admitting of: unsusceptible to illegal entry.

un·sus·pect·ed (ÿn'sĕ-spĕk'tĭd) adj. 1. Not under suspicion. 2. Not known to exist: an unsuspected disease. — un'sus·pect'ed·ly adv.

un·sus·pect·ing (ÿn'sĕ-spĕk'tĭng) adj. Not suspicious; trusting. — un'sus·pect'ing·ly adv.

un·swathe (ÿn-swŏth', -swŏth', -swĕth') v. tr. un·swathed, un·swath·ing, un·swathes. To remove the swathes or bindings from.

un·swear (ÿn-swĕr') v. un·swore (-swŏr', -swŏr'), un·sworn (-swŏrn', -swŏrn'), un·swear·ing, un·swears. Archaic. — v. tr. To retract (an oath), often by swearing another oath. — v. intr. To recant or retract something sworn.

un·swerv·ing (ũn-swûr'vĩng) adj. 1. Not veering or turning aside: “a path... so straight and unswerving” (Mary Wilkins Freeman). 2. Constant; steady: unswerving allegiance; unswerving devotion. —un·swerv'ing·ly adv.

un·swore (ũn-swôr', -swôr') v. Past tense of unswear.

un·sworn (ũn-swôrn', -swôrn') v. Past participle of unswear. — adj. Not having been asserted as true under oath: unsworn statements by witnesses.

un·sym·met·ri·cal (ũn'sĩ-mět'ri-kəl) adj. Abbr. uns. Asymmetrical. —un'sym·met'ri·cal·ly adv.

un·tan·gle (ũn-tǎng'gəl) v. tr. un·tan·gled, un·tan·gling, un·tan·gles.

1. To free from a tangle; disentangle. See Synonyms at extricate. 2. To straighten out (something puzzling or complicated); clarify or resolve.

un·tapped (ũn-tǎpt') adj. 1. Not having been tapped: an untapped cask of wine. 2. Not utilized: untapped resources.

un·taught (ũn-tôt') adj. 1. Not instructed; ignorant. See Synonyms at ignorant. 2. Not acquired by instruction; natural.

un·teach (ũn-tēch') v. tr. un·taught (-tôt'), un·teach·ing, un·teach·es.

1. To cause to forget or unlearn something. 2. To teach the opposite or contrary of (something previously taught).

un·ten·a·ble (ũn-těn'ə-bəl) adj. 1. Being such that defense or maintenance is impossible: an untenable position. 2. Being such that occupation or habitation is impossible: untenable quarters. —un·ten'a·bil'i·ty, un·ten'a·ble·ness n. —un·ten'a·bly adv.

Un·ter·mey·er (ũn'tər-mī'ər), Louis. 1885-1977. American writer and editor of poetry anthologies, including Modern American Poetry (first published 1919), which provided a medium for both established and emerging poets.

un·thank·ful (ũn-thǎngk'fəl) adj. 1. Not thankful; ungrateful. 2. Not drawing thanks; unwelcome. —un·thank'ful·ly adv. —un·thank'ful·ness n.

un·think (ũn-thĩngk') v. tr. un·thought (-thôt'), un·think·ing, un·thinks. To dismiss from the mind; disregard.

un·think·a·ble (ũn-thĩngk'kə-bəl) adj. 1. Impossible to imagine; inconceivable: an unthinkable amount of money. 2. Contrary to what is plausible or probable: That this project would achieve ultimate success was unthinkable at the time. 3. Not to be thought of or considered; out of the question: Raising taxes was politically unthinkable. —un·think'a·bil'i·ty, un·think'a·ble·ness n. —un·think'a·bly adv.

un·think·ing (ũn'thĩng'kĩng) adj. 1. Not taking due thought; thoughtless or heedless: proceeded, unthinking, into the trap. 2. Exhibiting a lack of thought: unthinking bravado. 3. Incapable of the power of thought. —un·think'ing·ly adv. —un·think'ing·ness n.

un·thought (ŭn-thôŧ') v. Past tense and past participle of unthink.

un·thread (ŭn-thrĕd') v. tr. un·thread·ed, un·thread·ing, un·threads.

1. To draw out the thread from. 2. To find one's way out of (a labyrinth, for example).

un·throne (ŭn-thrōn') v. tr. un·throned, un·thron·ing, un·thrones. To depose from or as if from a throne.

un·ti·dy (ŭn-tī'dĕ) adj. un·ti·di·er, un·ti·di·est. 1. Not neat and tidy; sloppy.

2. Disorderly and unorganized: untidy financial affairs. —un·ti·di·ly adv.

—un·ti·di·ness n.

un·tie (ŭn-tī') v. un·tied, un·ty·ing (-tī'ing), un·ties. — v. tr. 1. To undo or loosen (a knot or something knotted). 2. To free from something that binds or restrains: untie a horse from a tree. 3. To straighten out (difficulties, for example); resolve. — v. intr. To become untied.

un·til (ŭn-tĭl') prep. 1. Up to the time of: We danced until dawn. 2. Before (a specified time): She can't leave until Friday. 3. Scots. Unto; to. — conj. 1. Up to the time that: We walked until it got dark. 2. Before: You cannot leave until your work is finished. 3. To the point or extent that: I talked until I was hoarse. See Usage Note at till². [Middle English : un-, up to (from Old Norse und); see ant- in Appendix + til, till; see TILL².]

un·time·ly (ŭn-tīm'lē) adj. un·time·li·er, un·time·li·est. 1. Occurring or done at an inappropriate time; inopportune. 2. Occurring too soon; premature: an untimely death. — adv. 1. Inopportunately. 2. Prematurely.

—un·time·li·ness n.

un·tir·ing (ŭn-tĭr'ing) adj. 1. Not tiring; tireless. 2. Not ceasing despite fatigue or frustration; indefatigable: untiring efforts. See Synonyms at tireless.

—un·tir·ing·ly adv.

un·ti·tled (ŭn-tĭt'ld) adj. 1. Not named: an untitled story. 2. Not holding a title, as of nobility. 3. Having no right or claim.

un·to (ŭn'tō) prep. 1. To. 2. Until: a fast unto death. 3. By: a place unto itself, quite unlike its surroundings. [Middle English : un-, up to; see UNTIL + to, to; see TO.]

un·told (ŭn-tōld') adj. 1. Not told or revealed: untold secrets. 2. Beyond description or enumeration: untold suffering.

un·touch·a·ble (ŭn-tŭch'ə-bəl) adj. 1. Not to be touched. 2. Out of reach; unobtainable. 3. Being beyond the reach of criticism, impeachment, or attack.

4. Loathsome or unpleasant to the touch. — n. also Untouchable Hinduism.

1. The class, comprising numerous subclasses, that is excluded from and considered ritually unclean and defiling by the four Hindu classes. 2. A member of this class. —un·touch·a·bil·i·ty n. —un·touch·a·bly adv.

un·to·ward (ŭn-tōrd', -tōrd') adj. 1. Not favorable; unpropitious.

2. Troublesome; adverse: an untoward incident. 3. Hard to guide or control; unruly. 4. Improper; unseemly. 5. Archaic. Awkward. —un-to-ward/ly adv.

—un-to-ward/ness n.

un-tram-meled (ŭn-trăm'əld) adj. Not limited or restricted; unrestrained.

un-trav-eled (ŭn-trăv'əld) adj. 1. Not traveled on: untraveled back roads.

2. a. Not having traveled. b. Provincial; narrow-minded.

un-tread (ŭn-trəd') v. tr. un-trod (-tröd'), un-trod-den (-tröd'n) or un-trod, un-tread-ing, un-treads. Archaic. To go back over (one's course); retrace.

un-tried (ŭn-trīd') adj. 1. Not attempted, tested, or proved. 2. Law. Not tried in court.

un-trod (ŭn-tröd') v. Past tense and a past participle of untread.

un-trod-den (ŭn-tröd'n) v. A past participle of untread.

un-trou-bled (ŭn-trüb'əld) adj. 1. Not disturbed or distracted. 2. Without trouble or disturbance; calm: untroubled sleep. —un-trou/bled-ness n.

un-true (ŭn-trōo') adj. un-tru-er, un-tru-est. 1. Contrary to fact; false.

2. Deviating from a standard; not straight, even, level, or exact. 3. Disloyal; unfaithful. —un-tru/ly adv.

un-truss (ŭn-trūs') v. un-trussed, un-truss-ing, un-truss-es. Archaic. — v. tr. 1. To unfasten; undo. 2. To undress. — v. intr. To remove one's clothes, especially one's breeches.

un-truth (ŭn-trōoth') n. 1. Something untrue; a lie. 2. The condition of being false; lack of truth. 3. Archaic. Unfaithfulness.

un-truth-ful (ŭn-trōoth'fəl) adj. 1. Contrary to truth. 2. Given to falsehood; mendacious. See Synonyms at dishonest. —un-truth/ful-ly adv.

—un-truth/ful-ness n.

un-tu-tored (ŭn-tōo'tərd, -tyoo'-) adj. 1. Having had no formal education or instruction. See Synonyms at ignorant. 2. Unsophisticated; unrefined.

un-twine (ŭn-twīn') v. un-twined, un-twin-ing, un-twines. — v. tr.

1. To separate the twisted strands of: untwine a rope. 2. To disentangle. — v. intr. To become untwined.

un-twist (ŭn-twīst') v. un-twist-ed, un-twist-ing, un-twists. — v. tr. To loosen or separate (something twisted) by turning in the opposite direction; unwind. — v. intr. To become untwisted.

un-ty-ing (ŭn-tī'ing) v. Present participle of untie.

un-used (ŭn-yōozd', ŭn-yōost') adj. 1. Not in use or put to use. 2. Never having been used. 3. Not accustomed: unused to city traffic.

un-u-su-al (ŭn-yōo'zhōo-əl) adj. Not usual, common, or ordinary.

—un-u/su-al-ly adv. —un-u/su-al-ness n.

un-ut-ter-a-ble (ŭn-üt'ər-ə-bəl) adj. 1. That cannot or must not be uttered or expressed: "I burned in the unutterable beauty of being alive" (John Peale Bishop). See Synonyms at unspeakable. 2. Being such that pronunciation is impossible:

See Synonyms at unspeakable. 2. Being such that pronunciation is impossible:

unutterable consonant clusters. —un·ut'ter·a·ble·ness n. —un·ut'ter·a·bly adv.

un·val·ued (ŭn-vāl'yōōd) adj. 1. Not prized or valued; unappreciated. 2. Not appraised or assayed: an unvalued gemstone. 3. Obsolete. Inestimable; invaluable.

un·var·nished (ŭn'vār'nisht) adj. 1. Not coated with varnish: unvarnished floors. 2. Stated or otherwise presented without any effort to soften or disguise; plain: the unvarnished truth.

un·veil (ŭn-vāl') v. un·veiled, un·veil·ing, un·veils. — v. tr. 1. To remove a veil or covering from. 2. To disclose; reveal. — v. intr. 1. To take off one's veil. 2. To reveal oneself.

un·voice (ŭn-vois') v. tr. un·voiced, un·voic·ing, un·voic·es. Linguistics. To devoice.

un·voiced (ŭn-voist') adj. 1. Not expressed or uttered: unvoiced fears.

2. Linguistics. Voiceless: unvoiced consonants.

un·war·rant·a·ble (ŭn-wōr'ən-tə-bəl, -wōr'-) adj. Not justifiable; inexcusable: unwarrantable criticism. —un'war'rant·a·bly adv.

un·war·rant·ed (ŭn-wōr'ən-tīd, -wōr'-) adj. Having no justification; groundless: unwarranted interference. See Synonyms at baseless.

un·war·y (ŭn-wâr'ē) adj. un·war·i·er, un·war·i·est. Not alert to danger or deception. —un·war'i·ly adv. —un·war'i·ness n.

un·washed (ŭn-wōsht', -wōsht') adj. 1. Not washed; unclean. 2. Plebeian: the unwashed masses.

un·wea·ried (ŭn-wîr'ēd) adj. 1. Not tired. 2. Never wearying; tireless. See Synonyms at tireless. —un·wea'ried·ly adv.

un·wed (ŭn-wēd') adj. Not married.

un·well (ŭn-wēl') adj. 1. Being in poor health; sick. 2. Undergoing a menstrual cycle.

un·wept (ŭn-wēpt') adj. 1. Not mourned or wept for: the unwept dead. 2. Not yet shed: unwept tears.

un·whole·some (ŭn-hōl'səm) adj. 1. Injurious to physical, mental, or moral health; unhealthy. 2. Suggestive of disease or degeneracy: an unwholesome pallor. 3. Offensive or loathsome. —un·whole'some·ly adv. —un·whole'some·ness n.

un·wield·y (ŭn-wēl'dē) adj. un·wield·i·er, un·wield·i·est. 1. Difficult to carry or manage because of bulk or shape: an unwieldy parcel. 2. Clumsy; ungainly. —un·wield'i·ly adv. —un·wield'i·ness n.

un·willed (ŭn-wīld') adj. Involuntary; spontaneous.

un·will·ing (ŭn-wīl'ing) adj. 1. Not willing; hesitant or loath: unwilling to face facts. 2. Done, given, or said reluctantly: unwilling consent. —un·will'ing·ly adv. —un·will'ing·ness n.

un·wind (ŭn-wīnd') v. un·wound (-wound'), un·wind·ing, un·winds. — v. tr. 1. To reverse the winding or twisting of: unwind a ball of yarn. 2. To separate the tangled parts of; disentangle. 3. To free (someone) of nervous tension or pent-up energy. — v. intr. 1. To become unwound. 2. To become free of nervous tension; relax: liked to unwind with a cocktail before dinner.

un·wis·dom (ŭn-wīz'dəm) n. Lack of wisdom; imprudence or recklessness.

un·wise (ŭn-wīz') adj. un·wis·er, un·wis·est. Lacking or exhibiting a lack of wisdom; foolish or imprudent: an unwise decision. — un·wise'ly adv.

un·wish (ŭn-wīsh') v. tr. un·wished, un·wish·ing, un·wish·es. 1. To retract a wish for. 2. Obsolete. To wish out of existence.

un·wit·ting (ŭn-wīt'ing) adj. 1. Not knowing; unaware: an unwitting subject in an experiment. 2. Not intended; unintentional: an unwitting admission of guilt. [Middle English : un-, not; see UN-¹ + witting, present participle of witten, to know (from Old English witan); see weid- in Appendix.] — un·wit'ting·ly adv.

un·wont·ed (ŭn-wôn'tīd, -wōn'-, -wŭn'-) adj. 1. Not habitual or ordinary; unusual: "Her unwonted breach of delicacy... perplexed him" (George Meredith). 2. Not accustomed; unused. — un·wont'ed·ly adv. — un·wont'ed·ness n.

un·work·a·ble (ŭn-wŭr'kə-bəl) adj. Not workable, especially not capable of being put into practice successfully; not practicable: an unworkable scheme. — un·work'a·bil'i·ty, un·work'a·ble·ness n. — un·work'a·bly adv.

un·world·ly (ŭn-wŭrld'lē) adj. un·world·li·er, un·world·li·est. 1. Not of this world; spiritual. 2. Concerned with matters of the spirit or soul. 3. Not wise to the ways of the world; naive: "This now is the story of an unworldly young scientist" (John Simon). — un·world'li·ness n.

un·worn (ŭn-wōrn', -wōrn') adj. 1. Not worn out or worn away. 2. Not worn before; new. 3. Not stale or overused; fresh.

un·wor·thy (ŭn-wŭr'thē) adj. un·wor·thi·er, un·wor·thi·est.

1. a. Insufficient in worth; undeserving: a bad plan unworthy of our consideration. b. Lacking value or merit; worthless. 2. Not suiting or befitting: "The acquaintances she had already formed were unworthy of her" (Jane Austen).

3. Vile; despicable. — un·wor'thi·ly adv. — un·wor'thi·ness n.

un·wound (ŭn-wound') v. Past tense and past participle of unwind.

un·wrap (ŭn-răp') v. tr. intr. un·wrapped, un·wrap·ping, un·wraps. To remove the wrapping or wrappings from or become unwrapped.

un·writ·ten (ŭn-rīt'n) adj. 1. Not written or recorded: an unwritten agreement between friends. 2. Having authority based on custom, tradition, or usage rather than documentation: an unwritten law. 3. Not written on; blank.

un·yield·ing (ŭn-yēl'ding) adj. 1. Not bending; inflexible. 2. Not giving way to pressure or persuasion; obdurate. — un·yield'ing·ly adv. — un·yield'ing·ness n.

un-yoke (ŭn-yōk') v. un-yoked, un-yok-ing, un-yokes. — v. tr. 1. To release from or as if from a yoke. 2. To separate; disjoin. — v. intr. 1. To remove a yoke. 2. Archaic. To stop working.

un-zip (ŭn-zĭp') v. tr. intr. un-zipped, un-zip-ping, un-zips. To open or unfasten by means of a zipper or become unzipped.

up (ŭp) adv. 1. a. In or to a higher position: looking up. b. In a direction opposite to the center of the earth or a comparable gravitational center: up from the lunar surface. 2. In or to an upright position: sat up in bed. 3. a. Above a surface: coming up for air. b. So as to detach or unearth: pulling up weeds. c. Above the horizon: as the sun came up. 4. Into view or existence: draw up a will.

5. Into consideration: take up a new topic. 6. In or toward a position conventionally regarded as higher, as on a scale, chart, or map: temperatures heading up; up in Canada. 7. To or at a higher price: stocks that are going up. 8. So as to advance, increase, or improve: Our spirits went up. 9. With or to a greater intensity, pitch, or volume: turn the sound up. 10. Into a state of excitement or turbulence: stir up; rouse up. 11. Completely; entirely: drank it up in a gulp; fastened up the coat. 12. Used as an intensifier of the action of a verb: typed up a list.

13. So as to approach; near: came up and kissed me. 14. To a stop: pulled up in front of the station. 15. Each; apiece: The score was tied at 11 up. 16. Apart; into pieces: tore it up. 17. Nautical. To windward. — adj. 1. Being above a former position or level; higher: My grades are up. The pressure is up. 2. a. Out of bed: was up by seven. b. Standing; erect. c. Facing upward: two cards up, one down; the up side of a tossed coin. 3. Raised; lifted: a switch in the up position.

4. Moving or directed upward: an up elevator. 5. a. Marked by increased excitement or agitation; aroused: Our fighting spirit was up. b. Informal. Cheerful; optimistic; upbeat. c. Slang. Happily excited; euphoric: After receiving the award, the performer was really up. 6. Informal. Taking place; going on: wondered what was up back home. 7. Being considered; under study: a contract that is up for renewal. 8. Running as a candidate. 9. On trial; charged: The defendant is up for manslaughter. 10. Having been finished; over: Your time is up. 11. Informal.

a. Prepared; ready: had to be up for the game. b. Well informed; abreast: not up on sports. 12. Functioning or capable of functioning normally; operational: Their computers are now up. 13. Sports. Being ahead of one's opponent: up two strokes in golf. 14. Baseball. At bat. 15. As a bet; at stake. 16. Nautical. Bound; headed: a freighter up for Panama. — prep. 1. From a lower to or toward a higher point on: up the hill. 2. Toward or at a point farther along: two miles up the road. 3. In a direction toward the source of: up the Mississippi. 4. Nautical. Against: up the wind. — n. 1. An upward slope; a rise. 2. An upward movement or trend. 3. Slang. A feeling of excitement or euphoria. — v. upped, up-ping, ups. — v. tr. 1. To increase: upped their fees; upping our output.

2. To raise to a higher level, especially to promote to a higher position. — v.

intr. 1. To get up; rise. 2. Informal. To act suddenly or unexpectedly: “She upped and perjured her immortal soul” (Margery Allingham). —idioms. on the up-and-up (or on the up and up). Informal. Open and honest. up against. Confronted with; facing: up against a strong opponent. up to. 3. Occupied with, especially devising or scheming: a prowler up to no good. 4. Able to do or deal with: didn’t feel up to a long drive. 5. Dependent on: The success of this project is up to us. 6. a. As long as: allowed up to two hours to finish the test. b. As many as: seed that yields up to 300 bushels per acre. [Middle English up, upward, and uppe, on high both from Old English. See upo in Appendix.]

UP abbr. Underproof.

up. abbr. Upper.

up- pref. 1. Up; upward: upheave. 2. Upper: upland. [Middle English, from Old English ūp-, upp-. See upo in Appendix.]

up-and-com-ing (ʊp’ən-kŭm’ɪŋ) adj. Showing signs of advancement and ambitious development: an up-and-coming executive; an up-and-coming neighborhood. —up’-and-com’er n.

up-and-down (ʊp’ən-doun’) adj. 1. Characterized by or exhibiting an alternating upward and downward movement. 2. Variable; changeable. 3. Vertical.

U-pan-i-shad (ōō-păn’ə-shăd’, ōō-pă’nī-shăd’) n. Any of a group of philosophical treatises contributing to the theology of ancient Hinduism, elaborating on the earlier Vedas. [Sanskrit upanīṣad: upa, under, near; see upo in Appendix + ni-, down + sīdati, sad-, he sits; see sed- in Appendix.] —U-pan’i-shad’ic adj.

u-pas (yōō’pəs) n. 1. A deciduous tree (Antiaris toxicaria) of tropical Africa and Asia that yields a latex used as an arrow poison. 2. The poison obtained from this tree or from similar trees. [Malay (pōhun) upas, poison (tree), of Javanese origin.]

up-beat (ʊp’bēt’) n. Music. An unaccented beat, especially the last beat of a measure. — adj. Informal. 1. Optimistic: an upbeat business forecast. 2. Happy; cheerful.

up-bow (ʊp’bō’) n. Music. A stroke performed on a stringed instrument in which the bow is moved across the strings from its tip to its heel.

up-braid (ʊp-brād’) v. tr. up-braid-ed, up-braid-ing, up-braids. To reprove sharply; reproach. See Synonyms at scold. [Middle English upbreiden, from Old English ūpbrēdan, to bring forward as a ground for censure: ūp-, up- + bregdan, to turn, lay hold of.] —up-braid’er n. —up-braid’ing-ly adv.

up-bring-ing (ʊp’brɪŋ’ɪŋ) n. The rearing and training received during childhood.

up-build (ʊp-bɪld’) v. tr. up-built (-bɪlt’), up-build-ing, up-builds. To build up; increase or enlarge: sand dunes that were upbuilt by the wind. —up-build’er n.

UPC abbr. Universal Product Code.

up·cast (ʊp'kăst') adj. Directed or thrown upward: upcast volcanic ash. — n.

1. Something cast upward. 2. A ventilating shaft, as in a mine.

up·chuck (ʊp'chük') v. tr. intr. up·chucked, up·chuck·ing, up·chucks.

Slang. To vomit or experience vomiting.

up·close (ʊp'klōs') adj. Slang. 1. Being at very close range: “his up-close coverage of the... hostage drama” (Time). 2. Exhibiting or providing great detail and depth of coverage because of close scrutiny: “up-close glimpses of the big money, big deals, and big decisions of America’s entrepreneurial giants” (Harvard Business Review).

up·com·ing (ʊp'kūm'ɪŋ) adj. Occurring soon; forthcoming.

up·coun·try (ʊp'kūn'trē) n. An inland or upland region of a country. — adj.

Of, located in, or coming from the upcountry. — adv. (also ʊp-kūn'trē) In, to, or toward the upcountry.

up·date (ʊp-dāt') v. tr. up·dat·ed, up·dat·ing, up·dates. To bring up to date: update a textbook; update the files. — n. (ʊp'dāt') 1. Information that updates. 2. The act or an instance of bringing up to date.

Up·dike (ʊp'dīk'), John Hoyer. Born 1932. American writer particularly known for his tragicomic novels, such as Rabbit, Run (1960) and Rabbit at Rest (1990), which concern the trials of middle-class American suburbanites.

up·draft (ʊp'drăft', -drăft') n. An upward current of air.

up·end (ʊp-ënd') v. up·end·ed, up·end·ing, up·ends. — v. tr. 1. To stand, set, or turn on one end: upend an oblong box. 2. To overturn or overthrow. — v. intr. To be upended.

up·front or up·front (ʊp'frʌnt') adj. Informal. 1. Straightforward; frank: “She is very up-front” (Ronald Ferguson). 2. Paid or due in advance: up-front cash. — up'front' adv. — up'-front'ness n.

up·grade (ʊp'grād') v. up·grad·ed, up·grad·ing, up·grades. — v. tr.

1. To raise to a higher grade or standard: upgrading their military defenses. 2. To improve the quality of (livestock) by selective breeding for desired characteristics. — v. intr. To exchange a possession for one of greater value or quality; trade up. — n. 1. The act or instance of upgrading. 2. Something that upgrades. 3. An upward incline. — adv. & adj. Uphill. — idiom. on the upgrade. Improving or progressing.

up·growth (ʊp'grōth') n. 1. The process of growing upward. 2. Upward development.

up·heav·al (ʊp-hē'vəl) n. 1. a. The process of being heaved upward. b. An instance of being so heaved. 2. A sudden, violent disruption or upset: “the psychic upheaval caused by war” (Wallace Fowlie). 3. Geology. A raising of a part of the earth’s crust.

up-heave (ʊp-hēvʹ) v. up-heaved, up-heav-ing, up-heaves. — v. tr. To lift forcefully from beneath; heave upward. — v. intr. To be lifted or thrust upward.

up-held (ʊp-hēldʹ) v. Past tense and past participle of uphold.

up-hill (ʊpʹhīlʹ) adj. 1. Located on high or higher ground: an uphill mine entrance. 2. Going up a hill or slope: an uphill climb. 3. Marked by difficulty or strong resistance; laborious: an uphill election campaign against a popular incumbent. — adv. (ʊpʹhīlʹ) 1. To or toward higher ground; up a slope. 2. Against adversity; with difficulty: struggling uphill to make ends meet. — n. An upward slope or incline.

up-hold (ʊp-hōldʹ) v. tr. up-held (-hēldʹ), up-hold-ing, up-holds. 1. To hold aloft; raise: upheld the banner proudly. 2. To prevent from falling or sinking; support. 3. To maintain or affirm against opposition. See Synonyms at support. — up-hold'er n.

up-hol-ster (ʊp-hōlʹstər, ə-pōlʹ-) v. tr. up-hol-stered, up-hol-ster-ing, up-hol-sters. To supply (furniture) with stuffing, springs, cushions, and covering fabric. [Back-formation from UPHOLSTERER.]

up-hol-ster-er (ʊp-hōlʹstər-ər, ə-pōlʹ-) n. One that upholsters furniture. [From obsolete upholster, from Middle English upholdester : upholden, to repair (up, up; see up + holden, to hold); see HOLD¹ + -ster, -ster.] up-hol-ster-y (ʊp-hōlʹstər-rē, -strē, ə-pōlʹ-) n. pl. up-hol-ster-ies. 1. Fabric, stuffing, and other materials used in upholstering. 2. The craft, trade, or business of upholstering.

UPI or U.P.I. abbr. United Press International.

Up-john (ʊpʹjɔ̃nʹ), Richard. 1802-1878. British-born American architect who was a leader of the Gothic revival. His designs include Trinity Church in New York City (1846).

up-keep (ʊpʹkēpʹ) n. 1. Maintenance in proper operation, condition, and repair. 2. The cost of such maintenance.

up-land (ʊpʹlænd, -lændʹ) n. 1. Land or an area of land of high elevation, especially when level. 2. Land in the interior of a country. — adj. Of, relating to, or located in an upland.

Up-land (ʊpʹlænd) A city of southern California east of Los Angeles. It is a manufacturing and processing center in a citrus-growing region. Population, 63,374.

upland cotton (ʊpʹlænd kɔ̃tʹn) n. A tropical American plant (Gossypium hirsutum) widely cultivated for the woolly lint that surrounds its seeds.

upland sandpiper (ʊpʹlænd sændʹpīʹpər) n. A large brownish sandpiper (Bartramia longicauda) inhabiting the fields and uplands of eastern North America. Also called upland plover up-lift (ʊp-līftʹ) v. tr. up-lift-ed, up-lift-ing, up-lifts. 1. To raise; elevate. 2. To raise to a higher social, intellectual, or moral level or condition. 3. To raise to spiritual or emotional heights; exalt: music that uplifts the spirit. — adj. (ÿp'lift') Uplifted. — n. (ÿp'lift') 1. The act, process, or result of raising or lifting up. 2. An effort or a movement to improve social, moral, or intellectual standards. 3. Geology. An upheaval.

up-link (ÿp'lingk') n. A transmission path by which radio or other signals are sent to an aircraft or a communications satellite.

up-load (ÿp'löd') v. up-load-ed, up-load-ing, up-loads. Computer Science. — v. tr. To transfer (data or programs), usually from a peripheral computer or device to a central, often remote computer. — v. intr. To transfer data or programs to a central computer.

up-man-ship (ÿp'mæn-ship') n. One-upmanship.

up-mar-ket (ÿp'mär'kit) adj. Appealing to or designed for high-income consumers; upscale: “He turned up in well-cut clothes... and upmarket felt hats” (New Yorker).

up-most (ÿp'möst') adj. Uppermost.

U-po-lu (ōō-pō'lōō) A volcanic island of Western Samoa in the southern Pacific Ocean. It is the site of Apia, the country's capital.

up-on (ə-pŏn', ə-pŏn') prep. On. See Usage Note at on.

up-per (ÿp'ər) adj. Abbr. up., u., U. 1. Higher in place, position, or rank: the upper bunk; the upper half of the class. 2. a. Situated on higher ground: upper regions. b. Lying farther inland: the upper Nile. c. Northern: the upper Midwest. 3. Upper. Geology & Archaeology. Of, relating to, or being a later division of the period named. — n. 1. The part of a shoe or boot above the sole. 2. Informal. An upper berth. 3. uppers. Informal. The upper teeth or a set of upper dentures. 4. Slang. a. A drug, especially an amphetamine, used as a stimulant. b. An exhilarating or euphoric experience. — idiom. on (one's) uppers. Informal.

Impoverished; destitute.

Upper Ar-ling-ton (ÿp'ər är'ling-tən) A city of central Ohio, a residential suburb of Columbus. Population, 34,128.

upper atmosphere (ÿp'ər ät'mə-sfîr') n. The part of the atmosphere above the troposphere.

Upper A-von (ÿp'ər ā'vŏn, ā'vən, äv'ən) See Avon.

upper bound (ÿp'ər bound) n. Mathematics. A number that is greater than or equal to every number in a given set of real numbers.

Upper Cal-i-for-ni-a (ÿp'ər käl'i-fôr'nyə, -fôr'nē-ə) See Alta California.

Upper Can-a-da (ÿp'ər kän'ə-də) A historical region and province of British North America. Roughly coextensive with southern Ontario, Canada, it was formed in 1791 and joined Lower Canada in 1841.

Upper Carboniferous (ÿp'ər kär'bə-nîf'ər-əs) adj. & n. Geology. Pennsylvanian.

up·per·case (ÿp'ər-kās') Printing. adj. Abbr. u.c., UC Belonging to, set, or printed in capital letters; capital: an uppercase A; uppercase titles. — v. tr.
up·per·cased, up·per·cas·ing, up·per·cas·es. To print or set in uppercase letters.

upper class (ÿp'ər klās) n. The highest socioeconomic class in a society.
—up'per-class' (ÿp'ər-klās') adj.

up·per·class·man (ÿp'ər-klās'mən) n. A student in the junior or senior class of a secondary school or college.

upper crust (ÿp'ər krüst) n. Informal. The highest social class or group.
—up'per-crust' (ÿp'ər-krüst') adj.

up·per·cut (ÿp'ər-küt') n. Sports. A swinging blow directed upward, as to a boxing opponent's chin.

Upper Dar·by (ÿp'ər dār'bē) An unincorporated community of southeast Pennsylvania, a residential and manufacturing suburb of Philadelphia. Population, 84,054.

Upper East Side (ÿp'ər ēst sīd) See East Side.

Upper E·gypt (ÿp'ər ē'jīpt) A region of ancient Egypt in the valley of the Nile River south of the delta area, which was known as Lower Egypt. The two regions were united c. 3100 B.C.

Upper En·ga·dine (ÿp'ər ɛng'gə-dēn') See Engadine.

upper hand (ÿp'ər hānd) n. A position of control or advantage.

upper house (ÿp'ər hous) n. The branch of a bicameral legislature, such as the U.S. Senate, that is smaller and less broadly representative of the population.

Upper Klam·ath Lake (ÿp'ər klām'əth lāk) A lake of south-central Oregon east of Medford. It is in a popular resort area.

up·per·most (ÿp'ər-mōst') adv. & adj. In the highest position, place, or rank: finished uppermost in the standings; the uppermost balcony.

Upper New York Bay (ÿp'ər nōō yôrk' bā, nyōō) See New York Bay.

Upper Pa·lat·i·nate (ÿp'ər pə-lăt'n-īt) See Palatinate.

Upper Peninsula (ÿp'ər pə-nīn'syə-lə) The northern part of Michigan between Lakes Superior and Michigan. It is separated from the Lower Peninsula by the Straits of Mackinac.

Upper Saint Clair (ÿp'ər sānt klār') A community of southwest Pennsylvania, a suburb of Pittsburgh. Population, 19,023.

Upper Si·le·sia (ÿp'ər sī-lē'zhə, -shə, sī-) See Silesia.

Upper Tun·gus·ka (ÿp'ər tōōng-gōō'skə, tōōn-) See Tunguska.

Upper Vol·ta (ÿp'ər vōl'tə, vōl'-) See Burkina Faso. —Upper Vol'tan adj. & n.

up·pish (ÿp'ish) adj. Informal. Uppity. —up'pish·ly adv. —up'pish·ness n.

up·pi·ty (ÿp'î-tē) adj. Informal. Taking liberties or assuming airs beyond one's station; presumptuous: "was getting a little uppity and needed to be slapped down" (New York Times). [From UP.] —up'pi·ty·ness n.

Upp·sa·la (ÿp'sə-lə, -sə'-, ööp'sä'lä) A city of eastern Sweden north-northwest of Stockholm. Capital of a pre-Christian kingdom in the early Middle Ages, it became an episcopal see in 1164. The University of Uppsala was founded in 1477. Population, 152,579.

up quark (ÿp kwôrk) n. Abbr. u A quark with a charge of +3 and a mass about 607 times that of the electron. It is a component of protons and neutrons.

up·raise (ÿp-rāz') v. tr. up·raised, up·rais·ing, up·rais·es. To raise or lift up; elevate.

up·rear (ÿp-rîr') v. up·reared, up·rear·ing, up·rears. — v. tr. To raise or lift up. — v. intr. To rise up: The stallion upreared on its hind legs.

up·right (ÿp'rīt') adj. 1. a. Being in a vertical position or direction: an upright post. See Synonyms at vertical. b. Erect in posture or carriage: "She sat with grim determination, upright as a darning needle stuck in a board" (Harriet Beecher Stowe). 2. Adhering strictly to moral principles; righteous. — adv. Vertically: walk upright. — n. 1. A perpendicular position; verticality. 2. Something, such as a goal post, that stands upright. 3. Music. An upright piano. —up'right'ly adv. —up'right'ness n.

upright piano (ÿp'rīt' pē-än'ō) n. Music. A piano having the strings mounted vertically in a rectangular case with the keyboard at a right angle to the case.

up·rise (ÿp-rīz') v. intr. up·rose (-rōz'), up·ris·en (-rīz'ən), up·ris·ing, up·ris·es. 1. To get up or stand up; rise. 2. To go, move, or incline upward; ascend. 3. To rise into view, especially from below the horizon. 4. To increase in pitch or volume; swell. — n. (ÿp'rīz') 1. The act or process of rising. 2. An upward slope; an ascent.

up·ris·ing (ÿp'rī'zīng) n. 1. A sometimes limited popular revolt against a constituted government or its policies. See Synonyms at rebellion. 2. The act or an instance of rising or rising up.

up·riv·er (ÿp'rīv'ər) adv. & adj. Toward or near the source of a river; in the direction opposite to that of the current: rowing upriver; upriver rapids.

up·roar (ÿp'rôr', -rôr') n. 1. A condition of noisy excitement and confusion; tumult. See Synonyms at noise. 2. A heated controversy. [Probably by folk etymology from Middle Low German uprôr: up-, up (from up); see upo in Appendix + rôr, motion (); see kerə- in Appendix.]

up·roar·i·ous (ÿp-rôr'ē-əs, -rôr'-) adj. 1. Causing or accompanied by an uproar: an uproarious New Year's celebration. 2. Loud and full; boisterous: uproarious laughter. 3. Causing hearty laughter; hilarious: uproarious stories. —up·roar'i·ous·ly adv. —up·roar'i·ous·ness n.

up-root (ŭp-rōōt', -rōōt') v. tr. up-root-ed, up-root-ing, up-roots. 1. To pull up (a plant and its roots) from the ground. 2. To destroy or remove completely; eradicate. 3. To force to leave an accustomed or native location.

—up-root'ed-ness n. —up-root'er n.

up-rose (ŭp-rōz') v. Past tense of uprise.

ups and downs (ŭps' ən dounz') pl.n. Alternating periods of good and bad fortune or spirits.

up-scale (ŭp'skāl') adj. Of, intended for, or relating to high-income consumers: an upscale neighborhood; upscale fashions. — v. tr. up-scaled, up-scal-ing, up-scales (also ŭp-skāl'). 1. To raise to a higher level; upgrade.

2. To redesign or market for higher-income consumers: “the upscaling of TV diners [to] savory, low-calorie entrées” (Bernice Kanner).

up-set (ŭp-sēt') v. up-set, up-set-ting, up-sets. — v. tr. 1. To cause to turn or tip over; capsize. 2. To disturb the functioning, order, or course of: Protesters upset the meeting by chanting and shouting. 3. To distress or perturb mentally or emotionally: The bad news upset me. 4. To overthrow; overturn: upset a will. See Synonyms at overthrow. 5. (ŭp'sēt') To defeat unexpectedly (an opponent favored to win). 6. To make (a heated metal bolt, for example) shorter and thicker by hammering on the end. — v. intr. 1. To become overturned; capsize.

2. To become disturbed. — n. (ŭp'sēt') 1. The act of upsetting or the condition of being upset. 2. A disturbance, disorder, or state of agitation. 3. Sports & Games. A game or contest in which the favorite is defeated. 4. a. A tool used for upsetting; a swage. b. An upset part or piece. — adj. 1. Having been overturned; capsized. 2. Exhibiting signs and symptoms of indigestion: an upset stomach. 3. In a state of emotional or mental distress; distraught: upset parents.

[Middle English upsetten, to set up : up-, up- + setten, to set; see SET¹.] —up-set-

'ter n. —up-set'ting-ly adv.

upset price (ŭp-sēt' prīs) n. The lowest price at which an item of property may be auctioned or sold at public sale. [Past participle of UPSET, to establish (obsolete).]

up-shift (ŭp'shift') v. intr. up-shift-ed, up-shift-ing, up-shifts. To shift a motor vehicle into a higher gear. —up'shift' n.

up-shot (ŭp'shōt') n. The final result; the outcome. See Synonyms at effect. [Earlier upshot, the last shot in an archery contest.]

up-side (ŭp'sīd') n. 1. The upper side or portion. 2. An advantageous aspect: the upsides and downsides of home ownership. 3. An upward tendency, as in business profitability or in the prices of a stock. — prep. Slang. On: “If you still didn't get it, well, sometimes you have to hit people upside the head... to get their attention” (Howie Carr).

upside down (ŭp'sīd' doun) adv. 1. So that the upper or right side is down: turned upside down. 2. In great disorder. [Alteration of Middle English up so doun, up as if down : up, up; see UP + so, as if; see SO¹ + doun, down; see DOWN¹.]

—up'side-down' (ʊp'sīd-doun') adj.

upside-down cake (ʊp'sīd-doun' kāk) n. A single-layer cake baked with sliced fruit at the bottom, then served with the fruit side up.

up-si-lon (ʊp'sə-lōn', yōōp'-) n. The 20th letter of the Greek alphabet. [Late Greek u psilon, simple u (from the fact that oi was given the same pronunciation in Late Greek as u), from psilon, neuter of psilos, simple (written with one letter as opposed to two).]

up-spring (ʊp-sprīŋ') v. intr. up-sprang (-sprāŋ') or up-sprung (-sprūŋ'), up-sprung, up-spring-ing, up-springs. 1. To spring up, as from the soil. 2. To come into being; arise.

up-stage (ʊp'stāj') adv. Toward, at, or on the rear part of a stage. — adj.

1. Of or relating to the rear part of a stage. 2. Informal. Haughty; aloof. — n. (ʊp'stāj') The rear part of a stage, away from the audience. — v. tr.

up-staged, up-stag-ing, up-stag-es (ʊp-stāj'). 1. To distract attention from (another performer) by moving upstage, thus forcing the other performer to face away from the audience. 2. To divert attention or praise from; force out of the spotlight: a vice president who repeatedly tried to upstage the president. 3. To treat haughtily. —up-stag'er n.

up-stairs (ʊp'stārz') adv. 1. Up the stairs: raced upstairs. 2. To or on a higher floor: went upstairs to go to bed. 3. To or at a higher level: promoted upstairs to management. — adj. (ʊp'stārz') Of or located on an upper floor: an upstairs bedroom. — n. (ʊp'stārz') (used with a sing. verb). The part of a building above the ground floor.

up-stand-ing (ʊp-stān'dīŋ, ʊp'stān'-) adj. 1. Standing erect or upright.

2. Morally upright; honest. —up-stand/ing-ness n.

up-start (ʊp'stärt') n. A person of humble origin who attains sudden wealth, power, or importance, especially one made immodest or presumptuous by the change; a parvenu. — adj. 1. Suddenly raised to a position of consequence.

2. Self-important; presumptuous. — v. intr. up-start-ed, up-start-ing, up-starts (ʊp-stärt'). To spring or start up suddenly.

up-state (ʊp'stāt') n. The northerly section of a state in the United States. — adv. & adj. To, from, or in the northerly section of a state. —up/stat'er n.

up-stream (ʊp'strēm') adv. & adj. In the direction opposite to the current of a stream: paddling upstream; upstream traffic.

up-stroke (ʊp'strōk') n. An upward stroke, as of a brush.

up-surge (ʊp-sûrj') v. intr. up-surged, up-surg-ing, up-surg-es. To surge up. — n. (ʊp'sûrj') A rapid or abrupt rise: an upsurge in violent crime.

up-sweep (ʊp'swēp') n. 1. An upward curve or sweep. 2. A hairdo that is smoothed upward in the back and piled on top of the head. — v. tr. up-swept (-swēpt'), up-sweep-ing, up-sweeps. To brush, curve, or sweep upward.

up·swing (ÿp'swîng') n. 1. An upward swing or trend. 2. An increase, as in movement or business activity.

up·take (ÿp'tāk') n. 1. A passage for drawing up smoke or air.

2. Understanding; comprehension: very quick on the uptake.

up·tem·po also up·tem·po (ÿp'tēm'pō) Music. n. pl. up·tem·pos. A fast or lively tempo, as in jazz. — adj. Having a fast or lively tempo: an up-tempo arrangement.

up·throw (ÿp'thrō') n. 1. A throwing upward. 2. Geology. An upward displacement of rock on one side of a fault.

up·tick (ÿp'tîk') n. 1. An increase, especially a small or incremental one: last week's uptick in interest rates. 2. A transaction in a stock market security above the price of the previous transaction. [From the indication of a rise in price of a stock by a plus sign on boards above stock market stations.]

up·tight (ÿp'tīt') adj. Slang. 1. Tense; nervous: "She is both poised and uptight, both intellectually curious and submissively ladylike" (Edward Klein).

2. Financially pressed; destitute. 3. Outraged; angry. 4. Rigidly conventional, as in manners, opinions, and tastes. —up'tight'ness n.

up·time (ÿp'tîm') n. The time during which a device, such as a computer, is functioning or available for use.

up-to-date (ÿp'tə-dāt') adj. 1. Informed of or reflecting the latest information or changes: an up-to-date timetable. 2. Being in accord with the latest ideas, improvements, or styles: up-to-date technology; up-to-date fashions. —up'-to-date'ness n.

up-to-the-min·ute (ÿp'tə-thə-mî'n'ît) adj. Constituting or including the very latest information: an up-to-the-minute news bulletin.

up·town (ÿp'toun') n. The upper part of a town or city. — adv. (ÿp'toun') To, toward, or in the upper part of a town or city. — adj. Of, relating to, or located uptown. —up'town'er n.

up·trend (ÿp'trënd') n. An upward trend; an upturn. —up'trend' v.

up·turn (ÿp'tûrn', ÿp-tûrn') v. up·turned, up·turn·ing, up·turns. — v. tr.

1. To turn up or over: upturn the soil. 2. To upset; overturn. 3. To direct upward: upturned their gaze. — v. intr. To turn over or up. — n. (ÿp'tûrn') An upward movement, curve, or trend, as in business activity.

up·ward (ÿp'wərd) adv. 1. In, to, or toward a higher place, level, or position: flying upward. 2. Toward a higher position in a hierarchy or on a socioeconomic scale: a young executive moving upward fast. 3. To or toward the source, origin, or interior. 4. Toward the head or upper parts: bare from the waist upward. 5. Toward a higher amount, degree, or rank: Prices soared upward. 6. Toward a later time or age: from adolescence upward. — adj. Directed toward a higher place or position: upward movement. —idiom. upward of (or upwards of).

More than; in excess of: “the onslaught of upwards of seventy divisions” (Winston S. Churchill). —up'ward·ly adv. —up'wards adv.

upwardly mobile (ʊp'wərd-lē mō'bəl) adj. Advancing or likely to advance in economic and social standing: “They had considered her suitor unambitious, not sufficiently upwardly mobile” (Maggie Scarf). — n. (used with a pl. verb). Those regarded as advancing rapidly in economic and social standing. Used with the.

up·well (ʊp-wĕl') v. intr. up·welled, up·well·ing, up·wells. To rise from a lower or inner source; well up: tears upwelling in my eyes.

up·well·ing (ʊp-wĕl'ing, ʊp'wĕl'-) n. 1. The act or an instance of rising up from or as if from a lower source: an upwelling of emotion. 2. A process in which cold, often nutrient-rich waters from the ocean depths rise to the surface.

up·wind (ʊp'wīnd') adv. In or toward the direction from which the wind blows. —up'wind' adj.

Ur (ûr, ōr) Known in biblical times as Ur of the Chal-dees (kāl'dēz', käl-dēz'). A city of ancient Sumer in southern Mesopotamia on a site in present-day southeast Iraq. One of the oldest cities in Mesopotamia, it was an important center of Sumerian culture after c. 3000 B.C. and the birthplace of Abraham. The city declined after the sixth century B.C.

ur-¹ pref. Variant of uro-¹.

ur-² pref. Variant of uro-².

URA abbr. Urban Renewal Administration.

u·ra·cil (yōōr'ə-sīl) n. A pyrimidine base, C₄H₄N₂O₂, that is an essential constituent of RNA. [UR(EA) + AC(ETIC) + -il, substance relating to.]

u·rae·mi·a (yōō-rē'mē-ə) n. Variant of uremia.

u·rae·us (yōō-rē'əs) n. The figure of the sacred serpent, an emblem of sovereignty depicted on the headdress of ancient Egyptian rulers and deities. [New Latin, from Late Greek ouraios, cobra, perhaps alteration (influenced by Greek ouraios, of the tail, from oura, tail); see URO-², of Egyptian y'rt.]

U·ral·Al·ta·ic (yōōr'əl-äl-tā'ik) n. A hypothetical language group that comprises the Uralic and Altaic language families. Also called Turanian —U'ral·Al·ta'ic adj.

U·ral·ic (yōō-räl'ik) also U·ra·li·an (yōō-rāl'lē-ən) n. A language family that comprises the Finno-Ugric and Samoyedic subfamilies. [After the Ural (Mountains).] —U·ral'ic adj.

U·ral Mountains (yōōr'əl moun'tənz) A range of western Russia forming the traditional boundary between Europe and Asia and extending about 2,414 km (1,500 mi) from the Arctic Ocean southward to Kazakhstan.

Ural River (yōōr'əl rīv'ər) A river of western Russia and western Kazakhstan rising in the southern Ural Mountains and flowing about 2,533 km (1,574 mi) south, west, and south to the Caspian Sea.

U·ralsk (yōō-rälsk', ōō-rälsk') A city of northwest Kazakhstan on the Ural River west-northwest of Aktyubinsk. Founded by Cossacks c. 1622, it is a processing and manufacturing center. Population, 192,000.

uran- pref. Variant of urano-.

u·ra·ni·a (yōō-rā'nē-ə, -rān'yə) n. Uranium dioxide. [New Latin ūrania, from URANIUM.]

U·ra·ni·a (yōō-rā'nē-ə, -rān'yə) n. Greek Mythology. The muse of astronomy. [Latin Ūrania, from Greek Ourania, from ouranos, heaven.]

u·ran·ic¹ (yōō-rān'ik, -rā'nik) adj. Of or relating to the heavens; celestial. [From Greek ouranos, heaven.]

u·ran·ic² (yōō-rān'ik, -rā'nik) adj. Of, relating to, or derived from uranium, especially with valence higher than in comparable uranous compounds.

u·ra·ni·nite (yōō-rā'nē-nīt') n. A complex brownish-black mineral, UO₂, forming the chief ore of uranium and containing variable amounts of radium, lead, thorium, and other elements. [German Uranin (from New Latin ūranium, uranium); see URANIUM + -ITE¹.]

u·ra·ni·um (yōō-rā'nē-əm) n. Symbol U A heavy silvery-white metallic element, radioactive and toxic, easily oxidized, and having 14 known isotopes of which U 238 is the most abundant in nature. The element occurs in several minerals, including uraninite and carnotite, from which it is extracted and processed for use in research, nuclear fuels, and nuclear weapons. Atomic number 92; atomic weight 238.03; melting point 1,132°C; boiling point 3,818°C; specific gravity 18.95; valence 2, 3, 4, 5, 6. [New Latin ūranium, after URANUS.]

WORD HISTORY: The element uranium, whose discovery has been so vital to our nuclear age, owes its name to a preceding scientific discovery, that of the planet Uranus. Sir William Herschel, who discovered Uranus in 1781, named the planet Georgium sidus, “the Georgian planet,” in honor of George III. Some also called it Herschel, but convention prevailed and the planet came to be called Uranus (the form in Modern Latin and English), the name of a heavenly deity like the rest of the planets. Called Uranus in Latin mythology and Ouranos in Greek, this god of the heavens was chosen because he was the father of Saturn (Greek Cronos), the deity of the planet next in line, who was the father of Jupiter (Greek Zeus), the deity of the next planet. The name of this new planet was then used in the name of a new chemical element, uranium, discovered eight years later by M.H. Klaproth. Klaproth, a German scientist, gave it the Latin name uranium in honor of the discovery of Uranus. Uranium passed into English shortly thereafter, being first recorded in the third edition of the Encyclopedia Britannica, published in 1797.

uranium 235 (yōō-rā'nē-əm;) n. The uranium isotope with mass number 235 and half-life 7.13×10^8 years, fissionable with slow neutrons and capable in a critical mass of sustaining a chain reaction that can proceed explosively with appropriate mechanical arrangements.

uranium 238 (yōō-rā'nē-əm;) n. The most common isotope of uranium, having mass number 238 and half-life 4.51×10^9 years, nonfissionable but irradiated with neutrons to produce fissionable plutonium 239.

uranium dioxide (yōō-rā'nē-əm dī-ōk'sīd) n. A black, highly toxic crystalline powder, UO_2 , once used in ceramic glazes and gas mantles, now used primarily to pack nuclear fuel rods.

uranium trioxide (yōō-rā'nē-əm trī-ōk'sīd') n. A poisonous, radioactive orange powder, UO_3 , used for uranium refining and as a coloring agent in ceramics.

urano- or uran- pref. Uranium: uranyl. [From URANIUM.]

u·ra·nous (yōō-rā'nəs, yōōr'ə-nəs) adj. Of or relating to uranium, especially with valence lower than in comparable uranic compounds.

U·ra·nus (yōōr'ə-nəs, yōō-rā'nəs) n. 1. Greek Mythology. The earliest supreme god, a personification of the sky, who was the son and consort of Gaea and the father of the Cyclopes and Titans. 2. The seventh planet from the sun, revolving about it every 84.07 years at a distance of approximately 2,869 million kilometers (1,790 million miles), having a mean equatorial diameter of 52,290 kilometers (32,480 miles) and a mass 14.6 times that of Earth. [Late Latin Ūranus, from Greek ouranos, heaven, Uranus.]

u·ra·nyl (yōōr'ə-nīl, yōō-rā'nəl) n. The divalent radical UO_2^{2+} .

u·rase (yōōr'ās', -āz') n. Variant of urease.

u·rate (yōōr'āt') n. A salt of uric acid. [UR(IC ACID) + -ATE².]

U·ra·wa (ōō-rā'wə, -wä) A city of east-central Honshu, Japan, a commercial suburb of Tokyo. Population, 377,233.

ur·ban (ûr'bən) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or located in a city. 2. Characteristic of the city or city life. [Latin urbānus, from urbs, urb-, city.]

Ur·ban II (ûr'bən), Originally Odo of Lagery. 1042?-1099. Pope (1088-1099) who promoted the First Crusade.

Ur·ban VI (ûr'bən), Originally Bartolomeo Prignano. 1318?-1389. Pope (1378-1389) who precipitated the Great Schism by alienating the French cardinals, who in turn elected an antipope (1378).

Ur·ban·a (ûr-băn'ə) A city of east-central Illinois adjoining Champaign. It is a trade, medical, and educational center. Population, 36,344.

Ur·ban·dale (ûr'bən-dāl') A city of south-central Iowa, a residential and industrial suburb of Des Moines. Population, 23,500.

urban district (ûr'ban dîs'trîkt) n. An administrative district of England, Wales, and Northern Ireland, usually composed of several densely populated communities, resembling a borough but lacking a borough charter.

ur·bane (ûr-bān') adj. ur·ban·er, ur·ban·est. Polite, refined, and often elegant in manner. See Synonyms at suave. [Latin urbānus, of a city. See URBAN.]
—ur·bane'ly adv.

urban forest (ûr'ban fôr'îst) n. A dense, widespread growth of trees and other plants covering an area of a city.

ur·ban·ism (ûr'bə-nîz'əm) n. 1. The culture or way of life of city dwellers.
2. Urbanization.

ur·ban·ist (ûr'bə-nîst) n. A specialist in the study and planning of cities.
—ur'ban-is'tic adj. —ur'ban-is'ti-cal-ly adv.

ur·ban·ite (ûr'bə-nīt') n. A city dweller.

ur·ban·i·ty (ûr-băn'î-tē) n. pl. ur·ban·i·ties. 1. Refinement and elegance of manner; polished courtesy. See Synonyms at elegance. 2. urbanities. Courtesies; civilities.

ur·ban·ize (ûr'bə-nîz') v. tr. ur·ban·ized, ur·ban·iz·ing, ur·ban·iz·es. To make urban in nature or character. —ur'ban-i-za'tion (-bə-nî-zā'shən) n.

ur·ban·ol·o·gist (ûr'bə-nŏl'ə-jîst) n. A sociologist who specializes in the problems of cities and urban life. —ur'ban-ol'o-gy n.

urban renewal (ûr'bən rî-nŏŏ'əl) n. Rehabilitation of impoverished urban neighborhoods by large-scale renovation or reconstruction of housing and public works.

urban sprawl (ûr'bən sprŏl) n. The unplanned, uncontrolled spreading of urban development into areas adjoining the edge of a city.

urban wind (ûr'bən wînd) n. A strong wind generated near or around a group of high-rise buildings, creating areas of intense air turbulence especially at street level.

ur·ce·o·late (ûr-sē'ə-lît, ûr'sē-ə-lāt') adj. Shaped like an urn: an urceolate corolla. [New Latin urceolātus, from Latin urceolus, diminutive of urceus, jug.]

ur·chin (ûr'chîn) n. 1. A playful or mischievous youngster; a scamp. 2. A sea urchin. 3. A hedgehog. [Middle English urchone, hedgehog, from Old French erichon, from Vulgar Latin ērīciō*, ērīciōn-, from Latin ērīcius, from ēr.]

Ur·du (ŏŏr'dŏŏ, ûr'-) n. An Indic language that is the official literary language of Pakistan. It is written in an Arabic alphabet and is also widely used in India, chiefly by Muslims. [Urdu urdū, short for zabān-i urdū: Persian zabān, language, tongue + Persian urdū, camp, court (from Old Turkic ordu, residence, court).]
—Ur'du adj.

-ure suff. 1. Act; process; condition: erasure. 2. a. Function; office: judicature. b. Body performing a function: legislature. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin -ūra.]

u·re·a (yōō-rē'ə) n. A water-soluble compound, $\text{CO}(\text{NH}_2)_2$, that is the major nitrogenous end product of protein metabolism and is the chief nitrogenous component of the urine in mammals and other organisms. Also called carbamide [New Latin, from French urée, from urine, urine, from Old French, from Latin ūrīna. See URINE.]

u·re·a·for·mal·de·hyde resin (yōō-rē'ə-fôr-mäl'də-hīd' rēz'ŷn) n. Any of various thermosetting resins made by combining urea and formaldehyde and widely used to make molded household and industrial objects.

u·re·ase (yōōr'ē-ās', -āz') also u·rase (yōōr'ās', -āz') n. An enzyme that promotes the hydrolysis of urea to form ammonium carbonate. [URE(A) + -ASE.]

u·re·din·i·a (yōōr'ī-dīn'ē-ə) n. Plural of uredinium.

u·re·din·i·o·spore (yōōr'ī-dīn'ē-ə-spôr', -spôr') n. Variant of uredospore. [UREDINI(UM) + SPORE.]

u·re·din·i·um (yōōr'ī-dīn'ē-əm) also u·re·di·um (yōō-rē'dē-əm) n. pl.

u·re·din·i·a (-dīn'ē-ə) also u·re·di·a (-dē-ə). A reddish, pustulelike structure that is formed on the tissue of a plant infected by a rust fungus and produces uredospores. [New Latin ūrēdinium, from Latin ūrēdō, ūrēdin-, blight, from ūrere, to burn.]

u·re·do·spore (yōō-rē'də-spôr', -spôr') also u·re·din·i·o·spore (yōōr'ī-dīn'ē-ə-) n. A reddish spore that is produced in the uredinium of a rust fungus and that spreads to and infects other host plants. [URED(INIUM) + SPORE.]

u·re·do·stage (yōō-rē'də-stāj') n. The stage of a rust fungus in which uredinia are produced. [uredinia, pl. of UREDINIUM + STAGE.]

u·re·ide (yōōr'ē-īd') n. Any of various derivatives of urea. [URE(A) + -IDE.]

u·re·mi·a also u·rae·mi·a (yōō-rē'mē-ə) n. A toxic condition resulting from kidney disease in which there is retention in the bloodstream of waste products normally excreted in the urine. Also called azotemia —u·re'mic adj.

u·re·o·tel·ic (yōō-rē'ə-těl'ik, yōōr'ē-ō-) adj. Excreting urea as the chief component of nitrogenous waste. [URE(A) + TELIC.] —u·re'o·tel'ism (yōō-rē'ə-těl'iz'əm, yōōr'ē-ōt'l-iz'əm) n.

u·re·ter (yōō-rē'tər, yōōr'ī-tər) n. The long, narrow duct that conveys urine from the kidney to the urinary bladder or cloaca. [New Latin ūrētēr, from Greek ourētēr, from ourein, to urinate.] —u·re'ter·al, u're-ter'ic (yōōr'ī-tēr'ik) adj.

u·re·thane (yōōr'ī-thān') also u·re·than (-thān') n. 1. A colorless or white crystalline compound, $\text{CO}(\text{NH}_2)\text{OC}_2\text{H}_5$, used in organic synthesis and formerly as a palliative treatment for leukemia. 2. Any of several esters, other than the ethyl ester, of carbamic acid. [UR(O)⁻¹ + ETH(YL) + -ANE.]

u·re·thra (yōō-rē'thrə) n. pl. u·re·thras or u·re·thrae (-thrē). The canal through which urine is discharged from the bladder in most mammals and through which semen is discharged in the male. [Late Latin ūrēthra, from Greek ourēthra, from ourein, to urinate.] —u·re'thral adj.

u·re·threc·to·my (yōōr'ī-thrĕk'tə-mĕ) n. pl. u·re·threc·to·mies. Surgical removal of all or part of the urethra.

u·re·thri·tis (yōōr'ī-thrī'tis) n. Inflammation of the urethra.

u·re·thro·scope (yōō-rĕ'thrə-skōp') n. An instrument for examining the interior of the urethra. — u·re·thros'co·py (yōōr'ə-thrōs'kə-pĕ) n.

u·ret·ic (yōō-rĕt'ik) adj. Of or relating to urine; urinary. [Late Latin ūrĕticus, from Greek ourĕtikos, from ourein, to urinate.]

U·rey (yōōr'ĕ), Harold Clayton. 1893-1981. American chemist. He won a 1934 Nobel Prize for his discovery of heavy hydrogen.

Ur·fa (ōōr-fä') A city of southeast Turkey near the Syrian border. Founded as Edessa in ancient times, it was incorporated into the Ottoman Empire in 1637 and renamed Urfa. Population, 147,488.

urge (ûrj) v. urged, urg·ing, urg·es. — v. tr. 1. To force or drive forward or onward; impel. 2. To entreat earnestly and often repeatedly; exhort. 3. To advocate earnestly the doing, consideration, or approval of; press for: urge passage of the bill; a speech urging moderation. 4. To stimulate; excite: "It urged him to an intensity like madness" (D.H. Lawrence). 5. To move or impel to action, effort, or speed; spur. — v. intr. 1. To exert an impelling force; push vigorously. 2. To present a forceful argument, claim, or case. — n. 1. The act of urging.

2. a. An impulse that prompts action or effort: suppressed an urge to laugh.

b. An involuntary tendency to perform a given activity; an instinct: "There is a human urge to clarify, rationalize, justify" (Leonard Bernstein). [Latin urgĕre.]

SYNONYMS: urge, press, exhort, prod, prick. These verbs mean to constrain or impel to action. Urge implies strong pressure or persuasion: "Urged by an extreme necessity, he had come there to steal food" (Joseph Conrad). We urged her to reconsider the offer, but she refused. Press suggests greater insistence, urgency, or importunity: "Isaacs hesitated long, but as everyone pressed him in turn, he yielded at last" (Francis Marion Crawford). Exhort stresses the use of earnest, urgent, often stirring admonition, advice, or appeal: "He exhorted his crews to take a good night's rest, wind up their family affairs, and make their wills" (Washington Irving). To prod is to goad to action as if by poking with a pointed instrument: "She reverted to her resolution to change the town—awaken it, prod it, 'reform' it" (Sinclair Lewis). Prick suggests driving as if with a spur: "Honor pricks me on" (Shakespeare).

ur·gen·cy (ûr'jĕn-sĕ) n. pl. ur·gen·cies. 1. The quality or condition of being urgent; pressing importance: the urgency of the call for help; pleading with urgency.

2. A pressing necessity.

ur·gent (ûr'jĕnt) adj. 1. Compelling immediate action or attention; pressing.

2. Insistent or importunate: the urgent words "Hurry! Hurry!" 3. Conveying a sense of pressing importance: an urgent message. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin urgēns, urgent- present participle of urgēre, to urge.] —ur'-gent-ly adv.

SYNONYMS: urgent, pressing, imperative, exigent. These adjectives are compared as they mean compelling immediate attention. Urgent often implies that a matter takes precedence over others: “My business is too urgent to waste time on apologies” (John Buchan). Pressing suggests an urgency that demands that prompt measures be taken: “The danger now became too pressing to admit of longer delay” (James Fenimore Cooper). Imperative implies a need or demand whose fulfillment cannot be evaded or deferred: As more nations acquire nuclear weapons the necessity for preventing war becomes imperative. Something exigent requires swift action or remedy: Her family’s needs make exigent demands on her time and energy.

-urgy suff. Technique or process for working with: zymurgy. [New Latin -urgia, from Greek -ourgia, from -ourgos, working, from ergon, work. See werg- in Appendix.]

-uria suff. 1. The condition of having a specified substance in the urine: aciduria. 2. The condition of having a specified kind of urine: polyuria. [New Latin -ūria, from Greek -ouria, from ouron, urine.]

U-ri-ah (yōō-rī'ə) In the Old Testament, an officer in the Israelite army and the husband of Bathsheba. He was sent to die in battle so that David could marry his wife.

u-ric (yōōr'ik) adj. Relating to, contained in, or obtained from urine.

uric acid (yōōr'ik əs'id) n. A semisolid compound, $C_5H_4N_4O_3$, that is a nitrogenous end product of protein and purine metabolism and is the chief nitrogenous component of the urine in birds, terrestrial reptiles, and insects.

u-ri-co-sur-ic (yōōr'i-kə-sōōr'ik) adj. Promoting the excretion of uric acid in the urine. [From URIC + URIC.]

u-ri-co-tel-ic (yōōr'i-kō-təl'ik) adj. Excreting uric acid as the chief component of nitrogenous waste. —u'ri-co-tel'ism (-kō-təl'iz'əm, -kōt'l-) n.

u-ri-dine (yōōr'i-dēn') n. A white, odorless powder, $C_9H_{12}N_2O_6$, that is the nucleoside of uracil, important in carbohydrate metabolism, and used in biochemical experiments.

U-ri-el (yōōr'ē-əl) n. One of the archangels named in the Apocrypha and in Hebrew tradition.

U-rim and Thum-mim (yōōr'im ən thūm'im, ōōr'im; tōōm'im) pl.n.

Sacred objects carried inside the breastplate of the high priest of ancient Israel and used as oracular media to divine the will of God. [Partial translation of Hebrew 'ûrîm wētummîm.]

urin- pref. Variant of urino-.

u·ri·nal (yōōr'ə-nəl) n. 1. a. A fixture, typically one attached upright to a wall, used by men for urinating. b. A room or other place containing facilities for urinating. 2. A portable receptacle for urine. [Middle English, chamber pot, from Old French, from Late Latin ūrīnāle, neuter of ūrīnālis, pertaining to urine, from Latin ūrīna, urine. See URINE.]

u·ri·nal·y·sis (yōōr'ə-nāl'ī-sīs) n. pl. u·ri·nal·y·ses (-sēz'). Medicine. Laboratory analysis of urine, used to aid in the diagnosis of disease or to detect the presence of a specific substance, such as an illegal drug. [URIN(O)- + (AN)ALYSIS.]

u·ri·nar·y (yōōr'ə-nēr'ē) adj. 1. Of or relating to urine, its production, function, or excretion. 2. Of or relating to the organs involved in the formation and excretion of urine.

urinary bladder (yōōr'ə-nēr'ē blād'ər) n. An elastic, muscular sac situated in the anterior part of the pelvic cavity in which urine collects before excretion.

urinary calculus (yōōr'ə-nēr'ē kāl'kyə-ləs) n. A hard mass of mineral salts in the urinary tract. Also called cystolith, urolith.

urinary tract (yōōr'ə-nēr'ē trākt) n. A continuous anatomical tract, including the kidneys, ureters, and urethra, involved in the formation and excretion of urine.

u·ri·nate (yōōr'ə-nāt') v. intr. u·ri·nat·ed, u·ri·nat·ing, u·ri·nates. To excrete urine. [Medieval Latin ūrīnāre, ūrīnāt-, from Latin ūrīna, urine. See URINE.] —u·ri·na'tion n. —u·ri·na'tive adj. —u·ri·na'tor n.

u·rine (yōōr'īn) n. The waste product secreted by the kidneys that in mammals is a yellow to amber-colored, slightly acid fluid discharged from the body through the urethra. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin ūrīna. See wē-r- in Appendix.]

u·ri·nif·er·ous (yōōr'ə-nīf'ər-əs) adj. Conveying urine.

urino- or urin- pref. Urine: urinalysis. [From Latin ūrīna, urine. See URINE.]

u·ri·no·gen·i·tal (yōōr'ə-nō-jěn'ī-tl) adj. Variant of urogenital.

u·ri·nom·e·ter (yōōr'ə-nōm'ī-tər) n. A hydrometer for measuring the specific gravity of urine.

u·ri·nous (yōōr'ə-nəs) also u·ri·nose (-nōs) adj. Of, resembling, or containing urine.

Ur·is (yōōr'īs), Leon Marcus. Born 1924. American writer known for his historical novels, including Exodus (1957) and Trinity (1976).

URL (yōō'är-əl') n. Computer Science. A statement that specifies a transmission protocol and an Internet identifying number, used chiefly for moving from site to site on the World Wide Web. [U(NIFORM), or U(NIVERSAL) R(ESOURCE) L(OCA-TOR).]

Ur·mi·a (ōōr'mē-ə), Lake. A shallow saline lake of northwest Iran between Tabriz and the Turkish border. The city of Urmia, on the western side of the lake, is the reputed birthplace of Zoroaster. Population, 263,000.

urn (ûrn) n. 1. A vase of varying size and shape, usually having a footed base or pedestal. 2. A closed metal vessel having a spigot and used for warming or serving tea or coffee. 3. Botany. The spore-bearing part of a moss capsule. [Middle English urne, from Latin urna.]

uro-¹ or ur- pref. 1. Urine: uric. 2. Urinary tract: urology. 3. Urea: urethane. [New Latin, from Greek ouro-, from ouron, urine.]

uro-² or ur- pref. Tail: urochord. [New Latin, from Greek ouro-, from oura. See ors- in Appendix.]

u-ro-chord (yöör'ə-kôrd') n. Zoology. A notochord limited to the caudal region, characteristic of the urochordates. [URO-² + CHORD².]

u-ro-chor-date (yöör'ə-kôrd'ât) n. A chordate marine animal of the subphylum Urochordata; a tunicate. — adj. Having a urochord.

u-ro-chrome (yöör'ə-krôm') n. The yellow pigment responsible for the color of urine.

u-ro-dele (yöör'ə-dêl') n. Any of various amphibians of the order Caudata, including the salamanders and newts, in which the larval tail persists in adult life. [From New Latin Ūrodēla, former order name : URO-² + Greek dēlos, visible; see PSYCHEDELIC.]

u-ro-gen-i-tal (yöör'ô-jên'i-tl) also u-ri-no-gen-i-tal (yöör'ə-nô-) adj. Of, relating to, or involving both the urinary and genital structures or functions.

u-ro-g-e-nous (yöör-röj'ə-nəs) adj. 1. Producing urine. 2. Produced or derived from urine.

u-ro-gram (yöör'ə-gräm') n. A radiograph of the urinary tract.

u-ro-g-ra-phy (yöör-rög'rə-fē) n. pl. u-ro-g-ra-phies. Radiography of the urinary tract. — u'ro-graph'ic (yöör'ə-gräf'ik) adj.

u-ro-ki-nase (yöör'ô-kī'nās, -nāz) n. An enzyme in human urine that catalyzes the conversion of plasminogen to plasmin and is used in medicine to dissolve blood clots.

urol. abbr. 1. Urological. 2. Urology.

u-ro-lith (yöör'ə-lith') n. See urinary calculus. — u'ro-lith'ic adj.

u-ro-lith-i-a-sis (yöör'ə-lī-thī'ə-sīs) n. A diseased condition resulting from the formation of calculi in the urinary tract.

u-rol-o-gy (yöör-röl'ə-jē) n. Abbr. urol. The branch of medicine that deals with the diagnosis and treatment of diseases of the urinary tract and urogenital system. — ur'o-log'ic (yöör'ə-löj'ik), ur'o-log'i-cal (-i-kəl) adj. — u-rol'o-gist n.

-uronic suff. Connected with urine: hyaluronic acid. [From Greek ouron, urine.]

u-ro-pod (yöör'ə-pöd') n. One of the last pair of posterior abdominal appendages of certain crustaceans, such as the lobster or shrimp. [URO-² + -POD.]

u-ro-py-gi-al gland (yōōr'ə-pī'jē-əl gländ, -pīj'ē-) n. A large gland at the base of a bird's tail that secretes an oil used in preening. Also called oil gland u-ro-py-gi-um (yōōr'ə-pī'jē-əm, -pīj'ē-) n. The posterior part of a bird's body, from which the tail feathers grow. [New Latin, from Greek ouropugion : ouro-, tail; see *URO-*² + pugē, rump.] — u'ro-py'gi-al (-əl) adj.

u-ros-co-py (yōō-rōs'kə-pē) n. pl. u-ros-co-pies. Examination of urine for diagnostic purposes.

u-ros-to-my (yōō-rōs'tə-mē) n. pl. u-ros-to-mies. Surgical construction of an artificial excretory opening from the urinary tract.

-urous suff. Having a specified kind of tail: anurous. [From New Latin -ūrus, from Greek -ouros, from oura, tail. See ors- in Appendix.]

urp (ûrp) v. intr. urped, urp-ing, urps. Mississippi River Delta. To vomit. [Imitative.]

Ur-quhart (ûr'kært, -kært') , Sir Thomas. 1611-1660. Scottish Royalist, writer, and translator of the works of Rabelais.

Ur-sa Major (ûr'sə mā'jər) n. A constellation in the region of the north celestial pole near Draco and Leo, containing the seven stars that form the Big Dipper. Also called Great Bear [Middle English, from Latin Ursa Māior : ursa, bear + māior, comparative of magnus, great.]

Ursa Minor (ûr'sə mī'nər) n. A constellation having the shape of a ladle with Polaris at the tip of its handle. Also called Little Bear [From Late Latin minor Ursa : minor, lesser + ursa, bear.]

ur-sine (ûr'sīn') adj. Of or characteristic of bears or a bear. [Latin ursīnus, from ursus, bear. See rtko- in Appendix.]

Ur-spra-che (ōōr'shprä'kHə) n. See protolanguage. [German : ur-, original (from Middle High German, out of, from Old High German); see ud- in Appendix + Sprache, language, speech (from Middle High German sprāche, from Old High German sprāhha).]

Ur-su-line (ûr'sə-līn, -līn', -lēn', ûr'syə-) n. A member of an order of nuns of the Roman Catholic Church, founded in the early 16th century and devoted to the education of girls. — adj. Of or belonging to the Ursulines. [After Saint Ursula, legendary British princess and martyr.]

ur-ti-cant (ûr'tī-kənt) adj. Causing itching or stinging. — n. A substance that causes itching or stinging.

ur-ti-car-i-a (ûr'tī-kâr'ē-ə) n. See hives. [New Latin urticāria, from Latin urtica, nettle.] — ur'ti-car'i-al adj.

ur-ti-cate (ûr'tī-kāt') v. ur-ti-cat-ed, ur-ti-cat-ing, ur-ti-cates. — v. tr. To sting or whip with or as if with nettles. — v. intr. To produce a stinging or itching sensation. — adj. (-kīt, -kāt') Characterized by the presence of hives. [Medieval Latin urticāre, urticāt-, from Latin urtica, nettle.]

ur-ti-ca-tion (ûr'tî-kā'shən) n. 1. The formation or development of hives.

2. The sensation of having been stung by nettles. 3. A lashing with nettles formerly used to treat a paralyzed part of the body.

U-rua-pan (öör-wä'pən, -pän) A city of southwest-central Mexico west of Mexico City. Founded in 1540, it is noted for its lacquerware. Population, 122,828.

U-ru-bam-ba (öo'röo-bäm'bə) A river of Peru rising in the Andes and flowing about 724 km (450 miles) north-northwest to join the Apurímac River and form the Ucayali River.

U-ru-guay (yöör'ə-gwī', -gwā', öo'röo-gwī') Abbr. Urug. A country of southeast South America on the Atlantic Ocean and the Río de la Plata. First settled in the 1600's, the region achieved its independence from Spain in 1814 and severed its union with Brazil in 1828. Montevideo is the capital and the largest city. Population, 2,788,429. —U'ru-guay'an adj. & n.

Uruguay River (yöör'ə-gwī' rîv'ər) A river of southeast South America rising in southern Brazil and flowing about 1,609 km (1,000 mi) west and south along the Brazil-Argentina border and the Argentina-Uruguay border to the Río de la Plata.

Ü-rüm-qi also U-rum-chi (öo-rööm'chē, ü'rüm'chē') A city of northwest China in the Tien Shan. Its agricultural college was founded in 1952. Population, 947,000.

u-rus (yöör'əs) n. pl. u-rus-es. An extinct wild ox (Bos primigenius) of Europe, northern Africa, and western Asia, believed to be the ancestor of domestic cattle. Also called aurochs [Latin ūrus, of Germanic origin.]

u-ru-shi-ol (öo-röo'shē-ôl', -ôl', -ôl') n. A toxic substance present in the resin or on the surface of plants of the genus Rhus, including poison ivy and the lacquer tree, from which a black Japanese lacquer is obtained. [Japanese urushi, lacquer + -OL¹.]

us (üs) pron. The objective case of we. 1. Used as the direct object of a verb: She saw us on the subway. 2. Used as the indirect object of a verb: They offered us free tickets to the show. 3. Used as the object of a preposition: This letter is addressed to us. 4. Informal. Used as a predicate nominative: It's us. See Usage Note at we. [Middle English, from Old English ūs. See nes⁻² in Appendix.]

u.s. abbr. Latin. 1. Ubi supra (where mentioned above). 2. Ut supra (as above).

U.S. or US abbr. 1. Uncle Sam. 2. Uniform System (of lens aperture).

3. United States. 4. United States highway.

USA abbr. 1. Also U.S.A.. United States Army. 2. Or U.S.A.. United States of America.

us-a-ble also use-a-ble (yöo'zə-bəl) adj. 1. That can be used: usable byproducts. 2. Fit for use; convenient to use: usable spare parts; a usable reference book.

—us'a-bil/i-ty, us'a-ble-ness n. —us'a-bly adv.

USAF also U.S.A.F. abbr. United States Air Force.

USAFI or U.S.A.F.I. abbr. United States Armed Forces Institute.

us-age (yōō'sij, -zīj) n. 1. a. The act, manner, or amount of using; use: the usage of a technical term; an instrument that measures water usage. b. The act or manner of treating; treatment: subjected the car to rough usage. 2. A usual, habitual, or accepted practice. See Synonyms at habit. 3. The way in which words or phrases are actually used, spoken, or written in a speech community. 4. A particular expression in speech or writing: a nonce usage. [Middle English, from Old French, from us, from Latin ūsus, from past participle of ūtī, to use.]

us-ance (yōō'zəns) n. 1. The length of time, established by custom and varying between countries, that is allowed for payment of a foreign bill of exchange. 2. Use. 3. Usage; custom. 4. Interest paid on borrowed money. [Middle English, usage, from Old French, probably from Vulgar Latin ūsantia*, from ūsāns*, ūsant-* present participle of ūsāre*, frequentative of Latin ūtī.]

USAR abbr. United States Army Reserve.

USAREUR abbr. United States Army, Europe.

U.S.C. abbr. Law. United States Code.

U.S.C.A. abbr. Law. United States Code Annotated.

USCG also U.S.C.G. abbr. United States Coast Guard.

USDA abbr. United States Department of Agriculture.

use (yōōz) v. used, us-ing, us-es. — v. tr. 1. To put into service or apply for a purpose; employ. 2. To avail oneself of; practice: use caution. 3. To conduct oneself toward; treat or handle: “the peace offering of a man who once used you unkindly” (Laurence Sterne). 4. To seek or achieve an end by means of; exploit: used their highly placed friends to gain access to the president; felt he was being used by seekers of favor. 5. To take or consume; partake of: She rarely used alcohol. — v. intr. (yōōs, yōōst) Used in the past tense followed by to in order to indicate a former state, habitual practice, or custom: Mail service used to be faster. — n. (yōōs) 1. a. The act of using; the application or employment of something for a purpose: with the use of a calculator; skilled in the use of the bow and arrow. b. The condition or fact of being used: a chair in regular use. 2. The manner of using; usage: learned the proper use of power tools. 3. a. The permission, privilege, or benefit of using something: gave us the use of their summerhouse. b. The power or ability to use something: lost the use of one arm. 4. The need or occasion to use or employ: have no use for these old clothes. 5. The quality of being suitable or adaptable to an end; usefulness: tried to be of use in the kitchen. 6. A purpose for which something is used: a tool with several uses; a pretty bowl, but of what use is it? 7. Gain or advantage; good: There's no use in discussing it. What's the use? 8. Accustomed or usual procedure or practice. 9. Law. a. Enjoyment of property, as by occupying or exercising it. b. The benefit or profit of lands and tenements of which the legal title and possession are vested in another. c. The arrangement establishing the equitable right to such benefits and profits. 10. A liturgical form practiced in a particular church, ecclesiastical district, or community. 11. Obsolete. Usual occurrence or experience. —phrasal verb. use up. To consume completely: used up all our money. [Middle English usen, from Old French user, from Vulgar Latin ūsāre*, frequentative of Latin ūtī.]

SYNONYMS: use, employ, utilize. These verbs mean to avail oneself of someone or something in order to make him, her, or it useful, functional, or beneficial. To use is to put into service or apply for a purpose: uses a hearing aid; used the press secretary as spokesperson for the administration; using a stick to stir the paint. Employ is often interchangeable with use: She employed her education to maximum advantage. Unlike use, however, the term can denote engaging or maintaining the services of another or putting another to work: “When men are employed, they are best contented” (Benjamin Franklin). Utilize is especially appropriate in the narrower sense of making something profitable or of finding new and practical uses for it: In the 19th century waterpower was widely utilized to generate electricity. See also Synonyms at habit

use·a·ble (yōō'zə-bəl) adj. Variant of usable.

used (yōōzd) adj. 1. Not new; secondhand: a used car. 2. (also yōōst) Accustomed; habituated: getting used to the cold weather; was used to driving a small car.

use·ful (yōōs'fəl) adj. 1. Having a beneficial use; serviceable: a useful kitchen gadget. 2. Having practical utility: a useful job; useful members of society.

—use'ful·ly adv. —use'ful·ness n.

use·less (yōōs'lis) adj. 1. Being or having no beneficial use; futile or ineffective. 2. Incapable of functioning or assisting; ineffectual: He panics easily and is useless in an emergency. See Synonyms at futile. —use'less·ly adv. —use'less·ness n.

us·er (yōō'zər) n. 1. One that uses: a user of public transportation. 2. Law. The exercise or enjoyment of a right or property. 3. One who uses addictive drugs.

us·er·friend·ly (yōō'zər-frënd'lē) adj. us·er·friend·li·er, us·er·friend·li·est. Easy to use or learn to use: “a user-friendly system designed for small businesses with no prior computer experience” (Byte). “The public ought to be aware of the complexity of making new tax forms user-friendly” (New York Times).

—us'er·friend'li·ness n.

us·er·un·friend·ly (yōō'zər-ŭn-frënd'lē) adj. us·er·un·friend·li·er, us·er·un·friend·li·est. Not easy to use or learn to use: “renovating user-unfriendly JFK airport and rebuilding Brooklyn shipping” (Stanley Brezenoff).

Ush·ant (üş'ənt) An island of northwest France in the Atlantic Ocean off western Brittany. Naval battles between the French and the British occurred off the island in 1778 and 1794.

usher (üşh'ər) n. 1. One who is employed to escort people to their seats, as in a theater, church, or stadium. 2. A man who attends a bridal party at a wedding. 3. One who serves as official doorkeeper, as in a courtroom or legislative chamber. 4. An official whose duty is to make introductions between unacquainted persons or to precede persons of rank in a procession. 5. Archaic. An assistant teacher in a school. — v. ush-ered, ush-er-ing, ush-ers. — v. tr. 1. To serve as an usher to; escort. 2. To lead or conduct. See Synonyms at guide. 3. To precede and introduce; inaugurate: a celebration to usher in the new century. — v. intr. To serve as an usher: ushered every Sunday at church. [Middle English, doorkeeper, from Anglo-Norman usser, from Vulgar Latin üstīārius*, from Latin ōstiārius, from ōstium, door. See ōs- in Appendix.]

usher-ette (üşh'ə-rět') n. A girl or woman employed to escort people to their seats, as in a theater or stadium. See Usage Note at -ette.

USIA abbr. United States Information Agency.

U.S.M. abbr. United States Mail.

USMC also U.S.M.C. abbr. United States Marine Corps.

USN also U.S.N. abbr. United States Navy.

USNA also U.S.N.A. abbr. United States Naval Academy.

us-ne-a (üş'nē-ə, üz'-) n. Any of various widely distributed lichens of the genus Usnea, characterized by a gray pendulous thallus. [From Arabic 'ušnah, moss.]

us-nic acid (üş'nīk äs'id) n. An antibacterial substance, C₁₈H₁₆O₇, obtained from lichens of the genus Usnea, especially U. barbata.

USNR abbr. United States Naval Reserve.

USO or U.S.O. abbr. United Service Organizations.

U.S.P. abbr. United States Pharmacopoeia.

Us-pal-la-ta Pass (ōō'spä-yä'tə päs, -tä) A pass, about 3,813 m (12,500 ft) high, through the Andes between Mendoza, Argentina, and Santiago, Chile. A monumental sculpture of Christ stands in the pass.

USPO also U.S.P.O. abbr. United States Post Office.

USPS also U.S.P.S. abbr. United States Postal Service.

us-que-baugh (üş'kwī-bô', -bä') n. Irish & Scots. Whiskey. [Scottish Gaelic uisge beatha, Irish Gaelic uisce beatha, water of life, whiskey (translation of Medieval Latin aqua vitae) Old Irish uisce, water; see wed-¹ in Appendix + Old Irish bethad, genitive of bethu, life; see g^wei- in Appendix.]

U.S.S. abbr. 1. United States Senate. 2. USS. Nautical. United States ship.

Ussh-er (üşh'ər), James. 1581-1656. Irish prelate and scholar who devised a scheme of biblical chronology that placed the Creation in the year 4004 B.C.

U.S.S.R. or USSR abbr. Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

U-sti nad La-bem (ōō'stē näd lä-bēm') A city of northwest Czech Republic on the Elbe River near the German border. Founded before the 13th century, it was ceded to Germany by the Munich Pact of 1938 and reverted to Czechoslovakia in 1945. Population, 90,520.

U·sti·nov (ōō-stīn'ōf) See Izhevsk.

Ust-Ka·me·no·gorsk (ōōst'kə-měn'ə-gôrsk', -myĭ-nə-) A city of northeast Kazakhstan on the Irtysh River southeast of Semipalatinsk. Founded as a military outpost in 1720, it is now a metallurgical center. Population, 307,000.

usu. abbr. Usually.

u·su·al (yōō'zhōō-əl) adj. 1. Commonly encountered, experienced, or observed: the usual summer heat. 2. Regularly or customarily used: ended the speech with the usual expressions of thanks. 3. In conformity with regular practice or procedure: Come at the usual time. —idiom. as usual. As commonly or habitually happens: As usual, I slept late that Saturday morning. [Middle English, from Old French usuel, from Late Latin ūsualis, from Latin ūsus, use, from past participle of ūtī, to use.] —u'su·al·ly adv. —u'su·al·ness n.

SYNONYMS: usual, habitual, customary, accustomed. These adjectives apply to what is expected or familiar because it occurs frequently or recurs regularly. Usual describes what accords with normal, common, or ordinary practice or procedure: “The parson said the usual things about the sea—its blueness... its beauty” (George du Maurier). Habitual implies repetition and force of habit: “He who permits himself to tell a lie once, finds it much easier to do it a second and third time, till at length it becomes habitual” (Thomas Jefferson). Customary and accustomed refer to conformity with the prevailing customs or conventions of a group or with an individual's own established practice: “It is the customary fate of new truths to begin as heresies and to end as superstitions” (Thomas H. Huxley). She resolved the difficulty with her accustomed resourcefulness and tact.

u·su·fruct (yōō'zə-frūkt', -sə-) n. Law. The right to use and enjoy the profits and advantages of something belonging to another as long as the property is not damaged or altered in any way. [Late Latin ūsūfructus, variant of Latin ūsusfructus : ūsus, use; see USUAL + fructus, enjoyment; see FRUIT.]

u·su·fruc·tu·ar·y (yōō'zə-frūk'chōō-ēr'ē, -sə-) Law. n. pl.

u·su·fruc·tu·ar·ies. One that holds property by usufruct. — adj. Of or relating to the nature of a usufruct.

U·su·ma·cin·ta (ōō'sə-mə-sĭn'tə, -sōō-mä-sĕn'tä) A river, about 965 km (600 mi) long, of southeast Mexico. It forms part of the Guatemala-Mexico border.

u·su·rer (yōō'zhər-ər) n. One who lends money at interest, especially at an exorbitant or unlawfully high rate. [Middle English, from Anglo-Norman, from Late Latin ūsūrārius, moneylender, from Latin, interest-bearing, from ūsūra, usury. See USURY.]

u-su-ri-ous (yōō-zhōōr'ē-əs) adj. 1. Practicing usury. 2. Of or constituting usury: usurious interest rates. —u-su/ri-ous-ly adv. —u-su/ri-ous-ness n.

u-surp (yōō-sûrp', -zûrp') v. u-surped, u-surp-ing, u-surps. — v. tr. 1. To seize and hold (the power or rights of another, for example) by force and without legal authority. See Synonyms at appropriate. 2. To take over or occupy without right: usurp a neighbor's land. — v. intr. To seize another's place, authority, or possession wrongfully. [Middle English usurpen, from Old French usurper, from Latin ūsûrpāre, to take into use, usurp. See reup- in Appendix.] —u-surp'er n. —u-surp'ing-ly adv.

u-sur-pa-tion (yōō'sər-pā'shən, -zər-) n. 1. The act of usurping, especially the wrongful seizure of royal sovereignty. 2. A wrongful seizure or exercise of authority or privilege belonging to another; an encroachment: "in our own day, gross usurpations upon the liberty of private life" (John Stuart Mill).

u-su-ry (yōō'zhə-rē) n. pl. u-su-ries. 1. The practice of lending money and charging the borrower interest, especially at an exorbitant or illegally high rate. 2. An excessive or illegally high rate of interest charged on borrowed money. 3. Archaic. Interest charged or paid on a loan. [Middle English, from Medieval Latin ūsûria, alteration of Latin ūsûra, from ûsus, use. See USUAL.]

ut (üt, oöt) n. Music. A syllable representing the tone C, otherwise represented by do, in the French system of solmization. [Middle English, from Medieval Latin. See GAMUT.]

UT abbr. 1. Universal time. 2. Or Ut. Utah.

U-tah (yōō'tô', -tä') Abbr. UT, Ut. A state of the western United States. It was admitted as the 45th state in 1896. First explored by the Spanish in 1540, the region was settled in 1847 by Mormons led by Brigham Young. Salt Lake City is the capital and the largest city. Population, 1,727,784. —U'tah-an adj. & n.

UTC abbr. Universal time coordinated.

ut dict. abbr. Latin. Ut dictum (as directed).

Ute (yōōt) n. pl. Ute or Utes. 1. a. A Native American people formerly inhabiting a large area of Colorado, Utah, and northern New Mexico, with present-day populations in northeast Utah and along the Colorado-New Mexico border. b. A member of this people. 2. The Uto-Aztecan language of the Ute. [From Utah, Ute Indian, from American Spanish Yuta;; akin to Southern Paiute yuuttaci.]

u-ten-sil (yōō-tě'n'səl) n. An instrument, an implement, or a container used domestically, especially in a kitchen. See Synonyms at tool. [Middle English, from Old French utensile, from Latin ūtēnsilia, utensils, from neuter pl. of ūtēnsilis, fit for use, from ūtī, to use.]

u-ter-i (yōō'tə-rī') n. A plural of uterus.

u-ter-ine (yōō'tər-īn, -tə-rīn') adj. 1. Of, relating to, or in the region of the uterus: the uterine canal; uterine contractions. 2. Having the same mother but different fathers. [Middle English, from Late Latin uterīnus, from Latin uterus, uterus.]

u·ter·us (yōō'tər-əs) n. pl. u·ter·i (yōō'tə-rī') or u·ter·us·es. 1. A hollow muscular organ located in the pelvic cavity of female mammals in which the fertilized egg implants and develops. Also called womb 2. A corresponding part in other animals. [Middle English, from Latin.]

U Thant (ōō thānt', thānt') See U Thant.

U·ther Pen·dra·gon (yōō'thər pən-drəg'ən, ōō'-) n. In Arthurian legend, a king of Britain and the father of Arthur.

U·ti·ca (yōō'tī-kə) 1. An ancient city of northern Africa on the Mediterranean Sea northwest of Carthage. According to tradition, it was founded c. 1100 B.C. by Phoenicians from Tyre. The city declined in the first century B.C. and was finally destroyed by the Arabs c. A.D. 700. 2. A city of central New York east-northeast of Syracuse. Settled in 1773 on the site of Fort Schuyler (established in 1758), it developed as an industrial center after the opening of the Erie Canal in 1825. Population, 68,637.

util. abbr. Utility.

u·tile (yōōt'l, yōō'tīl') adj. Useful. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin ūtilis. See UTILITY.]

u·til·i·tar·i·an (yōō-tīl'ī-tār'ē-ən) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or in the interests of utility: utilitarian considerations in industrial design. 2. Exhibiting or stressing utility over other values; practical: plain, utilitarian kitchenware. 3. Of, characterized by, or advocating utilitarianism. — n. One who advocates or practices utilitarianism. [UTILIT(Y) + -ARIAN.]

u·til·i·tar·i·an·ism (yōō-tīl'ī-tār'ē-ən-īz'əm) n. 1. The belief that the value of a thing or an action is determined by its utility. 2. The ethical theory proposed by Jeremy Bentham and James Mill that all action should be directed toward achieving the greatest happiness for the greatest number of people. 3. The quality of being utilitarian: housing of bleak utilitarianism.

u·til·i·ty (yōō-tīl'ī-tē) n. pl. u·til·i·ties. 1. The quality or condition of being useful; usefulness: "I have always doubted the utility of these conferences on disarmament" (Winston S. Churchill). 2. A useful article or device. 3. Abbr. util. a. A public utility. b. A commodity or service, such as electricity, water, or public transportation, that is provided by a public utility. — adj. 1. Used, serving, or working in several capacities as needed, especially: a. Prepared to play any of the smaller theatrical roles on short notice: a utility cast member. b. Capable of playing as a substitute in any of several positions: a utility infielder. 2. Designed for various often heavy-duty practical uses: a utility knife; a utility vehicle. 3. Raised or kept for the production of a farm product rather than for show or as pets: utility livestock. 4. Of the lowest U.S. Government grade: utility beef. [Middle u·til·ize (yōōt'1-īz') v. tr. u·til·ized, u·til·iz·ing, u·til·iz·es. To put to use, especially to find a profitable or practical use for. See Synonyms at use. [French utiliser, from Italian utilizzare, from utile, useful, from Latin ūtilis, from ūtī, to use.] —u'til·iz'a·ble adj. —u'til·i·za'tion (-ī-zā'shən) n. —u'til·iz'er n.

English utilite, from Old French, from Latin ūtilitās, from ūtilis, useful, from ūtī, to use.]

USAGE NOTE: A number of critics have remarked that utilize is an unnecessary substitute for use. It is true that many occurrences of utilize could be replaced by use with no loss to anything but pretentiousness, for example, in sentences such as Barbara utilized (prefer used) questionable methods in her analysis or We hope that many commuters will continue to utilize (prefer use) mass transit after the bridge has reopened. But utilize can mean “to find a profitable or practical use for.” Thus the sentence The teachers were unable to use the new computers might mean only that the teachers were unable to turn the computers on, whereas The teachers were unable to utilize the new computers suggests that the teachers could not find ways to employ the computers in instruction.

ut·most (ūt'mōst') adj. 1. Being or situated at the most distant limit or point; farthest: the utmost tip of the peninsula. 2. Of the highest or greatest degree, amount, or intensity; most extreme: a matter of the utmost importance. — n. The greatest possible amount, degree, or extent; the maximum: worked every day to the utmost of her abilities. [Middle English, from Old English ūtmost : ūt, out; see ud- in Appendix + -mest, -most.]

U·to·Az·tec·an (yōō'tō-āz'tĕk'ən) n. 1. A language phylum of North and Central America that includes Ute, Hopi, Nahuatl, and Shoshone. 2. a. A tribe speaking a Uto-Aztec language. b. A member of such a tribe. — adj. Of or relating to the Uto-Aztecs or to the languages spoken by them. [From UTE + AZTEC.]

u·to·pi·a (yōō-tō'pē-ə) n. 1. a. Often Utopia. An ideally perfect place, especially in its social, political, and moral aspects. b. A work of fiction describing a utopia. 2. An impractical, idealistic scheme for social and political reform. [New Latin Ūtopia, imaginary island in Utopia by Sir Thomas More : Greek ou, not, no + Greek topos, place.]

u·to·pi·an (yōō-tō'pē-ən) adj. 1. Often Utopian. Of, relating to, describing or having the characteristics of a Utopia: a Utopian island; Utopian novels. 2. a. Excellent or ideal but impracticable; visionary: a utopian scheme for equalizing wealth. b. Proposing impracticably ideal schemes. — n. A zealous but impractical reformer of human society.

u·to·pi·an·ism also U·to·pi·an·ism (yōō-tō'pē-ə-nīz'əm) n. The ideals or principles of a utopian; idealistic and impractical social theory.

Utrecht (yōō'trēkt', ü'trēkt) A city of central Netherlands south-southeast of Amsterdam. Dating to pre-Roman times, it was an important textile and commercial center during the Middle Ages. The Treaty of Utrecht ended the War of the Spanish Succession (1701-1713). Population, 230,414.

u·tri·cle¹ (yōō'trī-kəl) n. 1. A membranous sac contained within the labyrinth of the inner ear and connected with the semicircular canals. 2. Botany. A small bladderlike one-seeded indehiscent fruit, as in the amaranth. [Latin utriculus, diminutive of uter, utr-, leather bottle, possibly from Greek hudria, water vessel, from hudōr, hudr-, water. See wed-¹ in Appendix.]

u·tri·cle² (yōō'trī-kəl) n. A small vestigial blind pouch of the prostate gland. [Latin utriculus, sac, diminutive of uterus, uterus.]

u·tric·u·lar¹ (yōō-trīk'yə-lər) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or resembling a utricule. 2. Having one or more utricles.

u·tric·u·lar² (yōō-trīk'yə-lər) adj. Relating to the uterus.

u·tric·u·lus (yōō-trīk'yə-ləs) n. pl. u·tric·u·li (-lī'). A sac or pouch.

U·tril·lo (yōō-trīl'ō, ü-trē-ō'), Maurice. 1883-1955. French painter known especially for his street scenes of Paris.

U·tsu·no·mi·ya (ōōt'sə-nō'mē-ə, ōō-tsoō'nō-mē'yä) A city of central Honshu, Japan, north of Tokyo. It is a resort and tobacco-processing center. Population, 405,384.

ut·ter¹ (üt'ər) v. tr. ut·tered, ut·ter·ing, ut·ters. 1. To send forth with the voice: uttered a cry. 2. To articulate (words); pronounce or speak. See Synonyms at vent¹. 3. Law. To put (counterfeit money, for example) into circulation. 4. To publish (a book, for example). 5. Obsolete. To sell or deliver (merchandise) in trading. [Middle English utteren, partly from Middle Low German uteren (from uter, outer, comparative of ūt, out); see ud- in Appendix, and alteration (influenced by utter, outer); see UTTER² of Middle English outen, to disclose (from out, out). See OUT.] —ut·ter·a·ble adj. —ut·ter·er n.

ut·ter² (üt'ər) adj. Complete; absolute; entire: utter nonsense; utter darkness. [Middle English, from Old English ūtera, outer. See ud- in Appendix.]

ut·ter·ance¹ (üt'ər-əns) n. 1. a. The act of uttering; vocal expression. b. The power of speaking; speech: as long as I have utterance. c. A manner of speaking: argued with forceful utterance. 2. Something uttered or expressed; a statement.

ut·ter·ance² (üt'ər-əns) n. The uttermost end or extremity; the bitter end. [Middle English, from Old French outrance, from outrer, to go beyond limits, from Vulgar Latin ultrāre*, from Latin ultrā, beyond. See al-¹ in Appendix.]

ut·ter·ly (üt'ər-lē) adv. Completely; absolutely; entirely.

ut·ter·most (üt'ər-mōst') adj. 1. Utmost. 2. Outermost. — n. The greatest amount or degree possible; the utmost. [Middle English : utter, outer; see UTTER² + -most, -most.]

U-turn (yōō'tûrn') n. A turn, as by a vehicle, completely reversing the direction of travel.

UV also U.V. abbr. Ultraviolet.

u·va·rov·ite (yōō-vär'ə-vīt', ōō-) n. An emerald-green variety of garnet, $\text{Ca}_3\text{Cr}_2(\text{SiO}_4)_3$, found in chromium deposits. [After Count Sergei Semenovitch Uvarov (1785-1855), president of the St. Petersburg Academy.]

u·ve·a (yōō'vĕ-ə) n. The vascular middle layer of the eye constituting the iris, ciliary body, and choroid. [Medieval Latin ūvea, from Latin ūva, grape.]
—u·ve·al adj.

u·ve·i·tis (yōō'vĕ-ī'tīs) n. Inflammation of the uvea. [UVE(A) + -ITIS.]

u·vu·la (yōō'vyə-lə) n. A small, conical, fleshy mass of tissue suspended from the center of the soft palate. [Middle English, from Late Latin ūvula, diminutive of Latin ūva, grape (from the organ's shape).]

u·vu·lar (yōō'vyə-lər) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or associated with the uvula.

2. Linguistics. Articulated by vibration of the uvula or with the back of the tongue near or touching the uvula.

u·vu·li·tis (yōō'vyə-lī'tīs) n. Inflammation of the uvula. [UVUL(A) + -ITIS.]

UW abbr. 1. Underwriter. 2. Underwritten.

ux. abbr. Latin. Uxor (wife).

UXB abbr. Unexploded bomb.

Ux·mal (ōōs-mäl') An ancient ruined Mayan city of Yucatán in southeast Mexico. It flourished from 600 to 900. The ruins include many impressive structures, such as the Pyramid of the Magician.

ux·o·ri·al (ük-sôr'ĕ-əl, -sôr'-, ŭg-zôr'-, -zôr'-) adj. Of a wife; regarded as befitting a wife. [From Latin uxōrius, from uxor, uxōr-, wife.] —ux·o·ri·al·ly adv.

ux·o·ri·cide (ük-sôr'ĭ-sīd', -sôr'-, ŭg-zôr'-, -zôr'-) n. 1. The killing of a wife by her husband. 2. A man who kills his wife. [Medieval Latin uxōricidium: Latin uxor, uxōr-, wife + Latin -cidium, -cide.]

ux·o·ri·ous (ük-sôr'ĕ-əs, -sôr'-, ŭg-zôr'-, -zôr'-) adj. Excessively submissive or devoted to one's wife. [From Latin uxōrius, from uxor, uxōr-, wife.]

—ux·o·ri·ous·ly adv. —ux·o·ri·ous·ness n.

Uz·bek (ōōz'bĕk', ŭz'-) n. pl. Uzbek or Uz·beks. 1. A member of a Turkic people inhabiting Uzbekistan and neighboring areas. 2. The Turkic language of the Uzbeks. [Russian, from Uzbek ŭzbek.]

Uz·bek·i·stan (ōōz-bĕk'ĭ-stän', -stän', ŭz-) A region and republic of west-central Asia. Settled in ancient times, it was conquered by Alexander the Great, Genghis Khan, and Tamerlane and finally overrun by Uzbek peoples in the early 16th century. Russia conquered the area in the 19th century. It was a constituent republic of U.S.S.R. from 1924 to 1991. Tashkent is the capital. Population, 17,974,000.

v or V (vē) n. pl. v's or V's. 1. The 22nd letter of the modern English alphabet.

2. Any of the speech sounds represented by the letter v. 3. The 22nd in a series.

4. Something shaped like the letter V.

V¹ 1. The symbol for the element vanadium. 2. Electricity. The symbol for potential (n., sense 5). 3. Also v. The symbol for the Roman numeral 5.

V² abbr. 1. Physics. Velocity. 2. Victory. 3. Electricity. Volt. 4. Volume (size or capacity).

V-1 (vē'wŭn') n. A robot bomb deployed by the Germans in World War II. [German Vergeltungswaffe eins, retaliation weapon (number) one.]

V-2 (vē'tōō') n. A long-range liquid-fuel rocket used by the Germans as a ballistic missile in World War II. [German Vergeltungswaffe zwei, retaliation weapon (number) two.]

v. abbr. 1. Verb. 2. Verse. 3. Version. 4. Printing. Verso. 5. Versus. 6. Or V. Very (in titles). 7. Vide. 8. Or V. Village. 9. Violin. 10. Vocative. 11. Voice. 12. Volume (book). 13. Vowel.

V. abbr. 1. Venerable (in titles). 2. Viscount; viscountess.

VA or Va. abbr. Virginia.

V.A. abbr. 1. Also VA. Veterans' Administration. 2. Vicar apostolic.

Vaal (vāl) A river rising in eastern South Africa and flowing about 1,207 km (750 mi) southwest to the Orange River.

Vaa-sa (vā'sə, -sä) A city of western Finland on the Gulf of Bothnia northwest of Helsinki. Chartered in 1606, it was rebuilt after a devastating fire in 1852. Population, 54,497.

VAB abbr. Voice answer back.

vac¹ (vāk) n. Informal. A vacuum cleaner.

vac² (vāk) n. Informal. A vacation.

vac. abbr. Vacuum.

va-can-cy (vā'kən-sē) n. pl. va-can-cies. 1. The condition of being vacant or unoccupied. 2. An empty or unoccupied space. 3. A position, an office, or a place of accommodation that is unfilled or unoccupied. 4. Emptiness of mind; inanity. 5. A crystal defect caused by the absence of an atom, an ion, or a molecule in a crystal lattice. 6. Archaic. A period of leisure; idleness.

va-cant (vā'kənt) adj. 1. Containing nothing; empty. 2. Without an incumbent or occupant; unfilled: a vacant position. 3. Not occupied or put to use: a vacant lot. 4. Law. Not claimed by an heir: a vacant estate. 5. a. Lacking intelligence or knowledge: a vacant mind. b. Lacking expression; blank: a vacant stare. 6. Not filled with any activity: vacant hours. See Synonyms at empty. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin vacāns, vacant- present participle of vacāre, to be empty. See eu-² in Appendix.] —va'cant·ly adv. —va'cant·ness n.

va-cate (vā'kāt', vā-kāt') v. va·cat·ed, va·cat·ing, va·cates. — v. tr.

1. a. To cease to occupy or hold; give up. b. To empty of occupants or incumbents. 2. Law. To make void or annul; countermand: vacate a death sentence.

— v. intr. To leave a job, an office, or a lodging. [Latin vacāre, vacāt-, to be empty. See eu-² in Appendix.]

va-ca-tion (vā-kā'shən, və-) n. 1. A period of time devoted to pleasure, rest, or relaxation, especially one with pay granted to an employee. 2. a. A holiday. b. A fixed period of holidays, especially one during which a school, court, or business suspends activities. 3. Archaic. The act or an instance of vacating. — v. intr.

va-ca-tioned, va-ca-tion-ing, va-ca-tions. To take or spend a vacation. [Middle English vacacioun, from Old French vacation, from Latin vacātiō, vacātiōn-, freedom from occupation, from vacātus, past participle of vacāre, to be empty, at leisure. See eu-² in Appendix.] — va-ca'tion-er, va-ca'tion-er' (-shə-nîr') n.

— va-ca'tion-less adj.

va-ca-tion-ist (vā-kā'shə-nîst, və-) n. One who is on vacation.

va-ca-tion-land (vā-kā'shən-länd') n. A place with special attractions for those on vacation.

Vac-a-ville (vāk'ə-vîl') A city of central California west-southwest of Sacramento. It is a processing center. Population, 71,479.

vac-ci-nal (vāk'sə-nəl, vāk-sē'-) adj. 1. Of or relating to vaccination or a vaccine. 2. Induced by vaccination.

vac-ci-nate (vāk'sə-nāt') v. vac-ci-nat-ed, vac-ci-nat-ing, vac-ci-nates. — v. tr. To inoculate with a vaccine in order to produce immunity to an infectious disease such as diphtheria or typhus. — v. intr. To perform vaccinations or a vaccination. — vac'ci-na'tor n.

vac-ci-na-tion (vāk'sə-nā'shən) n. 1. Inoculation with a vaccine in order to protect against a particular disease. 2. A scar left on the skin by vaccinating.

vac-cine (vāk-sēn' vāk'sēn') n. 1. a. A preparation of a weakened or killed pathogen, such as a bacterium or virus, or of a portion of the pathogen's structure that upon administration stimulates antibody production against the pathogen but is incapable of causing severe infection. b. A vaccine prepared from the cowpox virus and inoculated against smallpox. 2. Computer Science. Software designed to detect and stop the progress of a computer virus. [From Latin vaccīnus, of cows, from vacca, cow.]

vac-ci-nee (vāk'sə-nē') n. One that has been vaccinated.

vac-cin-i-a (vāk-sîn'ē-ə) n. See cowpox. [New Latin vaccīnia, from Latin vaccīnus, of cows. See VACCINE.] — vac-cin'i-al adj.

vac-il-lant (väs'ə-lənt) adj. Undergoing vacillation; wavering.

vac-il-late (väs'ə-lāt') v. intr. vac-il-lat-ed, vac-il-lat-ing, vac-il-lates. 1. To sway from one side to the other; oscillate. 2. To swing indecisively from one course of action or opinion to another. See Synonyms at hesitate. [Latin vacillāre, vacillāt-, to waver.] — vac'il-lat'ing-ly adv. — vac'il-la'tion n.

— vac'il-la'tor n.

vac-il-la-to-ry (väs'ə-lə-tôr'ē, -tôr'ē) adj. Inclined to waver; irresolute.

vac-u-a (väk'yōō-ə) n. A plural of vacuum.

va-cu-i-ty (vä-kyōō'ī-tē, və-) n. pl. vac-u-i-ties. 1. Total absence of matter; emptiness. 2. An empty space; a vacuum. 3. Total lack of ideas; emptiness of mind. 4. Absence of meaningful occupation; idleness: “the crew, being patient people, much given to slumber and vacuity” (Washington Irving). 5. The quality or fact of being devoid of something specified: a vacuity of taste; a vacuity of emotions. 6. Something, especially a remark, that is pointless or inane: a conversation full of vacuities. [Middle English vacuite, from Old French, from Latin vacuitās, from vacuus, empty. See VACUUM.]

vacuolar membrane (väk'yōō-ō'lər mēm'brän') n. See tonoplast.

vac-u-o-lat-ed (väk'yōō-ō-lä'tid) also vac-u-o-late (-lä't, -līt) adj. Containing vacuoles or a vacuole.

vac-u-ole (väk'yōō-ōl') n. A small cavity in the cytoplasm of a cell, bound by a single membrane and containing water, food, or metabolic waste. [French, from Latin vacuus, empty. See VACUUM.] —vac'u-o-lar (-ō'lər, -lär') adj.

—vac'u-o-la'tion n.

vac-u-ous (väk'yōō-əs) adj. 1. Devoid of matter; empty. 2. a. Lacking intelligence; stupid. b. Devoid of substance or meaning; inane: a vacuous comment. c. Devoid of expression; vacant: “The narrow, swinelike eyes were open, no more vacuous in death than they had been in life” (Nicholas Proffitt). 3. Lacking serious purpose or occupation; idle. See Synonyms at empty. [From Latin vacuus, empty. See VACUUM.] —vac'u-ous-ly adv. —vac'u-ous-ness n.

vac-u-um (väk'yōō-əm, -yōōm, -yəm) n. pl. vac-u-ums or vac-u-a (-yōō-ə). Abbr. vac. 1. a. Absence of matter. b. A space empty of matter. c. A space relatively empty of matter. d. A space in which the pressure is significantly lower than atmospheric pressure. 2. A state of emptiness; a void. 3. A state of being sealed off from external or environmental influences; isolation. 4. pl. vac-uums. A vacuum cleaner. — adj. 1. Of, relating to, or used to create a vacuum. 2. Containing air or other gas at a reduced pressure. 3. Operating by means of suction or by maintaining a partial vacuum. — v. tr. intr. vac-u-umed, vac-u-um-ing, vac-u-umes. To clean with or use a vacuum cleaner. [Latin, empty space, from neuter of vacuus, empty, from vacāre, to be empty. See eu-2 in Appendix.]

vacuum bottle (väk'yōō-əm bö'tl) n. A bottle or flask having a vacuum between its inner and outer walls, designed to maintain the desired temperature of the contents.

vacuum casting (väk'yōō-əm käs'ting) n. The casting of metals under a vacuum.

vacuum cleaner (väk'yōō-əm klē'nər) n. An electrical appliance that cleans surfaces by suction.

vacuum drying (vǎk'yōō-əm drī'ing) n. Removal of liquid material from a solution or mixture under reduced air pressure, which results in drying at a lower temperature than is required at full pressure.

vacuum gauge (vǎk'yōō-əm gāj) n. A device for measuring pressures below atmospheric pressure.

vac-u-um-packed (vǎk'yōō-əm-pǎkt', -yōōm-, vǎk'yəm-) adj. 1. Packed in an airtight container. 2. Sealed under low pressure or a partial vacuum.

vacuum pump (vǎk'yōō-əm pŭmp) n. 1. A pump used to evacuate an enclosure. 2. See pulsometer.

vacuum tube (vǎk'yōō-əm tōōb) n. Abbr. VT An electron tube from which all or most of the gas has been removed, permitting electrons to move with low interaction with any remaining gas molecules.

va-de me-cum (vā'dē mē'kəm, vā'dē mā'-) n. pl. va-de me-cums. 1. A useful thing that one constantly carries about. 2. A book, such as a guidebook, for ready reference. [Latin vāde mēcum, go with me : vāde, sing. imperative of vādere, to go + mē, ablative sing. of egō, I + cum, with.]

V.Adm. or VADM abbr. Vice admiral.

va-dose (vā'dōs') adj. Of, relating to, or being water that is located in the zone of aeration in the earth's crust above the ground water level. [Latin vadōsus, shallow, from vadum, a shallow, ford.]

Va-duz (vā-dōōts', fā-) The capital of Liechtenstein, in the western part of the country on the Rhine River. Destroyed during a conflict between Switzerland and the Holy Roman Empire (1499), it was rebuilt in the 1520's and is now a tourist center. Population, 4,927.

vag-a-bond (vǎg'ə-bōnd') n. 1. A person without a permanent home who moves from place to place. 2. A vagrant; a tramp. 3. A wanderer; a rover. — adj. 1. Of, relating to, or characteristic of a wanderer; nomadic. 2. Aimless; drifting. 3. Irregular in course or behavior; unpredictable. — v. intr.

vag-a-bond-ed, vag-a-bond-ing, vag-a-bonds. To lead the life of a vagabond; roam about. [Middle English vagabonde, from Old French vagabond, from Late Latin vagābundus, wandering, from Latin vagārī, to wander, from vagus, wandering.] — vag'a-bond'age n. — vag'a-bond'ism n.

va-gal (vā'gəl) adj. Of or relating to the vagus nerve. — va'gal-ly adv.

va-ga-ry (vā'gə-rē, və-gâr'ē) n. pl. va-ga-ries. An extravagant or erratic notion or action. See Synonyms at caprice. [From Latin vagārī, to wander, from vagus, wandering.]

va-gi (vā'gī, -jī) n. Plural of vagus.

vag-ile (vǎj'əl, -il) adj. Characterized by vagility; able to move about or disperse in a given environment: a vagile animal species. [Latin vagus, wandering + *-ile*¹.]

va-gil-i-ty (və-jil'i-tē, vā-) n. The capacity or tendency of an organism or a species to move about or disperse in a given environment.

va-gi-na (və-jī'nə) n. pl. va-gi-nas or va-gi-nae (-nē). 1. Anatomy. a. The passage leading from the opening of the vulva to the cervix of the uterus in female mammals. b. A similar part in some invertebrates. 2. Botany. A sheath-like structure, such as the leaf of a grass that surrounds a stem. [Latin vāgīna, sheath.]

vag-i-nal (vāj'ə-nəl) adj. 1. Of or relating to the vagina. 2. Relating to or resembling a sheath. —vag'i-nal-ly adv.

vag-i-nate (vāj'ə-nīt, -nāt') also vag-i-nat-ed (-nā'tīd) adj. 1. Forming or enclosed in a sheath. 2. Resembling a sheath.

vag-i-nec-to-my (vāj'ə-nĕk'tə-mē) n. pl. vag-i-nec-to-mies. 1. Surgical removal of all or part of the vagina. 2. Surgical removal of the serous membrane covering the testis and epididymus.

vag-i-nis-mus (vāj'ə-nīz'məs) n. A usually prolonged and painful contraction or spasm of the vagina. [New Latin : VAGIN(A) + Latin -ismus, -ism.]

vag-i-ni-tis (vāj'ə-nī'tīs) n. Inflammation of the vagina. Also called colpitis va-got-o-my (vā-gōt'ə-mē) n. pl. va-got-o-mies. Surgical division of fibers of the vagus nerve, used to diminish acid secretion of the stomach and control a duodenal ulcer. [VAG(US) + -TOMY.]

va-go-to-ni-a (vā'gə-tō'nē-ə) n. Overactivity or irritability of the vagus nerve, adversely affecting function of the blood vessels, stomach, and muscles. [VAG(US) + -TONIA.] —va'go-ton'ic (-tōn'īk) adj.

va-go-tro-pic (vā'gə-trō'pīk, -trōp'īk) adj. Affecting or acting on the vagus nerve. Used chiefly of a drug. [VAG(US) + -TROPIC.]

va-gran-cy (vā'grən-sē) n. pl. va-gran-cies. 1. a. The state of being a vagrant. b. The conduct or mode of existence of a vagrant. c. The offense of being a vagrant. 2. A wandering in mind or thought.

va-grant (vā'grənt) n. 1. One who wanders from place to place without a permanent home or a means of livelihood. 2. A wanderer; a rover. 3. One who lives on the streets and constitutes a public nuisance. — adj. 1. Wandering from place to place and lacking any means of support. 2. Wayward; unrestrained: a vagrant impulse. 3. Moving in a random fashion; not fixed in place: "Thanks to a vagrant current of the Gulf Stream, a stretch of the Kola coast is free of ice year round" (Jack Beatty). [Middle English vagraunt, probably alteration of Old French wacrant, present participle of wacrer, to wander, of Germanic origin.] —va'grant-ly adv.

vague (vāg) adj. vagu-er, vagu-est. 1. Not clearly expressed; inexplicit. 2. Not thinking or expressing oneself clearly. 3. Lacking definite shape, form, or character; indistinct: saw a vague outline of a building through the fog. 4. Not clear in meaning or application. See Synonyms at ambiguous. 5. Indistinctly felt, perceived, understood, or recalled; hazy: a vague uneasiness. [French, from Old French, wandering, from Latin vagus.] —vague'ly adv. —vague'ness n.

va-gus (vā'gəs) n. pl. va-gi (-gī, -jī). The vagus nerve.

vagus nerve (vā'gəs nûrv) n. Either of the tenth and longest of the cranial nerves, passing through the neck and thorax into the abdomen and supplying sensation to part of the ear, the tongue, the larynx, and the pharynx, motor impulses to the vocal cords, and motor and secretory impulses to the abdominal and thoracic viscera. Also called pneumogastric nerve [New Latin (nervus) vagus, wandering (nerve), from Latin.]

Váh (vā, vākH) A river, about 394 km (245 mi) long, of western Slovakia flowing west and south to the Danube River.

va-hi-ne (vā-hē'nē, -nā) n. Variant of wahine.

vail¹ (vāl) v. vailed, vail-ing, vails. Archaic. — v. tr. 1. To lower (a banner, for example). 2. To doff (one's hat) as a token of respect or submission. — v. intr. 1. To descend; lower. 2. To doff one's hat. [Middle English valen, short for avalen, from Old French avaler, from aval, downward, from Latin ad vallem, to the valley : ad, ad- + vallem, accusative of vallēs, valley; see wel-² in Appendix.]

vail² (vāl) n. Obsolete. Variant of veil.

vain (vān) adj. vain-er, vain-est. 1. Not yielding the desired outcome; fruitless: a vain attempt. 2. Lacking substance or worth: vain talk. 3. Excessively proud of one's appearance or accomplishments; conceited. 4. Archaic. Foolish. — idiom. in vain. 1. To no avail; without success: Our labor was in vain. 2. In an irreverent or disrespectful manner: took the name of the Lord in vain. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin vānus, empty. See eu-² in Appendix.] — vain/ly adv. — vain/ness n.

SYNONYMS: vain, empty, hollow, idle, nugatory, otiose. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “lacking value or substance”: vain regrets; empty pleasures; hollow threats; idle dreams; nugatory commentaries; an otiose belief in alchemy. See also Synonyms at futile vain-glo-ri-ous (vān-glôr'ē-əs, -glôr'-) adj. 1. Characterized by or exhibiting excessive vanity; boastful. 2. Proceeding from vainglory. — vain-glo/ri-ous-ly adv. — vain-glo/ri-ous-ness n.

vain-glo-ry (vān'glôr'ē, -glôr'ē, vān-glôr'ē, -glôr'ē) n. pl. vain-glo-ries.

1. Boastful, unwarranted pride in one's accomplishments or qualities. 2. Vain, ostentatious display. [Middle English vein glory, from Old French vaine gloire, from Latin vāna glōria, empty pride : vānus, empty; see VAIN + glōria, glory, pride.]

vair (vâr) n. 1. A fur, probably squirrel, much used in medieval times to line and trim robes. 2. Heraldry. A representation of fur. [Middle English vair, from Old French vair, variegated, vair, from Latin varius, variegated.]

Vaish·na·va (vīsh'nə-və) n. Hinduism. One who worships Vishnu. [From Sanskrit vaiṣṇava-, relating to Vishnu, from Viṣṇuḥ, Vishnu.] — Vaish'na·vism (-vīz'əm) n.

Vais·ya (vī'shə, vīsh'yə) n. 1. The third of the four Hindu classes, comprising farmers, herders, artisans, merchants, and businessmen. 2. A member of this class. [Sanskrit vaiśyaḥ, settler, homesteader, from viśaḥ, house. See weik-¹ in Appendix.]

val. abbr. 1. Valley. 2. Valuation; value.

Va·la·don (vā-lā-dōn'), Suzanne. 1865?-1938. French painter known for her characteristically strong depictions of the female nude and her many self-portraits, which reflect trends of postimpressionism and fauvism.

val·ance (vāl'əns, vā'ləns) n. 1. An ornamental drapery hung across a top edge, as of a bed, table, or canopy. 2. A short drapery, decorative board, or metal strip mounted especially across the top of a window to conceal structural fixtures. — v. tr. val·anced, val·ancing, val·anc·es. To supply with valances or a valance. [Middle English.]

Val·dai Hills also Val·day Hills (vāl-dī' hīlz) An upland region of western Russia between St. Petersburg and Moscow. It forms the watershed for numerous rivers, including the Volga, the Western Dvina, and the Dnieper.

Val·de·mar I (vāl'də-mär') See Waldemar I.

Val·dez (vāl-dēz') A city of southern Alaska on an inlet of Prince William Sound. A military base during World War II, it is the southern terminus of the oil pipeline from Prudhoe Bay. An oil spill in the waters of the sound caused extensive environmental damage in 1989. Population, 4,068.

Val·di·via (vāl-dē'vē-ə, bāl-dē'vyä) A city of south-central Chile near the Pacific Ocean south of Concepción. Founded in 1552, it grew rapidly after the arrival of German immigrants in the mid-19th century. Population, 100,046.

Val·di·via (vāl-dē'vē-ə, bāl-dē'vyä), Pedro de. 1498-1553. Spanish conquistador who conquered Chile (1540) and founded Santiago (1541).

Val·do (vāl'dō, vāl'-), Peter. See Peter Waldo.

Val d'Or (vāl' dōr', vāl dōr') A town of southwest Quebec, Canada, near the Ontario border. It is a mining and lumbering center. Population, 21,321.

Val·dos·ta (vāl-dōs'tə) A city of southern Georgia near the Florida border east-northeast of Tallahassee. Settled in 1859, it is a processing and trade center. Population, 39,806.

vale¹ (vāl) n. A valley, often coursed by a stream; a dale. [Middle English, from Old French val, from Latin vallēs. See wel-² in Appendix.]

va·le² (vā'lē, wā'lā) interj. Used to express leave-taking or farewell. — n. A farewell. [Latin valē, sing. imperative of valēre, to be strong or well. See wal- in Appendix.]

val·e·dic·tion (vāl'ī-dīk'shən) n. 1. An act of bidding farewell; a leave-taking. 2. A speech or statement made as a farewell. [From Latin valedictus, past participle of valedicere, to say farewell : valē, farewell; see VALE² + dīcere, to say; see deik- in Appendix.]

val·e·dic·to·ri·an (vāl'ī-dīk-tōr'ē-ən, -tōr'-) n. The student with the highest academic rank in a class who delivers the valedictory at graduation.

val·e·dic·to·ry (vāl'ī-dīk'tə-rē) n. pl. val·e·dic·to·ries. A closing or farewell statement or address, especially one delivered at graduation exercises. — adj. Of, relating to, or expressing a valedictory.

va·lence (vā'ləns) also va·len·cy (-lən-sē) n. pl. val·lenc·es also val·len·cies.

1. Chemistry. a. The combining capacity of an atom or a radical determined by the number of electrons that it will lose, add, or share when it reacts with other atoms. b. A positive or negative integer used to represent this capacity: The valences of copper are 1 and 2. 2. Immunology. The number of components of an antigen molecule to which an antibody molecule can bind. 3. Psychology. The attraction or aversion that an individual feels toward a specific object or event. 4. The capacity of something to unite, react, or interact with something else: “I do not claim to know much more about novels than the writing of them, but I cannot imagine one set in the breathing world which lacks any moral valence” (Robert Stone). [Latin valentia, capacity, from Latin valēns, valent- present participle of valēre, to be strong. See wal- in Appendix.]

Va·lence (və-lāns', vā-) A city of southeast France on the Rhone River south of Lyons. Settled in Roman times, it was captured by the Visigoths in A.D. 413 and the Arabs c. 730. Population, 66,356.

valence electron (vā'ləns ĭ-lĕk'trŏn') n. An electron in an outer shell of an atom that can participate in forming chemical bonds with other atoms.

valence shell (vā'ləns shĕl) n. The outermost shell of an atom consisting of the valence electrons.

Va·len·ci·a (və-lĕn'shē-ə, -chə, -sē-ə) 1. (also bā-lĕn'thyä) A region and former kingdom of eastern Spain on the Mediterranean coast south of Catalonia. Inhabited by Iberian peoples in early times, it was colonized by Greek and Carthaginian traders and fell to the Moors in the eighth century. The Cid ruled the region and the city of Valencia from 1094 until his death in 1099. 2. (also bā-lĕn'thyä) A city of eastern Spain on the Gulf of Valencia, a wide inlet of the Mediterranean Sea. First mentioned as a Roman colony in 138 B.C., Valencia was taken by the Visigoths in A.D. 413 and the Moors in 714. Population, 785,273. 3. (also bā-lĕn'syä) A city of northern Venezuela west-southwest of Caracas on the western shore of Lake Valencia. Founded in 1555, it is a major industrial center. Population, 523,000.

Va·len·ci·ennes¹ (və-lĕn'sē-ĕnz', vǎ-lāN-syĕn') A city of northern France near the Belgian border southeast of Lille. An important medieval town, it became noted for its lace industry in the 15th century. Population, 40,275.

Va·len·ci·ennes² (və-lĕn'sē-ĕn', -ĕnz', vǎl'ən-sē-) n. A fine lace with a floral pattern.

va·len·cy (vā'lən-sē) n. Variant of valence.

Va·lens (vā'lənz, -lĕnz'), A.D. 328?-378. Emperor of Rome in the East (364-378) who ruled in conjunction with his brother Valentinian I in the West.

-valent suffix. Having a specified valence or valences: polyvalent. [From VALENCE.]

val·en·tine (vǎl'ən-tĭn') n. 1. a. A sentimental or humorous greeting card sent to a sweetheart, friend, or family member, for example, on Saint Valentine's Day. b. A gift sent as a token of love to one's sweetheart on Saint Valentine's Day. 2. A person singled out especially as one's sweetheart on Saint Valentine's Day.

WORD HISTORY: Geoffrey Chaucer should perhaps receive honor as the real Saint Valentine. Although reference books abound with mention of Roman festivals from which Valentine's Day—the day for lovers—may be derived, Jack B. Oruch has shown that no evidence exists to support these connections and that Chaucer is most likely the first to link the saint's day with the custom of choosing sweethearts. No link between the day and lovers exists before the time of Chaucer and several literary contemporaries who also mention it, but after them the link becomes widespread, a circumstance that makes it seem likely that Chaucer, the most imaginative of the group, invented the tradition. The fullest and perhaps earliest description of the tradition occurs in Chaucer's Parlement of Foules, composed around 1380, which takes place “on Seynt Valentynes day,/Whan every foul cometh there to chese [choose] his make [mate].”

Val·en·tine (vǎl'ən-tĭn'), Saint. fl. third century A.D. Roman Christian who according to tradition was martyred during the persecution of Christians by Emperor Claudius II. Another martyr named Valentine, who was bishop of Terni, a region in present-day central Italy, has also been suggested as the inspiration for our modern feast of Saint Valentine's Day.

Val·en·tine's Day or Val·en·tines Day (vǎl'ən-tĭnz' dā) n. See Saint Valentine's Day.

Val·en·tin·ian I (vǎl'ən-tĭn'ē-ən, -tĭn'yən), A.D. 321-375. Emperor of Rome in the West (364-375) who ruled jointly with his brother Valens in the East.

Val·en·tin·ian II (vǎl'ən-tĭn'ē-ən, -tĭn'yən), A.D. 371?-392. Emperor of Rome (375-392) who ruled jointly with Gratian in the East (375-383). He was driven from Italy (387) and assassinated in Vienna.

Val·en·tin·ian III (văl'ən-tĭn'ē-ən, -tĭn'yən), A.D. 419-455. Emperor of Rome in the West (425-455) whose reign was marked by numerous raids by Germanic tribes.

Val·en·ti·no (văl'yĭn-tē'nō), Rudolph. 1895-1926. Italian-born American actor known for his romantic leading roles in silent films such as The Sheik (1921) and Blood and Sand (1922).

Va·le·ra (və-lâr'ə, bā-lĕ'ră) A city of northwest Venezuela southwest of Barquisimeto. It is a commercial center in an agricultural region. Population, 115,000.

Va·le·ra y Al·ca·lá Ga·lia·no (və-lĕr'ə ē ä'l'kə-lä' gäl'ē-ä'nō, bā-lĕ'ră ē ä'l'kə-lä' gä-lyä'nō), Juan. 1824-1905. Spanish diplomat and writer of novels, such as Pepita Jiménez (1874), short stories, and literary criticism.

va·le·ri·an (və-lĭr'ē-ən) n. 1. A plant of the genus Valeriana, especially V. officinalis, native to Eurasia and widely cultivated for its small, fragrant, white to pink or lavender flowers and for use in medicine. 2. The dried rhizomes of this plant, used medicinally as a sedative. [Middle English, from Old French valeriane, from Medieval Latin valeriāna, probably from feminine of Latin Valeriānus, of Valeria, Roman province where the plant originated.]

Va·le·ri·an (və-lĭr'ē-ən), Died c. A.D. 260. Emperor of Rome (253-260) whose reign was marked by military and financial troubles. He was defeated by Persian forces (260) and died in captivity.

va·le·ric acid (və-lĭr'ĭk äs'ĭd, -lĕr'-) n. A colorless liquid, C₅H₁₀O₂, used in flavorings, perfumes, plasticizers, and pharmaceuticals. [From VALERIAN, from its occurrence in the plant's root.]

Va·lé·ry (văl'ə-rĕ', vā-lā-rĕ'), Paul Ambroise. 1871-1945. French poet known for his dramatic dialogues, such as La Jeune Parque (1917), and symbolic works, including Le Cimetière Marin (1932).

va·let (văl'ĭt, văl'ā, vā-lā') n. 1. A man's male servant, who takes care of his clothes and performs other personal services. 2. An employee, as in a hotel or on a ship, who performs personal services for guests or passengers. — v.

va·let·ed, va·let·ing, va·lets. — v. tr. To act as a personal servant to; attend. — v. intr. To work as a valet. [Middle English valette, from Old French vaslet, valet, servant, squire, from Vulgar Latin vassellitus*, diminutive of vassus, vassal. See VASSAL.]

valet parking (văl'ĭt pär'kĭng) n. Parking arrangements provided by a commercial establishment, such as a restaurant, whereby patrons leave their cars at the entrance and attendants park and retrieve them.

va·le·tu·di·nar·i·an (văl'ĭ-tōōd'n-âr'ē-ən, -tyōōd'-) n. A sickly or weak person, especially one who is constantly and morbidly concerned with his or her health: “She affected to be spunky about her ailments and afflictions, but she was in fact an utterly self-centered valetudinarian” (Louis Auchincloss). — adj.

1. Chronically ailing; sickly. 2. Constantly and morbidly concerned with one's health. [From Latin valētūdinārius, from valētūdō, valētūdin-, state of health, from valēre, to be strong or well. See wal- in Appendix.]

—val'e-tu'di-nar'i-an-ism n.

val·e·tu·di·nar·y (vāl'ī-tōōd'n-ēr'ē, -tyōōd'-) adj. Of, relating to, or typical of a valetudinarian. — n. pl. val·e·tu·di·nar·ies. A valetudinarian.

val·gus (vāl'gəs) adj. 1. Characterized by an abnormal outward turning of a bone, especially of the hip, knee, or foot. 2. Knock-kneed. — n. A valgus bone. [From Latin, bowlegged.] —val'goid' (-goid') adj.

Val·hal·la (vāl-hāl'ə, vāl-hä'lə) also Wal·hal·la (wāl-hāl'ə, vāl-, wäl-hä'lə, vāl-) n. Mythology. The hall in which Odin received the souls of slain heroes. [Old Norse Valhöll : valr, the slain in battle; see welə- in Appendix + höll, hall, hall; see kel¹ in Appendix.]

val·iant (vāl'yənt) adj. 1. Possessing valor; brave. 2. Marked by or done with valor. See Synonyms at brave. — n. A brave person. [Middle English, from Old French vaillant, from Latin valēns, valent- present participle of valēre, to be strong. See wal- in Appendix.] —val'ian·cy, val'iance, val'iant·ness n.
—val'iant·ly adv.

val·id (vāl'id) adj. 1. Well grounded; just: a valid objection. 2. Producing the desired results; efficacious: valid methods. 3. Having legal force; effective or binding: a valid title. 4. Logic. a. Containing premises from which the conclusion may logically be derived: a valid argument. b. Correctly inferred or deduced from a premise: a valid conclusion. 5. Archaic. Of sound health; robust. [French valide, from Old French, from Latin validus, strong, from valēre, to be strong. See wal- in Appendix.] —va·lid'i·ty, va'lid·ness n. —va'lid·ly adv.

SYNONYMS: valid, sound, cogent, convincing, telling. These adjectives describe assertions, arguments, conclusions, reasons, or intellectual processes that are persuasive because they are well founded, as in fact, logic, or rationality. What is valid is based on or borne out by truth or fact or has legal force: a valid excuse; a valid claim. What is sound is free from logical flaws or is based on valid reasoning: a sound theory; sound principles. Something cogent is both sound and compelling: cogent testimony; a cogent explanation. Convincing implies the power to dispel doubt or overcome resistance or opposition: convincing proof. Telling means strikingly effective: The attorney's summation was telling.

val·i·date (vāl'ī-dāt') v. tr. val·i·dat·ed, val·i·dat·ing, val·i·dates. 1. To declare or make legally valid. 2. To mark with an indication of official sanction. 3. To establish the soundness of; corroborate. See Synonyms at confirm.
—val'i·da'tion n.

val·ine (vǎl'ēn', vā'lēn') n. An essential amino acid, C₅H₁₁NO₂. [VAL(ERIC ACID) + -INE².]

val·in·o·my·cin (vǎl'ə-nō-mī'sin) n. An antibiotic, C₅₄H₉₀N₆O₁₈, produced by the actinomycete B Streptomyces fulvissimus, that increases the transport of potassium across cell membranes. [VALIN(E) + -MYCIN.]

va·lise (və-lēs') n. A small piece of hand luggage. [French, from Italian valigia.]

Val·i·um (vǎl'ē-əm) A trademark used for diazepam.

Val·kyr·ie (vǎl-kîr'ē, -kî'rē, vǎl'kə-rē) also Wal·kyr·ie (wǎl-kîr'ē, -kî'rē, vǎl-, wǎl'kə-rē, vǎl'-) n. Mythology. Any of Odin's handmaidens who conducted the souls of the slain to Valhalla. [Old Norse Valkyrja. See welə- in Appendix.]

Val·la·do·lid (vǎl'ə-də-lid', bǎ'lyä-thô-lēth') A city of northwest-central Spain north-northwest of Madrid. It became the chief residence of the Castilian court in the mid-15th century and was the site of the marriage of Ferdinand and Isabella in 1469. Population, 331,404.

val·la·tion (vǎ-lā'shən) n. 1. An earthwork wall used for military defense; a rampart. 2. The process of planning or erecting earth fortifications. [Late Latin vallātiō, vallātiōn-, from Latin vallātus, past participle of vallāre, to surround with a rampart, from vallum, rampart, from vallus, stake.] —val'la·to'ry (vǎl'ə-tôr'ē, -tôr'ē) adj.

val·lec·u·la (vǎ-lĕk'yə-lə, və-) n. pl. val·lec·u·lae (-lē'). A shallow groove, depression, or furrow, as between the hemispheres of the brain. [Late Latin, diminutive of Latin vallēs, valley.] —val·lec'u·lar, val·lec'u·late (-lĭt, -lāt') adj.

Val·le d'A·os·ta (vǎ'lā də-ō'stə, -ô'stā) A region of northwest Italy bordering on France and Switzerland. Separated from Piedmont in the 1940's, it has a predominantly French linguistic and cultural heritage.

Val·le·du·par (vǎ'yā-dōō-pār', bǎ'yĕ-) A town of northern Columbia east-southeast of Barranquilla. It is an agricultural trade center. Population, 140,481.

Val·le·jo (və-lā'ō, -hō) A city of western California on San Pablo Bay north of Oakland. It is a trade and processing center and has a large naval shipyard, founded by Adm. David Farragut in 1854. Population, 109,199.

Val·le·jo (və-lā'ō, -hō, bǎ-yĕ'hō), Mariano Guadalupe. 1808-1890. Mexican-born American pioneer and soldier who helped secure California's admission to the United States.

Val·let·ta (və-lĕt'ə) The capital of Malta, on the northeast coast of the main island. Dating to the 16th century, it contains many relics of the Knights of Malta. Population, 14,013.

val·ley (vǎl'ē) n. pl. val·leys. Abbr. val. 1. An elongated lowland between ranges of mountains, hills, or other uplands, often having a river or stream running along the bottom. 2. An extensive area of land drained or irrigated by a river system. 3. A depression or hollow resembling or suggesting a valley, as the point at which the two slopes of a roof meet. [Middle English valey, from Old French valee, from Vulgar Latin vallāta*, from Latin vallēs. See wel-² in Appendix.] —val'leyed adj.

Val·ley East (vāl'ē ēst) A town of central Ontario, Canada, a suburb of Sudbury. Population, 20,433.

valley fever (vāl'ē fē'vər) n. See coccidioidomycosis.

Val·ley·field (vāl'ē-fēld') A city of southern Quebec, Canada, on the St. Lawrence River southwest of Montreal. It is a port of entry and an industrial center. Population, 29,574.

Valley Forge (vāl'ē fôrj) A village of southeast Pennsylvania on the Schuylkill River northwest of Philadelphia. It was the site of the Continental Army headquarters from December 1777 to June 1778. The encampment was subjected to severe winter weather that caused extensive illness and suffering.

Valley of Ten Thousand Smokes (vāl'ē ūv tēn' thou'zənd smōks') A volcanic region of southwest Alaska at the upper end of the Alaska Peninsula. It was formed by the eruption of Mount Katmai in 1912 and continues to emit hot gases through countless cracks in the surface.

Valley of the Kings (vāl'ē ūv thē kīngz) A narrow valley of east-central Egypt surrounding the site of ancient Thebes between Karnak and Luxor. The valley contains the tombs of numerous pharaohs of the XVIII, XIX, and XX Dynasties, including that of Tutankhamen.

Valley Station (vāl'ē stā'shən) An unincorporated community of north-central Kentucky, a suburb of Louisville. Population, 22,840.

Valley Stream (vāl'ē strēm) A village of southeast New York on southwest Long Island. It is mainly residential. Population, 33,946.

Va·lois¹ (vāl'wä, vāl-wä') A French ruling dynasty (1328-1589) that succeeded the Capetian line when Philip VI ascended to the throne.

Va·lois² (vāl'wä', vāl-wä') A historical region and former duchy of northern France. A county from the 10th to the 12th century, it was an appanage of the royal house of Valois after 1285.

va·lo·ni·a (və-lō'nē-ə, -lōn'yə) n. The dried acorn cups of an oak tree (Quercus aegilops) of the eastern Mediterranean, used chiefly in tanning and dyeing. [Italian vallonia, from Modern Greek balania, pl. of balani, acorn, from Greek balanos.]

val·or (vāl'ər) n. Courage and boldness, as in battle; bravery. [Middle English valour, from Old French, from Late Latin valor, from Latin valēre, to be strong. See wal- in Appendix.]

val·or·ize (vāl'ər-īz') v. tr. val·or·ized, val·or·iz·ing, val·or·iz·es. 1. To establish and maintain the price of (a commodity) by governmental action. 2. To give or assign a value to: “The prophets valorized history” (Mircea Eliade). [Portuguese valorizar, from valor, value, from Late Latin. See VALOR.] —val'or-i-za'-tion (-ər-ĭ-zā'shən) n.

val·or·ous (vāl'ər-əs) adj. Marked by or possessing great personal bravery; valiant. See Synonyms at brave. —val'or-ous-ly adv. —val'or-ous-ness n.

val·our (vāl'ər) n. Chiefly British. Variant of valor.

Val·pa·rai·so (vāl'pə-rī'zō) 1. Also Val·pa·ra·í·so (bäl'pä-rä-ē'sô). A city of central Chile on the Pacific Ocean west-northwest of Santiago. Founded in 1536, it has frequently been subject to severe earthquakes. The modern city developed as an industrial center and the chief port of Chile in the early 20th century. Population, 265,355. 2. A city of northwest Indiana southeast of Gary. It is a manufacturing and educational center. Population, 24,414.

val·pro·ate (vāl-prō'āt) n. An anticonvulsive drug, C₈H₁₅NaO₂, given orally in the treatment of epilepsy. [valpro(ic acid) (VAL(ERIC ACID) + PRO(PYL) + -IC) + -ATE².]

Val·sal·va maneuver (vāl-säl'və mə-nōō'vər) n. 1. Expiratory effort when the mouth is closed and the nostrils are pinched shut, which forces air into the eustachian tubes and increases pressure on the inside of the eardrum.

2. Expiratory effort against a closed glottis, which increases pressure within the thoracic cavity and thereby impedes venous return of blood to the heart. [After Antonio Maria Valsalva (1666-1723), Italian anatomist.]

val·u·a·ble (vāl'yōō-ə-bəl, vāl'yə-) adj. 1. Having considerable monetary or material value for use or exchange: a valuable diamond. 2. Of great importance, use, or service: valuable information; valuable advice. 3. Having admirable or esteemed qualities or characteristics: a valuable friend. — n. A personal possession, such as a piece of jewelry, having a relatively high monetary value. Often used in the plural. —val'u-a-ble-ness n. —val'u-a-bly adv.

val·u·ate (vāl'yōō-āt') v. tr. val·u-at-ed, val·u-at-ing, val·u-ates. To set a value for; appraise. [Back-formation from VALUATION.]

val·u·a·tion (vāl'yōō-ā'shən) n. Abbr. val. 1. The act or process of assessing value or price; an appraisal. 2. Assessed value or price. 3. An estimation or appreciation of worth, merit, or character: set a high valuation on friendship. —val'u-a'tion-al adj.

val·u·a·tor (vāl'yōō-ā'tər) n. One that estimates values; an appraiser.

val·ue (vāl'yōō) n. Abbr. val. 1. An amount, as of goods, services, or money, considered to be a fair and suitable equivalent for something else; a fair price or return. 2. Monetary or material worth: the fluctuating value of gold and silver. 3. Worth in usefulness or importance to the possessor; utility or merit: the value of an education. 4. A principle, standard, or quality considered worthwhile or desirable: "The speech was a summons back to the patrician values of restraint and responsibility" (Jonathan Alter). 5. Precise meaning or import, as of a word. 6. Mathematics. An assigned or calculated numerical quantity. 7. Music. The relative duration of a tone or rest. 8. Color. The relative darkness or lightness of a color: “I establish the colors and principal values by organizing the painting into three values—dark, medium... and light” (Joe Hing Lowe). 9. Linguistics. The sound quality of a letter or diphthong. 10. One of a series of specified values: issued a stamp of new value. — v. tr. val·ued, val·u·ing, val·ues. 1. To determine or estimate the worth or value of; appraise. 2. To regard highly; esteem. See Synonyms at appreciate. 3. To rate according to relative estimate of worth or desirability; evaluate: valued health above money. 4. To assign a value to (a unit of currency, for example). [Middle English, from Old French, from feminine past participle of valoir, to be strong, be worth, from Latin valēre. See wal- in Appendix.] —val’u·er n.

val·ue·add·ed (vāl’yōō-ăd’id) adj. Of or relating to the estimated value that is added to a product or material at each stage of its manufacture or distribution: “Unlike the steel or aluminum industries, where heavier profits come from value-added fabrication, mining is the most lucrative stage of copper production” (Forbes).

value-added tax (vāl’yōō-ăd’id tăks) n. Abbr. VAT, V.A.T. A tax on the estimated market value added to a product or material at each stage of its manufacture or distribution, ultimately passed on to the consumer.

val·ued policy (vāl’yōōd pōl’ī-sē) n. An insurance policy requiring the insurer to pay the insured the full face value of the policy in the event of total loss, regardless of the actual value of the lost property.

value judgment (vāl’yōō jŭj’mənt) n. A judgment that assigns a value, as to an object or action; a subjective evaluation.

val·ue·less (vāl’yōō-lis) adj. Having no value; worthless. —val’ue·less·ness n.

val·var (vāl’vər) adj. Valvular.

val·vate (vāl’vāt’) adj. 1. Having valvelike parts. 2. Botany. a. Meeting at the edges without overlapping, as some petals do. b. Opening by valves, as the capsule of a lily or iris.

valve (vāl̩v) n. 1. Anatomy. A membranous structure in a hollow organ or passage, as in an artery or a vein, that folds or closes to prevent the return flow of the body fluid passing through it. 2. a. Any of various devices that regulate the flow of gases, liquids, or loose materials through piping or through apertures by opening, closing, or obstructing ports or passageways. b. The movable control element of such a device. c. Music. A device in a brass wind instrument that permits change in pitch by a rapid varying of the air column in a tube. 3. Biology. a. One of the paired, hinged shells of certain mollusks and of brachiopods. b. One of the two silicified halves of the cell wall of a diatom. c. The entire, one-piece shell of a snail and certain other mollusks. 4. Botany. a. One of the sections into which the wall of a seedpod or other dehiscent fruit splits. b. A lidlike covering of an anther. 5. Chiefly British. An electron tube or a vacuum tube. 6. Archaic.

Either half of a double or folding door. — v. tr. valved, valv-ing, valves.

1. To provide with a valve. 2. To control by means of a valve. [Middle English, leaf of a door, from Latin valva. See wel-² in Appendix.] — valve/less adj.

valve-in-head engine (vǎlv'ín-hěd' ěn'jĭn) n. An internal-combustion engine, as in some automobiles, that has the inlet and exhaust valves in the cylinder head instead of in the engine block.

val·vu·la (vǎl'vyə-lə) n. Variant of valvule.

val·vu·lar (vǎl'vyə-lər) adj. Relating to, having, or operating by means of valves or valvelike parts.

val·vule (vǎl'vyōōl') also val·vu·la (-vyə-lə) n. pl. val·vules also val·vu·lae (-vyə-lē'). A small valve or valvelike structure.

val·vu·li·tis (vǎl'vyə-lī'tis) n. Inflammation of a valve, especially a cardiac valve.

val·vu·lo·plas·ty (vǎl'vyə-lə-plās'tē) n. pl. val·vu·lo·plas·ties. Plastic surgery to repair a valve, especially a heart valve.

vam·brace (vǎm'brās') n. Armor used to protect the forearm. [Middle English vambras, from Anglo-Norman vauntbras: vaunt (variant of Old French avaunt, before); see VANGUARD + bras, arm; see BRACER².]

va·moose (vǎ-mōōs', və-) v. intr. va·moosed, va·moos-ing, va·moos-es. Slang. To leave hurriedly. [From Spanish vamos, let's go, from Latin vādāmus, first person pl. subjunctive of vādere, to go.]

vamp¹ (vǎmp) n. 1. The upper part of a boot or shoe covering the instep and sometimes extending over the toe. 2. a. Something patched up or refurbished. b. Something rehashed, as a book based on old material. 3. Music. An improvised accompaniment. — v. vamped, vamp-ing, vamps. — v. tr. 1. To provide (a shoe) with a new vamp. 2. To patch up (something old); refurbish. 3. To put together; fabricate or improvise: With no hard news available about the summit meeting, the reporters vamped up questions based only on rumor. 4. Music. To improvise (an accompaniment, for example) for a solo. — v. intr. Music. To improvise simple accompaniment or variation of a tune. [Middle English vampe, sock, from Old French avanpie: avaunt, before; see VANGUARD + pie, foot (from Latin pēs); see ped- in Appendix.] — vamp'er n.

vamp² (vǎmp) Informal. n. An unscrupulous, seductive woman who uses her sex appeal to entrap and exploit men. — v. vamped, vamp-ing, vamps. — v. tr. To seduce or exploit (someone) in the manner of a vamp. — v. intr. To play the part of a vamp. [Short for VAMPIRE.] — vamp/ish adj. — vamp/ish-ly adv. — vamp'y adj.

vam·pire (vǎm'pīr') n. 1. A reanimated corpse that is believed to rise from the grave at night to suck the blood of sleeping people. 2. A person, such as an extortionist, who preys upon others. 3. A vampire bat. [French, from German Vam-

pir, of Slavic origin.] —vam·pir'ic (văm-pîr'ik), vam·pir'i·cal (-î-kəl) , vam'pir'ish (-ish) adj.

WORD HISTORY: Dracula might terrify some younger members in the audience of a horror film, but we know he is an imaginary creature. The word vampire, however, comes to us from other words and other times, when these bloodsucking reanimated corpses were considered real. The word entered English by way of French (vampire) and German (Vampir), but it came into German from an Old West Slavic source of the form ·vŭmpir. The word vampire is first recorded in English in a work written before 1734.

vampire bat (văm'pîr' băt) n. 1. Any of various tropical American bats of the family Desmodontidae that bite mammals and birds to feed on their blood and that often carry diseases such as rabies. 2. Any of various other bats, as those of the family Megadermatidae, erroneously believed to feed on blood.

vam·pir·ism (văm'pîr-îz'əm) n. 1. Belief in vampires. 2. The behavior of a vampire.

van¹ (văn) n. 1. a. An enclosed boxlike motor vehicle having rear or side doors and side panels especially for transporting people. b. A covered or enclosed truck or wagon often used for transporting goods or livestock. 2. Chiefly British. A closed railroad car used for carrying baggage or freight. — v. vanned, van·ning, vans. — v. tr. To transport by van: vanned the horses to the race-track. — v. intr. To drive or travel in a van: vanned around the country. [Short for CARAVAN.]

van² (văn) n. The vanguard; the forefront. [Short for VANGUARD.]

van³ (văn) n. 1. A wing. 2. Archaic. A winnowing device, such as a fan. [Middle English, from Old English fann, and Old French van both from Latin vannus. See wet⁻¹ in Appendix.]

Van (văn, vãn), Lake. A salt lake of eastern Turkey. The largest lake in the country, it has no known outlet.

van·a·date (văn'ə-dăt') n. Any of three anions, VO₃, VO₄, or V₂O₇, containing pentavalent vanadium. [VANAD(IUM) + -ATE².]

va·na·dic acid (və-nā'dîk əs'îd, -năd'îk) n. 1. An acid containing a vanadate group, especially HVO₃, H₃VO₄, or H₄V₂O₇, not existing in a pure state. 2. See vanadium pentoxide.

va·na·di·nite (və-năd'n-î't', -năd'-, văn'ə-dē'nî't') n. A red, yellow, or brown mineral, essentially an ore of vanadium and lead. [VANAD(IUM) + -IN + -ITE¹.]

va·na·di·um (və-nā'dē-əm) n. Symbol V A bright white, soft, ductile metallic element found in several minerals, notably vanadinite and carnotite, having good structural strength and used in rust-resistant high-speed tools, as a carbon stabilizer in some steels, as a titanium-steel bonding agent, and as a catalyst. Atomic number 23; atomic weight 50.942; melting point 1,890°C; boiling point 3,000°C; specific gravity 6.11; valence 2, 3, 4, 5. [From Old Norse Vanadís, the goddess Freya. See wen-¹ in Appendix.]

vanadium pentoxide (və-nā'dē-əm pĕnt-ŏk'sīd') n. A yellow to red crystalline powder, V₂O₅, used as a catalyst in various organic reactions and as a starting material for other vanadium salts. Also called vanadic acid vanadium steel (və-nā'dē-əm stēl) n. Steel alloyed with vanadium for added strength, hardness, and high-temperature stability.

Van Al-len belt (văn ăl'ən bĕlt) n. Either of two zones of high-intensity particulate radiation trapped in Earth's magnetic field and surrounding the planet, beginning at an altitude of about 800 kilometers (500 miles) and extending tens of thousands of kilometers into space. [After James Alfred Van Allen (born 1914), American physicist.]

Van-brugh (văn'brə, vãn-brōō') Sir John. 1664-1726. English playwright and architect who wrote The Provok'd Wife (produced 1697) and designed Blenheim Palace.

Van Bu-ren (văn byōōr'ən), Martin. 1782-1862. The eighth President of the United States (1837-1841). A powerful Democrat from New York, he served in the U.S. Senate (1821-1828), as secretary of state (1829-1831), and as Vice President (1833-1837) under Andrew Jackson before being elected President in 1836. He unsuccessfully sought reelection in 1840 and 1848.

van-co-my-cin (văng'kə-mī'sīn, vãn'kə-) n. An antibiotic, C₆₆H₇₅Cl₂N₉O₂₄, produced by the actinomycete Streptomyces orientalis, found in Indonesian and Indian soil, and effective against staphylococci and spirochetes. [vanco- (of unknown origin) + -MYCIN.]

Van-cou-ver (văn-kōō'vər) 1. A city of southwest British Columbia, Canada, on the Strait of Georgia opposite Vancouver Island. The largest city in the province, it is a major port, commercial and industrial center, and railroad hub. Population, 414,281. 2. A city of southwest Washington on the Columbia River opposite Portland, Oregon. Founded as Fort Vancouver by the Hudson's Bay Company in the 1820's, it is a deep-water port with shipyards, lumber mills, and other processing facilities. Population, 46,380.

Van-cou-ver (văn-kōō'vər), George. 1757-1798. British navigator who led an expedition to the coasts of Australia, New Zealand, and the Hawaiian Islands (1791-1792) and to the Pacific coast of North America (1792-1794), where he circumnavigated Vancouver Island.

Vancouver, Mount. A peak, 4,873.6 m (15,979 ft) high, in the St. Elias Mountains of southwest Yukon Territory, Canada, near the border of Alaska.

Vancouver Island (văn-kōō'vər ī'lənd) An island of southwest British Columbia, Canada, in the Pacific Ocean separated from the mainland by the Strait of Georgia and Queen Charlotte Strait. The Strait of Juan de Fuca flows between the southern end of the island and the coastline of northwest Washington. First sighted by Spanish explorers in 1774 and visited by Capt. James Cook in 1778, it was named in honor of Capt. George Vancouver, who circumnavigated the island in 1792.

Van·dal (văn'dl) n. 1. vandal. One who willfully or maliciously defaces or destroys public or private property. 2. A member of a Germanic people that overran Gaul, Spain, and northern Africa in the fourth and fifth centuries A.D. and sacked Rome in 455. [Latin Vandalus, probably of Germanic origin.]

—Van·dal'ic (văn-dăl'ik) adj.

van·dal·ism (văn'dl-iz'əm) n. Willful or malicious destruction of public or private property. —van'dal-is'tic adj.

van·dal·ize (văn'dl-īz') v. tr. van·dal·ized, van·dal·iz·ing, van·dal·iz·es. To destroy or deface (public or private property) willfully or maliciously.

—van'dal-i-za'tion (-ī-zā'shən) n.

Van de Graaff generator (văn' də grăf' jěn'ə-rā'tər) n. An electrostatic generator in which an electric charge is either removed from or transferred to a large hollow spherical electrode by a rapidly moving belt, accelerating particles to energies of about ten million electron volts. [After Robert Jemison Van de Graaff (1901-1967), American physicist.]

Van·den·berg (văn'dĭn-bûrg'), Arthur Hendrick. 1884-1951. American politician. A U.S. senator from Michigan (1928-1951), he was an ardent isolationist until the attack on Pearl Harbor (December 7, 1941), after which he was a central figure in the bipartisan support of the war effort and in the establishment of the United Nations and NATO.

Van·der·bilt (văn'dər-bĭlt'), Cornelius. Known as "Commodore Vanderbilt." 1794-1877. American transportation promoter and financier who amassed a great fortune through railroad and shipping interests. His heirs included his son William Henry (1821-1885), a financier and philanthropist, and William Henry's sons Cornelius (1843-1899), a railroad director; William Kissam (1849-1920), a railroad executive and philanthropist; Frederick William (1856-1938), a railroad manager; and George Washington (1862-1914), who commissioned Biltmore, located in Asheville, North Carolina, the largest private home in America.

Van Der Ro·he (văn dər rō'ə, fän) See Ludwig Mies Van Der Rohe.

van der Waals force (văn' dər wôlz' fôrs, wălz') n. A weak attractive force between atoms or nonpolar molecules caused by a temporary change in dipole moment arising from a brief shift of orbital electrons to one side of one atom or molecule, creating a similar shift in adjacent atoms or molecules. [After Johannes Diderik van der Waals (1837-1923), Dutch physicist.]

Van De·van·ter (văn' də-văn'tər), Willis. 1859-1941. American jurist who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1910-1937).

Van Die-men's Land (văn dē'mənz länd, vān) See Tasmania.

van Dong-en (văn dōng'ən, vān dōng'ən), Kees. 1877-1968. Dutch artist known for his fauvist paintings of elegant Parisian women.

Van Dor-en (văn dōr'ən, dōr'-), Carl Clinton. 1885-1950. American literary critic, editor, and writer whose biography of Benjamin Franklin (1938) won a Pulitzer Prize. His brother Mark (1894-1972), a prolific writer and critic, is best known for his poetry, including That Shining Place (1969).

Van Dyck (văn dīk'), Sir Anthony. See Sir Anthony Vandyke.

Van-dyke (văn-dīk') n. 1. A Vandyke beard. 2. A Vandyke collar. 3. a. A V-shaped point that is part of a decorative border or edging. b. A border made up of such points.

Vandyke or Van Dyck (văn dīk'), Sir Anthony. 1599-1641. Flemish painter whose numerous portraits, including many of the English court, are remarkable for their dignity and gentle emotion.

Vandyke beard (văn-dīk' bîrd) n. A short, pointed beard. [After Sir Anthony VANDYKE.]

Vandyke brown (văn-dīk' broun) n. Color. A moderate to grayish brown. [After Sir Anthony VANDYKE.] —Van-dyke'-brown' (văn-dīk'broun') adj.

Vandyke collar (văn-dīk' kōl'ər) n. A large collar of linen or lace having a deeply indented or scalloped edge. [After Sir Anthony VANDYKE.]

vane (vān) n. 1. A weathervane. 2. Any of several usually relatively thin, rigid, flat, or sometimes curved surfaces radially mounted along an axis, as a blade in a turbine or a sail on a windmill, that is turned by or used to turn a fluid. 3. The flattened, weblike part of a feather, consisting of a series of barbs on either side of the shaft. 4. a. The movable target on a leveling rod. b. A sight on a quadrant or compass. 5. One of the metal guidance or stabilizing fins attached to the tail of a bomb or other missile. [Middle English, variant of obsolete fane, from Old English fana, flag. See pan- in Appendix.]

Vane (vān), Sir Henry or Harry. 1613-1662. English politician and colonial administrator who was governor of Massachusetts (1636-1637) and a leading Parliamentarian during the English Civil War. He was tried and executed for high treason after the restoration of the monarchy.

Vane (vān), John Robert. Born 1927. British pharmacologist. He shared a 1982 Nobel Prize for research on prostaglandins.

Vä·nern (vā'nərn, vē'-) A lake of southwest Sweden. It is the largest lake in the country and navigable for small oceangoing ships via the Göta Canal.

van Eyck (văn īk'), Jan. 1390?-1441. Flemish painter who is considered the founder of the Flemish school and the pioneer of modern oil painting techniques. His minutely detailed and brilliantly colored works include Giovanni Arnolfini and His Wife (1434) and the altarpiece Mystic Lamb (1432), begun by his brother Hubert (1366?-1426).

vang (vǎng) n. Nautical. A guy running from the peak of a gaff or derrick to the deck. [Dutch, a catch, from vangen, to catch. See pag- in Appendix.]

van Gogh (vǎn gō', gôKH', vǎn KHÔKH'), Vincent. 1853-1890. Dutch postimpressionist painter whose early works, such as The Potato Eaters (1885), portray peasant life in somber, dark colors. His later works, including numerous self-portraits, a series of sunflower paintings (1888), and Starry Night (1889), are characterized by bold, rhythmic brush strokes and vivid colors. His long struggle with depression ended in suicide.

van-guard (vǎn'gärd) n. 1. The foremost position in an army or a fleet advancing into battle. 2. a. The foremost or leading position in a trend or movement. b. Those occupying a foremost position. [Middle English vandgard, from avaunt garde, from Old French : avaunt, before (from Latin abante); see ADVANCE + garde, guard (from garder, to guard); see GUARD.] —van/guard-ism n. —van/guard-ist n.

Va-nier (vǎn-yā') A city of southeast Ontario, Canada, a suburb of Ottawa on the Ottawa River. Population, 18,792.

va-nil-la (və-nīl'ə) n. 1. Any of various tropical American vines of the genus Vanilla in the orchid family, especially V. planifolia, cultivated for its long narrow seedpods from which a flavoring agent is obtained. 2. The seedpod of this plant. Also called vanilla bean 3. A flavoring extract prepared from the cured seedpods of this plant or produced synthetically. — adj. 1. Flavored with vanilla: vanilla pudding. 2. Relatively unoriginal, unexciting, or uninspiring; ordinary: "We went through a period of vanilla cars" (Charles Jordan). [Spanish vainilla, diminutive of vaina, sheath (from the shape of its seedpods), from Latin vāgīna.]

vanilla bean (və-nīl'ə bēn) n. See vanilla (n., sense 2).

vanilla plant (və-nīl'ə plānt) n. A fragrant perennial herb (Carphephorus odoratissimus) of the southeast United States, having numerous lavender to purple flower heads.

va-nil-lic (və-nīl'ik) adj. Of, relating to, or derived from vanilla or vanillin.

va-nil-lin (və-nīl'in, vǎn'ə-līn) n. A white or yellowish crystalline compound, C₈H₈O₃, found in vanilla beans and certain balsams and resins and used in perfumes, flavorings, and pharmaceuticals.

Va-nir (vǎ'nīr') pl.n. Mythology. An early race of Norse gods who dwelt with the Aesir in Asgard. [Old Norse. See wen-¹ in Appendix.]

van-ish (vǎn'ish) v. intr. van-ished, van-ish-ing, van-ish-es. 1. a. To pass out of sight, especially quickly; disappear. See Synonyms at disappear. b. To pass out of existence. 2. Mathematics. To become zero. Used of a function or variable. [Middle English vanisshen, alteration of Old French esvanir, esvaniss-, from Vulgar Latin exvanīre*, alteration of Latin ēvānēscere : ē-, ex-, ex- + vānēscere, to vanish (from vānus, empty); see eu-² in Appendix.] —van/ish-er n. —van/ish-ing-ly adv. —van/ish-ment n.

van-ish-ing point (văn'ĩ-shĩng point) n. 1. A point in a drawing at which parallel lines drawn in perspective converge or seem to converge. 2. A point at which a thing disappears or ceases to exist.

van-i-ty (văn'ĩ-tē) n. pl. van-i-ties. 1. The quality or condition of being vain. 2. Excessive pride in one's appearance or accomplishments; conceit. See Synonyms at conceit. 3. Lack of usefulness, worth, or effect; worthlessness. 4. a. Something that is vain, futile, or worthless. b. Something about which one is vain or conceited. 5. A vanity case. 6. See dressing table. 7. A bathroom cabinet that encloses a basin and its water lines and drain, usually furnished with shelves and drawers underneath for storage of toiletries. [Middle English vanite, from Old French, from Latin vānitās, from vānus, empty. See eu-² in Appendix.]

vanity case (văn'ĩ-tē kās) n. 1. A small handbag or case used by women for carrying cosmetics or toiletries. 2. A woman's compact.

Van-i-ty Fair also van-i-ty fair (văn'ĩ-tē fār) n. A place or scene of ostentation or empty, idle amusement and frivolity. [From Vanity Fair, the fair in Pilgrim's Progress by John Bunyan.]

vanity plate (văn'ĩ-tē plāt) n. A license plate for a motor vehicle bearing a combination of letters or numbers selected by the purchaser.

vanity press (văn'ĩ-tē prēs) n. A publisher that publishes a book at the expense of the author.

vanity telephone number (văn'ĩ-tē tēl'ə-fōn' nŭm'bər) n. A telephone number with a combination of letters selected by the purchaser.

van-load (văn'lōd') n. The quantity, as of passengers or goods, that a van can carry.

van-pool (văn'pōol') n. An arrangement by which commuters travel together in a van. — v. tr. intr. van-pooled, van-pool-ing, van-pools. To transport or be transported in a vanpool. —van'pool'er n.

van-quish (väng'kwish, vãn'-) v. tr. van-quished, van-quish-ing, van-quish-es. 1. a. To defeat or conquer in battle; subjugate. b. To defeat in a contest, conflict, or competition. 2. To overcome or subdue (an emotion, for example); suppress: Success vanquished their fears. See Synonyms at defeat. [Middle English vaynquishshen, from Old French vainquir, vainquiss-, from Latin vincere. See weik-³ in Appendix.] —van'quish-a-ble adj. —van'quish-er n. —van'quish-ment n.

Van Rens-se-laer (văn rěn'sə-lĩr', rěn'sə-lər, vãn rěn'sə-lār'), Killian or Kiliaen. 1595-1644. Dutch merchant who was a founder of the Dutch West India Company (1621) and established Rensselaerswyck (1635), the only successful privately held colony in America, on his estate in present-day upstate New York.

Van Rens-se-laer (văn rěn'sə-lĩr', rěn'sə-lər, vãn rěn'sə-lār'), Stephen. 1764-1839. American army officer and politician. A descendant of Killian Van Rensselaer, he inherited the family estate in New York, saw military action in the War of 1812, and was an early advocate of the Erie Canal project.

Van-sit-tart (văn-sít'ərt), Sir Robert Gilbert First Baron Vansittart of Denmark. 1881-1957. British diplomat whose early recognition of the threat of Nazism conflicted with Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's policy of appeasement.

Van-taa (văn'tä) A city of southern Finland, a suburb of Helsinki. Population, 141,991.

van-tage (văn'tij) n. 1. a. An advantage in a competition or conflict; superiority. b. A position, condition, or opportunity that is likely to provide superiority or an advantage. 2. A position that affords a broad overall view or perspective, as of a place or situation. 3. Sports. An advantage. [Middle English, from Anglo-Norman, short for Old French avantage, advantage. See ADVANTAGE.]

van't Hoff (vânt hôf', hǒf'), Jacobus Hendricus. 1852-1911. Dutch chemist. He won a 1901 Nobel Prize for his pioneering work in stereochemistry and thermodynamics.

Va-nu-a Le-vu (və-nōō'ə lěv'ōō) A volcanic island of Fiji in the southern Pacific Ocean northeast of Viti Levu. Sugar cane is important to the island's economy.

Va-nu-a-tu (və'nōō-ä'tōō) Formerly New Heb-ri-des (nōō hěb'ri-děz', nyōō). An island country of the southern Pacific Ocean east of northern Australia. The islands were first sighted by the Portuguese in 1606 and charted by Capt. James Cook in 1774. Under joint French and British control after 1906, New Hebrides achieved independence as Vanuatu in 1980. Vila, on Efate Island, is the capital. Population, 138,000. —Va'nu-a'tu-an adj. & n.

Van Vech-ten (văn vĕk'tən), Carl. 1880-1964. American music critic and writer of satirical, sophisticated novels set in New York City.

Van Vleck (văn vlĕk'), John Hasbrouck. 1899-1980. American physicist. He shared a 1977 Nobel Prize for developments in computer memory.

Van-zet-ti (văn-zĕt'ĕ, vān-dzĕt'tĕ), Bartolomeo. 1888-1927. Italian-born American anarchist who with Nicola Sacco was convicted of a double murder and sentenced to death (1921). Despite the circumstantial nature of the evidence against them and worldwide protest at the political overtones of the proceedings, the two were executed in 1927.

vap-id (văp'ĭd, vā'pĭd) adj. 1. Lacking liveliness, animation, or interest; dull: vapid conversation. 2. Lacking taste, zest, or flavor; flat: vapid beer. [Latin vapidus.] —va-pid'i-ty, vap'id-ness n. —vap'id-ly adv.

va-por (vā'pər) n. 1. Barely visible or cloudy diffused matter, such as mist, fumes, or smoke, suspended in the air. 2. a. The state of a substance that exists below its critical temperature and that may be liquefied by application of sufficient pressure. b. The gaseous state of a substance that is liquid or solid under ordinary conditions. 3. a. The vaporized form of a substance for use in industrial, military, or medical processes. b. A mixture of a vapor and air, as the explosive gasoline-air mixture burned in an internal-combustion engine. 4. Archaic.

a. Something insubstantial, worthless, or fleeting. b. A fantastic or foolish idea.

5. vapors. Archaic. a. Exhalations within a bodily organ, especially the stomach, supposed to affect the mental or physical condition. Used with the. b. A nervous disorder such as depression or hysteria. Used with the. — v. va·pored, va·por·ing, va·pors. — v. tr. To vaporize. — v. intr. 1. To give off vapor.

2. To evaporate. 3. To engage in idle, boastful talk. [Middle English vapour, from Anglo-Norman, from Latin vapor, vapōr-.] — va'por·er n.

va·por·es·cence (vā'pə-rēs'əns) n. Formation of vapor.

va·por·if·ic (vā'pə-rif'ik) adj. 1. Producing or turning to vapor. 2. Having the nature of vapor; vaporous.

va·por·ing (vā'pər-ɪŋ) adj. Foolishly bombastic; boastful. — n. Boastful or bombastic talk or behavior: “All his... dreams of fame were the vaporings of a shoddy aesthete without talent” (Thomas Wolfe). — va'por·ing·ly adv.

va·por·ish (vā'pər-ɪsh) adj. 1. Suggestive of or resembling vapor. 2. Archaic. Affected by the vapors; given to spells of hysteria or low spirits.

— va'por·ish·ness n.

va·por·ize (vā'pə-rīz') v. tr. intr. va·por·ized, va·por·iz·ing, va·por·iz·es.

To convert or be converted into vapor. — va'por·iz'a·ble adj. — va·por·i·za'tion (-ɪ-zā'shən) n.

va·por·iz·er (vā'pə-rī'zər) n. One that vaporizes, especially a device used to vaporize medicine for inhalation.

vapor lock (vā'pər lɒk) n. A pocket of vaporized gasoline in the fuel line of an internal-combustion engine that obstructs the normal flow of fuel. — va'por·lock' (vā'pər-lɒk') v.

va·por·ous (vā'pər-əs) adj. 1. Relating to or resembling vapor.

2. a. Producing vapors; volatile. b. Giving off or full of vapors.

3. Insubstantial, vague, or ethereal: “the imponderable mysterious and vaporous illusions of twilight” (John C. Powys). See Synonyms at airy. 4. Extravagantly fanciful; high-flown: vaporous conjecture. — va'por·os'i·ty (vā'pə-rɒs'ɪ-tē), va'por·ous·ness (-pər-əs-nɪs) n. — va'por·ous·ly adv.

vapor pressure (vā'pər prɛʃh'ər) n. The pressure exerted by a vapor in equilibrium with its solid or liquid phase.

vapor trail (vā'pər trāl) n. See contrail.

va·por·ware (vā'pər-wâr') n. Computer Science. New software that has been announced or marketed but has not been produced.

va·por·y (vā'pə-rē) adj. Vaporous.

va·pour (vā'pər) n. & v. Chiefly British. Vapor.

va·que·ro (vā-kâr'ō) n. pl. va·que·ros. Chiefly Texas. See cowboy (n., sense 1). [Spanish, from vaca, cow, from Latin vacca.]

REGIONAL NOTE: Used chiefly in southwest and central Texas to mean a ranch hand or cowboy, the word vaquero is a direct loan from Spanish; that is, it is spelled and pronounced, even by English speakers, much as it would be in Spanish. In California, however, the same word was Anglicized to buckaroo. Craig M. Carver, author of American Regional Dialects, points out that the two words also reflect cultural differences between cattlemen in Texas and California. The Texas vaquero was typically a bachelor who hired on with different outfits, while the California buckaroo usually stayed on the same ranch where he was born or had grown up and raised his own family there.

var. abbr. 1. Variable. 2. Variant. 3. Variation. 4. Variety. 5. Various.

va·ra (vâr'ə) n. 1. A Spanish, Portuguese, and Latin-American unit of linear measure varying from about 81 to 109 centimeters (32 to 43 inches). 2. A square vara. [Spanish, and Portuguese, rod both from Latin vāra, forked pole, from vārus, bent.]

va·rac·tor (və-rāk'tər, vǎ-) n. A semiconductor device in which the capacitance is sensitive to the applied voltage at the boundary of the semiconductor material and an insulator. [VAR(YING) + (RE)ACT(ANCE) + -OR¹.]

Va·ra·na·si (və-rā'nə-sē) also Be·na·res (bə-nār'əs, -ēz) or Ba·na·ras (bə-nār'əs) A city of northeast-central India on the Ganges River southeast of Lucknow. One of India's oldest cities, it is a sacred Hindu pilgrimage site with some 1,500 temples, palaces, and shrines. Population, 708,647.

Var·dar (vār'dār') A river, about 386 km (240 mi) long, rising in southeast Yugoslavia and flowing southward to an arm of the Aegean Sea in northeast Greece.

Va·re·se (və-rā'sē, vǎ-rě'zě) A city of northern Italy northwest of Milan. It is the center of a popular resort area. Population, 90,285.

Va·rèse (və-rāz', vǎ-rěz'), Edgard. 1883-1965. French-born American composer of arrhythmic and atonal works, including early examples of electronic music.

Var·gas (vār'gəs), Getulio Dornelles. 1883-1954. Brazilian politician who led a successful revolution (1930) and was president (1930-1945 and 1951-1954) until resigning from office under pressure from the military.

Var·gas Llo·sa (vār'gəs yō'sə, bār'gəs yô'sä), Mario. Born 1936. Peruvian writer known for his stylistically innovative and complex novels, such as The Green House (1966) and The War of the End of the World (1984), which often concern the political and social climate of his homeland.

vari- pref. Variant of vario-.

var·i·a (vâr'ē-ə, văr'-) n. A miscellany, especially of literary works. [Latin, from neuter pl. of varius, various.]

var·i·a·bil·i·ty (vâr'ē-ə-bīl'ī-tē, văr'-) n. pl. var·i·a·bil·i·ties. The quality, state, or degree of being variable or changeable.

var·i·a·ble (vâr'ē-ə-bəl, văr'-) adj. Abbr. var. 1. a. Likely to change or vary; subject to variation; changeable. b. Inconstant; fickle. 2. Biology. Tending to deviate, as from a normal or recognized type; aberrant. 3. Mathematics. Having no fixed quantitative value. — n. Abbr. var. 1. Something that varies or is prone to variation. 2. Astronomy. A variable star. 3. Mathematics. a. A quantity capable of assuming any of a set of values. b. A symbol representing such a quantity. For example, in the expression $a^2 + b^2 = c^2$, a, b, and c are variables. —var'·i·a·ble·ness n. —var'·i·a·bly adv.

variable cost (vâr'ē-ə-bəl kôst) n. A cost that fluctuates directly with output changes.

variable field (vâr'ē-ə-bəl fēld) n. Computer Science. A field of data that may be varied in length according to need.

variable logic (vâr'ē-ə-bəl löj'ik) n. Computer Science. A form of internal machine logic that may be changed to match programming formats.

var·i·a·ble·rate mortgage (vâr'ē-ə-bəl-rāt' môm'gij, văr'-) n. Abbr. VRM A mortgage that is renegotiable at periodic intervals. The interest rate may be raised or lowered and is indexed to the prevailing market rates.

variable star (vâr'ē-ə-bəl stâr) n. A star whose brightness varies because of internal changes or periodic eclipsing of mutually revolving stars.

var·i·ance (vâr'ē-əns, văr'-) n. 1. a. The act of varying. b. The state or quality of being variant or variable; a variation. c. A difference between what is expected and what actually occurs. 2. The state or fact of differing or of being in conflict. See Synonyms at discord. 3. Law. a. A discrepancy between two statements or documents in a proceeding. b. License to engage in an act contrary to a usual rule: a zoning variance. 4. Statistics. The square of the standard deviation. 5. Chemistry. The number of thermodynamic variables, such as temperature and pressure, required to specify a state of equilibrium of a system, given by the phase rule. —idiom. at variance. In a state of discrepancy; differing: The facts are at variance with your story.

var·i·ant (vâr'ē-ənt, văr'-) adj. 1. Having or exhibiting variation; differing. 2. Tending or liable to vary; variable. 3. Deviating from a standard, usually by only a slight difference. — n. Abbr. var. Something that differs in form only slightly from something else, as a different spelling or pronunciation of the same word. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin variāns, variant- present participle of variāre, to vary. See VARY.]

var·i·ate (vâr'ê-īt, -āt', văr'-) n. Statistics. A random variable with a numerical value that is defined on a given sample space. [From Latin variātus, past participle of variāre, to vary. See VARY.]

var·i·a·tion (vâr'ê-ā'shən, văr'-) n. Abbr. var. 1. a. The act, process, or result of varying. b. The state or fact of being varied. See Synonyms at difference. 2. The extent or degree to which something varies: a variation of ten pounds in weight. 3. Magnetic declination. 4. Something slightly different from another of the same type. 5. Biology. a. Marked difference or deviation from the normal or recognized form, function, or structure. b. An organism or a plant exhibiting such difference or deviation. 6. Mathematics. A function that relates the values of one variable to those of other variables. 7. Music. a. A form that is an altered version of a given theme, diverging from it by melodic ornamentation and by changes in harmony, rhythm, or key. b. One of a series of forms based on a single theme. 8. A solo dance, especially one forming part of a larger work.

—var'·i·a'tion·al adj.

varic- pref. Variant of varico-.

var·i·ce·al (văr'ī-sē'əl) adj. Of, relating to, or caused by a varix or varices: variceal hemorrhage.

var·i·cel·la (văr'ī-sēl'ə) n. See chickenpox. [New Latin, diminutive of variola, variola. See VARIOLA.] —var'·i·cel'loid' (-sēl'oid') adj.

var·i·cel·late (văr'ī-sēl'īt, -āt) adj. Having small varices, as certain gastropod shells.

var·i·cel·la·zos·ter virus (văr'ī-sēl'ə-zōs'tər vī'rəs) n. A herpesvirus that causes chickenpox and shingles.

var·i·ces (văr'ī-sēz') n. Plural of varix.

varico- or varic- pref. Varix; varicose vein: varicosis. [From Latin varix, varic-, varix.]

var·i·co·cele (văr'ī-kō-sēl') n. A varicose condition of veins of the spermatic cord or the ovaries, forming a soft tumor. [VARICO- + -CELE¹.]

var·i·col·ored (vâr'ī-kŭl'ərd, văr'-) adj. Having a variety of colors; variegated.

var·i·cose (văr'ī-kōs') adj. 1. Abnormally swollen or knotted: varicose veins.

2. Relating to or causing unusual swelling. 3. Resembling a varix on the surface of a shell. [Latin varicōsus, from varix, varic-, swollen vein.]

var·i·co·sis (văr'ī-kō'sis) n. pl. var·i·co·ses (-sēz). 1. The condition of being varicose. 2. Formation of varices.

var·i·cos·i·ty (văr'ī-kōs'ī-tē) n. pl. var·i·cos·i·ties. 1. Varicosis. 2. A varicose enlargement or swelling. 3. The condition of having varicose veins.

var·i·cot·o·my (văr'ī-kōt'ə-mē) n. pl. var·i·cot·o·mies. Surgical removal of varicose veins.

var-ied (vâr'ēd, văr'-) adj. 1. Having or consisting of various kinds or forms; diverse. See Synonyms at miscellaneous. 2. Having been modified or altered. 3. Of several colors; varicolored or variegated. —var'ied-ly adv.

varied thrush (vâr'ēd thrūsh) n. A bird (Ixoreus naevius) of western North America that resembles the robin but has a black stripe across the breast.

var-i-e-gate (vâr'ē-ĭ-gāt', văr'ĭ-gāt', văr'-) v. tr. var-i-e-gat-ed, var-i-e-gat-ing, var-i-e-gates. 1. To change the appearance of, especially by marking with different colors; streak. 2. To give variety to; make varied. [From Late Latin variegātus, past participle of variegāre: Latin varius, various + agere, to do, drive; see ag- in Appendix.] —var'ĭ-e-ga'tor n.

var-i-e-gat-ed (vâr'ē-ĭ-gā'tĭd, văr'ĭ-gā'-, văr'-) adj. 1. Having streaks, marks, or patches of a different color or colors; varicolored: “If they recall the Colosseum... it is only as a showcase for cats more variegated than any fevered artist’s mind could imagine” (Michael Mewshaw). 2. Distinguished or characterized by variety; diversified.

var-i-e-ga-tion (vâr'ē-ĭ-gā'shən, văr'ĭ-gā'-, văr'-) n. The state of being variegated; diversified coloration.

va-ri-e-tal (və-rī'ĭ-tl) adj. Of, indicating, or characterizing a variety, especially a biological variety. — n. A wine made principally from one variety of grapes and carrying the name of that grape. [From VARIETY.] —va-ri'e-tal-ly adv.

va-ri-e-ty (və-rī'ĭ-tē) n. pl. va-ri-e-ties. Abbr. var. 1. The quality or condition of being various or varied; diversity. 2. A number or collection of varied things, especially of a particular group; an assortment: brought home a variety of snacks. 3. A group that is distinguished from other groups by a specific characteristic or set of characteristics. 4. Biology. a. A taxonomic subdivision of a species consisting of naturally occurring or selectively bred populations or individuals that differ from the remainder of the species in certain minor characters. b. An organism, especially a plant, belonging to such a subdivision. 5. A variety show. [French variété, from Old French, from Latin varietās, varietāt-, from varius, various.] variety meat (və-rī'ĭ-tē mēt) n. 1. Meat, such as liver or sweetbreads, that has been taken from a part other than skeletal muscles. 2. Meat, such as sausage, that has been processed.

variety show (və-rī'ĭ-tē shō) n. A theatrical entertainment consisting of successive unrelated acts, such as songs, dances, and comedy skits.

variety store (və-rī'ĭ-tē stôr) n. A retail store that carries a large variety of usually inexpensive merchandise.

var-i-form (vâr'ə-fôrm', văr'-) adj. Having a variety of forms; diversiform.

vario- or vari- pref. Variety; difference; variation: variometer. [From Latin varius, speckled.]

va·ri·o·la (və-rī'ə-lə, vār'ē-ō'lə, vār'-) n. See smallpox. [New Latin, from Medieval Latin, pustule, from Latin varius, speckled.]

var·i·o·late (vâr'ē-ə-lāt', vār'-) adj. Having pustules or marks like those of smallpox. — v. tr. var·i·o·lat·ed, var·i·o·lat·ing, var·i·o·lates. To inoculate with the smallpox virus.

var·i·ole (vâr'ē-ōl') n. A small pocklike mark, as on an insect.

var·i·o·lite (vâr'ē-ə-līt', vār'-) n. A basic rock whose pockmarked appearance is caused by the presence of numerous white, rounded, embedded spherules.

var·i·o·loid (vâr'ē-ə-loid', vār'-, və-rī'ə-loid') n. A mild form of smallpox occurring in people who have been previously vaccinated or who have had the disease.

va·ri·o·lous (və-rī'ə-ləs, vâr'ē-ō'l-, vār'-) adj. Of, relating to, or affected with smallpox.

var·i·om·e·ter (vâr'ē-ôm'ī-tər, vār'-) n. A variable inductor used to measure variations in terrestrial magnetism.

var·i·o·rum (vâr'ē-ôr'əm, -ôr'-, vār'-) n. 1. An edition of the works of an author with notes by various scholars or editors. 2. An edition containing various versions of a text. — adj. Of or relating to a variorum edition or text. [From Latin (ēditio cum notis) variōrum, (edition with the notes) of various persons, genitive pl. of varius, various.]

var·i·ous (vâr'ē-əs, vār'-) adj. Abbr. var. 1. a. Of diverse kinds: for various reasons. b. Unlike; different. 2. Being more than one; several. 3. Many-sided; versatile: a person of various skills. 4. Having a variegated nature or appearance. 5. Being an individual or separate member of a class or group: The various reports all agreed. 6. Archaic. Changeable; variable. — pron. (used with a pl. verb). Usage Problem. Several different individuals. [From Latin varius.] — var'ious·ly adv. — var'ious·ness n.

USAGE NOTE: Various is sometimes used as a pronoun, as in He spoke to various of the members. It is not clear why this usage should be regarded as an error, since it is supported by analogy to the uses of quantifiers such as few, many, and several. But it has occasioned widespread critical objections; in an earlier survey the usage was found unacceptable by 91 percent of the Usage Panel.

var·i·sized (vâr'ī-sīzd', vār'-) adj. Of different sizes.

var·ix (vâr'iks) n. pl. var·i·ces (-ī-sēz'). 1. An abnormally dilated or swollen vein, artery, or lymph vessel. 2. One of the longitudinal ridges on the surface of a gastropod shell. [Latin, swollen vein.]

var·let (vâr'līt) n. 1. An attendant or a servant. 2. A knight's page. 3. A rascal; a knave. [Middle English, from Old French, variant of vaslet. See VALET.]

var-let-ry (vār'li-trē) n. pl. var-let-tries. Archaic. 1. A crowd of attendants or menials. 2. A disorderly crowd; a rabble.

var-mint (vār'mīnt) n. Informal. One that is considered undesirable, obnoxious, or troublesome. [Variant of VERMIN.]

Var-mus (vār'məs), Harold Eliot. Born 1939. American microbiologist. He shared a 1989 Nobel Prize for discovering a sequence of genes that can cause cancer when mutated.

Var-na (vār'nə) A city of eastern Bulgaria on the Black Sea north-northeast of Burgas. Founded in the sixth century B.C. as a Greek colony, it came under Turkish control in 1391 and was ceded to newly independent Bulgaria in 1878. Population, 297,000.

var-nish (vār'nīsh) n. 1. a. A paint containing a solvent and an oxidizing or evaporating binder, used to coat a surface with a hard, glossy, transparent film. b. The smooth coating or gloss resulting from the application of this paint. 2. a. Something suggestive of or resembling varnish. b. A deceptively attractive external appearance; an outward show. — v. tr. var-nished, var-nish-ing, var-nish-es. 1. To cover with varnish. 2. To give a smooth and glossy finish to. 3. To give a deceptively attractive appearance to; gloss over. [Middle English vernisse, from Old French vernix, from Medieval Latin veronix, vernix, sandarac resin, from Late Greek verenikē, from Greek Berenikē, Berenice (Benghazi), an ancient city of Cyrenaica.] — var'nish-er n.

varnish tree (vār'nīsh trē) n. Any of several trees having milky juice used to make varnish.

Va-ro (vā'rō), Remedios. 1913-1963. Spanish surrealist painter whose works depict dreamlike scenes and mystical creatures and are often based on her studies of alchemy and witchcraft.

va-room (və-rōom', -rōom') n. & v. Variant of vroom.

Var-ro (vār'ō), Marcus Terentius. 116-27 B.C. Roman scholar and encyclopedist who reputedly produced more than 600 volumes, covering nearly every field of knowledge.

var-si-ty (vār'si-tē) n. pl. var-si-ties. 1. The principal team representing a university, college, or school in sports, games, or other competitions. 2. Chiefly British. A university. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: varsity football; a varsity letter. [Alteration of UNIVERSITY.]

var-us (vâr'əs, vār'-) n. An abnormal position of a bone of the leg or foot. [From Latin vārus, crooked.]

varve (vārv) n. Geology. A layer or series of layers of sediment deposited in a body of still water in one year. [Swedish varv, layer, from varva, to bend, from Old Norse hverfa.]

var-y (vâr'ē, vār'ē) v. var-ied (-ēd), var-y-ing, var-ies (-ēz). — v. tr. 1. To make or cause changes in the characteristics or attributes of; modify or alter.

2. To give variety to; make diverse: vary one's diet. 3. To introduce under new aspects; express in a different manner: vary a musical tempo. — v. intr. 1. To undergo or show change: The temperature varied throughout the day. 2. To be different; deviate: vary from established patterns of behavior. See Synonyms at differ. 3. To undergo successive or alternate changes in attributes or qualities: Foliage varies with the seasons. [Middle English varien, to undergo change, from Old French varier, from Latin variāre, from varius, various.] —var'y-ing-ly adv.

var·y·ing hare (vâr'ē-īng hâr, văr'-) n. See snowshoe rabbit.

vas (väs) n. pl. va-sa (vā'zə). Anatomy. A vessel or duct. [Latin vās, vessel.]

vas- pref. Variant of vaso-.

va-sa (vā'zə) n. Plural of vas.

vasa def·er·en·ti·a (vā'zə dəf'ə-rĕn'shē-ə) n. Plural of vas deferens.

vasa ef·fer·en·ti·a (vā'zə ěf'ə-rĕn'shē-ə) n. Plural of vas efferens.

va-sal (vā'səl, -zəl) adj. Of, relating to, or connected with a vessel or duct of the body.

Va-sa-ri (və-zär'ē, -sär'ē, və-zä'rē), Giorgio. 1511-1574. Italian painter, architect, and art historian who wrote Lives of the Most Imminent Italian Architects, Painters, and Sculptors (1550), a history of Renaissance art.

vas-cu-la (väs'kyə-lə) n. Plural of vasculum.

vas-cu-lar (väs'kyə-lər) adj. Biology. Of, characterized by, or containing vessels that carry or circulate fluids, such as blood, lymph, or sap through the body of an animal or a plant. [From Latin vāsculum, diminutive of vās, vessel.]

—vas'cu-lar'i-ty (-lär'ī-tē) n.

vascular bundle (väs'kyə-lər bŭn'dl) n. Botany. A strand of primary conductive plant tissue consisting essentially of xylem and phloem. Also called fibrovascular bundle vascular cambium (väs'kyə-lər kām'bē-əm) n. Botany. A lateral meristem that produces secondary xylem to the inside and secondary phloem to the outside.

vas-cu-lar-i-zation (väs'kyə-lər-ĭ-zā'shən) n. 1. The process of vascularizing; the formation of vessels, especially blood vessels. 2. Medicine. An abnormal or pathological formation of blood vessels.

vas-cu-lar-ize (väs'kyə-lə-rīz') v. tr. intr. vas-cu-lar-ized, vas-cu-lar-iz-ing, vas-cu-lar-iz-es. To make or become vascular.

vascular plant (väs'kyə-lər plānt) n. Any of various plants, such as the ferns and seed-bearing plants, in which the phloem transports sugar and the xylem transports water and salts.

vascular tissue (väs'kyə-lər tīsh'ōō) n. The supportive and conductive tissue in plants, consisting of xylem and phloem.

vas-cu-la-ture (väs'kyə-lə-čōōr', -chər) n. Arrangement of blood vessels in the body or in an organ or a body part.

vas-cu-li-tis (väs'kyə-lī'tis) n. Inflammation of a vessel of the body.

vas-cu-lum (väs'kyə-ləm) n. pl. vas-cu-la (-lə). A small box or case used for carrying collected plant specimens. [Latin vāsculum, small vessel. See VASCULAR.]

vas def-er-ens (väs' dəf'ər-ənz, -ə-rənz') n. pl. va-sa def-er-en-ti-a (vā'zə dəf'ə-rən'shē-ə). The main duct through which semen is carried from the epididymis to the ejaculatory duct. [New Latin vās dēferēns : vās, duct + Latin dēferēns, carrying away.]

vase (vās, vāz, vāz) n. An open container, as of glass or porcelain, used for holding flowers or for ornamentation. [French, from Latin vās, vessel.]

va-sec-to-mize (və-sək'tə-mīz', vā-zək'-) v. tr. va-sec-to-mized, va-sec-to-miz-ing, va-sec-to-miz-es. To perform a vasectomy on.

va-sec-to-my (və-sək'tə-mē, vā-zək'-) n. pl. va-sec-to-mies. Surgical removal of all or part of the vas deferens, usually as a means of sterilization.

vas ef-fer-ens (väs' ěf'ər-ənz, -ə-rənz') n. pl. va-sa ef-fer-en-ti-a (vā'zə ěf'ə-rən'shē-ə). Any of a number of small ducts that carry semen from the testis to the epididymis. [New Latin vās efferēns : vās, duct + Latin efferēns, carrying out.]

Vas-e-line (väs'ə-lēn', vās'ə-lēn') A trademark used for a brand of petroleum jelly.

Vash-on Island (vāsh'ŏn ī'lənd) An island of west-central Washington in Puget Sound between Seattle and Tacoma.

vaso- or vas- pref. 1. Blood vessel: vasoconstriction. 2. Vas deferens: vasectomy. [From Latin vās, vessel.]

va-so-ac-tive (vā'zō-āk'tiv') adj. Causing constriction or dilation of blood vessels. —va'so-ac-tiv'i-ty n.

va-so-con-stric-tion (vā'zō-kən-strīk'shən) n. Constriction of a blood vessel, as by a nerve or drug. —vas'o-con-stric-tive adj.

va-so-con-stric-tor (vā'zō-kən-strīk'tər) n. Something, such as a nerve or drug, that causes vasoconstriction.

va-so-dil-a-tion (vā'zō-dī-lā'shən, -dī-) also va-so-dil-a-ta-tion (-dīl'ə-tā'shən, -dī'lə-) n. Dilation of a blood vessel, as by the action of a nerve or drug.

va-so-di-la-tor (vā'zō-dī-lā'tər, -dī-, -dī'lā-) n. Something, such as a nerve or drug, that causes vasodilation.

va-so-li-ga-tion (vā'zō-lī-gā'shən) n. Surgical ligation of the vas deferens as a means of sterilization. —va'so-li-gāt (-lī'gāt) v.

va-so-mo-tor (vā'zō-mō'tər) adj. Relating to, causing, or regulating constriction or dilation of blood vessels.

va-so-pres-sin (vā'zō-prēs'sin) n. A hormone secreted by the posterior lobe of the pituitary gland that constricts blood vessels, raises blood pressure, and reduces excretion of urine. Also called antidiuretic hormone va-so-pres-sor (vā'zō-prēs'ər) adj. Of, relating to, or causing constriction of blood vessels. — n. An agent that causes a rise in blood pressure.

va-so-spasm (vā'zō-späz'əm) n. A sudden constriction of a blood vessel, causing a reduction in blood flow. — va'so-spas'tic (-späs'tik) adj.

va-so-va-gal (vā'zō-vā'gəl) adj. Relating to or involving blood vessels and the vagus nerve.

vas-sal (väs'əl) n. 1. A person who held land from a feudal lord and received protection in return for homage and allegiance. 2. A bondman; a slave. 3. A subordinate or dependent. [Middle English, from Old French, from Vulgar Latin vassallus*, from vassus*, of Celtic origin. See upo in Appendix.]

vas-sal-age (väs'ə-līj) n. 1. The condition of being a vassal. 2. The service, homage, and fealty required of a vassal. 3. A position of subordination or subjection; servitude.

Vas-sar (väs'ər), Matthew. 1792-1868. American merchant and philanthropist who was an advocate of higher education for women and endowed Vassar College (1861).

vast (väst) adj. vast-er, vast-est. 1. Very great in size, number, amount, or quantity. 2. Very great in area or extent; immense. 3. Very great in degree or intensity. See Synonyms at enormous. — n. Archaic. An immense space. [Latin vastus.] — vast'ly adv. — vast'ness n.

Väs-ter-ås (väs'tə-rōs') A city of eastern Sweden west-northwest of Stockholm. Founded before 1000, it was an important medieval city and a center of the Swedish Reformation. Population, 117,658.

vas-ti-tude (väs'ti-tōōd', -tyōōd') also vas-ti-ty (-tē) n. Immensity. [Latin vastitūdō, from vastus, vast.]

vast-y (väs'tē) adj. vast-i-er, vast-i-est. Archaic. Vast.

vat (văt) n. A large vessel, such as a tub, cistern, or barrel, used to hold or store liquids. — v. tr. vat-ted, vat-ting, vats. To put into or treat in a vat. [Middle English, variant of fat, from Old English fæt.]

VAT or V.A.T. abbr. Value-added tax.

Vat. abbr. Vatican.

vat dye (văt dī) n. A dye, such as indigo, that produces a fast color by impregnating fiber with a reduced soluble form that is then oxidized to an insoluble form. — vat'-dyed' (văt'dīd') adj.

vat-ic (văt'ik) also vat-i-cal (-i-kəl) adj. Of or characteristic of a prophet; oracular. [From Latin vātēs, seer. See wet-¹ in Appendix.]

Vat-i-can (văt'i-kən) n. Abbr. Vat. 1. The official residence of the pope in Vatican City. 2. The papal government; the papacy. [Latin Vaticānus (mōns), the Vatican (Hill).]

Vatican City (văt'i-kən sīt'ē) An independent papal state on the Tiber River within Rome, Italy. Created by the Lateran Treaty signed by Pope Pius XI and Victor Emmanuel III of Italy in 1929, it issues its own currency and postage stamps and has its own newspaper and broadcasting facilities. Population, 736.

Vat·i·can·ism (văt'ī-kə-nīz'əm) n. The policies and authority of the papacy.

va·tic·i·nal (vă-tīs'ə-nəl, və-) adj. Prophetic.

va·tic·i·nate (vă-tīs'ə-nāt', və-) v. va·tic·i·nat·ed, va·tic·i·nat·ing, va·tic·i·nates. — v. tr. To prophesy; foretell. See Synonyms at foretell. — v. intr. To be a prophet. [Latin vāticinārī, vāticināt-, from vātēs, seer. See VATIC.]

—va·tic'·i·na'tor n.

va·tic·i·na·tion (vă-tīs'ə-nā'shən, və-) n. 1. The act of prophesying. 2. A prediction; a prophecy.

Vät·tern (vət'ərn) A lake of south-central Sweden southeast of Lake Vänern. It is connected with the Baltic Sea by the Göta Canal.

va·tu (vă'tōō) n. A basic unit of currency in Vanuatu. See Table at currency. [Native word in Vanuatu.]

vau (văv, vōv) n. Variant of vav.

Vau·ban (vō-bän'), Marquis Sébastien Le Prestre de. 1633-1707. French military engineer who revolutionized fortification and siege strategies during the reign of Louis XIV.

vaude·ville (vôd'vil', vōd'-, vō'də-) n. 1. a. Stage entertainment offering a variety of short acts such as slapstick turns, song-and-dance routines, and juggling performances. b. A theatrical performance of this kind; a variety show.

2. A light comic play that often includes songs, pantomime, and dances.

3. Music. A popular, often satirical song. [French, alteration of Old French vaudevire, occasional or topical light popular song, possibly short for chanson du Vau de Vire, song of Vau de Vire, a valley of northwest France, or perhaps dialectal vauder, to go + virer, to turn; see VEER¹.]

vaude·vil·lian (vôd-vil'yən, vōd-, vō'də-) n. One, especially a performer, who works in vaudeville. —vaude·vil'lian adj.

Vau·dois (vō-dwä') pl.n. See Waldenses. [French, from Old French vaudeis, from Medieval Latin Waldēnsēs. See WALDENSES.]

Vaughan (vôn, vän) A town of southeast Ontario, Canada, a suburb of Toronto. Population, 29,674.

Vaughan (vôn), Henry. Known as “the Silurist.” 1622-1695. Welsh metaphysical poet whose works include Silex Scintillans (1650-1655).

Vaughan (vôn), Sarah. 1924-1990. American jazz singer known for her complex bebop phrasing and her scat-singing virtuosity.

Vaughan Wil·liams (vôn wīl'yəmz), Ralph. 1872-1958. British composer who was influenced by folk tunes and Tudor music. His works include nine symphonies, the ballet Job (1930), and the opera The Pilgrim's Progress (1951).

vault¹ (vôlt) n. 1. a. An arched structure, usually of stone, brick, or concrete, forming the supporting structure of a ceiling or roof. b. An arched overhead covering, such as the sky, that resembles the architectural structure in form. 2. A room or space, such as a cellar or storeroom, with arched walls and ceiling, especially when underground. 3. A room or compartment, often built of steel, for the safekeeping of valuables: a bank vault. 4. A burial chamber, especially when underground. 5. Anatomy. An arched part of the body, especially the top part of the skull. — v. tr. vault-ed, vault-ing, vaults. 1. To construct or supply with an arched ceiling; cover with a vault. 2. To build or make in the shape of a vault; arch. [Middle English vaute, from Old French, from Vulgar Latin volvita*, volta*, from feminine of ·volvitus, arched, alteration of Latin volūtus, past participle of volvere, to roll. See wel-² in Appendix.]

vault² (vôlt) v. vault-ed, vault-ing, vaults. — v. tr. To jump or leap over, especially with the aid of a support such as the hands or a pole. — v. intr. 1. To jump or leap, especially with the use of the hands or a pole. 2. To accomplish something as if by leaping suddenly or vigorously: vaulted into a position of wealth. — n. The act of vaulting; a jump. [Obsolete French volter, from Old French, from Old Italian voltare, from Vulgar Latin volvitāre*, frequentative of Latin volvere, to turn, roll. See wel-² in Appendix.] — vault'er n.

vault-ing¹ (vôl'tĩng) n. Something vaulted or arched.

vault-ing² (vôl'tĩng) adj. 1. Leaping upward or over. 2. Reaching too far; exaggerated: his vaulting ambition. 3. Employed in leaping over: a vaulting pole.

vaunt (vônt, vönt) v. vaunt-ed, vaunt-ing, vaunts. — v. tr. To speak boastfully of; brag about. — v. intr. To speak boastfully; brag. See Synonyms at boast¹. — n. 1. A boastful remark. 2. Speech of extravagant self-praise. [Middle English vaunten, from Old French vanter, from Late Latin vānitāre, to talk frivolously, frequentative of Latin vānāre, from vānus, empty. See eu-² in Appendix.] — vaunt'er n. — vaunt'ing-ly adv.

vaunt-cour-i-er (vônt'kōōr'ē-ər, -kūr'-, kūr'-, vönt'-) n. Archaic. A person, such as a herald, sent in advance. [Short for obsolete French avaunt-courier: Old French avaunt, in front; see VANGUARD + Old French courrier, messenger; see COURIER.]

Vau-pés (vou-pās', -pēs') See Uaupés.

Vaux (vôks), Calvert. 1824-1895. British-born American landscape architect who was a designer of Central Park in New York City.

vav also vau or waw (vāv, vōv) n. The sixth letter of the Hebrew alphabet. [Hebrew wāw, hook.]

vav·a·sor also vav·a·sour (vāv'ə-sōr', -sōr', -sōōr') n. A feudal tenant who ranked directly below a baron or peer. [Middle English vavasour, from Old French, from Medieval Latin vavassor, possibly contraction of vassus vassōrum, vassal of vassals: vassus, vassal (from Vulgar Latin vassus*); see VASSAL + vassōrum, genitive pl. of vassus, vassal.]

vb. abbr. Verb; verbal.

VC also V.C. abbr. Vietcong.

V.C. abbr. 1. Vice-chairman; vice-chairperson. 2. Vice chancellor. 3. Vice consul. 4. Victoria Cross.

VCR (vē'sē-är') n. pl. VCR's. An electronic device for recording and playing back video images and sound on a videocassette. [V(IDEO)C(ASSETTE)R(ECORDER).]

VD also V.D. abbr. Venereal disease.

v.d. abbr. 1. Vapor density. 2. Various dates.

V-day (vē'dā') n. A day of victory, as at the conclusion of a war. [V(ICTORY) + DAY.]

VDT (vē'dē-tē') n. pl. VDT's. Computer Science. An output device using the screen of a cathode-ray tube to display data and graphic images. [V(IDEO)D(ISPLAY)T(ERMINAL).]

've Have: I've been invited.

veal (vēl) n. 1. The meat of a calf. 2. Also veal·er (vē'lər). A calf raised to be slaughtered for food. [Middle English veel, from Old French, from Latin vitellus, diminutive of vitulus, calf. See wet-² in Appendix.]

Veblen (vēb'lən), Oswald. 1880-1960. American mathematician noted for his work on projective geometry and topology.

Veblen (vēb'lən), Thorstein Bunde. 1857-1929. American economist who described a fundamental conflict between the provision of goods and the making of money. In his popular study The Theory of the Leisure Class (1899) he coined the phrase conspicuous consumption.

vec·tor (vēk'tər) n. 1. Mathematics. a. A quantity, such as velocity, completely specified by a magnitude and a direction. b. A one-dimensional array. c. An element of a vector space. 2. Pathology. An organism, such as a mosquito or tick, that carries disease-causing microorganisms from one host to another.

3. Genetics. A bacteriophage, a plasmid, or another agent that transfers genetic material from one location to another. 4. A force or an influence. — v. tr.

vec·tored, vec·tor·ing, vec·tors. To guide (a pilot or an aircraft, for example) by means of radio communication according to vectors. [Latin, carrier, from vehere, vect-, to carry. See wegh- in Appendix.] — vec·to'ri·al (vēk-tōr'ē-əl, -tōr'-) adj.

vector product (vēk'tər prōd'əkt) n. Mathematics. A vector, C, that has magnitude equal to the product of the magnitudes of two vectors, A and B, and the sine of the angle between A and B. It is perpendicular to the plane of A and B and in a right-handed coordinate system directed so that a right-handed rotation about C carries A into B through an angle not greater than 180°. Also called cross product vector space (vēk'tər spās) n. Mathematics. A system consisting of a set of generalized vectors and a field of scalars, having the same rules for vector addition and scalar multiplication as physical vectors and scalars.

Ve·da (vā'də, vē'-) n. Hinduism. Any of the oldest Hindu sacred texts, composed in Sanskrit and gathered into four collections. [Sanskrit vedaḥ, sacred lore, knowledge, Veda. See weid- in Appendix.]

Ve·dan·ta (vī-dän'tə, -dän'-) n. Hinduism. The system of philosophy that further develops the implications in the Upanishads that all reality is a single principle, Brahman, and teaches that the believer's goal is to transcend the limitations of self-identity and realize one's unity with Brahman. [Sanskrit vedāntaḥ, complete knowledge of the Veda : vedaḥ, Veda; see VEDA + antaḥ, end; see ant- in Appendix.] — Ve·dan'tic adj. — Ve·dan'tism n. — Ve·dan'tist n.

V-E Day (vē'ē' dā) n. May 8, 1945, the day on which the Allies announced the surrender of German forces in Europe. [V(ictory in) E(urope) Day.]

Ved·da also Ved·dah (vēd'ə) n. pl. Vedda or Ved·das also Veddah or Ved·dahs. A member of the earliest people of Sri Lanka, originally forest-dwelling hunters but now almost completely assimilated into the modern Sinhalese population. [Sinhalese, hunter.]

ve·dette also vi·dette (vī-dět') n. 1. A mounted sentinel stationed in advance of an outpost. 2. A small scouting boat used to observe and report on an opposing naval force. [French, from Italian vedetta, alteration (influenced by vedere, to see), of veletta, probably from Spanish vela, watch, from velar, to watch, from Latin vigilāre, to watch through the night, from vigil, awake. See weg- in Appendix.]

Ve·dic (vā'dīk, vē'-) adj. Of or relating to the Veda or Vedas, the variety of Sanskrit in which they are written, or the Hindu culture that produced them. — n. The early Sanskrit in which the Vedas are written.

vee (vē) n. The letter v.

vee·jay (vē'jā') n. A video jockey. [V(IDEO) + (D)EEJAY.]

vee·na (vē'nə) n. Music. Variant of vina.

veep (vēp) n. Slang. A vice president. [Pronunciation of V.P., abbr. of VICE PRESIDENT.]

veer¹ (vîr) v. veered, veer·ing, veers. — v. intr. 1. To turn aside from a course, direction, or purpose; swerve: “a sequence of adventures that veered between tragedy and bleak farce” (Anthony Haden-Guest). See Synonyms at swerve. 2. To shift clockwise in direction, as from north to northeast. Used of the wind. 3. Nautical. To change the course of a ship upwind by turning the stern through the wind. — v. tr. 1. To alter the direction of; turn: veered the car sharply to the left. 2. Nautical. To change the course of (a ship) upwind by turning the stern through the wind. — n. A change in direction; a swerve. [French virer, from Old French.]

veer² (vîr) v. tr. veered, veer·ing, veers. Nautical. To let out or release (a line or an anchor train). [Middle English veren, from Middle Dutch vieren. See per¹ in Appendix.]

vee·ry (vîr'ē) n. pl. vee·ries. A New World thrush (Hylocichla fuscescens) having a reddish-brown head, back, and tail and an indistinctly spotted breast. Also called Wilson's thrush [Possibly imitative of its song.]

veg. abbr. Vegetable.

veg (vēj) v. intr. vegged, veg·ging, veg·es. To engage in relaxing or passive activities. Used with out. [Short for VEGETATE.]

Ve·ga (vē'gə, vā'-) n. The brightest star in the constellation Lyra. [Medieval Latin, from Arabic (al nasr) al wāqī', the falling (vulture), Vega.]

Vega (vā'gə, bē'gä), Lope de. 1562-1635. Spanish playwright whose enormous body of works, including Fuenteovejuna (c. 1619), established the national drama of Spain. Nearly 500 of his more than 2,000 plays are extant.

veg·an (vē'gən, vēj'ən) n. A vegetarian whose diet consists of plant products only. [Short for VEGETARIAN.] —veg'an·ism n.

veg·e·ta·ble (vēj'tə-bəl, vēj'ī-tə-) n. Abbr. veg. 1. a. A plant cultivated for an edible part, such as the root of the beet, the leaf of spinach, or the flower buds of broccoli or cauliflower. b. The edible part of such a plant. c. A member of the vegetable kingdom; a plant. 2. A person who is regarded as dull, passive, or unresponsive. — adj. 1. Of, relating to, or derived from plants or a plant. 2. Suggestive of or resembling a plant. 3. Growing or multiplying like plants. [From Middle English, living and growing as plants do, from Old French, from Medieval Latin vegetābilis, from Late Latin, enlivening, from Latin vegetāre, to enliven, from vegetus, lively, from vegēre, to be lively. See weg- in Appendix.]

WORD HISTORY: When the speaker in Andrew Marvell's "To his Coy Mistress" tells his mistress that "Had we but world enough, and time... /My vegetable love should grow/Vaster than empires and more slow," he "makes one think of pumpkins and eternity in one breath," as one critic has playfully suggested. However, vegetable in this case is used figuratively in the sense, "having the property of life and growth, as does a plant." This use is based on the ancient religious and philosophical notion of the tripartite soul as interpreted by the Scholastics: the vegetative soul common to plants, animals, and humans; the sensitive soul common to animals and humans; and the rational soul, found only in humans. "Vegetable love" in Marvell's poem is thus a love that grows, takes nourishment, and reproduces, although it grows slowly. Marvell's use illustrates the original sense of vegetable, first recorded in the 15th century. In a work published in 1582 we find recorded for the first time the adjective use of vegetable familiar to us, "having to do with plants." In a work of the same date appears the first instance of vegetable as a noun, meaning "a plant." It is not until the 18th century that we find the noun and adjective used in the more restricted way associated with the injunction "Eat your vegetables."

vegetable ivory (vēj'tə-bəl ī'və-rē) n. A hard, ivorylike material obtained from the ivory nut and used in making small objects such as buttons.

vegetable marrow (vēj'tə-bəl mār'ō) n. Chiefly British. Marrow squash.

vegetable oil (vēj'tə-bəl oil) n. Any of various oils obtained from plants and used in food products and industrially.

vegetable oyster (vēj'tə-bəl oi'stər) n. See salsify.

vegetable silk (vēj'tə-bəl sīlk) n. Any of several silky fibers from the seed-pods of certain plants, such as the kapok.

vegetable sponge (vēj'tə-bəl spūnj) n. See loofa (n., sense 2).

vegetable tallow (vēj'tə-bəl tāl'ō) n. 1. Any of various waxy fats obtained from certain plants, such as the bayberry, and used in making soap and candles.

2. See Chinese tallow tree.

vegetable wax (vēj'tə-bəl wāks) n. A waxy substance of plant origin, as that obtained from certain palm trees.

veg·e·tal (vēj'ī-tl) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or characteristic of plants. 2. Relating to growth rather than to sexual reproduction; vegetative. [Middle English, from Medieval Latin vegetālis, from Latin vegetāre, to enliven. See VEGETABLE.]

vegetal pole (vēj'ī-tl pōl) n. Embryology. The portion of an egg opposite the animal pole that contains most of the yolk.

veg·e·tar·i·an (vēj'ī-tār'ē-ən) n. 1. One who practices vegetarianism. 2. A herbivore. — adj. 1. Of or relating to vegetarianism or vegetarians.

2. Consisting primarily or wholly of vegetables and vegetable products: a vegetarian diet. [VEGET(ABLE) + -ARIAN.]

veg·e·tar·i·an·ism (vēj'ī-tār'ē-ən-īz'əm) n. The practice of subsisting on a diet composed primarily or wholly of vegetables, grains, fruits, nuts, and seeds, with or without eggs and dairy products.

veg·e·tate (vēj'ī-tāt') v. intr. veg·e·tat·ed, veg·e·tat·ing, veg·e·tates.

1. To grow or sprout as a plant does. 2. Pathology. To grow in size or spread abnormally. 3. To exist in a state of physical or mental inactivity or insensibility. [Latin vegetāre, vegetāt-, to enliven. See VEGETABLE.]

veg·e·ta·tion (vēj'ī-tā'shən) n. 1. The act or process of vegetating. 2. The plants of an area or a region; plant life: The vegetation is lush on the Hawaiian Islands. 3. Pathology. An abnormal growth on the body. —veg·e·ta'tion·al adj.

veg·e·ta·tive (vēj'ī-tā'tīv) also veg·e·tive (-ī-tīv) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or characteristic of plants or their growth. 2. Biology. a. Of, relating to, or capable of growth. b. Of, relating to, or functioning in processes such as growth or nutrition rather than sexual reproduction. c. Of or relating to asexual reproduction, such as fission or budding.

veg·gie also veg·ie (vēj'ē) n. Informal. A vegetable.

ve-he-ment (vē'ə-mənt) adj. 1. Characterized by forcefulness of expression or intensity of emotion or conviction; fervid: a vehement denial. See Synonyms at intense. 2. Marked by or full of vigor or energy; strong: a vehement storm. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin vehemēns, vehement-, perhaps from vehere, to carry. See wegh- in Appendix.] —ve'he-mence, ve'he-men-cy n. —ve'he-ment-ly adv.

ve-hi-cle (vē'i-kəl) n. 1. a. A device or structure for transporting persons or things; a conveyance: a space vehicle. b. A self-propelled conveyance that runs on tires; a motor vehicle. 2. A medium through which something is transmitted, expressed, or accomplished: His novels are a vehicle for his political views. 3. The concrete or specific word or phrase that is applied to the tenor of a metaphor and gives the metaphor its figurative power, as walking shadow in “Life's but a walking shadow” (Shakespeare). 4. A play, role, or piece of music used to display the special talents of one performer or company. 5. A substance of no therapeutic value used to convey an active medicine for administration. 6. A substance, such as oil, in which paint pigments are mixed for application. [Latin vehiculum, from vehere, to carry. See wegh- in Appendix.]

ve-hic-u-lar (vē-hik'yə-lər) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or intended for vehicles, especially motor vehicles. 2. Serving as a vehicle: a vehicular contrivance.

Ve-ii (vē'i) An ancient city of Etruria north of modern-day Rome, Italy. A powerful member of the Etruscan League, it was almost constantly at war with Rome and finally succumbed in 396 B.C. after a ten-year siege.

veil (vāl) n. 1. A length of cloth worn by women over the head, shoulders, and often the face. 2. A length of netting attached to a woman's hat or headdress, worn for decoration or to protect the head and face. 3. a. The part of a nun's headdress that frames the face and falls over the shoulders. b. The life or vows of a nun. 4. a. A piece of light fabric hung to separate or conceal what is behind it; a curtain. b. Something that conceals, separates, or screens like a curtain: a veil of secrecy. 5. Biology. A membranous covering or part, as that on the developing fruiting body of certain mushrooms; a velum. — v. tr. veiled, veil-ing, veils. 1. To cover with or as if with a veil: Dense fog veiled the bridge. 2. To conceal or disguise. [Middle English, from Old North French, from Latin vēla, pl. of vēlum, a covering.]

veiled (vāld) adj. 1. Covered with a veil: the veiled head of a bride. 2. Concealed or disguised as if with a veil: “slur-footed ironies, veiled jokes, tiptoe malices” (Edith Wharton).

veil-ing (vā'liŋ) n. 1. A veil. 2. Sheer material, such as gauze or fine lace, used for veils.

vein (vān) n. 1. a. Anatomy. Any of a branching system of membranous tubes that carry blood to the heart. b. A blood vessel. 2. Botany. One of the vascular bundles or ribs that form the branching framework of conducting and supporting tissues in a leaf or other expanded plant organ. Also called nervure 3. Zoology. One of the horny ribs that stiffen and support the wing of an insect. Also called nervure 4. Geology. A regularly shaped and lengthy occurrence of an ore; a lode. 5. A long, wavy strip of a different shade or color, as in wood or marble, or as mold in cheese. 6. A fissure, crack, or cleft. 7. A pervading character or quality; a streak: “All through the interminable narrative there ran a vein of impressive earnestness” (Mark Twain). See Synonyms at streak. 8. a. A transient attitude or mood. b. A particular turn of mind: spoke later in a more serious vein. — v. tr. veined, vein-ing, veins. 1. To supply or fill with veins. 2. To mark or decorate with veins. [Middle English veine, from Old French, from Latin vēna.] —vein/al adj.

veined (vānd) adj. Having veins or showing veinlike markings.

vein-ing (vā'nīng) n. Distribution or arrangement of veins or veinlike markings.

vein-let (vān'līt) n. A small or secondary vein, as on the wing of an insect.

vein-stone (vān'stōn') n. Mineral matter in a vein exclusive of the ore; gangue.

vein-ule (vān'yōōl) n. A small vein.

vein-y (vā'nē) adj. vein-i-er, vein-i-est. Full of or exhibiting veins; veined.

vel. abbr. 1. Vellum. 2. Velocity.

ve-la (vē'lə) n. Biology & Anatomy & Zoology. Plural of velum.

Ve-la (vē'lə, vā'-) n. A constellation in the Southern Hemisphere near Pyxis and Carina. [Latin vēla, pl. of vēlum, a covering.]

ve-la-men (və-lā'mən) n. pl. ve-lam-i-na (-lām'ə-nə). 1. Anatomy. A membranous covering or partition; velum. 2. Botany. The spongy, multiple epidermis that covers the aerial roots of epiphytic orchids and certain other plants and is capable of absorbing atmospheric moisture. [Latin, covering, from vēlāre, to cover, from vēlum, a covering.] —vel'a-men'tous (vēl'ə-měn'təs) adj.

ve-lar (vē'lər) adj. 1. a. Of or relating to a velum. b. Concerning or using the soft palate. 2. Linguistics. Articulated with the back of the tongue touching or near the soft palate, as (g) in good and (k) in cup. — n. Linguistics. A velar sound.

ve-lar-ize (vē'lə-rīz') v. tr. ve-lar-ized, ve-lar-iz-ing, ve-lar-iz-es. Linguistics. To articulate (a sound) by retracting the back of the tongue toward the soft palate. —ve'lar-i-za'tion (-lər-ī-zā'shən) n.

ve-late (vē'lāt', -līt) adj. Biology. Having or covered by a velum or veil.

Ve-láz-quez (və-läs'kēs, bē-lāth'kēth), Diego Rodríguez de Silva y. 1599-1660. Spanish painter whose works, including portraits, notably of Pope Innocent X (1650), historical scenes, such as The Surrender of Breda (1635), still lifes, and genre scenes, display his extraordinary technique and mastery of light.

Vel·bert (fě'l'bərt) A city of west-central Germany in the Ruhr Valley northeast of Düsseldorf. It is a manufacturing center specializing in iron goods. Population, 89,261.

Vel·cro (vē'l'krō) A trademark used for a fastening tape consisting of a strip of nylon with a surface of minute hooks that fasten to a corresponding strip with a surface of uncut pile, used especially on cloth products, such as outerwear, luggage, and athletic shoes. This trademark sometimes occurs in print in lowercase: “dart boards with velcro balls for darts” (American Banker). It also occurs as a verb: “We might Velcro the camera to the window, to steady it” (Washington Post). The trademark occurs in figurative contexts as well: “Many colleges and universities have adopted a Velcro approach to curriculum design: sticking additional requirements on a base of distribution requirements” (New York Times). “In the early stages of a romance—the Velcro period—intimacy is rarely an issue” (Chicago Tribune).

veldt also veld (vēlt, fělt) n. Any of the open grazing areas of southern Africa. [Afrikaans veld, from Middle Dutch, field. See pelə-² in Appendix.]

Ve·li·a (vē'lē-ə) See Elea.

ve·li·ger (vē'lə-jər, vē'lə-) n. A larval stage of a mollusk characterized by the presence of a velum. [New Latin vēliger : vēlum, velum; see VELUM + Latin gerere, to bear.]

Ve·li·ki·ye Lu·ki (və-lē'kē-ə lōō'kē, vyi-lē'kē-yə lōō'kyi) A city of west-central Russia west of Moscow. First mentioned in the 12th century, it is a railroad junction and processing center. Population, 110,000.

vel·le·i·ty (vē-lē'i-tē, və-) n. pl. vel·le·i·ties. 1. Volition at its lowest level. 2. A mere wish or inclination. [New Latin velleitās, from Latin velle, to wish. See wel-¹ in Appendix.]

Vel·lore (və-lōr', -lōr') A town of southeast India west-southwest of Madras. The Sepoy Mutiny began here in 1806. Population, 174,247.

vel·lum (vē'ləm) n. Abbr. vel. 1. a. A fine parchment made from calfskin, lambskin, or kidskin and used for the pages and binding of books. b. A work written or printed on this parchment. 2. A heavy off-white fine-quality paper resembling this parchment. [Middle English velim, from Old French velin, from veel, calf. See VEAL.]

ve·lo·ce (vā-lō'chā) adv. Music. Rapidly. Used chiefly as a direction. [Italian, from Latin vēlōx, vēlōc-, rapid. See VELOCITY.]

ve·lo·cim·e·ter (vē'lō-sim'i-tər, vē'lō-) n. A device for measuring the speed of sound in water. [VELOCI(TY) + -METER.]

ve·loc·i·pede (və-lōs'ə-pēd') n. 1. A tricycle. 2. a. Any of several early bicycles having pedals attached to the front wheel. b. An early bicycle propelled by pushing the feet along the ground while straddling the vehicle. [French vélocipède : Latin vēlōx, vēlōc-, fast; see VELOCITY + Latin pēs, ped-, foot; see -PED.]

ve·loc·i·ty (və-lŏs'ī-tē) n. pl. ve·loc·i·ties. 1. Abbr. vel. Rapidity or speed of motion; swiftness. 2. Abbr. V Physics. A vector quantity whose magnitude is a body's speed and whose direction is the body's direction of motion. 3. a. The rate of speed of action or occurrence. b. The rate at which money changes hands in an economy. [Middle English velocite, from Old French, from Latin vēlōcitās, from vēlōx, vēlōc-, fast. See weg- in Appendix.]

ve·lour or ve·lours (və-lŏr') n. pl. ve·lours (-lŏr'). 1. A closely napped fabric resembling velvet, used chiefly for clothing and upholstery. 2. A felt resembling velvet, used in making hats. [Alteration of French velours, velvet, from Old French velour, alteration of velous, from Old Provençal velos, from Latin villōsus, hairy, from villus, shaggy hair. See VELVET.]

ve·lou·té (və-lŏ-tā') n. A white sauce made of chicken, veal, or fish stock thickened with a roux of flour and butter. [French, from Old French vellute, velvety, from velous, velvet. See VELOUR.]

ve·lum (vē'ləm) n. pl. ve·la (-lə). 1. Biology. A covering or partition of thin membranous tissue, such as the veil of a mushroom or a membrane of the brain. 2. Anatomy. The soft palate. 3. Zoology. A ciliated swimming organ that develops in certain larval stages of most marine gastropod mollusks. [Latin, veil.]

ve·lure (vē-lŏr', vē'l'yər) n. Obsolete. Velvet or a velvetlike fabric. [Alteration of French velours. See VELOUR.]

ve·lu·ti·nous (və-lŏt'n-əs) adj. Covered with dense, soft, silky hairs. [From New Latin velūtīnus, from Medieval Latin velūtum, velvet, from Vulgar Latin villūtus*. See VELVET.]

vel·vet (vēl'vīt) n. 1. A soft fabric, such as silk, rayon, or nylon, having a smooth, dense pile and a plain underside. 2. a. Something suggesting the smooth surface of velvet. b. Smoothness; softness. 3. The soft, furry covering on the developing antlers of deer. 4. Informal. a. The winnings of a gambler. b. A profit or gain beyond what is expected or due. 5. New England. See milk shake (n., sense 1). See Regional note at milk shake. [Middle English veluet, probably from Old Provençal, from Vulgar Latin villūtittus*, diminutive of ·villūtus, from Latin villus, shaggy hair, nap.]

velvet ant (vēl'vīt änt) n. Any of various brightly colored wasps of the family Mutillidae, the females of which are wingless and have a coat of velvety hair.

vel·vet·een (vēl'vī-tēn') n. A cotton pile fabric resembling velvet. [From VELVET.]

vel·vet·leaf (vēl'vīt-lēf') n. A tropical Asian annual herb (Abutilon theophrasti) naturalized in the United States, having large, velvety, heart-shaped leaves and yellow flowers. It is an important fiber plant in northern China. Also called China jute velvet plant (vēl'vīt plänt) n. See mullein. [From its dense, velvety hairs.]

velvet worm (vēl'vīt wŭrm) n. See onychophoran.

vel·vet·y (vēl'vī-tē) adj. vel·vet·i·er, vel·vet·i·est. 1. Suggestive of the texture of velvet; soft and smooth: velvety skin. 2. Smooth-tasting; mellow: a velvety sherry.

Ven. abbr. 1. Venerable. 2. Venezuela.

ven- pref. Variant of veno-.

ve·na (vē'nə) n. pl. ve·nae (-nē). Anatomy. A vein. [Middle English, from Latin vēna.]

vena ca·va (vē'nə kā'və) n. pl. venae ca·vae (kā'vē). Either of two large veins that drain blood from the upper body and from the lower body and empty into the right atrium of the heart. [New Latin vēna cava: Latin vēna, vein + Latin cava, hollow.]

ve·nae (vē'nē) n. Anatomy. Plural of vena.

ve·nal (vē'nəl) adj. 1. a. Open to bribery; mercenary: a venal police officer.

b. Capable of betraying honor, duty, or scruples for a price; corruptible.

2. Marked by corrupt dealings, especially bribery: a venal administration.

3. Obtainable for a price. [Latin vēnālis, from vēnum, sale. See wes⁻³ in Appendix.] —ve'nal·ly adv.

ve·nal·i·ty (vē-nāl'ī-tē) n. pl. ve·nal·i·ties. Susceptibility to bribery or corruption, as in the use of a position of trust for dishonest gain.

ve·nat·ic (vē-nāt'īk) also ve·nat·i·cal (-ī-kəl) adj. 1. Of or relating to hunting.

2. Engaging in hunting for sport or livelihood. [Latin vēnāticus, from vēnātus, past participle of vēnārī, to hunt. See wen⁻¹ in Appendix.]

ve·na·tion (vē-nā'shən, vē-) n. 1. Distribution or arrangement of a system of veins, as in a leaf blade or the wing of an insect. 2. The veins of such a system considered as a group. —ve·na'tion·al adj.

vend (vēnd) v. vend·ed, vend·ing, vends. — v. tr. 1. a. To sell by means of a vending machine. b. To sell, especially by peddling. 2. To offer (an idea, for example) for public consideration. — v. intr. To engage in selling. [Latin vēndere, alteration of vēnumdāre: vēnum, sale; see wes⁻³ in Appendix + dare, to give; see dō- in Appendix.]

Ven·da (vēn'də) An internally self-governing Black African homeland in north-east South Africa near the Zimbabwe border. It was granted limited self-government in 1962 and nominal independence in 1979. Thohoyandou is the capital. Population, 374,000.

vend·a·ble (vēn'də-bəl) adj. Variant of vendible.

ven·dace (vēn'dīs, -dās) n. pl. vendace or ven·dac·es. 1. A small whitefish (Coregonus vandesius) of Scotland. 2. A closely related whitefish (C. gracilior) of the Lake District of England. [Probably French vandoise, a kind of fish, from Old French vendoise, probably of Celtic origin.]

vend·ee (vēn-dē') n. One to whom something is sold; a buyer.

vend-er or ven-dor (vĕn'dəɹ) n. 1. One that sells or vends: a street vender; vendors of cheap merchandise. 2. A vending machine.

ven-det-ta (vĕn-dĕt'ə) n. 1. A feud between two families or clans that arises out of a slaying and is perpetuated by retaliatory acts of revenge; a blood feud. 2. A bitter, destructive feud. [Italian, from Latin vindicta, revenge. See VINDICTIVE.]

vend-i-ble also vend-a-ble (vĕn'də-bəl) adj. 1. Suitable or fit for sale; salable: vendible items of food. 2. Obsolete. Venal. — n. Something that can be sold.

vend-ing machine (vĕn'dɪŋ mə-shĕn') n. A coin-operated machine that dispenses merchandise.

Ven-dôme (vān-dōm'), Duc de Title of Louis Joseph de Bourbon. 1654-1712. French general who commanded Spanish troops in northern Italy (1710) during the War of the Spanish Succession.

ven-dor (vĕn'dəɹ) n. Variant of vender.

ven-due (vĕn'dō, -dyō, vĕn-dō, -dyō) n. A public sale; an auction. [Dutch vendu, from obsolete French vendue, sale, from Old French, feminine past participle of vendre, to sell. See VEND.]

ve-neer (və-nîr') n. 1. A thin surface layer, as of finely grained wood, glued to a base of inferior material. 2. Any of the thin layers glued together to make plywood. 3. A decorative facing, as of brick. 4. A deceptive, superficial show; a façade: a veneer of friendliness. — v. tr. ve-neered, ve-neer-ing, ve-neers. 1. To overlay (a surface) with a thin layer of a fine or decorative material. 2. To glue together (layers of wood) to make plywood. 3. To conceal, as something common or crude, with a deceptively attractive outward show. [Alteration of obsolete faneering, from German Furnierung, from furnieren, to furnish, veneer, from French fournir, to furnish, from Old French furnir, of Germanic origin. See per¹ in Appendix.] — ve-neer'er n.

ven-e-na-tion (vĕn'ə-nā'shən) n. 1. Introduction of a venom into animal tissue. 2. The poisoned condition produced by a venom. [From Latin venēnātus, past participle of venēnāre, to poison, from Latin venēnum, venom. See VENOM.]

ve-nene (və-nĕn', vĕn'ĕn) n. 1. A preparation of snake venoms used in medicine, especially in the treatment of epilepsy. 2. Variant of venin. [From Latin venēnum, venom. See VENOM.]

ve-ne-punc-ture (vĕ'nĭ-pŭŋk'chəɹ, vĕn'ĭ-) n. Variant of venipuncture.

ven-er-a-ble (vĕn'ər-ə-bəl) adj. 1. Commanding respect by virtue of age, dignity, character, or position. See Synonyms at elderly. 2. Worthy of reverence, especially by religious or historical association: venerable relics. 3. Venerable. Abbr. Ven., V. a. Roman Catholic Church. Used as a form of address for a person who has reached the first stage of canonization. b. Used as a form of address for an archdeacon in the Anglican Church or the Episcopal Church.

—ven'er-a-ble-ness, ven'er-a-bil/i-ty n. —ven'er-a-bly adv.

ven·er·ate (vēn'ə-rāt') v. tr. ven·er·at·ed, ven·er·at·ing, ven·er·ates. To regard with respect, reverence, or heartfelt deference. See Synonyms at revere¹. [Latin venerārī, venerāt-, to venerate, from venus, vener-, love, desire. See wen¹ in Appendix.] —ven'er-a'tor n.

ven·er·a·tion (vēn'ə-rā'shən) n. 1. The act of venerating. 2. Profound respect or reverence: “The veneration of man has been misdirected” (Lucretia Mott). See Synonyms at honor. 3. The condition or status of one who is venerated. —ven'er-a'tion·al adj.

ve·ne·re·al (və-nîr'ē-əl) adj. 1. a. Transmitted by sexual intercourse. b. Of or relating to a sexually transmitted disease. 2. Of or relating to sexual intercourse. 3. Of or relating to the genitals. [Middle English venerealle, from Latin venereus, from venus, vener-, desire, love. See wen¹ in Appendix.]

venereal disease (və-nîr'ē-əl dī-zēz') n. Abbr. VD, V.D. Any of several contagious diseases, such as syphilis and gonorrhea, contracted through sexual intercourse; a sexually transmitted disease.

venereal wart (və-nîr'ē-əl wôrt) n. See genital wart.

ve·ne·re·ol·o·gy (və-nîr'ē-öl'ə-jē) n. The study of sexually transmitted diseases. [VENERE(AL) + -LOGY.] —ve·ne're·ol'o·g'i·cal (-ə-lŏj'ī-kəl) adj.

—ve·ne're·ol'o·gist n.

ven·er·y¹ (vēn'ə-rē) n. pl. ven·er·ies. Archaic. 1. Indulgence in or pursuit of sexual activity. 2. The act of sexual intercourse. [Middle English venerie, from Old French, from Medieval Latin veneria, from Latin venus, vener-, desire, love. See wen¹ in Appendix.]

ven·er·y² (vēn'ə-rē) n. pl. ven·er·ies. Archaic. The act or sport of hunting; the chase. [Middle English venerie, from Old French, from vener, to hunt, from Latin vēnārī. See wen¹ in Appendix.]

ven·e·sec·tion (vēn'ī-sĕk'shən, vē'nĭ-) n. See phlebotomy. [New Latin venae sectiō, venae sectiōn- : Latin vēnae, genitive sing. of vēna, vein + Latin sectiō, cutting; see SECTION.]

Ve·ne·ti·a (və-nē'shē-ə, -shə) A historical region of northern Italy and north-west Yugoslavia. An ancient Roman territory including Istria and the lands between the Po River and the Alps, it was named after the Veneti, a people who settled the area in c. 1000 B.C. Part of the region was ceded to Yugoslavia in 1947.

Ve·ne·tian (və-nē'shən) adj. Of or relating to Venice, Italy, or its people, language, or culture. — n. 1. A native or inhabitant of Venice, Italy. 2. The variety of Italian spoken in Venice. [Medieval Latin Venetianus, from Venetia, Venice.]

ve·ne·tian blind or Ve·ne·tian blind (və-nē'shən blĭnd) n. A window blind consisting of a number of thin horizontal adjustable slats that overlap when closed.

venetian blue (və-nē'shən blō) n. Color. A strong blue to greenish blue.

Venetian glass (və-nē'shən gläs) n. A fine, often colored and ornamented glassware made in or near Venice, Italy.

venetian red (və-nē'shən rēd) n. Color. A deep to strong reddish brown.

Ve-ne-to (vēn'ē-tō') A region of northeast Italy bordering on the Adriatic Sea. Dominated by Venice since the early 15th century, it passed to Austria in 1797 and was awarded to Italy in 1866.

Ven·e·zue·la (vēn'ə-zwā'lə, -zwē'-) Abbr. Ven., Venez. A country of northern South America on the Caribbean Sea. In 1499 a Spanish explorer first applied the name, meaning "little Venice," to an offshore island where the inhabitants raised their huts above the water on stilts, and the name was then used for the mainland area. Dominated by Spain after the 16th century, Venezuela was liberated by Simón Bolívar in 1821, although it was not formally separated from Colombia until 1830. Caracas is the capital and the largest city. Population, 14,515,885. —Ven'e-zue'lan adj. & n.

Venezuela, Gulf of. An inlet of the Caribbean Sea between northwest Venezuela and northern Colombia. It extends southward as Lake Maracaibo.

venge (vēnj) v. tr. venged, veng-ing, veng-es. Archaic. To avenge. [Middle English venge, from Old French vengeier. See VENGEANCE.]

ven-geance (vēn'jəns) n. Infliction of punishment in return for a wrong committed; retribution: "Something of vengeance I had tasted for the first time. An aromatic wine it seemed" (Charlotte Brontë). —idiom. with a vengeance.

1. With great violence or force. 2. To an extreme degree: December has turned cold with a vengeance. [Middle English, from Old French, from vengeier, to avenge, from Latin vindicāre. See VINDICATE.]

venge-ful (vēnj'fəl) adj. 1. Desiring vengeance; vindictive. See Synonyms at vindictive. 2. Indicating or proceeding from a desire for revenge. 3. Serving to exact vengeance. —venge'ful-ly adv. —venge'ful-ness n.

V-en-gine (vē'ĕn'jən) n. An internal-combustion engine having cylinders arranged so that pairs form V shapes.

veni- pref. Variant of veno-.

ve-ni-al (vē'nē-əl, vēn'yəl) adj. 1. Easily excused or forgiven; pardonable: a venial offense. 2. Roman Catholic Church. Minor, therefore warranting only temporal punishment. [Middle English, from Old French, from Late Latin veniālis, from Latin venia, forgiveness. See wen-¹ in Appendix.] —ve'ni-al'i-ty (vē'nē-äl'i-tē, vēn-yäl'-), ve'ni-al-ness (vē'nē-əl-nīs, vēn'yəl'-) n. —ve'ni-al-ly adv.

venial sin (vē'nē-əl sĭn) n. Roman Catholic Church. An offense that is judged to be minor or committed without deliberate intent and thus does not estrange the soul from the grace of God.

Ven-ice (vēn'is) A city of northeast Italy on islets within a lagoon in the Gulf of Venice, a wide inlet of the northern Adriatic Sea. Founded in the 5th century A.D. by refugees fleeing the Lombard invaders who had gained control of the mainland, it became a major maritime power by the 13th century and spread its influence over northern Italy by the 15th century. Its territories were gradually lost to the Turks, and in 1797 it passed to Austria. Venice was ceded to Italy in 1866. Population, 332,775.

ven·in (vēn'ĭn, vē'nĭn) also ve·nene (və-nēn', vēn'ēn) n. Any of various toxic substances found in the venom of snakes. [VEN(OM) + -IN.]

ve·ni·punc·ture also ve·ne·punc·ture (vē'nĭ-pŭngk'chər, vēn'ĭ-) n. Puncture of a vein, as for drawing blood, intravenous feeding, or administration of medicine.

ve·ni·re (və-nĭ'rē, -nĭr'ē) n. Law. 1. A writ issued by a judge to a sheriff directing the summons of prospective jurors. Also called venire facias 2. The panel of prospective jurors from which a jury is selected. [Short for Middle English venire facias, from Medieval Latin venīre (faciās), (you should cause) to come, a phrase used in the writ, from Latin. See g^Wā- in Appendix.]

venire fa·ci·as (və-nĭ'rē fā'shē-əs, -ās') n. Law. See venire (n., sense 1). [Middle English. See VENIRE.]

ve·ni·re·man (və-nĭ'rē-mən, -nĭr'ē-) n. Law. A person summoned to jury duty under a venire.

ven·i·son (vēn'ĭ-sən, -zən) n. 1. The flesh of a deer used as food. 2. Archaic. The flesh of a game animal used as food. [Middle English veneson, from Old French, from Latin vēnātiō, vēnātiōn-, hunting, from vēnātus, past participle of vēnārī, to hunt. See wen-¹ in Appendix.]

Vé·nis·sieux (vā-nē-syœ') A city of east-central France, an industrial suburb of Lyons. Population, 64,804.

Ve·ni·ze·los (vēn'ə-zā'ləs, vē'nē-zě'lôs), Eleutherios. 1864-1936. Greek politician who served a number of terms as premier between 1910 and 1933 and aligned Greece with the Allies during World War I. He went into exile after an unsuccessful military and naval revolt in March 1935.

Ven·lo (vēn'lō) A town of southeast Netherlands near the German border. Formerly a fortress city, it is now an agricultural trade center. Population, 62,935.

Venn diagram (vēn dī'ə-grām') n. A diagram using circles to represent an operation in set theory, with the position and overlap of the circles indicating the relationships between the sets. [After John Venn (1834-1923), British logician.]

veno- or veni- or ven- pref. Vein: venipuncture. [From Latin vēna.]

ve·no·gram (vē'nə-grām') n. A radiograph of a vein after injection of a radioopaque substance.

ve·nog·ra·phy (vĭ-nŏg'rə-fē) n. Radiography of veins or a vein after injection of a radioopaque substance. Also called phlebography ven·om (vēn'əm) n. 1. A poisonous secretion of an animal, such as a snake, spider, or scorpion, usually transmitted by a bite or sting. 2. A poison. 3. Malice; spite. [Middle English venim, from Old French, from Vulgar Latin venīmen*, from Latin venēnum, poison. See wen-¹ in Appendix.]

ven·om·ous (vēn'ə-məs) adj. 1. a. Secreting and transmitting venom: a venomous snake. b. Full of or containing venom. 2. Malicious; spiteful: a venomous remark. See Synonyms at poisonous. —ven'om·ous·ly adv.

—ven'om·ous·ness n.

ve·nose (vē'nōs') adj. 1. Having noticeable veins or veinlike markings.

2. Venous. [Latin vēnōsus, from vēna, vein.]

ve·nos·i·ty (vē-nōs'ī-tē) n. The quality or condition of being venous or venose.

ve·nous (vē'nəs) adj. 1. Physiology. Of, relating to, or contained in the veins: venous blood; venous circulation. 2. Having numerous veins, as a leaf or the wings of an insect. [From Latin vēnōsus, from vēna, vein.] —ve'nous·ly adv.

—ve'nous·ness n.

vent¹ (vēnt) n. 1. A means of escape or release from confinement; an outlet: give vent to one's anger. 2. An opening permitting the escape of fumes, a liquid, a gas, or steam. 3. The small hole at the breech of a gun through which the charge is ignited. 4. Zoology. The excretory opening of the digestive tract in animals such as birds, reptiles, amphibians, and fish. 5. Geology. a. The opening of a volcano in the earth's crust. b. An opening on the ocean floor that emits hot water and dissolved minerals. — v. tr. vent·ed, vent·ing, vents. 1. To give often forceful expression or utterance to. 2. To release or discharge (steam, for example) through an opening. 3. To provide with a vent. [Partly from French vent (from Old French), and partly alteration of French évent (from Old French esvent, from esventer, to let out air, from Vulgar Latin exventāre*: Latin ex-; see ex- + Latin ventus, wind); see wē- in Appendix.] —vent'er n.

SYNONYMS: vent, express, utter, voice, air. These verbs mean to give outlet to thoughts or emotions. To vent is to unburden oneself of a strong pent-up emotion: “She was jealous... and glad of any excuse to vent her pique” (Edward G.E.L. Bulwer-Lytton). Express, a more comprehensive term, refers to communication both by verbal and by nonverbal means: can't express the idea adequately in words; expressed her affection with a hug; “expressing emotion in the form of art” (T.S. Eliot). Utter involves vocal expression; it may imply speech but can also refer to inarticulate sounds: “The words were uttered in the hearing of Montezuma” (William Hickling Prescott). “The Canon uttered a resounding sigh” (John Galsworthy). Voice denotes the expression in speech or writing of the outlook or viewpoint of a person or, often, of a group: The judge voiced her satisfaction that the jury had reached a verdict. The majority leader rose to voice the party's opposition to the bill. To air is to give vent to and often to show off one's feelings, beliefs, or ideas: He wants a forum where he can air his favorite theory.

vent² (vēnt) n. A slit in a garment, as in the back seam of a pocket. [Middle English vente, alteration (probably influenced by Old French vent, wind), of fente, from Old French, slit, from fendre, to split open, from Latin findere. See FISSION.]

vent·age (vēn'tij) n. A small opening; a vent.

ven·tail (vēn'tāl') n. The lower movable part of the front of a medieval helmet, fitting over the mouth or neck. [Middle English, from Old French vantail, from vent, wind, from Latin ventus. See wē- in Appendix.]

ven·ter (vēn'tər) n. 1. Anatomy. a. The abdomen. b. The prominent fleshy portion of a muscle. c. A cavity or hollowed surface, especially of a bone. 2. Zoology. A part in lower forms of animal life corresponding to the abdomen of mammals. 3. Botany. The swollen lower portion of an archegonium containing the egg. 4. Law. The uterus of a woman as the source of offspring. [Anglo-Norman, from Latin.]

ven·ti·fact (vēn'tə-fäkt') n. A stone that has been shaped, polished, or faceted by wind-driven sand. [Latin ventus, wind; see VENT¹ + (ARTI)FACT.]

ven·ti·late (vēn'tl-āt') v. tr. ven·ti·lat·ed, ven·ti·lat·ing, ven·ti·lates. 1. To admit fresh air into (a mine, for example) to replace stale or noxious air. 2. To circulate through and freshen: A sea breeze ventilated the rooms. 3. To provide with a vent, as for airing. 4. To expose (a substance) to the circulation of fresh air, as to retard spoilage. 5. To expose to public discussion or examination: The students ventilated their grievances. 6. To aerate or oxygenate (blood). [Middle English ventilaten, to blow away, from Latin ventilāre, ventilāt-, to fan, from ventulus, diminutive of ventus, wind. See wē- in Appendix.] —ven'ti·la'tion n.

ven·ti·la·tor (vēn'tl-ā'tər) n. 1. A device that circulates fresh air and expels stale or foul air. 2. Medicine. A respirator. —ven'ti·la·to'ry (vēn'tl-ə-tōr'ē, -tōr'ē) adj.

ventr- pref. Variant of ventro-.

ven·trad (vēn'träd) adv. Toward the ventral side or surface.

ven·tral (vēn'trəl) adj. 1. Anatomy. a. Relating to or situated on or close to the abdomen; abdominal. b. Relating to or situated on or close to the anterior aspect of the human body or the lower surface of the body of an animal. 2. Botany. Of or on the lower or inner surface of an organ that faces the axis; adaxial. — n. 1. A ventral fin. 2. The abdominal segment of an insect. [Late Latin ventrālis, from Latin venter, ventr-, belly.] —ven'tral·ly adv.

ventral fin (vēn'trəl fīn) n. Zoology. A fin, such as a pelvic fin or an anal fin, that is found on the ventral side of a fish.

ventral root (vēn'trəl rōōt) n. The part of a spinal nerve, consisting of motor fibers, that arises from the anterior section of the spinal cord.

ven·tri·cle (vēn'trī-kəl) n. A small cavity or chamber within a body or an organ, especially: a. The chamber on the left side of the heart that receives arterial blood from the left atrium and contracts to force it into the aorta. b. The chamber on the right side of the heart that receives venous blood from the right atrium and forces it into the pulmonary artery. c. Any of the interconnecting cavities of the brain. [Middle English, from Old French ventricule, from Latin ventriculus, diminutive of venter, belly.]

ven·tri·cose (vēn'trī-kōs') also ven·tri·cous (-kəs) adj. Inflated, swollen, or distended, especially on one side: the ventricose gullet of an insect. [New Latin ventricōsus, from Latin venter, ventr-, belly.] —ven'tri·cos'i·ty (-kōs'ī-tē) n.

ven·tric·u·lar (vēn-trīk'yə-lər) adj. Of or relating to a ventricle or ventriculus.

ventricular fibrillation (vēn-trīk'yə-lər fīb'rə-lā'shən) n. An often fatal form of arrhythmia characterized by rapid, irregular fibrillar twitching of the ventricles of the heart in place of normal contractions, resulting in a loss of pulse.

ven·tric·u·lus (vēn-trīk'yə-ləs) n. pl. ven·tric·u·li (-lī'). 1. A hollow digestive organ, especially the stomach of certain insects or the gizzard of a bird. 2. The digestive cavity in the body of a sponge. [Latin, diminutive of venter, ventr-, belly.]

ven·tri·lo·qui·al (vēn'trə-lō'kwē-əl) adj. Of, relating to, or practicing ventriloquism. —ven'tri·lo'qui·al·ly adv.

ven·tril·o·quism (vēn-trīl'ə-kwīz'əm) also ven·tril·o·quy (-kwē) n. The art of projecting one's voice so that it seems to come from another source, as from a wooden figure. [From Latin ventriloquus, speaking from the belly : Latin venter, ventr-, belly + loquī, to speak; see tolk^w- in Appendix.] —ven·tril'ō·quist (-kwīst) n. —ven·tril'ō·quis'tic adj.

ven·tril·o·quize (vēn-trīl'ə-kwīz') v. intr. ven·tril·o·quized, ven·tril·o·quiz·ing, ven·tril·o·quiz·es. To practice ventriloquism.

ven·tril·o·quy (vēn-trīl'ə-kwē) n. Variant of ventriloquism.

ventro- or ventr- pref. Ventral: ventrolateral. [From Latin venter, ventr-, belly.]

ven·tro·dor·sal (vēn'trō-dōr'səl) adj. Both ventral and dorsal; extending from a ventral to a dorsal surface. —ven'tro·dor'sal·ly adv.

ven·tro·lat·er·al (vēn'trō-lăt'ər-əl) adj. Both ventral and lateral; extending from a ventral to a lateral surface. —ven'tro·lat'er·al·ly adv.

ven·tro·me·di·al (vēn'trō-mē'dē-əl) adj. Both ventral and medial; extending toward the ventral surface and the median line. —ven'tro·me'di·al·ly adv.

Ven·tu·ra (vēn-chōōr'ə, -tōōr'ə) A city of southern California on the Pacific Ocean west of Los Angeles. It was founded as the mission of San Buenaventura (still the official name of the city) in 1782. Population, 92,575.

ven·ture (vēn'chər) n. 1. An undertaking that is dangerous, daring, or of uncertain outcome. 2. A business enterprise involving some risk in expectation of gain. 3. Something, such as money or cargo, at hazard in a risky enterprise. — v. ven·tured, ven·tur·ing, ven·tures. — v. tr. 1. To expose to danger or risk: ventured her entire fortune. 2. To brave the dangers of: ventured the high seas in a small boat. 3. To express at the risk of denial, criticism, or censure: “I would venture to guess that Anon., who wrote so many poems without signing them, was often a woman” (Virginia Woolf). — v. intr. 1. To take a risk; dare. 2. To proceed despite possible danger or risk: ventured into the wilderness. —idiom. at a venture. By mere chance or fortune; at random. [Middle English, chance, short for aventure, adventure. See ADVENTURE.] —ven'tur-er n.

venture capital (vēn'chər kăp'ī-tl) n. Money made available for investment in innovative enterprises or research, especially in high technology, in which both the risk of loss and the potential for profit may be considerable. Also called risk capital —venture capitalist n.

ven-ture-some (vēn'chər-səm) adj. 1. Disposed to venture or to take risks; daring. See Synonyms at adventurous. 2. Involving risk or danger; hazardous. —ven'ture-some-ly adv. —ven'ture-some-ness n.

ven-tu-ri (vēn-tōōr'ē) n. pl. ven-tu-ris. 1. A short tube with a constricted throat used to determine fluid pressures and velocities by measurement of differential pressures generated at the throat as a fluid traverses the tube. 2. A constricted throat in the air passage of a carburetor, causing a reduction in pressure that results in fuel vapor being drawn out of the carburetor bowl. [After Giovanni Battista Venturi (1746-1822), Italian physicist.]

Ven-tur-i (vēn-tōōr'ē), Robert Charles. Born 1925. American architect who led the postmodern reaction to functionalism. His eclectic, sometimes humorous designs often incorporate historical references.

ven-tur-ous (vēn'chər-əs) adj. Venturesome. —ven'tur-ous-ly adv. —ven'tur-ous-ness n.

ven-ue (vēn'yōō) n. 1. Law. a. The locality where a crime is committed or a cause of action occurs. b. The locality or political division from which a jury is called and in which a trial is held. c. The clause within a declaration naming the locality in which a trial will be held. d. The clause in an affidavit naming the place where it was sworn to. 2. a. The scene or setting in which something takes place; a locale: “that non-cinematic venue of popular nightmares, the discotheque” (P.J. O'Rourke). b. A place for large gatherings, as a sports stadium. [Middle English, attack, from Old French, a coming, attack, from feminine past participle of venir, to come, from Latin venīre. See g^wā- in Appendix.]

ven-ule (vēn'yōōl, vēn'-) n. A small vein, especially one joining capillaries to larger veins. [Latin vēnula, diminutive of vēna, vein.] —ven'u-lar (-yə-lər) adj.

Ve-nus (vē'nəs) n. 1. Roman Mythology. The goddess of sexual love and physical beauty. 2. The second planet from the sun, having an average radius of 6,052 kilometers (3,760 miles), a mass 0.815 times that of Earth, and a sidereal period of revolution about the sun of 224.7 days at a mean distance of approximately 108.1 million kilometers (67.2 million miles). [Middle English, from Old English, from Latin, love, Venus. See wen-¹ in Appendix.]

Venus flytrap (vē'nəs flī'trăp') n. Variant of Venus's-flytrap.

Ve-nu-sian (vă-nōō'zhən, -shē-ən, -nyōō'-) adj. Of, relating to, or characteristic of the planet Venus. — n. A hypothetical inhabitant of the planet Venus.

Ve-nus's flower basket (vē'nə-sīz flou'ər bās'kīt) n. A sponge of the genus Euplectella, living in deep marine waters of the East Indies and the eastern Asian coast and having a cylindrical skeleton of glassy, intricate latticework.

Ve-nus's-fly-trap (vē'nəs-flī'trăp', vē'nə-sīz-) or Venus flytrap n. An insectivorous plant (Dionaea muscipula) of the coastal plain of the Carolinas, having sensitive, hinged, marginally bristled, two-lobed leaf blades that close and entrap insects.

Venus's girdle (vē'nə-sīz gûr'dl) n. A large ribbon-shaped ctenophore (Cestum veneris) having a jellylike bluish-green iridescent body.

Ve-nus's-hair (vē'nə-sīz-hâr') n. A maidenhair fern (Adiantum capillus-veneris) of warm moist regions, having slender blackish stalks, bipinnately compound fronds, and marginal sori.

Ve-nus's-look-ing-glass (vē'nə-sīz-loők'ĭng-glăs') n. A European annual plant (Legousia speculum-veneris) having small, blue or white star-shaped flowers.

ver. abbr. 1. Verse. 2. Version.

ve-ra-cious (və-rā'shəs) adj. 1. Honest; truthful. 2. Accurate; precise. [From Latin vērāx, vērāc-, from vērus. See wēro- in Appendix.] —ve-ra'cious-ly adv. —ve-ra'cious-ness n.

ve-rac-i-ty (və-rās'ĭ-tē) n. pl. ve-rac-i-ties. 1. Adherence to the truth; truthfulness. See Synonyms at truth. 2. Conformity to fact or truth; accuracy or precision: a report of doubtful veracity. 3. Something that is true. [Medieval Latin vērācitās, from Latin vērāx, vērāc-, true. See VERACIOUS.]

Ve-ra-cruz (vē'rə-krōōz', bǎ'rā-krōōs') A city of east-central Mexico on the Gulf of Mexico east of Puebla. Founded in 1599 on a site visited earlier (1519) by Hernando Cortés, it was frequently sacked by buccaneers in the 17th and 18th centuries. U.S. troops led by Gen. Winfield Scott captured the city in 1847 during the Spanish-American War. Population, 284,822.

ve-ran-da or ve-ran-dah (və-răn'də) n. A porch or balcony, usually roofed and often partly enclosed, extending along the outside of a building. Regional. Also called gallery [Hindi varaṇḍā, from Persian bar āmadah, coming out, or from Portuguese varanda (perhaps ultimately from Vulgar Latin barra*, barrier, bar).]

ve-rat-ri-dine (və-răt'rĭ-dēn') n. A yellowish-white, amorphous powdered alkaloid, C₃₆H₅₁NO₁₁, obtained from sabadilla seeds and from the rhizome of hellebore. [VERATR(INE) + -ID(E) + -INE².]

ver-a-trine (vē'rə-trēn', -trĭn) n. A poisonous mixture of colorless crystalline alkaloids extracted from sabadilla seeds and formerly used medicinally as a coun-terirritant. [New Latin vērātrīna, from Vērātrum, genus name of a hellebore, from Latin vērātrum, hellebore.]

verb (vûrb) n. Abbr. v., vb. 1. a. The part of speech that expresses existence, action, or occurrence in most languages. b. Any of the words within this part of speech, as be, run, or conceive. 2. A phrase or other construction used as a verb. [Middle English verbe, from Old French, from Latin verbum, word, verb. See wer-⁵ in Appendix.]

ver·bal (vûr'bəl) adj. Abbr. vb. 1. Of, relating to, or associated with words: a verbal picture. 2. a. Concerned with words only rather than with content or ideas: a merely verbal distinction. b. Consisting of words alone without action: a verbal confrontation. 3. Expressed in spoken rather than written words; oral: a verbal contract. 4. Corresponding word for word; literal: a verbal translation. 5. Grammar. a. Relating to, having the nature or function of, or derived from a verb. b. Used to form verbs: a verbal suffix. 6. Of or relating to proficiency in the use and understanding of words: a verbal aptitude test. — n. Grammar. A verbal noun or adjective. [Middle English, from Old French, from Late Latin verbālis, from Latin verbum, word. See VERB.] —ver·bal·ly adv.

USAGE NOTE: Verbal has been used to refer to spoken, as opposed to written, communication by reputable writers since the 16th century, and the usage cannot be considered incorrect. But critics are right to observe that this use of verbal may sometimes invite confusion with the use meaning “by linguistic means.” Thus the phrase modern technologies for verbal communication may refer only to devices such as radio, the telephone, and the loudspeaker, or also may refer to devices such as the telegraph, the teletype, and the fax machine. In such contexts the word oral is always available to convey the narrower sense of communication by spoken means.

verbal adjective (vûr'bəl äj'ik-tív) n. An adjective that is derived from a verb and that in some constructions, participial phrases for example, preserves the verb's syntactic features, such as transitivity and the capability of taking nominal or verbal complements.

ver·bal·ism (vûr'bə-līz'əm) n. 1. a. An expression in words; a word or phrase. b. The manner in which something is phrased; wording. 2. A wordy phrase or sentence that has little meaning. 3. Abundant use of words without conveying much meaning.

ver·bal·ist (vûr'bə-līst) n. 1. One skilled in the use of words. 2. One who favors words over ideas or substance. —ver·bal·is'tic adj.

ver·bal·ize (vûr'bə-līz') v. ver·bal·ized, ver·bal·iz·ing, ver·bal·iz·es. — v. tr. 1. To express in words. 2. Grammar. To convert to use as a verb: verbalized the noun contact. — v. intr. 1. To express oneself in words. 2. To be verbose.

—ver'bal-i-za'tion (-bə-lĭ-zā'shən) n. —ver'bal-iz'er n.

verbal noun (vûr'bəl noun) n. A noun that is derived from a verb and usually preserves the verb's syntactic features, such as transitivity or the capability of taking nominal or verbal complements.

ver-ba-tim (vər-bā'tĭm) adj. Using exactly the same words; corresponding word for word: a verbatim report of the conversation. — adv. In exactly the same words; word for word: repeated their dialogue verbatim. [Middle English, from Medieval Latin verbātim, from Latin verbum, word. See VERB.] ver-be-na (vər-bē'nə) n. 1. Any of various New World plants of the genus Verbena, especially one of several species cultivated for their showy spikes of variously colored flowers. Also called vervain 2. Any of several similar plants, such as the lemon verbena. [Latin verbēna, sacred foliage. See wer-2 in Appendix.]

ver-bi-age (vûr'bē-ĭj, -bĭj) n. 1. An excess of words for the purpose; wordiness. 2. The manner in which something is expressed in words: software verbiage. [French, from Old French verbier, to chatter, from verbe, word, from Latin verbum. See VERB.] verb-i-fy (vûr'bə-fĭ') v. tr. ver-bi-fied (-fĭd'), ver-bi-fy-ing, ver-bi-fies (-fĭz'). To use (a noun, for example) as a verb.

ver-big-er-a-tion (vər-bĭj'ə-rā'shən) n. Obsessive repetition of meaningless words and phrases, especially as a symptom of mental illness. [From Latin verbigerātus, past participle of verbigerāre, to chat, dispute : verbum, word; see VERB + -gerāre, frequentative of gerere, to carry.]

ver-bose (vər-bōs') adj. Using or containing a great and usually an excessive number of words; wordy. See Synonyms at talkative. See Synonyms at wordy. [Middle English verbous*, from Latin verbōsus, from verbum, word. See VERB.] —ver-bose'ly adv. —ver-bose'ness, ver-bos'i-ty (-bōs'ĭ-tē) n.

ver-bo-ten (vər-bōt'n, fĕr-) adj. Forbidden; prohibited. [German, past participle of verbieten, to forbid, from Middle High German, from Old High German farbiotan. See bheudh- in Appendix.]

Ver-cel-li (vēr-chĕl'ē) A city of northwest Italy west-southwest of Milan.

Founded in Roman times, it was ruled by the Visconti family of Milan from 1335 to 1427 and thereafter by the house of Savoy. Population, 51,975.

ver-dant (vûr'dnt) adj. 1. Green with vegetation; covered with green growth. 2. Color. Green in hue. 3. Lacking experience or sophistication; naive. [French verdoyant, from Old French, present participle of verdoyer, to become green, from Vulgar Latin viridiāre*, from Latin viridis, green.] —ver'dan-cy n.

—ver'dant-ly adv.

verd antique also verde antique (vûrd än-tĕk') n. A dull green, mottled or veined serpentine used in interior decoration. [Obsolete French, from Italian verde antico : verde, green + antico, antique.]

Verde (vûrd), Cape. A peninsula of western Senegal projecting into the Atlantic Ocean. First sighted by the Portuguese in 1445, it is the westernmost point of Africa.

ver-der-er also ver-der-or (vûr'dər-ər) n. A man serving as an official in charge of the royal forests of medieval England. [Anglo-Norman, from verd, green, from Latin viridis.]

Ver-de River (vûr'dē rīv'ər, vër'-) A river, about 306 km (190 mi) long, of central Arizona flowing generally southeast to the Salt River.

Ver-di (vâr'dē), Giuseppe. 1813-1901. Italian composer of operas, including La Traviata (1853), Aïda (1871), and Otello (1887). He is credited with raising Italian opera to its fullest artistic form.

ver-dict (vûr'dïkt) n. 1. Law. The finding of a jury in a trial. 2. An expressed conclusion; a judgment or an opinion: the verdict of history. [Middle English verdit, from Anglo-Norman : ver, true (from Latin vērus); see wēro- in Appendix + dit, speech (from Latin dictum, from neuter past participle of dīcere, to say); see deik- in Appendix.]

ver-di-gris (vûr'dī-grēs', -grīs', -grē') n. 1. A blue or green powder consisting of basic cupric acetate used as a paint pigment and fungicide. 2. A green patina or crust of copper sulfate or copper chloride formed on copper, brass, and bronze exposed to air or seawater for long periods of time. [Middle English vertegrez, from Old French verte grez, alteration of vert-de-Grice : verd, green; see VERDURE + de, of (from Latin dē); see DE- + Grice, Greece.]

Ver-di-gris (vûr'dī-grīs) A river, about 451 km (280 mi) long, of southeast Kansas and northeast Oklahoma flowing generally southward to the Arkansas River.

ver-din (vûr'dn) n. A small grayish bird (Auriparus flaviceps) of Mexico and the southwest United States, having a yellowish head and throat. [French, bunting, from vert, green, from Old French verd. See VERDURE.]

ver-di-ter (vûr'dī-tər) n. Either of two basic carbonates of copper, used as a blue or green pigment. [Middle English, alteration of Old French verd de terre, green of earth : verd, green; see VERDURE + de, of; see VERDIGRIS + terre, earth (from Latin terra); see ters- in Appendix.]

Ver-dun (vər-dŭn', vër-dœn') 1. A city of southern Quebec, Canada, a residential suburb of Montreal on Montreal Island. Population, 61,287. 2. A city of northeast France on the Meuse River west of Metz. Dating to Roman times and an important Carolingian commercial center, it was the site of a prolonged World War I battle (February-December 1916) in which French forces repelled a massive German offensive. The total casualties have been estimated at more than 700,000. Population, 21,516.

ver-dure (vûr'jər) n. 1. a. The lush greenness of flourishing vegetation. b. Vigorous greenery. 2. A fresh or flourishing condition: the verdure of child- hood. [Middle English, from Old French, from verd, green, from Latin viridis.]

—ver'dur-ous adj. —ver'dur-ous-ness n.

Ve-re-shcha·gin (vēr'əsh-shä'gĭn, vyĭ-rĭsh-chä'gyĭn), Vasili Vasilievich.

1842-1904. Russian painter many of whose works, most notably Apotheosis of War (1871), are realistic and symbolic denunciations of warfare.

verge¹ (vûrj) n. 1. The extreme edge or margin; a border. See Synonyms at border. 2. a. An enclosing boundary. b. The space enclosed by such a boundary. 3. The point beyond which an action, a state, or a condition is likely to begin or occur; the brink: on the verge of tears; a nation on the verge of economic prosperity. 4. Architecture. The edge of the tiling that projects over a roof gable.

5. Chiefly British. The shoulder of a road. 6. A rod, wand, or staff carried as an emblem of authority or office. 7. Obsolete. The rod held by a feudal tenant while swearing fealty to a lord. 8. The spindle of a balance wheel in a clock or watch, especially such a spindle in a clock with vertical escapement. 9. The male organ of copulation in certain invertebrates. — v. intr. verged, verg-ing, verg-es.

1. To approach the nature or condition of something specified; come close. Used with on: a brilliance verging on genius. 2. To be on the edge or border: Her land verges on the neighboring township. [Middle English, from Old French, rod, ring, from Latin virga, rod, strip.]

verge² (vûrj) v. intr. verged, verg-ing, verg-es. 1. To slope or incline. 2. To tend to move in a particular direction: “the Neoclassicism... away from which they subsequently verged” (Hugh Honour). 3. To pass or merge gradually: dusk verging into night. [Latin vergere. See ver⁻² in Appendix.]

verg-er (vûr'jər) n. Chiefly British. 1. One who carries the verge or other emblem of authority before a scholastic, legal, or religious dignitary in a procession. 2. One who takes care of the interior of a church and acts as an attendant during ceremonies.

Ver-gil (vûr'jəl) See Virgil.

ver-glas (vēr-glä') n. A thin coating of ice, as on rock. [French, from Old French verre-glaz: verre, glass (from Latin vitrum) + glas, glace, ice (from Vulgar Latin glacia*, from Latin glaciēs); see GLACÉ.]

ve-rid-i-cal (və-rĭd'ĭ-kəl) also ve-rid-ic (-rĭd'ĭk) adj. 1. Truthful; veracious. 2. Coinciding with fact or reality; genuine or real. [From Latin vēridicus: vērus, true; see wēro- in Appendix + dĭcere, to say; see deik- in Appendix.]

—ve-rid'i-cal'i-ty (-käl'ĭ-tē) n. —ve-rid'i-cal-ly adv.

ver-i-fi-a-ble (vēr'ə-fi'ə-bəl) adj. Possible to verify: a verifiable account of the incident; verifiable sales data. —ver'i-fi'a-bil'i-ty, ver'i-fi'a-ble-ness n.

—ver'i-fi'a-bly adv.

ver-i-fi-ca-tion (vēr'ə-fi-kā'shən) n. 1. The act of verifying or the state of being verified. 2. a. A confirmation of truth or authority. b. The evidence for such a confirmation. c. A formal assertion of validity. 3. Law. An affidavit that attests to the truth of a pleading. —ver'i-fi-ca'tive adj.

ver-i-fy (vēr'ə-fī') v. tr. ver-i-fied (-fīd'), ver-i-fy-ing, ver-i-fies (-fīz'). 1. To prove the truth of by presentation of evidence or testimony; substantiate. 2. To determine or test the truth or accuracy of, as by comparison, investigation, or reference: conducted experiments to verify the hypothesis. See Synonyms at confirm. 3. Law. a. To affirm formally or under oath. b. To append a verification to (a pleading); conclude with a verification. [Middle English verifien, from Old French verifier, from Medieval Latin vērificāre: Latin vērus, true; see wēro- in Appendix + Latin -ficāre, -fy.] —ver'i-fi'er n.

ver-i-ly (vēr'ə-lē) adv. 1. In truth; in fact. 2. With confidence; assuredly. [Middle English verrailly, from verrai, true. See VERY.]

ver-i-sim-i-lar (vēr'ə-sīm'ə-lər) adj. Appearing to be true or real; probable. [From Latin vērīsimilis: vērī, genitive of vērum, truth from neuter sing. of vērus, true; see wēro- in Appendix + similis, similar; see SIMILAR.] —ver'i-sim'i-lar-ly adv.

ver-i-si-mil-i-tude (vēr'ə-sī-mīl'i-tōd', -tyōd') n. 1. The quality of appearing to be true or real. See Synonyms at truth. 2. Something that has the appearance of being true or real. [Latin vērīsimilitūdō, from vērīsimilis, verisimilar. See VERISIMILAR.] —ver'i-si-mil'i-tu'di-nous (-tōd'n-əs, -tyōd'-) adj.

ver-ism (vēr'iz'əm) n. Realism in art and literature. [Italian verismo: vero, true (from Latin vērus); see wēro- in Appendix + -ismo, system of principles (from Latin -ismus, -ism).] —ver'ist n. —ve-ris'tic (və-rīs'tīk) adj.

ve-ris-mo (və-rīz'mō) n. 1. Verism. 2. An artistic movement of the late 19th century, originating in Italy and influential especially in grand opera, marked by the use of common, everyday themes often treated in a melodramatic manner. [Italian. See VERISM.]

ver-i-ta-ble (vēr'i-tə-bəl) adj. Being truly so called; real or genuine: “Her tea... was set forth with as much grace as if she had been a veritable guest to her own self” (Mary Wilkins Freeman). [Middle English, from Old French, from verite, truth. See VERITY.] —ver'i-ta-ble-ness n. —ver'i-ta-bly adv.

vé-ri-té (vā-rē-tā') n. Cinéma vérité.

ver-i-ty (vēr'i-tē) n. pl. ver-i-ties. 1. The quality or condition of being true, factual, or real. 2. Something, such as a statement, principle, or belief, that is true, especially an enduring truth: “The mind once suddenly aware of a verity for the first time immediately invents it again” (Agnes Sligh Turnbull). See Synonyms at truth. [Middle English verite, truth, from Old French, from Latin vērītās, from vērus, true. See wēro- in Appendix.]

ver-juice (vûr'jōs') n. 1. The acidic juice of crab apples or other sour fruit, such as unripe grapes. 2. Sourness, as of disposition. [Middle English verjus, from Old French vertjus: verd, unripe; see VERDURE + jus, juice; see JUICE.]

Ver-kho-yansk Range (vĕr'kə-yänsk' rānj, vĭr-KHÔ-) A mountain chain of northeast Russia parallel to and east of the lower Lena River. The lowest temperature for an inhabited area, -68°C (-90°F), was recorded here on February 6, 1933.

Ver-laine (vĕr-lān', -lĕn'), Paul. 1844-1896. French symbolist poet whose works, noted for their fine lyricism, include Romances sans Paroles (1874) and Sagesse (1881).

Ver-meer (vər-mîr', -mâr'), Jan. Also known as Jan van der Meer. 1632-1675. Dutch painter noted for his interior genre scenes, in which he used to great effect his mastery of lighting and color. His works include The Lacemaker (c. 1664).

ver-meil (vûr'məl, -māl') n. 1. Color. Vermilion or a similar bright red color. 2. (vĕr-mā') Gilded silver, bronze, or copper. — adj. Color. Bright red in color. [Middle English vermail, from Old French vermeil, from Late Latin vermiculus, a kind of red worm, from Latin, grub, diminutive of vermis, worm. See wer-2 in Appendix.]

vermi- pref. Worm: vermicide. [From Latin vermis, worm. See wer-2 in Appendix.]

ver-mi-cel-li (vûr'mĭ-chĕl'ĕ, -sĕl'ĕ) n. Pasta made in long strands thinner than spaghetti. [Italian, pl. of vermicello diminutive of verme, worm, from Latin vermis. See wer-2 in Appendix.]

WORD HISTORY: We are now going to open an etymological can of worms by discussing the origin of the word vermicelli. This word, like the food itself, is Italian in origin. Italian vermicelli is the plural of vermicello, a diminutive of verme, “worm,” from the Latin word vermis, having the same sense. Perhaps you might prefer spaghetti instead; the word spaghetti is derived from the Italian plural of the diminutive of spago, “string.”

ver-mi-cide (vûr'mĭ-sĭd') n. An agent used to kill worms. — ver'mi-cid'al (-sĭd'l) adj.

ver-mic-u-lar (vər-mĭk'yə-lər) adj. 1. Having the shape or motion of a worm. 2. Having wormlike markings; vermiculate. 3. Caused by or relating to worms. [Medieval Latin vermiculāris, from Latin vermiculus, diminutive of vermis, worm. See wer-2 in Appendix.] — ver-mic'u-lar·ly adv.

ver-mic-u-late (vər-mĭk'yə-lāt') v. tr. ver-mic-u-lat-ed, ver-mic-u-lat-ing, ver-mic-u-lates. To adorn or decorate with wavy or winding lines. — adj. (-lĭt, -lāt') 1. Bearing wavy, wormlike lines. 2. Having a wormlike motion; twisting or wriggling. 3. Sinuous; tortuous. 4. Infested with worms; worm-eaten. [Latin vermiculārĭ, vermiculāt-, from vermiculus, diminutive of vermis, worm. See VERMICULAR.]

ver-mic-u-la-tion (vər-mĭk'yə-lā'shən) n. 1. Motion resembling that of a worm, especially the wavelike contractions of the intestine; peristalsis.

2. Wormlike marks or carvings, as in a mosaic or masonry. 3. The condition of being worm-eaten.

ver-mic-u-lite (vər-mīk'yə-līt') n. Any of a group of micaceous hydrated silicate minerals related to the chlorites and used in heat-expanded form as insulation and as a planting medium. [Latin vermiculus, diminutive of vermis, worm; see VERMICULAR + -ITE¹.]

ver-mi-form (vûr'mə-fôrm') adj. Resembling or having the long, thin, cylindrical shape of a worm.

vermiform appendix (vûr'mə-fôrm' ə-pĕn'dīks) n. A narrow vestigial process projecting from the cecum in the lower right-hand part of the abdomen of some mammals, including human beings. Also called vermiform process ver-mi-fuge (vûr'mə-fyōōj') n. A medicine that expels intestinal worms. — adj. Causing expulsion of intestinal worms; anthelmintic.

ver-mil-ion also ver-mil-lion (vər-mīl'yən) n. 1. A bright red mercuric sulfide used as a pigment. 2. Color. A vivid red to reddish orange. In this sense, also called Chinese red, cinnabar. — adj. Color. Of a vivid red to reddish orange. — v. tr. ver-mil-ioned also ver-mil-lioned, ver-mil-ion-ing also ver-mil-lion-ing, ver-mil-ions also ver-mil-lions. To color or dye (something) in the hue vermilion. [Middle English vermelion, from Old French vermeillon, from vermeil. See VERMEIL.]

ver-min (vûr'mĭn) n. pl. vermin. 1. Various small animals or insects, such as rats or cockroaches, that are destructive, annoying, or injurious to health.

2. Animals that prey on game, such as foxes or weasels. 3. a. A person considered loathsome or highly offensive. b. Such people considered as a group. [Middle English, from Old French, from Vulgar Latin vermĭnum*, from Latin vermis, worm. See wer-² in Appendix.]

ver-mi-na-tion (vûr'mə-nā'shən) n. Infestation by vermin, especially parasitic vermin.

ver-min-ous (vûr'mə-nəs) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or caused by vermin: verminous diseases. 2. Infested with vermin. 3. Of the nature of vermin; repulsive. — ver'min-ous-ly adv.

ver-miv-o-rous (vər-mĭv'ər-əs) adj. Feeding on worms or insect vermin. Used of a bird.

Ver-mont (vər-mōnt') Abbr. VT, Vt. A state of the northeast United States bordering on Canada. It was admitted as the 14th state in 1791. Explored by Samuel de Champlain in 1609, the region was first permanently settled by the British in 1724. Claims to the area were relinquished by Massachusetts in 1781, New Hampshire in 1782, and New York in 1790. Montpelier is the capital and Burlington the largest city. Population, 564,964. — Ver-mont'er n.

ver·mouth (vər-mōōth′) n. A sweet or dry wine flavored with aromatic herbs and used chiefly in mixed drinks. [French vermout, from German Wermut, from Middle High German wermuot, wormwood, from Old High German wermuota.]

ver·nac·u·lar (vər-nāk′yə-lər) n. 1. The standard native language of a country or locality. 2. The everyday language spoken by a people as distinguished from the literary language. See Synonyms at dialect. 3. The idiom of a particular trade or profession: in the legal vernacular. 4. An idiomatic word, phrase, or expression. 5. The common, nonscientific name of a plant or an animal. — adj. 1. Native to or commonly spoken by the members of a particular country or region. 2. Using the native language of a region, especially as distinct from the literary language: a vernacular poet. 3. Relating to or expressed in the native language or dialect. 4. Of, relating to, or characteristic of the style of architecture and decoration common in a particular region, culture, or period. 5. Occurring or existing in a particular locality; endemic: a vernacular disease. 6. Relating to or designating the common, nonscientific name of a plant or an animal. [From Latin vernāculus, native, from verna, native slave, perhaps of Etruscan origin.] —ver·nac′u·lar·ly adv.

ver·nac·u·lar·ism (vər-nāk′yə-lə-rīz′əm) n. A vernacular word or expression.

ver·nac·u·lar·ize (vər-nāk′yə-lə-rīz′) v. tr. ver·nac·u·lar·ized, ver·nac·u·lar·iz·ing, ver·nac·u·lar·iz·es. To translate into the everyday language spoken by a people: vernacularized the liturgy.

ver·nal (vûr′nəl) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or occurring in the spring. 2. Characteristic of or resembling spring. 3. Fresh and young; youthful. [Latin vĕrnālis, from vĕrnus, from vĕr, spring. See wesr in Appendix.] —ver′nal·ly adv.

vernal equinox (vûr′nəl ē′kwə-nōks′) n. 1. The point at which the ecliptic intersects the celestial equator, the sun having a northerly motion. 2. The moment at which the sun passes through the vernal equinox, occurring on about March 21 in the Northern Hemisphere and marking the beginning of spring.

ver·nal·i·za·tion (vûr′nə-lī-zā′shən) n. Subjection of seeds or seedlings to low temperature in order to hasten plant development and flowering.

ver·na·tion (vər-nā′shən) n. The arrangement of the young leaves within a bud. [New Latin vĕrnātiō, vĕrnātiōn-, from Latin vĕrnātus, past participle of vĕrnāre, to flourish, from vĕrnus, vernal. See VERNAL.]

Verne (vûrn, vĕrn), Jules. 1828-1905. French writer who is considered the founder of modern science fiction. His novels include Journey to the Center of the Earth (1864) and Around the World in Eighty Days (1873).

Ver·ner's Law (vûr′nərz lô, vĕr′-) n. Linguistics. A law stating essentially that Proto-Germanic noninitial voiceless fricatives in voiced environments became voiced when the previous syllable was unstressed in Proto-Indo-European. [After Karl Adolph Verner (1846-1896), Danish philologist.]

ver-ni-er (vûr'nē-ər) n. 1. A small, movable auxiliary graduated scale attached parallel to a main graduated scale, calibrated to indicate fractional parts of the subdivisions of the larger scale, and used on certain precision instruments to increase accuracy in measurement. 2. An auxiliary device designed to facilitate fine adjustments or measurements on precision instruments. Also called vernier scale — adj. Of or relating to a vernier. [After Pierre Vernier (1580?-1637), French mathematician.]

vernier caliper (vûr'nē-ər kăl'ə-pər) n. A measuring instrument consisting of an L-shaped frame with a linear scale along its longer arm and an L-shaped sliding attachment with a vernier, used to read directly the dimension of an object represented by the separation between the inner or outer edges of the two shorter arms.

vernier rocket (vûr'nē-ər rök'it) n. A small rocket engine used primarily to make fine adjustments in velocity and trajectory.

vernier scale (vûr'nē-ər skāl) n. See vernier.

ver-nis-sage (vër'nī-sāzh') n. A private showing held before the opening of an art exhibition. [French, from vernis, varnish, from Old French. See VARNISH.]

ver-nix (vûr'nīks) n. A waxy white protective substance covering the skin of a fetus. [Short for VERNIX CASEOSA.]

vernix ca-se-o-sa (vûr'nīks kă'sē-ō'sə) n. Vernix. [New Latin vernix cāseōsa : vernix, varnish + cāseōsa, cheeselike.]

Ver-non (vûr'nən) 1. A city of southern British Columbia, Canada, near the northern end of Okanagan Lake. It is a processing center in a lumbering region. Population, 19,987. 2. A town of northern Connecticut northeast of Hartford. Settled c. 1726, it is a manufacturing center. Population, 29,841.

Ve-ro Beach (vûr'ō bēch) A city of eastern Florida on the Indian River lagoon north-northwest of West Palm Beach. It is a fishing resort in a citrus-growing area. Population, 17,350.

Ve-ro-na (və-rō'nə) A city of northern Italy on the Adige River west of Venice. The original settlement on the site was conquered by Rome in 89 B.C. and later fell to barbarian invaders. Verona became an independent republic in A.D. 1107 and formed the powerful Veronese League in 1164. It became part of Italy in 1866. Population, 261,208. — Ve-ro-nese' (vër'ə-nēz', -nēs') adj. & n.

Ve-ro-ne-se (vër'ə-nā'sē, -zē, vër'rô-ně'zě), Paolo. Originally Paola Caliarì. 1528-1588. Italian painter of the Venetian school. His large, richly colored, harmonious works include Rape of Europa (1576).

ve-ron-i-ca¹ (və-rŏn'ī-kə) n. Any of various plants of the genus Veronica, which includes the speedwells. [New Latin Veronica, genus name.]

ve-ron-i-ca² (və-rŏn'ī-kə) n. 1. a. According to popular legend, an image of the face of Jesus as impressed on the handkerchief offered to him by Saint Veronica on the road to Calvary. b. The handkerchief itself. 2. A cloth bearing a representation of Jesus's face. [Medieval Latin, perhaps alteration of vēra iconica, true image : Latin vēra, feminine of vērus, true; see VERY + Latin iconica, feminine of iconicus, of an image (from Greek eikonikos, from eikōn, image); see ICON.]

ve-ron-i-ca³ (və-rŏn'ī-kə) n. A maneuver in bullfighting in which the matador stands with both feet fixed in position and swings the cape slowly away from the charging bull. [Spanish, from veronica, the veronica (from the gesture Saint Veronica made), from Medieval Latin. See VERONICA².]

Vé-ro-nique (vâr'ə-nĕk', vā-rô-) adj. Served with a sauce containing white seedless grapes: sole Véronique. [French, probably after Véronique, an opera by André Messager (1853-1929).]

Ver-ra-za-no or Ver-raz-za-no (vĕr'ə-ză'nō, -ră-tsă'nô), Giovanni da.

1485?-1528?. Italian explorer of the Atlantic coast of North America.

Ver-roc-chio (və-rō'kĕ-ō, vĕr-rôk'kyô), Andrea del. Originally Andrea di Michele di Francesco Cione. 1435-1488. Florentine sculptor and painter who was a tutor of Leonardo da Vinci and is best known for a magnificent equestrian statue in Verona.

ver-ru-ca (və-rōō'kə) n. pl. ver-ru-cae (-kĕ). 1. Medicine. A wart. 2. Biology. A wartlike projection, as on the back of a toad or on some leaves. [Latin verrūca.]

ver-ru-cose (və-rōō'kōs') also ver-ru-cous (-kəs) adj. Covered with warts or wartlike projections. [Latin verrucōsus, from verrūca, wart.]

vers abbr. Mathematics. Versed sine.

Ver-sailles (vər-sī', vĕr-) A city of north-central France west-southwest of Paris. It is best known for its magnificent palace, built by Louis XIV in the mid-17th century, where the treaty ending World War I was signed in 1919. Population, 91,494.

ver-sant (vâr'sənt) n. 1. The slope of a side of a mountain or mountain range. 2. The general slope of a region. [French, present participle of verser, to turn, from Old French, from Latin versāre, to turn frequently. See VERSATILE.]

ver-sa-tile (vâr'sə-təl, -tīl') adj. 1. Capable of doing many things competently. 2. Having varied uses or serving many functions: "The most versatile of vegetables is the tomato" (Craig Claiborne). 3. Variable or inconstant; changeable: a versatile temperament. 4. Biology. Capable of moving freely in all directions, as the antenna of an insect, the toe of an owl, or the loosely attached anther of a flower. [Latin versātilis, from versātus, past participle of versāre, to turn. See wer² in Appendix.] —ver'sa-tile-ly adv. —ver'sa-til'i-ty (-tīl'ī-tĕ), ver'sa-tile-ness (-təl-nīs, -tīl'-) n.

SYNONYMS: versatile, all-around, many-sided, multifaceted, multifarious. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is "having many aspects, uses, or abilities": a versatile writer; an all-around athlete; a many-sided subject; a multifaceted verse¹ (vûrs) n. 1. Abbr. ver., v. a. A single metrical line in a poetic composition; one line of poetry. b. A division of a metrical composition, such as a stanza of a poem or hymn. c. A poem. 2. Metrical or rhymed composition as distinct from prose; poetry. 3. a. The art or work of a poet. b. A group of poems: read a book of satirical verse. 4. Metrical writing that lacks depth or artistic merit. 5. A particular type of metrical composition, such as blank verse or free verse. 6. One of the numbered subdivisions of a chapter in the Bible. — v. tr. intr. versed, vers-ing, vers-es. To versify or engage in versifying. [Middle English vers, from Old English fers, and from Old French vers both from Latin versus, from past participle of vertere, to turn. See wer-² in Appendix.]

verse² (vûrs) v. tr. versed, vers-ing, vers-es. To familiarize by study or experience: He versed himself in philosophy. [Latin versāre. See VERSATILE.]

versed (vûrst) adj. Acquainted through study or experience; knowledgeable or skilled: She is well versed in classical languages.

versed cosine (vûrst kō'sîn') n. Abbr. covers Mathematics. A trigonometric function of an angle equal to one minus the sine of that angle. Also called coversine [VERSED (SINE) + COSINE.]

versed sine (vûrst sîn) n. Abbr. vers Mathematics. A trigonometric function of an angle equal to one minus the cosine of that angle. Also called versine [Translation of New Latin sinus versus: sinus, sine + Latin versus, past participle of vertere, to turn.]

ver-si-cle (vûr'sî-kəl) n. 1. A short verse. 2. A short sentence spoken or chanted by a priest and followed by a response from the congregation. [Middle English, from Latin versiculus, diminutive of versus, verse. See VERSE¹.]

ver-si-col-or (vûr'sî-kŭl'ər) also ver-si-col-ored (-kŭl'ərd) adj. 1. Having a variety of colors; variegated. 2. Changing in color; iridescent. [Latin : versus, past participle of vertere, to turn; see VERSE¹ + color, color; see COLOR.]

ver-si-fi-er (vûr'sə-fî'ər) n. One who versifies. See Synonyms at poet.

ver-si-fy (vûr'sə-fî') v. ver-si-fied (-fîd'), ver-si-fy-ing, ver-si-fies (-fîz'). — v. tr. 1. To change from prose into metrical form. 2. To treat or tell in verse: versify stories from the Bible. — v. intr. To write verses. [Middle English versifien, from Old French versifier, from Latin versificāre: versus, verse; see VERSE¹ + ficāre, -fy.] — ver'si-fi-ca'tion (-fî-kā'shən) n.

ver-sine (vûr'sîn') n. Mathematics. See versed sine. [Contraction of VERSED SINE.]

ver-sion (vûr'zhən, -shən) n. Abbr. ver., v. 1. A description or an account from one point of view, especially as opposed to another: Your version of the accident differs from mine. 2. a. A translation from another language. b. Often Ver-sion. A translation of the entire Bible or a part of it. 3. A particular form or variation of an earlier or original type: a modern version of the one-room schoolhouse. 4. An adaptation of a work of art or literature into another medium or style: the film version of a famous novel. 5. Medicine. a. Manipulation of a fetus in the uterus to bring it into a desirable position for delivery. b. Deflection of an organ, such as the uterus, from its normal position. [French, from Old French, act of turning, from Medieval Latin versiō, versiōn-, from Latin versus, past participle of vertere, to turn. See wer-² in Appendix.] —ver'sion-al adj.

vers li·bre (vēr lē'brə) n. Free verse. [French : vers, verse + libre, free.]

ver-so (vûr'sō) n. pl. ver-sos. 1. Abbr. v., vo. Printing. A left-hand page of a book or the reverse side of a leaf, as opposed to the recto. 2. The back of a coin or medal. [New Latin versō (foliō), (with the page) turned, verso, from Latin versō, ablative of versus past participle of vertere, to turn. See VERSION.]

verst (vûrst) n. A Russian measure of linear distance equivalent to about two thirds of a mile. [French verste, or German Werst both from Russian versta. See wer-² in Appendix.]

ver-sus (vûr'səs, -səz) prep. Abbr. v., vs. 1. Against: the plaintiff versus the defendant; Army versus Navy. 2. As the alternative to or in contrast with: “freedom of information versus invasion of privacy” (Ian Hamilton). [Middle English, from Medieval Latin, from Latin, turned, toward, from past participle of vertere, to turn. See wer-² in Appendix.]

vert (vûrt) n. 1. Heraldry. The color green. 2. a. Green vegetation that can serve as cover for deer. Used in English forest law. b. The right to cut such vegetation. [Middle English verte, from Anglo-Norman, feminine of verd. See VERDERER.]

vert. abbr. 1. Vertebrate. 2. Vertical.

ver-te-bra (vûr'tə-brə) n. pl. ver-te-brae (-brā', -brē') or ver-te-bras. Any of the bones or cartilaginous segments forming the spinal column. [Middle English, from Latin, from vertere, to turn. See wer-² in Appendix.]

ver-te-bral (vûr'tə-brəl, vər-tē'brəl) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or of the nature of a vertebra. 2. Having or consisting of vertebrae. 3. Having a spinal column. —ver'te-bral-ly adv.

vertebral canal (vûr'tə-brəl kə-nāl') n. See spinal canal.

vertebral column (vûr'tə-brəl kōl'əm) n. See spinal column.

ver-te-brate (vûr'tə-brīt, -brāt') adj. 1. Having a backbone or spinal column. 2. Of or characteristic of vertebrates or a vertebrate. — n. Abbr. vert. A member of the subphylum Vertebrata, a primary division of the phylum Chordata that includes the fishes, amphibians, reptiles, birds, and mammals, all of which are characterized by a segmented spinal column and a distinct, well-differentiated head. [Latin vertebrātus, having joints, from vertebra, vertebra. See VERTEBRA.]

ver-te-bra-tion (vûr'tə-brā'shən) n. Division into segments like those of the spinal column; vertebral formation.

ver-tex (vûr'tĕks') n. pl. ver-tex-es or ver-ti-ces (-tĭ-sĕz'). 1. The highest point; the apex or summit: the vertex of a mountain. 2. Anatomy. a. The highest point of the skull. b. The top of the head. 3. Astronomy. The highest point reached in the apparent motion of a celestial body. 4. Mathematics. a. The point at which the sides of an angle intersect. b. The point on a triangle or pyramid opposite to and farthest away from its base. c. A point on a polyhedron common to three or more sides. [Latin, whirling column, vertex, from vertere, to turn. See wer-² in Appendix.]

ver-ti-cal (vûr'tĭ-kəl) adj. Abbr. vert. 1. Being or situated at right angles to the horizon; upright. 2. Situated at the vertex or highest point; directly overhead. 3. Anatomy. Of or relating to the vertex of the head. 4. Economics. Relating to or involving all stages from production to sale: vertical integration. 5. Relating to or composed of elements at different levels, as of society. — n. 1. Something vertical, as a line, plane, or circle. 2. A vertical position. [Late Latin verticālis, overhead, from Latin vertex, vertic-, highest point. See VERTEX.] —ver'ti-cal/i-ty (-kəl'i-tē), ver'ti-cal-ness (-kəl-nĭs) n. —ver'ti-cal-ly adv.

SYNONYMS: vertical, upright, perpendicular, plumb. These adjectives are compared as they mean being at or approximately at right angles to the horizon or to level ground. Vertical and especially upright are often used to signify contrast with what is horizontal; the terms do not always imply an exact right angle: wallpaper with vertical stripes; an upright column. Perpendicular and plumb are generally used to specify an angle of precisely 90 degrees: a perpendicular escarpment; careful to make the doorjambs plumb.

vertical angle (vûr'tĭ-kəl ăng'gəl) n. Mathematics. Either of two angles formed by two intersecting lines and lying on opposite sides of the point of intersection.

vertical circle (vûr'tĭ-kəl sŭr'kəl) n. A great circle on the celestial sphere that passes through the zenith and the nadir and thus is perpendicular to the horizon.

vertical file (vûr'tĭ-kəl fil) n. A collection of resource materials, such as pamphlets, clippings from periodicals, and mounted photographs, arranged for ready reference, as in a library or an archive.

vertical union (vûr'tĭ-kəl yōon'yən) n. An industrial union.

ver-ti-ces (vûr'tĭ-sĕz') n. A plural of vertex.

ver-ti-cil (vûr'tĭ-sĭl') n. A circular arrangement, as of flowers, leaves, or hairs, growing about a central point; a whorl. [Latin verticillus, the whorl of a spindle, diminutive of vertex, vertic-, highest point. See VERTEX.]

ver-ti-cil-las-ter (vûr'tĭ-sə-lās'tər) n. A cymose inflorescence resembling a whorl but actually arising in the axils of opposite bracts, as in most mints. [New ver-ti-cil-late (vûr'tī-sil'īt, -āt') also ver-ti-cil-lat-ed (-sīl'ā'tīd) adj. Arranged in or forming whorls or a whorl. —ver'ti-cil/late-ly adv. —ver'ti-cil-la'tion n.

Latin verticillastēr : Latin verticillus, whorl; see VERTICIL + Latin astēr, star; see ASTER.] —ver'ti-cil-las'trate' (-trāt') adj.

ver-tig-i-nous (vər-tīj'ə-nəs) adj. 1. Turning about an axis; revolving or whirling. 2. Affected by vertigo; dizzy. See Synonyms at giddy. 3. Tending to produce vertigo: “my small mind contained in earthly human limits, not lost in vertiginous space and elements unknown” (Diana Cooper). 4. Inclined to change quickly; unstable. [From Latin vertīgō, vertīgin-, a whirling, from vertere, to turn. See VERSION.] —ver-tig'i-nous-ly adv. —ver-tig'i-nous-ness n.

ver-ti-go (vûr'tī-gō') *n. pl. ver-ti-goes or ver-ti-gos. 1. a. The sensation of dizziness. b. An instance of such a sensation. 2. A confused, disoriented state of mind. [Middle English, from Latin vertīgō, from vertere, to turn. See wer-² in Appendix.]*

ver-tu (vər-tōō') n. Variant of virtu.

ver-vain (vûr'vān') n. See verbena (n., sense 1). [Middle English verveine, from Old French, from Latin verbēna, leafage. See VERBENA.]

verve (vûrv) n. 1. Energy and enthusiasm in the expression of ideas, especially in artistic performance or composition: The play lacks verve. 2. Vitality; liveliness. See Synonyms at vigor. 3. Archaic. Aptitude; talent. [French, from Old French, fanciful expression, probably from Vulgar Latin verva*, from Latin verba, pl. of verbum, word. See wer-⁵ in Appendix.]

ver-vet (vûr'vīt) n. A small, long-tailed African monkey (Cercopithecus aethiops) having a yellowish-brown or greenish coat. [French : vert, green (from Old French verd); see VERDURE + grivet, grivet.]

Ver-viers (vër-vyā') A city of eastern Belgium east of Liège. It is a manufacturing center with a textile industry. Population, 54,294.

Ver-woerd (fər-vōōrt'), Hendrik Frensch. 1901-1966. South African politician who as prime minister (1958-1966) pursued a policy of apartheid and removed South Africa from the British Commonwealth (1961). He was assassinated in Cape Town.

ver-y (vër'ē) adv. 1. In a high degree; extremely: very happy; very much admired. 2. Truly; absolutely: the very best advice; attended the very same schools. 3. Very. Abbr. v., V. Used in titles: the Very Reverend Jane Smith. — adj. ver-i-er, ver-i-est. 1. Complete; absolute: at the very end of his career; the very opposite. 2. Being the identical one; selfsame: the very question she asked yesterday. See Synonyms at same. 3. Used to emphasize the importance of the thing named: “The very essence of artistic expression is invention” (Irving R. Kaufman). 4. Being particularly suitable or appropriate: the very item needed to increase sales.

5. Being precisely as stated: the very center of town. 6. Mere: The very thought is frightening. 7. Actual: caught in the very act of stealing. 8. Genuine; true: “Like very sanctity, she did approach” (Shakespeare). [Middle English verrai, from Old French verai, true, from Vulgar Latin vērācus*, from Latin vērāx, vērāc-, from Latin vērūs. See wēro- in Appendix.]

USAGE NOTE: In general usage very is not used alone to modify a past participle. Thus we may say of a book, for example, that it has been very much praised, very much criticized, very much applauded, or whatever, but not that it has been very praised, very criticized, or very applauded. However, many past participle forms do double duty as adjectives, in which case modification by a bare very, or by analogous adverbs such as quite, is acceptable: there can be no objection to phrases such as a very creased handkerchief, a very celebrated singer, or a very polished performance. In some cases there is disagreement as to whether a particular participle can be used properly as an adjective: over the years objections have been raised as to the use of very by itself with delighted, interested, annoyed, pleased, disappointed, and irritated. All these words are now well established as adjectives, as indicated by the fact that they can be used attributively (a delighted audience, a pleased look, a disappointed young man) as well as by other syntactic criteria. But the status of other participles is still in flux. Some speakers accept phrases such as very appreciated, very astonished, or very heartened, while others prefer alternatives using very much. What is more, some participles allow treatment as adjectives in one sense but not another: one may speak of a very inflated reputation, for example, but not, ordinarily, of a very inflated balloon. As a result, there is no sure way to tell which participles may be modified by a bare very—syntactic tests such as the use of the participle as an attributive adjective will themselves yield different judgments for different speakers—and writers must trust their ears. When in doubt, the use of very much is generally the safer alternative.

very close veins (vĕr'ē klōs vānz) pl.n. Chiefly Southern U.S. Varicose veins. [By folk etymology from varicose veins.]

REGIONAL NOTE: A linguistic process called folk etymology is observed frequently in regional U.S. dialects. Folk etymology causes an unfamiliar and difficult word to be replaced with a similar-sounding word or phrase whose meaning happens to coincide in a way that makes sense. In this manner, varicose veins becomes very close veins in the speech of many elderly and rural Southerners. The Latinate varicose, not a part of their ordinary vocabulary, sounds like very close, which certainly describes the location of these blood vessels just under the skin. Nurses at the East Alabama Medical Center in Lee County, Alabama, report that folk etymologies for medical terms are extremely common among their patients.

very high frequency (vē'ē hī frē'kwən-sē) n. Abbr. vhf, VHF A band of radio frequencies falling between 30 and 300 megahertz.

Ver-y Large Array (vē'ē lārj ə-rā') n. Abbr. VLA A Y-shaped pattern of radio telescopes in New Mexico with a radius of 21 kilometers (13 miles).

very large scale integration (vē'ē lārj skāl ɪn'ti-grā'shən) n. Abbr. VLSI Electronics. Technology that enables the placement of more than 100,000 integrated circuits on a single semiconductor chip.

very low frequency (vē'ē lō frē'kwən-sē) n. Abbr. vlf, VLF A band of radio frequencies falling between 3 and 30 kilohertz.

Ver-y pistol (vē'ē pīs'təl, vīr'ē) n. A pistol used for firing colored signal flares. [After Edward Wilson Very (1847-1910), American naval officer.]

Ve-sa-li-us (vī-sā'lē-əs, -zā'-), Andreas. 1514-1564. Flemish anatomist and surgeon who is considered the founder of modern anatomy. His major work, On the Structure of the Human Body (1543), was based on meticulous dissection of cadavers.

Ve-sey (vē'zē), Denmark. 1767?-1822. American insurrectionist. A freed slave in South Carolina, he was implicated in the planning of a large uprising of slaves and was hanged. The event led to more stringent slave codes in many Southern states.

ve-si-ca (və-sī'kə, -sē'-) n. pl. ve-si-cae (-kē, -sē). A bladder, especially the urinary bladder or the gallbladder. [Latin vēsīca.] —ves'i-cal (vēs'i-kəl) adj.

ves-i-cant (vēs'ī-kənt) n. A blistering agent, especially mustard gas, used in chemical warfare. — adj. Causing blisters.

vesica pis-cis (və-sī'kə pī'sis, pīs'īs) n. A pointed oval shape used in medieval Christian art as an aureole to surround a sacred figure. [New Latin vēsīca piscis: Latin vēsīca, bladder + Latin piscis, genitive of piscis, fish (from the resemblance in shape).]

ves-i-cate (vēs'ī-kāt') v. tr. intr. ves-i-cat-ed, ves-i-cat-ing, ves-i-cates. To blister or become blistered. [New Latin vēsīcāre, vēsīcāt-, from Latin vēsīca, bladder, blister.] —ves'i-ca'tion n.

ves-i-ca-to-ry (vēs'ī-kə-tōr'ē, -tōr'ē) adj. Vesicant. — n. pl. ves-i-ca-to-ries. A vesicant.

ves-i-cle (vēs'ī-kəl) n. 1. A small bladderlike cell or cavity. 2. Anatomy. A small sac or cyst, especially one containing fluid. 3. Pathology. A serum-filled blister formed in or beneath the skin. 4. Geology. A small cavity formed in volcanic rock by entrapment of a gas bubble during solidification. [Middle English, from Old French vesicule, from Latin vēsīcula, diminutive of vēsīca, bladder, blister.]

ve-sic-u-lar (vē-sīk'yə-lər, və-) adj. 1. Of or relating to vesicles. 2. Composed of or containing vesicles. 3. Having the form of a vesicle. —ve-sic'u-lar-ly adv.

vesicular exanthema (vē-sīk'yə-lər ěg'zǎn-thē'mə) n. An acute, highly infectious viral disease of swine characterized by formation of vesicles on the snout, the mucous membranes of the mouth, and the feet.

vesicular stomatitis (vē-sīk'yə-lər stō'mə-tī'tis) n. An acute viral disease of cattle, swine, and horses, transmitted by mosquitoes and other insects and having symptoms resembling those of foot-and-mouth disease and vesicular exanthema.

ve-sic·u·late (vē-sīk'yə-lāt', və-) v. tr. intr. ve-sic·u·lat·ed, ve-sic·u·lat·ing, ve-sic·u·lates. To make or become vesicular. — adj. (-līt, -lāt') Full of or bearing vesicles; vesicular. — ve-sic'u·la'tion n.

Ves·pa·sian (vēs-pā'zhən, -zhē-ən), A.D. 9-79. Emperor of Rome (69-79) who brought prosperity to the empire, reformed the army, was a patron of the arts, and began the building of the Colosseum.

ves·per (vēs'pər) n. 1. A bell that summons worshipers to vespers. 2. Vesper. The evening star, especially Venus. 3. Archaic. Evening. [Middle English, evening star, from Latin, evening. See wes-pero- in Appendix.]

ves·per·al (vēs'pər-əl) Ecclesiastical. n. 1. A book containing the words and hymns to be used at vespers. 2. A covering used to protect an altar cloth between services. — adj. Of or relating to vesper or vespers.

ves·pers also Ves·pers (vēs'pərz) pl.n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). 1. a. The sixth of the seven canonical hours. b. A worship service held in the late afternoon or evening in many Western Christian churches. c. The time of day appointed for this service. 2. Evensong. 3. Roman Catholic Church. A service held on Sundays or holy days that includes the office of vespers. [Obsolete French vespres, from Old French, from Medieval Latin vesperās, evening service, from Latin, accusative pl. of vespera, evening, variant of vesper. See VESPER.]

vesper sparrow (vēs'pər spār'ō) n. A North American sparrow (Poocetes gramineus) having white markings on its outer tail feathers. [From its singing in the evening.]

ves·per·til·i·o·nid (vēs'pər-tīl'ē-ə-nīd) n. Any of various widely distributed insect-eating bats of the family Vespertilionidae, characterized by a long tail. — adj. Of or belonging to the family Vespertilionidae. [From New Latin Vespertilionidae, family name, from Vespertiliō, Vespertiliōn-, type genus, from Latin vespertiō, bat, from vesper, evening. See wes-pero- in Appendix.]

ves·per·tine (vēs'pər-tīn') also ves·per·ti·nal (vēs'pər-tī'nəl) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or occurring in the evening. 2. Botany. Opening or blooming in the evening. 3. Zoology. Becoming active in the evening, as bats and owls; crepuscular. [Latin vespertinus, from vesper, evening. See VESPER.]

ves·pi·ar·y (vēs'pē-ēr'ē) n. pl. ves·pi·ar·ies. A nest or colony of wasps or hornets. [Latin vespa, wasp + (AP)IARY.]

ves·pid (vēs'pīd) n. Any of various widely distributed social insects of the family Vespidae, which includes certain wasps, hornets, and yellow jackets. — adj.

Of or belonging to the family Vespidae. [From New Latin Vespidae, family name, from Vespa, type genus, from Latin vespa, wasp.]

ves-pine (vēs'pīn') adj. Of, relating to, or resembling a wasp. [From Latin vespa, wasp.]

Ves-puc-ci (vēs-pōō'chē, -pyōō'-), Amerigo. Latin name Americus Vesputius. 1454-1512. Italian navigator and explorer of the South American coast. America was named in his honor.

ves-sel (vēs'əl) n. 1. A hollow utensil, such as a cup, vase, or pitcher, used as a container, especially for liquids. 2. a. Nautical. A craft, especially one larger than a rowboat, designed to navigate on water. b. An airship. 3. Anatomy. A duct, canal, or other tube that contains or conveys a body fluid: a blood vessel.

4. Botany. One of the tubular conductive structures of xylem, consisting of dead cylindrical cells that are attached end to end and connected by perforations. They are found in nearly all flowering plants. 5. A person seen as the agent or embodiment, as of a quality: a vessel of mercy. [Middle English, from Old French, from Late Latin vāscellum, diminutive of Latin vāsculum, diminutive of vās, vessel.]

vest (vēst) n. 1. A sleeveless garment, often having buttons down the front, worn usually over a shirt or blouse and sometimes as part of a three-piece suit. 2. A waist-length, sleeveless garment worn for protection: a thick, down vest; a bulletproof vest. 3. A fabric trim worn to fill in the neckline of a woman's garment; a vestee. 4. Chiefly British. An undershirt. 5. a. Archaic. Clothing; raiment. b. Obsolete. An ecclesiastical vestment. — v. vest-ed, vest-ing, vests.

— v. tr. 1. To place (authority, property, or rights, for example) in the control of a person or group, especially to give someone an immediate right to present or future possession or enjoyment of (an estate, for example). Used with in: vested his estate in his daughter. 2. To invest or endow (a person or group) with something, such as power or rights. Used with with: vested the council with broad powers; vests its employees with full pension rights after five years of service. 3. To clothe or robe, as in ecclesiastical vestments. — v. intr. 1. To become legally vested. 2. To dress oneself, especially in ecclesiastical vestments. [French veste, robe, from Italian vesta, from Latin vestis, garment. See wes-² in Appendix.]

Ves-ta (vēs'tə) n. 1. Roman Mythology. The goddess of the hearth, worshiped in a temple containing the sacred fire tended by the vestal virgins. 2. The brightest of all the asteroids and the fourth to be discovered. [Latin. See wes-¹ in Appendix.]

ves-tal (vēs'təl) adj. 1. Roman Mythology. a. Of or relating to Vesta. b. Relating to or characteristic of the vestal virgins. 2. Chaste; pure. — n. 1. Roman Mythology. A priest who tended the sacred fire of Vesta in ancient Rome. 2. A woman who is a virgin. 3. A nun.

vestal virgin (vēs'təl vûr'jĭn) n. Roman Mythology. One of the women who tended the sacred fire in the temple of Vesta in ancient Rome. They acted as priests to Vesta and remained celibate during their servitude.

Ves-ta-vi-a Hills (vē-stā'vĕ-ə hĭlz) A city of north-central Alabama, a suburb of Birmingham. Population, 19,749.

vest-ed (vēs'tĭd) adj. 1. Law. Settled, fixed, or absolute; being without contingency: a vested right. 2. Dressed or clothed, especially in ecclesiastical vestments.

vested interest (vēs'tĭd ĭn'trĭst) n. 1. Law. A right or title, as to present or future possession of an estate, that can be conveyed to another. 2. A fixed right granted to an employee under a pension plan. 3. A special interest in protecting or promoting that which is to one's own personal advantage. 4. vested interests. Those groups that seek to maintain or control an existing system or activity from which they derive private benefit.

vest-ee (vē-stĕ') n. A garment worn by women as a blouse front under a sweater or jacket. [From VEST.]

ves-ti-ar-y (vēs'tĕ-ĕr'ĕ, -chĕ-) adj. Of or relating to clothes. — n. pl.

ves-ti-ar-ies. A dressing room, cloakroom, or vestry. [Latin vestiārius, from vestis, garment; see VEST. N., from Middle English vestiarie from Old French, from Medieval Latin vestiārium, from Latin, wardrobe, from neuter of vestiārius, of clothes.]

ves-tib-u-lar (vē-stĭb'yə-lər) adj. Of, relating to, or serving as a vestibule.

vestibular nerve (vē-stĭb'yə-lər nûrv) n. A division of the acoustic nerve that conducts impulses related to maintaining balance to the brain.

ves-ti-bule (vēs'tə-byōōl') n. 1. A small entrance hall or passage between the outer door and the interior of a house or building. 2. An enclosed area at the end of a passenger car on a railroad train. 3. Anatomy. A cavity, chamber, or channel that leads to or is an entrance to another cavity: the vestibule to the ear. [Latin vestibulum.] ves-tige (vēs'tĭj) n. 1. A visible trace, evidence, or sign of something that once existed but exists or appears no more. See Synonyms at trace¹. 2. Biology. A rudimentary or degenerate, usually nonfunctioning, structure that is the remnant of an organ or a part that was fully developed or functioning in a preceding generation or an earlier stage of development. [French, from Old French, from Latin vestigium.] ves-tig-i-a (vē-stĭj'ĕ-ə) n. Biology. Plural of vestigium.

ves-tig-i-al (vē-stĭj'ĕ-əl, -stĭj'əl) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or constituting a vestige. 2. Biology. Occurring or persisting as a rudimentary or degenerate structure.

—ves-tig'i-al-ly adv.

ves-tig-i-um (vē-stĭj'ĕ-əm) n. pl. ves-tig-i-a (-ĕ-ə). Biology. A vestige. [Latin vestigium, footprint.]

vest-ing (vĕs'tĭng) n. The granting to an employee of credits toward a pension even if separated from the job before retirement.

vest-ment (vĕst'mĕnt) n. 1. A garment, especially a robe or gown worn as an indication of office or state. 2. Ecclesiastical. Any of the ritual robes worn by members of the clergy, acolytes, or other assistants at services or rites, especially a garment worn at the celebration of the Eucharist. [Middle English vestment, from Old French vestment, from Latin vestĭmentum, from vestĭre, to clothe, from vestis, garment. See VEST.] —vest-men'tal (-mĕn'tl) adj.

vest-pock-et (vĕst'pŏk'ĭt) adj. 1. Small enough to fit into a vest pocket: a vest-pocket book. 2. Very small; diminutive.

vest-pocket park (vĕst'pŏk'ĭt pĕrk) n. A very small park set in a heavily populated urban area.

ves-try (vĕs'trĕ) n. pl. ves-tries. 1. A room in or attached to a church where the clergy put on their vestments and where these robes and other sacred objects are stored; a sacristy. 2. A room in a church used for meetings and classes. 3. A committee of members elected to administer the temporal affairs of a parish. 4. A business meeting of parishioners in a parish. [Middle English vestrie, probably from Anglo-Norman vesterie*, alteration of Old French vestiarie. See VESTIARY.]

ves-try-man (vĕs'trĕ-mĕn) n. A man who is a member of a vestry.

ves-try-wo-man (vĕs'trĕ-wŏm'ĕn) n. A woman who is a member of a vestry.

ves-ture (vĕs'chĕr) n. 1. Clothing; apparel. 2. Something that covers or cloaks: hills in a vesture of mist. — v. tr. ves-tured, ves-tur-ing, ves-tures. To cover with vesture; clothe. [Middle English, from Old French, from Vulgar Latin vestĭtura*, from Latin vestĭtus, past participle of vestĭre, to clothe, from vestis, garment. See VEST.]

ve-su-vi-an (vĭ-sŏv'vĕ-ĕn) n. A slow-burning match formerly used for lighting cigars; a fusee. — adj. Marked by sudden or violent outbursts: a vesuvian temper. [After, Mount. Vesuvius.]

ve-su-vi-an-ite (vĭ-sŏv'vĕ-ĕ-nĭt') n. A green, brown, yellow, or blue metamorphic silicate mineral, $\text{Ca}_{10}\text{Mg}_2\text{Al}_4(\text{SiO}_4)_5(\text{Si}_2\text{O}_7)_2(\text{OH})_4$. Also called idocrase

Ve-su-vi-us (vĭ-sŏv'vĕ-ĕs), Mount. An active volcano, 1,281 m (4,200 ft) high, of southern Italy on the eastern shore of the Bay of Naples. A violent eruption in A.D. 79 destroyed the nearby city of Pompeii. —Ve-su'vi-an adj.

Vesz-prĕm (vĕs'prĕm) A city of western Hungary north of Lake Balaton. It is a commercial and processing center. Population, 63,058.

vet¹ (vĕt) Informal. n. A veterinarian. — v. vet-ted, vet-ting, vets. — v. tr. 1. To subject to veterinary evaluation, examination, medication, or surgery. 2. To subject to thorough examination or evaluation: vet a manuscript. — v. intr. To engage in the practice of veterinary medicine.

vet² (vēt) n. Informal. A veteran.

vet. abbr. Veteran.

vetch (vēch) n. Any of various herbs of the genus Vicia, having pinnately compound leaves that terminate in tendrils and small, variously colored flowers.

[Middle English vetche, from Old North French veche, from Latin vicia. See weik-² in Appendix.]

vetch·ling (vēch'ling) n. Any of several plants of the genus Lathyrus, having pinnately compound leaves, slender tendrils, and variously colored flowers.

veter. abbr. Veterinary.

vet·er·an (vēt'ər-ən, vēt'rən) n. Abbr. vet. 1. A person who is long experienced or practiced in an activity or a capacity: a veteran of political campaigns. 2. A person who has served in the armed forces: "Privilege, a token income... were allowed for veterans of both world wars" (Mavis Gallant). 3. An old soldier who has seen long service. — adj. 1. Having had long experience or practice: a veteran actor. 2. Of or relating to former members of the armed forces: veteran benefits. [Latin veterānus, from vetus, veter-, old. See wet-² in Appendix.]

Vet·er·ans Day (vēt'ər-ənz dā, vēt'rənz) n. November 11, observed in the United States in honor of veterans of the armed services and in commemoration of the armistice that ended World War I in 1918. In 1954 it was renamed from Armistice Day and given the added significance of honoring veterans.

vet·er·i·nar·i·an (vēt'ər-ə-nâr'ē-ən, vēt'rə-) n. A person who practices veterinary medicine.

vet·er·i·nar·y (vēt'ər-ə-nēr'ē, vēt'rə-) adj. Abbr. veter. Of or relating to veterinary medicine; concerned or connected with the medical or surgical treatment of animals, especially domestic animals. — n. pl. vet·er·i·nar·ies. A veterinarian. [Latin veterinārius, from veterīnae, beasts of burden, from feminine pl. of veterīnus, of beasts of burden. See wet-² in Appendix.]

veterinary medicine (vēt'ər-ə-nēr'ē mēd'ī-sīn) n. The branch of medicine that deals with the causes, diagnosis, and treatment of diseases and injuries of animals, especially domestic animals.

veterinary surgeon (vēt'ər-ə-nēr'ē sūr'jən) n. A veterinarian.

vet·i·ver (vēt'ə-vər) n. 1. A grass (Vetiveria zizanioides) of tropical India, cultivated for its aromatic roots that yield an oil used in perfumery. 2. The roots of this plant. [French vétiver, from Tamil vet̤tivēr: vet̤ti, worthless + vēru, useless.]

vet·i·vert (vēt'ə-vûrt') n. The essential oil of the vetiver. [Alteration of VETIVER.]

Vet·lu·ga (vēt-lōō'gə) A river, about 850 km (528 mi) long, of western Russia flowing generally southward to the Volga River.

ve·to (vē'tō) n. pl. ve·toes. 1. a. The vested power or constitutional right of one branch or department of government to refuse approval of measures proposed by another department, especially the power of a chief executive to reject a bill passed by the legislature and thus prevent or delay its enactment into law.

b. Exercise of this right. c. An official document or message from a chief executive stating the reasons for rejection of a bill. 2. An authoritative prohibition or rejection of a proposed or intended act. — v. tr. ve·toed, ve·to·ing, ve·toes.

1. To prevent (a legislative bill) from becoming law by exercising the power of veto. 2. To forbid or prohibit authoritatively. [From Latin vetō, first person sing. present tense of vetāre, to forbid.] —ve'to·er n.

vex (vēks) v. tr. vexed, vex·ing, vex·es. 1. To annoy, as with petty importunities; bother. See Synonyms at annoy. 2. To cause perplexity in; puzzle. 3. To bring distress or suffering to; plague or afflict. 4. To debate or discuss (a question, for example) at length. 5. To toss about or shake up. [Middle English vexen, from Old French vexer, from Latin vexāre. See wegh- in Appendix.]

—vex'ed·ly (vēk'sīd'lē) adv. —vex'er n. —vex'ing·ly adv.

vex·a·tion (vēk-sā'shən) n. 1. The act of annoying, irritating, or vexing. 2. The quality or condition of being vexed; annoyance. 3. A source of irritation or annoyance.

vex·a·tious (vēk-sā'shəs) adj. 1. Causing or creating vexation; annoying.

2. Full of annoyance or distress; harassed. 3. Intended to vex or annoy.

—vex·a'tious·ly adv. —vex·a'tious·ness n.

vexed (vēkst) adj. 1. Irritated, distressed, or annoyed: *greatly vexed by their behavior; the vexed parents of an unruly teenager. 2. Much discussed or debated: *a vexed question.

vex·il·la (vēk-sīl'ə) n. Botany & Zoology. Plural of vexillum.

vex·il·lar·y (vēk'sə-lēr'ē) n. pl. vex·il·lar·ies. 1. A member of the oldest class of army veterans who served under a special standard in ancient Rome. 2. A standard-bearer. — adj. Of or relating to a vexillum. [Latin vexillārius, from vexillum, flag. See VEXILLUM.]

vex·il·late (vēk'sə-līt, -lāt') adj. Having a vexillum.

vex·il·lol·o·gy (vēk'sə-lōl'ə-jē) n. The study of flags. —vex·il'lo·log'ic (vēk-sīl'ə-lōj'ik), vex·il'lo·log'i·cal (-ī-kəl) adj. —vex'il·lol'o·gist n.

vex·il·lum (vēk-sīl'əm) n. pl. vex·il·la (vēk-sīl'ə). 1. Botany. See standard (n., sense 8). 2. Zoology. The weblike part of a feather; the vane. [Latin, flag, diminutive of vēlum, a covering.]

V.F. abbr. 1. Roman Catholic Church. Vicar forane. 2. Also VF. Video frequency. 3. Also VF. Visual field.

VFD abbr. Volunteer fire department.

V format (vē'fôr'măt') n. Computer Science. A method of presenting data processor output so that each record begins with an indication of its length. [V(ARIBLE).]

VFR abbr. Visual flight rules.

VFW also V.F.W. abbr. Veterans of Foreign Wars.

V.G. abbr. Roman Catholic Church. Vicar general.

vhf or VHF abbr. Very high frequency.

VI or V.I. abbr. Virgin Islands.

vi.i. abbr. Latin. Vide infra (see below).

V.I. abbr. Volume indicator.

vi·a (vī'ə, vē'ə) prep. 1. By way of: went to Pittsburgh via Philadelphia. 2. By means of: sent the letter via airmail. [Latin viā, ablative of via, road. See wegh- in Appendix.]

vi·a·ble (vī'ə-bəl) adj. 1. Capable of living, developing, or germinating under favorable conditions. 2. Capable of living outside the uterus. Used of a fetus or newborn. 3. Capable of success or continuing effectiveness; practicable: a viable plan; a viable national economy. See Synonyms at possible. [French, from vie, life, from Old French, from Latin vīta. See g^wei- in Appendix.] —vi'a·bil'i·ty n. —vi'a·bly adv.

Vi·a Do·lo·ro·sa (vī'ə dō'lə-rō'sə, vē'ə) n. 1. A difficult course or experience. 2. Jesus's route from Pilate's judgment hall to Calvary. [New Latin via dolōrōsa: Latin via, road + Late Latin dolōrōsa, sorrowful.]

vi·a·duct (vī'ə-dūkt') n. A series of spans or arches used to carry a road or railroad over a wide valley or over other roads or railroads. [Latin via, road; see VIA + (AQUE)DUCT.]

vi·al (vī'əl) n. A small container, usually with a closure, used especially for liquids. — v. tr. vi·aled or vi·alled, vi·al·ing or vi·al·ling, vi·als or vi·als. To put or keep in or as if in a vial. [Middle English viōle, variant of fiol. See PHIAL.]

via me·di·a (vī'ə mē'dē-ə, mēd'ē-ə, mā'dē-ə) n. The middle course or way. [Latin : via, way + media, middle.]

vi·and (vī'ənd) n. 1. a. An item of food. b. A very choice or delicious dish. 2. viands. Provisions; victuals. [Middle English viaunde, from Old French viande, from Vulgar Latin vīvanda*, alteration of Latin vīvenda, neuter pl. gerundive of Latin vīvere, to live. See g^wei- in Appendix.]

Vi·a·reg·gio (vē'ə-rěj'ō, vyä-rěd'jō) A city of northwest Italy on the Ligurian Sea southeast of Genoa. It is a fishing center and fashionable resort. Population, 58,136.

vi·at·ic (vī-ăt'īk) also vi·at·i·cal (-ī-kəl) adj. Of or relating to traveling, a road, or a way. [Latin viāticus, from via, road. See VIA.]

vi·at·i·cum (vī-ăt'ī-kəm, vē-) n. pl. vi·at·i·ca (-kə) or vi·at·i·cums.

1. Ecclesiastical. The Eucharist given to a dying person or one in danger of death.

2. Supplies for a journey. [Late Latin viāticum, from Latin, traveling provisions, from neuter of viāticus, viatic. See VIATIC.]

vibe (vīb) n. Slang. A vibration. Often used in the plural: good vibes; bad vibes. [Short for VIBRATION.]

vibes (vībz) pl.n. Music. A vibraphone. [Shortening and alteration of VIBRA-PHONE.]

vib·ist (vī'bīst) n. Music. A person who plays the vibraphone.

vi·brac·u·lum (vī-brāk'yə-ləm) n. pl. vi·brac·u·la (-lə). One of the long, whiplike, modified zooids on the surface of certain bryozoan colonies. [New Latin vibrāculum, from Latin vibrāre, to shake. See VIBRATE.] —vi·brac'u·lar (-lər) adj. —vi·brac'u·loid' (-loid') adj.

vi·bra·harp (vī'brə-härp') n. Music. See vibraphone. —vi'bra·harp'ist n.

vi·brant (vī'brənt) adj. 1. a. Pulsing or throbbing with energy or activity: the vibrant streets of a big city. b. Vigorous, lively, and vital: "a vibrant group that challenged the... system" (Philip Taubman). 2. Exhibiting or characterized by rapid, rhythmic movement back and forth or to and fro; vibrating. 3. Produced as a result of vibration; resonant or resounding: vibrant voices. 4. Color. Relatively high on the scale of brightness: a vibrant hue. —vi'bran·cy, vi'brance n. —vi'brant·ly adv.

vi·bra·phone (vī'brə-fōn') n. Music. An instrument similar to a marimba but having metal bars and rotating disks in the resonators to produce a vibrato. Also called vibraharp [Latin vibrāre, to shake; see VIBRATE + -PHONE.]

—vi'bra·phon'ist n.

vi·brate (vī'brāt') v. vi·brat·ed, vi·brat·ing, vi·brates. — v. intr. 1. To move back and forth or to and fro, especially rhythmically and rapidly. See Synonyms at swing. 2. To feel a quiver of emotion. 3. To shake or move with or as if with a slight quivering or trembling motion: "Even as the film moved... to the more deadly fields of Vietnam, old hatreds vibrated in me" (Loudon Wainwright). 4. To produce a sound; resonate. 5. To fluctuate or waver in making choices; vacillate. — v. tr. 1. To cause to tremble or quiver. 2. To cause to move back and forth rapidly. 3. To produce (sound) by vibration. [Latin vibrāre, vibrāt-. See weip- in Appendix.]

vi·bra·tile (vī'brə-tl, -tīl') adj. 1. Characterized by vibration. 2. Capable of or adapted to vibratory motion. [French, from Latin vibrātus, past participle of vibrāre, to vibrate. See VIBRATE.] —vi'bra·til'i·ty (-tīl'ī-tē) n.

vi·bra·tion (vī-brā'shən) n. 1. a. The act of vibrating. b. The condition of being vibrated. 2. Physics. a. A rapid linear motion of a particle or of an elastic solid about an equilibrium position. b. A periodic process. 3. A single complete vibrating motion; a quiver. 4. Slang. A distinctive emotional aura or atmosphere regarded as being instinctively sensed or experienced. Often used in the plural: "Miami gives off the same vibrations, the same portent of disaster, but with a difference" (James Atlas). —vi·bra'tion·al adj.

vi·bra·tive (vī'brə-tīv) adj. Variant of vibratory.

vi·bra·to (və-brä'tō, vī-) n. pl. vi·bra·tos. Music. A tremulous or pulsating effect produced in an instrumental or vocal tone by barely perceptible minute and rapid variations in pitch. [Italian, from Late Latin vibrātus, a quivering, from Latin, past participle of vibrāre, to vibrate. See VIBRATE.]

vi·bra·tor (vī'brā'tər) n. 1. Something that vibrates. 2. An electrically operated device used for massage. 3. An electrical device consisting basically of a vibrating conductor interrupting a current.

vi·bra·to·ry (vī'brə-tōr'ē, -tōr'ē) also vi·bra·tive (-tīv) adj. 1. Of, characterized by, or consisting of vibration. 2. Causing vibration. 3. Vibrating or capable of vibration.

vib·ri·o (vīb'rē-ō') n. pl. vib·ri·os. Any of various short, motile, S-shaped or comma-shaped bacteria of the genus Vibrio, especially V. cholerae, which causes cholera. [New Latin Vibriō, genus name, from Latin vibrāre, to vibrate (from their vibratory motion). See VIBRATE.] —vib·ri·oid' (-oid') adj.

vib·ri·o·sis (vīb'rē-ō'sīs) n. pl. vib·ri·o·ses (-sēz). 1. Infection with the bacterium Vibrio parahaemolyticus, often the result of eating undercooked seafood from contaminated waters. 2. A venereal infection in cattle and sheep caused by the bacterium Vibrio fetus, often producing infertility or spontaneous abortion.

vi·bris·sa (vī-brīs'ə, və-) n. pl. vi·bris·sae (-brīs'ē). 1. Any of the long, stiff hairs that project from the snout or brow of most mammals, as the whiskers of a cat. 2. One of several long modified feathers that grow along the gape of the mouth of insect-eating birds. [From Late Latin vibrissae, nostril hairs, from vibrāre, to vibrate. See VIBRATE.]

vi·bron·ic (vī-brōn'ĭk) adj. Of or relating to changes in molecular energy states associated with the vibrational energy of atoms. [VIBR(ATION) + (ELECTR)ONIC.]

vi·bur·num (vī-būr'nəm) n. Any of various shrubs or trees of the genus Viburnum, having opposite leaves, showy terminal clusters of small white or pink flowers, and red or black drupes. [Latin vīburnum, a kind of shrub.]

vic. abbr. 1. Vicar. 2. Vicinity.

vic·ar (vĭk'ər) n. Abbr. vic. 1. a. The priest of a parish in the Church of England who receives a stipend or salary but does not receive the tithes of a parish. b. A cleric in charge of a chapel in the Episcopal Church of the United States. c. A cleric acting in the place of a rector or bishop in the Anglican Communion generally. 2. Roman Catholic Church. A priest who acts for or represents another, often higher-ranking member of the clergy. [Middle English, from Old French vicaire, from Latin vicārius, vicarious, a substitute, from vicis, genitive of vix*, change. See weik-² in Appendix.] —vic'ar·ship' n.

vic·ar·age (vĭk'ər-ĭj) n. 1. The residence of a vicar. 2. The benefice of a vicar. 3. The duties or office of a vicar; a vicariate.

vicar apostolic (vĭk'ər əp'ə-stōl'ĭk) n. pl. vicars apostolic. Abbr. V.A. Roman Catholic Church. 1. A titular bishop who administers a region that is not yet a diocese as a representative of the Holy See. 2. A titular bishop appointed to administer to a vacant see in which the succession of bishops has been interrupted. 3. A bishop or an archbishop formerly delegated by the pope to act in his stead in a particular region.

vic-ar-ate (vĭk'ər-ĭt, -ə-rāt') n. A vicariate.

vicar fo-rane (vĭk'ər fô-rān', fô-) n. pl. vicars forane. Abbr. V.F. Roman Catholic Church. A priest who by a bishop's appointment exercises limited jurisdiction over the clergy in a district of a diocese. [VICAR + Late Latin forāneus, living away, foreign; see FOREIGN.]

vicar general (vĭk'ər jĕn'ər-əl) n. pl. vicars general. Abbr. V.G. 1. Roman Catholic Church. a. A priest acting as deputy to a bishop to assist him in the administration of his diocese. b. The head of a religious order. 2. An ecclesiastical official in the Church of England, usually a layperson, who assists an archbishop or a bishop in administrative and judicial duties.

vi-car-i-al (vī-kâr'ē-əl, -kâr'-, vī-) adj. 1. Of or relating to a vicar. 2. Acting as or having the position of a vicar. 3. Serving in the place of someone or something else.

vi-car-i-ance (vī-kâr'ē-əns, -kâr'-, vī-) n. Biology. The separation or division of a group of organisms by a geographic barrier, such as a mountain or a body of water, resulting in differentiation of the original group into new varieties or species. [From VICARIANT, from Latin vicārius, vicarious. See VICARIOUS.]

—vi-car'i-ant adj. & n.

vi-car-i-ate (vī-kâr'ē-ĭt, -āt', -kâr'-, vī-) n. 1. The office or authority of a vicar. 2. The district under a vicar's jurisdiction. [Medieval Latin vicāriātus, from Latin vicārius, a substitute. See VICAR.]

vi-car-i-ous (vī-kâr'ē-əs, -kâr'-, vī-) adj. 1. Felt or undergone as if one were taking part in the experience or feelings of another: read about mountain climbing and experienced vicarious thrills. 2. Endured or done by one person substituting for another: vicarious punishment. 3. a. Acting or serving in place of someone or something else; substituted. b. Committed or entrusted to another, as powers or authority; delegated. 4. Physiology. Occurring in or performed by a part of the body not normally associated with a certain function. [From Latin vicārius. See VICAR.] —vi-car'i-ous-ly adv. —vi-car'i-ous-ness n.

Vic-ar of Christ (vĭk'ər ũv krĭst) n. Roman Catholic Church. The pope.

vice¹ (vīs) n. 1. a. An evil, degrading, or immoral practice or habit. b. A serious moral failing. c. Wicked or evil conduct or habits; corruption. 2. Sexual immorality, especially prostitution. 3. a. A slight personal failing; a foible: the vice of untidiness. See Synonyms at fault. b. A flaw or an imperfection; a defect. 4. A physical defect or weakness. 5. An undesirable habit, such as crib-biting, in a domestic animal. 6. Vice. a. A character representing generalized or particular vice in English morality plays. b. A jester or buffoon. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin vitium.]

vice² (vīs) n. & v. Variant of wise.

vi·ce³ (vī'sē, -sə) prep. In place of; replacing. [Latin, ablative of vix*, change. See VICE-.]

vice- pref. One who acts in the place of another; deputy: vice-chairman. [Middle English vice-, from Old French, from Late Latin, from Latin vice, ablative of vix*, change. See weik-² in Appendix.]

vice admiral (vīs ād'mər-əl) n. Abbr. V. Adm., VADM 1. A commissioned rank in the U.S. Navy or Coast Guard that is above rear admiral and below admiral. 2. One who holds this rank.

vice-ad-mir-al-ty (vīs-ād'mər-əl-tē) n. pl. vice-ad-mir-al-ties. The office, rank, or command of a vice admiral.

vice chancellor (vīs chän'sə-lər) n. Abbr. V.C. 1. A deputy or an assistant chancellor in a university. 2. A deputy to or a substitute for a head of state or an official bearing the title chancellor. 3. Law. A judge in equity courts ranking below a chancellor. —vice-chan'cel-lor-ship' (vīs-chän'sə-lər-shīp', -chäns'lər-) n.

vice consul (vīs kǒn'səl) n. Abbr. V.C. A consular officer who is subordinate to and a deputy of a consul or consul general. —vice-con'su-lar (vīs-kǒn'sə-lər) adj. —vice-con'su-late (-sə-līt) n. —vice-con'sul-ship' (-səl-shīp') n.

vice-ge-ren-cy (vīs-jīr'ən-sē) n. pl. vice-ge-ren-cies. 1. The position, function, or authority of a vicegerent. 2. A district under a vicegerent's jurisdiction.

vice-ge-rent (vīs-jīr'ənt) n. A person appointed by a ruler or head of state to act as an administrative deputy. [Medieval Latin vicegerēns, vicegerent- : Latin vice ablative of vix*, change; see VICE³ + Latin gerēns, governing; see GERENT.] —vice-ge'ral (-jīr'əl) adj.

vic·e·nar·y (vīs'ə-nēr'ē) adj. 1. Consisting of or relating to 20. 2. Of, relating to, or being a notation system based on 20. [Latin vīcēnārius, from vīcēnī, twenty each, from vīgintī, twenty. See wīkmti in Appendix.]

vi·cen·ni·al (vī-sēn'ē-əl) adj. 1. Happening once every 20 years. 2. Existing or lasting for 20 years. [From Late Latin vīcennium, period of twenty years : Latin vīciēns, twenty times (from vīgintī, twenty); see VICENARY + Latin annus, year; see at- in Appendix.]

Vi·cen·te Ló·pez (və-sēn'tē lō'pěz', vē-sēn'tē lō'pěs) A city of east-central Argentina, an industrial suburb of Buenos Aires. Population, 289,815.

Vi·cen·za (vī-chēn'sə, vē-chēn'dzä) A city of northeast Italy west of Venice. Founded by Ligurians c. first century B.C., it became a free city in A.D. 1164 and passed to Austria in 1797. Vicenza joined the kingdom of Italy in 1866. Population, 113,931.

vice pres-i-dent or vice-pres-i-dent (vīs'prěz'ī-dənt, -dēnt') n. Abbr. VP, V.P. 1. An officer ranking next below a president, usually empowered to assume the president's duties under conditions such as absence, illness, or death. 2. A deputy to a president, especially in a corporation, in charge of a specific department or location: vice president of sales. —vice-pres/i-den-cy (vīs-prēz'ī-dən-sē, -dēn'-) n. —vice-pres/i-den'tial (-dēn'shəl) adj.

vice-re-gal (vīs-rē'gəl) adj. Of or relating to a viceroy. —vice-re/gal-ly adv.

vice regent (vīs rē'jənt) n. One who acts as a regent's deputy. —vice-re/gen-cy (vīs-rē'jən-sē) n.

vice-reine (vīs'rān') n. 1. The wife of a viceroy. 2. A woman who is the governor of a country, province, or colony, ruling as the representative of a sovereign. [French : vice-, vice (from Old French); see VICE³ + reine, queen (from Latin rēgīna, feminine of rēx, rēg-, king); see reg- in Appendix.]

vice-roy (vīs'roi') n. 1. A man who is the governor of a country, province, or colony, ruling as the representative of a sovereign. 2. An orange and black North American butterfly (Limenitis archippus), resembling but somewhat smaller than the monarch. [French : vice-, vice; see VICEREINE + roi, king (from Latin rēx, rēg-); see reg- in Appendix.]

vice-roy-al-ty (vīs'roi'əl-tē, vīs-roi'-) n. pl. vice-roy-al-ties. 1. The office, authority, or term of service of a viceroy. 2. A district or province governed by a viceroy.

vice-roy-ship (vīs'roi-shīp') n. Viceroyalty.

vice squad (vīs skwəd) n. A police division charged with enforcement of laws dealing with various forms of vice, such as gambling and prostitution.

vi-ce ver-sa (vī'sə vûr'sə, vīs') adv. Abbr. v.v. With the order or meaning reversed; conversely. [Latin vice versā : vice ablative of vix*, position + versā, feminine ablative of versus past participle of vertere, to turn.]

WORD HISTORY: Vice versa is perhaps one of a handful of borrowings of foreign phrases that have worked their way so tightly into normal speech that one never thinks about their foreign origins or earlier meanings. Versa might be thought to be related to reverse, and so it is, both versa and -verse in reverse going back to the Latin verb vertere, “to turn.” Versa actually goes back formally to versus, the past participle of vertere, while going back semantically to the sense “to reverse, change to the contrary.” Vice is the ablative form of the noun vix, used in the sense “a reciprocal relation.” The whole phrase then literally means “with the reciprocal relation having been reversed,” or “with reversal of the regular order, conversely.” The phrase is first recorded as an English usage in 1601.

Vi-chu-ga (vī-chō'gə) A city of western Russia on the Volga River northeast of Moscow. It is a textile-processing center. Population, 51,000.

Vi-chy (vīsh'ē, vē'shē) A city of central France south-southeast of Paris. A noted spa with hot mineral springs, it was the capital of unoccupied France (under the regime organized by Henri Pétain) from July 1940 until November 1942 during World War II. Population, 30,527.

vi·chys·soise (vish'ē-swäz', vē'shē-) n. A thick, creamy potato soup flavored with leeks and onions, usually served cold. [French, from feminine of vichysois, of Vichy.]

Vichy water (vish'ē wô'tər) n. 1. A naturally effervescent mineral water from the springs at Vichy. 2. A sparkling mineral water resembling this effervescent beverage.

vic·i·nage (vis'ə-nij) n. 1. a. A limited region around a particular area; a vicinity. b. A number of places situated near each other and considered as a group. 2. The residents of a particular neighborhood. 3. The state of living in a neighborhood; proximity. [Middle English vesinage, from Old French, from vesin, neighboring, from Latin vīcīnus. See VICINITY.]

vic·i·nal (vis'ə-nəl) adj. 1. Of, belonging to, or restricted to a limited area or neighborhood; local. 2. Relating to or being a local road. 3. Mineralogy. Approximating, resembling, or taking the place of a fundamental crystalline form or face. 4. Chemistry. Of or relating to the consecutive positions of substituted elements or radicals on a benzene ring. [Latin vīcīnālis, from vīcīnus, neighboring. See VICINITY.]

vi·cin·i·ty (vī-sin'ī-tē) n. pl. vi·cin·i·ties. Abbr. vic. 1. The state of being near in space or relationship; proximity: two restaurants in close vicinity. 2. A nearby, surrounding, or adjoining region; a neighborhood. 3. An approximate degree or amount: houses priced in the vicinity of $200,000. [Latin vīcīnitās, from vīcīnus, neighboring, from vīcus, neighborhood. See weik-¹ in Appendix.]

vi·cious (vish'əs) adj. 1. Having the nature of vice; evil, immoral, or depraved. 2. Given to vice, immorality, or depravity. 3. Spiteful; malicious: vicious gossip. 4. Disposed to or characterized by violent or destructive behavior. See Synonyms at cruel. 5. Marked by an aggressive disposition; savage. Used chiefly of animals. 6. Faulty, imperfect, or otherwise impaired by defects or a defect: a forced, vicious style of prose. 7. Impure; foul. [Middle English, from Old French vicieus, from Latin vitiōsus, from vitium, vice.] —vi'cious·ly adv. —vi'cious·ness n.

vicious circle (vish'əs sūr'kəl) n. 1. A situation in which the apparent solution of one problem in a chain of circumstances creates a new problem and increases the difficulty of solving the original problem. 2. A condition in which a disorder or disease gives rise to another that subsequently affects the first. 3. Logic. A fallacy in reasoning in which the premise is used to prove the conclusion, and the conclusion used to prove the premise. [Translation of New Latin circulus vitiōsus, circular argument : Medieval Latin circulus, circular argument + Latin vitiōsus, flawed, faulty.]

vi·cis·si·tude (vī-sis'ī-tōōd', -tyōōd') n. 1. a. A change or variation. b. The quality of being changeable; mutability. 2. Often vicissitudes. One of the sudden or unexpected changes or shifts often encountered in one's life, activities, or surroundings. See Synonyms at difficulty. [Latin vicissitūdō, from vicissim, in turn, probably from vicēs, pl. of vix*, change. See weik-² in Appendix.]

vi-cis-si-tu-di-nar-y (vī-sīs'ī-tōōd'n-ēr'ē, -tyōōd'-) also vi-cis-si-tu-di-nous (-tōōd'n-əs, -tyōōd'-) adj. Characterized by, full of, or subject to vicissitudes.

Vick-ers (vīk'ərz), Jon. Born 1926. Canadian tenor widely acclaimed for his performances in operas by Wagner and Verdi.

Vicks-burg (vīks'bûrg') A city of western Mississippi on bluffs above the Mississippi River west of Jackson. During the Civil War it was besieged from 1862 to 1863 and finally captured by troops led by Ulysses S. Grant on July 4, 1863. Population, 20,908.

vic-tim (vīk'tīm) n. 1. One who is harmed or killed by another: a victim of a mugging. 2. A living creature slain and offered as a sacrifice during a religious rite. 3. One who is harmed by or made to suffer from an act, circumstance, agency, or condition: victims of war. 4. A person who suffers injury, loss, or death as a result of a voluntary undertaking: You are a victim of your own scheming. 5. A person who is tricked, swindled, or taken advantage of: the victim of a cruel hoax. [Latin victima.] —vic'tim-hood' (-hōōd') n.

vic-tim-ize (vīk'tə-mīz') v. tr. vic-tim-ized, vic-tim-iz-ing, vic-tim-iz-es.

1. To subject to swindle or fraud. 2. To make a victim of. —vic'tim-i-za'tion (-tə-mī-zā'shən) n. —vic'tim-iz'er n.

vic-tim-less crime (vīk'tīm-līs krīm) n. An illegal act that is felt to have no direct or identifiable victim.

vic-tim-ol-o-gy (vīk'tə-mōl'ə-jē) n. The study of crime victims.
—vic'tim-ol'o-gist n.

vic-tor (vīk'tər) n. One who defeats an adversary; the winner in a fight, battle, contest, or struggle. [Middle English, from Old French victeur, from Latin victor, victōr-, from victus, past participle of vincere, to conquer. See weik-³ in Appendix.]

Vic-tor Em-man-u-el I (vīk'tər ĭ-măn'yōō-əl), 1759-1824. Sardinian king (1802-1821) whose kingdom was restored after the fall of Napoleon (1815). An uprising forced his abdication in 1821.

Vic-tor Em-man-u-el II (vīk'tər ĭ-măn'yōō-əl), 1820-1878. Italian king (1861-1878). He completed the unification of Italy by acquiring Venice (1866) and Rome (1870).

Vic-tor Em-man-u-el III (vīk'tər ĭ-măn'yōō-əl), 1869-1947. Italian king (1900-1946). He appointed Benito Mussolini prime minister in 1922 and did little to stop Italy's decline into a fascist state. He abdicated in 1946, and the monarchy was formally abolished in 1947.

vic-to-ri-a (vīk-tôr'ē-ə, -tôr'-) n. 1. A low, light four-wheeled carriage for two with a folding top and an elevated driver's seat in front. 2. A touring car with a folding top usually covering only the rear seat. [After VICTORIA¹.]

Vic-to-ri-a¹ (vĭk-tôr'ē-ə, -tôr'-), 1819-1901. Queen of Great Britain and Ireland (1837-1901) and empress of India (1876-1901). Her sense of duty and strict moral code had great influence on 19th-century British society.

Vic-to-ri-a² (vĭk-tôr'ē-ə, -tôr'-) 1. The capital of British Columbia, Canada, on southeast Vancouver Island at the eastern end of the Strait of Juan de Fuca.

Founded in 1843 as a Hudson's Bay Company outpost, it became provincial capital in the late 1860's. Population, 64,379. 2. The capital of Hong Kong, on the northwest coast of Hong Kong Island. It has extensive shipping facilities and is the seat of the University of Hong Kong (established 1911). Population, 1,183,621. 3. The capital of Seychelles, on the northeast coast of Mahé Island on the Indian Ocean. Population, 23,000. 4. A city of southeast Texas southeast of San Antonio. It is connected with the Intracoastal Waterway by a barge canal.

Population, 55,076.

Victoria, Lake. Also Victoria Ny-an-za (nī-ăn'zə, nyän'-). A lake of east-central Africa bordered by Uganda, Kenya, and Tanzania. It was first sighted in 1858 by the British explorer John Speke, who was searching for the source of the Nile River.

Victoria Cross (vĭk-tôr'ē-ə krôs) n. Abbr. V.C. A bronze Maltese cross, Britain's highest military award for conspicuous valor. [After VICTORIA¹.]

Victoria Day (vĭk-tôr'ē-ə dā) n. The last Monday before May 25, observed in Canada in commemoration of the birthday of Queen Victoria.

Victoria Falls (vĭk-tôr'ē-ə fôlz) A waterfall, 108.3 m (355 ft) high, of south-central Africa in the Zambezi River between southwest Zambia and northwest Zimbabwe. The falls were discovered by David Livingstone in November 1855.

Victoria Island (vĭk-tôr'ē-ə ī'lənd) An island of north-central Northwest Territories, Canada, in the Arctic Archipelago east of Banks Island. It was discovered in the late 1830's and explored by John Rae in 1851.

Victoria Land (vĭk-tôr'ē-ə lănd) A region of Antarctica bounded by Ross Sea and Wilkes Land. The mountainous area was discovered by Sir James Clark Ross during his 1839-1843 expedition.

Vic-to-ri-an (vĭk-tôr'ē-ən, -tôr'-) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or belonging to the period of the reign of Queen Victoria: a Victorian novel. 2. Relating to or displaying the standards or ideals of morality regarded as characteristic of the time of Queen Victoria: Victorian manners. 3. Being in the highly ornamented, massive style of architecture, decor, and furnishings popular in 19th-century England. — n. A person belonging to or exhibiting characteristics typical of the Victorian period.

Vic-to-ri-an-a (vĭk-tôr'ē-ăn'ə, -ă'nə, -tôr'-) n. Material or a collection of materials of, relating to, or characteristic of the Victorian era.

Victoria Nile (vĭk-tôr'ē-ə nīl) A section of the Nile River, about 418 km (260 mi) long, between Lake Victoria and Lake Albert in central Uganda.

Vic-to-ri-an-ism (vĭk-tôr'ē-ə-nĭz'əm, -tôr'-) n. 1. The state or quality of being Victorian, as in attitude, style, or taste. 2. Something exhibiting Victorian characteristics.

Vic-to-ri-an-ize (vĭk-tôr'ē-ə-nĭz', -tôr'-) v. tr. Vic-to-ri-an-ized, Vic-to-ri-an-iz-ing, Vic-to-ri-an-iz-es. To make Victorian, as in character or style. —Vic-to'ri-an-i-za'tion (-ə-nĭ-zā'shən) n.

Victoria Ny-an-za (vĭk-tôr'ē-ə nĭ-ăn'zə, nyăn'-) See Lake Victoria.

Vic-to-ri-a-ville (vĭk-tôr'ē-ə-vĭl', -tôr'-) A town of southern Quebec, Canada, southeast of Trois Rivières. It is a manufacturing and processing center. Population, 21,838.

vic-to-ri-ous (vĭk-tôr'ē-əs, -tôr'-) adj. 1. Being the winner in a contest or struggle: the victorious army. 2. Characteristic of or expressing a sense of victory or fulfillment: a victorious cheer. —vic-to'ri-ous-ly adv. —vic-to'ri-ous-ness n.

vic-to-ry (vĭk'tə-rē) n. pl. vic-to-ries. Abbr. V 1. Defeat of an enemy or opponent. 2. Success in a struggle against difficulties or an obstacle. 3. The state of having triumphed. [Middle English, from Old French victorie, from Latin victō-ria, from victor, victōr-, victor. See VICTOR.]

SYNONYMS: victory, conquest, triumph. These nouns denote the fact of winning or the state of having won in a war, struggle, or competition. Victory, the most general term, refers especially to the final defeat of an enemy or opponent: “Victory at all costs, victory in spite of all terror, victory however long and hard the road may be; for without victory there is no survival” (Winston S. Churchill). Conquest connotes subduing, subjugating, or achieving mastery or control over someone or something: “Conquest of illiteracy comes first” (John Kenneth Galbraith). Triumph denotes a victory or success that is especially noteworthy because it is decisive, significant, or spectacular: “If [a man] has a talent and learns somehow to use the whole of it, he has gloriously succeeded, and won a satisfaction and a triumph few men ever know” (Thomas Wolfe).

vict-ual (vĭt'ʌl) n. 1. Food fit for human consumption. 2. victuals. Food supplies; provisions. — v. vict-ualed or vict-ualled, vict-ual-ing or vict-ual-ling, vict-uals or vict-uals. — v. tr. To provide with food. — v. intr. 1. To lay in food supplies. 2. To eat. [Alteration (influenced by Late Latin vĭctuālia, provisions), of Middle English vitaille, from Old French, from Late Latin vĭctuālia, provisions, from Latin, neuter pl. of vĭctuālis, of nourishment, from Latin vĭctus, nourishment, from past participle of vĭvere, to live. See g^wei- in Appendix.]

vict-ual-er also vict-ual-ler (vĭt'ʌl-ər) n. 1. A supplier of victuals; a sutler. 2. Chiefly British. An innkeeper. 3. Nautical. A supply ship.

vi·cu·ña also vi·cu·na (vī-kōōn'yə, -kōō'nə, -kyōō'nə, vī-) n. 1. A llamalike ruminant mammal (Vicugna vicugna) of the central Andes, having fine, silky fleece. 2. a. The fleece of this mammal. b. Fabric made from the fleece of this mammal. [Spanish, from Quechua wikuña.]

Vi·dal (vī-dāl'), Gore. Born 1925. American writer noted for his cynical humor and his numerous accounts of society in decline. His works include the novel Myra Breckinridge (1968) and the play The Best Man (1960).

Vi·dal·ia onion (vī-dāl'yə ūn'yən) n. A large, white, sweet, delicately flavored onion, having a thin yellowish outer skin and poor storage qualities. [After Vidalia, a city of east-central Georgia.]

vi·de (vī'dē, vē'dā', wē'-) v. Abbr. v. See. Used to direct a reader's attention. [Latin, sing. imperative of vidēre, to see. See weid- in Appendix.]

vi·del·i·cet (vī-děl'ī-sēt', vī-, wī-dā'li-kēt') adv. Abbr. viz. That is; namely. Used to introduce examples, lists, or items. [Latin vidēlicet, contraction of vidēre licet, it is permitted to see : vidēre, to see; see VIDE + licet, it is permitted, third person sing. present tense of licēre, to be permitted.]

vid·e·o (vīd'ē-ō') adj. 1. Of or relating to television, especially televised images. 2. Of or relating to videotaped productions or videotape equipment and technology. — n. pl. vid·e·os. 1. The visual portion of a televised broadcast. 2. Television: a star of stage, screen, and video. 3. A videocassette or videotape, especially one containing a recording of a movie, music performance, or television program, for playback on a television set. [From Latin videō, first person sing. present tense of vidēre, to see. See VIDE.]

video art (vīd'ē-ō' ärt) n. See artist's video.

video camera (vīd'ē-ō' kām'ər-ə) n. A portable, hand-held camera resembling a movie camera but recording on videocassettes for playback on a television set.

vid·e·o·cas·sette (vīd'ē-ō-kə-sēt', -kă-) n. A cassette containing blank or pre-recorded videotape.

videocassette recorder (vīd'ē-ō-kə-sēt' rī-kô'r'dər) n. A VCR.

vid·e·o·con·fer·ence (vīd'ē-ō-kōn'fər-əns, -frəns) n. A teleconference conducted via closed-circuit television. — vid·e·o·con·fer·enc·ing n.

vid·e·o·disk also vid·e·o·disc (vīd'ē-ō-dīsk') n. A recording on disk of sounds and images, as of a movie, that can be played back on a television receiver. [Originally a German trademark.]

video display terminal (vīd'ē-ō' dī-splā' tûr'mə-nəl) n. A VDT.

video game (vīd'ē-ō' gām) n. An electronic or computerized game played by manipulating images on a display screen.

vid·e·o·gen·ic (vīd'ē-ō-jěn'ĭk) adj. Appearing to advantage on television; telegenic. [VIDEO + (PHOTO)GENIC.]

vid·e·og·ra·phy (vĭd'ē-ōg'rə-fē) n. The art or practice of making one's own video shows or movies using a video camera. — vid'e·og'ra·pher n.

video jockey (vĭd'ē-ō'jōk'ē) n. Abbr. VJ One who announces, plays, and provides commentary on videotaped programs, especially music videos, as on television or at a discotheque.

vid·e·o·phile (vĭd'ē-ə-fĭl') n. One with an avid interest in watching television or videos or in making video recordings.

vid·e·o·phone (vĭd'ē-ō-fōn') n. A telephone equipped for both audio and video transmission.

vid·e·o·tape (vĭd'ē-ō-tāp') n. 1. A relatively wide magnetic tape used to record visual images and associated sound for subsequent playback or broadcasting. 2. A recording made on such a tape. — v. tr. vid·e·o·taped, vid·e·o·tap·ing, vid·e·o·tapes. To make a videotape recording of.

videotape recorder (vĭd'ē-ō-tāp' rĭ-kōr'dər) n. Abbr. VTR A device for making a videotape recording.

video terminal (vĭd'ē-ō' tûr'mə-nəl) n. A VDT.

vid·e·o·tex (vĭd'ē-ō-tĕks') also vid·e·o·text (-tĕkst') n. A system in which computer-stored information is transmitted over television cables or telephone lines and displayed on home television screens or computer terminals, used for various services such as electronic banking, electronic mail, and home shopping. [VIDEO + TEX(T).]

video vérité (vĭd'ē-ō' vā-rē-tā') n. A television filming or videotaping technique in which the subjects are portrayed with frank, unbiased realism, as for a documentary program. [VIDEO + (CINÉMA) VÉRITÉ.]

vi·dette (vĭ-dĕt') n. Variant of vedette.

vid·i·con (vĭd'ĭ-kōn') n. A small television camera tube that forms a charge-density image on a photoconductive surface for subsequent electron-beam scanning. [VID(EO) + ICON(OSCOPE).]

Vi·din (vē'dĭn) A city of extreme northwest Bulgaria on the Danube River near the Yugoslavia border. Founded in the first century A.D. as a Roman fortress, it was under Turkish rule from 1396 to 1807. Population, 64,000.

vie (vī) v. vied, vy·ing (vī'ĭng), vies. — v. intr. To strive for victory or superiority; contend. See Synonyms at rival. — v. tr. 1. Archaic. To offer in competition; match. 2. Obsolete. To wager or bet. [Short for Middle English envien, from Old French envier, from Latin invītāre, to invite, give occasion for. See INVITE.]

Vi·en·na (vē-ĕn'ə) 1. The capital and largest city of Austria, in the northeast part of the country on the Danube River. Originally a Celtic settlement, it became the official residence of the house of Hapsburg in 1278 and a leading cultural center in the 18th century, particularly under the reign (1740-1780) of Maria Theresa. Vienna was designated the capital of Austria in 1918. Population,

1,524,510. 2. A town of northeast Virginia, a residential suburb of Washington, D.C. Population, 15,469.

Vienna sausage (vē-ĕn'ə sô'sij) n. A small sausage resembling a frankfurter, often served as an hors d'oeuvre. [After Vienna, Austria.]

Vienne (vyĕn) A river, about 349 km (217 mi) long, of southwest-central France flowing generally northwest to the Loire River.

Vi-en-nese (vē'ə-nĕz', -nĕs') adj. Relating to or characteristic of Vienna, Austria. — n. pl. Viennese. 1. A native or inhabitant of Vienna. 2. The variety of German spoken in Vienna.

Vien-tiane (vyĕn-tyän') The capital and largest city of Laos, in the north-central part of the country on the Mekong River and the Thailand border. It became the capital of the French protectorate of Laos in 1899 and later the capital of independent Laos. Population, 210,000.

Vier-sen (fîr'zən) A city of west-central Germany west of Düsseldorf. It is a processing and manufacturing center with a textile industry. Population, 78,784.

Viet. abbr. 1. Vietnam. 2. Vietnamese.

Viet-cong also Viet Cong (vē-ĕt'kông', -kông', vē'it-, vyĕt'-) n. pl. Vietcong also Viet Cong. Abbr. VC, V.C. A Vietnamese belonging to or supporting the National Liberation Front of the nation formerly named South Vietnam. — adj. Of or relating to the Vietcong. [Vietnamese, short for Viet Nam Cong Sam, Vietnamese Communist.]

Viet-minh also Viet Minh (vē-ĕt'mĭn', vyĕt'-, vē'it-) n. pl. Vietminh also Viet Minh. A member of the Vietnamese army that defeated the Japanese and the French between 1941 and 1954. — adj. Of or relating to the Vietminh. [Vietnamese, short for Viet Nam Doc Lap Dong Minh Hoi, Vietnam Federation of Independence.]

Viet-nam (vē-ĕt'năm', -năm', vē'it-, vyĕt'-) Abbr. Viet. A country of southeast Asia in eastern Indochina on the South China Sea. Ruled by China from 221 B.C. to A.D. 939 and from 1407 to 1428, it was occupied by the French in the 19th century. After the fall of the French garrison at Dien Bien Phu in 1954, it was partitioned into North Vietnam and South Vietnam. The country was reunited in July 1976 after the end of the Vietnam War. Hanoi is the capital and Ho Chi Minh City the largest city. Population, 52,741,766.

Viet-nam-ese (vē-ĕt'nə-mĕz', -mĕs', vē'it-, vyĕt'-) adj. Of or relating to Vietnam or its people, language, or culture. — n. pl. Vietnamese. Abbr. Viet.

1. A native or inhabitant of Vietnam. 2. The language of the largest ethnic group in Vietnam and the official language of the nation.

Viet-nam-i-za-tion (vē-ĕt'nə-mĭ-zā'shən, vyĕt'-, vē'it-) n. During the Vietnam War, the U.S. program of turning over to the South Vietnamese government responsibility for waging the conflict, in order to implement withdrawal of U.S. military personnel.

Viet-nam-ize (vē-ět'nə-mīz', vyět'-, vē'īt-) v. tr. Viet-nam-ized, Viet-nam-iz-ing, Viet-nam-iz-es. To turn over responsibility for (military operations, for example) to the South Vietnamese: “a policy of Vietnamizing the actual fighting” (C.L. Sulzberger).

Vietnam War (vē-ět'nām' wôr) n. A protracted military conflict (1954-1975) between the Communist forces of North Vietnam supported by China and the Soviet Union and the non-Communist forces of South Vietnam supported by the United States.

view (vyōō) n. 1. An examination or inspection: used binoculars to get a better view. 2. A systematic survey; coverage: a view of Romantic poetry. 3. An individual and personal perception, judgment, or interpretation; an opinion: In his view, aid to the rebels should be suspended. See Synonyms at opinion. 4. Field of vision: The aircraft has disappeared from view. 5. A scene or vista: the view from the tower. 6. A picture of a landscape: a view of Paris, done in oils. 7. A way of showing or seeing something, as from a particular position or angle: a side view of the house. 8. Something kept in sight as an aim or intention: “The pitch of the roof had been calculated with a view to the heavy seasonal rains” (Caroline Alexander). 9. Expectation; chance: The measure has no view of success. — v. tr.

viewed, view-ing, views. 1. To look at; watch: view an exhibit of etchings. 2. a. To examine or inspect: viewed the house they were thinking of buying. b. To survey or study mentally; consider. 3. To think of in a particular way; regard: doesn't view herself as a success; viewed their efforts unfavorably. See Synonyms at see¹. — idioms. in view of. Taking into account; in consideration of. on view. Placed so as to be seen; exhibited. [Middle English veve, from Anglo-Norman, from feminine past participle of veoir, to see, from Latin vidēre. See weid- in Appendix.] — view/a-ble adj.

view-da-ta (vyōō'dā'tə, -dāt'ə, dā'tə) n. An interactive videotex system in which information can be retrieved or transmitted over television cables or telephone lines.

view-er (vyōō'ər) n. 1. One that views, especially an onlooker or spectator. 2. Any of various optical devices used to facilitate the viewing of photographic transparencies by illuminating or magnifying them. 3. A person who watches television: viewers of prime-time shows.

view-er-ship (vyōō'ər-shīp') n. A television audience, especially of a particular kind or extent: a largely male viewership.

view-find-er (vyōō'fīn'dər) n. A device on a camera that indicates, either optically or electronically, what will appear in the field of view of the lens.

view hal-loo (vyōō' hə-lōō') n. A strident call given during a fox hunt to indicate that the fox has been seen breaking cover.

view-ing (vyōō'īng) n. 1. The act of seeing, watching, or examining carefully. 2. The act or an instance of watching a movie or television. 3. Pennsylvania. See wake¹ (n., sense 2). — adj. Engaged in watching a movie or television: a poll of the viewing audience.

view-less (vyōō'lis) adj. 1. Providing no view. 2. Not having or expressing opinions or views. —view/less-ly adv.

view-point (vyōō'point') n. A position from which something is observed or considered; a point of view.

view-y (vyōō'ē) adj. view-i-er, view-i-est. 1. Exhibiting extravagant or visionary opinions. 2. Conspicuous or striking; showy.

Vi-gée-Le-brun (vē-zhā'lā-brœn'), (Marie Louise) Élisabeth. 1755-1842. French painter noted for her portraits, especially those of Marie Antoinette and the royal family.

vi-ges-i-mal (vī-jēs'ə-məl) adj. 1. Twentieth. 2. Proceeding or occurring in intervals of 20. 3. Based on or relating to 20. [From Latin vīgēsīmus, variant of vīcēsīmus, twentieth, from vīgintī, twenty. See wikmtī in Appendix.]

Vi-ge-va-no (vē-jěv'ə-nō', -jě'vā-) A city of northwest Italy southwest of Milan. It is a manufacturing center. Population, 65,228.

vig-il (vij'əl) n. 1. a. A watch kept during normal sleeping hours. b. The act or a period of observing; surveillance. 2. The eve of a religious festival as observed by devotional watching. 3. Often vigils. Ritual devotions observed on the eve of a holy day. [Middle English vigile, a devotional watching, from Old French, from Latin vigilia, wakefulness, watch, from vigil, awake. See weg- in Appendix.]

vig-i-lance (vij'ə-ləns) n. Alert watchfulness.

vigilance committee (vij'ə-ləns kə-mīt'ē) n. A volunteer group of citizens that without authority assumes powers such as pursuing and punishing those suspected of being criminals or offenders.

vig-i-lant (vij'ə-lənt) adj. On the alert; watchful. See Synonyms at aware. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin vigilāns, vigilant- present participle of vigilāre, to be watchful. See VIGILANTE.] —vig/i-lant-ly adv.

vig-i-lan-te (vij'ə-lān'tē) n. 1. One who takes or advocates the taking of law enforcement into one's own hands. 2. A member of a vigilance committee. [Spanish, watchman, vigilante, from Latin vigilāns, vigilant- present participle of vigilāre, to be watchful, from vigil, watchful. See weg- in Appendix.] —vig/i-lan'tism (-lān'tiz-əm), vig/i-lan'te-ism (-tē-iz'əm) n.

vigil light (vij'əl lit) n. 1. A small candle kept burning in the chancel of Christian churches to symbolize the presence of the Holy Sacrament; an altar light. 2. A candle lighted by a worshiper for a special devotional purpose. 3. A light or candle kept burning at a shrine or before an icon.

vi-gnette (vīn-yět') n. 1. A decorative design placed at the beginning or end of a book or chapter of a book or along the border of a page. 2. An unbordered picture, often a portrait, that shades off into the surrounding color at the edges.

3. a. A short, usually descriptive literary sketch. b. A short scene or incident, as from a movie. — v. tr. vi-gnet-ted, vi-gnet-ting, vi-gnettes. 1. To soften the edges of (a picture) in vignette style. 2. To describe in a brief way. [French, from Old French, diminutive of vigne, vine (from the use of vine tendrils in decorative borders). See VINE.]

vi-gnet-ter (vĭn-yĕt'ər) n. 1. A device used to print photographs and illustrations with borders that fade gradually into the background. 2. Also vi-gnet-tist (-ĭst). One who makes or specializes in the making of vignettes.

Vi-gno-la (vĕn-yō'lə, vĕ-nyô'lä), Giacomo da. Originally Giacomo da Barozzi or Barozio. 1507-1573. Italian architect best known for his influential treatise Rule of the Five Orders of Architecture (1562).

Vi-gny (vĕn-yĕ'), Comte Alfred Victor de. 1797-1863. French writer. A leader of the romantic school, he wrote several volumes of poetry, including Les Destinées (1864).

Vi-go (vĕ'gō, bĕ'gō) A city of northwest Spain on the Bay of Vigo, an inlet of the Atlantic Ocean. Vigo is a naval base and major shipping and fishing center. Population, 277,460.

vig-or (vĭg'ər) n. 1. Physical or mental strength, energy, or force. 2. The capacity for natural growth and survival, as of plants or animals. 3. Strong feeling; enthusiasm or intensity. 4. Legal effectiveness or validity. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin vigor, vigōr-, from vigēre, to be lively. See weg- in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: vigor, dash, punch, verve, vim, vitality. The central meaning shared by these nouns is “a quality of spirited force or energy”: intellectual vigor; played the piano with dash; an editorial with real punch; painted with verve; arguing with his usual vim; a decreased mental vitality.

vig-o-rish (vĭg'ər-ĭsh) n. Slang. 1. a. A charge taken on bets, as by a bookie or gambling establishment. b. The rate or amount of such a charge. 2. Interest, especially excessive interest, paid to a moneylender. [Yiddish slang, from Russian vyigrysh, winnings : vy-, out; see ud- in Appendix + -igrysh as in proigrysh, a loss (from igrat', to play).]

vig-o-ro-so (vĭg'ə-rō'sō, -zō, vĕ'gə-) adv. & adj. Music. With emphasis and spirit. Used chiefly as a direction. [Italian, from Medieval Latin vigōrosus, from Latin vigor, vigōr-, vigor. See VIGOR.]

vig-or-ous (vĭg'ər-əs) adj. 1. Strong, energetic, and active in mind or body; robust. See Synonyms at healthy. 2. Marked by or done with force and energy. See Synonyms at active. —vig'or-ous-ly adv. —vig'or-ous-ness n.

vig-our (vĭg'ər) n. Chiefly British. Variant of vigor.

Vi·ja·ya·wa·da (vĭj'ə-yə-wă'də, vē'jə-) Formerly Bez-wa-da (běz-wă'də). A city of southeast India east-southeast of Hyderabad. It is a trade center and transportation hub. Population, 454,577.

Vi·king (vī'kɪŋ) n. 1. One of a seafaring Scandinavian people who plundered the coasts of northern and western Europe from the eighth through the tenth century. 2. A Scandinavian. [Old Norse vīkingr, perhaps from vīk, creek, inlet.]

vil. abbr. Village.

Vi·la (vē'lə) The capital of Vanuatu, on Efate Island in the southwest Pacific Ocean. It was a Japanese base during World War II. Population, 13,067.

Vila No·va de Gai·a (vē'lə nō'və də gī'ə) A city of northwest Portugal, a manufacturing suburb of Oporto. Population, 62,469.

vi·la·yet (vē'lä-yět') n. An administrative division of Turkey. [Turkish vilāyet, from Arabic wilāyah, province, from waliya, to administer.]

vile (vīl) adj. vil·er, vil·est. 1. Loathsome; disgusting: vile language.

2. Unpleasant or objectionable: vile weather. See Synonyms at offensive.

3. a. Contemptibly low in worth or account; second-rate. b. Of mean or low condition. 4. Miserably poor and degrading; wretched: a vile existence.

5. Morally depraved; ignoble or wicked: a vile conspiracy. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin vīlis.] —vile'ly adv. —vile'ness n.

vil·i·fy (vīl'ə-fī') v. tr. vil·i·fied (-fīd'), vil·i·fy·ing, vil·i·fies (-fīz'). To make vicious and defamatory statements about. See Synonyms at malign. [Middle English vilifien, from Late Latin vīlificāre, to hold cheap : Latin vīlis, worthless + Latin -ficāre, -fy.] —vil'i·fi·ca'tion (-fī-kā'shən) n. —vil'i·fi'er n.

vil·i·pend (vīl'ə-pënd') v. tr. vil·i·pend·ed, vil·i·pend·ing, vil·i·pends. 1. To view or treat with contempt; despise. 2. To speak ill of; disparage. [Middle English vilipenden, from Old French vilipender, from Latin vīlipendere : vīlis, worthless + pendere, to consider, weigh; see (s)pen- in Appendix.]

vil·la (vīl'ə) n. 1. The often large, luxurious country house of a well-to-do person. 2. A country estate with a substantial house. 3. Chiefly British. A house in a middle-class suburb. [Italian, from Latin vīlla. See weik-¹ in Appendix.]

Vil·la (vē'ə, bē'yä), Francisco. Known as "Pancho." 1877?-1923. Mexican revolutionary leader who ran unsuccessfully for the presidency after the Mexican Revolution (1910) and later attempted to oust (1914-1915) President Venustiano Carranza.

Vil·lach (fīl'äk', -äkH') A city of southern Austria on the Drava River southwest of Vienna. Originally a Roman settlement, it is an industrial and transportation center with thermal mineral springs. Population, 52,692.

vil·lage (vī'lĭj) n. Abbr. v., V., vil. 1. A small group of dwellings in a rural area, usually ranking in size between a hamlet and a town. 2. In some U.S. states, an incorporated community smaller in population than a town. 3. The inhabitants of a village; villagers. 4. A group of bird or animal habitations suggesting a village. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a village square; the village green. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin villāticum, farmstead, from neuter of villāticus, of a villa or farmstead, from Latin vīlla, country house, farm. See weik-1 in Appendix.]

vil·lag·er (vīl'ə-jər) n. An inhabitant of a village.

Vil·la·her·mo·sa (vē'ə-ēr-mō'sə, bē'yä-) A city of southeast Mexico east of the Isthmus of Tehuantepec. It was founded in the 16th century near the site of an Olmec settlement. Population, 158,216.

vil·lain (vīl'ən) n. 1. A wicked or evil person; a scoundrel. 2. A dramatic or fictional character who is typically at odds with the hero. 3. (also vīl'ān', vī-lān') Variant of villein. 4. Something said to be the cause of particular trouble or an evil: poverty, the villain in the increase of crime. 5. Obsolete. A peasant regarded as vile and brutish. [Middle English vilein, feudal serf, person of coarse feelings, from Old French, from Vulgar Latin villānus*, feudal serf, from Latin vīlla, country house. See weik-1 in Appendix.]

vil·lain·age (vīl'ə-nij) n. Variant of villeinage.

vil·lain·ess (vīl'ə-nīs) n. A woman who is a villain.

vil·lain·ous (vīl'ə-nəs) adj. 1. a. Appropriate to a villain, as in wickedness or depravity: a villainous plot. b. Being or manifesting the nature of a villain: a villainous band of thieves. 2. Highly undesirable or offensive; obnoxious.

—vil'lain-ous-ly adv. —vil'lain-ous-ness n.

vil·lain·y (vīl'ə-nē) n. pl. vil·lain·ies. 1. Baseness of mind or character.

2. Viciousness of conduct or action. 3. A treacherous or vicious act.

Vil·la·Lo·bos (vē'lə-lō'bōs, vē'lä-lō'bōös), Heitor. 1887-1959. Brazilian composer whose works, including symphonies, operas, and songs, were influenced by Brazilian folk traditions.

vil·la·nelle (vīl'ə-nēl') n. A 19-line poem of fixed form consisting of five tercets and a final quatrain on two rhymes, with the first and third lines of the first tercet repeated alternately as a refrain closing the succeeding stanzas and joined as the final couplet of the quatrain. [French, from Italian villanella, from feminine of villanello, rustic, from villano, peasant, from Vulgar Latin villānus*, from Latin vīlla, country house. See weik-1 in Appendix.]

Vil·la Park (vīl'ə pärk) A village of northeast Illinois, a residential suburb of Chicago. Population, 22,253.

Vil·lard (vī-lär', -lär'd'), Henry. 1835-1900. German-born American journalist and railroad magnate. He was president of the Northern Pacific Railroad (1881-1884) and formed (1890) the company that later became General Electric. His son Oswald Garrison Villard (1872-1949), a journalist and editor, was president of the New York Evening Post (1900-1918) and owner of The Nation (1918-1935).

Vil·lars (vī-lār'), Duc Claude Louis Hector de. 1653-1734. French diplomat and soldier who served under Louis XIV. He is famous for his victories during the War of the Spanish Succession (1701-1714).

vil·lat·ic (vī-lăt'ik) adj. Rustic; rural. [Latin villāticus, of a farmstead. See VIL-LAGE.]

Vil·la·vi·cen·ci·o (vē'ə-vī-sĕn'sē-ō', bē'yā-vē-sĕn'syô) A city of central Colombia southeast of Bogotá. It is a trade and processing center in an agricultural region. Population, 159,808.

vil·lein also vil·lain (vīl'ən, -ān', vī-lān') n. One of a class of feudal serfs who held the legal status of freemen in their dealings with all people except their lord. [Middle English vilein. See VILLAIN.]

vil·lein·age also vil·lain·age (vīl'ə-nij) n. 1. The legal status or condition of a villein. 2. The legal tenure by which a villein held land.

Ville·juif (vēl-zhwēf') A city of north-central France, a residential suburb of Paris. Population, 52,448.

Vil·lel·la (və-lĕl'ə), Edward. Born 1936. American ballet dancer. He joined the New York City Ballet in 1957 and won acclaim for his roles in Prodigal Son (1965) and Rubies (1967).

Ville·ur·banne (vē'lər-bān', vē-ür-bān') A city of southeast France, an industrial suburb of Lyons. Population, 115,960.

vil·li (vīl'i) n. Biology & Botany. Plural of villus.

Vil·liers (vīl'ərz, -yərz), George. See Buckingham.

vil·li·form (vīl'ə-fōrm') adj. Having the form of villi.

Vil·ling·en·Schwen·ning·en (fīl'ing-ən-shvēn'ing-ən) A city of southwest Germany south-southwest of Stuttgart. Founded in 999, it is a manufacturing center. Population, 76,600.

Vil·lon (vē-yōn'), François. 1431-1463?. French poet. His satirical lyrics are contained in Le Petit Testament (c. 1456) and Le Testament (c. 1461).

vil·lose (vīl'ōs') adj. Biology & Botany. Variant of villous.

vil·los·i·ty (vī-lōs'ī-tē) n. pl. vil·los·i·ties. 1. The condition of being villous. 2. A villous formation, surface, or coating. 3. A villus.

vil·lous (vīl'əs) also vil·lose (-ōs') adj. 1. Biology. Of, relating to, resembling, or covered with villi. 2. Botany. Covered with soft, shaggy unmatted hairs. [From Latin villōsus, hairy, from villus, shaggy hair.] —vil'lous·ly adv.

vil·lus (vīl'əs) n. pl. vil·li (vīl'i). 1. Biology. A minute projection arising from a mucous membrane, especially: a. One of the numerous vascular projections of the small intestine. b. One of the fingerlike projections of the chorion that contribute to the formation of the placenta in mammals. 2. Botany. A fine, hairlike epidermal outgrowth. [Latin, shaggy hair.]

Vil·ni·us (vīl'nē-əs) or Vil·na (-nə) The capital of Lithuania, in the southeast part east-southeast of Kaunas. Founded in the 10th century, it was frequently devastated by plagues, fires, and invasions from the 15th to the 18th century.

Vilnius passed to Russia in 1795. Population, 544,000.

Vil-yu-i (vĭl-yōō'ē) A river of eastern Russia flowing about 2,446 km (1,520 mi) eastward to the Lena River.

vim (vĭm) n. Ebullient vitality and energy. See Synonyms at vigor. [Latin, accusative of vīs. See weiə- in Appendix.]

Vim-i-nal (vĭm'ə-nəl) One of the seven hills of ancient Rome. The baths of Diocletian were built at the foot of the hill. —Vim'i-nal adj.

VIN abbr. Vehicle identification number.

vin- pref. Variant of vini-.

vi-na also vee-na (vē'nə) n. Music. A stringed instrument of India that has a long, fretted fingerboard with resonating gourds at each end. [Hindi vīṇā, from Sanskrit.]

vi-na-ceous (vī-nā'shəs, vī-) adj. Having the color of red wine. [From Latin vīnāceus, refuse from wine pressing, from vīnum, wine.]

Vi-ña del Mar (vēn'yə dəl mār', bē'nyā thĕl) A city of central Chile, a resort and residential suburb of Valparaiso on the Pacific Ocean. Population, 244,899.

vin-ai-grette (vĭn'ī-grĕt') n. 1. A small decorative bottle or container with a perforated top, used for holding an aromatic preparation such as smelling salts. 2. A cold sauce or dressing made of vinegar or lemon juice and oil flavored with finely chopped onions, herbs, and other seasonings. [French, from Old French, diminutive of vinaigre, vinegar. See VINEGAR.]

vi-nasse (vī-nās', vī-) n. The residue left in a still after the process of distillation. [French, from Provençal vinassa, from Latin vīnācea, from feminine of vīnāceus. See VINACEOUS.]

vin-blas-tine (vĭn-blās'tĕn') n. An alkaloid, C₄₆H₅₈N₄O₉, obtained from the Madagascar periwinkle and used as an antineoplastic drug. [New Latin Vinca, periwinkle genus (short for Latin pervinca, periwinkle); see PERIWINKLE² + English leukoblast, a developing leukocyte (LEUKO- + -BLAST) + -INE².]

Vin-cennes 1. (vāN-sĕn') A city of north-central France east of Paris. Its 14th-century castle was once a royal residence and later a state prison. Population, 42,870. 2. (vĭn-sĕnz') A city of southwest Indiana on the Wabash River south of Terre Haute. The oldest city in the state, it was founded as a mission and fur-trading post by the French in the early 18th century. Population, 19,859.

Vin-cent de Paul (vĭn'sənt də pōl), Saint. 1581-1660. French ecclesiastic who founded the Congregation of the Mission (1625) and the Daughters of Charity (1633).

Vin-cent's angina (vĭn'sənts ān-jī'nə) n. See trench mouth. [After Jean Hyacinthe Vincent (1862-1950), French physician.]

Vincent's infection (vĭn'sənts ĭn-fĕk'shən) n. See trench mouth. [After Jean Hyacinthe Vincent (1862-1950), French physician.]

vin·ci·ble (vĭn'sə-bəl) adj. Capable of being overcome or defeated: a vincible army. [Latin vincibilis, from vincere, to conquer. See weik-³ in Appendix.]

—vin'ci·bil'i·ty n. —vin'ci·bly adv.

vin·cris·tine (vĭn-krĭs'tēn') n. An alkaloid, C₄₆H₅₆N₄O₁₀, obtained from the Madagascar periwinkle, used as an antineoplastic drug especially in the treatment of acute leukemia. [New Latin Vinca, periwinkle genus; see VINBLASTINE + Latin crista, crest; see CREST + -INE².]

vin·cu·lum (vĭng'kyə-ləm) n. pl. vin·cu·lums or vin·cu·la (-lə).

1. Mathematics. A bar drawn over two or more algebraic terms to indicate that they are to be treated as a single term. 2. Anatomy. A ligament that limits the movement of an organ or a part. 3. A bond or tie. [Latin, bond, tie, from vincĭre, to tie.]

Vin·dhya Range (vĭn'dyə rānj) A chain of hills in central India extending east-northeast for about 965 km (600 mi) and rising to approximately 915 m (3,000 ft).

vin·di·ca·ble (vĭn'dĭ-kə-bəl) adj. Possible to vindicate: a vindicable claim; vindicable objections.

vin·di·cate (vĭn'dĭ-kāt') v. tr. vin·di·cat·ed, vin·di·cat·ing, vin·di·cates.

1. To clear of accusation, blame, suspicion, or doubt with supporting arguments or proof: “Our society permits people to sue for libel so that they may vindicate their reputations” (Irving R. Kaufman). 2. To provide justification or support for: vindicate one's claim. 3. To justify or prove the worth of, especially in light of later developments. 4. To defend, maintain, or insist on the recognition of (one's rights, for example). 5. To exact revenge for; avenge. [Latin vincĭcāre, vincĭcāt-, from vindex, vincĭc-, surety, avenger. See deik- in Appendix.] —vin'di·ca'tor n.

vin·di·ca·tion (vĭn'dĭ-kā'shən) n. 1. The act of vindicating or condition of being vindicated. 2. The defense, such as evidence or argument, that serves to justify a claim or deed.

vin·di·ca·to·ry (vĭn'dĭ-kə-tōr'ē, -tōr'ē) adj. 1. Affording vindication; justifying. 2. Exacting retribution; punitive.

vin·dic·tive (vĭn-dĭk'tĭv) adj. 1. Disposed to seek revenge; revengeful.

2. Marked by or resulting from a desire to hurt; spiteful. [From Latin vindicta, vengeance, from vindex, vincĭc-, surety, avenger. See VINDICATE.] —vin·dic'tive·ly adv. —vin·dic'tive·ness n.

SYNONYMS: vindictive, vengeful, revengeful. These adjectives mean desiring or proceeding from a desire for revenge. Vindictive suggests gratuitous or unmotivated rancor and a disposition to retaliate for wrongs, real or imagined: “He seemed to take a vindictive pleasure in punishing the least shortcomings” (Mark Twain). “Like many men whose self-love is wounded... he felt vindictive” (George Meredith). Vengeful and revengeful imply the impulse to inflict or the infliction of suffering or punishment as retribution for evil or an injury: “the vengeful massacre of Toulon” (Joseph Conrad). “I had a keen, revengeful sense of the insult” (Nathaniel Hawthorne).

vine (vīn) n. 1. a. A weak-stemmed plant that derives its support from climbing, twining, or creeping along a surface. b. The stem of such a plant. 2. a. A grapevine. b. Grapevines considered as a group: products of the vine. — v. intr. vined, vin-ing, vines. To form or develop like a vine. [Middle English, from Old French vigne, from Latin vīnea, from feminine of vīneus, of wine, from vīnum, wine.]

vine-dress-er (vīn/drēs'ər) n. One that cultivates and prunes grapevines.

vin-e-gar (vīn'ī-gər) n. 1. An impure dilute solution of acetic acid obtained by fermentation beyond the alcohol stage and used as a condiment and preservative. 2. Sourness of speech or mood; ill temper. 3. Liveliness and enthusiasm; vim. [Middle English vinegre, from Old French vinaigre : vin, wine (from Latin vīnum) + aigre, sour (from Vulgar Latin acrus*, from Latin ācer); see ak- in Appendix.]

vinegar eel (vīn'ī-gər ēl) n. A minute nematode worm (Anguillula aceti) that feeds on the organisms causing fermentation in vinegar. Also called vinegar worm vinegar fly (vīn'ī-gər flī) n. See fruit fly (n., sense 1).

vin-e-gar-ish (vīn'ī-gər-īsh, -grīsh) adj. Variant of vinegary.

vin-e-gar-roon (vīn'ī-gə-rōon') also vin-e-ga-rone (-rōn') n. A large whip scorpion (Mastigoproctus giganteus) of the southern United States and Mexico that emits a strong odor of vinegar when disturbed. [American Spanish vinagrón, from Spanish vinagre, vinegar, from Old Spanish, from Old French vinaigre. See VINEGAR.]

vinegar worm (vīn'ī-gər wûrm) n. See vinegar eel.

vin-e-gar-y (vīn'ī-gə-rē, -grē) also vin-e-gar-ish (-gər-īsh, -grīsh) adj.

1. Having the taste, smell, or nature of vinegar. 2. Unpleasant and irascible.

Vine-land (vīn'lənd) A city of southern New Jersey south-southwest of Camden. It is a trade, manufacturing, and processing center. Population, 54,780.

vin-er-y (vī'nə-rē) n. pl. vin-er-ies. An area or a greenhouse for growing vines.

vine-yard (vīn'yərd) n. 1. Ground planted with cultivated grapevines. 2. A sphere of spiritual, mental, or physical endeavor.

vine-yard-ist (vīn'yər-dīst) n. One who owns or manages a vineyard.

vingt-et-un (vān'tā-oen') n. Games. See blackjack (n., sense 3). [French, twenty-one : vingt, twenty + et, and + un, one.]

vini- or vino- or vin- pref. Wine: vinic. [From Latin vīni-, from vīnum.]

vi-nic (vī'nīk) adj. Of, contained in, or derived from wine.

vin-i-cul-ture (vīn'ī-kūl'chər, vī'nī-) n. Cultivation of grapes; viticulture.

—vin'i-cul'tur-al adj. —vin'i-cul'tur-ist n.

vin·i·fy (vĭn'ə-fī') v. tr. vin·i·fied (-fīd'), vin·i·fy·ing, vin·i·fies (-fīz'). To convert (the juice of grapes, for example) into wine by the process of fermentation. —vin'·i·fi·ca'tion (-fī-kā'shən) n.

Vin·land (vĭn'lənd) An unidentified coastal region of northeast North America visited by Norse voyagers as early as c. 1000. The region, variously located from Labrador to New Jersey, was named for the grapes growing plentifully in the area.

Vin·ni·tsa (vĭn'ī-tsə, vyē'nĭ-) A city of western Ukraine southwest of Kiev. Founded in the 14th century, it passed to Russia in 1793 and is now a processing center and railroad junction. Population, 367,000.

vi·no (vē'nō) n. pl. vi·nos. Wine. [Italian, and Spanish both from Latin vīnum.]

vino- pref. Variant of vini-.

Vi·no·gra·doff (vĭn'ə-grād'ōf', vē'nə-grā'dəf), Sir Paul Gavrilovich. 1854-1925. Russian-born British jurist and historian. His works include Growth of the Manor (1905) and Historical Jurisprudence (1920-1922).

vi·nom·e·ter (vĭ-nōm'ī-tər, vī-) n. A hydrometer used to determine the percentage of alcohol in a wine.

vin or·di·naire (vänn' ôr-dē-nâr') n. pl. vins or·di·naires (vännz' ôr-dē-nâr'). An inexpensive red table wine. [French : vin, wine + ordinaire, ordinary.]

vi·nos·i·ty (vī-nōs'ī-tē) n. pl. vi·nos·i·ties. The distinctive body, color, and taste of wine. [Late Latin vīnositās, from Latin vīnōsus, vinous. See VINOUS.]

vi·nous (vī'nəs) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or made with wine. 2. Affected or caused by the consumption of wine. 3. Having the color of wine. [Latin vīnōsus, from vīnum, wine.] —vi'nous·ly adv.

Vin·son (vĭn'sən), Carl. 1883-1981. American legislator. He was elected as a U.S. representative from Georgia in 1914, a post he held for a record 60 years.

Vin·son (vĭn'sən), Frederick Moore. 1890-1953. American jurist who served as the chief justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1946-1953).

Vinson Mas·sif (vĭn'sən mə-sēf') A peak, 5,142.3 m (16,860 ft) high, in the Ellsworth Mountains of western Antarctica. It is the highest elevation in the range.

vin·tage (vĭn'tĭj) n. 1. The yield of wine or grapes from a vineyard or district during one season. 2. Wine, usually of high quality, identified as to year and vineyard or district of origin. 3. The year or place in which a wine is bottled. 4. a. The harvesting of a grape crop. b. The initial stages of winemaking. 5. Informal. a. A group or collection of people or things sharing certain characteristics. b. A year or period of origin: a car of 1942 vintage. c. Length of existence; age. — adj. 1. Of or relating to a vintage. 2. Characterized by excellence, maturity, and enduring appeal; classic. 3. Old or outmoded. 4. a. Of the best: played songs that were vintage Cole Porter. b. Of the most distinctive: "It was vintage Nixon: the fear of confrontation; the indirect approach; the acute insight"

(Henry A. Kissinger). [Middle English, from Anglo-Norman, alteration (influenced by viniter, vintner), of Old French vendange, from Latin vīndēmia : vīnum, grapes + dēmere, to take off (dē, de- + emere, to obtain); see em- in Appendix.]

vin·tag·er (vĭn'tə-jər) n. A producer or harvester of wine grapes.

vintage year (vĭn'tij yĭr) n. 1. The year in which a vintage wine is produced. 2. A year of outstanding achievement or success.

vint·ner (vĭnt'nər) n. 1. A wine merchant. 2. One who makes wine. [Middle English vineter, from Old French vinetier, from Medieval Latin vīnētārius, from Latin vīnētum, vineyard, from vīnum, wine.]

vin·y (vĭ'nē) adj. vin·i·er, vin·i·est. 1. Of, relating to, or having the nature of vines. 2. Overgrown with or abounding in vines.

vi·nyl (vĭ'nəl) n. 1. The univalent chemical radical CH₂CH, derived from ethylene. 2. Any of various compounds containing the vinyl radical, typically highly reactive, easily polymerized, and used as basic materials for plastics. 3. Any of various typically tough, flexible, shiny plastics, often used for coverings and clothing. [VIN(I)- + -YL.] —vi·nyl'ic (-nĭl'ik) adj.

vinyl chloride (vĭ'nəl klôr'id') n. A flammable gas, CH₂:CHCl, used as a monomer for polyvinyl chloride.

vi·ol (vĭ'əl) n. Music. 1. Any of a family of stringed instruments, chiefly of the 16th and 17th centuries, having a fretted fingerboard, usually six strings, and a flat back and played with a curved bow. 2. See viola da gamba (n., sense 1). [Alteration of Middle English viel, from Old French viola, vielle, from Old Provençal viola. See VIOLA¹.]

vi·o·la¹ (vĕ-ō'lə) n. Music. 1. A stringed instrument of the violin family, slightly larger than a violin, tuned a fifth lower, and having a deeper, more sonorous tone. 2. An organ stop usually of eight-foot or four-foot pitch yielding stringlike tones. [Italian, from Old Provençal, probably of imitative origin.] —vi·o·list n.

vi·o·la² (vĭ-ō'lə, vĕ-, vĭ'ə-lə) n. A plant of the genus Viola, which includes the violets and pansies, especially a variety having flowers resembling violets in size and shape and pansies in coloration. [Middle English, from Latin.]

vi·o·la·ble (vĭ'ə-lə-bəl) adj. That can be violated: a violable rule; a violable contract. —vi·o·la·bil'i·ty, vi·o·la·ble·ness n. —vi·o·la·bly adv.

vi·o·la da brac·cio (vĕ-ō'lə də brä'chō) n. pl. viola da braccios. Music. A stringed instrument of the viol family with approximately the range of the viola. [Italian : viola, viol + da, of, for + braccio, arm.]

viola da gam·ba (vĕ-ō'lə də gäm'bə, gäm'-) n. Music. 1. A stringed instrument, the bass of the viol family, with approximately the range of the cello. Also called bass viol, gamba, viol. 2. An organ stop of eight-foot pitch yielding tones similar to those of the viola da gamba. [Italian : viola, viol + da, of, for + gamba, leg.]

viola d'a-mo-re (vē-ō'lə də-môr'ā, -môr'ā, -môr'ē, -môr'ē) n. Music. A stringed instrument, the tenor of the viol family, having six or seven stopped strings and an equal number of sympathetic strings that produce a characteristic silvery tone. [Italian : viola, viol + da, of + amore, love.]

vi-o-late (vī'ə-lāt') v. tr. vi-o-lat-ed, vi-o-lat-ing, vi-o-lates. 1. To break or disregard (a law or promise, for example). 2. To assault (a person) sexually. 3. To do harm to (property or qualities considered sacred); desecrate or defile. 4. To disturb rudely or improperly; interrupt: violated our privacy. [Middle English violaten, from Latin violāre, violāt-, from vīs, vi-, force. See weiə- in Appendix.] —vi'o-la'tive adj. —vi'o-la'tor n.

vi-o-la-tion (vī'ə-lā'shən) n. The act or an instance of violating or the condition of being violated. See Synonyms at breach.

vi-o-lence (vī'ə-ləns) n. 1. Physical force exerted for the purpose of violating, damaging, or abusing: crimes of violence. 2. The act or an instance of violent action or behavior. 3. Intensity or severity, as in natural phenomena; untamed force: the violence of a hurricane. 4. Abusive or unjust exercise of power. 5. Abuse or injury to meaning, content, or intent: do violence to a text. 6. Vehemence of feeling or expression; fervor.

vi-o-lent (vī'ə-lənt) adj. 1. Marked by, acting with, or resulting from great force: a violent attack. 2. Having or showing great emotional force: violent dislike. 3. Marked by intensity; extreme: violent pain; a violent squall. See Synonyms at intense. 4. Caused by unexpected force or injury rather than by natural causes: a violent death. 5. Tending to distort or injure meaning, phrasing, or intent. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin violentus, from vīs, vi-, force. See weiə- in Appendix.] —vi'o-lent-ly adv.

violent storm (vī'ə-lənt stôrm) n. Meteorology. See storm (n., sense 2).

vi-o-let (vī'ə-līt) n. 1. a. Any of various low-growing herbs of the genus Viola, having short-spurred, irregular flowers that are characteristically purplish-blue but sometimes yellow or white. b. Any of several similar plants, such as the African violet. 2. Color. The hue of the short-wave end of the visible spectrum, evoked in the human observer by radiant energy with wavelengths of approximately 380 to 420 nanometers; any of a group of colors, reddish-blue in hue, that may vary in lightness and saturation. [Middle English, from Old French violete, diminutive of viole, from Latin viola.]

vi-o-lin (vī'ə-līn') n. Abbr. v. Music. A stringed instrument played with a bow, having four strings tuned at intervals of a fifth, an unfretted fingerboard, and a shallower body than the viol and capable of great flexibility in range, tone, and dynamics. [Italian violino, diminutive of viola, viola. See VIOLA¹.] —vi'o-lin'ist n. —vi'o-lin-is'tic adj.

vi-o-lin-mak-er (vī'ə-līn'mā'kər) n. One who designs and crafts violins, especially as a profession. —vi'o-lin'mak'ing n.

Viol·let·le·Duc (vē'ə-lā'lə-dōōk', -dyōōk', vyô-lě'lə-dük'), Eugène

Emmanuel. 1814-1879. French architect. A leader of the Gothic revival in France, he designed the restoration of the city of Carcassonne and supervised the refurbishment of many medieval buildings, including Notre Dame in Paris.

vi·o·lon·cel·lo (vē'ə-lən-chěl'ō, vī'ə-) n. pl. vi·o·lon·cel·los. Music. A cello. [Italian, diminutive of violone, violone. See VIOLONE.] —vi·o·lon·cel'list n.

vi·o·lo·ne (vē'ə-lō'nā) n. Music. A 16-foot organ stop yielding stringlike tones similar to those of a cello. [Italian, augmentative of viola, viola. See VIOLA¹.]

vi·o·my·cin (vī'ə-mī'sin) n. An antibiotic, C₂₃H₃₆N₁₂O₈, produced by the actinomycete Streptomyces puniceus, used in the treatment of tuberculosis. [VIO(LET) + -MYCIN (from the color of the soil mold).]

vi·os·ter·ol (vī-ōs'tə-rōl', -rōl', -rōl') n. Ergosterol activated by ultraviolet irradiation; vitamin D₂. [(ULTRA)VIO(LET) + (ERGO)STEROL.]

VIP (vē'ī-pē') n. pl. VIPs. Informal. A person of great importance or influence, especially a dignitary who commands special treatment. [v(ery) i(mportant) p(erson).]

vi·per (vī'pər) n. 1. Any of several venomous Old World snakes of the family Viperidae, having a single pair of long, hollow fangs and a thick, heavy body. Also called *adder*² 2. A pit viper. 3. A venomous or supposedly venomous snake. 4. A person regarded as malicious or treacherous. [Middle English vipere, from Old French, from Latin vīpera, snake, contraction of vīvipera* : vīvus, alive; see g^wei- in Appendix + parere, to give birth; see pera-¹ in Appendix.]

vi·per·fish (vī'pər-fīsh') n. pl. viperfish or vi·per·fish·es. Any of various small deep-sea fish of the family Chauliodontidae, having fanglike teeth, a long first ray of the dorsal fin, and photophores along the sides.

vi·per·ine (vī'pə-rīn') adj. Of, resembling, or characteristic of a viper.

vi·per·ish (vī'pər-īsh) adj. Spiteful or malicious; venomous: a viperish retort.

vi·per·ous (vī'pər-əs) adj. 1. Suggestive of or related to a viper. 2. Venomous; malicious. —vi·per·ous·ly adv.

vi·per's bugloss (vī'pərz byōō'glōs') n. Any of various Eurasian plants of the genus Echium, including the blueweed, having bright blue to white flowers, bristly foliage, and a dense scorpioid inflorescence.

vir- pref. Variant of viro-.

vi·ra·go (və-rä'gō, -rā'-, vîr'ə-gō') n. pl. vi·ra·goes or vi·ra·gos. 1. A woman regarded as noisy, scolding, or domineering. 2. A large, strong, courageous woman. [Latin virāgō, from vir, man. See wī-ro- in Appendix.] —vi·rag'i·nous (və-rāj'ə-nəs) adj.

vi·ral (vī'rəl) adj. Of, relating to, or caused by a virus. —vi·ral·ly adv.

Vir·chow (vîr'kō, fîr'KHō), Rudolf. 1821-1902. German physician and pathologist known for his contributions to cell theory and the study of disease.

vir·e·lay (vîr'ə-lā') n. Any of several medieval French verse and song forms, especially one in which each stanza has two rhymes, the end rhyme recurring as the first rhyme of the following stanza. [Middle English virelai, from Old French, alteration (influenced by lai, lay), of vireli, song refrain.]

vi·re·mi·a (vī-rē'mē-ə) n. The presence of viruses in the bloodstream.
—vi·re'mic (-mīk) adj.

vir·e·o (vîr'ē-ō') n. pl. vir·e·os. Any of various small insect-eating New World songbirds of the genus Vireo, having grayish or greenish plumage. [Latin vireō, a kind of bird, from virēre, to be green.]

vi·res·cence (və-rēs'əns, vī-) n. The state or process of becoming green, especially the abnormal development of green coloration in plant parts normally not green.

vi·res·cent (və-rēs'ənt, vī-) adj. 1. Becoming green. 2. Somewhat green; greenish. [Latin virēscēns, virēscēt- present participle of virēscere, to become green inchoative of virēre, to be green.]

vi·res ma·jo·res (vī'rēz mə-jôr'ēz, -jôr'-) n. Law. Plural of vis major.

vir·ga (vûr'gə) n. Wisps of precipitation streaming from a cloud but evaporating before reaching the ground. [Latin, twig, virga.]

vir·gate¹ (vûr'gāt') adj. Shaped like a wand or rod; straight, long, and slender. [Latin virgātus, made of twigs, from virga, twig.]

vir·gate² (vûr'gīt) n. An early English measure of land area of varying value, often equal to about 30 acres (12 hectares). [Medieval Latin virgāta, from feminine of Latin virgātus, relating to a rod. See VIRGATE¹.]

Vir·gil also Ver·gil (vûr'jəl), 70-19 B.C. Roman poet. His greatest work is the epic poem Aeneid, which tells of the wanderings of Aeneas after the sack of Troy.
—Vir·gil/i·an (vûr-jīl'ē-ən, -jīl'yən) adj.

vir·gin (vûr'jīn) n. 1. A person who has not experienced sexual intercourse. 2. A chaste or unmarried woman; a maiden. 3. An unmarried woman who has taken religious vows of chastity. 4. Virgin. The Virgin Mary. 5. Zoology. a. A female animal that has not copulated. b. A female bee, wasp, or other insect that produces fertile eggs without copulating. — adj. 1. Of, relating to, or being a virgin; chaste. 2. Being in a pure or natural state; unsullied: virgin snow. 3. Unused, uncultivated, or unexplored: virgin territory. 4. Existing in native or raw form; not processed or refined. 5. Happening for the first time; initial. 6. Obtained directly from the first pressing: virgin olive oil. [Middle English, from Old French virgine, from Latin virgō, virgin-.]

Virgin n. See Virgo.

vir·gin·al¹ (vûr'jə-nəl) adj. 1. Relating to, characteristic of, or befitting a virgin; chaste. 2. Remaining in a state of virginity. 3. Untouched or unsullied; fresh. 4. Zoology. Virgin. —vir'gin·al·ly adv.

vir·gin·al² (vûr'jə-nəl) n. Music. A small, legless rectangular harpsichord popular in the 16th and 17th centuries. Often used in the plural. Also called pair of virginals [From VIRGIN (perhaps from its being associated with female performers).]

virgin birth (vûr'jîn bûrth) n. Theology. The doctrine that Jesus was miraculously begotten by God and born of the Virgin Mary without the agency of a human father.

Vir·gin·ia (vər-jîn'yə) Abbr. VA, Va. A state of the eastern United States on Chesapeake Bay and the Atlantic Ocean. It was admitted as one of the original Thirteen Colonies in 1788. Early colonizing attempts (1584-1587) by Sir Walter Raleigh failed, but in 1607 colonists dispatched by the London Company established the first permanent settlement at Jamestown (May 13). Virginia was a prime force in the move for independence and was the site of Lord Cornwallis's surrender in 1781. Virginia seceded in April 1861 and was the scene of many major battles during the Civil War, including the final campaigns that led to the surrender of Gen. Robert E. Lee. Richmond is the capital and Norfolk the largest city. Population, 6,216,568. —Vir·gin'ian adj. & n.

Virginia Algonquian (vər-jîn'yə ăl-gŏng'kwē-ən) n. The extinct Eastern Algonquian language of eastern Virginia.

Virginia Beach (vər-jîn'yə bēch) An independent city of southeast Virginia on the Atlantic Ocean east of Norfolk. Mainly residential, it is a popular resort. Population, 393,069.

Virginia bluebell (vər-jîn'yə blōō'bĕl') n. See Virginia cowslip.

Virginia City (vər-jîn'yə sīt'ē) A town of southwest Montana south of Helena. It was founded in 1863 after the discovery of gold and soon became notorious as a rowdy mining town. Virginia City is now a tourist center, with many restored structures. Population, 142.

Virginia cowslip (vər-jîn'yə kou'slĭp') n. An eastern North American plant (Mertensia virginica) having clusters of showy, nodding blue flowers. Also called Virginia bluebell

Virginia creeper (vər-jîn'yə krē'pər) n. A North American climbing vine (Parthenocissus quinquefolia) having palmately compound leaves with five leaflets and bluish-black berries. Also called woodbine

Virginia deer (vər-jîn'yə dîr) n. See white-tailed deer.

Virginia fence (vər-jîn'yə fĕns) n. See worm fence.

Virginia ham (vər-jîn'yə hăm) n. A lean hickory-smoked ham with dark red meat.

vir·gin·ia·my·cin (vər-jîn'yə-mī'sĭn) n. Any of several antibacterial substances derived from an actinomycete related to Streptomyces virginiae, used chiefly as an additive in animal feed. [New Latin virginiae, specific epithet + MYCIN.]

Virginia rail (vər-jīn'yə rāl) n. A small reddish-brown American rail (Rallus limicola) having a long, slender bill.

Virginia reel (vər-jīn'yə rēl) n. An American country-dance in which couples perform various steps together to the instructions of a caller.

Virgin Islands (vûr'jīn ī'ləndz) 1. Abbr. V.I. A group of islands of the north-east West Indies east of Puerto Rico. They are divided politically into the British Virgin Islands to the northeast and the Virgin Islands of the United States to the southwest. The islands were first sighted and named by Christopher Columbus in 1493. 2. or Officially Virgin Islands of the United States Abbr. VI, V.I. A United States territory constituting the southwest group of the Virgin Islands. The islands were purchased from Denmark in 1917 because of their strategic location at the approach to the Panama Canal. Charlotte Amalie, on St. Thomas Island, is the capital. Population, 96,569.

vir-gin-i-ty (vər-jīn'ī-tē) n. pl. vir-gin-i-ties. 1. The quality or condition of being a virgin. 2. The state of being pure, unsullied, or untouched.

Virgin Mary (vûr'jīn mâr'ē) n. The mother of Jesus.

Virgin River (vûr'jīn rīv'ər) A river, about 322 km (200 mi) long, of southwest Utah and southeast Nevada flowing generally southwest and south to Lake Mead.

vir-gin's bower (vûr'jīnz bou'ər) n. Any of several climbing plants of the genus Clematis, especially C. virginiana, of eastern North America, having clusters of white flowers and a cluster of seedlike fruits each with a feathery, persistent style. Also called old-man's-beard virgin wool (vûr'jīn wōōl) n. Wool that has not previously been used in manufacture.

Vir-go (vûr'gō) n. 1. A constellation in the region of the celestial equator between Leo and Libra. Also called Virgin 2. a. The sixth sign of the zodiac in astrology. Also called Virgin b. pl. Vir-gos. One who is born under this sign. [Middle English, from Latin, virgin, the constellation Virgo.] —Vir'go-an adj. & n.

vir-gu-late (vûr'gyə-līt, -lāt') adj. Shaped like a small rod. [From Latin virgula, small rod, from virga, rod.]

vir-gule (vûr'gyōōl) n. Printing. A diagonal mark (/) used especially to separate alternatives, as in and/or, to represent the word per, as in miles/hour, and to indicate the ends of verse lines printed continuously, as in Old King Cole/Was a merry old soul. [French, comma, obelus, from Late Latin virgula, accentual mark, from Latin, obelus, diminutive of virga, rod.]

vi-ri-cide (vī'rī-sīd') also vi-ru-cide (vī'rə-) n. An agent that inhibits or destroys viruses. [VIR(US) + -CIDE.] —vi'ri-cid'al (-sīd'l) adj.

vir-id (vîr'īd) adj. Bright green with or as if with vegetation; verdant. [Latin viridis, from virere, to be green.]

vir·i·des·cent (vîr'î-dēs'ənt) adj. Green or slightly green. [Late Latin viridē-scēns, viridēscēt- present participle of viridēscere, to become green, from viridis, green. See VIRID.] —vir'î-des'cence n.

vi·rid·i·an (və-rîd'î-ən) n. A durable bluish-green pigment. [From Latin viridis, green. See VIRID.]

vi·rid·i·ty (və-rîd'î-tē) n. 1. a. The quality or condition of being green; greenness. b. The green color of vegetation or leaves. 2. Innocence or inexperience.

vir·ile (vîr'əl, -îl') adj. 1. Of, relating to, or having the characteristics of an adult male. 2. Having or showing masculine spirit, strength, vigor, or power. See Synonyms at male. 3. Capable of performing sexually as a male; potent. [Middle English, from Old French viril, from Latin virilis, from vir, man. See wî-ro- in Appendix.]

vir·il·ism (vîr'ə-lîz'əm) n. The presence of male secondary sexual characteristics in a female.

vi·ril·i·ty (və-rîl'î-tē) n. 1. The quality or state of being virile; manly character. 2. Masculine vigor; potency.

vir·i·li·za·tion (vîr'ə-lî-zā'shən) n. Development of male secondary sexual characteristics. —vir'il-ize' (-ə-lîz') v.

vi·ri·on (vî'rē-ŏn', vîr'ē-) n. A complete viral particle, consisting of RNA or DNA surrounded by a protein shell and constituting the infective form of a virus. [VIR(US) + -ON¹.]

viro- or vir- pref. Virus: virogenesis. [From VIRUS.]

vi·ro·gene (vî'rə-jēn') n. A gene capable of specifying the synthesis of a virus in a cell.

vi·ro·gen·e·sis (vî'rō-jĕn'î-sîs, -rə-) n. pl. vi·ro·gen·e·ses (-sēz'). Production or formation of a virus. —vi'ro-ge-net'ic (-jə-nĕt'îk), vi'ro-gen'ic (-jĕn'îk) adj.

vi·roid (vî'roid') n. An infectious particle, similar to but smaller than a virus, that consists solely of a strand of RNA and is capable of causing disease in plants.

vi·rol·o·gy (vî-rŏl'ə-jē) n. The study of viruses and viral diseases.

—vi'ro-log'i-cal (vî'rə-lŏj'î-kəl), vi'ro-log'ic (-îk) adj. —vi·rol'o·gist n.

vi·ro·sis (vî-rŏ'sîs) n. pl. vi·ro·ses (-sēz). A disease caused by a virus.

Vir·ta·nen (vîr'tə-nĕn'), Artturi Ilmari. 1895-1973. Finnish biochemist. He won a 1945 Nobel Prize for research on methods of preserving silage.

vir·tu (vər-tōō', vîr-) also ver·tu (vər-) n. 1. A knowledge or love of or taste for fine objects of art. 2. Production of objects of art, especially fine antique objects d'art. [Italian virtù, virtue, virtu, from Latin virtūs, excellence, virtue. See VIRTUE.]

vir·tu·al (vîr'chōō-əl) adj. 1. Existing or resulting in essence or effect though not in actual fact, form, or name: the virtual extinction of the buffalo. 2. Existing in the mind, especially as a product of the imagination. Used in literary criticism of text. [Middle English virtuall, effective, from Medieval Latin virtuālis, from Latin virtūs, excellence. See VIRTUE.] —vir'tu-al'i-ty (-äl'ī-tē) n.

virtual focus (vûr'chōō-əl fō'kəs) n. The point from which divergent rays of reflected or refracted light seem to have emanated, as from the image of a point in a plane mirror.

virtual image (vûr'chōō-əl ĩm'ij) n. An image from which rays of reflected or refracted light appear to diverge, as from an image seen in a plane mirror.

vir·tu·al·ly (vûr'chōō-ə-lē) adv. 1. In fact or to all purposes; practically: The city was virtually paralyzed by the transit strike. 2. Almost but not quite; nearly: “Virtually everyone gets a headache now and then” (People).

virtual machine (vûr'chōō-əl mə-shēn') n. Computer Science. A computer designed to replicate copies of its entire hardware-software interface so that two operating systems can be run on a single computer.

virtual memory (vûr'chōō-əl mēm'ə-rē) n. Computer Science. Computer memory, separate from the main memory of a specific machine, that can be used as an extension of the machine's main memory.

virtual reality (vûr'chōō-əl rē-äl'ī-tē) n. Computer Science. A computer simulation of a real or imaginary system that enables a user to perform operations on the simulated system and shows the effects in real time.

vir·tue (vûr'chōō) n. 1. a. Moral excellence and righteousness; goodness. b. An example or kind of moral excellence: the virtue of patience. 2. Chastity, especially in a girl or woman. 3. A particularly efficacious, good, or beneficial quality; advantage: a plan with the virtue of being practical. 4. Effective force or power: believed in the virtue of prayer. 5. virtues. Theology. The fifth of the nine orders of angels. 6. Obsolete. Manly courage; valor. —idiom. by virtue of (or in virtue of). On the grounds or basis of; by reason of: well off by virtue of a large inheritance. [Middle English vertu, from Old French, from Latin virtūs, manliness, excellence, goodness, from vir, man. See wī-ro- in Appendix.]

vir·tu·o·sa (vûr'chōō-ō'sə, -zə) n. A woman who is a virtuoso. [Italian, feminine of virtuoso, virtuoso. See VIRTUOSO.]

vir·tu·o·si (vûr'chōō-ō'sē) n. A plural of virtuoso.

vir·tu·os·i·ty (vûr'chōō-ōs'ī-tē) n. pl. vir·tu·os·i·ties. 1. The technical skill, fluency, or style exhibited by a virtuoso. 2. An appreciation for or interest in fine objects of art.

vir·tu·o·so (vûr'chōō-ō'sō, -zō) n. pl. vir·tu·o·sos or vir·tu·o·si (-sē). 1. A musician with masterly ability, technique, or personal style. 2. A person with masterly skill or technique in the arts. 3. A person who experiments or investigates in the arts and sciences; a savant. — adj. Exhibiting the ability, technique, or personal style of a virtuoso: a virtuoso performance. [Italian, skilled, of great worth, virtuoso, from Late Latin virtuōsus, virtuous, from Latin virtūs, excellence. See VIRTUE.] —vir'tu·o'sic (-ō'sik, -zĭk) adj. —vir'tu·o'si·cal·ly adv.

vir·tu·ous (vîr'chōō-əs) adj. 1. Having or showing virtue, especially moral excellence: led a virtuous life. 2. Possessing or characterized by chastity; pure: a virtuous woman. See Synonyms at moral. —vir'tu·ous·ly adv.

—vir'tu·ous·ness n.

vi·ru·cide (vī'rə-sīd') n. Variant of viricide.

vir·u·lent (vîr'yə-lənt, vîr'ə-) adj. 1. a. Extremely infectious, malignant, or poisonous. Used of a disease or toxin. b. Capable of causing disease by breaking down protective mechanisms of the host. Used of a pathogen. 2. Bitterly hostile or antagonistic; hateful: virulent criticism. See Synonyms at poisonous.

3. Intensely irritating, obnoxious, or harsh. [Middle English, from Latin vīrulentus, from vīrus, poison.] —vir'u·lence, vir'u·len·cy n. —vir'u·lent·ly adv.

vir·u·lif·er·ous (vîr'yə-līf'ər-əs, vîr'ə-) adj. Carrying or containing a virus: viruliferous aphids. [VIRUL(ENCE) + -FEROUS.]

vi·rus (vī'rəs) n. pl. vi·rus·es. 1. a. Any of various simple submicroscopic parasites of plants, animals, and bacteria that often cause disease and that consist essentially of a core of RNA or DNA surrounded by a protein coat. Unable to replicate without a host cell, viruses are typically not considered living organisms. b. A disease caused by a virus. 2. Something that poisons one's soul or mind: the pernicious virus of racism. 3. Computer Science. A computer virus. [Latin vīrus, poison.]

Vis (vēs) An island of western Yugoslavia off the Dalmatian coast south-southwest of Split. Major naval battles occurred off the island in 1811 and 1866. In the first, the British defeated the French; in the second, the Austrians were victorious over the Italians.

vis. abbr. 1. Visibility. 2. Visual.

Vis. abbr. 1. Viscount. 2. Viscountess.

vi·sa (vē'zə) n. An official authorization appended to a passport, permitting entry into and travel within a particular country or region. — v. tr. vi·saed, vi·sa·ing, vi·sas. 1. To endorse or ratify (a passport). 2. To give a visa to. [French, short for Latin (carta) vīsa, (the document has been) seen, from feminine past participle of vidēre, to see. See weid- in Appendix.]

vis·age (vīz'ij) n. 1. The face or facial expression of a person; countenance. See Synonyms at face. 2. Appearance; aspect: the bleak visage of winter. [Middle English, from Old French, from vis, from Latin vīsus, appearance, from past participle of vidēre, to see. See weid- in Appendix.]

Vi·sa·kha·pat·nam (vī-sä'kə-pūt'nəm) or Vi·sha·kha·pat·nam (-shä'-) also Vi·za·ga·pa·tam (vī-zä'gə-pūt'əm) A city of eastern India on the Bay of Bengal northeast of Madras. Established by the English as a trading post in 1683, it is a health resort and processing center with a protected harbor and shipping facilities. Population, 565,321.

Vi-sa·lia (vī-sāl'yə) A city of south-central California southeast of Fresno. Agricultural products of the San Joaquin Valley are important to its economy. Population, 75,636.

vis·ard (vīz'ərd, -ärd') n. Variant of vizard.

vis-à-vis (vē'zə-vē') prep. 1. Face to face with; opposite to. 2. Compared with. 3. In relation to. — adv. Face to face. — n. pl. vis-à-vis (-vēz', -vē'). 1. One that is face to face with or opposite to another. 2. A date or an escort, as at a party. 3. One that has the same functions and characteristics as another; a counterpart. [French : vis, face + à, to.] — vis'-à-vis' adj.

Vi-sa·yan (vī-sī'an) n. 1. A member of the largest ethnic group indigenous to the Philippines, found in the Visayan Islands. 2. The Austronesian language of the Visayans. — Vi-say'an adj.

Visayan Islands (vī-sī'an ī'ləndz) An island group of the central Philippines in and around the Visayan Sea between Luzon and Mindanao.

Vis·by (vīz'bē, vēs'bū) A city of southeast Sweden on western Gotland Island on the Baltic Sea. It was a member of the Hanseatic League and a commercial center from the 10th to the 14th century but declined after its capture by the Danes in 1362. Visby was a pirate stronghold for the next two centuries and passed to Sweden in 1645. Population, 20,100.

vis·ca·cha (vī-skä'chə) n. Any of several gregarious, burrowing South American rodents of the genera Lagostomus and Lagidium, related to and resembling the chinchilla. [Spanish vizcacha, from Quechua wiskácha.]

vis·cer·a (vīs'ər-ə) pl.n. 1. The soft internal organs of the body, especially those contained within the abdominal and thoracic cavities. 2. The intestines. [Latin vīscera, pl. of vīscus.]

vis·cer·al (vīs'ər-əl) adj. 1. Relating to, situated in, or affecting the viscera. 2. Perceived in or as if in the viscera; profound: “The scientific approach to life is not really appropriate to states of visceral anguish” (Anthony Burgess). 3. Instinctive: visceral needs. See Synonyms at instinctive. — vis'cer-al-ly adv.

vis·cer·o·mo·tor (vīs'ər-ə-mō'tər) adj. Producing or related to movements of the viscera.

vis·cid (vīs'īd) adj. 1. Thick and adhesive. Used of a fluid. 2. Covered with a sticky or clammy coating. [Late Latin viscidus, from Latin viscum, mistletoe, birdlime made from mistletoe berries.] — vis·cid'i·ty, vis'cid·ness n. — vis'cid·ly adv.

vis·com·e·ter (vī-sköm'ī-tər) n. An instrument used to measure viscosity. Also called viscosimeter [Short for VISCOSIMETER.] — vis'co·met'ric (vīs'kə-mēt'rik) adj. — vis·com'e·try n.

Vis·con·ti (vīs-kōn'tē, vēs-kōn'-), Gian Galeazzo. 1351?-1402. Milanese leader who conquered Siena (1399), Perugia (1400), and Bologna (1402) and was a noted patron of the arts.

vis·cose (vĭs'kōs') n. 1. A thick, golden-brown viscous solution of cellulose xanthate, used in the manufacture of rayon and cellophane. 2. Viscose rayon. — adj. 1. Viscous. 2. Of, relating to, or made from viscose. [VISC(OUS) + -OSE². Adj., sense 1, Middle English, viscous from Late Latin viscōsus, from Latin viscum, mistletoe, birdlime made from mistletoe berries.]

viscose rayon (vĭs'kōs' rā'ōn) n. A rayon made by reconvertng cellulose from a soluble xanthate form to tough fibers by washing in acid.

vis·co·sim·e·ter (vĭs'kə·sĭm'ĭ·tər) n. See viscometer. — vis·cos'·i·met'·ric (vĭ·skōs'ə·mēt'·rĭk) adj.

vis·cos·i·ty (vĭ·skōs'ĭ·tē) n. pl. vis·cos·i·ties. 1. The condition or property of being viscous. 2. Physics. Coefficient of viscosity.

vis·count (vĭ'kount') n. Abbr. V., Vis., Visct. 1. A nobleman ranking below an earl or a count and above a baron. 2. Used as a title for such a nobleman. [Middle English, from Old French visconte, from Medieval Latin vicecomes, vicecomit-: Late Latin vice-, vice; see VICE + Late Latin comes, occupant of any state office; see COUNT².]

vis·count·cy (vĭ'kount'sē) n. pl. vis·count·cies. The rank, title, or dignity of a viscount. Also called viscounty vis·count·ess (vĭ'koun'tĭs) n. Abbr. V., Vis., Visct. 1. The wife or widow of a viscount. 2. A noblewoman holding the rank of viscount in her own right.

Vis·count Mel·ville Sound (vĭ'kount mēl'vĭl' sound, -vəl) An arm of the Arctic Ocean between Victoria and Melville islands in northern Northwest Territories, Canada. It is a section of the Northwest Passage but is navigable only under favorable weather conditions.

vis·count·y (vĭ'koun'tē) n. pl. vis·count·ies. See viscounty.

vis·cous (vĭs'kəs) adj. 1. Having relatively high resistance to flow. 2. Viscid. [Middle English, from Old French, from Late Latin viscōsus. See VISCOSE.] — vis'·cous·ly adv. — vis'·cous·ness n.

Visct. abbr. 1. Viscount. 2. Viscountess.

vis·cus (vĭs'kəs) n. Singular of viscera.

visē also vīcē (vĭs) n. A clamping device of metal or wood, usually consisting of two jaws closed or opened by a screw or lever, used in carpentry or metalworking to hold a piece in position. — v. tr. visēd also vīcēd, vis·ing also vīc·ing, vis·es also vīc·es. To hold or compress in or as if in a vise. [Middle English vis, screwlike device, from Old French, screw, from Latin vītis, vine (from its spiral wrappings). See wei- in Appendix.]

Vi·sha·kha·pat·nam (vĭ·shā'kə·pūt'nəm) See Visakhapatnam.

Vi·shin·ski (vĭ·shĭn'skē), Andrei Yanuarievich. 1883-1954. Soviet jurist and diplomat. As chief Soviet prosecutor (1935-1939) he conducted the infamous Great Purge trials. He later served as a Soviet delegate to the United Nations (1946-1954) and as foreign minister (1949-1953).

Vish·nu (vish'noō) n. Hinduism. One of the principal Hindu deities, worshiped as the protector and preserver of worlds. Vishnu is often conceived as a member of the triad including also Brahma and Shiva.

vis·i·bil·i·ty (viz'ə-bil'ī-tē) n. pl. vis·i·bil·i·ties. 1. The fact, state, or degree of being visible. 2. Abbr. vis. The greatest distance under given weather conditions to which it is possible to see without instrumental assistance. 3. a. The capability of being easily observed: an executive with high visibility. b. The capability of providing a clear, unobstructed view: a windshield with good visibility.

vis·i·ble (viz'ə-bəl) adj. 1. Possible to see; perceptible to the eye: a visible object. 2. a. Obvious to the eye: a visible change of expression. b. Being often in the public view; conspicuous. 3. Manifest; apparent: no visible solution to the problem. 4. On hand; available: a visible supply. 5. Constructed or designed to keep important parts in easily accessible view: a visible file. 6. Represented visually, as by symbols. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin vīsibilis, from vīsus, past participle of vidēre, to see. See VISION.] —vis'i·ble·ness n. —vis'i·bly adv.

visible speech (viz'ə-bəl spēch) n. A system of phonetic notation used as an aid for teaching speech to hearing-impaired people and consisting of diagrams of the organs of speech in the various positions required to articulate sounds.

Vis·i·goth (viz'ī-gōth') n. A member of the western Goths that invaded the Roman Empire in the fourth century A.D. and settled in France and Spain, establishing a monarchy that lasted until the early eighth century. [Late Latin Visigothī, the Visigoths. See wes·pero- in Appendix.] —Vis'ī·goth'ic adj.

vi·sion (vizh'ən) n. 1. a. The faculty of sight; eyesight: poor vision. b. Something that is or has been seen. 2. Unusual competence in discernment or perception; intelligent foresight: a leader of vision. 3. The manner in which one sees or conceives of something. 4. A mental image produced by the imagination. 5. The mystical experience of seeing as if with the eyes the supernatural or a supernatural being. 6. A person or thing of extraordinary beauty. — v. tr.

vi·sioned, vi·sion·ing, vi·sions. To see in or as if in a vision; envision. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin vīsiō, vīsiōn-, from vīsus, past participle of vidēre, to see. See weid- in Appendix.] —vi'sion·al adj. —vi'sion·al·ly adv.

vi·sion·ar·y (vizh'ə-nēr'ē) adj. 1. Characterized by vision or foresight. 2. a. Having the nature of fantasies or dreams; illusory. b. Existing in imagination only; imaginary. 3. a. Characterized by or given to apparitions, prophecies, or revelations. b. Given to daydreams or reverie; dreamy. 4. a. Not practicable or realizable; utopian: visionary schemes for getting rich. b. Tending to envision things in perfect but unrealistic form; idealistic. — n. pl. vi·sion·ar·ies.

1. One who is given to impractical or speculative ideas; a dreamer. 2. One who has visions; a seer. —vi'sion·ar'iness n.

vi·sion·less (vizh'ən-līs) adj. 1. Lacking the faculty of sight; blind. 2. Lacking intelligent foresight or imagination; uninspired: visionless bureaucrats.

vision quest (vĭzh'ən kwĕst) n. A period of spiritual seeking among certain Native American peoples, often undertaken as a puberty rite, that typically involves isolation, fasting, and the inducement of a trance state for the purpose of attaining guidance or knowledge from supernatural forces.

vis-it (vĭz'it) v. vis-it-ed, vis-it-ing, vis-its. — v. tr. 1. a. To call on socially: visit friends. b. To go to see or spend time at (a place) with a certain intent: visit a museum; visited London. c. To stay with as a guest. d. To go to see in an official or professional capacity: visited the dentist; a priest visiting his parishioners. 2. To go or come to: visits the bank on Fridays. 3. To go to see in order to aid or console: visit the sick and dying. 4. To make itself known to or seize fleetingly: was visited by a bizarre thought. 5. a. To afflict or assail: A plague visited the village. b. To inflict punishment on or for; avenge: The sins of the ancestors were visited on their descendants. — v. intr. 1. To make a visit. 2. Informal. To converse or chat: Stay and visit with me for a while. — n. 1. The act or an instance of visiting a person, place, or thing. 2. A stay or sojourn as a guest. 3. The act of visiting in a professional capacity. 4. The act of visiting in an official capacity, such as an inspection or examination. [Middle English visiten, from Old French visiter, from Latin vīsītāre, frequentative of vīsere frequentative of vidēre, to see. See VISION.]

vis-it-a-ble (vĭz'ĭ-tə-bəl) adj. 1. Subject to inspection or visitation: a hospital that was visitable by state officials. 2. Accessible or open: a wildlife preserve visitable only during the summer months.

vis-i-tant (vĭz'ĭ-tənt) n. 1. A visitor; a guest. 2. A supernatural being; a ghost or specter. 3. A migratory bird that stops in a particular place for a limited period of time. — adj. Visiting. [Latin vīsītāns, vīsītant- present participle of visītāre, to go to see. See VISIT.]

vis-i-ta-tion (vĭz'ĭ-tā'shən) n. 1. The act or an instance of visiting or an instance of being visited: rules governing visitation at a prison. 2. An official visit for the purpose of inspection or examination, as of a bishop to a diocese. 3. The right of a parent to visit a child as specified in a divorce or separation order. 4. a. A visit of punishment or affliction or of comfort and blessing regarded as being ordained by God. b. A calamitous event or experience; a grave misfortune. See Synonyms at trial. 5. The appearance or arrival of a supernatural being. 6. Visitation. Roman Catholic Church. a. The visit of the Virgin Mary to her cousin Elizabeth. b. July 2, observed in commemoration of this event. —vis'i-ta'tion-al adj.

vis-i-ta-to-ri-al (vĭz'ĭ-tə-tôr'ē-əl, -tôr'-) adj. 1. Of or relating to an official visitor or visit. 2. Having the right or power of visitation.

vis-it-ing card (vĭz'ĭ-tĭng kărd) n. See calling card.

visiting fireman (vĭz'ĭ-tĭng fir'mən) n. Informal. 1. An important visitor who is entertained impressively. 2. A visitor, especially a tourist or conventioner, thought to be a free spender.

visiting nurse (vĭz'ĭ-tĭng nŭrs) n. A registered nurse employed by a public health agency or hospital to promote community health and especially to visit and administer treatment to sick people in their homes.

visiting professor (vĭz'ĭ-tĭng prə-fĕs'ər) n. A professor on leave who is invited to serve as a member of the faculty of another college or university for a limited period of time, often an academic year.

visiting teacher (vĭz'ĭ-tĭng tē'chər) n. A teacher affiliated with a public school system who visits and instructs sick or handicapped children in the area.

vis-i-tor (vĭz'ĭ-tər) n. One that visits: Sunday afternoon visitors; lost the game to the visitors.

vis ma-jor (vĭs mā'jər) n. pl. vi-res ma-jo-res (vĭ'rĕz mə-jōr'ĕz, -jōr'-). Law. An overwhelming force of nature having unavoidable consequences that under certain circumstances can exempt one from the obligations of a contract. [Latin vīs māior: vīs, force + māior, greater.]

Vi-so (vē'zō), Mount. A peak, 3,843.6 m (12,602 ft) high, of northwest Italy in the Cottian Alps near the French border. It is the highest elevation in the range.

vi-sor also vi-zor (vĭ'zər) n. 1. A piece projecting from the front of a cap to shade or protect the eyes. 2. A fixed or movable shield against glare attached above the windshield of an automotive vehicle. 3. The front piece of the helmet of a suit of armor, capable of being raised and lowered and designed to protect the eyes, nose, and forehead. 4. A means of concealment or disguise; a mask.

— v. tr. vi-sored also vi-zored, vi-sor-ing also vi-zor-ing, vi-sors also vi-zors. To provide or protect with a visor. [Alteration of Middle English viser, from Anglo-Norman, from vis, face, from Latin vĭsus, appearance. See VISAGE.]

vis-ta (vĭs'tə) n. 1. a. A distant view or prospect, especially one seen through an opening, as between rows of buildings or trees. b. An avenue or other passage affording such a view. 2. An awareness of a range of time, events, or subjects; a broad mental view: “the deep and sweeping vistas these pioneering critics opened up” (Arthur C. Danto). [Italian, from feminine past participle of vedere, to see, from Latin vidēre. See weid- in Appendix.]

Vis-ta (vĭs'tə) An unincorporated community of southern California north of San Diego. It is near the Pacific coast in a resort and agricultural area. Population, 71,872.

VISTA abbr. Volunteers In Service To America.

Vis-tu-la (vĭs'chə-lə, -chō-) A river of Poland, about 1,091 km (678 mi) long, rising near the Czechoslovakian border and flowing in an arc northeast, northwest, and north to the Gulf of Gdańsk.

vi·su·al (vĭzh'ōō-əl) adj. Abbr. vis. 1. Of or relating to the sense of sight: a visual organ; visual receptors on the retina. 2. Seen or able to be seen by the eye; visible: a visual presentation. 3. Optical. 4. Done, maintained, or executed by sight only: visual navigation. 5. Having the nature of or producing an image in the mind: a visual memory of the scene. 6. Of or relating to a method of instruction involving sight. — n. A picture, chart, or other presentation that appeals to the sense of sight, used in promotion or for illustration or narration. Often used in the plural: an ad campaign with striking visuals; trying to capture a poem in a cinematic visual. [Middle English, from Late Latin visuālis, from Latin vīsus, sight. See VISION.] —vi'su·al·ly adv. —vi'su·al·ness, vi'su·al'i·ty (-əl'ĭ-tē) n.

visual acuity (vĭzh'ōō-əl ə-kyōō'ĭ-tē) n. Sharpness of vision, especially as tested with a Snellen chart. Normal visual acuity based on the Snellen chart is 20/20.

visual aid (vĭzh'ōō-əl ād) n. An instructional aid, such as a scale model, film-strip, or videotape, that presents information visually.

visual binary (vĭzh'ōō-əl bĭ'nə-rē) n. A binary star that can be seen as two stars with a telescope and sometimes with the unaided eye.

visual field (vĭzh'ōō-əl fĕld) n. Abbr. V.F., VF The space or range within which objects are visible to the immobile eyes at a given time. Also called field of vision vi·su·al·ize (vĭzh'ōō-ə-lĭz') v. vi·su·al·ized, vi·su·al·iz·ing, vi·su·al·iz·es.

— v. tr. 1. To form a mental image of; envisage: tried to visualize the scene as it was described. 2. To make visible. — v. intr. To form a mental image.

—vi'su·al·i·za'tion (-ə-lĭ-zā'shən) n.

vi·su·al·iz·er (vĭzh'ōō-ə-lĭ'zər) n. One who visualizes, especially a person whose mental images are predominantly visual.

visual purple (vĭzh'ōō-əl pûr'pəl) n. See rhodopsin.

vi·su·o·mo·tor (vĭzh'ōō-ō-mō'tər) adj. Of or relating to motor activity dependent on or involving sight: the visuomotor coordination required to write.

[VISU(AL) + MOTOR.]

vi·su·o·spa·tial (vĭsh'ōō-ō-spā'shəl) adj. Of or relating to visual perception of spatial relationships among objects: the visuospatial skills needed to complete a jigsaw puzzle. [VISU(AL) + SPATIAL.]

vi·ta (vĭ'tə, vē'l-) n. pl. vi·tae (vĭ'tē, vē'tī). 1. A short biographical or autobiographical account. 2. A curriculum vitae. [Latin vīta, life. See VITAL.]

vi·tal (vĭ'tl) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or characteristic of life. See Synonyms at living. 2. Necessary to the continuation of life; life-sustaining: a vital organ; vital nutrients. 3. Full of life; animated: "The population of the teeming, vital slum... declined" (Rick Hampson). 4. Imparting life or animation; invigorating: the sun's vital rays. 5. Necessary to continued existence or effectiveness; essential: "Irrigation was vital to early civilization" (William H. McNeill). "A vital component of any democracy is a free labor movement" (Bayard Rustin). 6. Concerned with or recording data pertinent to lives: vital records. 7. Biology. Used or done on a living cell or tissue: vital dyes; vital staining. 8. Destructive to life; fatal: a vital injury. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin vītālis, from vīta, life. See g^wei- in Appendix.] —vi'tal·ly adv. —vi'tal·ness n.

vital capacity (vīt'l kə-pās'ī-tē) n. The amount of air that can be forcibly expelled from the lungs after breathing in as deeply as possible.

vi'tal·ism (vīt'l-īz'əm) n. The theory or doctrine that life processes arise from or contain a nonmaterial vital principle and cannot be explained entirely as physical and chemical phenomena. —vi'tal·ist adj., n. —vi'tal·is'tic adj.

vi'tal·i·ty (vī-tāl'ī-tē) n. pl. vi'tal·i·ties. 1. The capacity to live, grow, or develop: plants that lost their vitality when badly pruned. 2. Physical or intellectual vigor; energy. See Synonyms at vigor. 3. The characteristic, principle, or force that distinguishes living things from nonliving things. 4. Power to survive: the vitality of an old tradition.

vi'tal·ize (vīt'l-īz') v. tr. vi'tal·ized, vi'tal·iz·ing, vi'tal·iz·es. 1. To endow with life; animate. 2. To make more lively or vigorous; invigorate. —vi'tal·i·za'tion (-ī-zā'shən) n. —vi'tal·iz'er n.

vi'tals (vīt'lz) pl.n. 1. The vital body organs. 2. The parts essential to continued functioning, as of a system.

vital signs (vīt'l sīnz) pl.n. The pulse rate, temperature, and respiratory rate of an individual.

vital statistics (vīt'l stə-tīs'tīks) pl.n. Statistics concerning the important events in human life, such as births, deaths, marriages, and migrations.

vi'ta·mer (vī'tə-mər) n. One of two or more related chemical substances that fulfill the same specific vitamin function. [VITA(MIN) + (ISO)MER.] —vi'ta·mer'ic (-mēr'ik) adj.

vi'ta·min (vī'tə-mīn) n. Any of various fat-soluble or water-soluble organic substances essential in minute amounts for normal growth and activity of the body and obtained naturally from plant and animal foods. [Alteration of vitamine: Latin vīta, life; see g^wei- in Appendix + AMINE (so called because they were originally thought to be amines).] —vi'ta·min'ic adj.

vitamin A (vī'tə-mīn ā) n. A fat-soluble vitamin or a mixture of vitamins, especially vitamin A₁ or a mixture of vitamins A₁ and A₂, occurring principally in fish-liver oils, milk, and some yellow and dark green vegetables, and functioning in normal cell growth and development. Its deficiency causes hardening and roughening of the skin, night blindness, and degeneration of mucous membranes. Also called retinol vitamin A₁ (vī'tə-mīn ā' wŭn') n. A yellow crystalline compound, C₂₀H₃₀O, extracted from egg yolks, milk, and cod-liver oil.

- vitamin A₂ (vī'tə-mĭn ā' tōō') n. A golden yellow oil, C₂₀H₂₈O, occurring chiefly in the livers of freshwater fish and having about 40 percent of the biological activity of vitamin A₁.
- vitamin B (vī'tə-mĭn bē) n. 1. Vitamin B complex. 2. A member of the vitamin B complex, especially thiamine.
- vitamin B₁ (vī'tə-mĭn bē' wŭn') n. See thiamine.
- vitamin B₂ (vī'tə-mĭn bē' tōō') n. See riboflavin.
- vitamin B₆ (vī'tə-mĭn bē' sĭks') n. See pyridoxine.
- vitamin B₁₂ (vī'tə-mĭn bē' twēlv') n. A complex compound containing cobalt, found especially in liver and widely used to treat pernicious anemia. Also called cobalamin, cyanocobalamin, extrinsic factor.
- vitamin B_c (vī'tə-mĭn;) n. See folic acid.
- vitamin B complex (vī'tə-mĭn bē' kəm-plĕks') n. A group of water-soluble vitamins including thiamine, riboflavin, niacin, pantothenic acid, biotin, pyridoxine, folic acid, inositol, and vitamin B₁₂ and occurring chiefly in yeast, liver, eggs, and some vegetables. Also called B complex
- vitamin C (vī'tə-mĭn sē) n. See ascorbic acid.
- vitamin D (vī'tə-mĭn dē) n. A fat-soluble vitamin occurring in several forms, especially vitamin D₂ or vitamin D₃, required for normal growth of teeth and bones, and produced in general by ultraviolet irradiation of sterols found in milk, fish, and eggs.
- vitamin D₂ (vī'tə-mĭn dē' tōō') n. A white crystalline compound, C₂₈H₄₄O, produced by ultraviolet irradiation of ergosterol. Also called calciferol, ergocalciferol.
- vitamin D₃ (vī'tə-mĭn dē' thrē') n. A colorless crystalline compound, C₂₇H₄₄O, found in fish-liver oils, irradiated milk, and all irradiated animal food-stuffs. It has essentially the same biological activity as vitamin D₂. Also called cholecalciferol
- vitamin E (vī'tə-mĭn ē) n. A fat-soluble vitamin, C₂₉H₅₀O₂, found chiefly in plant leaves, wheat germ oil, and milk and used to treat sterility and various abnormalities of the muscles, red blood cells, liver, and brain.
- vitamin G (vī'tə-mĭn jē) n. Riboflavin.
- vitamin H (vī'tə-mĭn āch) n. Biotin.
- vitamin K (vī'tə-mĭn kā) n. A fat-soluble vitamin, occurring in leafy green vegetables, tomatoes, and egg yolks, that promotes blood clotting and prevents hemorrhaging. It exists in several related forms, such as K₁ and K₂.
- vitamin K₁ (vī'tə-mĭn kā' wŭn') n. A yellow viscous oil, C₃₁H₄₆O₂, found in leafy green vegetables or made synthetically, used by the body to form prothrombin and in veterinary medicine as an antidote to certain poisons.

vitamin K₂ (vī'tə-mĭn kā' tōō') n. A crystalline compound, C₄₁H₅₆O₂, isolated from putrefied fish meal or from various intestinal bacteria, used to stop hemorrhaging and in veterinary medicine as an antidote to certain poisons.

vitamin P (vī'tə-mĭn pē) n. A water-soluble vitamin, found as a crystalline substance especially in citrus juices, that functions as a bioflavonoid in promoting capillary resistance to hemorrhaging.

Vi·tebsk (vē'tĕpsk', vyē'tyĭpsk) A city of northeast Belarus on the Western Dvina River northeast of Minsk. First mentioned in 1021, it passed to Russia in 1772 and is now a port, railroad junction, and processing center. Population, 335,000.

vi·tel·lar·i·um (vīt'l-âr'ē-əm, vīt'-) n. pl. vi·tel·lar·i·ums or vi·tel·lar·i·a (-ē-ə). A group of glands that secrete yolk around the egg in those invertebrates, such as worms, whose eggs do not contain yolk. [New Latin, from Latin vitellus, egg yolk. See VITELLUS.]

vi·tel·lin (vī-tĕl'ĭn, vī-) n. A protein found in egg yolk. [VITELL(US) + -IN.]

vi·tel·line (vī-tĕl'ĭn, -ĕn', vī-) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or associated with the yolk of an egg: the vitelline membrane. 2. Color. Having the yellow hue of an egg yolk; dull yellow. — n. The yolk of an egg. [VITELL(US) + -INE¹.]

vi·tel·lo·gen·e·sis (vīt'l-ō-jĕn'ĭ-sĭs, vīt'-) n. Formation of the yolk of an egg. [VITELL(US) + -GENESIS.] — vi·tel·lo·ge·net'ic (-jə-nĕt'ĭk), vi·tel·lo·gen'ic (-jĕn'ĭk) adj.

vi·tel·lus (vī-tĕl'əs, vī-) n. pl. vi·tel·lus·es. The yolk of an egg. [Latin, probably diminutive of vitulus, calf. See wet-² in Appendix.]

vi·ti·ate (vĭsh'ē-āt') v. tr. vi·ti·at·ed, vi·ti·at·ing, vi·ti·ates. 1. To reduce the value or impair the quality of. 2. To corrupt morally; debase. 3. To make ineffective; invalidate. See Synonyms at corrupt. [Latin vitiāre, vitiāt-, from vitium, fault.] — vi·ti·a·ble (vĭsh'ē-ə-bəl) adj. — vi·ti·a'tion n. — vi·ti·a'tor n.

vit·i·cul·ture (vīt'ĭ-kŭl'chər, vī'tĭ-) n. The cultivation of grapes. [Latin vītis, vine; see wei- in Appendix + CULTURE.] — vit'ĭ·cul'tur·al adj. — vit'ĭ·cul'tur·ist n.

Vi·ti Le·vu (vē'tē lĕv'ōō) The largest of the Fiji Islands, in the southwest Pacific Ocean. Suva, the capital of Fiji, is on the southeast coast of the island.

vit·i·li·go (vīt'l-ĭ'gō, -ĕ'gō) n. pl. vit·i·li·gos. See leukoderma. [Latin vītilīgō, tetter.]

Vi·tim (vī-tĕm') A river of southeast Russia flowing about 1,834 km (1,140 mi) generally northeast and north to the Lena River.

Vi·to·ri·a (vī-tōr'ē-ə, -tōr'-, bē-tō'ryä) A city of north-central Spain south-southeast of Bilbao. Probably founded by the Visigoths in the sixth century A.D., it is a manufacturing and processing center. Population, 199,239.

Vi-tó-ri-a (vĭ-tôr'ē-ə, -tôr'-, vĕ-tôr'yä) A city of eastern Brazil on the Atlantic Ocean northeast of Rio de Janeiro. It was founded in 1535 and is now a major shipping and processing center. Population, 165,090.

Vitória de Con-quis-ta (vĭ-tôr'ē-ə dä kôN-kēs'tä) A city of east-central Brazil north-northeast of Rio de Janeiro. It is a trade center in a mining and cattle-raising area. Population, 125,516.

vit-rec-to-my (vĭ-trĕk'tə-mĕ) n. pl. vit-rec-to-mies. Surgical removal of the vitreous humor from the eyeball. [VITR(EOUS) + -ECTOMY.]

vit-re-ous (vĭt'rĕ-əs) adj. 1. Of, relating to, resembling, or having the nature of glass; glassy. 2. Obtained or made from glass. 3. Of or relating to the vitreous humor. — n. The vitreous humor. [From Latin vitreus, from vitrum, glass.] —vit're-os/i-ty (-ös'ĭ-tĕ), vit're-ous-ness (-əs-nĭs) n.

vitreous enamel (vĭt'rĕ-əs ĭ-năm'əl) n. See porcelain enamel.

vitreous humor (vĭt'rĕ-əs hyōō'mər) n. The clear gelatinous substance that fills the eyeball between the retina and the lens.

vi-tres-cent (vĭ-trĕs'ənt) adj. 1. a. Tending to turn into glass. b. Capable of being turned into glass. 2. Resembling glass; vitreous. [Latin vitrum, glass + -ESCENT.] —vi-tres'cence n.

vit-ri-fy (vĭt'rĕ-fĭ') v. vit-ri-fied (-fĭd'), vit-ri-fy-ing, vit-ri-fies (-fĭz'). — v. tr. To change or make into glass or a glassy substance, especially through heat fusion. — v. intr. To become vitreous. [French vitrier, from Medieval Latin vitrificāre: Latin vitrum, glass + Latin -ficāre, -fy.] —vit'ri-fi'a-bil/i-ty n. —vit'ri-fi'a-ble adj. —vit'ri-fi-ca'tion (-fĭ-kă'shən) n.

vi-trine (vĕ-trĕn') n. A glass-paneled cabinet or case for displaying articles such as china, objects d'art, or fine merchandise. [French, from vitre, pane of glass, from Old French, glass, window with multiple lights, from Latin vitrum.]

vit-ri-ol (vĭt'rĕ-ōl', -əl) n. 1. a. See sulfuric acid. b. Any of various sulfates of metals, such as ferrous sulfate, zinc sulfate, or copper sulfate. 2. Bitterly abusive feeling or expression. — v. tr. vit-ri-oled or vit-ri-olled, vit-ri-ol-ing or vit-ri-ol-ling, vit-ri-ols or vit-ri-ols. To expose or subject to vitriol. [Middle English, from Old French, from Medieval Latin vitriolum, from Late Latin vitreolum, neuter of vitreolus, of glass, from Latin vitreus. See VITREOUS.]

vit-ri-ol-ic (vĭt'rĕ-ōl'ĭk) adj. 1. Of, similar to, or derived from a vitriol. 2. Bitterly scathing; caustic: vitriolic criticism.

Vi-tru-vi-us (vĭ-trōō'vĕ-əs), Originally Marcus Vitruvius Pollio. fl. first century B.C. Roman architect and writer. His De Architectura is the only surviving text on ancient architectural theory.

Vi-try-sur-Seine (vĕ-trĕ'sōōr-sĕn', -sür-) A city of north-central France, an industrial suburb of Paris. Population, 85,263.

vit-ta (vĭt'ə) n. pl. vit-tae (vĭt'ĕ). 1. Zoology. A streak or band of color, as on the bill of a bird. 2. Botany. An oil tube in the fruit of certain plants, such as the carrot or parsley. [Latin, headband, ribbon. See wei- in Appendix.] —vit'tate' (vīt'āt') adj.

vit-tle (vīt'əl) n. & v. Non-Standard. Variant of victual (n., sense 2).

Vit-to-ri-a (vī-tôr'ē-ə, -tôr'-, vēt-tô'ryä) A city of southeast Sicily, Italy, west of Ragusa. Wine and olive oil are produced here. Population, 50,220.

vit-u-line (vīch'ə-līn') adj. Of, relating to, or resembling veal or a calf. [Latin vitulīnus, from vitulus, calf. See VITELLUS.]

vi-tu-per-ate (vī-tōō'pə-rāt', -tyōō'-, vī-) v. vi-tu-per-at-ed, vi-tu-per-at-ing, vi-tu-per-ates. — v. tr. To rebuke or criticize harshly or abusively; berate. See Synonyms at scold. — v. intr. To use harshly abusive language; rail. [Latin vituperāre, vituperāt-.] —vi-tu/per-a'tor n.

vi-tu-per-a-tion (vī-tōō'pə-rā'shən, -tyōō'-, vī-) n. 1. The act or an instance of vituperating; abusive censure. 2. Sustained, harshly abusive language; invective.

vi-tu-per-a-tive (vī-tōō'pər-ə-tīv, -tyōō'-, -pə-rā'-, vī-) adj. Using, containing, or marked by harshly abusive censure. —vi-tu/per-a-tive-ly adv.

—vi-tu/per-a-tive-ness n.

vi-va (vē'və, -vä') interj. Used to express acclamation, salute, or applause. [Italian, and Spanish, (long) live both from Latin vīva, third person sing. present subjunctive of vīvere, to live. See g^wei- in Appendix.]

vi-va-ce (vē-vä'chā) adv. & adj. Music. In a lively or vivacious manner. Used chiefly as a direction. [Italian, from Latin vīvāx, vīvāc-, vivacious. See VIVACIOUS.]

vi-va-cious (vī-vā'shəs, vī-) adj. Full of animation and spirit; lively: a charming and vivacious host. [From Latin vīvāx, vīvāc-, from vīvere, to live. See g^wei- in Appendix.] —vi-va'ciously adv. —vi-va'cious-ness n.

vi-vac-i-ty (vī-vās'ī-tē, vī-) n. The quality or condition of being vivacious; liveliness: “the light and vivacity that laugh in the eyes of a child” (Charles Dickens).

Vi-val-di (vī-väl'dē, -vôl'-), Antonio Lucio. 1675?-1741. Italian composer and violinist. He is best known for his lively concertos, particularly The Four Seasons (1725), a set of four violin concertos.

vi-van-di-ère (vē'vān-dyâr') n. A woman who accompanies troops to sell them food, supplies, and liquor. [French, feminine of vivandier, from Old French, alteration (influenced by Medieval Latin vīvenda, provisions), of viandier, from viande, food. See VIAND.]

vi-var-i-um (vī-vâr'ē-əm) n. pl. vi-var-i-ums or vi-var-i-a (-ē-ə). A place, especially an indoor enclosure, for keeping and raising living animals and plants under natural conditions for observation or research. [Latin vīvārium, from neuter of vīvārius, of living creatures, from vīvus, alive. See VIVIFY.]

vi-va vo-ce (vī'və vō'sē, vē'və) adv. & adj. By word of mouth: a report submitted viva voce; a viva voce examination. [Medieval Latin vīvā vōce, with the living voice : Latin vīvā, feminine ablative sing. of vīvus, living + Latin vōce, ablative of vōx, voice.]

vi·vax (vī'vāks) n. 1. The protozoan (Plasmodium vivax) that causes the most common form of malaria. 2. Malaria caused by this protozoan, characterized by the occurrence of febrile paroxysms about every 48 hours. [From New Latin vīvāx, species name, from Latin, lively. See VIVACIOUS.]

vi·ver·rid (vī-vēr'id) adj. & n. Viverrine. [From New Latin Viverridae, family name, from Viverra, type genus. See VIVERRINE.]

vi·ver·rine (vī-vēr'in, -īn') adj. Of or belonging to the family Viverridae, which includes small carnivorous mammals such as the civets and mongooses. — n. A member of the Viverridae. [New Latin viverrīnus, from Viverra, type genus, from Latin viverra, ferret.]

viv·id (vīv'id) adj. viv·id·er, viv·id·est. 1. Perceived as bright and distinct; brilliant: a vivid star. 2. a. Having intensely bright colors: a vivid tapestry. b. Having a very high degree of saturation: a vivid purple. 3. Full of the vigor and freshness of immediate experience. 4. a. Evoking lifelike images within the mind; heard, seen, or felt as if real: a vivid description. See Synonyms at graphic. b. Active in forming lifelike images: a vivid imagination. [Latin vividus, from vivere, to live. See g^wei- in Appendix.] —viv'id·ly adv. —viv'id·ness n.

viv·i·fy (vīv'ə-fī') v. tr. viv·i·fied, viv·i·fy·ing, viv·i·fies. 1. To give or bring life to; animate: vivify a puppet; vivifying the brown grasslands. 2. To make more lively, intense, or striking; enliven: A smile may vivify a face. [Middle English vivifien, from Old French vivifier, from Late Latin vivificāre : Latin vīvus, alive; see g^wei- in Appendix + Latin -ficāre, -fy.] —viv'i·fi·ca'tion (-fī-kā'shən) n. —viv'i·fi'er n.

vi·vip·a·rous (vī-vīp'ər-əs, vī-) adj. 1. Zoology. Giving birth to living offspring that develop within the mother's body. Most mammals and some other animals are viviparous. 2. Botany. a. Germinating or producing seeds that germinate before becoming detached from the parent plant, as in the mangrove. b. Producing bulbils or new plants rather than seed, as in the tiger lily. [From Latin viviparus : vīvus, alive; see g^wei- in Appendix + -parus, -parous.] —vi·vi·par'i·ty (vī'və-pār'i-tē, vīv'ə-) n. —vi·vip'a·rous·ly adv.

viv·i·sect (vīv'i-sēkt') v. tr. viv·i·sect·ed, viv·i·sect·ing, viv·i·sects. — v. tr. To perform vivisection on (a living animal). — v. intr. To practice vivisection. [Back-formation from VIVISECTION.] —viv'i·sec'tor n.

viv·i·sec·tion (vīv'i-sēk'shən, vīv'i-sēk'-) n. The act or practice of cutting into or otherwise injuring living animals, especially for the purpose of scientific research. [Latin vīvus, alive; see VIVIFY + (DIS)SECTION.] —viv'i·sec'tion·al adj. —viv'i·sec'tion·al·ly adv. —viv'i·sec'tion·ist n.

vix·en (vĭk'sən) n. 1. A female fox. 2. A woman regarded as quarrelsome, shrewish, or malicious. [Middle English fixen, from Old English fyxe.]

—vix'en-ish adj. —vix'en-ish-ly adv. —vix'en-ish-ness n.

viz. abbr. Videlicet.

Vi·za·ga·pa·tam (vĭ-zä'gə-püt'əm) See Visakhapatnam.

viz·ard also vis·ard (vĭz'ərd, -ärd') n. 1. A visor or mask. 2. A disguise. [Alteration of obsolete vizar, from Middle English viser. See VISOR.]

Viz·ca·í·no (vĭz-kä-ē'nō, bēth-kä-), Sebastián. 1550?-1615?. Spanish explorer who was the first European to make a systematic exploration of the California coast (1602-1603).

vi·zier (vĭ-zĭr', vĭz'yər) n. A high officer in a Muslim government, especially in the Ottoman Empire. [Turkish vezir, from Arabic wazīr, minister, from wazara, to bear, carry.] —vi·zier'ate (vĭ-zĭr'īt, -āt', vĭz'yər-īt, -yər-rāt') n. —vi·zier'i·al adj.

vi·zor (vĭ'zər) n. & v. Variant of visor.

vizs·la (vĭzh'lä) n. Any of a Hungarian breed of shorthaired, medium-sized hunting dogs having a deep rust-gold coat and a docked tail. [Probably from Czech vyžle, a hunting dog.]

VJ abbr. Video jockey.

V-J Day (vē'jä' dā) n. August 15, 1945, the day on which the Allies announced the surrender of Japanese forces during World War II. [V(ictory in) J(aпан) Day.]

VL abbr. Vulgar Latin.

VLA abbr. Astronomy. Very Large Array.

Vlaar·ding·en (vlär'dĭng-ən) A city of southwest Netherlands, a port and industrial suburb of Rotterdam. Population, 76,466.

Vla·di·mir (vläd'ə-mĭr', vlə-dyē'mĭr) A city of west-central Russia east of Moscow. Probably founded in the 10th century, it came under the control of Moscow during the 15th century. Population, 331,000.

Vlad·i·vos·tok (vläd'ə-və-stök', -vös'tök', vlə-dyə-və-stôk') A city of extreme southeast Russia on an arm of the Sea of Japan. It has been a naval base since 1872 and grew rapidly after the completion of the Trans-Siberian Railroad in the early 1900's. Population, 600,000.

Vla·minck (vlä-mănk'), Maurice de. 1876-1958. French artist. A leading exponent of fauvism, he is noted for his stormy, aggressive landscapes.

VLBI abbr. Astronomy. Very long baseline interferometry.

VLCC abbr. Very large crude (oil) carrier.

VLDL (vē'ěl-dē'ěl) n. A lipoprotein containing a very large proportion of lipids to protein and carrying most cholesterol from the liver to the tissues. [v(ery) l(ow) d(ensity) l(ipoprotein).]

vlf or VLF abbr. Very low frequency.

Vlis·sing·en (vlɪs'ɪŋ-ən) also Flush·ing (flʊsh'ɪŋ) A city of southwest Netherlands on an island in the Schelde estuary and the North Sea. Chartered in 1247, it was one of the first Dutch towns to rebel against Spain (1572). Population, 26,500.

Vlo·rë (vlôr'ə, vlôr'ə) also Vlo·ne (vlô'nə) A city of southwest Albania on Vlorë Bay, an inlet of the Adriatic Sea. The independence of Albania was proclaimed in Vlorë on November 28, 1912. Population, 61,100.

VLSI abbr. Electronics. Very large scale integration.

Vl·ta·va (vül'tə-və, vəl'tä-vä) A river, about 434 km (270 mi) long, of western Czech Republic flowing southeast then north to the Elbe River.

V.M.D. abbr. Latin. Veterinariae Medicinae Doctor (Doctor of Veterinary Medicine).

V-neck (vē'nĕk') n. A V-shaped neckline, as of a sweater.

VO abbr. Verbal order.

vo. abbr. Printing. Verso.

VOA abbr. Voice of America.

voc. abbr. 1. Vocational. 2. Vocative.

vocab. abbr. Vocabulary.

vo·ca·ble (vō'kə-bəl) Linguistics. n. A word considered only as a sequence of sounds or letters rather than as a unit of meaning. — adj. Capable of being voiced or spoken. [French, from Old French, from Latin vocābulum, name, from vocāre, to call. See wek^w- in Appendix.]

vo·cab·u·lar·y (vō-kāb'yə-lər'ē) n. pl. vo·cab·u·lar·ies. Abbr. vocab. 1. All the words of a language. 2. The sum of words used by, understood by, or at the command of a particular person or group. See Synonyms at diction. 3. A list of words and often phrases, usually arranged alphabetically and defined or translated; a lexicon or glossary. 4. A supply of expressive means; a repertoire of communication: a dancer's vocabulary of movement. [French vocabulaire, from Old French, from Medieval Latin vocābulārium, from neuter of vocābulārius, of words, from Latin vocābulum, name. See VOCABLE.]

vo·cal (vō'kəl) adj. 1. Of or relating to the voice: the vertebrate vocal organs; a vocal defect. 2. Uttered or produced by the voice. 3. Having a voice; capable of emitting sound or speech. 4. Full of voices; resounding: a playground vocal with the shouts and laughter of children. 5. Tending to express oneself often or freely; outspoken: a vocal critic of city politics. 6. Linguistics. a. Of or resembling vowels; vocalic. b. Voiced. 7. Music. Of, relating to, or performed by singing: vocal training; vocal music. — n. 1. A vocal sound. 2. Music. A popular composition for a singer, often with instrumental accompaniment. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin vōcālis, from vōx, vōc-, voice. See wek^w- in Appendix.]

—vo'cal·ly adv. —vo'cal·ness n.

vocal cords (vō'kəl kôrdz) pl.n. Either of two pairs of bands or folds of mucous membrane in the throat that project into the larynx. The lower pair vibrate when pulled together and when air is passed up from the lungs, thereby producing vocal sounds. The upper, thicker pair are not involved in voice production.

vocal folds (vō'kəl fôldz) pl.n. Vocal cords.

vo·cal·ic (vō-kāl'ik) adj. Linguistics. 1. Containing, marked by, or consisting of vowels. 2. Of, relating to, or having the nature of a vowel. —vo·cal·i·cal·ly adv.

vo·cal·ise¹ (vō'kə-lēz') n. Music. An exercise, a composition, or an arrangement in which a performer sings sol-fa syllables or other meaningless vocal sounds rather than a text. [French, from vocaliser, to vocalize, from vocal, vocal, from Old French. See VOCAL.]

vo·cal·ise² (vō'kə-līz') v. Chiefly British. Variant of vocalize.

vo·cal·ism (vō'kə-līz'əm) n. 1. Use of the voice in speaking or singing.

2. Music. The act, technique, or art of singing. 3. Linguistics. a. A vowel sound.

b. A system of vowels used in a language or dialect. —vo'cal·is'tic adj.

vo·cal·ist (vō'kə-līst) n. Music. A singer. —vo'ca·lis'tic adj.

vo·cal·ize (vō'kə-līz') v. vo·cal·ized, vo·cal·iz·ing, vo·cal·iz·es. — v. tr.

1. To produce with the voice. 2. To give voice to; articulate: vocalize popular sentiment. 3. To mark (a vowelless Hebrew text, for example) with vowel points.

4. Linguistics. a. To change (a consonant) into a vowel during articulation. b. To voice. — v. intr. 1. a. To use the voice. b. Music. To sing. 2. Linguistics. To be changed into a vowel. —vo'cal·i·za'tion (-kə-lī-zā'shən) n. —vo'cal·iz'er n.

vocal tic (vō'kəl tīk) n. An involuntary, abrupt, and inappropriate grunt, bark, or other exclamation or utterance, occurring especially in Tourette's syndrome.

vo·ca·tion (vō-kā'shən) n. 1. A regular occupation, especially one for which a person is particularly suited or qualified. 2. An inclination, as if in response to a summons, to undertake a certain kind of work, especially a religious career; a calling. [Middle English vocacioun, divine call to a religious life, from Old French vocation, from Latin vocātiō, vocātiōn-, a calling, from vocātus, past participle of vocāre, to call. See wek^w- in Appendix.]

vo·ca·tion·al (vō-kā'shə-nəl) adj. Abbr. voc. 1. Of or relating to a vocation or vocations: vocational counseling. 2. Relating to, providing, or undergoing training in a special skill to be pursued in a trade: vocational students learning to operate a lathe. —vo·ca'tion·al·ly adv.

vo·ca·tion·al·ism (vō-kā'shə-nə-līz'əm) n. The stressing of vocational training in education. —vo·ca'tion·al·ist n.

vocational school (vō-kā'shə-nəl skōōl) n. A school, especially one on a secondary level, that offers instruction and practical introductory experience in skilled trades such as mechanics, carpentry, plumbing, and construction.

voc·a·tive (vŏk'ə-tīv) adj. 1. Relating to, characteristic of, or used in calling. 2. Abbr. voc., v. Relating to or being a grammatical case used in Latin and certain other languages to indicate the person or thing being addressed. — n. Abbr. voc., v. 1. The vocative case. 2. A word in the vocative case. [Middle English vocatif, from Old French, from Latin vocātīvus (cāsus), vocative (case), from vocātus, past participle of vocāre, to call. See VOCATION.] —voc'a·tive·ly adv.

vo·cif·er·ant (vō-sīf'ər-ənt) adj. Noisy and insistent; vociferous.

vo·cif·er·ate (vō-sīf'ər-rāt') v. tr. intr. vo·cif·er·at·ed, vo·cif·er·at·ing, vo·cif·er·ates. To utter (something) or cry out loudly and vehemently, especially in protest. [Latin vōciferārī, vōciferāt- : vōx, vōc-, voice; see VOICE + ferre, to carry; see bher¹ in Appendix.] —vo·cif'er·a'tion n. —vo·cif'er·a'tor n.

vo·cif·er·ous (vō-sīf'ər-əs) adj. Making, given to, or marked by noisy and vehement outcry. —vo·cif'er·ous·ly adv. —vo·cif'er·ous·ness n.

SYNONYMS: vociferous, blatant, boisterous, strident, clamorous. These adjectives all mean conspicuously and usually offensively loud. Vociferous suggests a noisy outcry, as of vehement protest: vociferous complaints. Blatant connotes coarse or vulgar noisiness: “Up rose a blatant Radical” (Walter Bagehot). Boisterous implies unrestrained noise, tumult, and often rowdiness, as that arising from high spirits: boisterous mirth. Strident stresses offensive harshness, shrillness, or discordance: a strident voice. Something clamorous is both vociferous and sustained: a clamorous uproar.

vo·cod·er (vō'kō'dər) n. An electronic device or system for synthesizing speech. [VO(ICE) + COD(E) + -ER¹.]

vod·ka (vöd'kə) n. An alcoholic liquor originally distilled from fermented wheat mash but now also made from a mash of rye, corn, or potatoes. [Russian, diminutive of voda, water. See wed¹ in Appendix.]

vo·doun or vo·dun (vō-dōn') n. See voodoo (n., sense 1). [Haitian Creole, from Ewe vodu, or Fon vodun.]

vogue (vōg) n. 1. The prevailing fashion, practice, or style: Hoop skirts were once the vogue. 2. Popular acceptance or favor; popularity: a party game no longer in vogue. See Synonyms at fashion. [French, from Old French, probably from voguer, to sail, row. See wegh- in Appendix.]

WORD HISTORY: The history of the word vogue takes us back from the abstract world of fashion to the concrete actions of moving in a vehicle and rowing a boat, demonstrating how sense can change dramatically over time even though it flows, as it were, in the same channel. The history of vogue begins with the Indo-European root ·wegh-, meaning “to go, transport in a vehicle.” Among many other forms derived from this root was the Germanic stem ·wēga-, “water in motion.”

From this stem came the Old Low German verb wogōn, meaning “to sway, rock.” This verb passed into Old French as voguer, which meant “to sail, row.” The Old French word yielded the noun vogue, which probably literally meant “a rowing,” and so “a course,” and figuratively “reputation” and then “reputation of fashionable things” or “prevailing fashion,” which involve courses, so to speak. The French passed the noun on to us, it being first recorded in English in 1571.

vogu-ish (vō'gīsh) adj. 1. Fashionable; chic: a suit of voguish cut.

2. Temporarily in frequent use; faddish: voguish terminology. —vogu'ish-ly adv. —vogu'ish-ness n.

Vo-gul (vō'gool) n. pl. Vogul or Vo-guls. 1. A member of a people inhabiting the region of the Ob River in western Siberia, closely related to the Ostyak.

2. The Ugric language of this people.

voice (vois) n. Abbr. v. 1. a. The sound produced by the vocal organs of a vertebrate, especially a human being. b. The ability to produce such sounds. 2. A specified quality, condition, or pitch of vocal sound: a hoarse voice; the child's piping voice. 3. Linguistics. Expiration of air through vibrating vocal cords, used in the production of vowels and voiced consonants. 4. A sound resembling or reminiscent of vocal utterance: the murmuring voice of the forest. 5. Music.

a. Musical sound produced by vibration of the human vocal cords and resonated within the throat and head cavities. b. The quality or condition of a person's singing: a baritone in excellent voice. c. A singer: a choir of excellent voices.

d. One of the individual parts or strands in a composition: a fugue for four voices; string voices carrying the melody. Also called voice part 6. a. Expression; utterance: gave voice to their feelings at the meeting. b. A medium or an agency of expression: a newsletter that serves as a neighborhood voice. c. The right or opportunity to express a choice or an opinion: a territory that has a voice, but not a vote, in Congress. 7. Grammar. A property of verbs or a set of verb inflections indicating the relation between the subject and the action expressed by the verb: “Birds build nests” uses the active voice; “nests built by birds” uses the passive voice.

8. The distinctive style or manner of expression of an author or a character in a book. — v. tr. voiced, voicing, voic-es. 1. To give voice to; utter: voice a grievance. See Synonyms at vent¹. 2. Linguistics. To pronounce with vibration of the vocal cords. 3. Music. a. To provide (a composition) with voice parts.

b. To regulate the tone of (the pipes of an organ, for example). —idiom. with one voice. In complete agreement; unanimously: Our group rejected the proposal with one voice. [Middle English, from Old French vois, from Latin vōx, vōc-. See wek^{w-} in Appendix.]

voice box (vois böks) n. The larynx.

voiced (voist) adj. 1. Having a voice or a specified kind of voice. Often used in combination: harsh-voiced. 2. Linguistics. Uttered with vibration of the vocal cords, as the consonants b and d. —voiced/ness (voist'nīs, voi'sid-) n.

voice-ful (vois'fəl) adj. Having a voice, especially a loud voice; resounding. —voice/ful-ness n.

voice-less (vois'lis) adj. 1. Having no voice; mute. 2. Linguistics. Uttered without vibration of the vocal cords, as the consonants t and p. —voice/less-ly adv. —voice/less-ness n.

voice mail (vois māl) n. An interactive computerized system for answering and routing telephone calls, for recording, saving, and relaying messages, and sometimes for paging the user.

voice-o-ver or voice-over (vois'ō'vər) n. The voice of an unseen narrator, or of an on-screen character not seen speaking, in a movie or a television broadcast.

voice part (vois pärt) n. Music. 1. A part or strand of a composition written for the human voice. 2. See voice (n., sense 5d).

voice-print (vois'prɪnt') n. An electronically recorded graphic representation of a person's voice, in which the configuration for any given utterance is uniquely characteristic of the individual speaker.

voic-er (voi'sər) n. 1. One that voices: a voicer of criticism. 2. Music. A specialist in regulating the tone of organ pipes.

voic-ing (voi'sɪŋ) n. 1. The act, practice, or production of one that voices. 2. Music. Tonal quality of an instrument in an ensemble, especially a jazz ensemble, or of the ensemble as a whole.

void (void) adj. 1. Containing no matter; empty. 2. Not occupied; unfilled. 3. Completely lacking; devoid: void of understanding. See Synonyms at empty. 4. Ineffective; useless. 5. Having no legal force or validity; null: a contract rendered void. 6. Games. Lacking cards of a particular suit in a dealt hand. — n. 1. a. An empty space. b. A vacuum. 2. An open space or a break in continuity; a gap. 3. A feeling or state of emptiness, loneliness, or loss. 4. Games. Absence of cards of a particular suit in a dealt hand: a void in hearts. — v. void-ed, void-ing, voids. — v. tr. 1. To take out (the contents of something); empty. 2. To excrete (body wastes). 3. To leave; vacate. 4. To make void or of no validity; invalidate: issued a new passport and voided the old one. — v. intr. To excrete body wastes. [Middle English, from Old French voide, feminine of voit, from Vulgar Latin vocitus*, alteration of Latin vacīvus, vocīvus, variant of vacuus, from vacāre, to be empty. See eu-² in Appendix.] —void'er n.

void-a-ble (voi'də-bəl) adj. That can be voided and especially annulled: void-able contracts. —void/a-ble-ness n.

void-ance (void/ns) n. 1. The act of voiding. 2. The condition of being vacant; emptiness.

void-ed (voi'dīd) adj. Heraldry. Having the central area cut out or left vacant, leaving a narrow border or an outline: a voided lozenge.

voi-là (vwä-lä') interj. Used to call attention to or express satisfaction with a thing shown or accomplished: Mix the ingredients, chill, and—voilà!—a light, tasty dessert. [French : voi, second person sing. imperative of voir, to see (from Old French); see VOYEUR + là, there (from Old French la, lai, probably from Latin illāc, by that way : illa, that, feminine of ille; see al-¹ in Appendix + -ce, deictic particle).]

voile (voil) n. A light, plain-weave, sheer fabric of cotton, rayon, silk, or wool used especially for making dresses and curtains. [French, from Old French veile, veil, from Latin vēla, neuter pl. of vēlum, covering.]

voir dire (vwär dîr') n. Law. A preliminary examination of prospective jurors or witnesses under oath to determine their competence or suitability. [Anglo-Norman, to speak the truth : Latin vērus, true; see wēro- in Appendix + Latin dīcere, to say; see deik- in Appendix.]

voix cé-leste (vwä' sâ-lĕst') n. pl. voix cé-lestes (sâ-lĕst'). Music. An organ stop that produces a gentle tremolo effect. Also called vox angelica [French : voix, voice + céleste, celestial.]

vol. abbr. 1. Volcano. 2. Volume. 3. Volunteer.

Vo-lans (vō'länz') n. A constellation in the polar region of the celestial Southern Hemisphere near Carina and Dorado. [Latin volāns, present participle of volāre, to fly.]

vo-lant (vō'lənt) adj. 1. Flying or capable of flying. 2. Moving quickly or nimbly; agile. 3. Heraldry. Depicted with the wings extended as in flying. [Latin volāns, volant- present participle of volāre, to fly. Sense 3, from French from Old French, present participle of voler, to fly, from Latin volāre.]

Vo-la-pük (vō'lə-pōök', -pük', vō'lə-) n. An artificial international language based on English. [Volapük : vol, world (alteration of English WORLD) + pük, speech (alteration of English SPEECH).]

vo-lar (vō'lər) adj. Of or relating to the sole of the foot or the palm of the hand. [From Latin vola, sole, palm.]

vol-a-tile (vō'lə-tl, -tīl') adj. 1. Chemistry. a. Evaporating readily at normal temperatures and pressures. b. That can be readily vaporized. 2. a. Tending to vary often or widely, as in price: the ups and downs of volatile stocks. b. Inconstant; fickle: a flirt's volatile affections. c. Lighthearted; flighty: in a volatile mood. d. Ephemeral; fleeting. 3. Tending to violence; explosive: a volatile situation with troops and rioters eager for a confrontation. 4. Flying or capable of flying; volant. [French, from Old French, from Latin volātīlis, flying, from volātus, past participle of volāre, to fly.] —vol'a-tile n. —vol'a-til'i-ty (-tīl'ī-tē), vol'a-tile-ness (-tl-nīs, -tīl'-) n.

volatile oil (völ'ə-tl oil) n. A rapidly evaporating oil, especially an essential oil, that does not leave a stain.

vol·a·til·ize (völ'ə-tl-īz') v. intr. tr. vol·a·til·ized, vol·a·til·iz·ing, vol·a·til·iz·es. 1. To become or make volatile. 2. To evaporate or cause to evaporate. —vol'a-til-iz'a-ble adj. —vol'a-til-i-za'tion (-ī-zā'shən) n.

—vol'a-til-iz'er n.

vol-au-vent (vô'lō-vän') n. A light pastry shell filled with a ragout of meat or fish. [French : vol, flight + à, with + le, the + vent, wind.]

vol·can·ic (völ-kăn'īk, vōl-) adj. 1. Of, resembling, or caused by a volcano or volcanoes: a volcanic peak; volcanic islands. 2. Produced by or discharged from a volcano: volcanic ash. 3. Characterized by the presence of volcanoes.

4. Powerfully explosive: a volcanic temper. —vol·can'i·cal·ly adv.

volcanic glass (völ-kăn'īk glās) n. Natural glass produced by the cooling of molten lava too quickly to permit crystallization.

vol·ca·nism (völ'kə-nīz'əm) also vul·ca·nism (vül'-) n. 1. Volcanic force or activity. 2. The phenomena associated with volcanic activity.

vol·ca·nize (völ'kə-nīz') v. tr. vol·ca·nized, vol·ca·niz·ing, vol·ca·niz·es.

To subject to or change by the effects of volcanic heat. —vol'ca-ni-za'tion (-nī-zā'shən) n.

vol·ca·no (völ-kā'nō) n. pl. vol·ca·noes or vol·ca·nos. Abbr. vol. 1. a. An opening in the earth's crust through which molten lava, ash, and gases are ejected. b. A similar opening on the surface of another planet. 2. A mountain formed by the materials ejected from a volcano. [Italian, from Spanish volcán, or Portuguese volcão both probably from Latin volcānus, fire, from Volcānus, Vulcan.]

vol·ca·no·gen·ic (völ'kə-nə-jěn'īk, vōl'-) adj. Of volcanic origin.

Vol·ca·no Islands (völ-kā'nō ī'ləndz) A group of Japanese islands in the northwest Pacific Ocean north of the Mariana Islands. Annexed by Japan in the late 19th century, the islands were administered by the United States from 1945 until 1968.

vol·ca·nol·o·gy (völ'kə-nōl'ə-jē, vōl'-) also vul·ca·nol·o·gy (vül'-) n. The scientific study of volcanoes and volcanic phenomena. —vol'ca-no-log'i-cal (-nə-lōj'ī-kəl) adj. —vol'ca-nol'o-gist n.

vole¹ (vōl) n. Any of various rodents of the genus Microtus and related genera, resembling rats or mice but having a shorter tail and limbs and a heavier body. [Short for obsolete volemouse, perhaps from Norwegian vollmus* : Old Norse völlr, field + Old Norse mūs, mouse.]

vole² (vōl) n. Games. The winning of all the tricks during the play of one hand, as of bridge; a grand slam. [French, probably from voler, to fly, from Old French, from Latin volāre, to fly.]

Vol·ga (völ'gə, vōl'-, vōl'-) A river of western Russia rising in the Valdai Hills northwest of Moscow and flowing about 3,701 km (2,300 mi) generally east and south to the Caspian Sea. It is the longest river of Europe and the main commercial waterway of Russia. The Volga is linked by canals and other rivers to the Baltic Sea.

Vol-go-grad (völ'gə-gräd', vōl'-, vül-gə-grät') Formerly Sta-lin-grad (stä'līn-gräd', stə-lyīn-grät'). A city of western Russia on the Volga River east of Voroshilovgrad. Founded in 1589 as a defensive stronghold named Tsaritsyn, it was renamed Stalingrad in 1925 and Volgograd in 1961. The city was besieged and severely damaged during a prolonged battle in World War II, with extensive casualties of both German and Soviet troops. Population, 974,000.

vol-i-tant (völ'ī-tnt) adj. 1. Flying or capable of flying. 2. Moving about rapidly. [Latin volitāns, volitant- present participle of volitāre, to fly to and fro frequently of volāre, to fly.]

vol-i-ta-tion (völ'ī-tā'shən) n. 1. The act of flying; flight. 2. The ability to fly. —vol'i-ta'tion-al adj.

vo-li-tion (və-līsh'ən) n. 1. The act or an instance of making a conscious choice or decision. 2. A conscious choice or decision. 3. The power or faculty of choosing; the will. [French, from Medieval Latin volitiō, volitiōn-, from Latin velle, vol-, to wish. See wel⁻¹ in Appendix.] —vo-li'tion-al adj. —vo-li'tion-al-ly adv.

vol-i-tive (völ'ī-tiv) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or originating in the will. 2. Expressing a wish or permission.

volks-lied (fōks'lēt', fōlk's-) n. pl. volks-lie-der (-lē'dər). Music. A folk song. [German : Volks, genitive of Volk, people (from Middle High German volc, from Old High German folc); see pel⁻¹ in Appendix + Lied, song; see LIED.]

vol-ley (völ'ē) n. pl. vol-leys. 1. a. A simultaneous discharge of a number of missiles. b. The missiles thus discharged. 2. A bursting forth of many things together: a volley of oaths. 3. Sports. a. The flight of a ball before it touches the ground: kicked the soccer ball on the volley. b. A shot, especially in tennis, made by striking the ball before it touches the ground. — v. vol-leyed, vol-ley-ing, vol-leys. — v. tr. 1. To discharge in or as if in a volley: volley musket shots at the attackers. 2. Sports. To strike (a tennis ball, for example) before it touches the ground. — v. intr. 1. To be discharged in or as if in a volley. 2. Sports. To make a volley, especially in tennis. 3. To move rapidly, forcefully, or loudly like missiles: The hailstones volleyed down. Charges and countercharges volleyed through the courtroom. [French volée, from Old French, from Vulgar Latin volāta*, from Latin volāre, to fly.] —vol'ley-er n.

vol-ley-ball (völ'ē-bōl') n. Sports. 1. A game played by two teams on a rectangular court divided by a high net, in which both teams use up to three hits to ground the ball on the opposing team's side of the net. 2. The large inflated ball used in this game. —vol'ley-ball'er n.

Vo·log·da (vô'læg-də) A city of western Russia north-northeast of Moscow. It was founded in the mid-12th century by merchants from Novgorod and passed to Moscow in 1478. Population, 269,000.

Vó·los (vô'lôs', vô'lôs) A city of eastern Greece in Thessaly on the Gulf of Vólos, an inlet of the Aegean Sea. Vólos is a major port and an industrial, commercial, and transportation center. Population, 171,378.

vol·plane (völl'plān', vól'-) v. intr. vol·planed, vol·plan·ing, vol·planes.

1. a. To glide toward the earth in an airplane with the engine cut off. b. To glide toward the earth with the engine cut off. Used of an airplane. 2. To make one's way or go by gliding. — n. The act or an instance of volplaning. [From French vol plané, gliding flight : vol, flight (from Old French, from voler, to fly); see VOLLEY + plané, gliding, past participle of planer, to glide; see PLANE³.]

Vol·sci (vól'skē, vól'sī, -sē, -shē) pl.n. A people of ancient Italy whose territory was conquered by the Romans in the fourth century B.C.

Vol·scian (völl'shən, vól'skē-ən) adj. Of or relating to the Volsci or their language. — n. 1. The Italic language of the Volsci. 2. A member of the Volsci.

Vol·stead (völl'stēd', vól'-, vól'-), Andrew John. 1860-1947. American legislator. As a U.S. representative from Minnesota (1903-1923) he sponsored the Volstead Act (1919), prohibiting the sale, manufacture, and transportation of alcoholic beverages.

volt¹ (völt) n. Abbr. V The International System unit of electric potential and electromotive force, equal to the difference of electric potential between two points on a conducting wire carrying a constant current of one ampere when the power dissipated between the points is one watt. See Table at measurement. [After Count Alessandro VOLTA.]

volt² also volte (völt, völt) n. Sports. 1. A circular movement executed by a horse in manège. 2. A sudden movement made in avoiding a thrust in fencing. [French volte, from Italian volta, turn, from voltare, to turn, leap. See VAULT².]

Vol·ta (völl'tə, vól'-, vól'-) A river formed in central Ghana by the confluence of the White Volta and the Black Volta and flowing about 467 km (290 mi) southward through artificial Lake Volta to the Bight of Benin in the Gulf of Guinea.

Vol·ta (völl'tə, vól'tä), Count Alessandro. 1745-1827. Italian physicist who invented the first electric battery (1800). The volt is named in his honor.

volt·age (völl'tij) n. Electromotive force or potential difference, usually expressed in volts.

voltage divider (völl'tij dī-vī'dər) n. A number of resistors in series provided with taps at certain points to make available a fixed or variable fraction of the applied voltage.

vol·ta·ic (völ-tā'ik, vól-, vól-) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or being electricity or electric current produced by chemical action; galvanic. 2. Producing electricity by chemical action. [After Count Alessandro VOLTA.]

voltaic battery (völ-tā'ik bät'ə-rē) n. An electric battery composed of a primary cell or cells.

voltaic cell (völ-tā'ik sël) n. See primary cell.

voltaic couple (völ-tā'ik küp'əl) n. Two dissimilar conductors in contact or in the same electrolytic solution, resulting in a difference of potential between them. Also called galvanic couple voltaic pile (völ-tā'ik pīl) n. A source of electricity consisting of a number of alternating disks of two different metals separated by acid-moistened pads, forming primary cells connected in series.

Vol-taire (völ-târ', völ-, vøl-tër') n. Pen name of François Marie Arouet. 1694-1778. French philosopher and writer whose works epitomize the Age of Enlightenment, often attacking injustice and intolerance. He wrote Candide (1759) and the Philosophical Dictionary (1764).

vol-ta-ism (völ'tə-iz'əm, völ'-, vøl'-) n. See galvanism (n., sense 1).

[VOLTA(IC) + -ISM.]

volt-am-me-ter (völ-täm'mē'tər, völt'äm'-) n. An instrument for measuring electrical current or potential.

volt-am-pere (völt'äm'pîr') n. A unit of electric power equal to the product of one volt and one ampere, equivalent to one watt.

Vol-ta Re-don-da (völ'tä rī-dön'də, -dôn'dä) A city of eastern Brazil on the Paraíba River west-northwest of Rio de Janeiro. Founded in 1941, it is the center of a major steel industry. Population, 180,126.

volte (völt, völt) n. Sports. Variant of volt².

volte-face (völt-fäs', völt'tə-) n. A reversal, as in policy; an about-face.

[French, from Italian voltafaccia: volta (from voltare, to turn); see VAULT² + faccia, face (from Vulgar Latin facia*); see FACE.]

volt-me-ter (völt'mē'tər) n. An instrument, such as a galvanometer, for measuring potential differences in volts.

vol-u-ble (völ'yə-bəl) adj. 1. Marked by a ready flow of speech; fluent. See Synonyms at talkative. 2. a. Turning easily on an axis; rotating. b. Botany. Twining or twisting: a voluble vine. [Middle English, moving easily, from Old French, from Latin volūbilis, revolving, fluent, from volvere, to roll. See wel-² in Appendix.] —vol'u-bil'i-ty, vol'u-ble-ness n. —vol'u-bly adv.

vol-ume (völ'yōm, -yəm) n. 1. Abbr. vol., v. a. A collection of written or printed sheets bound together; a book. b. One of the books of a work printed and bound in more than one book. c. A series of issues of a periodical, usually covering one calendar year. d. A unit of written material assembled together and cataloged in a library. 2. Abbr. vol., v. A roll of parchment; a scroll. 3. Abbr. V a. The amount of space occupied by a three-dimensional object or region of space, expressed in cubic units. b. The capacity of such a region or of a specified container, expressed in cubic units. 4. a. Amount; quantity: a low volume of business; a considerable volume of lumber. b. A large amount. Often used in the plural: volumes of praise. 5. a. The amplitude or loudness of a sound. b. A control, as on a radio, for adjusting amplitude or loudness. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin volūmen, roll of writing, from volvere, to roll. See wel² in Appendix.]

vol·um·ed (vɒl'yoʊmd, -yəmd) adj. 1. Consisting of a volume or volumes. Often used in combination: a large-volumed edition; a many-volumed novel.

2. Formed or moving in rolling or rounded masses: volumed smoke.

vol·u·me·ter (vɒl'yoʊ-mē'tər) n. Any of several instruments for measuring the volume of liquids, solids, or gases. [VOLU(ME) + -METER.]

vol·u·met·ric (vɒl'yoʊ-mēt'rɪk) adj. Of or relating to measurement by volume. [VOLU(ME) + -METRIC.] —vol'u·met'ri·cal·ly adv.

volumetric analysis (vɒl'yoʊ-mēt'rɪk ə-nāl'i-sis) n. 1. Quantitative analysis using accurately measured titrated volumes of standard chemical solutions.

2. Analysis of a gas by volume.

vo·lu·mi·nous (və-lōʊ'mə-nəs) adj. 1. Having great volume, fullness, size, or number: a voluminous trunk; a voluminous cloud. 2. Filling or capable of filling a large volume or many volumes: the voluminous court record of the long trial.

3. Ample or lengthy in speech or writing. 4. Having many coils; winding. [Late Latin volūminōsus, having many folds, from Latin volūmen, volūmin-, roll of writing. See VOLUME.] —vo·lu'mi·nos'i·ty (-nōs'i-tē), vo·lu'mi·nous·ness (-nəs-nīs) n. —vo·lu'mi·nous·ly adv.

vol·un·ta·rism (vɒl'ən-tə-rɪz'əm) n. 1. The use of or reliance on voluntary action to maintain an institution, carry out a policy, or achieve an end. 2. A theory or doctrine that regards the will as the fundamental principle of the individual or of the universe. —vol'un·ta·rist n. —vol'un·ta·ris'tic adj.

vol·un·tar·y (vɒl'ən-tər'ē) adj. 1. Arising from or acting on one's own free will. 2. Acting, serving, or done willingly and without constraint or expectation of reward: a voluntary hostage; voluntary community work. 3. Normally controlled by or subject to individual volition: Respiration is voluntary. 4. Capable of making choices; having the faculty of will. 5. Supported by contributions or charitable donations rather than by government appropriations: voluntary hospitals. 6. Law. a. Without legal obligation or consideration: a voluntary conveyance of property. b. Done deliberately; intentional: voluntary manslaughter. — n. pl.

vol·un·tar·ies. 1. Music. a. A short piece of music, often improvised on a solo instrument, played as an introduction to a larger work. b. A piece for solo organ, often improvised, played before, during, or after a religious service. 2. A volunteer. [Middle English, from Latin voluntārius, from voluntās, choice, from velle, vol-, to wish. See wel¹ in Appendix.] —vol'un·tar'i·ly (-tār'ə-lē) adv.

—vol'un·tar'i·ness n.

SYNONYMS: voluntary, intentional, deliberate, willful, willing. These adjectives mean being or resulting from one's own free will. Voluntary implies the operation of unforced choice: "Ignorance, when it is voluntary, is criminal" (Samuel Johnson). Intentional applies to something undertaken to further a plan or realize an aim: "In whatsoever houses I enter, I will enter to help the sick, and I will abstain from all intentional wrongdoing and harm" (Hippocratic Oath). Deliberate stresses premeditation and full awareness of the character and consequences of one's acts: "In life courtesy and self-possession, and in the arts style, are the sensible impressions of the free mind, for both arise out of a deliberate shaping of all things" (William Butler Yeats). Willful implies deliberate, headstrong persistence in a self-determined course of action: a willful waste of time. Willing suggests ready or cheerful acquiescence in the proposals or requirements of another: "The first requisite of a good citizen... is that he shall be able and willing to pull his weight" (Theodore Roosevelt).

vol·un·tar·y·ism (vŏl'ən-tĕr'ĕ-ĭz'əm) n. Reliance on voluntary contributions rather than government funds, as for churches or schools; voluntarism.

—vol'un·tar'y·ist n.

voluntary muscle (vŏl'ən-tĕr'ĕ müs'əl) n. Muscle, such as striated muscle, normally controlled by individual volition.

vol·un·teer (vŏl'ən-tĭr') n. Abbr. vol. 1. A person who performs or offers to perform a service of his or her own free will: an information booth staffed by volunteers; hospital volunteers. 2. Law. a. A person who renders aid, performs a service, or assumes an obligation voluntarily. b. A person who holds property under a deed made without consideration. 3. Botany. A cultivated plant growing from self-sown or accidentally dropped seed. — adj. 1. Being, consisting of, or done by volunteers: volunteer firefighters; volunteer tutoring. 2. Botany. Growing from self-sown or accidentally dropped seed. Used of a cultivated plant or crop. — v.

vol·un·teered, vol·un·teer·ing, vol·un·teers. — v. tr. To give or offer to give voluntarily: volunteered their services; volunteer to give blood. — v. intr.

1. To perform or offer to perform a service of one's own free will. 2. To do charitable or helpful work without pay: Many retirees volunteer in community service and day care centers. [Obsolete French voluntaire, from Old French, voluntary, from Latin voluntārius. See VOLUNTARY.]

vol·un·teer·ism (vŏl'ən-tĭr'ĭz'əm) n. Use of or reliance on volunteers, especially to perform social or educational work in communities.

vo·lup·tu·ar·y (və-lŭp'chŏō-ĕr'ĕ) n. pl. vo·lup·tu·ar·ies. A person whose life is given over to luxury and sensual pleasures; a sensualist: "an adventurous voluptuary, angling in all streams for variety of pleasures" (Thomas De Quincey).

[French voluptuaire, from Old French, from Late Latin voluptuārius, variant of Latin voluptārius, devoted to pleasure, from voluptās, pleasure. See wel-¹ in Appendix.] —vo·lup'tu·ar'y adj.

vo·lup·tu·ous (və-lŭp'tchōō-əs) adj. 1. Giving, characterized by, or suggesting ample, unrestrained pleasure to the senses: voluptuous sculptural forms; a voluptuous ripe fruit; a full, voluptuous figure. 2. a. Devoted to or indulging in sensual pleasures. b. Directed toward or anticipating sensual pleasure: voluptuous thoughts. c. Arising from or contributing to the satisfaction of sensuous or sensual desires. See Synonyms at sensuous. [Middle English, from Old French voluptueux, from Latin voluptuosus, full of pleasure, from voluptās, pleasure. See wel-¹ in Appendix.] —vo·lup'tu·ous·ly adv. —vo·lup'tu·ous·ness n.

vo·lute (və-lōōt') n. 1. A spiral, scroll-like ornament such as that used on an Ionic capital. 2. a. A spiral formation, such as one of the whorls of a gastropod shell. b. Any of various marine gastropod mollusks of the family Volutidae, having a spiral, often colorfully marked shell. [French, from Italian voluta, from Latin volūta, from feminine past participle of volvere, to turn, roll. See wel-² in Appendix.] —vo·lut'ed (-lōō'tīd) adj.

vol·u·tin (völ'yə-tīn, və-lōōt'n) n. A granular substance that stains easily with a basic dye and is often rich in phosphorus, found in the cytoplasm of various bacterial and fungal cells. [German, from New Latin (Spirillum) volūtāns, species of bacterium in which it was first found, from Latin volūtāns, present participle of volūtāre, to roll around frequentative of volvere, to roll. See wel-² in Appendix.]

vo·lu·tion (və-lōō'shən) n. 1. A turn or twist about a center; a spiral.

2. Zoology. One of the whorls of a spiral gastropod shell. [From Latin volūtus, past participle of volvere, to turn. See VOLUTE.]

vol·va (völ'və, vël'-) n. A cuplike structure around the base of the stalk of certain fungi. [Latin, a covering. See wel-² in Appendix.] —vol'vate' (-vāt') adj.

vol·vent (völ'vənt) n. A pear-shaped nematocyst that ejects a thick thread which coils around and immobilizes prey. [From Latin volvēns, volvent- present participle of volvere, to turn. See VOLVOX.]

vol·vox (völ'vöks', vël'-) n. Any of various freshwater green algae of the genus Volvox that form hollow, spherical multicellular colonies. [New Latin Volvox, genus name, from Latin volvere, to roll. See wel-² in Appendix.]

vol·vu·lus (völ'vyə-ləs, vël'-) n. Abnormal twisting of the intestine causing obstruction. [New Latin, from Latin volvere, to turn. See VOLVOX.]

Volzh·skiy (vëlzh'skē, vëlsh'-) A city of southwest Russia on the Volga River, a manufacturing suburb of Volgograd. Population, 245,000.

vo·mer (vō'mər) n. A thin flat bone forming the inferior and posterior part of the nasal septum and dividing the nostrils in most vertebrates. [Latin vōmer, plowshare.] —vo'mer·ine' (-mə-rīn') adj.

vom·i·ca (vöm'ī-kə) n. pl. vom·i·cae (-sē'). 1. Profuse expectoration of putrid matter. 2. a. An abnormal pus-containing cavity, usually in a lung, caused by deterioration of tissue. b. The pus contained in such a cavity. [Latin, ulcer, from vomere, to vomit. See VOMIT.]

vom·it (vŏm'it) v. vom·it·ed, vom·it·ing, vom·its. — v. intr. 1. To eject part or all of the contents of the stomach through the mouth, usually in a series of involuntary spasmodic movements. 2. To be discharged forcefully and abundantly; spew or gush: The dike burst, and the flood waters vomited forth. — v. tr. 1. To eject (contents of the stomach) through the mouth. 2. To eject or discharge in a gush; spew out: a volcano that vomited lava and ash. — n. 1. The act or an instance of ejecting matter from the stomach through the mouth. 2. Matter ejected from the stomach through the mouth. 3. An emetic. [Middle English vomiten, from Latin vomitāre, frequentative of vomere. See wemə- in Appendix.]
—vom'it·er n.

vom·i·tive (vŏm'i-tīv) adj. Relating to or causing vomiting. — n. An emetic.

vom·i·to·ry (vŏm'i-tŏr'ē, -tŏr'ē) adj. Inducing vomiting; vomitive. — n. pl.

vom·i·to·ries. 1. Something that induces vomiting. 2. An aperture through which matter is discharged. 3. One of the passageways of an amphitheater or a stadium leading from the outside wall or passageway to the seats.

vom·i·tu·ri·tion (vŏm'i-chə-rīsh'ən, -ī-tŏ-) n. Forceful attempts at vomiting without bringing up the contents of the stomach; retching. [VOMIT + (MICT)URI-TION.]

vom·i·tus (vŏm'i-təs) n. Vomited matter. [Latin, from past participle of vomere, to vomit. See VOMIT.]

Von·ne·gut (vŏn'ī-gət), Kurt, Jr. Born 1922. American writer whose works show compassion and humor in the midst of the violence and alienation of modern life. His novels include Cat's Cradle (1963) and Slaughterhouse Five (1969).

Von Neu·mann (vŏn noi'män'), John. 1903-1957. Hungarian-born American mathematician noted for his contributions to game theory and quantum theory.

von Wil·le·brand's disease (vŏn wīl'ə-brändz' dī-zēz', fŏn vīl'ə-brānts') n. A hereditary disease characterized by prolonged bleeding from the skin and mucous surfaces caused by abnormalities of the capillaries. [After Erik Adolf von Willebrand (1870-1949), Finnish physician.]

voo·doo (vŏo'dŏo) n. pl. voo·doos. 1. A religion practiced chiefly in Caribbean countries, especially Haiti, syncretized from Roman Catholic ritual elements and the animism and magic of Dahomean slaves, in which a supreme God rules a large pantheon of local and tutelary deities, deified ancestors, and saints, who communicate with believers in dreams, trances, and ritual possessions. Also called vodoun 2. A charm, fetish, spell, or curse holding magic power for adherents of voodoo. 3. A practitioner, priest, or priestess of voodoo. In this sense, also called hoodoo — v. tr. voo·dooed, voo·doo·ing, voo·doos. To place under the influence of a spell or curse; bewitch. [Louisiana French voudou, from Ewe vodu, and Fon vodun.] —voo'doo adj.

voo-doo-ism (vōō'dōō-īz'əm) n. 1. The practice and doctrines of voodoo. 2. The practice of sorcery or witchcraft. —voo'doo-ist n. —voo'doo-is'tic adj.

vo-ra-cious (vô-rā'shəs, və-) adj. 1. Consuming or eager to consume great amounts of food; ravenous. 2. Having or marked by an insatiable appetite for an activity or a pursuit; greedy: a voracious reader. [From Latin vorāx, vorāc-, from vorāre, to swallow, devour.] —vo-ra'cious-ly adv. —vo-rac'i-ty (-rās'ī-tē), vo-ra'cious-ness (-rā'shəs-nīs) n.

SYNONYMS: voracious, gluttonous, rapacious, ravenous. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “having or marked by boundless greed”: a voracious observer of the political scene; a gluttonous appetite; rapacious demands; ravenous for power.

Vor-ku-ta (vôr-kōō'tə, vôr'kōō-tä) A city of northwest Russia above the Arctic Circle. It was founded in 1932 to accommodate extensive penal-labor camps. The camps were reportedly closed after the death of Stalin in 1953. Population, 108,000.

vor-la-ge (fôr'lä'gə, fôr'-) n. Sports. A posture assumed in skiing in which the skier leans forward from the ankles, usually without lifting the heels. [German : vor, forward, before (from Middle High German, from Old High German fora); see per¹ in Appendix + Lage, stance (from Middle High German lāge, from Old High German lāga, act of laying); see leg*h- in Appendix.]

Vo-ro-nezh (və-rô'nīsh) A city of western Russia on the Don River southwest of Lipetsk. Founded as a frontier fortress in 1586, it was a shipbuilding center during the reign of Peter the Great. Population, 850,000.

Vo-ro-shi-lov (vôr'ə-shē'lôf', -ləf), Kliment Efremovich. 1881-1969. Soviet military and political leader. He fought in the civil war (1918-1920) following the Russian Revolution of 1917 and later served as a member of the politburo (1926-1960) and as commissar for defense (1925-1940).

Vo-ro-shi-lov-grad (vôr'ə-shē'ləf-gräd', və-rə-shē-ləf-grät') A city of western Ukraine in the Donets Basin southeast of Kharkov. A coal-mining center, it was founded c. 1795. Population, 497,000.

-vorous suff. Eating; feeding on: vermivorous. [From Latin -vorus, from vorāre, to swallow, devour.]

Vorst (vôrst) also Fo-rest (fô-rě') A city of central Belgium, a manufacturing suburb of Brussels. Population, 50,260.

Vor-ster (fôr'stər), Balthazar Johannes. 1915-1983. South African political leader who served as prime minister from 1966 to 1978.

vor-tex (vôr'těks') n. pl. vor-tex-es or vor-ti-ces (-tĭ-sēz'). 1. A spiral motion of fluid within a limited area, especially a whirling mass of water or air that sucks everything near it toward its center. 2. A place or situation regarded as drawing into its center all that surrounds it: "As happened with so many theater actors, he was swept up in the vortex of Hollywood" (New York Times). [Latin vortex, vortic-, variant of vertex, from vertere, to turn. See ver-2 in Appendix.]

vor-ti-cal (vôr'tĭ-kəl) adj. Of, relating to, or moving in a vortex; whirling.
—vor'ti-cal-ly adv.

vor-ti-cel-la (vôr'tĭ-sĕl'ə) n. pl. vor-ti-cel-lae (-sĕl'ĕ) or vor-ti-cel-las. Any of various ciliate protozoans of the genus Vorticella, having a bell-shaped body and living underwater on a slender stalk often attached to a plant or other object.

[New Latin Vorticella, genus name, from Latin vortex, vortic-, vortex. See VORTEX.]

vor-ti-ces (vôr'tĭ-sēz') n. A plural of vortex.

vor-ti-cism (vôr'tĭ-sĭz'əm) n. A short-lived English movement in art and literature that arose in 1914 and was heavily influenced by cubism and futurism.

vor-ti-cose (vôr'tĭ-kōs') adj. Vortical.

vor-tig-i-nous (vôr-tĭj'ə-nəs) adj. Vortical. [Blend of VORTEX, and VERTIGINOUS.]

Vosges (vōzh) A mountain range of northeast France extending about 193 km (120 mi) parallel to the Rhine River. The mountains have rounded or nearly flat summits.

vo-ta-ry (vō'tə-rĕ) n. pl. vo-ta-ries. 1. a. A person bound by vows to live a life of religious worship or service. b. A devout adherent of a cult or religion; a committed worshiper: the votaries of Aphrodite. 2. A person who is fervently devoted, as to a leader or an ideal; a faithful follower. 3. A person who is filled with enthusiasm, as for a pursuit or hobby; an enthusiast. [From Latin vōtum, vow. See VOTE.]

SYNONYMS: votary, devotee, habitué. These nouns refer to one who is devoted to a person, a cause, or an activity. Both votary and devotee originally referred to religious dedication but can also denote attachment to a pursuit such as a branch of learning or enthusiasm for something such as a hobby: "the cultured votary of science" (Francis Marion Crawford). "The almighty dollar, that great object of universal devotion throughout our land, seems to have no genuine devotees in these peculiar villages" (Washington Irving). A habitué regularly frequents a place, especially one offering a particular pleasurable activity: a habitué of the racetrack.

vote (vōt) n. 1. a. A formal expression of preference for a candidate for office or for a proposed resolution of an issue. b. A means by which such a preference is made known, such as a raised hand or a marked ballot. 2. The number of votes cast in an election or to resolve an issue: a heavy vote in favor of the bill.

3. A group of voters alike in some way: the Black vote; the rural vote. 4. The act or process of voting: took a vote on the issue. 5. The result of an election or a referendum. 6. The right to participate as a voter; suffrage. — v. vot-ed, vot-ing, votes. — v. intr. 1. To express one's preference for a candidate or for a proposed resolution of an issue; cast a vote: voted yes on the motion; voting against the measure. 2. To express a choice or an opinion. — v. tr. 1. To express one's preference for by vote: voted the straight Republican ticket. 2. To decide the disposition of by vote, as by electing or defeating: vote in a new mayor; voted out their representative; vote down the amendment. 3. To bring into existence or make available by vote: vote new funds for a program. 4. To be guided by in voting: vote one's conscience. 5. To declare or pronounce by general consent: voted the play a success. 6. Informal. To state as a preference or an opinion: I vote we eat out tonight. — idiom. vote with (one's) feet. Slang. To indicate a preference or an opinion by leaving or entering a particular locale: "If older cities are allowed to decay and contract, can citizens who vote with their feet... hope to find better conditions anywhere else?" (Melinda Beck). [Middle English, vow, from Latin vōtum, from neuter past participle of vovēre, to vow.] — vot'a-ble, vote'a-ble adj.

—vot'er n.

vote getter (vōt gět'ər) n. Informal. A candidate successful in attracting votes: a runoff between the two top vote getters.

vote-less (vōt'lis) adj. Having no vote; denied a vote or the right to vote.

vot-ing machine (vō'tĩng mə-shēn') n. An apparatus for use in polling places that mechanically records and counts votes.

vo-tive (vō'tiv) adj. 1. Given or dedicated in fulfillment of a vow or pledge: a votive offering. 2. Expressing or symbolizing a wish, desire, or vow: a votive prayer; votive candles. [Latin vōtīvus, from vōtum, vow. See VOTE.] — vo'tive-ly adv.

votive Mass (vō'tiv mäs) n. Roman Catholic Church. A Mass differing from the one prescribed for the day, said for a specific purpose or at the discretion of the priest.

vou. abbr. Voucher.

vouch (vouch) v. vouched, vouch-ing, vouch-es. — v. intr. 1. To give personal assurances; give a guarantee: vouch for an old friend's trustworthiness. 2. To constitute supporting evidence; give substantiation: a candidate whose strong record vouches for her ability. — v. tr. 1. To substantiate by supplying evidence; prove: charges that he could not vouch. 2. Law. To summon as a witness to give warranty of title. 3. To refer to (an authority, for example) in support or corroboration; cite. 4. To assert; declare. — n. Obsolete. A declaration of opinion; an assertion. [Middle English vouchen, to summon to court, warrant, from Anglo-Norman voucher, probably from Vulgar Latin voticāre*, alteration of Latin vocitāre, frequentative of vocāre, to call. See wek^w- in Appendix.]

vouch-er (vou'chər) n. Abbr. vou. 1. A piece of substantiating evidence; a proof. 2. A written record of an expenditure, a disbursement, or a completed transaction. 3. A written authorization or certificate, especially one exchangeable for cash or representing a credit against future expenditures. — v. tr.

vouch-ered, vouch-er-ing, vouch-ers. 1. To substantiate or authenticate with evidence. 2. To prepare a voucher for: properly vouchering each transaction.

3. To issue a voucher to: a company that vouchers employees when the payroll cannot be met.

vouch-safe (vouch-sāf', vouch'sāf') v. tr. vouch-safed, vouch-saf-ing, vouch-safes. To condescend to grant or bestow (a privilege, for example); deign. See Synonyms at grant. [Middle English vouchen sauf, to warrant as safe : vouchen, to warrant; see VOUCH + sauf, safe; see SAFE.] —vouch-safe'ment n.

vous-soir (vōō-swär') n. One of the wedge-shaped stones forming the curved parts of an arch or a vaulted ceiling. [French, from Old French vossoir, from Vulgar Latin volsōrium*, from volsus*, past participle of Latin volvere, to turn, roll. See wel² in Appendix.]

Vou-vray (vōō-vrā') n. A dry white table wine from central France. [After Vouvray, a village of west-central France.]

vow¹ (vou) n. 1. An earnest promise to perform a specified act or behave in a certain manner, especially a solemn promise to live and act in accordance with the rules of a religious order: take the vows of a nun. 2. A declaration or an assertion. — v. vowed, vow-ing, vows. — v. tr. 1. To promise solemnly; pledge. See Synonyms at promise. 2. To make a pledge or threat to undertake: vowing revenge on their persecutors. — v. intr. To make a vow; promise. [Middle English vou, from Old French, from Latin vōtum. See VOTE.] —vow'er n.

vow² (vou) v. tr. To declare or assert: “Well, I vow it is as fine a boy as ever was seen!” (Henry Fielding). [Short for AVOW.]

vow-el (vou'əl) n. Abbr. v. 1. A speech sound created by the relatively free passage of breath through the larynx and oral cavity, usually forming the most prominent and central sound of a syllable. 2. A letter, such as a, e, i, o, u, and sometimes y in the English alphabet, that represents a vowel. [Middle English vowelle, from Old French vouel, from Latin (littera) vōcālis, sounding (letter), from vōx, vōc-, voice. See wek^{w-} in Appendix.]

vowel fracture (vou'əl frāk'chər) n. Linguistics. Breaking.

vow-el-ize (vou'ə-līz') v. tr. vow-el-ized, vow-el-iz-ing, vow-el-iz-es. To provide with vowel points. —vow'el-i-za'tion (-ə-lī-zā'shən) n.

vowel mutation (vou'əl myōō-tā'shən) n. Linguistics. See umlaut (n., sense 1).

vowel point (vou'əl point) n. Any of a number of diacritical marks written above or below consonants to indicate a preceding or following vowel in languages that are usually written without vowel letters, as Hebrew and Arabic.

vox an-gel-i-ca (vöks' än-jël'ĩ-kə) n. pl. vox an-gel-i-cas. Music. See voix céleste. [New Latin vōx angelica : Latin vōx, voice + Late Latin angelicus, angelic.]

vox hu-ma-na (vöks' hyō-mā'nə, -mä'-, -mǎn'ə) n. pl. vox hu-ma-nas.

Music. An organ reed stop that produces tones imitative of the human voice.

[New Latin vōx hūmāna : Latin vōx, voice + Latin hūmānus, human.]

vox pop-u-li (vöks' pöp'yə-lī', -lē) n. Popular opinion or sentiment. [Latin vōx populī : vōx, voice + populī, genitive of populus, people.]

voy-age (voi'ij) n. 1. A long journey, as: a. A journey by sea to a foreign or distant land. b. A journey by land to distant parts. c. A journey through outer space. 2. Often voyages. a. The events of a journey of exploration or discovery considered as material for a narrative. b. Such a narrative. — v.

voy-aged, voy-ag-ing, voy-ag-es. — v. intr. To make a voyage. — v. tr. To sail across; traverse: voyaged the western ocean. [Middle English, from Old French veyage, from Late Latin viaticum, a journey, from Latin, provisions for a journey, from neuter of viaticus, of a journey, from via, road. See wegh- in Appendix.] —voy'ag-er n.

voy-a-geur (voi'ə-zhûr', vwä'yä-zhœr') n. pl. voy-a-geurs (-zhûr', -zhœr').

A woodsman, boatman, or guide employed by a fur company to transport goods and supplies between remote stations in Canada or the U.S. Northwest. [French, traveler, from voyager, to travel, from voyage, journey, from Old French veyage. See VOYAGE.]

voy-eur (voi-yûr') n. 1. A person who derives sexual gratification from observing the naked bodies or sexual acts of others, especially from a secret vantage point. 2. An obsessive observer of sordid or sensational subjects. [French, from Old French, one who lies in wait, from voir, to see, from Latin vidēre, to see. See weid- in Appendix.] —voy-eur'ism n. —voy'eur-is'tic adj.

—voy'eur-is'ti-cal-ly adv.

Voz-ne-sen-ski (vöz'nə-sěn'skē), Andrei. Born 1933. Soviet poet whose collections of verse include Parabola (1960) and The Triangular Pear (1962).

VP abbr. 1. Variable pitch. 2. Verb phrase. 3. Or V.P. Vice president.

Vra-tsa (vrät'sə, vrät'sä) A city of northwest Bulgaria north-northeast of Sofia. It is a commercial center and railroad junction. Population, 77,000.

Vree-land (vrē'lənd), Diana Dalziel. 1903-1989. French-born American editor and fashion expert. She was editor in chief of Vogue (1963-1971) and a special consultant to the Costume Institute of the Metropolitan Museum of Art (1972-1989).

VRM abbr. Variable-rate mortgage.

vroom (vrōm, vrōm) also va-room (və-rōm', -rōm') n. The loud, roaring noise of an engine operating at high speed. — v. intr. vroomed also va·roomed, vroom·ing also va·room·ing, vrooms also va·rooms. To move noisily at high speed in or as if in a motor vehicle. [Imitative.]

vs. abbr. Versus.

v.s. abbr. Latin. Vide supra (see above).

V.S. abbr. Veterinary surgeon.

V sign (vē sīn) n. A hand sign indicating victory, solidarity, or approval, formed by holding the raised index and middle fingers in the shape of a V.

vss. abbr. 1. Verses. 2. Versions.

V/STOL abbr. Vertical short takeoff and landing.

VT abbr. 1. Vacuum tube. 2. Variable time. 3. Also Vt. Vermont.

VT fuze (vē'tē' fyōōz) n. See proximity fuze. [v(ariab)l(e) t(ime) fuze.]

VTOL abbr. Vertical takeoff and landing.

VTR abbr. Videotape recorder.

vug (vŭg, vōōg) n. A small cavity in a rock or vein, often with a mineral lining of different composition from that of the surrounding rock. [Cornish vooga.]

Vuil·lard (vwē-yär'), (Jean) Édouard. 1868-1940. French postimpressionist painter whose works include Public Gardens (1894) and Characters in Interiors (1896).

Vul. abbr. Vulgate.

Vul·can (vŭl'kən) n. Roman Mythology. The god of fire and metalworking. [Latin Volcānus, Vulcānus.] vul·ca·ni·an (vŭl'kā'nē-ən) adj. 1. Geology. Of, relating to, or originating from an explosive volcanic eruption. 2. Vulcanian. Roman Mythology. Of or relating to Vulcan. 3. Of or relating to metalworking or craft.

vul·ca·nism (vŭl'kə-nīz'əm) n. Variant of volcanism.

vul·ca·nite (vŭl'kə-nīt') n. A hard rubber produced by vulcanization.

vul·ca·nize (vŭl'kə-nīz') v. tr. vul·ca·nized, vul·ca·niz·ing, vul·ca·niz·es.

To improve the strength, resiliency, and freedom from stickiness and odor of (rubber, for example) by combining with sulfur or other additives in the presence of heat and pressure. —vul'ca·niz'able adj. —vul'ca·ni·za'tion (-nī-zā'shən) n. —vul'ca·niz'er n.

vul·ca·nol·o·gy (vŭl'kə-nōl'ə-jē) n. Variant of volcanology.

—vul'ca·nol'o·gist n.

vulg. abbr. Vulgar.

Vulg. abbr. Vulgate.

vul·gar (vŭl'gər) adj. 1. Of or associated with the great masses of people; common. 2. Abbr. vulg. Spoken by or expressed in language spoken by the common people; vernacular: the technical and vulgar names for an animal species.

3. a. Deficient in taste, delicacy, or refinement. b. Marked by a lack of good breeding; boorish. See Synonyms at common. c. Offensively excessive in self-display or expenditure; ostentatious: the huge vulgar houses and cars of the newly rich. 4. Abbr. vulg. Crudely indecent. See Synonyms at coarse. [Middle English, from Latin vulgāris, from vulgus, the common people.] —vul'gar·ly adv. —vul'gar·ness n.

WORD HISTORY: The word vulgar brings to mind off-color jokes, but this was not always so. Ironically the word vulgar is itself an example of pejoration, the process by which the semantic status of a word changes for the worse over a period of time. The ancestor of vulgar, the Latin word vulgāris (from vulgus, “the common people”), meant “of or belonging to the common people, everyday,” as well as “belonging to or associated with the lower orders.” Vulgāris also meant “ordinary,” “common (of vocabulary, for example),” and “shared by all.” Its only sense of the sort we might expect was related to the notion of general sharing, that is, “sexually promiscuous.” Our word, first recorded in a work composed in 1391, entered English during the Middle English period, and in Middle English and later English we find not only the senses mentioned above but also related senses. What is common can be seen as debased, and in the 17th century we begin to find instances of vulgar that made very explicit what was already implicit. Vulgar now meant “deficient in taste, delicacy, or refinement.” From such use vulgar has gone downhill, and at present “crudely indecent” is probably one of the first senses of vulgar that occurs to many when the word is used.

vul·gar·i·an (vŭl-gâr'ē-ən) n. A vulgar person, especially one who makes a conspicuous display of wealth. See Synonyms at boor.

vul·gar·ism (vŭl'gə-rīz'əm) n. 1. Vulgarity. 2. a. A crudely indecent word or phrase; an obscenity. b. A word, phrase, or manner of expression used chiefly by uneducated people.

vul·gar·i·ty (vŭl-gâr'ī-tē) n. pl. vul·gar·i·ties. 1. The quality or condition of being vulgar. 2. Something, such as an act or expression, that offends good taste or propriety.

vul·gar·ize (vŭl'gə-rīz') v. tr. vul·gar·ized, vul·gar·iz·ing, vul·gar·iz·es.
1. To make vulgar; debase: “What appalls him is the sheer cheesiness of TV iniquity. Television has even vulgarized hell” (Jack Kroll). 2. To disseminate widely; popularize. —vul'gar·i·za'tion (-gər-ĭ-zā'shən) n. —vul'gar·iz'er n.

Vul·gar Latin (vŭl'gər lăt'n) n. Abbr. VL The common speech of the ancient Romans, which is distinguished from standard literary Latin and is the ancestor of the Romance languages.

vul·gate (vŭl'gāt', -gīt) n. 1. The common speech of a people; the vernacular. 2. A widely accepted text or version of a work. 3. Vulgate. Abbr. Vulg., Vul. The Latin edition or translation of the Bible made by Saint Jerome at the end of the fourth century A.D., now used in a revised form as the Roman Catholic authorized version. [Medieval Latin Vulgāta, from Late Latin vulgāta (ēditio), popular (edition), from Latin, feminine past participle of vulgāre, to make known to all, from vulgus, the common people.]

vul·ner·a·ble (vŭl'nər-ə-bəl) adj. 1. a. Susceptible to physical injury.

b. Susceptible to attack: “We are vulnerable both by water and land, without either fleet or army” (Alexander Hamilton). c. Open to censure or criticism; assailable.

2. a. Liable to succumb, as to persuasion or temptation. b. Games. In a position to receive greater penalties or bonuses as a result of having won one game of a rubber. Used of bridge partners. [Late Latin vulnerābilis, wounding, from Latin vulnerāre, to wound, from vulnus, vulner-, wound. See welə- in Appendix.] —vul'ner·a·bil'i·ty, vul'ner·a·ble·ness n. —vul'ner·a·bly adv.

vul·ner·ar·y (vŭl'nə-rēr'ē) adj. Used in the healing or treating of wounds. —

n. pl. vul·ner·ar·ies. A remedy used in healing or treating wounds. [Latin vulnerārius, from vulnus, vulner-, wound. See VULNERABLE.]

Vul·pec·u·la (vŭl-pĕk'yə-lə) n. A constellation in the celestial Northern Hemisphere near Cygnus and Sagitta. [New Latin, from Latin vulpēcula, diminutive of vulpēs, fox. See VULPINE.] vul·pec·u·lar (vŭl-pĕk'yə-lər) adj. Vulpine.

vul·pine (vŭl'pīn') adj. 1. Of, resembling, or characteristic of a fox.

2. Cunning. [Latin vulpīnus, from vulpēs, fox. See wļp-ē- in Appendix.]

vul·ture (vŭl'chər) n. 1. Any of various large birds of prey of the New World family Cathartidae or of the Old World family Accipitridae, characteristically having dark plumage and a featherless head and neck and generally feeding on carrion. 2. A person of a rapacious, predatory, or profiteering nature. [Middle English, from Old French voltour, from Latin vultur.] vul·tur·ine (vŭl'chə-rīn') also vul·tur·ous (-chər-əs) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or characteristic of a vulture. 2. Rapacious; predatory.

vul·va (vŭl'və) n. pl. vul·vae (-vĕ). The external genital organs of the female, including the labia majora, labia minora, clitoris, and vestibule of the vagina.

[Latin, womb, covering. See wel-² in Appendix.] —vul'val, vul'var (-vər, -vār') adj. —vul'vate' (-vāt', -vīt) adj. —vul'vi·form' (-və-fôrm') adj.

vul·vec·to·my (vŭl-vĕk'tə-mĕ) n. pl. vul·vec·to·mies. Surgical removal of the vulva.

vul·vi·tis (vŭl-vī'tis) n. Inflammation of the vulva.

vul·vo·vag·i·ni·tis (vŭl'vō-vāj'ə-nī'tis) n. Inflammation of the vulva and vagina.

vum (vŭm) interj. New England. Used to express surprise. [Alteration of vow².]

REGIONAL NOTE: A New Englander expressing surprise is liable to say, “Well, I vum!” This odd-sounding word is in fact an alteration of the verb vow that goes back to the days of the American Revolution. It is also heard simply as “Vum!” or as a sort of past participle: “I’ll be vummed!” A southern equivalent is swanny, also meaning “swear”: Now, I swanny! According to the Oxford English Dictionary, the word swanny derives from the dialect of the North of England: Is’ wan ye, “I shall warrant ye.”

vv. abbr. Verses.

v.v. abbr. Vice versa.

Vyat·ka (vyät’kə) A river, about 1,368 km (850 mi) long, of western Russia rising in the foothills of the Ural Mountains and flowing west, south, and southeast to the Kama River.

Vy·borg (vĕ’bôrg’, -bærk) A city of northwest Russia northwest of St. Petersburg on the Gulf of Finland near the Finnish border. A Swedish castle was built here in 1293 and captured by Russian forces in 1710. Population, 80,000.

Vy·cheg·da (vĭch’ĭg-də) A river, about 1,126 km (700 mi) long, of northwest Russia flowing generally westward to the Northern Dvina River.

vy·ing (vĭ’ĭng) v. Present participle of vie.

w¹ or W (düb'əl-yōō, -yōō) n. pl. w's or W's. 1. The 23rd letter of the modern English alphabet. 2. Any of the speech sounds represented by the letter w. 3. The 23rd in a series. 4. Something shaped like the letter W.

w² abbr. Physics. Work.

W¹ The symbol for the element tungsten. [German Wolfram. See WOLFRAM.]

W² abbr. 1. Electricity. Watt. 2. Also W. or w or w.. West; western.

w. abbr. 1. Week. 2. Weight. 3. Wide. 4. Width. 5. Wife. 6. With.

W. abbr. 1. Wednesday. 2. Welsh.

WA abbr. 1. Washington. 2. With average.

WAAC abbr. Women's Army Auxiliary Corps.

WAAF abbr. Women's Auxiliary Air Force.

Waal (väl) The southern branch of the Lower Rhine River in southern Netherlands, rising near the German border and flowing about 84 km (52 mi) generally westward to join the Maas River.

Waals (wôlz, vâls), Johannes Diderik van der. 1837-1923. Dutch physicist. He won a 1910 Nobel Prize for work on the properties of liquids and gases.

Wa·ba·na·ki (wä'bə-nä'kē) n. pl. Wabanaki or Wa·ba·na·kis. See Abenaki.

Wa·bash (wô'băsh') A river of the east-central United States rising in western Ohio and flowing about 764 km (475 mi) generally southwest across Indiana and southward on the Indiana-Illinois border to the Ohio River.

wab·ble (wöb'əl) v. & n. Variant of wobble.

WAC¹ or Wac (wăk) n. A member of the Women's Army Corps, organized during World War II, but now no longer a separate branch.

WAC² abbr. Women's Army Corps.

Wace (wās, wäs), fl. 12th century. Anglo-Norman poet whose adaptation of Arthurian legend, Roman de Brut (1155), was the first to mention the Round Table.

wack (wăk) n. Slang. A person regarded as eccentric. [Back-formation from WACKY.]

wack·o (wăk'ō) also whack·o (hwăk'ō, wăk'ō) n. pl. wack·os. Slang. A person regarded as eccentric: "a catchy pop portrait of a wacko who talks to himself in French" (Phoebe Hoban). [Alteration of WACKY.] —wack'o adj.

wack·y (wăk'ē) also whack·y (hwăk'ē, wăk'ē) adj. wack·i·er, wack·i·est. Slang. 1. Eccentric: a wacky person. 2. Crazy; silly: a wacky outfit. [Variant of whacky, probably from the phrase out of whack. See WHACK.] —wack'i·ly adv. —wack'i·ness n.

Wa·co (wā'kō) A city of east-central Texas south of Dallas-Fort Worth. A shipping and industrial center, it is also the seat of Baylor University (established 1845). Population, 103,590.

wad (wɔd) n. 1. A small mass of soft material, often folded or rolled, used for padding, stuffing, or packing. 2. A compressed ball, roll, or lump, as of tobacco. 3. a. A plug, as of cloth or paper, used to retain a powder charge in a muzzleloading gun or cannon. b. A disk, as of felt or paper, used to keep the powder and shot in place in a shotgun cartridge. 4. Informal. A large amount: a wad of troubles. 5. Informal. a. A sizable roll of paper money. b. A considerable amount of money. — v. wad-ded, wad-ding, wads. — v. tr. 1. To compress into a wad. 2. To pad, pack, line, or plug with wadding. 3. a. To hold (shot or powder) in place with a wad. b. To insert a wad into (a firearm). — v. intr. To form into a wad. [Origin unknown.]

Wad-den-zee (väd'n-zā') An inlet of the North Sea off northern Netherlands between the IJsselmeer and the West Frisian Islands.

wad-die (wɔd'ē) n. Western U.S. Variant of waddy².

wad-ding (wɔd'ing) n. 1. a. A wad. b. Wads considered as a group. 2. A soft layer of fibrous cotton or wool used for padding or stuffing. 3. Material for gun wads.

Wad-ding-ton (wɔd'ing-tən), Mount. A peak, 3,996.7 m (13,104 ft) high, in southwest British Columbia, Canada. It is the highest elevation in the Coast Mountains.

wad-dle (wɔd'l) v. intr. wad-dled, wad-dling, wad-dles. 1. To walk with short steps that tilt the body from side to side. 2. To walk heavily and clumsily with a pronounced sway. — n. A swaying gait: the waddle of ducks. [Frequentative of WADE.] — wad'dler n.

wad-dy¹ (wɔd'ē) Australian. n. pl. wad-dies. A heavy straight stick or club thrown as a weapon by aborigines. — v. tr. wad-died (wɔd'ēd), wad-dy-ing, wad-dies (wɔd'ēz). To strike with a waddy. [Dharuk (Aboriginal language of southeast Australia) wadi.]

wad-dy² also wad-die (wɔd'ē) n. pl. wad-dies. Western U.S. 1. See cowboy (n., sense 1). 2. A cattle rustler. [Origin unknown.]

wade (wād) v. wad-ed, wad-ing, wades. — v. intr. 1. To walk in or through water or something else that similarly impedes normal movement. 2. To make one's way arduously: waded through a boring report. — v. tr. To cross or pass through (water, for example) with difficulty: wade a swift creek. — n. The act or an instance of wading. — phrasal verb. wade in (or wade into). To plunge into, begin, or attack resolutely and energetically: waded into the task. [Middle English waden, from Old English wadan.]

Wade (wād), Benjamin Franklin. 1800-1878. American politician who served as a U.S. senator from Ohio (1851-1869) and jointly authored the Wade-Davis Manifesto (1864), which declared the primacy of Congress in matters of the Reconstruction.

wad·er (wā'dər) n. 1. See wading bird. 2. waders. Waterproof hip boots or trousers worn especially by people while fishing.

wa·di also wa·dy (wä'dē) n. pl. wa·dis also wa·dies. 1. a. A valley, gully, or streambed in northern Africa and southwest Asia that remains dry except during the rainy season. b. A stream that flows through such a channel. 2. An oasis.

[Arabic wādī.]

wad·ing bird (wā'dīng bûrd) n. A long-legged bird, such as a crane, heron, or stork, that frequents shallow water, especially in search of food. Also called wader

Wads·worth (wōdz'wûrth') A city of northeast Ohio, an industrial suburb of Akron. Population, 15,718.

wa·dy (wä'dē) n. Variant of wadi.

WAF¹ or Waf (wäf) n. A member of the Women in the Air Force, organized after World War II, but now no longer a separate branch. [Abbreviation of Women in the Air Force.]

WAF² abbr. Women in the Air Force.

wa·fer (wā'fər) n. 1. A small, thin, crisp cake, biscuit, or candy.

2. Ecclesiastical. A small, thin disk of unleavened bread used in the Eucharist.

3. Pharmacology. A flat tablet of rice paper or dried flour paste encasing a powdered drug. 4. A small disk of adhesive material used as a seal for papers.

5. Electronics. A small, thin, circular slice of a semiconducting material, such as pure silicon, on which an integrated circuit can be formed. — v. tr. wa·fered, wa·fer·ing, wa·fers.

1. To seal or fasten together with a disk of adhesive material. 2. Pharmacology. To prepare in the form of wafers. 3. Electronics. To divide into wafers. [Middle English wafre, from Anglo-Norman, variant of Old North French waufre, of Germanic origin. See webh- in Appendix.]

waff (wäf, wäf) Scots. v. waffed, waff·ing, waffs. — v. intr. tr. To wave or flutter or to cause to do so. — n. 1. A waving or fluttering motion. 2. A gust of air; a waft. [Middle English waffen, to wave, alteration of waven. See WAVE.]

waf·fle¹ (wöff'əl) n. A light, crisp battercake baked in a waffle iron. [Dutch wafel, from Middle Dutch wāfel. See webh- in Appendix.]

waf·fle² (wöff'əl) Informal. v. waf·fled, waf·fling, waf·fles. — v. intr. To speak or write evasively. — v. tr. To speak, write, or act evasively about. — n. Evasive or vague speech or writing. [Probably frequentative of obsolete waff, to yelp, probably of imitative origin.] — waf'fler n. — waf'fling·ly adv. — waf'fly adj.

waffle iron (wöff'əl ī'ərn) n. An appliance having hinged, indented plates that impress a grid pattern into waffle batter as it bakes.

waft (wäft, wäft) v. waft·ed, waft·ing, wafts. — v. tr. 1. To cause to go gently and smoothly through the air or over water. 2. To convey or send floating through the air or over water. — v. intr. To float easily and gently, as on the air; drift: "It was a heat that wafted from streets, rolled between buildings and settled over sidewalks” (Sarah Lyall). — n. 1. Something, such as an odor, that is carried through the air. 2. A light breeze; a rush of air. 3. The act of fluttering or waving. 4. Nautical. a. A flag used for signaling or indicating wind direction. b. A signal with a flag. In this sense, also called *waif*² [Back-formation from wafter, convoy ship, alteration of Middle English waughter, from Middle Dutch, or Middle Low German wachter, a guard from wachten, to guard. See weg- in Appendix.] — waft'er n.

wag¹ (wäg) v. wagged, wag-ging, wags. — v. intr. 1. To move briskly and repeatedly from side to side, to and fro, or up and down. 2. To move rapidly in talking. Used of the tongue. 3. To walk with a clumsy sway; waddle. 4. Archaic. To be on one's way; depart. — v. tr. To move (a body part) rapidly from side to side or up and down, as in playfulness, agreement, admonition, or chatter. — n. The act or motion of wagging: a farewell wag of the hand. [Middle English waggen. See wegh- in Appendix.] — wag'ger n.

wag² (wäg) n. A humorous or droll person; a wit. [Perhaps from WAG¹.]

wage (wāj) n. 1. Payment for labor or services to a worker, especially remuneration on an hourly, daily, or weekly basis or by the piece. 2. wages. The portion of the national product that represents the aggregate paid for all contributing labor and services as distinguished from the portion retained by management or reinvested in capital goods. 3. Often wages. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). A fitting return; a recompense: the wages of sin. — v. tr. waged, wag-ing, wag-es. To engage in (a war or campaign, for example). [Middle English, from Old North French, of Germanic origin.]

wage earner (wāj ûrn'ər) n. 1. One who works for wages. 2. One whose earnings support or help support a household.

wa-ger (wā'jər) n. 1. Games. a. An agreement under which each bettor pledges a certain amount to the other depending on the outcome of an unsettled matter. b. A matter bet on; a gamble. 2. Something staked on an uncertain outcome; a bet. See Synonyms at bet. 3. Archaic. A pledge of personal combat to resolve an issue or a case. — v. wa-gered, wa-ger-ing, wa-gers. — v. tr. To risk or stake (an amount or a possession) on an uncertain outcome; bet. — v. intr. To make a bet. [Middle English, from Anglo-Norman wageure, from Old North French wagier, to pledge, from wage, pledge. See WAGE.] — wa'ger-er n.

wage scale (wāj skāl) n. The scale of wages paid to employees for the various jobs within an industry, a factory, or a company.

wage-work-er (wāj'wûr'kər) n. A wage earner.

wag-ger-y (wäg'ə-rē) n. pl. wag-ger-ies. 1. Waggish behavior or spirit; drollery. 2. A droll remark or act.

wag-gish (wäg'ish) adj. Characteristic of or resembling a wag; jocular or witty. See Synonyms at playful. — wag'gish-ly adv. — wag'gish-ness n.

wag·gle (wäg'əl) v. wag-gled, wag-gling, wag-gles. — v. tr. To move (an attached part, for example) with short, quick motions: waggled her foot impatiently. — v. intr. To move shakily; wobble: waggled down the steps. — n. A wobbling motion. [Middle English wagelen, frequentative of waggen. See WAG¹.] — wag'gly adj.

Wag·ner (väg'nər), Richard. 1813-1883. German composer known especially for his romantic operas, often based on Germanic legends. Among his works are Tannhäuser (1845) and the tetralogy Der Ring des Nibelungen (1853-1874).

Wag·ner (wäg'nər), Robert Ferdinand. 1877-1953. German-born American politician. A U.S. senator from New York (1927-1949), he sponsored important social legislation during Franklin D. Roosevelt's administration, most notably the National Labor Relations Act (1935).

Wag·ner·i·an (väg-nîr'ē-ən) adj. Of, relating to, or characteristic of Richard Wagner, his music dramas, or his theories. — n. 1. An admirer or a disciple of Richard Wagner. 2. A performer of Wagner's music, especially a vocalist or conductor.

Wag·ner von Jau·regg (väg'nər fôn you'rëk'), Julius. 1857-1940. Austrian neurologist and psychiatrist. He shared a 1927 Nobel Prize for using a malaria inoculation in the treatment of general paralysis.

wag·on (wäg'ən) n. 1. A four-wheeled, usually horse-drawn vehicle with a large rectangular body, used for transporting loads. 2. a. A light automotive transport or delivery vehicle. b. A station wagon. c. A police patrol wagon. 3. A child's low, four-wheeled cart hauled by a long handle that governs the direction of the front wheels. 4. A small table or tray on wheels used for serving drinks or food: a dessert wagon. 5. Chiefly British. An open railway freight car. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a wagon wheel; a wagon driver. — v. wag·oned, wag·on·ing, wag·ons. — v. tr. intr. To transport or undergo transportation by wagon. — idioms. off the wagon. Slang. No longer abstaining from alcoholic beverages. on the wagon. Slang. Abstaining from alcoholic beverages. [Middle English waggin, from Middle Dutch wagen. See wegh- in Appendix.]

Wag·on (wäg'ən) n. The Big Dipper.

wag·on·er (wäg'ə-nər) n. One who drives a wagon.

Wag·on·er (wäg'ə-nər) n. Auriga.

wa·gon·lit (vä'gôn-lē') n. pl. wa·gons·lits or wa·gon·lits (vä'gôn-lē'). A sleeping car on a European railroad train. [French : wagon, railroad car (from English WAGON) + lit, bed (from Old French, from Latin lectus); see legh- in Appendix.]

wag·on·load (wäg'ən-lōd') n. The amount that a wagon can hold.

wa·gons·lits (vä'gôn-lē') n. A plural of wagon-lit.

wagon train (wăg'ən trān) n. A line or train of wagons traveling cross-country.

Wa-gram (vä'gräm') A town of northeast Austria northeast of Vienna. Napoleon defeated the Austrians here in July 1809.

wag-tail (wăg'tāl') n. Any of various chiefly Old World birds of the family Motacillidae, having a slender body with a long tail that constantly wags.

Wah-ha-bi or Wa-ha-bi (wä-hä'bē) n. pl. Wah-ha-bis. A member of a Muslim sect founded by Abdul Wahhab (1703-1792), known for its strict observance of the Koran and flourishing mainly in Arabia. —Wah-ha'bism (-bīz'əm) n.

Wa-hi-a-wa (wä'hē-ə-wä') A city of central Oahu, Hawaii, northwest of Honolulu. The surrounding area is noted for its pineapple plantations. Population, 17,386.

wa-hi-ne (wä-hē'nē, -nā') also va-hi-ne (vä-) n. 1. A Polynesian woman or wife. 2. Sports. A woman surfer. [Hawaiian.]

wa-hoo¹ (wä-hōō', wä'hōō) n. pl. wa-hoos. A deciduous shrub or small tree (Euonymus atropurpurea) of eastern North America, having small purplish flowers, pink fruit, and scarlet arillate seeds. [Dakota wāhu.]

wa-hoo² (wä-hōō', wä'hōō) n. pl. wa-hoos. 1. An elm tree (Ulmus alata) of the southeast United States, having twigs with winged, corky edges. 2. Any of several similar trees. [Origin unknown.]

wa-hoo³ (wä-hōō', wä'hōō) n. pl. wahoo or wa-hoos. A tropical marine food and game fish (Acanthocybium solanderi) of the mackerel family, having a pointed snout, narrow body, and long dorsal fin. [Origin unknown.]

wa-hoo⁴ (wä'hōō') Chiefly Western U.S. interj. Used to express exuberance. — n. pl. wa-hoos. An exuberant cry: He let out a wahoo. Regional. Also called rebel yell

Wah-pe-ku-te (wä'pə-kōō'tē) n. pl. Wahpekute or Wah-pe-ku-tes. 1. A Native American people of the Santee branch of the Sioux. 2. A member of this people.

Wah-pe-ton (wô'pī-tn) n. pl. Wahpeton or Wah-pe-tons. 1. A Native American people of the Santee branch of the Sioux. 2. A member of this people.

wah-wah also wa-wa (wä'wä') n. Music. 1. A wavering sound produced by alternately covering and uncovering the bell of a trumpet or trombone with a mute. 2. A similar sound produced by means of an electronic attachment, as on an electric guitar, operated by a foot pedal. [Imitative.] —wah'-wah' adj.

Wai-a-na-e Mountains (wī'ə-nā'ā moun'tənz) A mountain range of western Oahu, Hawaii, rising to 1,227.6 m (4,025 ft) at Mount Kaala.

waif¹ (wāf) n. 1. a. A homeless person, especially a forsaken or orphaned child. b. An abandoned young animal. 2. Something found and unclaimed, as an object cast up by the sea. [Middle English, ownerless property, stray animal, from Anglo-Norman, probably of Scandinavian origin. See weip- in Appendix.]

waif² (wāf) n. Nautical. See waft (n., sense 4). [Probably of Scandinavian origin. See weip- in Appendix.]

Wai-ka-to (wī-kā'tō) A river of New Zealand rising in central North Island and flowing about 434 km (270 mi) northwest to the Tasman Sea. It is the longest river in the country.

Wai-ki-ki (wī'kī-kē') A famous beach and resort district of Oahu Island, Hawaii, southeast of Honolulu. It is known for its fine surfing conditions.

wail (wāl) v. wailed, wail-ing, wails. — v. intr. 1. To grieve or protest loudly and bitterly; lament. See Synonyms at cry. 2. To make a prolonged, high-pitched sound suggestive of a cry: The wind wailed through the trees. — v. tr. Archaic. To lament over; bewail. — n. 1. A long, loud, high-pitched cry, as of grief or pain. 2. A long, loud, high-pitched sound: the wail of a siren. 3. A loud, bitter protest: A wail of misery went up when new parking restrictions were announced. [Middle English wailen, probably of Scandinavian origin; akin to Old Norse vāla, væla.] — wail'er n. — wail'ing-ly adv.

wail-ful (wāl'fəl) adj. 1. Resembling a wail; mournful. 2. Issuing a sound resembling a wail. — wail'ful-ly adv.

Wail-ing Wall (wā'ling wôl) n. Judaism. See Western Wall.

wain (wān) n. A large open farm wagon. [Middle English, from Old English wāen, wāgn. See wegh- in Appendix.]

Wain (wān) n. The Big Dipper.

wain-scot (wān'skət, -sköt', -skōt') n. 1. A facing or paneling, usually of wood, applied to the walls of a room. 2. The lower part of an interior wall when finished in a material different from that of the upper part. — v. tr.

wain-scot-ed or wain-scot-ted, wain-scot-ing or wain-scot-ting, wain-scots or wain-scots. To line or panel (a room or wall) with wainscoting. [Middle English, from Middle Dutch waghenscot: perhaps waghen, wagen, wagon (from the quality of wood used for carriage-work); see WAGON + scot, partition; see skeud- in Appendix.]

wain-scot-ing or wain-scot-ting (wān'skə-tīng, -sköt'īng, -skō'tīng) n. 1. A wainscoted wall or walls; paneling. 2. Material, such as wood, used for wainscoting.

wain-wright (wān'rīt') n. One that builds and repairs wagons.

Wain-wright (wān'rīt'), Jonathan Mayhew. 1883-1953. American general who was forced to surrender to the Japanese at Corregidor in 1942 and was held prisoner until 1945.

Wain-wright (wān'rīt'), Richard. 1849-1926. American naval officer who was commander of the battleship Maine when it was destroyed in Havana harbor (1898).

Wai-pa-hu (wī-pā'hōō) A city of southern Oahu, Hawaii, on the northwest shore of Pearl Harbor. It was damaged by the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor (December 7, 1941). Population, 31,435.

waist (wāst) n. 1. a. The part of the human trunk between the bottom of the rib cage and the pelvis. b. The narrow part of the abdomen of an insect.

2. a. The part of a garment that encircles the waist of the body. b. The upper part of a garment, extending from the shoulders to the waistline, especially the bodice of a woman's dress. c. A blouse. d. A child's undershirt. 3. The middle section or part of an object, especially when narrower than the rest. 4. Nautical. The middle part of the deck of a ship between the forecabin and the quarterdeck. [Middle English wast, perhaps from Old English wæst*, growth, size. See aug- in Appendix.] —waist/less adj.

waist-band (wāst'bānd') n. A band of material encircling and fitting the waist of a garment, such as trousers or a skirt.

waist-cloth (wāst'klōth', -klōth') n. A loincloth.

waist-coat (wēs'kīt, wāst'kōt') n. 1. A garment formerly worn by men under a doublet. 2. Chiefly British. A short, sleeveless, collarless garment worn especially over a shirt and often under a suit jacket; a vest. —waist/coat/ed adj.

waist-line (wāst'līn') n. 1. a. A line thought of as encircling the body at the waist. b. The measurement of this line. 2. a. The point or line at which the skirt and bodice of a dress join. b. The part of a garment that covers the narrowest part of the waist or the part above or below it as the current fashion demands.

wait (wāt) v. wait-ed, wait-ing, waits. — v. intr. 1. a. To remain or rest in expectation: waiting for the guests to arrive. See Synonyms at stay¹. b. To tarry until another catches up. 2. To remain or be in readiness: lunch waiting on the table. 3. To remain temporarily neglected, unattended to, or postponed: The trip will have to wait. 4. To work as a waiter or waitress. — v. tr. 1. To remain or stay in expectation of; await: wait one's turn. 2. Informal. To delay (a meal or an event); postpone: They waited lunch for us. 3. To be a waiter or waitress at: wait tables. — n. 1. The act of waiting or the time spent waiting. 2. Chiefly British. a. One of a group of musicians employed, usually by a city, to play in parades or public ceremonies. b. One of a group of musicians or carolers who perform in the streets at Christmastime. —phrasal verbs. wait on (or wait upon).

1. To serve the needs of; be in attendance on. 2. To make a formal call on; visit. 3. To follow as a result; depend on. 4. To await: They're waiting on my decision.

wait out. To delay until the termination of: wait out a war; waited out the mini-skirt craze. wait up. 6. To postpone going to bed in anticipation of something or someone. 7. Informal. To stop or pause so that another can catch up: Let's wait up for the stragglers. [Middle English waiten, from Old North French waitier, to watch, of Germanic origin. See weg- in Appendix.]

USAGE NOTE: For more than a hundred years critics have stigmatized the use of wait on (and somewhat less frequently wait upon) to mean roughly “await” or “wait for,” as in We are still waiting on the committee vote. This use is so widespread in both educated speech and reputable writing that the traditional objections have come to seem unnecessary.

wait-a-bit (wāt'ə-bīt') n. Any of several plants having sharp, often hooked thorns. Also called wait-a-minute [Translation of Afrikaans wag-'n-bietjie.]

wait-a-minute (wāt'ə-mīn'īt) n. See wait-a-bit.

Waite (wāt), Morrison Remick. 1816-1888. American jurist who served as the chief justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1874-1888).

wait-er (wā'tər) n. 1. One who serves at a table, as in a restaurant. 2. A tray or salver.

wait-ing (wā'tīng) n. 1. The act of remaining inactive or stationary. 2. A period of time spent waiting. —idiom. in waiting. In attendance, especially at a royal court.

waiting game (wā'tīng gām) n. The stratagem of deferring action and allowing the passage of time to work in one's favor.

waiting list (wā'tīng list) n. A list of persons waiting, as for an appointment or filling a vacancy.

waiting room (wā'tīng rōom) n. A room, as in a railroad station or physician's office, for the use of people waiting.

wait-per-son (wāt'pūr'sən) n. pl. wait-per-sons or wait-peo-ple (-pē'pəl). A waiter or waitress.

wait-ress (wā'trīs) n. A woman who serves at a table, as in a restaurant. See Usage Note at -ess.

wait-ron (wā'trən) n. A waiter or waitress: “The dining room staff is as comfortable with making you comfortable as the typical modern waitron is uncomfortable” (Washington Post). [Alteration of WAITER.]

wait staff also wait-staff (wā'stäf') n. Personnel employed to wait on tables, as in a restaurant.

waive (wāv) v. tr. waived, waiv-ing, waives. 1. To give up (a claim or right) voluntarily; relinquish. See Synonyms at relinquish. 2. To refrain from insisting on or enforcing (a rule or penalty, for example); dispense with: “The original ban on private trading had long since been waived” (William L. Schurz). 3. To put aside or off temporarily; defer. [Middle English weiven, to abandon, from Anglo-Norman weyver, from waif, ownerless property. See WAIF¹.]

waiv-er (wā'vər) n. 1. a. Intentional relinquishment of a right, claim, or privilege. b. The document that evidences such relinquishment. 2. A dispensation, as from a rule or penalty. 3. A deferment. [Anglo-Norman weyver, from weyver, to abandon. See WAIVE.]

wa·ka·me (wä-kä'mě) n. A brown seaweed (Undaria pinnatifida) native to the coasts of China, Japan, and Korea, having a short stipe and pinnately divided blades, extensively used in oriental cooking. [Japanese.]

Wa·kash·an (wä-käsh'ən, wô'kə-shän') n. A family of North American Indian languages spoken by the Nootka and other peoples of Washington and British Columbia. [Ultimately from Nootka waakaash, bravo!.] —Wa·kash'an adj.

Wa·ka·ya·ma (wä'kə-yä'mə) A city of southern Honshu, Japan, south-southwest of Osaka on the Inland Sea. It is a railroad hub and a manufacturing center. Population, 401,357.

wake¹ (wāk) v. woke (wōk) or waked (wākt), waked or wok·en (wō'kən), wak·ing, wakes. — v. intr. 1. a. To cease to sleep; become awake: overslept and woke late. b. To stay awake: Bears wake for spring, summer, and fall and hibernate for the winter. c. To be brought into a state of awareness or alertness: suddenly woke to the danger we were in. 2. To keep watch or guard, especially over a corpse. — v. tr. 1. To rouse from sleep; awaken. 2. To stir, as from a dormant or inactive condition; rouse: wake old animosities. 3. To make aware of; alert: The shocking revelations finally woke me to the facts of the matter. 4. a. To keep a vigil over. b. To hold a wake over. — n. 1. A watch; a vigil. 2. A watch over the body of a deceased person before burial, sometimes accompanied by festivity. Regional. Also called viewing 3. wakes. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). Chiefly British. a. A parish festival held annually, often in honor of a patron saint. b. An annual vacation. [Middle English wakien, waken, from Old English wacan, to wake up, and wacian, to be awake, keep watch; see weg- in Appendix.] —wak'er n.

USAGE NOTE: The pairs wake, waken and awake, awaken have formed a bewildering array since the Middle English period. All four words have similar meanings, though there are some differences in use. Only wake is used in the sense “to be awake,” as in expressions like waking (not wakening) and sleeping, every waking hour. Wake is also more common than waken when used together with up; and awake and awaken never occur in this context: She woke up (rarely wakened up; never awakened up or awoke up). Some writers have suggested that waken should be used only transitively and awaken only intransitively, but there is ample literary precedent for usages such as He wakened early and They did not awaken her. In figurative senses awake and awaken are more prevalent: With the governor's defeat the party awoke to the strength of the opposition to its position on abortion. The scent of the azaleas awakened my memory of his unexpected appearance that afternoon years ago.

REGIONAL NOTE: Regional American dialects vary in the way that certain verbs form their principal parts. Northern dialects seem to favor forms that change the internal vowel in the verb—hence dove for the past tense of dive, and woke for wake: They woke up with a start. Southern dialects, on the other hand, tend to prefer forms that add an -ed to form the past tense and the past participle of these same verbs: The children dived into the swimming hole. The baby waked up early.

wake² (wāk) n. 1. The visible track of turbulence left by something moving through water: the wake of a ship. 2. A track, course, or condition left behind something that has passed: The war left destruction and famine in its wake.
—idiom. in the wake of. 1. Following directly on. 2. In the aftermath of; as a consequence of. [Possibly from Middle Low German, hole in the ice, of Scandinavian origin; akin to Old Norse vök.]

Wake-field (wāk'fēld') 1. A borough of north-central England east-northeast of Manchester. In the Battle of Wakefield (1460) Richard Plantagenet, the third duke of York (1411-1460), was slain by Lancastrian forces in the Wars of the Roses. 2. A town of eastern Massachusetts, a residential and industrial suburb of Boston. Population, 24,825.

wake·ful (wāk'fəl) adj. 1. a. Not sleeping or not able to sleep. b. Without sleep; sleepless. 2. Watchful; alert. —wake'ful·ly adv. —wake'ful·ness n.

Wake Island (wāk ī'lənd) An island of the western Pacific Ocean between Hawaii and Guam. Annexed by the United States in 1898, it was a commercial air base and later a military base. Wake Island was held by the Japanese from 1941 to 1945.

wake·less (wāk'līs) adj. Unbroken. Used of sleep.

wak·en (wā'kən) v. wak·ened, wak·en·ing, wak·ens. — v. tr. 1. To rouse from sleep; awake: The noise wakened me. 2. To rouse from a quiescent or inactive state; stir. — v. intr. To become awake; wake up: I plan to waken at six o'clock tomorrow. See Usage Note at wake¹. [Middle English wakenen, from Old English wæcnan. See weg- in Appendix.] —wak'en·er n.

wake-rob·in (wāk'rōb'in) n. 1. See trillium. 2. Any of various North American aroid plants that bloom early in the spring.

wak·ing (wā'kīng) adj. Marked by full consciousness, awareness, and alertness: worked every moment of my waking hours.

Waks·man (wāks'mən), Selman Abraham. 1888-1973. Russian-born American microbiologist. He won a 1952 Nobel Prize for discovering the antibiotic streptomycin.

Wa·la·chi·a (wə-lā'kē-ə, wō-) See Wallachia.

Wa·la·pai (wā'lə-pī') n. Variant of Hualapai.

Wal-brzych (vǎlb'zhĭk', -zhĭKH') A city of southwest Poland southwest of Wrocław. A coal-mining center, it passed from Germany to Poland after the Potsdam Conference of 1945. Population, 138,000.

Wal-che-ren (wǎl'kə-rən, wôl'KHə-) A region, formerly an island, of southwest Netherlands in the Scheldt estuary.

Wald (wôld), George. Born 1906. American biologist. He shared a 1967 Nobel Prize for research on the human eye.

Wald (wôld), Lillian D. 1867-1940. American nurse and social reformer who founded a public-health service, the Henry Street Settlement, in New York City (1893) and instituted the first municipal nursing program in a public school system (1902).

Wal-de-mar I (wôl'də-mär', vǎl'-) or Val-de-mar I (vǎl'-), Known as "Waldemar the Great." 1131-1182. Danish king (1157-1182) who extended his realm and gained recognition for the hereditary rule of his family.

Wal-den Pond (wôl'dən pönd) A pond of northeast Massachusetts near Concord. Henry David Thoreau lived in a cabin near the pond from 1845 to 1847.

Wal-den-ses (wôl-dĕn'sēz, wôl-) pl.n. A Christian sect of dissenters that originated in southern France in the late 12th century and adopted Calvinist doctrines in the 16th century. Also called Vaudois [Medieval Latin Waldēnsēs, after Peter WALDO.] —Wal-den'sian (-shən) adj. & n.

Wal-der-see (wôl'dər-zā', vǎl'-), Count Alfred von. 1832-1904. German field marshal who commanded (1900-1901) the European forces in China during the Boxer Rebellion.

Wald-heim (wôld'hĭm', vǎlt'-), Kurt. Born 1918. Austrian diplomat and politician. After serving as secretary-general of the United Nations (1972-1981), he was elected president of Austria in 1986 despite worldwide controversy over his alleged Nazi affiliations during World War II.

Wal-do (wôl'dō, wǎl'-) or Val-do (vǎl'-, vǎl'-), Peter. Also known as Peter or Pierre Valdès. fl. 12th century. French religious leader who founded the Waldenses and was excommunicated in 1184.

Wal-dorf salad (wôl'dôrf sǎl'əd) n. A salad of diced raw apples, celery, and walnuts mixed with mayonnaise. [After the Waldorf -Astoria Hotel in New York City.]

wale (wāl) n. 1. A mark raised on the skin, as by a whip; a weal or welt.

2. a. One of the parallel ribs or ridges in the surface of a fabric such as corduroy.

b. The texture or weave of such a fabric: a wide wale. 3. Nautical. a. A gunwale.

b. One of the heavy planks or strakes extending along the sides of a wooden ship.

— v. tr. waled, wal-ing, wales. To raise marks on (the skin), as by whipping. [Middle English, from Old English, variant of walu. See wel-² in Appendix.]

Wal·er also wal·er (wā'lər) n. A light saddle horse of mixed breed developed in Australia and exported to the British military forces in India during the 19th century. [After New South Wales, a state of southeast Australia.]

Wales (wālz) A principality of the United Kingdom on the western peninsula of the island of Great Britain. Incorporated with England since the Act of Union (1536), Wales has maintained its own distinct culture and a strong nationalist sentiment. Cardiff is the capital and the largest city. Population, 2,790,462.

Wa·le·sa (wä-lən'sə, vä-wěn'sä), Lech. Born 1943. Polish labor leader. He won the 1983 Nobel Peace Prize for his leadership of the independent trade union Solidarity. He served as president of Poland (1990-1995).

Wal·hal·la (wāl-häl'ə, vāl-, wäl-hä'lə, vāl-) n. Mythology. Variant of Valhalla.

walk (wôk) v. walked, walk·ing, walks. — v. intr. 1. To move over a surface by taking steps with the feet at a pace slower than a run: a baby learning to walk; a horse walking around a riding ring. 2. a. To go or travel on foot: walked to the store. b. To go on foot for pleasure or exercise; stroll: walked along the beach looking for shells. c. To move in a manner suggestive of walking: saw a woodpecker walking up the tree trunk. 3. To conduct oneself or behave in a particular manner; live: walks in majesty and pride. 4. To appear as a supernatural being: The specter of famine walks through the land. 5. Slang. a. To go out on strike. b. To resign from one's job abruptly; quit. 6. a. Baseball. To go to first base after the pitcher has thrown four balls. b. Basketball. To move illegally while holding the ball; travel. 7. Obsolete. To be in constant motion. — v. tr. 1. To go or pass over, on, or through by walking: walk the financial district of a city. 2. To bring to a specified condition by walking: They walked me to exhaustion. 3. To cause to walk or proceed at a walk: walk a horse uphill. 4. To accompany in walking; escort on foot: walk the children home; walked me down the hall. 5. To traverse on foot in order to survey or measure; pace off: walked the bounds of the property. 6. To move (a heavy or cumbersome object) in a manner suggestive of walking: walked the bureau into the hall. 7. Baseball. To allow (a batter) to go to first base by pitching four balls. — n. 1. a. The gait of a human being or other biped in which the feet are lifted alternately with one part of a foot always on the ground. b. The gait of a quadruped in which at least two feet are always touching the ground, especially the gait of a horse in which the feet touch the ground in the four-beat sequence of near hind foot, near forefoot, off hind foot, off forefoot. c. The self-controlled extravehicular movement in space of an astronaut. 2. The act or an instance of walking, especially a stroll for pleasure or exercise. 3. a. The rate at which one walks; a walking pace. b. The characteristic way in which one walks. 4. The distance covered or to be covered in walking. 5. A place, such as a sidewalk or promenade, on which one may walk. 6. A route or circuit particularly suitable for walking: one of the prettiest walks in the area. 7. a. Baseball. Base on balls. b. Basketball. The act or an instance of moving illegally with the ball; traveling. 8. Sports. a. A track event in which contestants compete in walking a specified distance. b. Race walking. 9. An enclosed area designated for the exercise or pasture of livestock. 10. a. An arrangement of trees or shrubs planted in widely spaced rows. b. The space between such rows. —phrasal verbs.

walk out. 1. To go on strike. 2. To leave suddenly, often as a signal of disapproval. walk over. Informal. 3. To treat badly or contemptuously. 4. To gain an easy or uncontested victory. walk through. To perform (a play, for example) in a perfunctory fashion, as at a first rehearsal. —idioms. walk away from.

1. To outdo, outrun, or defeat with little difficulty. 2. To survive (an accident) with very little injury. walk off with. 3. To win easily or unexpectedly. 4. To steal. walk on air. To feel elated. walk out on. To desert or abandon. walk the plank. To be forced, as by pirates, to walk off a plank extended over the side of a ship so as to drown. [Middle English walken, from Old English wealcan, to roll. See wel⁻² in Appendix.] —walk'a·bil'i·ty n. —walk'a·ble adj.

walk·a·bout (wôk'ə-bout') n. 1. Australian. A temporary return to traditional aboriginal life, taken especially between periods of work or residence in white society and usually involving a period of travel through the bush. 2. A walking trip. 3. Chiefly British. A public stroll taken by an important person, such as a monarch, among a group of people for greeting and conversation.

walk·a·way (wôk'ə-wā') n. 1. An easily won contest or victory. 2. Something that is easy and presents no difficulties. See Synonyms at breeze¹.

walk·er (wôk'kər) n. 1. One that walks, especially a contestant in a footrace. 2. A frame device used to support someone, such as an infant learning to walk or a convalescent learning to walk again. 3. A shoe specially designed for walking comfortably. Often used in the plural.

Wal·ker (wôk'kər) A city of west-central Michigan, a suburb of Grand Rapids. Population, 17,279.

Wal·ker (wôk'kər), Alice. Born 1944. American writer whose works, including the novels Meridian (1976) and The Color Purple (1982), often show the courage and strength of Black women.

Wal·ker (wôk'kər), Amasa. 1799-1875. American economist known for his influential textbooks, including The Science of Wealth: A Manual of Political Economy (1866).

Wal·ker (wôk'kər), David. 1785-1830. American abolitionist whose pamphlet Walker's Appeal (1829) encouraged slaves to fight for freedom.

Wal·ker (wôk'kər), James John. Known as "Jimmy." 1881-1946. American politician who was the mayor of New York City from 1926 to 1932, when charges of corruption forced his resignation.

Wal·ker (wôk'kər), Mary Edwards. 1832-1919. American physician. A Union surgeon during the Civil War, she later became active in the movement for clothing reform.

Wal-ker (wô'kər), Robert John. 1801-1869. American financier and politician. He served as a U.S. senator from Mississippi (1836-1845) and helped create the U.S. Department of the Interior (1849).

Wal-ker (wô'kər), Sarah Breedlove. 1867-1919. American businesswoman who developed a straightening agent for hair (1905) and built the most successful Black-owned company of her day.

Wal-ker (wô'kər), William. 1824-1860. American adventurer and revolutionary in Central America. He installed himself as president of Nicaragua (1856-1857) and was later captured and executed by Honduran authorities.

Walker Lake (wô'kər lāk) A salt lake of western Nevada southeast of Carson City.

walk·ie·talk·ie also walk·y·talk·y (wô'kē-tô'kē) n. pl. walk·ie·talk·ies. A battery-powered portable sending and receiving radio set.

walk-in (wôk'ɪn') adj. 1. Large enough to admit entrance: a walk-in closet. 2. Located so as to be entered directly from the street: a walk-in apartment. — n. 1. A room large enough to admit entrance. 2. An easily won victory, especially in an election. 3. Slang. a. One who walks in without having an appointment. b. One, such as a spy, who initiates defection from one's own country to another, usually hostile country, without having been encouraged to do so.

walk-ing (wô'kɪŋ) adj. Regarded as having the capabilities or qualities of a specified object: a teacher who is a walking dictionary.

walking bass (wô'kɪŋ bās) n. Music. A repetitive bass figure composed of nonsyncopated eighth notes, used in jazz.

walking catfish (wô'kɪŋ kăt'fɪʃ') n. A freshwater catfish (Clarius batrachus), native to southeast Asia, that is able to breathe out of water and travel short distances on land.

walking delegate (wô'kɪŋ dəl'ɪ-gāt') n. A trade union official appointed to inspect and confer with local unions or to serve as a representative of a union in dealings with an employer.

walking fern (wô'kɪŋ fûrn) n. An eastern North American fern (Camp-tosorus rhizophyllus) having undivided fronds that often take root at the tip.

walking horse (wô'kɪŋ hōrs) n. A Tennessee walking horse.

walking leaf (wô'kɪŋ lēf) n. 1. A walking fern. 2. See leaf insect.

walking papers (wô'kɪŋ pā'pərz) pl.n. Slang. A notice of discharge or dismissal.

walking stick (wô'kɪŋ stɪk) n. 1. A cane or staff used as an aid in walking. 2. A stick insect, especially a widely distributed North American species (Diapheromera femorata) that is brown to greenish and usually inhabits deciduous trees.

Walk·man (wôk'män', -mən) A trademark used for a pocket-sized audiocassette player, radio, or combined unit with lightweight earphones.

walk of life (wôk ŭv lif) n. pl. walks of life. An occupation, a profession, or a social class: People from all walks of life supported the cause.

walk-on (wôk'ôn', -ôn') n. 1. A minor role in a theatrical production, usually without speaking lines. 2. A performer playing such a role.

walk-out (wôk'out') n. 1. A labor strike. 2. The act of leaving or quitting a meeting, a company, or an organization, especially as a sign of protest.

walk-o-ver (wôk'ô'vər) n. 1. Sports. a. An easy or uncontested win in a competition. b. A horserace with only one horse entered, won by the mere formality of walking the length of the track. 2. A walkaway. See Synonyms at breeze¹.

walk-through (wôk'thrō') n. 1. A brief rehearsal, as of a play or role, performed usually in an early stage of production. 2. A television rehearsal during which no cameras are used.

walk-up also walk-up (wôk'ŭp') n. 1. An apartment house or office building with no elevator. 2. An apartment or office in a building with no elevator.

walk-way (wôk'wā') n. A passage or path for walking.

Wal-kyr-ie (wāl-kîr'ē, -kî'rē, vāl-, wäl'kə-rē, vāl'-) n. Variant of Valkyrie.

walk-y-talk-y (wô'kē-tô'kē) n. Variant of walkie-talkie.

wall (wôl) n. 1. An upright structure of masonry, wood, plaster, or other building material serving to enclose, divide, or protect an area, especially a vertical construction forming an inner partition or exterior siding of a building. 2. Often walls. A continuous structure of masonry or other material forming a rampart and built for defensive purposes. 3. A structure of stonework, cement, or other material built to retain a flow of water. 4. a. Something resembling a wall in appearance, function, or construction, as the exterior surface of a body organ or part: the abdominal wall. b. Something resembling a wall in impenetrability or strength: a wall of silence; a wall of fog. c. An extreme or desperate condition or position, such as defeat or ruin: driven to the wall by poverty. 5. Sports. The vertical surface of an ocean wave in surfing. — v. tr. walled, wall-ing, walls. 1. To enclose, surround, or fortify with or as if with a wall: wall up an old window. See Synonyms at enclose. 2. To divide or separate with or as if with a wall: wall off half a room. 3. To enclose within a wall; immure. 4. To block or close (an opening or a passage, for example) with or as if with a wall. — idioms. off the wall. Slang. 1. Extremely unconventional. 2. Without foundation; ridiculous: an accusation that is really off the wall. up the wall. Slang. Into a state of extreme frustration, anger, or distress: tensions that are driving me up the wall. writing on the wall (or handwriting on the wall). An ominous indication of the course of future events: saw the writing on the wall and fled the country. [Middle English, from Old English weall, from Latin vallum, palisade, from vallus, stake.] — wall-less adj.

wal-la (wä'lä, wöll'ə) n. Variant of wallah.

wal·la·by (wŏl'ə-bē) n. pl. wal·la·bies or wallaby. Any of various marsupials of the genus Wallabia and related genera, of Australia and adjacent islands, related to the kangaroos but generally smaller and often having a colorful coat. [Dharuk (Aboriginal language of southeast Australia) walaba.]

Wal·lace (wŏl'is), Alfred Russel. 1823-1913. British naturalist who developed a concept of evolution that paralleled the work of Charles Darwin. His works include The Geographical Distribution of Animals (1876).

Wal·lace (wŏl'is), De Witt. 1889-1981. American publisher who with his wife Lila Bell Acheson Wallace (1889-1984) founded Reader's Digest in 1922.

Wal·lace (wŏl'is), George Corley. Born 1919. American politician. A three-time governor of Alabama (1963-1967, 1971-1979, and 1983-1987), he first came to national attention as an outspoken segregationist. Wallace ran unsuccessfully for the presidency in 1968 and 1972.

Wal·lace (wŏl'is), Henry Agard. 1888-1965. Vice President of the United States (1941-1945) under Franklin D. Roosevelt. He ran for President in 1948 on the Progressive Party ticket.

Wal·lace (wŏl'is), Lewis. Known as "Lew." 1827-1905. American general, diplomat, and writer known especially for his novel Ben Hur (1880).

Wal·lace (wŏl'is), Sir William. 1272?-1305. Scottish patriot who led resistance against the English and briefly gained control of Scotland in 1298.

Wal·lach (wāl'ək, vāl'əkH), Otto. 1847-1931. German chemist. He won a 1910 Nobel Prize for work on identifying the components of alicyclic compounds.

Wal·la·chi·a also Wa·la·chi·a (wə-lā'kē-ə, wŏ-) A historical region of south-east Romania between the Transylvanian Alps and the Danube River. Founded as a principality c. 1290, it was ruled by Turkey from 1387 until it was united with Moldavia to form Romania (1861). —Wal·la'chi·an adj. & n.

wal·lah also wal·la (wā'lā, wŏl'ə) n. 1. One employed in a particular occupation or activity: a kitchen wallah; rickshaw wallahs. 2. An important person in a particular field or organization: "the Ritz, a favorite haunt of Republican wallahs" (John Robinson). 3. Chiefly British. A man; a chap. [From Hindi -wālā, pertaining to, connected with.]

wal·la·roo (wŏl'ə-rōō') n. pl. wal·la·roos or wallaroo. A large kangaroo (Macropus robustus) having reddish or gray fur and living in the hilly regions of Australia. [Dharuk (Aboriginal language of southeast Australia) walaru.]

Wal·la Wal·la (wŏl'ə wŏl'ə) A city of southeast Washington near the Oregon border south-southwest of Spokane. Founded in 1856 near the site of an army fort, it is a manufacturing center in an agricultural region. Population, 26,478.

wal·board (wŏl'bôrd', -bôrd') n. See plasterboard.

wall creeper (wŏl krē'pər) n. A long-billed crimson and gray Old World bird (Tichodroma muraria), of alpine regions, that feeds on insects on rocky cliffs.

Wal-len·stein (wǒl'ən-stīn', vǎl'ən-shīn'), Albrecht Eusebius Wenzel von Duke of Friedland and Mecklenburg. 1583-1634. Austrian military leader who fought for the Hapsburgs during the Thirty Years' War (1618-1648).

Wal·ler (wǒl'ər), Edmund. 1606-1687. English poet known for his harmonious love lyrics, including "Go, Lovely Rose" (1645).

Wal·ler (wǒl'ər), Thomas Wright. Known as "Fats." 1904-1943. American jazz musician and composer whose many songs include "Honeysuckle Rose" and "Ain't Misbehaving" (both 1929).

wal·let (wǒl'it) n. A flat pocket-sized folding case, usually made of leather, for holding paper money, cards, or photographs; a billfold. [Middle English walet, knapsack, possibly from Old North French walet*, roll, knapsack. See wel² in Appendix.]

wal·eye (wǒl'ī') n. 1. An eye with a light-colored iris or a white or opaque cornea. 2. Pathology. a. The condition of having a dense white opacity of the cornea. b. A form of strabismus in which the visual axis of one eye deviates from that of the other. 3. pl. walleye or wall-eyes. A freshwater food and game fish (Stizostedion vitreum) of North America, having large staring eyes. Also called *dory*², walleyed pike. [Back-formation from WALLEYED.]

wal·eyed (wǒl'id') adj. 1. Having a walleye. 2. Pathology. Affected with wall-eye. 3. a. Having large bulging or staring eyes. b. Slang. Having eyes with greatly distended pupils. 4. Slang. Intoxicated; drunk. [Middle English wawileyed, from Old Norse vagl-eygr : vagl, film over the eye; see wegh- in Appendix + auga, eye; see ok^{w-} in Appendix.]

walleyed pike (wǒl'id' pīk) n. See walleye (n., sense 3).

walleyed pollack (wǒl'id' pǒl'ək) n. A food fish (Theragra chalcogramma) of the northern Pacific related to the pollack.

wal fern (wǒl fûrn) n. A low-growing Eurasian fern (Polypodium vulgare) characterized by creeping stems that form dense mats.

wal·flow·er (wǒl'flou'ər) n. 1. a. Any of numerous herbs of the genus Erysimum of the mustard family, having fragrant yellow, orange, or brownish flowers. b. Any of several perennial herbs of the genus Cheiranthus, especially C. cheiri. 2. One who does not participate in the activity at a social event because of shyness or unpopularity. 3. A security, a company, or an industry that is out of favor with investors.

WORD HISTORY: The Cheiranthus cheiri, with its sweet-smelling yellow, red, or brown flowers, came to be called the wallflower because it was noted for growing on surfaces such as old walls, rocks, and quarries. This plant name is first recorded in 1578. It is not known who first observed a likeness between this delicate, fragrant flower and the unpartnered women sitting along the wall at a dance, but the figurative sense is first found in an 1820 work by Mrs. Campbell Praed entitled County Ball. The word, although originally used only to describe women, has become unisex, and of course one can be a wallflower without having a wall in the vicinity.

wall hanging (wôl hăng'ing) n. A flat decorative object, such as a tapestry, a rug, or an antique map, hung against a wall.

Wal-ling-ford (wôl'ing-fərd) A town of southern Connecticut north-northeast of New Haven. It is a residential and industrial center. Population, 40,822.

Wal-lis (wôl'is), Hal Brent. 1899-1986. American motion-picture producer whose works include Little Caesar (1930), The Maltese Falcon (1941), and Gunfight at the O.K. Corral (1957).

Wal-lis (wôl'is), John. 1616-1703. English mathematician who formulated the concept of arithmetic limits and laid the theoretical foundation for the binomial theorem and differential and integral calculus.

Wallis and Fu-tu-na Islands (wôl'is ənd fōō-tōō'nə ī'ləndz) A French overseas territory consisting of two groups of islands in the southwest Pacific Ocean west of Samoa and northeast of Fiji. Controlled by the French from 1842, the islands became an overseas territory in 1961.

Wal-lo-ni-a (wä-lō'nē-ə) A French-speaking region of southern Belgium. It was granted limited autonomy in 1980.

Wal-loon (wô-lōon') n. 1. One of a French-speaking people of Celtic descent inhabiting southern and southeast Belgium and adjacent regions of France.

2. The dialect of French spoken by these people. [French Wallon, from Old French, of Germanic origin.]

wal-lop (wôl'əp) Informal. v. wal-loped, wal-lop-ing, wal-lops. — v. tr.

1. To beat soundly; thrash. 2. To strike with a hard blow. 3. To defeat thoroughly. — v. intr. 1. To move in a rolling, clumsy manner; waddle. 2. To boil noisily. Used of a liquid. — n. 1. A hard or severe blow. 2. a. The ability to strike a powerful blow: has a punch that delivers a wallop. b. The capacity to create a forceful effect: "Tarragon's narrow, tender green leaves pack a strong wallop of anise" (Marc Wortman). "Therein lies the novel's emotional wallop and moral message" (George F. Will). [Middle English walopen, to gallop, from Old North French waloper*. See wel¹ in Appendix.] — wal/lop-er n.

wal-lop-ing (wôl'ə-ping) Informal. adj. 1. Very large; huge: a walloping fish.

2. Very fine; impressive: a walloping success. — adv. Used as an intensive: a walloping huge lie. — n. A sound thrashing or defeat.

wal-low (wôl'ō) v. intr. wal-lowed, wal-low-ing, wal-lows. 1. To roll the body about indolently or clumsily in or as if in water, snow, or mud. 2. To luxuriate; revel: wallow in self-righteousness. 3. To be plentifully supplied: wallowing in money. 4. To move with difficulty in a clumsy or rolling manner; flounder: "The car wallowed back through the slush, with ribbons of bright water trickling down the windshield from the roof" (Anne Tyler). 5. To swell or surge forth; billow. — n. 1. The act or an instance of wallowing. 2. a. A pool of water or mud where animals go to wallow. b. The depression, pool, or pit produced by wallowing animals. 3. A condition of degradation or baseness. [Middle English walowen, from Old English wealwian. See wel-² in Appendix.] —wal/low-er n.

Wal·low·a Mountains (wä-lou'ə moun'tənz) A range of mountains in northeast Oregon rising to 3,013.4 m (9,880 ft) at Sacajawea Peak.

wal·pa·per (wôl'pā'pər) n. Paper often colored and printed with designs and pasted to a wall as a decorative covering. — v. wal·pa·pered, wal·pa·per·ing, wall·pa·pers. — v. tr. To cover with or as if with wallpaper. — v. intr. To decorate a wall or room with wallpaper.

wall plate (wôl plāt) n. 1. A horizontal timber situated along the top of a wall at the level of the eaves for bearing the ends of joists or rafters. 2. A plate used to attach a bracket or similar device to a wall.

wall plug (wôl plüg) n. An electric socket, usually located in a wall, that is connected to and used as a source of electric power.

wall rock (wôl rök) n. The rock that forms the walls of a vein or lode.

wall rue (wôl rō) n. A small, delicate fern (Asplenium ruta-muraria) that grows on rocks or in rocky crevices.

Wall Street (wôl strēt) n. The controlling financial interests of the United States. [After Wall Street in New York City.] —Wall'-Street'er (wôl'strē'tər) n.

wall-to-wall (wôl'tə-wôl') adj. 1. Completely covering a floor: wall-to-wall carpeting. 2. Informal. a. Present or spreading throughout an entire area: wall-to-wall people at the reception. b. Found everywhere or including everything; pervasive: wall-to-wall luxury. — n. A carpet that completely covers a floor.

wal·nut (wôl'nŭt', -nət) n. 1. a. Any of several deciduous trees of the genus Juglans, having pinnately compound leaves and a round, sticky outer fruit wall that encloses a nutlike stone with an edible seed. b. The stone or the ridged or corrugated seed of such a tree. 2. The hard, dark brown wood of any of these trees, used for gunstocks and in cabinetwork. [Middle English walnot, from Old English wealhhnutu: wealh, Celt, foreigner + hnutu, nut.] —wal'nut adj.

Wal·nut Creek (wôl'nŭt' krĕk, -nət) A city of western California northeast of Oakland. It is an industrial center. Population, 60,569.

Wal·pole (wôl'pōl', wŏl'-) A town of eastern Massachusetts southwest of Boston. Settled in 1659, it is a manufacturing center and the site of a large state prison. Population, 20,212.

Wal·pole (wôl'pōl', wŏl'-), Horace or Horatio Fourth Earl of Orford. 1717-1797. British writer and historian whose correspondence and memoirs provide valuable information about his era. He wrote The Castle of Otranto (1764), considered the first Gothic novel in English.

Wal-pole (wôl'pôl', wôl'-), Sir Hugh Seymour. 1884-1941. New Zealand-born British writer particularly known for his novels, including Mr. Perrin and Mr. Traill (1911) and The Herries Chronicle (1930-1933).

Wal-pole (wôl'pôl', wôl'-), Sir Robert First Earl of Orford. 1676-1745.

English politician who as first lord of the treasury and Chancellor of the Exchequer (1715-1717 and 1721-1742) led the Whig administration and was regarded as Britain's first prime minister, although the office was not officially recognized until 1905.

Wal-pur-gis Night (vâl-pöör'gîs nî) n. 1. a. The eve of May Day, observed in some European countries and in some Scandinavian communities in the United States in celebration of spring and marked by music, singing, and bonfires. b. The eve of Beltane, believed by medieval Christians to be the occasion of a witches' Sabbath. 2. An episode or a situation having the quality of nightmarish wildness. [Partial translation of German Walpurgisnacht : Walpurgis, Saint Walpurga (died 779) + Nacht, night.]

wal-rus (wôl'ræs, wôl'-) n. pl. walrus or wal-rus-es. A large marine mammal (Odobenus rosmarus) of Arctic regions, related to the seals and having two long tusks, tough wrinkled skin, and four flippers. Also called sea horse [Dutch, of Scandinavian origin.]

walrus mustache (wôl'ræs mûs'tăsh') n. A bushy, drooping mustache.

Wal-sall (wôl'sôl', -səl) A borough of west-central England northwest of Birmingham. It is a mining and manufacturing center. Population, 267,500.

Wal-ter (vâl'tər), Bruno. 1876-1962. German conductor noted for his interpretations of Mozart and Mahler.

Wal-ter (wôl'tər), John. 1739-1812. British newspaper publisher who founded The Times of London (1788).

Wal-ter Mit-ty (wôl'tər mît'ē) n. An ordinary, often ineffectual person who indulges in fantastic daydreams of personal triumphs. [After the main character in "The Secret Life of Walter Mitty" by James Thurber.]

Wal-tham (wôl'thăm', -thəm) A city of eastern Massachusetts west of Boston. It is a manufacturing center and the seat of Brandeis University (established 1947). Population, 57,878.

Wal-ther von der Vo-gel-wei-de (vâl'tər fôn dər fô'gəl-vî'də), 1170?-1230?. German minnesinger whose lyrics reflected his religious and political views. The German national anthem is based on one of his songs.

Wal-ton (wôl'tən), Ernest Thomas Sinton. 1903-1995. Irish physicist who with Sir John Cockcroft succeeded in splitting the atom (1931). They shared a 1951 Nobel Prize for their contributions to nuclear physics.

Wal-ton (wôl'tən), Izaak. 1593-1683. English writer primarily known for The Compleat Angler (1653), a literary treatise on fishing.

Wal-ton (wôl'tən), Sir William Turner. 1902-1983. British composer of orchestral works and chamber music, including Façade (1923), an extravaganza accompanying poems by Edith Sitwell.

Walton and Wey-bridge (wôl'tən ənd wā'brīj) A district of southeast England, a residential suburb of London. Population, 113,000.

waltz (wôlts, wôls) n. 1. a. A ballroom dance in triple time with a strong accent on the first beat. b. A piece of music for this dance. c. An instrumental or vocal composition in triple time. 2. Informal. Something that presents no difficulties and can be accomplished with little effort. — v. waltzed, waltz-ing, waltz-es. — v. intr. 1. To dance the waltz. 2. Slang. To move unhesitatingly, briskly, and with aplomb: always waltzes into the office 30 minutes late. 3. Informal. To accomplish a task, a chore, or an assignment with little effort: waltzed through the exams. — v. tr. 1. To dance the waltz with. 2. Slang. To lead or force to move briskly and purposefully; march: waltzed them into the principal's office. [German Walzer, from walzen, to turn about, from Middle High German walzen, to roll, from Old High German walzan. See wel-² in Appendix.] —waltz'er n.

Wal-vis Bay (wôl'vīs bā) An inlet of the Atlantic Ocean on the western coast of Namibia. The town of Walvis Bay (population 11,600) and the surrounding area constitute an exclave of South Africa.

wam-ble (wôm'bəl, wăm'-) v. intr. wam-bled, wam-bling, wam-bles. 1. To move in a weaving, wobbling, or rolling manner. 2. To turn or roll. Used of the stomach. — n. 1. A wobble or roll. 2. An upset stomach. [Middle English wamelen, to feel nausea. See wemə- in Appendix.] —wam'bli-ness n. —wam'bling-ly adv. —wam'bly adj.

Wam-pa-no-ag (wăm'pə-nō'ăg) n. pl. Wampanoag or Wam-pa-no-ags.

1. a. A Native American people formerly inhabiting eastern Rhode Island and southeast Massachusetts, including Martha's Vineyard and Nantucket, with present-day descendants in this same area. b. A member of this people. 2. The Algonquian language of the Wampanoag, a variety of Massachusett. [Narragansett, those of the east.] —Wam'pa-no'ag' adj.

wam-pum (wôm'pəm, wôm'-) n. 1. Small cylindrical beads made from polished shells and fashioned into strings or belts, formerly used by certain Native American peoples as currency and jewelry or for ceremonial exchanges between groups. Also called peag 2. Informal. Money. [Short for WAMPUMPEAG.]

wam-pum-peag (wôm'pəm-pēg', wôm'-) n. White shell beads used as wampum. [Massachusetts.]

wan (wǒn) adj. wan-ner, wan-nest. 1. Unnaturally pale, as from physical or emotional distress. 2. Suggestive or indicative of weariness, illness, or unhappiness; melancholy: a wan expression. — v. intr. wanned, wan-ning, wans.

To become pale. [Middle English, pale, gloomy, from Old English wann, gloomy, dark.] —wan/ly adv. —wan/ness n.

Wan·a·ma·ker (wɒn'ə-mā'kər), John. 1838-1922. American merchant whose men's clothing business grew into one of the first department stores. He also served as U.S. postmaster general (1889-1893).

wand (wɒnd) n. 1. A thin supple rod, twig, or stick. 2. A slender rod carried as a symbol of office in a procession; a scepter. 3. Music. A conductor's baton. 4. A stick or baton used by a magician, conjurer, or diviner. 5. A pipelike attachment that lengthens the handle of a device or tool: a vacuum cleaner that has two extension wands. 6. Sports. A six-foot by two-foot slat used as an archery target. [Middle English, from Old Norse vöndr.]

wan·der (wɒn'dər) v. wan·dered, wan·der·ing, wan·ders. — v. intr. 1. To move about without a definite destination or purpose. 2. To go by an indirect route or at no set pace; amble: wander toward town. 3. To proceed in an irregular course; meander. 4. To go astray: wander from the path of righteousness. 5. To lose clarity or coherence of thought or expression. — v. tr. To wander across or through: wander the forests and fields. — n. The act or an instance of wandering; a stroll. [Middle English wanderen, from Old English wandrian.] —wan/der·er n. —wan/der·ing·ly adv.

SYNONYMS: wander, ramble, roam, rove, range, meander, stray, gallivant, gad. These verbs mean to move about at random or without destination or purpose. Wander and ramble stress the absence of a fixed course or goal: She wandered into the room. “An old man's wit may wander” (Tennyson). “They would go off together, rambling along the river” (John Galsworthy). “Be not... rambling in thought” (Marcus Aurelius). Roam and rove emphasize freedom of movement, often over a wide area: “Herds of horses and cattle roamed at will over the plain” (George W. Cable). “For ten long years I roved about, living first in one capital, then another” (Charlotte Brontë). Range suggests wandering in all directions: “a large hunting party known to be ranging the prairie” (Francis Parkman). “The talk ranged over literary and publishing matters of mutual interest” (Edward Bok). Meander suggests leisurely, sometimes aimless wandering over an irregular or winding course: “He meandered to and fro... observing the manners and customs of Hillport society” (Arnold Bennett). Stray refers to deviation from a proper course: “He gave... strict directions... not to allow any of the men to stray” (J.A. Froude). “I ask pardon, I am straying from the question” (Oliver Goldsmith). Gallivant refers to wandering about in search of pleasure: The students gallivanted all over New York City during the class trip. Gad suggests restless, pointless wandering: My parents wanted me to stop gadding about unaccompanied in foreign cities.

wan-der-ing albatross (wǒn'dər-ɪŋ əl'bə-trôz') n. A large, mostly white albatross (Diomedea exulans) of southern seas, having long narrow wings whose spread is regarded as the largest of any living bird.

wandering Jew (wǒn'dər-ɪŋ jōō) n. Any of three trailing plants, Tradescantia albiflora, T. fluminensis, or Zebrina pendula, native to tropical America, having usually variegated foliage and widely grown as houseplants.

Wan-der-ing Jew (wǒn'dər-ɪŋ jōō) n. A Jew of medieval legend condemned to wander until the Day of Judgment for having mocked Jesus on the day of the Crucifixion.

wan-der-lust (wǒn'dər-lüst') n. A very strong or irresistible impulse to travel. [German : wandern, to wander (from Middle High German) + Lust, desire (from Middle High German, from Old High German); see las- in Appendix.]

wan-der-oo (wǒn'də-rōō') n. pl. wanderoo or wan-der-oos. A monkey (Macaca silenus) of south-central Asia, having a glossy black coat and a ruff of gray hair about the face. [From Singhalese vandaru, pl. of vandurā, monkey, from Sanskrit vānaraḥ, forest dweller, from vanam, forest. See wen-¹ in Appendix.]

wand-flow-er (wǒnd'flou'ər) n. See galax.

wane (wān) v. intr. waned, wan-ing, wanes. 1. To decrease gradually in size, amount, intensity, or degree; decline. 2. To exhibit a decreasing illuminated area from full moon to new moon. 3. To approach an end. — n. 1. The act or process of gradually declining or diminishing. 2. a. A time or phase of gradual decrease. b. The period of the decrease of the moon's illuminated visible surface. 3. A defective edge of a board caused by remaining bark or a beveled end. — idiom. on the wane. In a period of decline or decrease: "The tide was near the turn and already the day was on the wane" (James Joyce). [Middle English wanen, from Old English wanian. See eu-² in Appendix.]

Wang Jing-wei (wǎng'jēng'wā') also Wang Ching-wei (chēng'-), 1883-1944. Chinese politician. An assistant to Sun Yat-sen, he abandoned the Nationalists (1938) and was premier of the Japanese puppet government in occupied China (1940-1944).

wan-gle (wǎng'gəl) v. wan-gled, wan-gling, wan-gles. Informal. — v. tr. 1. To make, achieve, or get by contrivance: wangled a job for which she had no training. 2. To manipulate or juggle, especially fraudulently. 3. To extricate (oneself) from difficulty. — v. intr. 1. To use indirect, tricky, or fraudulent methods. 2. To extricate oneself by subtle or indirect means, as from difficulty; wriggle. [Origin unknown.] — wang'le n. — wang'ler n.

wan-i-gan or wan-ni-gan (wǒn'ĭ-gən) also wan-gun (wǒn'gən, wǎng'-) n. 1. New England & Upper Northern U.S. a. A boat or small chest equipped with supplies for a lumber camp. b. Provisions for a camp or cabin. 2. Alaska. a. A small house, bunkhouse, or shed mounted on skids and towed behind a tractor train as eating and sleeping quarters for a work crew. b. An addition built onto a trailer house for extra living or storage space. [Ojibwa waanikaan, storage pit.]

REGIONAL NOTE: Wanigan is apparently borrowed from Ojibwa waanikaan, “storage pit,” from the verb waanikkee-, “to dig a hole in the ground.” Nineteenth-century citations in the Oxford English Dictionary indicate that the word was then associated chiefly with the speech of Maine. It denoted a storage chest containing small supplies for a lumber camp, a boat outfitted to carry such supplies, or, as in Algonquian, the camp equipment and provisions. In Alaska, on the western edge of the vast territory inhabited by Algonquian-speaking tribes, the same word was borrowed into English to indicate a little temporary hut, usually built on a log raft to be towed to wherever men were working. According to Russell Tabbert of the University of Alaska, wanigan is still used in the northernmost regions of Alaska to mean “a small house, bunkhouse, or shed mounted on skids” to be dragged along behind a tractor train as a place for a work crew to eat and sleep. However, Tabbert notes that in southeast Alaska, where mobile homes are a common option for housing, wanigan now means an addition built onto a trailer house for extra living or storage space. Classified advertisements for trailer homes frequently mention wanigans.

Wan·kel engine (väng'kæl ěn'jĭn, wäng'-, wäng'-) n. A rotary internal-combustion engine in which a triangular rotor turning in a specially shaped housing performs the functions allotted to the pistons of a conventional engine, thereby allowing great savings in weight and moving parts. [After Felix Wankel (1902-1988), German engineer.]

want (wönt, wōnt) v. want-ed, want-ing, wants. — v. tr. 1. To desire greatly; wish for: They want to leave. 2. To be without; lack. See Synonyms at lack. 3. To be in need of; require: “Your hair wants cutting,” said the Hatter” (Lewis Carroll). 4. a. To request the presence or assistance of: You are wanted by your office. b. To seek with intent to capture: The fugitive is wanted by the police. 5. a. To have a desire for. See Synonyms at desire. b. To have an inclination toward; like: Say what you want, but be tactful. — v. intr. 1. To have need: wants for nothing. 2. To be destitute or needy. 3. To be disposed; wish: Call me daily if you want. — n. 1. The condition or quality of lacking something usual or necessary: stayed home for want of anything better to do. 2. Pressing need; destitution: lives in want. 3. Something desired: a person of few wants and needs. 4. A defect of character; a fault. — phrasal verbs. want in. Slang. 1. To desire greatly to enter: The dog wants in. 2. To wish to join a project, business, or other undertaking. want out. Slang. 3. To desire greatly to leave: The cat wants out. 4. To wish to leave a project, a business, or other undertaking. [Middle English wanten, to be lacking, from Old Norse wanta. See eu-² in Appendix.] —want'er n. —want'less adj. —want'less-ness n.

USAGE NOTE: When want is followed immediately by an infinitive construction, it does not take for: I want you to go (not want for you). When want and the infinitive are separated in the sentence, however, for is used: What I want is for you to go. I want very much for you to go. See Usage Note at wish.

want ad (wɒnt ăd) n. Informal. A classified advertisement.

Wan-tagħ (wɒn'tô') A town of southeast New York on the southern shore of Long Island. It is mainly residential. Population, 18,567.

want-ing (wɒn'tɪŋ, wɒn'-) adj. 1. Absent; lacking. 2. Not measuring up to standards or expectations. — prep. 1. Without. 2. Minus; less: an hour want-ing 15 minutes.

wan-ton (wɒn'tən) adj. 1. Immoral or unchaste; lewd. 2. a. Gratuitously cruel; merciless. b. Marked by unprovoked, gratuitous maliciousness; capricious and unjust: wanton destruction. 3. Unrestrainedly excessive: wanton extravagance; wanton depletion of oil reserves. 4. Luxuriant; overabundant: wanton tresses. 5. Frolicsome; playful. 6. Undisciplined; spoiled. 7. Obsolete. Rebellious; refractory. — v. wan-toned, wan-ton-ing, wan-tons. — v. intr. To act, grow, or move in a wanton manner; be wanton. — v. tr. To waste or squander extravagantly. — n. 1. One who is immoral, lewd, or licentious. 2. One that is playful or frolicsome. 3. One that is undisciplined or spoiled. [Middle English wantowen : wan-, not, lacking (from Old English; akin to wana, lack); see WANE + towen, past participle of teen, to bring up (from Old English tēon, to lead, draw); see deuk- in Appendix.] —wan'ton-ly adv. —wan'ton-ness n.

wap-en-take (wɒp'ən-tāk', wăp'-) n. A historical subdivision of some northern counties in England, corresponding roughly to the hundred in other shires. [Middle English, from Old English wæpengetæc, from Old Norse vāpnatak, act of taking weapons : vāpna, genitive pl. of vāpn, weapon + tak, act of taking (from taka, to take).]

wap-i-ti (wɒp'ɪ-tē) n. pl. wapiti or wap-i-tis. A large light brown or grayish-brown North American deer (Cervus canadensis) having long, branching antlers. Also called American elk, elk. [Shawnee waapiti.]

Wap-pin-ger (wă'pɪn-jər) n. pl. Wappinger or Wap-pin-gers. 1. A Native American people formerly inhabiting the east bank of the Hudson River from Poughkeepsie to Manhattan and closely related to the Munsee-speaking peoples. The Wappinger dispersed to other Native American groups after warfare with the Dutch in the mid-17th century. 2. A member of this people. [Of Algonquian origin.]

Wap·si·pin·i·con (wöp'sə-pĭn'ĭ-kən) A river rising in southern Minnesota and flowing about 410 km (255 mi) generally southeast through eastern Iowa to the Mississippi River.

war (wôr) n. 1. a. A state of open, armed, often prolonged conflict carried on between nations, states, or parties. b. The period of such conflict. c. The techniques and procedures of war; military science. 2. a. A condition of active antagonism or contention: a war of words; a price war. b. A concerted effort or campaign to combat or put an end to something considered injurious: the war against acid rain. — v. intr. warred, war-ring, wars. 1. To wage or carry on warfare. 2. To be in a state of hostility or rivalry; contend. —idiom. at war. In an active state of conflict or contention. [Middle English warre, from Old North French werre, of Germanic origin. See wers- in Appendix.]

WORD HISTORY: A piece of liverwurst may perhaps help us gain some insight into the nature of war, at least into the semantic history of the word war. War and the -wurst part of liverwurst can be traced back to the same Indo-European root, wers-, “to confuse, mix up.” In the Germanic family of the Indo-European languages, this root gave rise to several words having to do with confusion or mixture of various kinds. In the case of the ancestry of war, the hypothetical Germanic stem ·werza-, “confusion,” became ·werra-, which passed into Old French, a language descended from spoken Latin but supplemented by more than 200 words borrowed from the Frankish invaders of the 5th century. From the Germanic stem came both the form werre in Old North French, the form borrowed into English in the 12th century, and guerre (the source of guerilla) in the rest of the Old French-speaking area. Both forms meant “war,” a very confused condition indeed. Meanwhile another Indo-European form derived from the same Indo-European root had developed into Old High German wurst, meaning “sausage,” from an underlying sense of “mixture,” which is, of course, related to the sense of the root “to confuse, mix up.” Modern German wurst was borrowed into English in the 19th century, first by itself (recorded in 1855) and then as part of the word liverwurst (1869), the liver being a translation of German leber in leberwurst.

war. abbr. Warrant.

Wa·ran·gal (wə-rŭng'gəl, wôr'əng-) A city of southeast India northeast of Hyderabad. It was the capital of the Telugu Kingdom in the 12th century. Population, 335,150.

war baby (wôr bā'bē) n. A child born during wartime, especially during World War I or World War II.

War·beck (wôr'bĕk'), Perkin. 1474?-1499. Flemish pretender to the English throne. Posing as Richard, Duke of York, the murdered son of Edward IV, he landed in Cornwall (1497), proclaimed himself king, and proceeded to London, where he was captured and hanged by supporters of Henry VII.

War Between the States (wôr bî-twên' thě stätz) n. See civil war (n., sense 3).

war·ble¹ (wôr'bəl) v. war·bled, war·bling, war·bles. — v. tr. Music. To sing (a note or song, for example) with trills, runs, or other melodic embellishments. — v. intr. 1. Music. To sing with trills, runs, or quavers. 2. To be sounded in a trilling or quavering manner. — n. Music. The act or an instance of singing with trills, runs, or quavers. [Middle English werbelen, from Old North French werbler, of Germanic origin.]

war·ble² (wôr'bəl) n. 1. a. An abscessed boillike swelling on the back of cattle, deer, and certain other animals, caused by the larva of a warble fly. b. The warble fly, especially in its larval stage. 2. A hard lump of tissue on a riding horse's back caused by rubbing of the saddle. [Probably of Scandinavian origin; akin to obsolete Swedish varbulde.]

warble fly (wôr'bəl flī) n. Any of several large hairy flies of the family Oestridae having larvae that form warbles under the skin of cattle and certain other animals.

war·bler (wôr'blər) n. 1. Any of various small New World songbirds of the family Parulidae, many of which have brightly colored plumage or markings, as the redstart and the chat. Also called wood warbler 2. Any of various small, often brownish or grayish Old World songbirds of the family Silviidae, as the blackcap and the whitethroat. 3. Music. One that warbles; a singer.

war·bling vireo (wôr'blīng vîr'ē-ō') n. A small vireo (Vireo gilvus) with a whitish breast, noted for its pleasant warble.

war bonnet (wôr bôn'it) n. A ceremonial headdress used by some Plains Indians consisting of a cap or band and a trailing extension decorated with erect feathers.

war bride (wôr brīd) n. A woman who marries a serviceman during wartime.

War·burg (wôr'bərg', văr'böörk'), Otto Heinrich. 1883-1970. German biochemist. He won a 1931 Nobel Prize for research on the respiration of cells.

war chest (wôr chěst) n. 1. An accumulation of funds to finance a war effort. 2. A fund reserved for a particular purpose such as a political campaign.

war correspondent (wôr kôr'î-spŏn'dənt) n. A journalist, reporter, or commentator assigned to report directly from a war or combat zone.

war crime (wôr krīm) n. Any of various crimes, such as genocide or the mistreatment of prisoners of war, committed during a war and considered in violation of the conventions of warfare. —war criminal n.

war cry (wôr krī) n. 1. A cry uttered by combatants as they attack; a battle cry. 2. A phrase or slogan used to rally people to a cause.

ward (wôrd) n. 1. A division of a city or town, especially an electoral district, for administrative and representative purposes. 2. A district of some English and Scottish counties corresponding roughly to the hundred or the wapentake. 3. a. A room in a hospital usually holding six or more patients. b. A division in a hospital for the care of a particular group of patients: a maternity ward. 4. One of the divisions of a penal institution, such as a prison. 5. An open court or area of a castle or fortification enclosed by walls. 6. a. Law. A minor or incompetent person placed under the care or protection of a guardian or court. b. A person under the protection or care of another. 7. The state of being under guard; custody. 8. The act of guarding or protecting; guardianship. 9. A means of protection; a defense. 10. A defensive movement or attitude, especially in fencing; a guard. 11. a. The projecting ridge of a lock or keyhole that prevents the turning of a key other than the proper one. b. The notch cut into a key that corresponds to such a ridge. — v. tr. ward-ed, ward-ing, wards. To guard; protect. — phrasal verb. ward off. 1. To turn aside; parry: ward off an opponent's blows. 2. To try to prevent; avert: took vitamins to ward off head colds. [Middle English, action of guarding, from Old English weard, a watching, keeper. See wer-³ in Appendix.]

Ward (wôrd), (Aaron) Montgomery. 1843-1913. American merchant who established (1872) the mail-order business that bears his name.

Ward¹ (wôrd), Artemus. 1727-1800. American Revolutionary general who directed Massachusetts troops in the siege of Boston, until George Washington relieved him of the command and drove the British from the city (1776).

Ward² (wôrd), Artemus. See Charles Farrar Browne.

Ward (wôrd), Barbara Baroness Jackson of Lodsworth. 1914-1981. British economist, conservationist, and writer whose works on ecology and political economy include Spaceship Earth (1966) and Progress for a Small Planet (1980).

Ward (wôrd), Sir Joseph George. 1856-1930. New Zealand politician whose many posts included that of prime minister (1906-1912 and 1928-1930).

Ward (wôrd), Lester Frank. 1841-1913. American sociologist considered a founder of sociology in the United States. His works include The Psychic Factors of Civilization (1893).

Ward (wôrd), Mary Augusta Arnold. Known as Mrs. Humphry Ward. 1851-1920. British writer whose novels include Robert Elsmere (1888).

Ward (wôrd), Nathaniel. Pen name Theodore de la Guard. 1578?-1652. English clergyman and writer in America. He codified Massachusetts law (1641) and is primarily known for his satire The Simple Cobler of Aggawam in America (1645).

-ward or -wards suff. 1. a. In a specified direction in time or space: downward. b. Toward a specified place or position: skyward. 2. a. Occurring or situated in a specified direction: leftward. b. Having a direction toward a specified place or position: landward. [Middle English, from Old English -weard. See wer-² in Appendix.]

war dance (wôr dăns) n. A tribal dance performed before a battle or as a celebration after a victory.

ward-ed (wôr'dîd) adj. Having notches or ridges. Used of a key or lock.

ward-en (wôrd'n) n. 1. The chief administrative official of a prison. 2. An official charged with the enforcement of certain laws and regulations: an air raid warden. 3. Chiefly British. a. The chief executive official in charge of a port or market. b. Any of various crown officers having administrative duties. c. One of the governing officials of certain colleges, schools, guilds, or hospitals; a trustee. 4. The chief executive of a borough in certain states. 5. A churchwarden. [Middle English wardein, from Old North French, from warder, to guard, of Germanic origin. See wer-³ in Appendix.] —war'den-ship' n.

ward-en-ry (wôrd'n-rē) n. pl. ward-en-ries. The office, duties, or jurisdiction of a warden.

ward-er¹ (wôr'dər) n. 1. A guard, porter, or watcher of a gate or tower.

2. Chiefly British. A prison guard. [Middle English, from Anglo-Norman wardere, from Old North French warder, to guard. See WARDEN.] —ward-er-ship' n.

ward-er² (wôr'dər) n. A baton formerly used by a ruler or commander as a symbol of authority and to signal orders. [Middle English, possibly from warden, to ward, from Old English weardian. See wer-³ in Appendix.]

ward heeler (wôrd hē'lər) n. Informal. A worker for the ward organization of a political machine.

ward-robe (wôr'drôb') n. 1. A tall cabinet, closet, or small room built to hold clothes. 2. Garments considered as a group, especially all the articles of clothing that belong to one person. 3. a. The costumes belonging to a theater or theatrical troupe. b. The place in which theatrical costumes are kept. 4. The department in charge of wearing apparel, jewelry, and accessories in a royal or noble household. [Middle English warderobe, from Old North French : warder, to guard; see wer-³ in Appendix + robe, garment; see ROBE.]

ward-room (wôrd'rôom', -rôom') n. 1. The common recreation area and dining room for the commissioned officers on a warship. 2. The commissioned officers on a warship.

-wards suff. Variant of -ward.

ward-ship (wôrd'shîp') n. 1. The state of being in the charge of a guardian. 2. Custody; guardianship.

ware¹ (wâr) n. 1. Articles of the same general kind, made of a specified material or used in a specific application. Often used in combination: earthenware, silverware; hardware, software. 2. a. An article of commerce. b. An immaterial asset or benefit, such as a service or personal accomplishment, regarded as an article of commerce. [Middle English, from Old English waru, goods. See wer-³ in Appendix.]

ware² (wâr) v. tr. warded, war-ing, wares. Archaic. To beware of. — adj. Obsolete. 1. Watchful; wary. 2. Aware. [Middle English waren, from Old English warian; see wer-³ in Appendix. Adj., Middle English. See WARY.]

Ware-ham (wâr'əm, -hăm') A town of southeast Massachusetts on Buzzards Bay northeast of New Bedford. It is a resort town in a cranberry-growing region. Population, 19,232.

ware-house (wâr'hous') n. Abbr. whs. 1. A place in which goods or merchandise are stored; a storehouse. 2. Chiefly British. A large, usually wholesale shop. — v. tr. ware-housed, ware-hous-ing, ware-hous-es (also -houz'). 1. To place or store in a warehouse, especially in a bonded or government warehouse. 2. To institutionalize (people) in usually deficient housing and in conditions in which medical, educational, psychiatric, and social services are below par or absent: "has felt forced to warehouse hundreds of children in temporary shelters" (Justine Wise Polier). — ware'hous'er (-hou'zər) n.

ware-room (wâr'rōom', -rōom') n. A room used for the storage or display of goods or wares.

war-fare (wôr'fâr') n. 1. a. The waging of war against an enemy; armed conflict. b. Military operations marked by a specific characteristic: guerrilla warfare; chemical warfare. 2. A state of disharmony or conflict; strife: constant spousal warfare in the household. 3. Acts undertaken to destroy or undermine the strength of another: political warfare. [Middle English : warre, war; see WAR + fare, journey (from Old English faru, from faran, to journey); see FARE.]

war-fa-rin (wôr'fər-ĭn) n. A white crystalline compound, C₁₉H₁₆O₄, used to kill rodents and medicinally as a blood anticoagulant. [W(isconsin) A(lumni) R(earch) F(oundation) + (COUM)ARIN.] war game (wôr gām) n. 1. An often physical or electronic simulation of a military operation involving two or more forces and using rules, data, and procedures designed to depict an actual or assumed situation. 2. A simulation of a proposed plan of action or a strategy, intended to test its validity when challenged.

war-game (wôr'gām') v. war-gamed, war-gam-ing, war-games. — v. intr. To engage in a war game. — v. tr. To simulate (a military operation or a proposed plan of action) in order to test validity or effectiveness under actual or assumed conditions. — war gamer n.

war hawk (wôr hōk) n. 1. A member of the 12th U.S. Congress (1811-1813) who advocated war with Great Britain. 2. One who advocates war; a hawk.

war-head (wôr'hěd') n. A part of the armament system in the forward part of a projectile, such as a guided missile, rocket, torpedo, bomb, or other munition, that contains either a nuclear or thermonuclear system, a high explosive system, chemical or biological agents, or inert materials intended to inflict damage on a target.

War·hol (wôr'hôl', -hōl'), Andy. 1930?-1987. American artist. A leader of the pop art movement, he produced paintings and silk-screen prints of commonplace images, such as soup cans and photographs of celebrities.

war·horse also war-horse (wôr'hôrs') n. 1. A horse used in combat; a charger. 2. Informal. One who has been through many battles, struggles, or fights. 3. Informal. A musical or dramatic work that has been performed so often that it has become hackneyed.

war·like (wôr'lik') adj. 1. Belligerent; hostile. 2. a. Of or relating to war; martial. b. Indicative of or threatening war.

war·lock (wôr'lök') n. A male witch, sorcerer, wizard, or demon. [Middle English warloghe, from Old English wærloga, oath-breaker : wær, pledge; see wēro- in Appendix + -loga, liar (from lēogan, to lie); see leugh- in Appendix.]

war·lord (wôr'lôrd') n. A military commander exercising civil power in a region, whether in nominal allegiance to the national government or in defiance of it. —war'lord'ism n.

warm (wôrm) adj. warm·er, warm·est. 1. Somewhat hotter than temperate; having or producing a comfortable and agreeable degree of heat; moderately hot: a warm climate. 2. Having the natural heat of living beings: a warm body.

3. Preserving or imparting heat: a warm overcoat. 4. Having or causing a sensation of unusually high body heat, as from exercise or hard work; overheated.

5. Marked by enthusiasm; ardent: warm support. 6. Characterized by liveliness, excitement, or disagreement; heated: a warm debate. 7. Marked by or revealing friendliness or sincerity; cordial: warm greetings. 8. Loving; passionate: a warm embrace. 9. Excitable, impetuous, or quick to be aroused: a warm temper.

10. Color. Predominantly red or yellow in tone: a warm sunset. 11. Recently made; fresh: a warm trail. 12. Close to discovering, guessing, or finding something, as in certain games. 13. Informal. Uncomfortable because of danger or annoyance: Things are warm for the bookies. — v. warmed, warm·ing, warms. — v. tr. 1. To raise slightly in temperature; make warm: warmed the rolls a bit more; warm up the house. 2. To make zealous or ardent; enliven. 3. To fill with pleasant emotions: We were warmed by the sight of home. — v. intr.

1. To become warm: The rolls are warming in the oven. 2. To become ardent, enthusiastic, or animated: began to warm to the subject. 3. To become kindly disposed or friendly: She felt the audience warming to her. — n. Informal. A warming or heating. —phrasal verb. warm up.

1. Sports. To prepare for an athletic event by exercising, stretching, or practicing for a short time beforehand.

2. To make or become ready for an event or operation. 3. To make more enthusiastic, excited, or animated. 4. To approach a state of confrontation or violence.

[Middle English, from Old English wearm.] —warm'er n. —warm'ish adj.
—warm'ly adv. —warm'ness n.

warm-blood-ed (wôrm'blüd'ïd) adj. 1. Zoology. Maintaining a relatively constant and warm body temperature independent of environmental temperature; homeothermic. 2. Ardent; passionate. —warm'-blood'ed-ness n.

warmed-o-ver (wôrmd'ô'vər) adj. 1. Warmed up; reheated: warmed-over tidbits. 2. Not new, fresh, or spontaneous; stale.

warm front (wôrm frünt) n. A front along which an advancing mass of warm air rises over a mass of cold air.

warm-heart-ed (wôrm'här'tïd) adj. Marked by kindness, sympathy, and generosity. —warm'heart'ed-ly adv. —warm'heart'ed-ness n.

warm-ing pan (wôr'mïng pän) n. A metal pan with a cover and a long handle, designed to hold hot liquids or coals and used to warm a bed.

war-mon-ger (wôr'müŋg'gər, -möŋg'-) n. One who advocates or attempts to stir up war. —war'mon'ger-ing adj. & n.

war-mouth (wôr'mouth') n. pl. war-mouths (-mouthz', -mouths') or warmouth. A freshwater sunfish (Lepomis gulosus) of the eastern and midwestern United States, having an olive color, a large mouth, and minute teeth on its tongue. [Origin unknown.]

warmth (wôrmth) n. 1. The state, sensation, or quality of producing or having a moderate degree of heat: an agreeable warmth in the house. 2. a. Friendliness, kindness, or affection: human warmth. b. Excitement or intensity, as of love or passion; ardor. 3. Color. The glowing effect produced by using predominantly red or yellow hues. [Middle English, from Old English wiermthu*, from wearm, warm.]

warm-up or warm-up (wôrm'üp') n. 1. a. The act or procedure of warming up. b. A period spent in warming up. 2. Often warm-ups or warm-ups. Clothing, such as a sweat suit, made or designed to be worn before or after participation in an athletic event. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a warm-up session; a warmup jacket.

warn (wôrn) v. warned, warn-ing, warns. — v. tr. 1. To make aware in advance of actual or potential harm, danger, or evil. 2. To admonish as to action or manners. 3. To notify (a person) to go or stay away: warned them off the posted property. 4. To notify or apprise in advance: They called and warned me that they might be delayed. — v. intr. To give a warning. [Middle English warnen, from Old English warnian. See wer-⁴ in Appendix.] —warn'er n.

SYNONYMS: warn, caution, forewarn. These verbs mean to give someone notice of and put the person on guard against actual or possible danger or risk. Warn, the most inclusive, implies well-timed notice that causes a person to be alert, vigilant, or wary: "My father was warned by the neighbors that we were in great danger” (W.H. Hudson). Caution often suggests a warning that calls for the use of circumspection or prudence, as in avoiding unpleasant consequences: The Secretary of State cautioned that terrorism would be countered by retaliatory action. Forewarn intensifies the sense of advance notice: Forewarned is forearmed.

War-ner (wôr'nər), Charles Dudley. 1829-1900. American writer and editor best known for his collaboration on The Gilded Age (1873) with Mark Twain and for his series of essays My Summer in a Garden (1871).

War-ner (wôr'nər), Glenn Scobey. Known as “Pop.” 1871-1954. American football coach who devised many deceptive offensive strategies.

War-ner (wôr'nər), Harry Morris. 1881-1958. American filmmaker who with his brothers Albert (1884-1967), Samuel Louis (1887-1927), and Jack (1892-1978) founded Warner Brothers Pictures, which produced the first talkie, The Jazz Singer (1927), and many film classics, including Casablanca (1942).

Warner Rob-ins (wôr'nər rōb'inz) A city of central Georgia south of Macon. Incorporated in 1943, it includes one of the largest Air Force bases in the South. Population, 43,726.

warn-ing (wôr'nĭng) n. 1. An intimation, a threat, or a sign of impending danger or evil. 2. a. Advice to beware. b. Counsel to desist from a specified undesirable course of action. 3. A cautionary or deterrent example. 4. Something, such as a signal, that warns. See Synonyms at alarm. — adj. Acting or serving to warn: a warning light; warning words. — warn'ing-ly adv.

warning coloration (wôr'nĭng kül'ə-rā'shən) n. The conspicuously recognizable markings of an animal, such as a skunk, that serve to warn off potential predators. Also called aposematic coloration war of nerves (wôr ũv nŭrvz) n. pl. wars of nerves. A conflict marked by psychological tactics, such as intimidation and threats, that is intended primarily to confuse one's enemy and erode that enemy's morale.

warp (wōrp) v. warped, warp-ing, warps. — v. tr. 1. To turn or twist (wood, for example) out of shape. 2. To turn from a correct or proper course; deflect. 3. To affect unfavorably, unfairly, or wrongly; bias. See Synonyms at bias. 4. To arrange (strands of yarn or thread) so that they run lengthwise in weaving. 5. Nautical. To move (a vessel) by hauling on a line that is fastened to or around a piling, an anchor, or a pier. — v. intr. 1. To become bent or twisted out of shape: The wooden frame warped in the humidity. 2. To turn aside from a true, correct, or natural course; go astray. See Synonyms at distort. 3. Nautical. To move a vessel by hauling on a line that is fastened to or around a piling, an anchor, or a pier. — n. 1. The state of being twisted or bent out of shape. 2. A distortion or twist, especially in a piece of wood. 3. A mental or moral twist, aberration, or deviation. 4. The threads that run lengthwise in a woven fabric, crossed at right angles to the woof. 5. Warp and woof. 6. Nautical. A towline used in warping a vessel. [Middle English werpen, from Old English weorpan, to throw away. See wer² in Appendix.] —warp'er n.

war paint (wôr pânt) n. 1. Pigments applied to the face or body in preparation for battle, as in certain tribal societies. 2. Informal. Cosmetics such as lipstick, rouge, or mascara.

warp and woof (wôrp ænd wöof) n. The underlying structure on which something is built; a base or foundation: “profound dislocations throughout the entire warp and woof of the American economy” (David A. Stockman).

war party (wôr pär'tē) n. 1. A band of warriors engaged in fighting or raiding an enemy. Used especially of Native Americans. 2. A usually blatantly patriotic political party supporting a war.

war-path (wôr'păth', -păth') n. 1. A course that leads to warfare or battle. 2. A hostile course or mood: The chef is on the warpath today.

war-plane (wôr'plân') n. A combat aircraft.

war-rant (wôr'ənt, wöř'-) n. Abbr. war., wrnt. 1. Authorization or certification; sanction, as given by a superior. 2. Justification for an action or a belief; grounds: “He almost gives his failings as a warrant for his greatness” (Garry Wills). 3. Something that provides assurance or confirmation; a guarantee or proof: a warrant of authenticity; a warrant for success. 4. An order that serves as authorization, especially: a. A voucher authorizing payment or receipt of money.

b. Law. A judicial writ authorizing an officer to make a search, a seizure, or an arrest or to execute a judgment. 5. a. A warrant officer. b. A certificate of appointment given to a warrant officer. — v. tr. war-rant-ed, war-rant-ing, war-rants. 1. To guarantee or attest to the quality, accuracy, or condition of. 2. To guarantee or attest to the character or reliability of; vouch for. 3. a. To guarantee (a product). b. To guarantee (a purchaser) indemnification against damage or loss. 4. To guarantee the immunity or security of. 5. To provide adequate grounds for; justify. See Synonyms at justify. 6. To grant authorization or sanction to (someone); authorize or empower. 7. Law. To guarantee clear title to (real property). [Middle English warrant, from Old North French, of Germanic origin. See wer⁴ in Appendix.] —war'rant-a-bil'i-ty, war'rant-a-ble-ness n. —war'rant-a-ble adj. —war'rant-a-bly adv. —war'rant-less adj.

war-ran-tee (wôr'ən-tē', wöř'-) n. One to whom a warranty is made or a warrant is given.

war-rant-er (wôr'ən-tər, -tôr', wöř'-) n. Variant of warrantor.

warrant officer (wôr'ənt ô'fī-sər) n. Abbr. WO, W.O. A military officer, usually a skilled technician or a helicopter pilot, intermediate in rank between a noncommissioned officer and a commissioned officer, having authority by virtue of a warrant.

war-ran-tor (wôr'ən-tər, -tôr', wöř'-) also war-rant-er (-tər) n. One that makes a warrant or gives a warranty to another.

war-ran-ty (wôr'ən-tē, wŏr'-) n. pl. war-ran-ties. 1. Official authorization, sanction, or warrant. 2. Justification or valid grounds for an act or a course of action. 3. Law. a. An assurance by the seller of property that the goods or property are as represented or will be as promised. b. The insured's guarantee that the facts are as stated in reference to an insurance risk or that specified conditions will be fulfilled to keep the contract effective. c. A covenant by which the seller of land binds himself or herself and his or her heirs to defend the security of the estate conveyed. d. A judicial writ; a warrant. 4. A guarantee given to the purchaser by a company stating that a product is reliable and free from known defects and that the seller will, without charge, repair or replace defective parts within a given time limit and under certain conditions. [Middle English warantie, from Old North French, from feminine past participle of warantir, to guarantee, from warant, warrant. See wer⁴ in Appendix.]

war-ren (wôr'ən, wŏr'-) n. 1. a. An area where rabbits live in burrows. b. A colony of rabbits. See Synonyms at flock¹. 2. An enclosure for small game animals. 3. a. An overcrowded living area. b. A mazelike place where one may easily become lost: a warren of narrow, dark alleys and side streets. [Middle English warene, from Old North French, enclosure. See wer⁴ in Appendix.]

War-ren (wôr'ən, wŏr'-) 1. A city of southeast Michigan, an industrial suburb of Detroit. Population, 144,864. 2. A city of northeast Ohio northwest of Youngstown. It is a manufacturing center. Population, 50,793.

War-ren (wôr'ən, wŏr'-), Earl. 1891-1974. American jurist who served as the chief justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1953-1969).

War-ren (wôr'ən, wŏr'-), Joseph. 1741-1775. American physician and patriot who instructed Paul Revere and William Dawes to make their ride to Lexington (April 18, 1775) and was killed in the Battle of Bunker Hill (June 17, 1775).

War-ren (wôr'ən, wŏr'-), Mercy Otis. 1728-1814. American writer noted for her satirical plays, The Adulateur (1773) and The Group (1775), directed against the Tories.

War-ren (wôr'ən, wŏr'-), Robert Penn. 1905-1989. American writer and critic primarily known for his poetry. His works include the novel All the King's Men (1946) and many poetry collections, such as Promises (1957). In 1985 he was appointed the first American poet laureate.

war-ren-er (wôr'ə-nər, wŏr'-) n. 1. One who owns or keeps a rabbit warren. 2. A gamekeeper.

War-rens-ville Heights (wôr'inz-vīl' hīts, wŏr'-) A city of northeast Ohio, a residential suburb of Cleveland. Population, 15,745.

War-ring-ton (wôr'īng-tən, wŏr'-) 1. A borough of west-central England east of Liverpool on the Mersey River. It is a manufacturing center. Population, 168,600. 2. A town of northwest Florida, a residential suburb of Pensacola. Population, 16,040.

war-ri-or (wôr'ē-ər, wör'-) n. One who is engaged in or experienced in battle.

[Middle English werreour, from Old North French werreieur, from werreier, to make war, from werre, war. See WAR.]

war-saw (wôr'sô) n. A large grouper (Epinephelus nigritus) of warm Atlantic waters off the southeast coast of the United States. [Perhaps alteration of American Spanish guasa, a kind of sea bass.]

War-saw (wôr'sô') The capital of Poland, in the east-central part of the country on the Vistula River. Founded in the 13th century, it replaced Cracow as Poland's capital in 1596. Warsaw was ruled by Russia as an independent kingdom (1815-1917) and became capital of Poland again in 1918. Most of the city's Jewish residents were executed during the German occupation in World War II. Warsaw was rebuilt after 1945 and is today a major cultural, commercial, and industrial center. Population, 1,649,000.

war-ship (wôr'shîp') n. A combat ship. Also called man-of-war

wart (wôrt) n. 1. a. A hard, rough lump growing on the skin, caused by infection with certain viruses and occurring typically on the hands or feet. b. A similar growth or protuberance, as on a plant. 2. A genital wart. 3. a. One that resembles or is likened to a wart, especially in unattractiveness or smallness.

b. An imperfection; a flaw. —idiom. warts and all. Slang. All defects and imperfections notwithstanding: We love and respect you for what you are, warts and all. [Middle English, from Old English wearte.] —wart'ed, wart'y adj.

War-ta (vâr'tə, -tä) A river, about 764 km (475 mi) long, rising in south-central Poland northwest of Cracow and flowing generally north and west to the Oder River.

wart hog also wart-hog (wôrt'hôg', -hög') n. A wild African hog (Phacochoerus aethiopicus) that has a pair of prominent tusks and wartlike growths on the face.

war-time (wôr'tîm') n. A period during which a war is in progress. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: wartime rationing; wartime mariages.

wart plant (wôrt plănt) n. See haworthia. [From the tubercles on the leaves of many species.]

War-wick (wôr'wîk) A city of east-central Rhode Island on Narragansett Bay south of Providence. Settled in 1643, it is a manufacturing center and a summer resort. Population, 85,427.

War-wick (wôr'îk), Earl of Title of Richard Neville. Known as “the Kingmaker.” 1428-1471. English military and political leader who fought for the Yorkists during the Wars of the Roses and secured the throne for Edward IV (1461). He then changed allegiance and restored the Lancastrian Henry VI to the throne (1470). Warwick was killed in the Battle of Barnet, which regained the throne for Edward.

war·y (wâr'ē) adj. war·i·er, war·i·est. 1. On guard; watchful: taught to be wary of strangers. 2. Characterized by caution: a wary glance at the black clouds. [Middle English ware, from Old English wær. See wer-³ in Appendix.]

—war'i·ly adv. —war'i·ness n.

was (wüz, wöz; wəz when unstressed) v. First and third person singular past indicative of be. [Middle English, from Old English wæs. See wes-¹ in Appendix.]

wa·sa·bi (wä'sä-bē) n. A pungent green Oriental horseradish usually served as a condiment. [Japanese.]

Wa·satch Range (wô'säch' rānj) A range of the Rocky Mountains extending about 402 km (250 mi) from southeast Idaho to central Utah and rising to 3,662.4 m (12,008 ft) at Mount Timpanogos.

wash (wösh, wôsh) v. washed, wash·ing, wash·es. — v. tr. 1. a. To cleanse, using water or other liquid, usually with soap, detergent, or bleach, by immersing, dipping, rubbing, or scrubbing: wash one's hands; wash windows. b. To soak, rinse out, and remove (dirt or stain) with or as if with water: wash grease out of overalls. 2. To make moist or wet; drench: Tears washed the child's cheeks. 3. To flow over, against, or past: waves that washed the sandy shores. 4. To carry, erode, remove, or destroy by the action of moving water: Heavy rains washed the topsoil away. 5. To rid of corruption or guilt; cleanse or purify: wash sins away. 6. To cover or coat with a watery layer of paint or other coloring substance. 7. Chemistry. a. To purify (a gas) by passing through or over a liquid, as to remove soluble matter. b. To pass a solvent, such as distilled water, through (a precipitate). 8. To separate constituents of (an ore) by immersion in or agitation with water. 9. To cause to undergo a swirling action: washed the tea around in the cup. — v. intr. 1. To cleanse something in or by means of water or other liquid. 2. a. To undergo washing without fading or other damage: This fabric will wash. b. Informal. To hold up under examination; be convincing: "That [proclamation], of course, will not wash" (John Hughes). 3. To flow, sweep, or beat with a characteristic lapping sound: Waves washed over the pilings. 4. To be carried away, removed, or drawn by the action of water. — n. 1. The act or process of washing or cleansing. 2. A quantity of articles washed or intended for washing: The wash is on the back porch. 3. Waste liquid; swill. 4. Fermented liquid from which liquor is distilled. 5. A preparation or product used in washing or coating. 6. A cosmetic or medicinal liquid, such as a mouthwash. 7. a. A thin layer of water color or India ink spread on a drawing. b. A light tint or hue: "a wash of red sunset" (Thomas Pynchon). 8. a. A rush or surge of water or waves. b. The sound of this rush or surge. 9. a. Removal or erosion of soil by the action of moving water. b. A deposit of recently eroded debris. 10. a. Low or marshy ground washed by tidal waters. b. A stretch of shallow water. 11. Western U.S. The dry bed of a stream. 12. Turbulence in air or water caused by the motion or action of an oar, propeller, jet, or airfoil. 13. Informal. An activity, action, or enterprise that yields neither marked gain nor marked loss: “[The company] doesn’t do badly. That is, it’s a wash” (Harper’s). — adj. 1. Used for washing. 2. Being such that washing is possible; washable. — phrasal verbs. wash down. 1. To clean by washing with water from top to bottom: wash down the walls. 2. To follow the ingestion of (food, for example) with the ingestion of a liquid: washed the cake down with coffee. wash out. 3. a. To remove or be removed by washing. b. To cause to fade by laundering: color that had been washed out by bleach. 4. To carry or wear away or be carried or worn away by the action of moving water: The river rose and washed out the dam. The road has washed out five miles down the mountain. 5. To deplete or become depleted of vitality: By evening, I was washed out from overwork. 6. To eliminate or be eliminated as unsatisfactory: a football player who was washed out; an officer candidate who washed out after one month. 7. To cause (an event) to be rained out. wash up. 8. To wash one’s hands. 9. Chiefly British. To wash dishes after a meal. 10. To bring about the end or ruin of; finish. — idioms. come out in the wash. Slang. 1. To be revealed eventually: The real reasons for her resignation will come out in the wash. 2. To turn out well in the end: Don’t worry: this project will come out in the wash. wash (one’s) hands of. 3. To refuse to accept responsibility for. 4. To abandon; renounce. [Middle English washen, from Old English wacsan, wæscan. See wed⁻¹ in Appendix.]

Wash (wösh, wôsh) An inlet of the North Sea off east-central England. The Wash has a dredged ship channel that leads to King’s Lynn.

Wash. abbr. Washington.

wash·a·ble (wösh’ə-bəl, wôsh’-) adj. Capable of being washed without fading or other injury: washable wool. — wash’·a·bil’i·ty n.

wash-and-wear (wösh’ən-wâr’, wôsh’-) adj. Treated so as to be easily or quickly washed or rinsed clean and to require little or no ironing. Used of clothes and linens: a wash-and-wear shirt.

wash·ba·sin (wösh’bā’sən, wôsh’-) n. See washbowl.

wash·board (wösh’bôrd’, -bôrd’, wôsh’-) n. 1. a. A board having a corrugated surface on which clothes can be rubbed in the process of laundering. b. Music. A similar board used as a percussion instrument. 2. A board fastened to a wall at the floor; a baseboard. 3. Nautical. A thin plank fastened to the side of a boat or to the sill of a port to keep out the sea and the spray.

wash·bowl (wösh’bôl’, wôsh’-) n. A basin that can be filled with water for use in washing oneself. Also called washbasin wash·cloth (wösh’klôth’, -klôth’, wôsh’-) n. A small, usually square cloth of absorbent material used for washing the face or body. Also called facecloth, washrag.

wash·day (wösh’dā’, wôsh’-) n. A day set aside for doing household washing.

wash drawing (wŏsh drŏ'ing) n. A drawing or painting in which washes of color are used.

washed-out (wŏsht'out', wŏsht'-') adj. 1. Lacking color or intensity; faded. 2. Exhausted or tired-looking. 3. Having dropped a project or an enterprise or having been dropped from one: a washed-out officer candidate.

washed-up (wŏsht'ŭp', wŏsht'-') adj. 1. No longer successful or needed; finished. 2. Ready to give up in disgust.

wash-er (wŏsh'ər, wŏ'shər) n. 1. One who washes: a washer of clothes; a washer of windows. 2. An appliance used for washing, especially: a. A washing machine. b. An automatic dishwasher. 3. A flat disk, as of metal, plastic, rubber, or leather, placed beneath a nut or at an axle bearing or a joint to relieve friction, prevent leakage, or distribute pressure.

wash-er-wom-an (wŏsh'ər-wŏm'ən, wŏ'shər-) also wash-wom-an (wŏsh'wŏm'ən, wŏsh'-') n. A woman who washes clothes and linens for a living.

wash-ing (wŏsh'ing, wŏ'shing) n. 1. The act or process of one that washes. 2. Articles washed or intended to be washed at one time: the week's washing. 3. The residue after an ore or other material has been washed. 4. Often wash-ings. The liquid used to wash something.

washing machine (wŏsh'ing mə-shēn') n. A usually automatic machine for washing clothes and linens.

washing soda (wŏsh'ing sŏ'də) n. A hydrated sodium carbonate used as a general cleanser.

Wash-ing-ton (wŏsh'ing-tən, wŏ'shing-) 1. Abbr. WA, Wash. A state of the northwest United States on the Pacific Ocean. It was admitted as the 42nd state in 1889. Originally explored by Capt. James Cook (1778), Washington was the object of a dispute between England and the United States until 1846, when its northern border was set at the 49th parallel. Washington is noted for its lumber and defense industries. Olympia is the capital and Seattle the largest city. Population, 4,887,941. 2. The capital of the United States, on the Potomac River between Virginia and Maryland and coextensive with the District of Columbia. It was designed by Pierre L'Enfant and became the capital in 1800. In the War of 1812 the British captured and sacked (1814) Washington, burning most of the public buildings, including the Capitol and the White House. Population, 609,909. 3. A city of southwest Pennsylvania southwest of Pittsburgh. Settled in 1769, it is a manufacturing center and the seat of Washington and Jefferson College (first chartered 1787). Population, 15,864. —Wash'ing-to'ni-an (wŏsh'ing-tŏ'nē-ən, wŏ'shing-) adj. & n.

Wash-ing-ton (wŏsh'ing-tən, wŏ'shing-), Booker T(aliaferro). 1856-1915. American educator. Born into slavery, he acquired an education after emancipa-tion and became the principal of Tuskegee Institute, which flourished under his tutelage (1881-1915).

Wash·ing·ton (wŏsh'ing-tən, wô'shīng-), Bushrod. 1762-1829. American jurist who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1798-1829).

Wash·ing·ton (wŏsh'ing-tən, wô'shīng-), George. 1732-1799. American military leader and the first President of the United States (1789-1797). Commander of the American forces in the Revolutionary War (1775-1783), he presided over the Second Constitutional Convention (1787) and was elected President of the fledgling country (1789). He shunned partisan politics and in his farewell address (1796) warned against foreign involvement.

Washington, Lake. A lake in west-central Washington on the eastern boundary of Seattle.

Wash·ing·ton (wŏsh'ing-tən, wô'shīng-), Martha Dandridge Custis. 1731-1802. First Lady of the United States (1789-1797) as the wife of President George Washington.

Washington, Mount. A mountain, 1,917.8 m (6,288 ft) high, of eastern New Hampshire. It is the highest elevation in the White Mountains.

Washington Island (wŏsh'ing-tən ī'lənd) An island of northeast Wisconsin in northwest Lake Michigan off the northern tip of the Door Peninsula.

Wash·ing·ton's Birthday (wŏsh'ing-tənz bûrth'dā', wô'shīng-) n. February 22, formerly observed to commemorate the birth of George Washington in 1732. This holiday is now included in the observances of Presidents' Day.

Wash·i·ta (wŏsh'ī-tô', wô'shī-) A river rising in northwest Texas and flowing about 724 km (450 mi) generally east-southeast across Oklahoma to the Red River.

wash·out (wŏsh'out', wôsh'-) n. 1. a. Erosion of a relatively soft surface, such as a roadbed, by a sudden gush of water, as from a downpour or floods. b. A channel produced by such erosion. 2. a. A total failure or disappointment. b. One who fails to measure up to a standard, especially one who fails a course of training or study.

wash·rag (wŏsh'ræg', wôsh'-) n. See washcloth.

wash·room (wŏsh'rōom', -rōom', wôsh'-) n. A bathroom, especially one in a public place.

wash sale (wŏsh sāl) n. The illegal buying of stock by a seller's agents to give the impression of an active market.

wash·stand (wŏsh'stānd', wôsh'-) n. 1. A stand designed to hold a basin and pitcher of water for washing. 2. A stationary bathroom sink.

wash·tub (wŏsh'tüb', wôsh'-) n. A tub used for washing clothes.

wash·wom·an (wŏsh'wōom'ən, wôsh'-) n. Variant of washerwoman.

wash·y (wōsh'ē, wō'shē) adj. wash·i·er, wash·i·est. 1. Watery; diluted: washy tea. 2. Lacking strength or intensity: a washy handshake; washy prose.
—wash'·i·ness n.

was·n't (wūz'ənt, wōz'-) Was not.

wasp (wōsp, wōsp) n. Any of numerous social or solitary insects, chiefly of the superfamilies Vespoidea and Sphecoidea, having a slender body with a constricted abdomen, two pairs of membranous wings, mouths adapted for biting or sucking, and in the females an ovipositor often modified as a sting. [Middle English waspe, from Old English wæps, wæsp.]

Wasp or WASP (wōsp, wōsp) n. A white Protestant of Anglo-Saxon ancestry. [W(HITE) + A(NGLO-)S(AXON) + P(ROTESTANT).]

wasp·ish (wōs'pīsh) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or suggestive of a wasp. 2. Easily irritated or annoyed; irascible. 3. Indicative of irritation, annoyance, or spite: a waspish remark. —wasp'ish·ly adv. —wasp'ish·ness n.

wasp waist (wōsp wāst) n. A very slender waist or one that is tightly corseted.
—wasp'·waist'ed (wōsp'wās'tīd, wōsp'-) adj.

wasp·y (wōs'pē) adj. wasp·i·er, wasp·i·est. Characteristic of a wasp.

was·sail (wōs'əl, wō-sāl') n. 1. a. A salutation or toast given in drinking someone's health or as an expression of good will at a festivity. b. The drink used in such toasting, commonly ale or wine spiced with roasted apples and sugar. 2. A festivity characterized by much drinking. — v. was·sailed, was·sail·ing, was·sails. — v. tr. To drink to the health of; toast. — v. intr. To engage in or drink a wassail. [Middle English, contraction of wæshæil, be healthy, from Old Norse ves heill: ves, imperative sing. of vera, to be; see wes⁻¹ in Appendix + heill, healthy; see kailo- in Appendix.] —was'sail·er n.

Was·ser·mann reaction (wä'sər-mən rē-āk'shən) n. A complement-fixing reaction to the Wassermann test.

Wassermann test (wä'sər-mən tēst) n. A diagnostic test for syphilis involving the fixation or inactivation of a complement by an antibody in a blood serum sample. [After August von Wassermann (1866-1925), German bacteriologist.]

wast (wōst; wəst when unstressed) v. Archaic. A second person singular past tense of be.

wast·age (wā'stīj) n. 1. Loss by deterioration, wear, or destruction: "Disease and desertion still caused much greater wastage than battle" (Theodore Ropp).

2. The gradual process of wasting. 3. An amount that is wasted or lost by wear.

waste (wāst) v. wast·ed, wast·ing, wastes. — v. tr. 1. To use, consume, spend, or expend thoughtlessly or carelessly. 2. To cause to lose energy, strength, or vigor; exhaust, tire, or enfeeble: Disease wasted his body. 3. To fail to take advantage of or use for profit; lose: waste an opportunity. 4. a. To destroy completely. b. Slang. To kill; murder. — v. intr. 1. To lose energy, strength, weight, or vigor; become weak or enfeebled: wasting away from an illness. 2. To pass without being put to use: Time is wasting. — n. 1. The act or an instance of wasting or the condition of being wasted: a waste of talent; gone to waste. 2. A place, region, or land that is uninhabited or uncultivated; a desert or wilderness. 3. A devastated or destroyed region, town, or building; a ruin. 4. a. A useless or worthless byproduct, as from a manufacturing process. b. Something, such as steam, that escapes without being used. 5. Garbage; trash. 6. The undigested residue of food eliminated from the body; excrement. — adj. 1. Regarded or discarded as worthless or useless: waste trimmings. 2. Used as a conveyance or container for refuse: a waste bin. 3. Excreted from the body: waste matter.

—idiom. waste (one's) breath. To gain or accomplish nothing by speaking. [Middle English wasten, from Old North French waster, from Latin vāstāre, to make empty, from vāstus, empty. See eu-² in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: waste, blow, consume, dissipate, fritter, squander. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to spend or expend without restraint and often to no avail”: wasted her inheritance; blew a fortune on a shopping spree; time and money consumed in litigation; dissipating their energies in pointless argument; frittering away her entire allowance; squandered his literary talent on writing commercials.

ANTONYM: save

waste-bas-ket (wāst'bās'kīt) n. An open-topped container for rubbish.

wast-ed (wā'stīd) adj. 1. Not profitably used or maintained: a wasted inheritance. 2. Needless or superfluous: These are wasted words. 3. Deteriorated; ravaged: a wasted landscape. 4. Frail and enfeebled, as from prolonged illness; emaciated. See Synonyms at haggard. 5. Slang. Under the influence of a mind-altering drug. 6. Archaic. Having elapsed.

waste-ful (wāst'fəl) adj. Marked by or inclined to waste; extravagant.

—waste/ful-ly adv. —waste/ful-ness n.

waste-land (wāst'länd') n. 1. Land that is desolate, barren, or ravaged. 2. A place, an era, or an aspect of life considered as lacking in spiritual, aesthetic, or other humanizing qualities; a vacuum: a cultural wasteland.

waste-pa-per (wāst'pā'pər) n. Discarded paper.

waste pipe (wāst pīp) n. A pipe that carries off liquid waste.

waste product (wāst prōd'əkt) n. 1. Useless or worthless debris produced during or as a result of a manufacturing or other process. 2. Organic waste matter such as urine, feces, or dead cells.

wast-er (wā'stər) n. 1. One that wastes: a waster of time; a waster of money. 2. One that lays waste; a destroyer: a waster of enemy cities.

waste-water (wāst'wō'tər, -wōt'ər) n. Water that has been used, as for washing, flushing, or in a manufacturing process, and so contains waste products; sewage.

wast-ing (wā'stɪŋ) adj. 1. Gradually deteriorating; declining: the wasting process of erosion. 2. Sapping the strength, energy, or substance of the body; emaciating: a wasting disease. —wast'ing-ly adv.

wasting asset (wā'stɪŋ əs'ět') n. A fixed asset, such as a mine or an oil well, that diminishes in value over time.

wast-rel (wā'strəl) n. 1. One who wastes, especially one who wastes money; a profligate. 2. An idler or a loafer. [WAST(E) + -rel (as in SCOUNDREL).]

wa-tap (wă-tăp', wă-) also wa-ta-pe (-tă'pē) n. A stringy thread made from the roots of various conifers and used by certain Native American peoples in sewing and weaving. [Ojibwa wadab.]

watch (wöch) v. watched, watch-ing, watch-es. — v. intr. 1. To look or observe attentively or carefully; be closely observant: watching for trail markers. 2. To look and wait expectantly or in anticipation: watch for an opportunity. 3. To act as a spectator; look on: stood by the road and watched. 4. To stay awake at night while serving as a guard, sentinel, or watcher. 5. To stay alert as a devotional or religious exercise; keep vigil. — v. tr. 1. To look at steadily; observe carefully or continuously: watch a parade. 2. To keep a watchful eye on; guard: watched the prisoner all day. 3. To observe the course of mentally; keep up on or informed about: watch the price of gold. 4. To tend (a flock, for example). See Synonyms at tend². — n. 1. The act or process of keeping awake or mentally alert, especially for the purpose of guarding. 2. a. The act of observing closely or the condition of being closely observed; surveillance. b. A period of close observation, often in order to discover something: a watch during the child's illness. 3. A person or group of people serving, especially at night, to guard or protect. 4. The post or period of duty of a guard, sentinel, or watcher. 5. Any of the periods into which the night is divided; a part of the night. 6. Nautical. a. Any of the periods of time into which the day aboard ship is divided and during which a part of the crew is assigned to duty. b. The members of a ship's crew on duty during a specific watch. c. A chronometer on a ship. 7. a. A period of wakefulness, especially one observed as a religious vigil. b. A funeral wake. 8. A small portable timepiece, especially one worn on the wrist or carried in the pocket. 9. A flock of nightingales. See Synonyms at flock¹. —phrasal verbs. watch out. To be careful or on the alert; take care. watch over. To be in charge of; superintend. —idioms. watch it. To be careful: had to watch it when I stepped onto the ice. watch (one's) step. 2. To act or proceed with care and caution. 3. To behave as is demanded, required, or appropriate. [Middle English wacchen, from Old English wæccan, to watch, be awake. See weg- in Appendix.]

watch·band (wöch'bänd') n. A band of leather, cloth, metal, or plastic with an adjustable clasp that holds a wristwatch in place.

watch cap (wöch kăp) n. A dark blue knitted cap worn in cold weather, especially by enlisted naval personnel.

watch·case (wöch'kās') n. The casing for the mechanism of a watch.

watch·dog (wöch'dôg', -dôg') n. 1. A dog trained to guard people or property. 2. One who serves as a guardian or protector against waste, loss, or illegal practices. —watch'dog' v.

watch·er (wöch'ər) n. 1. One that watches or observes: a fire watcher; a China watcher. 2. One who keeps vigil, as at a sick person's bedside.

watch·eye (wöch'ī') n. Walleye, especially in dogs.

watch fire (wöch fīr) n. A fire kept burning at night, as for a signal or by a guard.

watch·ful (wöch'fəl) adj. 1. Closely observant or alert; vigilant: kept a watchful eye on the clock. See Synonyms at aware. See Synonyms at careful.

2. Archaic. Not sleeping; awake. —watch'ful·ly adv. —watch'ful·ness n.

watch glass (wöch gläs) n. 1. A shallow glass dish used as a beaker cover or an evaporating surface. 2. A concavo-convex glass or plastic disk used to cover the face of a watch.

watch·mak·er (wöch'mā'kər) n. One that makes or repairs watches.

watch·man (wöch'mən) n. A man who is employed to stand guard or keep watch.

watch night (wöch nīt) n. 1. New Year's Eve. 2. A religious service held on New Year's Eve.

watch·tow·er (wöch'tou'ər) n. An observation tower on which a guard or lookout is stationed to keep watch, as for enemies, for forest fires, or over prisoners.

watch·word (wöch'wûrd') n. 1. A prearranged reply to a challenge, as from a guard or sentry; a password. 2. A rallying cry: Let our watchword be freedom.

wa·ter (wô'tər, wôt'ər) n. 1. A clear, colorless, odorless, and tasteless liquid, H₂O, essential for most plant and animal life and the most widely used of all solvents. Freezing point 0°C (32°F); boiling point 100°C (212°F); specific gravity (4°C) 1.0000; weight per gallon (15°C) 8.338 pounds (3.782 kilograms).

2. a. Any of various forms of water: waste water. b. Often waters. Naturally occurring mineral water, as at a spa. 3. a. A body of water such as a sea, lake, river, or stream. b. waters. A particular stretch of sea or ocean, especially that of a state or country: escorted out of British waters. 4. a. A supply of water: had to turn off the water while repairing the broken drain. b. A water supply system.

5. a. Any of the liquids present in or passed out of the body, such as urine, perspiration, tears, or saliva. b. The fluid surrounding a fetus in the uterus; amniotic fluid. 6. An aqueous solution of a substance, especially a gas: ammonia water. 7. A wavy finish or sheen, as of a fabric or metal. 8. a. The valuation of the assets of a business firm beyond their real value. b. Stock issued in excess of paid-in capital. 9. a. The transparency and luster of a gem. b. A level of excellence. — v. wa·tered, wa·ter·ing, wa·ters. — v. tr. 1. To pour or sprinkle water on; make wet: watered the garden. 2. a. To give drinking water to. b. To lead (an animal) to drinking water. 3. To dilute or weaken by adding water: a bar serving whiskey that had been watered. 4. To give a sheen to the surface of (silk, linen, or metal). 5. To increase (the number of shares of stock) without increasing the value of the assets represented. 6. To irrigate (land). — v. intr. 1. To produce or discharge fluid, as from the eyes. 2. To salivate in anticipation of food: The wonderful aroma from the kitchen makes my mouth water. 3. To take on a supply of water, as a ship. 4. To drink water, as an animal. — phrasal verb. water down. To reduce the strength or effectiveness of: “It seemed clear by late autumn that the ban would be significantly watered down or removed altogether before the trade bill became law” (George R. Packard). — idioms. above water. Out of difficulty or trouble. water under the bridge. A past occurrence, especially something unfortunate, that cannot be undone or rectified: All that is now just water under the bridge. [Middle English, from Old English wæter. See wed-¹ in Appendix.] — wa·ter·er n.

water arum (wô'tər ər'əm) n. See calla (n., sense 2).

water ash (wô'tər ăsh) n. See stinking ash.

water bag (wô'tər bæg) n. The membranous sac filled with amniotic fluid that protects a fetus during pregnancy. Also called bag of waters water ballet (wô'tər bǎ-lā') n. 1. The art of dancelike movement in water; synchronized swimming. 2. A performance or competition of this swimming.

water bear (wô'tər bār) n. See tardigrade.

Wa·ter Bearer (wô'tər bār'ər, wŏt'ər) n. See Aquarius.

wa·ter·bed (wô'tər-bĕd', wŏt'ər-) n. A bed with a mattress made of a tough plastic that is filled with water.

water beetle (wô'tər bĕt'l) n. Any of various aquatic beetles, especially of the family Dytiscidae, having a smooth oval body and flattened and fringed hind legs adapted for swimming.

water bird (wô'tər būrd) n. A swimming or wading bird.

water biscuit (wô'tər bīs'kīt) n. A biscuit made of flour and water.

water blister (wô'tər blīs'tər) n. A blister having watery contents without blood or pus.

water bloom (wô'tər blōm) n. A growth of algae at or near the surface of a body of water, such as a pond.

water boatman (wô'tər bŏt'mən) n. Any of various aquatic insects of the families Corixidae and Notonectidae, having long oarlike hind legs adapted for swimming.

wa-ter-borne (wô'tər-bôrn', -bôrn', wôt'ər-) adj. 1. Floating on or supported by water; afloat. 2. Transported by water: waterborne freight.

3. Transmitted in water: waterborne disease-causing microorganisms.

water brash (wô'tər brăsh) n. Regurgitation of watery acid from the stomach.

wa-ter-buck (wô'tər-bük', wôt'ər-) n. pl. waterbuck or wa-ter-bucks. Any of several African antelopes of the genus Kobus, having curved, ridged horns and frequenting swamps, rivers, and other bodies of water. [Translation of Afrikaans waterbok.]

water buffalo (wô'tər büf'ə-lô') n. A large buffalo (Bubalus bubalis) of Asia, often domesticated especially as a draft animal and having large, spreading horns. Also called carabao, water ox.

water bug (wô'tər бүг) n. 1. Any of various aquatic insects, especially the water boatman and certain backswimmers. 2. A large cockroach.

Wat-er-bury (wô'tər-bēr'ē, wôt'ər-) A city of west-central Connecticut north-northwest of New Haven. Incorporated as a town in 1686 and as a city in 1853, it is today a manufacturing center. Population, 108,961.

wa-ter-bus (wô'tər-büs', wôt'ər-) n. pl. wa-ter-bus-es or wa-ter-bus-es. Nautical. A large motorboat used for carrying passengers on rivers or canals.

water cal-trop (wô'tər käl'trəp) n. See water chestnut (n., sense 1).

water cannon (wô'tər kăn'ən) n. A truck-mounted apparatus that fires water at high pressure, used especially to disperse crowds or control rioters.

water chestnut (wô'tər chēs'nüt') n. 1. A floating aquatic plant (Trapa natans) native to Eurasia and Africa, bearing four-pronged, nutlike fruit and grown as a pond or aquarium ornamental. Also called caltrop, water caltrop.

2. a. A tropical Asian aquatic sedge (Eleocharis dulcis) having an edible corm and cylindrical leaves. b. The succulent corm of this plant, used in Asian cooking.

Also called Chinese water chestnut water chinquapin (wô'tər chīng'kə-pīn') n. A North American aquatic plant (Nelumbo lutea) related to the lotus and the water lilies and having large shield-shaped aerial leaves, large pale-yellow flowers, and edible nutlike seeds.

water clock (wô'tər klök) n. A clepsydra.

water closet (wô'tər klöz'it) n. Abbr. W.C. A room or booth containing a toilet and often a washbowl.

water clover (wô'tər klō'vər) n. See pepperwort (n., sense 1).

wa-ter-col-or (wô'tər-kül'ər, wôt'ər-) n. 1. a. A paint composed of a water-soluble pigment. b. A work that is executed through the use of this paint.

2. The art of using watercolors. —wa'ter-col'or adj. —wa'ter-col'or-ist n.

wa-ter-cool (wô'tər-kōol', wôt'ər-) v. tr. wa-ter--cooled, wa-ter--cool-ing, wa-ter--cools. To cool (an engine) with water, especially circulating water.

water cooler (wô'tər kōō'lər) n. A device for cooling and dispensing drinking water.

wa·ter·course (wô'tər-kôrs', -kôrs', wôt'ər-) n. 1. A natural or artificial channel through which water flows. 2. A stream or river.

wa·ter·craft (wô'tər-kräft', wôt'ər-) n. 1. Sports. Skill in boating, swimming, or other water-related sports. 2. Nautical. a. A boat or ship. b. Water vehicles considered as a group.

wa·ter·cress (wô'tər-krës', wôt'ər-) n. 1. A pungent perennial Eurasian herb (Rorippa nasturtium-aquaticum) of the mustard family, growing in freshwater ponds and streams and used in salads and as a garnish. 2. Any of several related aquatic plants.

water cure (wô'tər kyöör) n. Hydropathy or hydrotherapy.

water cycle (wô'tər sī'kəl) n. The cycle of evaporation and condensation that controls the distribution of Earth's water as it evaporates from bodies of water, condenses, precipitates, and returns to those bodies of water. Also called hydrologic cycle water dog (wô'tər dôg) n. 1. A dog that takes easily to the water, especially one trained for hunting waterfowl. 2. Informal. A person who feels at home in or on the water. 3. Often wa·ter·dog (wô'tər-dôg', -dôg', wôt'ər-). See mud puppy (n., sense 1). 4. Western U.S. Any of several large salamanders.

wa·ter·dog·ging (wô'tər-dô'gĭng, -dôg'ĭng, wôt'ər-) n. Western U.S. The collecting of salamanders out of drinking troughs to use for fishing bait.

wa·tered·down (wô'tərd-down', wôt'ərd-) adj. Diminished in force or effect: "at concert strength and tempo, rather than at a watered-down dance pace" (Women's Wear Daily).

Wa·ter·ee (wô'tə-rē, wôt'ə-) A river, about 233 km (145 mi) long, of central South Carolina flowing southward to form the Santee River. Its upper course, in North Carolina, is called the Catawba River.

water elm (wô'tər ělm) n. See planer tree.

wa·ter·fall (wô'tər-fôl', wôt'ər-) n. A steep descent of water from a height; a cascade.

wa·ter·find·er (wô'tər-fĭn'dər, wôt'ər-) n. A dowsing rod.

water flea (wô'tər flē) n. Any of various small aquatic crustaceans of the order Cladocera, especially the daphnid, that typically swim with jerking, flealike motions.

Wa·ter·ford (wô'tər-fərd, wôt'ər-) 1. A borough of southeast Ireland south-southwest of Dublin. A major port, Waterford was famous in the 18th and 19th centuries for its glass-manufacturing industry. Population, 38,473. 2. A town of southeast Connecticut on Long Island Sound. Settled c. 1653, it is a residential community. Population, 17,930.

wa·ter·fowl (wô'tər-foul', wôt'ər-) n. pl. waterfowl or wa·ter·fowls. 1. A water bird, especially a swimming bird. 2. Swimming game birds, such as ducks and geese, considered as a group.

wa-ter-front (wô'tər-frünt', wöt'ər-) n. 1. Land abutting a body of water.

2. The part of a town or city that abuts water, especially a district of wharves where ships dock. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: water-front docks; waterfront mills.

water gap (wô'tər gǎp) n. A transverse cleft in a mountain ridge through which a stream flows.

water gas (wô'tər gäs) n. A fuel gas containing about 50 percent carbon monoxide, 40 percent hydrogen, and small amounts of methane, carbon dioxide, and nitrogen, made by passing steam and air over heated coke or coal.

water gate (wô'tər gāt) n. 1. See floodgate (n., sense 1). 2. A gate that provides access to a body of water.

Wa-ter-gate (wô'tər-gāt', wöt'ər-) n. A scandal involving abuse of power by public officials, violation of the public trust, bribery, contempt of Congress, and attempted obstruction of justice. [After Watergate, a building complex in Washington, D.C., the site of illegal activities (1972) that gave rise to such a scandal.]

water gauge (wô'tər gāj) n. An instrument indicating the level of water, as in a boiler, tank, reservoir, or stream.

water glass (wô'tər glās) n. 1. A drinking glass or goblet. 2. An open tube or box having a glass bottom for making observations below the surface of the water. 3. See sodium silicate. 4. A water gauge made of glass. 5. See clepsydra.

water gun (wô'tər gŭn) n. See squirt gun.

water hammer (wô'tər hām'ər) n. 1. A banging noise heard in a water pipe following an abrupt alteration of the flow with resultant pressure surges. 2. A banging noise in steam pipes, caused by steam bubbles entering a cold pipe partially filled with water.

water hemlock (wô'tər hēm'lök') n. Any of several poisonous, heavy-scented, perennial herbs of the genus Cicuta, especially C. maculata, of marshy areas in eastern and central North America, having compound umbels of small white flowers and bipinnately compound leaves.

water hen (wô'tər hĕn) n. Any of various water birds of the family Rallidae, as the gallinule, rail, or coot, that inhabit marshland.

water hole (wô'tər hōl) n. 1. A small natural depression in which water collects, especially a pool where animals come to drink. 2. Informal. A watering hole.

water horehound (wô'tər hôr'hound') n. Any of various perennial herbs of the genus Lycopus in the mint family, native to the North Temperate Zone and Australia.

water hyacinth (wô'tər hī'ə-sĭnth) n. A tropical American herb (Eichhornia crassipes) forming dense floating masses in ponds and streams and having large bluish-purple flowers and leafstalks with greatly inflated bases.

water ice (wô'tər ɪs) n. A dessert made of finely crushed ice that has been sweetened and flavored.

wa·ter·ing can (wô'tər-ɪŋ kən, wöt'ər-) n. See watering pot.

watering hole (wô'tər-ɪŋ hōl) n. Informal. A social gathering place, such as a bar or saloon, where drinks are served: "a Warsaw restaurant that was once a cosmopolitan watering hole for actors and writers" (Newsweek).

watering place (wô'tər-ɪŋ plās) n. 1. A place where animals find water to drink. 2. A health resort with mineral springs; a spa. 3. Informal. A watering hole.

watering pot (wô'tər-ɪŋ pōt) n. A vessel, usually having a long spout with a perforated nozzle, used to water plants. Also called watering can wa·ter·ish (wô'tər-ɪʃ, wöt'ər-) adj. Resembling water; watery.

water jacket (wô'tər jæk'ɪt) n. A casing containing water circulated by a pump, used around a part to be cooled, especially in water-cooled internal-combustion engines.

wa·ter·jack·et (wô'tər-jæk'ɪt, wöt'ər-) v. tr. wa·ter·jack·et·ed, wa·ter·jack·et·ing, wa·ter·jack·ets. To encase in or provide with a water jacket.

wa·ter·leaf (wô'tər-lēf', wöt'ər-) n. pl. wa·ter·leaves. Any of various North American herbs of the genus Hydrophyllum, having pinnately lobed leaves and terminal, cymose clusters of white or purplish flowers.

wa·ter·less (wô'tər-lɪs, wöt'ər-) adj. 1. Lacking water; dry. 2. Not requiring water, as a cooling system.

water level (wô'tər lēv'əl) n. 1. The level of the surface of a body of water. 2. Geology. See water table (n., sense 2). 3. The water line of a ship.

water lily (wô'tər lɪl'ē) n. Any of various cosmopolitan aquatic herbs of the genus Nymphaea, having floating leaves and showy, variously colored flowers, especially N. odorata, with fragrant, many-petaled white or pinkish flowers. Also called pond lily water line (wô'tər lɪn) n. Abbr. w.l., WL 1. Nautical. a. The line on the hull of a ship to which the surface of the water rises. b. Any of several lines parallel to this line, marked on the hull of a ship, and indicating the depth to which the ship sinks under various loads. 2. A line or stain, as one left on a sea wall, indicating the height to which water has risen or may rise; a watermark.

wa·ter·log (wô'tər-lɔg', -ləg', wöt'ər-) v. tr. wa·ter·logged, wa·ter·log·ging, wa·ter·logs. 1. To make (a boat, for example) heavy and unwieldy by flooding with water. 2. To saturate with water and make soggy or unusable. [Back-formation from WATERLOGGED.]

wa·ter·logged (wô'tər-lɔg'd', -ləg'd', wöt'ər-) adj. 1. Nautical. Heavy and sluggish in the water because of flooding, as in the hold: a waterlogged ship.

2. Soaked or saturated with water: waterlogged fields; waterlogged docking.

[WATER + LOGGED past participle of LOG¹, to accumulate in a ship: used of water.]

wa-ter-loo (wô'tər-lōō', wöt'ər-, wô'tər-lōō', wöt'ər-) n. pl. wa-ter-loos. A final, crushing defeat. [After Waterloo, Belgium.]

Wa-ter-loo (wô'tər-lōō', wöt'ər-, wô'tər-lōō', wöt'ər-) 1. A town of central Belgium near Brussels. Napoleon met his final defeat in the Battle of Waterloo (June 18, 1815). 2. A city of southeast Ontario, Canada, a manufacturing suburb of Kitchener. Population, 24,933. 3. A city of northeast Iowa northwest of Cedar Rapids. First settled in 1845, it is a trade center in an agricultural region. Population, 66,467.

water main (wô'tər măn) n. A principal pipe in a system of pipes for conveying water, especially one installed underground.

wa-ter-man (wô'tər-mən, wöt'ər-) n. A boatman.

wa-ter-mark (wô'tər-märk', wöt'ər-) n. Abbr. wmk. 1. a. A mark showing the greatest height to which water has risen. b. A line indicating the heights of high and low tide. 2. a. A translucent design impressed on paper during manufacture and visible when the paper is held to the light. b. The metal pattern that produces this design. — v. tr. wa-ter-marked, wa-ter-mark-ing, wa-ter-marks. 1. To mark (paper) with a watermark. 2. To impress (a pattern or design) as a watermark.

wa-ter-mel-on (wô'tər-měl'ən, wöt'ər-) n. 1. An African vine (Citrullus lanatus) cultivated for its large, edible fruit. 2. The fruit of this plant, having a hard green rind and sweet, watery pink or reddish flesh.

water milfoil (wô'tər mīl'foil') n. Any of various cosmopolitan aquatic herbs of the genus Myriophyllum, having feathery, finely dissected submersed leaves and entire or toothed emersed leaves.

water mill (wô'tər mīl) n. A mill with machinery that is driven by water.

water moccasin (wô'tər mök'ə-sīn) n. 1. A semiaquatic pit viper (Agkistrodon piscivorus) of lowlands and swampy regions of the southern United States. Also called cottonmouth 2. Any of various similar but harmless water snakes.

water mold (wô'tər mōld) n. Any of various parasitic or saprobic fungi of the phylum Oomycota, living chiefly in fresh water or moist soil.

water nymph (wô'tər nīmf) n. Mythology. A nymph, such as a naiad or Nereid, living in or near water.

water oak (wô'tər ōk) n. Any of various oak trees that grow in wetlands, especially Quercus nigra, of eastern North America.

water of crystallization (wô'tər ūv krīs'tə-lī-zā'shən) n. Water in chemical combination with a crystal, necessary for the maintenance of crystalline properties but capable of being removed by sufficient heat.

water of hydration (wô'tər ūv hī-drā'shən) n. Water chemically combined with a substance in such a way that it can be removed, as by heating, without substantially changing the chemical composition of the substance.

water on the brain (wô'tər ɔn thē brān) n. Hydrocephalus.

water ouzel (wô'tər ōō'zəl) n. See dipper (n., sense 2).

water ox (wô'tər ōks) n. See water buffalo.

water parting (wô'tər pər'tɪŋ) n. See watershed (n., sense 1).

water pennywort (wô'tər pĕn'ĕ-wûrt') n. Any of various creeping perennial herbs of the genus Hydrocotyle in the parsley family, having orbicular leaves and small, white or greenish flowers grouped in umbels. Also called navelwort water pepper (wô'tər pĕp'ər) n. A perennial herb (Polygonum hydropiperoides) growing in marshes and bogs of the United States, having reddish stems, clusters of small greenish flowers, and acrid-tasting leaves.

water pipe (wô'tər pīp) n. 1. A pipe that is a conduit for water. 2. An apparatus for smoking, such as a hookah, in which the smoke is drawn through a container of water or ice and cooled before inhaling.

water pipit (wô'tər pĭp'it) n. A North American pipit (Anthus spinoletta) with a dark unstreaked back and an elaborate musical song.

water pistol (wô'tər pĭs'təl) n. See squirt gun.

water plantain (wô'tər plăn'tən) n. Any of various aquatic herbs of the genus Alisma, having panicles with whorled branches and small, three-petaled, white or pinkish flowers.

water polo (wô'tər pō'lō) n. Sports. A water sport with two teams of swimmers each of which tries to pass a ball into the other's goal.

wa-ter-pow-er (wô'tər-pou'ər, wŏt'ər-) n. 1. a. The energy produced by running or falling water that is used for driving machinery, especially for generating electricity. b. A source of such energy, as a waterfall. 2. A water right owned by a mill.

wa-ter-proof (wô'tər-prōōf', wŏt'ər-) adj. 1. Impervious to or unaffected by water. 2. Made of or coated or treated with rubber, plastic, or a sealing agent to prevent penetration by water. — n. 1. A material or fabric that is impervious to water. 2. Chiefly British. A raincoat or other such outer garment. — v. tr.

wa-ter-proofed, wa-ter-proof-ing, wa-ter-proofs. To make impervious to water.

water purslane (wô'tər pûrs'lin) n. 1. Any of various aquatic annual herbs of the genus Peplis, especially P. diandra, of the eastern and central United States, having small greenish flowers. 2. A marsh or wetland herb (Ludwigia palustris) having reddish stems and small reddish flowers.

water rail (wô'tər rāl) n. A brownish Old World rail (Rallus aquaticus) with a long, red bill, living in marshy, warm coastal areas of the Pacific.

water rat (wô'tər răt) n. 1. a. Any of various semiaquatic rodents, especially Neofiber alleni, of Florida and southern Georgia, closely related to and resembling the muskrat. b. See muskrat (n., sense 1). 2. Slang. A petty thief or ruffian who frequents waterfronts.

wa·ter·re·pel·lent (wô'tər-rĭ-pĕl'ənt, wŏt'ər-) adj. Resistant to penetration by water but not entirely waterproof.

wa·ter·re·sis·tant (wô'tər-rĭ-zĭs'tənt, wŏt'ər-) adj. Water-repellent.

water right (wô'tər rīt) n. 1. The right to draw water from a particular source, such as a lake, an irrigation canal, or a stream. Often used in the plural.

2. Nautical. The right to navigate on particular waters.

Waters (wô'tərz, wŏt'ərz), Ethel. 1896-1977. American actress and singer who began in vaudeville and became popular on Broadway and in films, such as The Sound and the Fury (1959).

water sapphire (wô'tər sāf'ĭr') n. A clear blue cordierite often used as a gemstone.

wa·ter·scape (wô'tər-skāp', wŏt'ər-) n. A seascape.

water scorpion (wô'tər skŏr'pĕ-ən) n. Any of various aquatic insects of the family Nepidae, having a large breathing tube projecting from the posterior part of the abdomen and inflicting a painful sting.

wa·ter·shed (wô'tər-shĕd', wŏt'ər-) n. 1. A ridge of high land dividing two areas that are drained by different river systems. Also called water parting 2. The region draining into a river, river system, or other body of water. 3. A critical point that marks a division or a change of course; a turning point: "a watershed in modern American history, a time that... forever changed American social attitudes" (Robert Reinhold). [Probably translation of German Wasserscheide : Wasser, water + Scheide, divide, parting.]

water shield (wô'tər shĕld) n. 1. A cosmopolitan aquatic herb (Brasenia schreberi) having floating elliptic or ovate leaves and purplish flowers. 2. Any of several New World aquatic herbs of the genus Cabomba, having entire, alternate floating leaves and finely divided, opposite or whorled submersed leaves.

wa·ter·sick (wô'tər-sĭk', wŏt'ər-) adj. Unproductive because of excessive irrigation: water-sick soil.

wa·ter·side (wô'tər-sĭd', wŏt'ər-) n. Land bordering a body of water; a bank or shore. — adj. 1. Of, relating to, or situated at the waterside. 2. Living or working along the waterside.

water ski (wô'tər skĕ) n. Sports. A broad ski used for skiing on water.

wa·ter·ski (wô'tər-skĕ', wŏt'ər-) v. intr. wa·ter·skied, wa·ter·ski·ing, wa·ter·skis. Sports. To ski on water while being towed by a motorboat.

—wa'ter-ski'er n. —wa'ter-ski'ing n.

water snake (wô'tər snāk) n. 1. Any of various nonvenomous snakes of the genus Natrix, living in or frequenting freshwater streams and ponds. 2. Any of various aquatic or semiaquatic snakes.

wa·ter·sol·u·ble (wô'tər-sŏl'yə-bəl, wŏt'ər-) adj. Chemistry. Soluble in water.

water spaniel (wô'tər spän'yəl) n. A large spaniel of a breed characterized by a curly, water-resistant coat, often used in hunting to retrieve waterfowl.

- wa-ter-spout (wô'tər-spout', wŏt'ər-) n. 1. A tornado or lesser whirlwind occurring over water and resulting in a funnel-shaped whirling column of air and spray. 2. A hole or pipe from which water is discharged.
- water sprite (wô'tər sprīt) n. A sprite or nymph that inhabits or haunts a body of water.
- water strider (wô'tər strī'dər) n. Any of various insects of the family Gerriidae, having long, slender legs with which they support themselves on the surface of water. Also called skater
- water supply (wô'tər sə-plī') n. 1. The water available for a community or region. 2. The source and delivery system of such water.
- water system (wô'tər sīs'təm) n. 1. A river and all its tributaries. 2. A water supply.
- water table (wô'tər tā'bəl) n. 1. A projecting ledge, molding, or stringcourse along the side of a building, designed to throw off rainwater. 2. The level below which the ground is completely saturated with water. In this sense, also called water level
- water thrush (wô'tər thrüş) n. Either of two brownish New World warblers (Seiurus noveboracensis or S. motacilla) living near streams and ponds.
- wa-ter-tight (wô'tər-tīt', wŏt'ər-) adj. 1. So tightly made that water cannot enter or escape. 2. Having no flaws or loopholes; impossible to fault, refute, or evade: a watertight alibi; a watertight contract.
- water tower (wô'tər tou'ər) n. 1. A standpipe or elevated tank used as a reservoir or for maintaining equal pressure in a water system. 2. A firefighting apparatus for lifting hoses to the upper levels of a tall structure.
- Wa-ter-town (wô'tər-toun', wŏt'ər-) 1. A town of western Connecticut near Waterbury. Set off from Waterbury in 1780, it is a manufacturing center. Population, 20,456. 2. A town of eastern Massachusetts, a residential suburb of Boston. Population, 33,284. 3. A city of northern New York north of Syracuse. Settled c. 1800, it is a manufacturing center. Population, 29,429. 4. A city of northeast South Dakota north-northwest of Sioux Falls. It is a commercial center in an agricultural region. Population, 17,592. 5. A city of southeast Wisconsin east-northeast of Madison. It is thought to be the site of the first kindergarten in the United States (established 1856). Population, 19,142.
- water turkey (wô'tər tûr'kē) n. See anhinga.
- water vapor (wô'tər vā'pər) n. Water in a gaseous state, especially when diffused as a vapor in the atmosphere and at a temperature below boiling point.
- wa-ter-vas-cu-lar system (wô'tər-vās'kyə-lər sīs'təm, wŏt'ər-) n. A system of water-filled canals derived from the coelom that connects the tube feet of echinoderms.

Wa-ter-ville (wô'tər-vīl', wöt'ər-) A city of southern Maine north of Augusta. Settled in 1754, it is a trade and manufacturing center and the seat of Colby College (founded 1813). Population, 17,173.

wa-ter-way (wô'tər-wā', wöt'ər-) n. Nautical. 1. A navigable body of water, such as a river, channel, or canal. 2. A channel at the edge of a ship's deck to drain away water.

wa-ter-weed (wô'tər-wēd', wöt'ər-) n. Any of various submersed aquatic herbs of the genus Elodea, native to the New World, having opposite or whorled one-nerved narrow leaves and small axillary flowers.

water wheel (wô'tər hwēl) n. 1. A wheel propelled by falling or running water and used to power machinery. 2. A wheel with buckets attached to its rim for raising water.

water wings (wô'tər wīngz) pl.n. A device consisting of a pair of joined inflatable waterproof bags that fits under the arms of a person, especially a child learning to swim, and provides buoyancy.

water witch (wô'tər wīch) n. One who claims to be able to find underground water by means of a divining rod; a dowser.

wa-ter-works (wô'tər-wûrks', wöt'ər-) pl.n. 1. a. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). The water system, including reservoirs, tanks, buildings, pumps, and pipes, that supplies water to a city, town, or other municipality. b. (used with a sing. verb). A single unit, such as a pumping station, within such a system. 2. (used with a sing. verb). An exhibition of moving water, such as a fountain or cascade. 3. (used with a pl. verb). Informal. Tears: turned on the waterworks.

wa-ter-y (wô'tə-rē, wöt'ə-) adj. wa-ter-i-er, wa-ter-i-est. 1. Filled with, consisting of, or soaked with water; wet or soggy: watery soil. 2. Containing too much water; diluted: watery soup. 3. Suggestive of water, as in being thin, pale, or liquid: watery sunshine. 4. Lacking force or substance; weak or insipid: watery prose. 5. Secreting or discharging water or watery fluid, especially as a symptom of disease. —wa'ter-i-ness n.

Wat-ford (wöt'fərd) A municipal borough of southeast England northwest of London. It is a commercial and publishing center. Population, 74,700.

Wat-ling's Island (wät'lingz ī'lənd) See San Salvador¹.

WATS abbr. Wide-Area Telecommunications Service.

Wat-son (wöt'sən), James Dewey. Born 1928. American biologist who with Francis Crick proposed a spiral model, the double helix, for the molecular structure of DNA. He shared a 1962 Nobel Prize for advances in the study of genetics.

Wat-son (wöt'sən), Sir (John) William. 1858-1935. British poet whose works include Wordsworth's Grave and Other Poems (1890).

Wat-son (wöt'sən), Thomas Augustus. 1854-1934. American telephone pioneer who assisted Alexander Graham Bell in his experiments and was the leader of research and engineering for Bell Telephone Company (1877-1881).

Wat-son (wŏt'sən), Thomas John. 1874-1956. American businessman who was president (1914-1949) and chairman (1949-1956) of International Business Machines.

Wat-son-Crick model (wät'sən-krĭk' mŏd'l) n. A three-dimensional model of the DNA molecule, consisting of two polynucleotide strands wound in the form of a double helix and joined in a ladderlike fashion by hydrogen bonds between the purine and pyrimidine bases. [After James Dewey WATSON, and Francis Henry Compton CRICK.]

Wat-son-ville (wŏt'sən-vĭl') A city of western California east-southeast of Santa Cruz. Founded in 1852, it is an agricultural processing center. Population, 31,099.

watt (wŏt) n. Abbr. W Electricity. An International System unit of power equal to one joule per second. See Table at measurement. [After James WATT.]

WORD HISTORY: One might well ask how many European scientists it takes to turn on a light bulb. If we think in terms of the names used for various units in the International, or meter-kilogram-second, System, a fair number are involved. Alphabetically arranged, these units are the ampere, named for the French scientist André Marie Ampère (1775-1836); the coulomb, after the French scientist Charles A. de Coulomb (1736-1806); the farad and the faraday, after the British scientist Michael Faraday (1791-1867); the joule, after the British scientist James P. Joule (1818-1889); the newton, after the British scientist Sir Isaac Newton (1642-1727); the ohm, after the German scientist Georg S. Ohm (1789-1854); the volt, after the Italian scientist Count Alessandro Volta (1745-1827); and the watt, after the British scientist James Watt (1736-1819). Definitions such as that of ohm, “a unit of electrical resistance equal to that of a conductor in which a current of one ampere is produced by a potential of one volt across its terminals,” take on more human connotations when we think of how human contributions to the study of electricity are memorialized in them. The dates of first recorded use of the terms in English are as follows: ampere, 1881; coulomb, 1881; farad, 1861; faraday, 1904; joule, 1882; newton, 1904; ohm, 1870 (suggested in 1861); volt, 1873; and watt, 1882.

Watt (wŏt), James. 1736-1819. British engineer and inventor who made fundamental improvements in the steam engine, resulting in the modern, high-pressure steam engine (patented 1769).

watt-age (wŏt'ij) n. 1. An amount of power, especially electric power, expressed in watts or kilowatts. 2. The electric power required by an appliance or a device.

Wat-teau (wŏ-tŏ', vä-), Jean Antoine. 1684-1721. French painter noted for his exuberant scenes of gallantry, such as The Embarkation for Cythera (1717).

Wat-ter-son (wô'tər-sən, wöt'ər-), Henry. Known as "Marse Henry." 1840-1921. American editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal (1868-1918). He exerted great political influence and served as a U.S. representative from Kentucky (1876-1877).

watt-hour (wöt'our') n. Abbr. WH, W-hr A unit of energy, especially electrical energy, equal to the work done by one watt acting for one hour and equivalent to 3,600 joules.

wat-tle (wöt'l) n. 1. a. A construction of poles intertwined with twigs, reeds, or branches, used for walls, fences, and roofs. b. Material used for such construction. 2. A fleshy, wrinkled, often brightly colored fold of skin hanging from the neck or throat, characteristic of certain birds, such as chickens or turkeys, and some lizards. 3. Botany. Any of various Australian trees or shrubs of the genus Acacia. — v. tr. wat-tled, wat-tling, wat-tles. 1. To construct from wattle. 2. To weave into wattle. [Middle English wattel, from Old English watel, hurdle.] — wat'tled adj.

wattle and daub (wöt'l ənd dôb) n. An interweaving of rods and twigs overlaid with clay and used as a building material.

wat-tle-bird (wöt'l-bûrd') n. Any of several honeyeaters of the genus Anthochaera, having wattles on either side of the head.

watt-me-ter (wöt'mē'tər) n. Abbr. wm. An instrument for measuring in watts the power flowing in a circuit.

Watts (wôts) A district of Los Angeles, California. It was the scene of severe racial tensions and violence in 1965.

Watts (wôts), George Frederick. 1817-1904. British painter noted for his historical works, portraits, and allegories, including Hope (1885).

Watts (wôts), Isaac. 1674-1748. English poet, theologian, and hymn writer whose sacred poems include The Psalms of David Imitated (1719).

Watts-Dun-ton (wôts'dün'tən), (Walter) Theodore. 1832-1914. British writer and critic who was a patron of Algernon Swinburne. His works include Old Familiar Faces (1916).

Waugh (wô), Evelyn (Arthur Saint John). 1903-1966. British writer whose satirical novels, such as Decline and Fall (1928) and Vile Bodies (1930), lampoon high society. His later works, notably Brideshead Revisited (1945), reflect his interest in Roman Catholicism.

Wau-ke-gan (wô-kē'gən) A city of northeast Illinois on Lake Michigan north of Chicago. A major lake port, Waukegan is also an industrial center. Population, 69,392.

Wau-ke-sha (wô'kə-shô') A city of southeast Wisconsin west of Milwaukee. It was a health resort after the Civil War and is now a manufacturing center. Population, 56,958.

Wau·sau (wô'sô') A city of north-central Wisconsin west-northwest of Green Bay. Settled in 1839, it grew as a lumber town and now has diversified industries. Population, 37,060.

Wau·wa·to·sa (wô'wə-tō'sə) A city of southeast Wisconsin, an industrial suburb of Milwaukee. Population, 49,366.

wave (wāv) v. waved, wav·ing, waves. — v. intr. 1. To move freely back and forth or up and down in the air, as branches in the wind. 2. To make a signal with an up-and-down or back-and-forth movement of the hand or an object held in the hand: waved as she drove by. 3. To have an undulating or wavy form; curve or curl: Her hair waves naturally. — v. tr. 1. To cause to move back and forth or up and down, either once or repeatedly: She waved a fan before her face. 2. a. To move or swing as in giving a signal: He waved his hand. See Synonyms at flourish. b. To signal or express by waving the hand or an object held in the hand: We waved good-bye. c. To signal (a person) to move in a specified direction: The police officer waved the motorist into the right lane. 3. To arrange into curves, curls, or undulations: wave one's hair. — n. 1. a. A ridge or swell moving through or along the surface of a large body of water. b. A small ridge or swell moving across the interface of two fluids and dependent on surface tension. 2. Often waves. The sea: vanished beneath the waves. 3. Something that suggests the form and motion of a wave in the sea, especially: a. A moving curve or succession of curves in or on a surface; an undulation: waves of wheat in the wind. b. A curve or succession of curves, as in the hair. c. A curved shape, outline, or pattern. 4. A movement up and down or back and forth: a wave of the hand. 5. a. A surge or rush, as of sensation: a wave of nausea; a wave of indignation. b. A sudden great rise, as in activity or intensity: a wave of panic selling on the stock market. c. A rising trend that involves large numbers of individuals: a wave of conservatism. d. One of a succession of mass movements: the first wave of settlers. e. A maneuver in which fans at a sports event simulate an ocean wave by rising quickly in sequence with arms upraised and then quickly sitting down again in a continuous rolling motion. 6. A widespread, persistent meteorological condition, especially of temperature: a heat wave. 7. Physics. a. A disturbance traveling through a medium by which energy is transferred from one particle of the medium to another without causing any permanent displacement of the medium itself. b. A graphic representation of the variation of such a disturbance with time. c. A single cycle of such a disturbance. [Middle English waven, from Old English wafian. See webh- in Appendix.] —wav'er n.

Wave (wāv) n. A member of the women's reserve of the U.S. Navy, organized during World War II, but now no longer a separate branch. [W(omen) A(ccepted for) V(olunteer) E(mergency Service).] wave·band (wāv'bänd') n. A range of frequencies, especially radio frequencies, such as those assigned to communication transmissions.

wave equation (wāv ĭ-kwā'zhən) n. 1. A partial differential equation used to represent wave motion. 2. The fundamental equation of wave mechanics.

wave-form (wāv'fôrm') n. The mathematical representation of a wave, especially a graph obtained by plotting a characteristic of the wave against time.

wave front (wāv frünt) n. The continuous line or surface including all the points in space reached by a wave or vibration at the same instant as it travels through a medium.

wave function (wāv füngk'shən) n. A mathematical function used in quantum mechanics to describe the propagation of the wave associated with any particle or group of particles.

wave-guide (wāv'gīd') n. A system of material boundaries in the form of a solid dielectric rod or dielectric-filled tubular conductor capable of guiding high-frequency electromagnetic waves.

wave-length (wāv'lěngkth', -lěngth') n. Abbr. WL The distance between one peak or crest of a wave of light, heat, or other energy and the next corresponding peak or crest. —idiom. on the same wavelength. Informal. In complete accord; in harmony: “a fluid... production in which author, director, designer and cast seem to be working on the same wavelength” (James Lardner).

wave-let (wāv'līt) n. A small wave; a ripple.

Wa-vell (wā'vəl), Archibald Percival First Earl Wavell. 1883-1950. British field marshal who routed Italian forces in North Africa (1940-1941) before being defeated by the Germans. As viceroy of India (1943-1947) he sought to prepare India for independence.

wave mechanics (wāv mī-kān'iks) n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). A theory that ascribes characteristics of waves to subatomic particles and attempts to interpret physical phenomena on this basis.

wave number (wāv nŭm'bər) n. The number of waves per unit distance in a series of waves of a given wavelength; the reciprocal of the wavelength.

wave-par-ti-cle duality (wāv'pär'tī-kəl dōō-āl'ī-tē) n. The exhibition of both wavelike and particlelike properties by a single entity, as of both diffraction and linear propagation by light.

wa-ver (wā'vər) v. intr. wa-vered, wa-ver-ing, wa-vers. 1. To move unsteadily back and forth. See Synonyms at swing. 2. a. To exhibit irresolution or indecision; vacillate: wavered over buying a house. See Synonyms at hesitate. b. To become unsteady or unsure; falter: His resolve began to waver. 3. To tremble or quaver in sound, as of the voice or a musical note. 4. To flicker or glimmer, as light. — n. The act of wavering. [Middle English waveren. See webh- in Appendix.] —wa-ver-er n. —wa-ver-ing-ly adv.

Wa-ver-ley (wā'vər-lē) A city of southeast Australia, an industrial suburb of Melbourne. Population, 122,471.

WAVES abbr. Women Accepted for Volunteer Emergency Service.

wave train (wāv trān) n. Physics. A succession of similar wave pulses.

wave trap (wāv trāp) n. An electronic filtering device designed to exclude unwanted signals or interference from a receiver.

wav·y (wāv'vē) adj. wav·i·er, wav·i·est. 1. Abounding or rising in waves: a wavy sea. 2. Marked by or moving in a wavelike form or motion; sinuous. 3. Having curls, curves, or undulations: wavy hair. 4. Characteristic or suggestive of waves. 5. Wavering; unstable. —wav'i·ly adv. —wav'i·ness n.

waw (vāv, vōv) n. Variant of vav.

wa-wa (wā'wā') n. Music. Variant of wah-wah.

wax¹ (wāks) n. 1. a. Any of various natural, oily or greasy heat-sensitive substances, consisting of hydrocarbons or esters of fatty acids that are insoluble in water but soluble in most organic solvents. b. Beeswax. c. Cerumen. 2. a. A solid plastic or pliable liquid substance, such as ozocerite or paraffin, originating from petroleum and found in rock layers and used in paper coating, as insulation, in crayons, and often in medicinal preparations. b. A preparation containing wax used for polishing floors and other surfaces. 3. A resinous mixture used by shoemakers to rub on thread. 4. A phonograph record. 5. Something suggestive of wax in being impressionable or readily molded. — adj. Made of wax: a wax candle. — v. tr. waxed, wax·ing, wax·es. 1. To coat, treat, or polish with wax. 2. Informal. To make a phonograph record of. [Middle English, from Old English weax.]

wax² (wāks) v. intr. waxed, wax·ing, wax·es. 1. To increase gradually in size, number, strength, or intensity. 2. To show a progressively larger illuminated area, as the moon does in passing from new to full. 3. To grow or become as specified: “could afford... to wax sentimental over their heritage” (John Simon). [Middle English waxen, from Old English wexan. See aug- in Appendix.]

wax bean (wāks bēn) n. A variety of string bean having yellow pods. Regional. Also called butter bean wax·ber·ry (wāks'bēr'ē) n. The waxy fruit of the wax myrtle or the snowberry.

wax·bill (wāks'bīl') n. Any of various tropical Old World birds of the genus Estrilda and related genera, having a short, often brightly colored waxy beak.

waxed paper (wākst pā'pər) n. Wax paper.

wax·en (wāks'sən) adj. 1. Made of or covered with wax. 2. Pale or smooth as wax: waxen skin. 3. Weak, pliable, or impressionable: waxen minds.

wax·er (wāks'sər) n. One that polishes with or applies wax.

wax insect (wāks ĩn'sēkt') n. Any of various scale insects that secrete a waxy substance, especially a Chinese species (Ericerus pe-la) bred commercially for the production of candles.

wax moth (wāks mōth) n. See bee moth.

wax museum (wāks myōō-zē'əm) n. A place where life-size wax figures, usually of famous people, are exhibited.

wax myrtle (wäks mûr'tl) n. An evergreen shrub (Myrica cerifera) of the southeast United States, having usually serrate leaves and small, berrylike fruit with a waxy coating.

wax palm (wäks pä'm) n. Any of several palm trees that yield wax, as Copernicia prunifera, the source of carnauba wax, or Ceroxylon alpinum of South America.

wax paper (wäks pä'pär) n. Paper that has been made moistureproof by treatment with wax, used especially in cooking and for wrapping food for storage.

wax plant (wäks plänt) n. A southeast Asian tropical vine (Hoya carnosa) having waxy white or pinkish flowers.

wax vine (wäks vīn) n. See hoya.

wax-wing (wäks'wīng') n. Any of several birds of the genus Bombycilla, having crested heads, grayish-brown plumage, and waxy red tips on the wing feathers.

wax-work (wäks'wûrk') n. 1. The art of modeling in wax. 2. A figure made of wax, especially a life-size wax effigy of a famous person. 3. waxworks. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). An exhibition of wax figures in a museum.

wax-y (wäk'sē) adj. wax-i-er, wax-i-est. 1. Resembling wax, especially:
a. Pale. b. Smooth and lustrous. c. Pliable or impressionable. 2. Consisting of, abounding in, or covered with wax. 3. Pathology. Containing amyloid deposits, as an organ.

way (wā) n. 1. a. A road, path, or highway affording passage from one place to another. b. An opening affording passage: This door is the only way into the attic. 2. a. Space to proceed: cleared the way for the parade. b. Opportunity to advance: opened the way to peace. 3. A course that is or may be used in going from one place to another: tried to find the shortest way home. 4. Progress or travel along a certain route or in a specific direction: on his way north. 5. A course of conduct or action: tried to take the easy way out. 6. A manner or method of doing: several ways of solving this problem; had no way to reach her. 7. A usual or habitual manner or mode of being, living, or acting: the American way of life. 8. An individual or personal manner of behaving, acting, or doing: Have it your own way. 9. Also ways (wāz). (used with a sing. verb). Informal. Distance: The travelers have come a long way. That village is a good ways off. 10. a. A specific direction: He glanced my way. b. A participant. Often used in combination: a three-way conversation. 11. a. An aspect, a particular, or a feature: resembles his father in many ways; in no way comparable. b. Nature or category: not much in the way of a plot. 12. Freedom to do as one wishes: if I had my way. 13. An aptitude or a facility: She certainly does have a way with words. 14. A state or condition: He is in a bad way financially. 15. Vicinity: Drop in when you're out our way. 16. Often ways. A longitudinal strip on a surface that serves to guide a moving machine part. 17. ways. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). Nautical. The timbered structure on which a ship is built and from which it slides when launched. — adv. Informal. 1. By a great distance or to a great degree; far: way off base; way over budget. 2. From this place; away: Go way. — idioms. by way of. 1. Through; via: flew to the Far East by way of the polar route. 2. As a means of: made no comment by way of apology. go out of one's way (or go out of the way). To inconvenience oneself in doing something beyond what is required. in a way. 4. To a certain extent; with reservations: I like the new styles, in a way. 5. From one point of view: In a way, you're right. in the way. In a position to obstruct, hinder, or interfere. on one's way (or on the way). In the process of coming, going, or traveling: She is on her way out the door. Winter is on the way. on the way. On the route of a journey: met him on the way to town; ran into them on the way. out of the way. 9. In such a position as not to obstruct, hinder, or interfere. 10. Taken care of; disposed of: some details to get out of the way first. 11. In a remote location. 12. Of an unusual character; remarkable. 13. Improper; amiss: said nothing out of the way. [Middle English, from Old English weg. See wegh- in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: way, route, course, passage, pass, artery. These nouns refer to paths leading from one place or point to another. Way is the least specific: “Many ways meet in one town” (Shakespeare). We made our way on foot. Show me the way home. Route refers to a planned, well-established, or regularly traveled way: “They know the routes... of the trappers; where to waylay them” (Washington Irving). “Their one purpose of speed over the great ocean routes was achieved by perfect balance of spars and sails to the curving lines of the smooth black hull” (Samuel Eliot Morison). Course suggests the path or channel taken by something, such as a river or a satellite, that moves: “the stars in their courses” (Judges 5:20); “earth's diurnal course” (William Wordsworth). Passage denotes a traversal over, across, or through something: The yacht continued its passage with favorable winds. The passage between the buildings is dark and cramped. Pass usually refers to a way affording passage around, over, or through a barrier: “They had reached one of those very narrow passes between two tall stones” (George Eliot). An artery is a main route for the circulation of traffic into which local routes flow: The city council voted to close the central artery for extensive repairs. See also Synonyms at method

USAGE NOTE: In American English ways is often used as an equivalent of way in phrases such as a long ways to go. The usage is not incorrect but is widely regarded as informal.

way·bill (wā'bīl') n. Abbr. w.b., W.B. A document giving details and instructions relating to a shipment of goods.

Way·cross (wā'krôs', -krôs') A city of southeast Georgia southwest of Savannah. It is a railroad center in a timber and farming region. Population, 16,410.

way-far-er (wā'fâr'ər) n. One who travels, especially on foot. [Middle English weifarere : wei, way; see WAY + faren, to go on a journey (from Old English faran); see per⁻² in Appendix.]

way-far-ing (wā'fâr'ĭng) n. Traveling, especially on foot. [From Middle English waifaringe, journeying, from Old English wegfarende : weg, way; see WAY + farende, present participle of faran, to go on a journey; see per⁻² in Appendix.]
—way'far'ing adj.

wayfaring tree (wā'fâr'ĭng trē) n. A deciduous Eurasian shrub (Viburnum lantana) having cymes of white flowers and berries that turn from red to black. [Short for wayfaring man's tree.]

way-lay (wā'lā') v. tr. way-laid (-lād'), way-lay-ing, way-lays. 1. To lie in wait for and attack from ambush. See Synonyms at ambush. 2. To accost or intercept unexpectedly. —way'lay'er n.

Wayne (wān) 1. A city of southeast Michigan, a manufacturing suburb of Detroit. Population, 19,899. 2. A town of northern New Jersey west of Paterson. It is a manufacturing center. Population, 47,025.

Wayne (wān), Anthony. Called "Mad Anthony." 1745-1796. American Revolutionary general who was involved in numerous campaigns, including the Battles of Brandywine (1777) and Monmouth (1778). His seizure of Stony Point, a British defense post (1779), displayed the tactical audacity that gave rise to his nickname.

Wayne (wān), James Moore. 1790-1867. American jurist who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1835-1867).

Wayne (wān), John. Known as "Duke." 1907-1979. American film actor who played tough heroes in Westerns such as Stagecoach (1939), Red River (1948), and True Grit (1969), for which he won an Academy Award.

Waynes-bor-o (wānz'būr'ō, -būr'ō) An independent city of central Virginia west of Charlottesville. Settled in the early 18th century, it is a manufacturing center in an agricultural region. Population, 18,549.

way-out (wā'out') adj. Slang. Very unconventional, unusual, or strange.

way-point (wā'point') n. A point between major points on a route, as along a track.

ways (wāz) n. (used with a sing. verb). Informal. Variant of way (n., sense 9). See Usage Note at way.

-ways suff. In a specified way, manner, direction, or position: sideways. [Middle English, from weies, wais, in such a way, from Old English weges : weg, way; see WAY + -es, gen. sing. suff.; see *-s*³.]

ways and means (wāz ənd mēnz) pl.n. 1. Methods and resources available to accomplish an end, especially to meet expenses. 2. Methods and means, especially legislation, for raising revenue needed by a government.

way-side (wā'sīd') n. The side or edge of a road, way, path, or highway. — adj. Situated at or near the side of a road, way, path, or highway: a wayside inn. — idioms. fall by the wayside. To fail to continue; give up. go by the way-side. To be set aside or discarded because of other considerations.

way station (wā stā'shən) n. A station between principal stations on a route, as of a railroad.

way-ward (wā'wərd) adj. 1. Given to or marked by willful, often perverse deviation from what is desired, expected, or required in order to gratify one's own impulses or inclinations. See Synonyms at contrary. See Synonyms at unruly. 2. Swayed or prompted by caprice; unpredictable. [Middle English, short for awaiward, turned away, perverse : awai, away; see AWAY + -ward, -ward.] — way/ward-ly adv. — way/ward-ness n.

way-worn (wā'wōrn', -wōrn') adj. Wearied by traveling.

Wa-zir-i-stan (wə-zîr'î-stān', -stān') A mountainous region of northwest Pakistan on the Afghanistan border, divided into North Waziristan and South Waziristan. The region became part of Pakistan in 1947.

wa-zoo (wā-zōō') n. Vulgar Slang. The anus. [Perhaps alteration of KAZOO.]

Wb abbr. Physics. Weber.

w.b. abbr. 1. Water ballast. 2. Also W.B. Waybill. 3. Westbound.

W.B. abbr. Weather bureau.

WBC abbr. White blood cell.

WbN abbr. West by north.

WbS abbr. West by south.

W.C. abbr. 1. Water closet. 2. Without charge.

WCTU also W.C.T.U. abbr. Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

WD also W.D. abbr. War Department.

wd. abbr. 1. Wood. 2. Word.

we (wē) pron. 1. Used by the speaker or writer to indicate the speaker or writer along with another or others as the subject: We made it to the lecture hall on time. We are planning a trip to Arizona this winter. 2. Used instead of I, especially by a sovereign or by a writer wishing to maintain an impersonal tone. 3. Used to refer to people in general, including the speaker or writer: "How can we enter the professions and yet remain civilized human beings?" (Virginia Woolf). 4. Used instead of you in direct address, especially to imply a patronizing camaraderie with the addressee: How are we feeling today? [Middle English, from Old English wē. See we- in Appendix.]

USAGE NOTE: When the pronoun is followed by an appositive noun phrase, the form us is frequently encountered where grammatical correctness would require we, as in Us owners (properly We owners) will have something to say about the contract. Less frequently, we is substituted for us, as in For we students, it's a no-win situation. Both usages should be avoided. See Usage Note at be. See Usage Note at I¹.

weak (wĕk) adj. weak-er, weak-est. 1. Lacking physical strength, energy, or vigor; feeble. 2. Likely to fail under pressure, stress, or strain; lacking resistance: a weak link in a chain. 3. Lacking firmness of character or strength of will. 4. Lacking the proper strength or amount of ingredients: weak coffee. 5. Lacking the ability to function normally or fully: a weak heart. 6. Lacking aptitude or skill: a weak student; weak in math. 7. Lacking or resulting from a lack of intelligence. 8. Lacking persuasiveness; unconvincing: a weak argument. 9. Lacking authority or the power to govern. 10. Lacking potency or intensity: weak sunlight. 11. Linguistics. a. Of, relating to, or being those verbs in Germanic languages that form a past tense and past participle by means of a dental suffix, as start, started; have, had; bring, brought. b. Of, relating to, or being the inflection of nouns or adjectives in Germanic languages with a declensional suffix that historically contained an n. 12. Unstressed or unaccented in pronunciation or poetic meter. Used of a word or syllable. 13. Designating a verse ending in which the metrical stress falls on a word or syllable that is unstressed in normal speech, such as a preposition. 14. Tending downward in price: a weak market for oil stocks. [Middle English weike, from Old Norse veikr, pliant. See weik-² in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: weak, feeble, frail, fragile, infirm, decrepit, debilitated. These adjectives mean lacking or showing a lack of strength. Weak, the most widely applicable, implies lack of physical, mental, or spiritual strength or deficiency of will or purpose: “These poor wretches... were so weak they could hardly sit to their oars” (Daniel Defoe). “Like all weak men he laid an exaggerated stress on not changing one’s mind” (W. Somerset Maugham). Feeble suggests pathetic or grievous physical or mental weakness or hopeless inadequacy: a feeble patient; a feeble intellect; a feeble effort. “We, who were the tall pine of the forest, have become a feeble plant and need your protection” (Red Jacket). Frail implies delicacy, as of constitution, or lack of ability to endure or withstand: “an aged thrush, frail, gaunt, and small, / In blast-beruffled plume” (Thomas Hardy). “Frail is our happiness, if this be so” (John Milton). What is fragile is easily broken, damaged, or destroyed: “a fragile dewdrop” (John Keats). “This city is for the King, whose body is fragile, a very unhealthy city” (Lord Dunsany). Infirm implies enfeeblement: “a poor, infirm, weak, and despis’d old man” (Shakespeare). Decrepit describes what is weakened, worn out, or broken down by hard use or the passage of time: “childhood, manhood, and decrepit age” (Francis Quarles). Debilitated suggests a gradual impairment of energy or strength: Her already debilitated constitution is being further weakened by overwork and smoking.

weak·en (wē'kən) v. tr. intr. weak·ened, weak·en·ing, weak·ens. To make or become weak or weaker. —weak'en·er n.

weak·fish (wēk'fish') n. pl. weakfish or weak·fish·es. A marine food and game fish (Cynoscion regalis) of North American Atlantic waters. Also called squeteague [Obsolete Dutch weekvis: week, soft (from Middle Dutch weec); see weik-² in Appendix + Dutch vis, fish (from Middle Dutch).]

weak interaction (wēk ĭn'tər-āk'shən) n. A fundamental interaction between elementary particles that is several orders of magnitude weaker than the electromagnetic interaction and is responsible for some particle decay, nuclear beta decay, and neutrino absorption and emission. Also called weak force weak-kneed (wēk'nēd') adj. Lacking strength of character or purpose.

weak·ling (wēk'liŋ) n. One of weak constitution or character.

weak·ly (wēk'lē) adj. weak·li·er, weak·li·est. Delicate in constitution; frail or sickly. — adv. 1. With little physical strength or force. 2. With little strength of character. —weak/li·ness n.

weak-mind·ed (wēk'mīn'dīd) adj. 1. Having or exhibiting a lack of judgment or conviction. 2. Foolish; silly. 3. Offensive. Of less than normal intellect. —weak'/-mind'ed·ness n.

weak·ness (wēk'nīs) n. 1. The condition or quality of being weak. 2. A personal defect or failing. See Synonyms at fault. 3. a. A special fondness or inclination: has a weakness for fast cars. b. Something of which one is excessively fond or desirous: Ice cream is his weakness.

weak·on (wē'kōn') n. Either of two bosons, the W particle or the Z particle, that are quanta of the weak interaction.

weak sister (wēk sīs'tər) n. Slang. 1. A weak or undependable member of a group. 2. A person regarded as timid or indecisive.

weal¹ (wēl) n. 1. Prosperity; happiness: in weal and woe. 2. The welfare of the community; the general good: the public weal. [Middle English wēle, from Old English wela. See wel-¹ in Appendix.]

weal² (wēl) n. A ridge on the flesh raised by a blow; a welt. [Alteration (influenced by WHEAL), of WALE.]

weald (wēld) n. Chiefly British. 1. A woodland. 2. An area of open rolling upland. [From Weald, a once-forested area in southeast England, from Old English wald, weald, forest.]

wealth (wēlth) n. 1. a. An abundance of valuable material possessions or resources; riches. b. The state of being rich; affluence. 2. All goods and resources having value in terms of exchange or use. 3. A great amount; a profusion: a wealth of advice. [Middle English welthe, from wēle, from Old English wela. See wel-¹ in Appendix.]

wealth-y (wĕl'thē) adj. wealth-i-er, wealth-i-est. 1. Having wealth; rich.

See Synonyms at rich. 2. Marked by abundance: a wealthy land. 3. Well supplied: wealthy in compassion. —wealth'i-ly adv. —wealth'i-ness n.

wean (wēn) v. tr. weaned, wean-ing, weans. 1. To accustom (the young of a mammal) to take nourishment other than by suckling. 2. To detach from that to which one is strongly habituated or devoted: She weaned herself from cigarettes. 3. Usage Problem. To be raised on. [Middle English wenen, from Old English wenian. See wen-¹ in Appendix.]

USAGE NOTE: In recent years weaned on has come to be widely used in the sense “raised on,” as in Moviegoers weaned on the Star Trek TV series will doubtless find the film to their liking. A few critics have objected to this usage on the grounds that wean refers literally to a detachment from a source of nourishment. But the process of weaning involves a substitution of some other form of nourishment for mother’s milk; thus it is sometimes said that a child is weaned onto or on sugar water. Hence a sentence like Paul was weaned on Dixieland may suggest metaphorically that Paul’s exposure to Dixieland began from the time he stopped nursing, that is, from a very early age.

wean-ling (wēn'lɪŋ) n. A newly weaned child or young animal. — adj. Newly weaned.

weap-on (wĕp'ən) n. Abbr. wpn. 1. An instrument of attack or defense in combat, as a gun, missile, or sword. 2. Zoology. A part or an organ, such as a claw or stinger, used by an animal in attack or defense. 3. A means used to defend against or defeat another: Logic was her weapon. — v. tr. weap-oned, weap-on-ing, weap-ons. To supply with weapons or a weapon; arm. [Middle English wepen, from Old English wāpen.]

weap-on-er (wĕp'ə-nîr') n. 1. One who prepares a nuclear weapon for release. 2. One who designs weapons, especially nuclear weapons. —weap-on-er'ing n.

weap-on-ry (wĕp'ən-rē) n. 1. Weapons considered as a group. 2. The design and production of weapons.

weap-ons system (wĕp'ənz sîs'təm) n. Weapons together with the materiel necessary for their use against an enemy.

wear (wâr) v. wore (wôr, wôr), worn (wôrn, wôrnrn), wear-ing, wears. — v. tr. 1. To carry or have on the person as covering, adornment, or protection: wearing a jacket; must wear a seat belt. 2. To carry or have habitually on the person, especially as an aid: wears glasses. 3. To display in one’s appearance: always wears a smile. 4. To bear, carry, or maintain in a particular manner: wears her hair long. 5. To fly or display (colors). Used of a ship, jockey, or knight. 6. To damage, diminish, erode, or consume by long or hard use, attrition, or exposure.

Often used with away, down, or off: rocks worn away by the sea; shoes worn down at the heels. 7. To produce by constant use, attrition, or exposure: eventually wore hollows in the stone steps. 8. To bring to a specified condition by long use or attrition: wore the clothes to rags; pebbles worn smooth. 9. To fatigue, weary, or exhaust: Your incessant criticism has worn my patience. 10. Nautical. To make (a sailing ship) come about with the wind aft. — v. intr. 1. a. To last under continual or hard use: a fabric that will wear. b. To last through the passage of time: a friendship that wears well. 2. To break down or diminish through use or attrition: The rear tires began to wear. 3. To pass gradually or tediously: The hours wore on. 4. Nautical. To come about with stern to windward. — n. 1. The act of wearing or the state of being worn; use: The coat has had heavy wear.

2. Clothing, especially of a particular kind or for a particular use. Often used in combination: rainwear; footwear. 3. Gradual impairment or diminution resulting from use or attrition. 4. The ability to withstand impairment from use or attrition: The engine has plenty of wear left. — phrasal verbs. wear down. To break down or exhaust by relentless pressure or resistance. wear off. To diminish gradually in effect: The drug wore off. wear out. 3. To make or become unusable through long or heavy use. 4. To use up or consume gradually. 5. To exhaust; tire. 6. Chiefly Southern U.S. To punish by spanking: I'm going to wear you out! — idioms. wear the pants (or wear the trousers). Informal. To exercise controlling authority in a household. wear thin. 2. To be weakened or eroded gradually: Her patience is wearing thin. 3. To become less convincing, acceptable, or popular, as through repeated use: excuses that are wearing thin. [Middle English weren, from Old English werian. See wes-² in Appendix.]

—wear'er n.

wear-a-bil-i-ty (wâr'ə-bīl'ī-tē) n. The ability of a garment to withstand prolonged wear.

wear-a-ble (wâr'ə-bəl) adj. 1. Suitable for wear: wearable shoes for the summer. 2. Suitable for easy wear: wearable evening clothes. — n. Something that can be worn, especially a garment. Often used in the plural.

wear and tear (wâr ənd târ) n. Loss, damage, or depreciation resulting from ordinary use and exposure.

wea-ri-ful (wâr'ē-fəl) adj. 1. Causing weariness; tedious. 2. Fatigued; exhausted. —wea'ri-ful-ly adv. —wea'ri-ful-ness n.

wea-ri-less (wâr'ē-līs) adj. Displaying or feeling no fatigue; tireless. See Synonyms at tireless. —wea'ri-less-ly adv. —wea'ri-less-ness n.

wear-ing¹ (wâr'ing) adj. Intended to be worn: wearing apparel.

wear-ing² (wâr'ing) adj. Causing fatigue; tiring: a wearing visit.

wea-ri-some (wâr'ē-səm) adj. Causing physical or mental fatigue; tedious or tiresome. —wea'ri-some-ly adv. —wea'ri-some-ness n.

wea-ry (wîr'ē) adj. wea-ri-er, wea-ri-est. 1. Physically or mentally fatigued. 2. Expressive of or prompted by fatigue: a weary smile. 3. Having one's interest, forbearance, or indulgence worn out: weary of delays. 4. Causing fatigue; tiresome: a weary wait. — v. tr. intr. wea-ried (wîr'ēd), wea-ry-ing, wea-ries (wîr'ēz). To make or become weary. See Synonyms at tire¹. [Middle English weri, from Old English wērig.] — wea'ri-ly adv. — wea'ri-ness n.

wea-sand (wē'zənd) n. The gullet or throat. [Middle English wesand, perhaps from Old English wāsend*, variant of wāsand.]

wea-sel (wē'zəl) n. 1. Any of various carnivorous mammals of the genus Mustela, having a long slender body, a long tail, short legs, and brownish fur that in many species turns white in winter. 2. A person regarded as sneaky or treacherous. — v. intr. wea-seled also wea-selled, wea-sel-ing also wea-sel-ling, wea-sels also wea-sels. To be evasive; equivocate. — phrasal verb. weasel out. Informal. To back out of a situation or commitment in a sneaky or cowardly manner. [Middle English wesele, from Old English wesle.]

weasel word (wē'zəl wûrd) n. A word of an equivocal nature used to deprive a statement of its force or to evade a direct commitment. [From the weasel's habit of sucking the contents out of an egg without breaking the shell.]

weath-er (wēth'ər) n. 1. The state of the atmosphere at a given time and place, with respect to variables such as temperature, moisture, wind velocity, and barometric pressure. 2. a. Adverse or destructive atmospheric conditions, such as high winds or heavy rain: encountered weather five miles out to sea. b. The unpleasant or destructive effects of such atmospheric conditions: protected the house from the weather. 3. weathers. Changes of fortune: had known him in many weathers. — v. weath-ered, weath-er-ing, weath-ers. — v. tr.

1. To expose to the action of the elements, as for drying, seasoning, or coloring.

2. To discolor, disintegrate, wear, or otherwise affect adversely by exposure. 3. To come through (something) safely; survive: weather a crisis. 4. To slope (a roof, for example) so as to shed water. 5. Nautical. To pass to the windward of despite bad weather. — v. intr. 1. To show the effects, such as discoloration, of exposure to the elements: The walls of the barn had weathered. 2. To withstand the effects of weather: a house paint that weathers well. — adj. 1. Nautical. Of or relating to the windward side of a ship; windward. 2. Relating to or used in weather forecasting: a weather plane. — idioms. make heavy weather of.

To exaggerate the difficulty of something to be done. under the weather.

2. Somewhat indisposed; slightly ill. 3. Informal. a. Intoxicated; drunk.

b. Suffering from a hangover; crapulous. [Middle English weder, wether, from Old English weder. See wē- in Appendix.]

weather balloon (wēth'ər bə-lōn') n. A balloon used to carry instruments aloft to gather meteorological data in the atmosphere.

weather balloon (wēth'ər bə-lōn') n. A balloon used to carry instruments aloft to gather meteorological data in the atmosphere.

weather balloon (wēth'ər bə-lōn') n. A balloon used to carry instruments aloft to gather meteorological data in the atmosphere.

weather balloon (wēth'ər bə-lōn') n. A balloon used to carry instruments aloft to gather meteorological data in the atmosphere.

weather balloon (wēth'ər bə-lōn') n. A balloon used to carry instruments aloft to gather meteorological data in the atmosphere.

weather balloon (wēth'ər bə-lōn') n. A balloon used to carry instruments aloft to gather meteorological data in the atmosphere.

weather balloon (wēth'ər bə-lōn') n. A balloon used to carry instruments aloft to gather meteorological data in the atmosphere.

weath·er·beat·en (wĕth'ər-bēt'n) adj. 1. Worn by exposure to the weather.

2. Tanned and coarsened from being outdoors: a weather-beaten face.

weath·er·board (wĕth'ər-bōrd', -bōrd') n. See clapboard.

weath·er·board·ing (wĕth'ər-bōr'dīng, -bōr'-) n. Clapboards considered as a group; siding.

weath·er·bound (wĕth'ər-bound') adj. Delayed, halted, or kept indoors by bad weather.

weather bureau (wĕth'ər byōōr'ō) n. Abbr. W.B. An agency responsible for the gathering and interpreting of meteorological data for weather study and forecasts.

weath·er·cast (wĕth'ər-kāst') n. A broadcast of weather conditions.

[WEATHER + (FORE)CAST.] —weath'er·cast'er n.

weath·er·cock (wĕth'ər-kōk') n. 1. A weathervane, especially one in the form of a rooster. 2. One that is very changeable or fickle. — v. intr.

weath·er·cocked, weath·er·cock·ing, weath·er·cocks. To have a tendency to veer in the direction of the wind. Used of an aircraft or a missile.

weather deck (wĕth'ər dĕk) n. Nautical. A ship's deck that is open to the sky.

weath·ered (wĕth'ərd) adj. 1. Worn, stained, or warped by or as if by exposure to weather; seasoned: a house of weathered shingles. 2. Architecture. Sloped to shed water: a weathered masonry joint. —phrasal verb. weather in. To experience or cause to experience weather conditions that prevent movement: The squadron is weathered in because of dense fog. Such a storm will weather the fleet in.

weather eye (wĕth'ər ī) n. An eye quick to recognize signs of changes in the weather. —idiom. keep a weather eye open (or keep (one's) weather eye open). To keep watch; stay alert.

weath·er·glass (wĕth'ər-glās') n. An instrument, such as a barometer, designed to indicate changes in atmospheric conditions.

weath·er·ing (wĕth'ər-īng) n. Any of the chemical or mechanical processes by which rocks exposed to the weather undergo changes in character and break down.

weath·er·ize (wĕth'ə-rīz') v. tr. weath·er·ized, weath·er·iz·ing, weath·er·iz·es. To protect (a structure) against cold weather, as with insulation.

weath·er·ly (wĕth'ər-lē) adj. Nautical. Able to sail close to the wind with little drift to leeward. —weath'er·li·ness n.

weather map (wĕth'ər mǎp) n. A map or chart depicting the meteorological conditions over a specific geographic area at a specific time.

weath·er·proof (wĕth'ər-prōōf') adj. Capable of withstanding exposure to weather without damage. — v. tr. weath·er·proofed, weath·er·proof·ing, weath·er·proofs. To make weatherproof. —weath'er·proof'ness n.

weather ship (wĕth'ər shĭp) n. Nautical. An oceangoing vessel equipped to make meteorological observations.

weather station (wĕth'ər stā'shən) n. A facility or location where meteorological data are gathered, recorded, and released.

weath-er-strip (wĕth'ər-strĭp') v. tr. weath-er-stripped, weath-er-strip-ping, weath-er-strips. To fit or equip with weather stripping.

weather strip-ping (wĕth'ər strĭp'ĭng) n. 1. A narrow piece of material, such as plastic, rubber, felt, or metal, installed around doors and windows to protect an interior from external extremes in temperature. 2. This material considered as a unit.

weath-er-vane (wĕth'ər-vān') n. A device for indicating wind direction.

weath-er-wise (wĕth'ər-wĭz') adj. Skilled in predicting shifts, as in the weather or public opinion.

weath-er-worn (wĕth'ər-wōrn', -wōrn') adj. Weather-beaten.

weave (wēv) v. wove (wōv), wo-ven (wō'vən), weav-ing, weaves. — v. tr. 1. a. To make (cloth) by interlacing the threads of the weft and the warp on a loom. b. To interlace (threads, for example) into cloth. 2. To construct by interlacing or interweaving strips or strands of material: weave a basket. 3. a. To interweave or combine (elements) into a complex whole: wove the incidents into a story. b. To contrive (something complex or elaborate) in this way: weave a tale. 4. To introduce (another element) into a complex whole; work in: wove folk tunes into the symphony. 5. To spin (a web, for example). 6. past tense. weaved. To make (a path or way) by winding in and out or from side to side: weaved our way through the heavy traffic. — v. intr. 1. a. To engage in weaving; make cloth. b. To work at a loom. 2. past tense. weaved. To move in and out or sway from side to side. — n. The pattern, method of weaving, or construction of a fabric: a twill weave; a loose weave. [Middle English weven, from Old English wefan. See webh- in Appendix.]

weav-er (wē'vər) n. 1. One that weaves: a weaver of fine rugs. 2. A weaverbird.

Wea-ver (wē'vər), James Baird. 1833-1912. American politician. A U.S. representative from Iowa (1879-1881 and 1885-1889), he was the 1880 presidential candidate of the Greenback Party and the 1892 candidate of the Populist Party.

weav-er-bird (wē'vər-bŭrd') n. Any of various chiefly tropical Old World birds of the family Ploceidae, similar to the finches and characterized by the ability to build complex communal nests of intricately woven vegetation. Also called weaver finch weav-er's hitch (wē'vərz hĭch) n. Nautical. A sheet bend. Also called weaver's knot web (wĕb) n. 1. a. A woven fabric, especially one on a loom or just removed from it. b. The structural part of cloth. 2. A latticed or woven structure: A web of palm branches formed the roof of the hut. 3. A structure of delicate, threadlike filaments characteristically spun by spiders or certain insect larvae. 4. Something intricately contrived, especially something that ensnares or entangles: caught in a web of lies. 5. A complex, interconnected structure or arrangement: a web of telephone wires. 6. A radio or television network. 7. A membrane or fold of skin connecting the toes, as of certain amphibians, birds, and mammals. 8. The barbs on each side of the shaft of a bird's feather; a vane. 9. Architecture. The surface between the ribs of a ribbed vault. 10. A metal sheet or plate connecting the heavier sections, ribs, or flanges of a structural element. 11. A thin metal plate or strip, as the bit of a key or the blade of a saw. 12. A large continuous roll of paper, such as newsprint, either in the process of manufacture or as it is fed into a web press. — v. tr. webbed, web·bing, webs. 1. To provide with a web. 2. To cover or envelop with a web. 3. To ensnare in a web. [Middle English, from Old English. See webh- in Appendix.]

Webb (wĕb), Sidney James First Baron Passfield. 1859-1947. British sociologist and economist who was a founder of the London School of Economics (1895). He and his wife, Beatrice Potter Webb (1858-1943), were central members of the Fabian Society and together wrote The History of Trade Unionism (1894) and other books.

webbed (wĕbd) adj. Having or connected by a web.

web·bing (wĕb'ɪŋ) n. 1. A strong, narrow, closely woven fabric used especially for seat belts and harnesses or in upholstery. 2. Something forming a web.

web·by (wĕb'ē) adj. web·bi·er, web·bi·est. Consisting of, resembling, or having webs or a web.

web·er (wĕb'ər, vā'bər) n. Abbr. Wb Physics. The SI unit of magnetic flux equal to the magnetic flux that in linking a circuit of one turn produces in it an electromotive force of one volt as it is uniformly reduced to zero within one second. See Table at measurement. [After Wilhelm Eduard WEBER.]

We·ber (vā'bər), Ernst Heinrich. 1795-1878. German physiologist and psychologist who studied sensory response and is considered a founder of experimental psychology.

We·ber (vā'bər), Baron Karl Maria Friedrich Ernst von. 1786-1826. German composer who is considered the founder of German romantic opera. His works include Der Freischütz (1821).

We·ber¹ (vā'bər), Max. 1864-1920. German sociologist and a pioneer of the modern analytical method of sociology. His works include The Protestant Ethic and the Spirit of Capitalism (1904-1905).

We·ber² (wĕb'ər), Max. 1881-1961. Russian-born American painter whose abstract works helped introduce the European avant-garde movements of the early 20th century to American art.

We·ber (vā'bər), Wilhelm Eduard. 1804-1891. German physicist noted for his study of terrestrial magnetism.

We-bern (vā'bərn), Anton Friedrich Wilhelm von. 1883-1945. Austrian composer whose works, characterized by brevity and tonal dissonance, include two symphonies and a concerto for nine instruments (1934).

We-ber River (wē'bər rīv'ər) A river rising in northern Utah and flowing about 201 km (125 mi) generally northwest to join the Ogden River and empty into the Great Salt Lake.

web-foot (wēb'fōōt') n. pl. web-feet (-fēt'). 1. A foot with webbed toes.
2. An animal with webbed feet.

web-foot-ed (wēb'fōōt'id) adj. Having feet with webbed toes.

web member (wēb mēm'bər) n. One of the structural elements connecting the top and bottom flanges of a lattice girder or the outside members of a truss.

web press (wēb prēs) n. Printing. A rotary press that prints on a continuous roll of paper.

web spinner (wēb spīn'ər) n. Any of various social insects of the order Embioptera, having two-winged males and wingless females, both of which produce silk from glands in the front legs.

web-ster (wēb'stər) n. Obsolete. A weaver of cloth. [Middle English, from Old English webbestre, feminine of webba, weaver, from webb, web. See webh- in Appendix.]

Web-ster (wēb'stər), Daniel. 1782-1852. American politician. A U.S. representative from New Hampshire (1813-1817) and later a representative (1823-1827) and senator (1827-1841 and 1845-1850) from Massachusetts, he was a noted orator who espoused preservation of the Union. He twice served as secretary of state (1841-1843 and 1850-1852).

Web-ster (wēb'stər), John. 1580?-1625?. English playwright whose works include The White Devil (published 1612) and The Duchess of Malfi (c. 1613).

Web-ster (wēb'stər), Noah. 1758-1843. American lexicographer whose Spelling Book (1783) helped standardize American spelling. His major work, An American Dictionary of the English Language, was originally published in 1828.

Webster Groves (wēb'stər grōvz) A city of eastern Missouri, a mainly residential suburb of St. Louis. Population, 22,987.

web-toed (wēb'tōd') adj. Web-footed.

web-worm (wēb'wūrm') n. Any of various usually destructive caterpillars that construct webs.

weck (wēk) n. Buffalo. See kümmelweck. [German dialectal, wedge-shaped roll, from Middle High German wecke, from Old High German, wedge.]

wed (wēd) v. wed-ded, wed or wed-ded, wed-ding, weds. — v. tr. 1. To take as a spouse; marry. 2. To perform the marriage ceremony for; join in matrimony. 3. To unite closely: a style that weds form and function. — v. intr. To take a spouse; marry. [Middle English wedden, from Old English weddian.]

Wed. abbr. Wednesday.

we'd (wēd) 1. We had. 2. We should. 3. We would.

wed-ded (wēd'ɪd) adj. 1. Joined in marriage. 2. Of or relating to marriage: wedded bliss. 3. Closely attached or devoted: a person completely wedded to a profession.

Wed-dell Sea (wī-dēl' sē, wēd'l) A sea of the southern Atlantic Ocean off western Antarctica east of the Antarctic Peninsula. It is named for James Weddell (1787-1834), a British navigator.

wed-ding (wēd'ɪŋ) n. 1. a. The act of marrying. b. The ceremony or celebration of a marriage. 2. The anniversary of a marriage: a silver wedding. 3. The act or an instance of joining closely: a wedding of ideas. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a wedding gown; wedding guests.

wedding band (wēd'ɪŋ bænd) n. See wedding ring.

wedding cake (wēd'ɪŋ kāk) n. An elaborately decorated cake usually arranged in tiers and having white icing.

wed-ding-cake (wēd'ɪŋg-kāk') adj. Of, relating to, or having a highly ornate architectural style.

wedding ring (wēd'ɪŋ rɪŋ) n. 1. A ring, often a plain gold or platinum band, given by the groom to the bride during the wedding ceremony. 2. A similar ring often given by the bride to the groom. Also called wedding band

we-del (vād'l) v. intr. we-deled, we-del-ling, we-dels. Sports. To ski on snow by means of wedeln. [Back-formation from WEDELN.]

we-deln (vād'ln) n. Sports. A snow skiing style in which the skier executes a series of short, quick, parallel turns by moving the backs of the skis from side to side at a constant speed. [German, from wedeln, to wag the tail, fan, from Middle High German wadelen, wedelen, from wadel, wedel, fan, tuft of hair, from Old High German wadal, wedil. See wet-¹ in Appendix.]

wedge (wěj) n. 1. A piece of material, such as metal or wood, thick at one edge and tapered to a thin edge at the other for insertion in a narrow crevice, used for splitting, tightening, securing, or levering. 2. a. Something shaped like a wedge: a wedge of pie. b. Downstate New York. See submarine (n., sense 2). See Regional note at submarine. c. A wedge-shaped formation, as in football or ground warfare. 3. a. Something that intrudes and causes division or disruption: His nomination drove a wedge into party unity. b. Something that forces an opening or a beginning: a wedge in the war on poverty. 4. Meteorology. See ridge (n., sense 4). 5. Sports. An iron golf club with a very slanted face, used to lift the ball, as from sand. 6. One of the triangular characters of cuneiform writing. — v. wedged, wedg-ing, wedg-es. — v. tr. 1. To split or force apart with or as if with a wedge. 2. To fix in place or tighten with a wedge. 3. To crowd or squeeze into a limited space. — v. intr. To become lodged or jammed. [Middle English wegge, from Old English wecg.]

wedg·ie (wěj'ē) n. A shoe having a wedge-shaped heel joined to a half sole so as to form a continuous undersurface. Often used in the plural. [Originally a trademark.]

Wedg·wood (wěj'wōd') A trademark used for a type of pottery made by Josiah Wedgwood and his successors.

Wedg·wood (wěj'wōd'), Josiah. 1730-1795. British potter who improved the materials and processes of pottery. The wares from his factory (founded 1759) are among the finest examples of British earthenware and neoclassical vases.

wed·lock (wěd'lōk') n. The state of being married; matrimony. —idiom. out of wedlock. Of parents not legally married to each other: born out of wedlock. [Middle English wedlocke, from Old English wedlāc: wedd, pledge + -lāc, n. suff. expressing activity.]

Wednes·day (wěnz'dē, -dā') n. Abbr. W., Wed. The fourth day of the week. [Middle English, from Old English Wōdnesdæg, Woden's day. See wet-¹ in Appendix.]

WORD HISTORY: We say the names of the days of the week constantly, but for most of us they are nonsense syllables. The seven-day system we use is based on the ancient astrological notion that the seven celestial bodies (the sun, the moon, Mars, Mercury, Jupiter, Venus, and Saturn) revolving around stationary Earth influence what happens on it and that each of these celestial bodies controls the first hour of the day named after it. This system was brought into Hellenistic Egypt from Mesopotamia, where astrology had been practiced for millenniums and where seven had always been a propitious number. In A.D. 321 the Emperor Constantine the Great grafted this astrological system onto the Roman calendar, made the first day of this new week a day of rest and worship for all, and imposed the following sequence and names to the days of the week: Diēs Sōlis, “Sun’s Day”; Diēs Lūnae, “Moon’s Day”; Diēs Martis, “Mars’s Day”; Diēs Mercuriī, “Mercury’s Day”; Diēs Iovis, “Jove’s Day” or “Jupiter’s Day”; Diēs Veneris, “Venus’s Day”; and Diēs Saturnī, “Saturn’s Day.” This new Roman system was adopted with modifications throughout most of western Europe: in the Germanic languages, such as Old English, the names of four of the Roman gods were converted into those of the corresponding Germanic gods. Therefore in Old English we have the following names (with their Modern English developments): Sunnandæg, Sunday; Mōnandæg, Monday; Tīwesdæg, Tuesday (the god Tiu, like Mars, was a god of war); Wōdnesdæg, Wednesday (the god Woden, like Mercury, was quick and eloquent); Thunresdæg, Thursday (the god Thunor in Old English or Thor in Old Norse, like Jupiter, was lord of the sky; Old Norse Thōrsdagr influenced the English form); Frīgedæg, Friday (the goddess Frigg, like Venus, was the goddess of love); and Sa-

- wee (wē) adj. we·er, we·est. 1. Very small; tiny. See Synonyms at small. 2. Very early: the wee hours of the morning. — n. Scots. A short time; a little bit. [Middle English wei, we, a small amount, small, from Old English wæge, wæg, weight. See wegh- in Appendix.]
- weed¹ (wēd) n. 1. a. A plant considered undesirable, unattractive, or troublesome, especially one growing where it is not wanted, as in a garden. b. Rank growth of such plants. 2. A water plant, especially seaweed. 3. The leaves or stems of a plant as distinguished from the seeds: dill weed. 4. Something useless, detrimental, or worthless, especially an animal unfit for breeding. 5. Slang. a. Tobacco. b. A cigarette. c. Marijuana. — v. weed·ed, weed·ing, weeds. — v. tr. 1. To clear of weeds. 2. To remove (weeds). Often used with out: weed out dandelions. 3. To eliminate as unsuitable or unwanted. Often used with out: weed out unqualified applicants. — v. intr. To remove weeds. [Middle English, from Old English wēod, herb, grass, weed.]
- weed² (wēd) n. 1. A token of mourning, as a black band worn on a man's hat or sleeve. 2. weeds. The black mourning clothes of a widow. 3. Often weeds. An article of clothing; a garment. [Middle English wede, garment, from Old English wād.]
- Weed (wēd), Thurlow. 1797-1882. American journalist and politician. Editor of the Albany Evening Journal (1830-1862), he exerted great political influence as a leader of the Whig Party and later of the Republican Party.
- weed·er (wē'dər) n. One that removes weeds, as from a garden.
- weed·y (wē'dē) adj. weed·i·er, weed·i·est. 1. Full of or consisting of weeds: a weedy lawn. 2. Resembling or characteristic of a weed: a weedy plant. 3. Of a scrawny build; spindly or gawky. —weed/i·ly adv. —weed/i·ness n.
- Wee·haw·ken (wē-hō'kən) A township of northeast New Jersey on the Hudson River opposite New York City. The duel in which Aaron Burr mortally wounded Alexander Hamilton took place here on July 11, 1804. Population, 13,383.
- week (wēk) n. Abbr. w., wk. 1. a. A period of seven days: a week of rain. b. A seven-day calendar period, especially one starting with Sunday and continuing through Saturday: this week. 2. a. A week designated by an event or a holiday occurring within it: commencement week. b. A week dedicated to a particular cause or institution: Home Safety Week. 3. The part of a calendar week devoted to work, school, or business: working a three-day week. 4. a. One week from a specified day: I'll see you Friday week. b. One week ago from a specified day: It was Friday week that we last met. [Middle English weke, from Old English wicu. See weik-² in Appendix.]

week·day (wēk'dā') n. Any day of the week except Sunday, or often except Saturday and Sunday. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: week-day meetings; a weekday commute.

week·end (wēk'ēnd') n. The end of the week, especially the period from Friday evening through Sunday evening. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a weekend job; a weekend cottage. — v. intr. week·end·ed, week·end·ing, week·ends. To spend weekends or a weekend.

week·end·er (wēk'ēn'dər) n. 1. One who vacations or visits on a weekend.

2. A small suitcase or bag for carrying clothing and toiletries for a weekend.

week·long (wēk'lōng', -lōng') adj. Continuing through the week: a weeklong conference.

week·ly (wēk'lē) adv. Abbr. wkly. 1. Once a week. 2. Every week. 3. By the week. — adj. Abbr. wkly. 1. Of or relating to a week. 2. Occurring, appearing, or done once a week or every week. 3. Computed by the week: a weekly rate. — n. pl. week·lies. Abbr. wkly. A publication issued once a week.

week·night (wēk'nīt') n. A night of the week exclusive of Saturday and Sunday.

Weems (wēmz), Mason Locke. Known as "Parson Weems." 1759-1825.

American cleric and writer known for his laudatory fictionalized biography of George Washington (1800), a later edition of which contains the story of Washington chopping down a cherry tree.

ween (wēn) v. tr. weened, ween·ing, weens. Archaic. To think; suppose. [Middle English wenen, from Old English wēnan. See wen-¹ in Appendix.]

ween·ie (wē'nē) n. 1. Informal. A wiener. 2. Slang. A person, especially a man, who is regarded as being weak and ineffectual.

wee·ny (wē'nē) adj. wee·ni·er, wee·ni·est. Informal. Very small; tiny. [Perhaps blend of WEE, and TINY.]

weep (wēp) v. wept (wēpt), weep·ing, weeps. — v. tr. 1. To shed (tears) as an expression of emotion: weep bitter tears of remorse. 2. To express grief or anguish for; lament: wept the death of the child. 3. To bring to a specified condition by weeping: She wept herself into a state of exhaustion. 4. To exude or let fall (drops of liquid): "cuts the jellied milk into tiny, soft curds that weep whey" (Kit Snedaker). — v. intr. 1. To express emotion, such as grief or sadness, by shedding tears. See Synonyms at cry. 2. To mourn or grieve: wept for the dead. 3. To emit or run with drops of liquid: a sore that weeps. — n. A period or fit of weeping. Often used in the plural. [Middle English wepen, from Old English wēpan.]

weep·er (wē'pər) n. 1. One that weeps. 2. A hired mourner. 3. A badge of mourning, such as a black hatband or veil. 4. A hole or pipe in a wall to allow water to run off. 5. Informal. A highly sentimental artistic, cinematic, or dramatic work.

weep·ie (wē'pē) n. Informal. A work, especially a film or play, that is excessively sentimental.

weep·ing (wē'pīng) adj. 1. Shedding tears; tearful. 2. Dropping rain: weeping clouds. 3. Having slender, drooping branches.

weeping willow (wē'pīng wīl'ō) n. A widely cultivated deciduous tree (Salix babylonica) native to China, having long, slender, drooping branches and narrow leaves.

weep·y (wē'pē) adj. weep·i·er, weep·i·est. Weeping or inclined to weep; tearful.

wee·ver (wē'vər) n. Any of several marine fishes of the family Trachinidae, having venomous spines on the gill cover and first dorsal fin. [Old North French wivre, serpent, weever. See WYVERN.]

wee·vil (wē'vəl) n. Any of numerous beetles, of the superfamily Curculion-oidea, especially the snout beetle, that characteristically have a downward-curving snout and are destructive to nuts, fruits, stems, and roots. [Middle English wevel, from Old English wifel. See webh- in Appendix.]

weft (wēft) n. 1. a. The horizontal threads interlaced through the warp in a woven fabric; woof. b. Yarn used for the weft. 2. Woven fabric. [Middle English, from Old English wefta. See webh- in Appendix.]

We·ge·ner (vā'gə-nər), Alfred Lothar. 1880-1930. German geophysicist, meteorologist, and explorer who proposed the theory of continental drift.

Wei (wā) Name of several Chinese dynasties ruling from A.D. 220 to 265 and from 386 to 556.

wei·ge·la (wī-gē'lə, -jē'-, wī'jə-) n. Any of various deciduous shrubs of the genus Weigela of Asia, especially W. florida, widely cultivated for its pink, white, or red flowers. [New Latin, genus name, after Christian E. Weigel (1748-1831), German physician.]

weigh¹ (wā) v. weighed, weigh·ing, weighs. — v. tr. 1. To determine the weight of by or as if by using a scale or balance. 2. To measure or apportion (a certain quantity) by or as if by weight. Often used with out: weighed out a pound of cheese. 3. a. To balance in the mind in order to make a choice; ponder or evaluate: weighed the alternatives and decided to stay. b. To choose carefully or deliberately: weigh one's words. 4. Nautical. To raise (anchor). — v. intr. 1. To be of a specific weight. 2. To have consequence or importance: The decision weighed heavily against us. See Synonyms at count¹. 3. To press heavily. Used with on or upon: Guilt weighed on him. 4. Nautical. To raise anchor. — phrasal verbs.

weigh down. 1. To cause to bend down with added weight: vines that were weighed down with grapes. 2. To burden or oppress: were weighed down with cares; responsibilities that wore me down. weigh in. 3. Sports. To be weighed before or after an athletic contest. 4. To have one's baggage weighed, as at an airport. 5. Slang. To enter as a participant: She weighed in with some pertinent facts.

[Middle English weien, from Old English wegan. See wegh- in Appendix.]

—weigh'er n.

weigh² (wā) n. Nautical. Way. Used in the phrase under weigh. [Variant of WAY.]

weight (wāt) n. Abbr. w., wt. 1. A measure of the heaviness of an object.

2. The force with which a body is attracted to Earth or another celestial body, equal to the product of the object's mass and the acceleration of gravity. 3. a. A unit measure of gravitational force: a table of weights and measures. b. A system of such measures: avoirdupois weight; troy weight. 4. The measured heaviness of a specific object: a two-pound weight. 5. An object used principally to exert a force by virtue of its gravitational attraction to Earth, especially: a. A metallic solid used as a standard of comparison in weighing. b. An object used to hold something else down. c. A counterbalance in a machine. d. Sports. A heavy object, such as a dumbbell, lifted for exercise or in athletic competition.

6. Statistics. A factor assigned to a number in a computation, as in determining an average, to make the number's effect on the computation reflect its importance. 7. Burden; oppressiveness. 8. The greater part; preponderance: The weight of the evidence is against the defendant. 9. a. Influence, importance, or authority: Her approval carried great weight. See Synonyms at importance.

b. Ponderous quality: the weight of the speaker's words. 10. Sports. A classification according to comparative lightness or heaviness. Often used in combination: a heavyweight boxer. 11. The heaviness or thickness of a fabric in relation to a particular season or use. Often used in combination: a summerweight jacket. —

v. tr. weight-ed, weight-ing, weights. 1. To add to, by or as if by attaching a weight; make heavy or heavier. 2. To load down, burden, or oppress. 3. To increase the weight or body of (fabrics) by treating with chemicals.

4. Mathematics & Statistics. To assign weights or a weight to. 5. To cause to have a slant or bias: weighted the rules in favor of homeowners. 6. Sports. To assign to (a horse) the weight it must carry as a handicap in a race. —idiom. by weight.

According to weight rather than volume or other measure. [Middle English wight, from Old English wiht. See wegh- in Appendix.]

weight-ed (wā'tīd) adj. Statistics. Adjusted to reflect value or proportion: a weighted average.

weight-less (wāt'līs) adj. 1. Having little or no weight. 2. Not experiencing the effects of gravity; being in a state of free fall. —weight/less-ly adv.

—weight/less-ness n.

weight lift-er or weight-lift-er (wāt'lif'tər) n. Sports. One who lifts heavy weights for exercise or in an athletic competition.

weight-lift-ing (wāt'lif'tīng) n. Sports. The lifting of heavy weights in a prescribed manner as an exercise or in athletic competition.

weight·y (wā'tē) adj. weight·ier, weight·iest. 1. Having considerable weight; heavy. See Synonyms at heavy. 2. Burdensome; oppressive: weighty problems. 3. Of great consequence; momentous: the weighty matters before the delegates at the peace talks. 4. Having great power or influence: a weighty argument. 5. Solemn; serious: weighty music. —weight'i-ly adv.

—weight'i-ness n.

Wei He (wā' hē') A river of central China flowing about 724 km (450 mi) generally eastward to the Huang He (Yellow River).

Weil (vāl), Simone. 1909-1943. French philosopher and mystic who viewed suffering as a means of unity with God. Her works include Waiting for God, published posthumously.

Weill (wīl, vīl), Kurt. 1900-1950. German-born composer who collaborated with Bertolt Brecht on The Rise and Fall of the City of Mahagonny (1927) and The Threepenny Opera (1928).

Weil's disease (vīlz dī-zēz', wīlz) n. A severe form of leptospirosis in human beings that is characterized by jaundice, fever, muscle pain, and a tendency to hemorrhage. [After Adolf Weil (1848-1916), German physician.]

Wei-mar (wī'mär', vī'-) A city of central Germany southwest of Leipzig. First mentioned in 975, it became the capital of the duchy of Saxe-Weimar in 1547 and developed as the most important cultural center in Germany after the arrival of Goethe in 1775. In 1919 the German National Assembly met here and established the Weimar Republic, which lasted until 1933. Population, 64,007.

Wei-mar-an-er (vī'mə-rä'nər, wī'-) n. Any of a large breed of hunting dog having a smooth grayish coat that originated in Germany. [German, after Weimar.]

Wein-berg (wīn'bûrg'), Steven. Born 1933. American physicist. He shared a 1979 Nobel Prize for theorizing that electromagnetism and weak interaction are facets of the same phenomenon.

weir (wîr) n. 1. A fence or wattle placed in a stream to catch or retain fish. 2. A dam placed across a river or canal to raise or divert the water, as for a millrace, or to regulate or measure the flow. [Middle English were, from Old English wer. See wer-⁴ in Appendix.]

weird (wîrd) adj. weird·er, weird·est. 1. Of, relating to, or suggestive of the preternatural or supernatural. 2. Of a strikingly odd or unusual character; strange. 3. Archaic. Of or relating to fate or the Fates. — n. 1. a. Fate; destiny. b. One's assigned lot or fortune, especially when evil. 2. Often Weird. Greek Mythology & Roman Mythology. One of the Fates. [Middle English werde, fate, having power to control fate, from Old English wyrd, fate. See wer-² in Appendix.] —weird'ly adv. —weird'ness n.

SYNONYMS: weird, eerie, uncanny, unearthly. These adjectives refer to what is of a mysteriously strange, usually frightening nature. Weird may suggest the operation of supernatural influences, but it may also be applied to what is merely odd or unusual: “The person of the house gave a weird little laugh” (Charles Dickens). “There is a weird power in a spoken word” (Joseph Conrad). Something eerie inspires inexplicable fear or uneasiness that seems to result from a sinister influence: “At nightfall on the marshes, the thing was eerie and fantastic to behold” (Robert Louis Stevenson). Uncanny refers to what is unnatural and peculiarly unsettling: “The queer stumps... had uncanny shapes, as of monstrous creatures, whose eyes seemed to peer out at you” (John Galsworthy). Something unearthly seems so strange and unnatural as to come from or belong to another world: “He could hear the unearthly scream of some curlew piercing the din” (Henry Kingsley).

weird·ie also weird·y (wîr'dē) n. pl. weird·ies. Slang. A strange person, event, or thing.

weird·o (wîr'dō) n. pl. weird·oes. Slang. 1. A person regarded as being very strange or eccentric. 2. A deranged, potentially dangerous person.

Weir·ton (wîr'tn) A city of northern West Virginia in the Panhandle on the Ohio River north-northeast of Wheeling. Its first steel mills were built in 1909. Population, 22,124.

weis·en·hei·mer (wīz'ən-hī'mər) n. Informal. Variant of wisenheimer.

Weis·mann (vīs'män'), August Friedrich Leopold. 1834-1914. German biologist who asserted that hereditary characteristics are transmitted by a germinal plasm.

Weis·mann·ism (wīs'mə-nīz'əm, vīs'män-iz'əm) n. Genetics. The theory that all heritable characteristics arise in the germ plasm and that acquired characteristics cannot be inherited. [After August Friedrich Leopold WEISMANN.]

Weiss·mul·ler (wīs'mül'ər, -myōō'lər), Johnny. 1904-1984. American swimmer and actor who won 5 Olympic gold medals and set 67 world records for swimming. He later played Tarzan in numerous jungle adventure films.

Weiz·mann (wīts'mən, vīts'män), Chaim Azriel. 1874-1952. Polish-born Israeli chemist and politician who was the first president of Israel (1948-1952).

we·jack (wē'jäk) n. See fisher (n., sense 2a). [Cree oček.]

we·ka (wē'kə, wā'-) n. A flightless bird (Gallirallus australis) of New Zealand, having mottled brown plumage and short legs. [Maori.]

welch (wělch) v. Variant of welsh.

Welch (wělch, wělsh), Joseph Nye. 1890-1960. American lawyer who represented the U.S. Army during the 1954 Senate subcommittee hearings concerning charges of subversion brought by Senator Joseph McCarthy.

Welch (wělch, wělsh), William Henry. 1850-1934. American pathologist and bacteriologist who discovered the bacteria that causes gas gangrene.

wel·come (wĕl'kəm) adj. 1. Received with pleasure and hospitality into one's company or home: a welcome guest. 2. Giving pleasure or satisfaction; agreeable or gratifying: a welcome respite from hard work. 3. Cordially or willingly permitted or invited: You are welcome to join us. 4. Freely granted one's courtesy. Used to acknowledge an expression of gratitude. — n. 1. A cordial greeting or hospitable reception given to an arriving person. 2. A reception upon arrival: gave the stranger an unfriendly welcome. 3. The state of being welcome: Don't overstay your welcome. — v. tr. wel·comed, wel·com·ing, wel·comes. 1. To greet, receive, or entertain (another or others) cordially or hospitably. 2. To receive or accept gladly: would welcome a little privacy. — interj. Used to greet cordially a visitor or recent arrival. — idiom. wear out (one's) welcome. To visit so often or stay so long as to become a nuisance. [Middle English, alteration (influenced by wel, well), of Old English wilcuma, welcome guest, welcome. See g^wā- in Appendix.] — wel'come·ly adv. — wel'come·ness n. — wel'com·er n.

weld¹ (wĕld) v. weld·ed, weld·ing, welds. — v. tr. 1. To join (metals) by applying heat, sometimes with pressure and sometimes with an intermediate or filler metal having a high melting point. 2. To bring into close association or union. — v. intr. To be capable of being welded. — n. 1. The union of two metal parts by welding. 2. The joint formed by welding. [Alteration (probably influenced by WELLED, past participle of WELL¹), of WELL¹, to weld (obsolete and dialectal).] — weld'er, wel'dor n.

weld² (wĕld) also wold (wōld) n. 1. See dyer's rocket. 2. The yellow dye obtained from dyer's rocket. [Middle English welde.] weld·ment (wĕld'mənt) n. A unit composed of an assemblage of pieces welded together.

Weld (wĕld), Theodore Dwight. 1803-1895. American abolitionist whose pamphlet Slavery As It Is (1839) inspired Harriet Beecher Stowe's novel Uncle Tom's Cabin.

wel·fare (wĕl'fâr') n. 1. a. Health, happiness, and good fortune; well-being. b. Prosperity. 2. Welfare work. 3. Financial or other aid provided, especially by the government, to people in need. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a welfare hotel; welfare families. — idiom. on welfare. Receiving regular assistance from the government or private agencies because of need. [Middle English, from wel faren, to fare well, from Old English wel faran : wel, well; see WELL² + faran, to get along; see FARE.] welfare state (wĕl'fâr' stāt) n. 1. A social system whereby the state assumes primary responsibility for the welfare of its citizens, as in matters of health care, education, employment, and social security. 2. A nation in which such a system operates.

Wel·fare Island (wĕl'fâr' î'lənd) See Roosevelt Island (sense 1).

welfare work (wĕl'fâr' wûrk) n. Organized efforts by a community, an organization, or an agency to improve the socioeconomic conditions of disadvantaged groups in society. —welfare worker n.

wel·far·ism (wĕl'fâr-iz'əm) n. The set of policies, practices, and social attitudes associated with a welfare state. —wel'far·ist n.

wel·kin (wĕl'kîn) n. 1. The vault of heaven; the sky. 2. The upper air. [Middle English welken, from Old English wolcen, weolcen, cloud.]

well¹ (wĕl) n. 1. A deep hole or shaft sunk into the earth to obtain water, oil, gas, or brine. 2. A container or reservoir for a liquid, such as ink. 3. a. A place where water issues from the earth; a spring or fountain. b. A mineral spring. c. wells. A watering place; a spa. 4. An abundant source: a well of information. 5. An open space extending vertically through the floors of a building, as for stairs or ventilation. 6. Nautical. An enclosure in a ship's hold for the pumps. 7. A cistern with a perforated bottom in the hold of a fishing vessel for keeping fish alive. 8. An enclosed space for receiving and holding something, such as the wheels of an airplane when retracted. 9. Chiefly British. The central space in a law court, directly in front of the judge's bench, where the counsel or solicitor sits. — v. welled, well-ing, wells. — v. intr. 1. To rise to the surface, ready to flow: Tears welled in my eyes. 2. To rise or surge from an inner source: Anger welled up in me. — v. tr. To pour forth. [Middle English welle, from Old English welle. See wel-² in Appendix.]

well² (wĕl) adv. bet·ter (bĕt'ər), best (bĕst). 1. In a good or proper manner: behaved well. 2. Skillfully or proficiently: dances well. 3. Satisfactorily or sufficiently: slept well. 4. Successfully or effectively: gets along well with people. 5. In a comfortable or affluent manner: lived well. 6. In a manner affording benefit or gain; advantageously: married well. 7. With reason or propriety; reasonably: can't very well say no. 8. In all likelihood; indeed: You may well need your umbrella. 9. In a prudent or sensible manner: You would do well to say nothing more. 10. In a close or familiar manner: knew them well. 11. In a favorable or approving manner: spoke well of them. 12. Thoroughly; completely: well cooked; cooked well. 13. Perfectly; clearly: I well understand your intentions. 14. To a suitable or appropriate degree: well pleased. 15. To a considerable extent or degree: well over the estimate. 16. With care or attention: listened well. 17. Entirely; fully: well worth seeing. — adj. better, best. 1. In a satisfactory condition; right or proper: All is well. 2. a. Not ailing, infirm, or diseased; healthy. See Synonyms at healthy. b. Cured or healed, as a wound. 3. a. Advisable; prudent: It would be well not to ask. b. Fortunate; good: It is well that you stayed. — interj. 1. Used to introduce a remark, resume a narrative, or fill a pause during conversation. 2. Used to express surprise. —idioms. as well. 1. In addition; also: mentioned other matters as well. 2. With equal effect: I might as well go. in well with. Informal. In a position to influence or be favored by: He's in well with management. [Middle English wel, from Old English. See wel-¹ in Appendix.]

USAGE NOTE: Used as an adjective applied to people, well usually refers to a state of health, whereas good has a much wider range of senses. It has always been a first principle of grammatical criticism that there should be no difference without a distinction, and perhaps for this reason, some critics have insisted that the expression feel good cannot be used in reference to health. It is true that there is a distinction between feel well and feel good, but both can be applied to a state of health. Thus a patient suffering from a chronic disease might appropriately say to a doctor I feel good today, which implies a relative lack of physical discomfort. By contrast, I feel well today would be appropriate if the patient believes that the ailment has disappeared. See Usage Note at good.

we'll (wēl) 1. We will. 2. We shall.

well-a-day (wĕl'ə-dā') interj. & n. Archaic. Variant of wellaway.

well-ad-just-ed (wĕl'ə-jŭs'tid) adj. Having adapted or conformed suitably to new conditions: a well-adjusted new student.

Well-land (wĕl'ənd) A city of southeast Ontario, Canada, on the Welland Ship Canal, 44.4 km (27.6 mi) long, which connects Lake Erie with Lake Ontario and bypasses Niagara Falls. The current canal, completed in 1932, replaced a canal originally built between 1824 and 1833. The city is a port and an industrial center. Population, 45,448.

well-ap-point-ed (wĕl'ə-poin'tid) adj. Having a full array of suitable equipment or furnishings: a well-appointed kitchen; a well-appointed suite.

well-a-way (wĕl'ə-wā') Archaic. interj. Used to express woe or distress. — n. pl. well-a-ways. A lamentation. [Middle English, alteration (influenced by well, well, and awai, away), of Old English weilāwei, alteration (influenced by Old Scandinavian wei*, woe), of wā lā wā : wā, woe; see WOE + lā, lo; see LO.]

well-bal-anced (wĕl'bäl'ənst) adj. 1. Evenly proportioned, balanced, or regulated. 2. Mentally stable; sensible or sound.

well-be-ing (wĕl'bē'ing) n. The state of being healthy, happy, or prosperous; welfare.

well-born (wĕl'bōrn') adj. Of good lineage or stock.

well-bred (wĕl'brəd') adj. 1. Of good upbringing; well-mannered and refined. 2. Of good breed. Used of animals.

well-de-fined (wĕl'dī-fīnd') adj. 1. Having definite and distinct lines or features: a well-defined silhouette. 2. Accurately and unambiguously stated or described: a well-defined argument.

well-dis-posed (wĕl'dī-spōzd') adj. Disposed to be kindly, friendly, or sympathetic.

well-done (wĕl'dŭn') adj. Cooked all the way through: a well-done steak.

Wel-ler (wĕl'ər), Thomas Huckle. Born 1915. American microbiologist. He shared a 1954 Nobel Prize for work on the cultivation of the polio virus.

Welles (wĕlz), (George) Orson. 1915-1985. American filmmaker and actor who directed and starred in Citizen Kane (1941). His other films include Touch of Evil (1958) and The Trial (1962).

Welles (wĕlz), Gideon. 1802-1878. American editor and politician. A founder of the Republican Party (1854), he established a partisan newspaper, the Hartford Evening Press (1856), and was U.S. secretary of the navy (1861-1869) during the Civil War.

Welles (wĕlz), Sumner. 1892-1961. American diplomat in Latin America. He helped formulate President Franklin D. Roosevelt's Good Neighbor Policy (1933).

Welles-ley (wĕlz'lē) A town of eastern Massachusetts west-southwest of Boston. It is a residential community and the seat of Wellesley College (established 1870). Population, 26,615.

Welles-ley (wĕlz'lē), First Marquis Title of Richard Colley Wellesley. 1760-1842. British politician and colonial administrator who expanded the British Empire in India and sought reconciliation between Protestants and Catholics in Ireland.

well-favored (wĕl'fā'vərd) adj. Handsome; attractive.

well-fed (wĕl'fĕd') adj. 1. Adequately or properly nourished. 2. Overfed; fat.

well-fixed (wĕl'fĭkst') adj. Informal. Financially secure; well-to-do.

well-found (wĕl'fəʊnd') adj. Properly furnished or equipped.

well-founded (wĕl'fəʊnd'ɪd) adj. Based on sound judgment, reasoning, or evidence; adequately substantiated: well-founded suspicions.

well-groomed (wĕl'grōʊmd') adj. 1. Attentive to details of dress; meticulously neat. 2. Carefully tended or curried: a well-groomed horse. 3. Trim and tidy: a well-groomed lawn.

well-ground-ed (wĕl'grəʊnd'ɪd) adj. 1. Adequately versed in a subject. 2. Having a sound basis; well-founded.

well-handled (wĕl'hænd'ɪd) adj. 1. Managed well. 2. Showing signs of much handling.

well-head (wĕl'hĕd') n. 1. The source of a well or stream. 2. A principal source; a fountainhead. 3. The structure built over a well.

well-heeled (wĕl'hĕld') adj. Having plenty of money; prosperous.

Wel-ling-ton (wĕl'ɪŋ-tən) The capital of New Zealand, on an inlet of Cook Strait in extreme southern North Island. It was founded in 1840 and supplanted Auckland as capital in 1865. Population, 133,200.

Wel-ling-ton (wĕl'ɪŋ-tən), First Duke of Title of Arthur Wellesley. Known as "the Iron Duke." 1769-1852. British general and politician. Commander of British troops during the Peninsular War (1808-1814), he defeated Napoleon at Waterloo (1815), thus ending the Napoleonic Wars. As prime minister (1828-1830) he passed the Catholic Emancipation Act (1829).

Wellington boot (wĕl'ɪŋ-tən bōōt) n. 1. A boot extending to the top of the knee in front but cut low in back. 2. Chiefly British. A waterproof boot of rubber or sometimes leather reaching to below the knee and worn in wet or muddy conditions. [After First Duke of WELLINGTON.]

well-in-ten-tioned (wĕl'ɪn-tĕn'shənd) adj. Marked by or having good intentions: a well-intentioned but clumsy waiter; well-intentioned criticism.

well-knit (wĕl'nīt') adj. Strongly knit, especially strongly and firmly constructed: a well-knit body; a well-knit theatrical production.

well-known (wĕl'nōn') adj. 1. Widely known; familiar or famous: a well-known performer. 2. Fully known: well-known facts.

well-man-nered (wĕl'män'ərd) adj. Polite; courteous.

well-mean-ing (wĕl'mē'nɪŋ) adj. Well-intentioned.

well-meant (wĕl'mĕnt') adj. Kindly or honestly intended: well-meant admonitions.

well-ness (wĕl'nɪs) n. Usage Problem. The condition of good physical and mental health, especially when maintained by proper diet, exercise, and habits. — n. attributive. Usage Problem. Often used to modify another noun: wellness programs; a wellness clinic.

USAGE NOTE: It can be argued that wellness serves a useful function as a means of describing a state that includes not just physical health but fitness and emotional well-being. The word is first recorded in 1654 but has never been given the acceptance of its antonym illness. In the most recent survey 68 percent of the Usage Panel found the word unacceptable in the sentence A number of corporations have implemented employee wellness programs, aimed at enhancing spiritual values, emotional stability, fitness, and nutrition.

well-nigh (wĕl'nī') adv. Nearly; almost.

well-off (wĕl'ôf', -ōf') adj. 1. Well-to-do. 2. In fortunate circumstances. [OFF, circumstanced, probably from the phrase to come well off, to emerge from in good circumstances.]

well-read (wĕl'rĕd') adj. Knowledgeable through having read extensively.

well-rounded (wĕl'roun'dĭd) adj. 1. Comprehensively developed and well-balanced in a range or variety of aspects: a well-rounded scholar; a well-rounded curriculum. 2. Having a fully developed or shapely figure.

Wells (wĕlz), Henry. 1805-1878. American delivery-company operator who founded the American Express Company (1850) and organized Wells, Fargo and Company (1852) with William Fargo.

Wells (wĕlz), H(erb)ert G(eorge). 1866-1946. British writer. Particularly known for his science-fiction novels, such as The Time Machine (1895) and The War of the Worlds (1898), he also wrote popular accounts of history and science.

Wells (wĕlz), Horace. 1815-1848. American dentist who pioneered the use of nitrous oxide as an anesthetic.

Wells (wĕlz), Ida Bell. 1862-1931. American journalist and reformer who campaigned nationwide against lynching and founded the Negro Fellowship League in 1910.

well-spo-ken (wĕl'spō'kən) adj. 1. Chosen or expressed with aptness or propriety. 2. Courteous in speech.

well-spring (wĕl'sprīng') n. 1. The source of a stream or spring. 2. A source: a wellspring of ideas.

well-thought-of (wĕl-thōt'ŭv', -ōv') adj. Regarded with respect; esteemed.

well-tim-bered (wĕl'tīm'bərd) adj. 1. Having a good framework or structure. 2. Covered with a good growth of timber.

well-timed (wĕl'tīmd') adj. Occurring or done at an opportune time: a well-timed remark. See Synonyms at opportune.

well-to-do (wĕl'tə-dō) adj. Prosperous; affluent; well-off. — n. (used with a pl. verb). Affluent or wealthy people: Demonstrators protested that the tax bill favored the well-to-do. [From the phrase well to do in the world : WELL², prosperous, affluent + TO, for + DO¹, doing.]

well-turned (wĕl'tûrnd') adj. 1. Shapely: a well-turned ankle. 2. Concisely or aptly expressed: a well-turned phrase. 3. Expertly rounded or turned: a well-turned bedpost.

well-wish-er (wĕl'wīsh'ər) n. One who extends good wishes to another. — well'-wish'ing adj. & n.

well-worn (wĕl'wōrn', -wōrn') adj. 1. Showing signs of much wear or use. 2. Repeated too often; trite or hackneyed. 3. Carried or worn in a becoming manner: well-worn fame.

Wels (vēls) A city of northern Austria southwest of Linz. On a site occupied since ancient times, it is an agricultural market and a manufacturing center. Population, 51,060.

Wels-bach burner (wĕlz'bāk' būr'nər, -bāk') A trademark used for a lamp consisting of a gas burner and a gauze mantle impregnated with cerium and thorium compounds that becomes incandescent when heated by the burner.

welsh (wĕlsh, wĕch) also welch (wĕch) v. intr. welshed also welched, welsh-ing also welch-ing, welsh-es also welch-es. Informal. 1. To swindle a person by not paying a debt or wager. 2. To fail to fulfill an obligation. [Origin unknown.] — welsh'er n.

Welsh (wĕlsh, wĕch) adj. Abbr. W. Of or relating to Wales or its people, language, or culture. — n. 1. The people of Wales. 2. The Celtic language of Wales. In this sense, also called Cymric [Middle English Walische, from Old English Wælisc, from Wealh, Welshman, Celt, perhaps of Celtic origin.]

Welsh corgi (wĕlsh kôr'gĕ) n. Either of two breeds of dog that originated in Wales, having a long body, short legs, and a foxlike head.

Welsh-man (wĕlsh'mən, wĕlch'-) n. A man who is a native or inhabitant of Wales.

Welsh rabbit (wĕlsh rāb'īt) n. A dish made of melted cheese, milk or cream, seasonings, and sometimes ale, served hot over toast or crackers.

Welsh rare-bit (wĕlsh rār'bit) n. Welsh rabbit.

Welsh springer spaniel (wĕlsh sprĭng'ər spān'yəl) n. Any of a breed of medium-sized hunting dog that originated in Wales and has a silky red and white coat.

Welsh terrier (wĕlsh tĕr'ĕ-ər) n. Any of a breed of terrier originating in Wales and having a wiry black and tan coat.

Welsh-wom-an (wĕlsh'wōom'ən, wĕlch'-) n. A woman who is a native or inhabitant of Wales.

welt (wĕlt) n. 1. A strip, as of leather or other material, stitched into a shoe between the sole and the upper. 2. A tape or covered cord sewn into a seam as reinforcement or trimming; welting. 3. a. A ridge or bump on the skin caused by a lash or blow or sometimes by an allergic reaction. b. A lash or blow producing such a mark. — v. tr. welt-ed, welt-ing, welts. 1. To reinforce or trim with a welt or welting. 2. To beat severely; flog. 3. To raise welts or a welt on. [Middle English welte.]

Welt-an-schau-ung (vēlt'än'shou'ōōng) n. pl. Welt-an-schau-ungs or Welt-an-schau-ung-en (-ōōng-ən). A comprehensive philosophy of the world or of human life. [German : Welt, world (from Middle High German wĕrlt, from Old High German weralt); see wī-ro- in Appendix + Anschauung, view (from Middle High German anschouwunge, observation, mystical contemplation : an-, on, at from Old High German ana-; see anlage + schouwunge, look from schouwen, to look at, from Old High German scouwōn); see keu- in Appendix.]

wel-ter (wĕl'tər) n. 1. A confused mass; a jumble: a welter of papers and magazines. 2. Confusion; turmoil. — v. intr. wel-tered, wel-ter-ing, wel-ters. 1. To wallow, roll, or toss about, as in mud or high seas. 2. To lie soaked in a liquid. 3. To roll and surge, as the sea. [From Middle English welteren, to toss about, as in high seas, from Middle Low German, or Middle Dutch; see wel-2 in Appendix.]

wel-ter-weight (wĕl'tər-wāt') n. Sports. 1. A professional boxer weighing between 135 and 147 pounds (approximately 61-66.5 kilograms), heavier than a lightweight and lighter than a middleweight. 2. A contestant in various other sports in a similar weight class. [From welter, heavyweight boxer, perhaps from WELT.]

Welt-schmerz (vēlt'shmērts') n. Sadness over the evils of the world, especially as an expression of romantic pessimism. [German : Welt, world; see WELTAN-SCHAUUNG + Schmerz, pain (from Middle High German smērze, from Old High German smerzo).]

Wel-ty (wēl'tē), Eudora. Born 1909. American writer known for her tales of rural Southern life. Her works include collections of stories, such as The Golden Apples (1949), and novels, notably The Ponder Heart (1954).

wen¹ (wĕn) n. A harmless cyst, especially on the scalp or face, containing the fatty secretion of a sebaceous gland. [Middle English, from Old English. See wen² in Appendix.]

wen² (wĕn) n. Variant of wynn.

We-natch-ee (wə-näch'ē) A city of central Washington on the Columbia River north-northeast of Yakima. It is a trade and processing center in a fertile fruit-growing valley noted for apples. Population, 21,756.

Wen-ces-laus (wĕn'sī-slōs') or Wen-zel (vēn'tsəl), 1361-1419. Holy Roman emperor and king of Germany (1378-1400) and Bohemia (1378-1419). He was deposed as emperor and king by the German electors.

wench (wĕnch) n. 1. A young woman or girl, especially a peasant girl. 2. A woman servant. 3. A wanton woman; a prostitute. — v. intr. wenched, wench-ing, wench-es. 1. To engage in promiscuous sex with women. Used of a man. 2. To consort with women prostitutes. Used of a man. [Middle English, short for wenchel, child, from Old English wencel.] — wench'er n.

Wen-chow (wĕn'chou', wŭn'jō') See Wenzhou.

wend (wĕnd) v. wend-ed, wend-ing, wends. — v. tr. To proceed on or along; go: wend one's way home. — v. intr. To go one's way; proceed. [Middle English wenden, from Old English wendan.]

Wend (wĕnd) n. One of a Slavic people inhabiting Saxony and Brandenburg. Also called Sorb, Sorbian. [German Wende, from Middle High German Winde, Wende, from Old High German Winid. See wen¹ in Appendix.] — Wend adj.

Wend-ish (wĕn'dish) adj. Of or relating to the Wends or their language. — n. The Slavic language of the Wends. Also called Sorbian went (wĕnt) v. 1. Past tense of go¹. 2. Archaic. A past tense and a past participle of wend. [Middle English, from Old English wende, past tense and past participle of wendan, to go.]

wen-tle-trap (wĕnt'l-trăp') n. Any of various marine snails of the family Epitoniidae, having a tapering, usually white spiral shell. [Dutch wenteltrap, from Middle Dutch wendeltrappe : wendel, winding (from wenden, to wind) + trappe, stairs.]

Went-worth (wĕnt'wŭrth'), William Charles. 1793?-1872. Australian patriot who was active in the establishment of a representative government for Australia.

Wen·zel (vēn'tsəl) See Wenceslaus.

Wen·zhou (wŭn'jō') also Wen·chow (wĕn'chou', wŭn'jō') A city of eastern China near the East China Sea south of Shanghai. Founded in the fourth century A.D., it was opened to foreign trade in 1876. Population, 325,000.

wept (wĕpt) v. Past tense and past participle of weep.

were (wîr) v. 1. Second person singular and plural and first and third person plural past indicative of be. 2. Past subjunctive of be. See Usage Note at if. See Usage Note at wish. [Middle English were, weren, from Old English wære, wæren, wæron. See wes-¹ in Appendix.]

we're (wîr) We are.

were-gild (wîr'gîld') n. Variant of wergeld.

were-n't (wûrnt, wûr'ənt) Were not.

were-wolf also wer-wolf (wâr'wōolf', wîr'-, wûr'-) n. A person transformed into a wolf or capable of assuming the form of a wolf. [Middle English, from Old English werewolf: wer, man; see wî-ro- in Appendix + wulf, wolf; see WOLF.]

Wer-fel (vēr'fəl), Franz. 1890-1945. Austrian writer whose works include the novel Song of Bernadette (1941) and the play Goat Song (1921).

wer-geld (wûr'gĕld') also wer-gild or were-gild (-gĭld') n. In Anglo-Saxon and Germanic law, a price set upon a person's life on the basis of rank and paid as compensation by the family of a slayer to the kindred or lord of a slain person to free the culprit of further punishment or obligation and to prevent a blood feud. [Middle English wargeld, from Old English wergeld: wer, man; see wî-ro- in Appendix + geld, payment.]

Wer-ner (wûr'nĕr, vēr'-), Alfred. 1866-1919. Swiss chemist. He won a 1913 Nobel Prize for formulating the coordination theory of valence.

wer-ner-ite (wûr'nĕ-rīt') n. See scapolite. [After Abraham Gottlob Werner (1750-1817), German mineralogist.]

Wer-ner's syndrome (vēr'nĕrz sĭn'drōm') n. A hereditary disease of young adults that is characterized by short stature, early graying, cataracts, vascular disorders, and generally premature aging and death. [After Carl W.O. Werner, 20th-century German physician.]

Wer-nick-e's area (vēr'nĭ-kĕz âr'ĕ-ə, -kĕz) n. An area in the posterior temporal lobe of the left hemisphere of the brain involved in the recognition of spoken words. [After Karl Wernicke (1848-1905), German neurologist.]

Wernicke's encephalopathy (vēr'nĭ-kĕz ĕn-sĕf'ə-lōp'ə-thĕ) n. A disease of the brain caused by a deficiency of thiamine, usually associated with chronic alcoholism and characterized by loss of muscular coordination, abnormal eye movements, confusion, and forgetfulness. [After Karl Wernicke (1848-1905), German neurologist.]

Wer-ra (vēr'ə) A river rising in central Germany and flowing about 291 km (181 mi) generally northward to join the Fulda River and form the Weser.

wert (wûrt) v. Archaic. A second person singular past indicative and past subjunctive of be. [Blend of WAST, and WERE.]

Wert-mül-ler (vērt'myōō'lər), Lina. Born c. 1926. Italian filmmaker whose works, such as The Seduction of Mimi (1972) and Swept Away (1974), often concern the struggles of the common worker.

wer-wolf (wâr'woolf', wîr'-, wûr'-) n. Variant of werewolf.

We-sel (vā'zəl) A city of west-central Germany on the Rhine River northwest of Essen. First mentioned in the eighth century, it joined the Hanseatic League in 1407 and passed to Brandenburg in the mid-1600's. Wesel was almost totally destroyed by air raids during World War II. Population, 54,895.

We-ser (vā'zər) A river, about 483 km (300 mi) long, of central and northwest Germany, flowing generally northward to the North Sea through a long estuary.

wes-kit (wēs'kît) n. A waistcoat; a vest. [Variant of WAISTCOAT.]

Wes-la-co (wēs'lə-kō') A city of extreme southern Texas northwest of Brownsville. It is a processing and shipping center. Population, 21,877.

Wes-ley (wēs'lē, wēz'-), John. 1703-1791. British religious leader who founded Methodism (1738). His brother Charles (1707-1788) wrote thousands of hymns, including "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing."

Wes-ley-an (wēs'lē-ən, wēz'-) adj. Of or relating to John or Charles Wesley or to Methodism. — n. A Methodist. — Wes'ley-an-ism n.

Wes-sex (wēs'iks) A region and ancient Anglo-Saxon kingdom of southern England. According to tradition, the kingdom was founded by the Saxon conquerors of Britain and at its greatest extent occupied the territory between the English Channel and the Thames River.

west (wĕst) n. Abbr. W, W., w, w. 1. a. The cardinal point on the mariner's compass 270° clockwise from due north and directly opposite east. b. The direction opposite to the direction of the earth's axial rotation. 2. An area or a region lying in the west. 3. Often West. a. The western part of the earth, especially Europe and the Western Hemisphere. b. The western part of a region or country. 4. Often West. a. A former region of the United States west of the Allegheny Mountains. b. The region of the United States west of the Mississippi River. c. The noncommunist countries of Europe and the Americas. — adj. Abbr. W, W., w, w. 1. To, toward, of, facing, or in the west. 2. Originating in or coming from the west: a gentle west wind. — adv. Abbr. W, W., w, w. In, from, or toward the west. [Middle English, from Old English. See wes-pero- in Appendix.]

West (wĕst), Benjamin. 1738-1820. American painter. The first American to study art in Italy (1760-1763), he settled in England and quickly became a prominent artist. The Death of General Wolfe (1770) is among his most important works.

- West (wĕst), Mae. 1892?-1980. American actress known for her sultry stage persona. Her films include I'm No Angel (1933) and My Little Chickadee (1940).
- West (wĕst), Nathanael. Pen name of Nathan Weinstein 1903-1940. American writer known for his novels of dark comedy, such as Miss Lonelyhearts (1933) and The Day of the Locust (1939).
- West (wĕst), Dame Rebecca. Pen name of Cicily Isabel Fairfield Andrews. 1892-1983. British writer and critic whose works include psychological novels, such as The Judge (1922), critical studies, as of Henry James (1916), a historical study of Yugoslavia (1942), and several reports on the Nuremberg trials.
- West Af-ri-ca (wĕst ăf'ri-kə) A region of western Africa between the Sahara Desert and the Gulf of Guinea. It was largely controlled by colonial powers until the 20th century. —West Af'ri-can adj. & n.
- West Al-lis (wĕst ăl'is) A city of southeast Wisconsin, a residential and industrial suburb of Milwaukee. Population, 63,221.
- West Atlantic (wĕst ăt-lăn'tik) n. The westernmost branch of the Niger-Congo language family.
- West Bab-y-lon (wĕst băb'ə-lən, -lŏn') A community of southeast New York on southern Long Island west of Bay Shore. It is mainly residential. Population, 32,500.
- West Bank (wĕst bāngk) A disputed territory of southwest Asia between Israel and Jordan west of the Jordan River. Part of Jordan after 1949, it has been occupied by Israel since the 1967 Arab-Israeli War.
- West Bend (wĕst bĕnd) A city of southeast Wisconsin north-northwest of Milwaukee. It is an industrial center in a dairy region. Population, 23,916.
- West Ber-lin (wĕst bər-lin') See Berlin. —West Ber-lin'er n.
- West Bes-kids (wĕst bĕs'kīdz, bĕs-kĕdz') See Beskids.
- west-bound (wĕst'bound') adj. Abbr. w.b. Going toward the west.
- West Briton (wĕst brīt'n) n. Offensive. A native Irishman or Irishwoman whose sympathies lie toward England: “To say you'd write for a rag like that. I didn't think you were a West Briton” (James Joyce). —West British adj.
- west by north (wĕst bī nŏrth) n. Abbr. WbN The direction or point on the mariner's compass halfway between due west and west-northwest, or 78°45' west of due north. — adv. & adj. Abbr. WbN Toward or from west by north.
- west by south (wĕst bī south) n. Abbr. WbS The direction or point on the mariner's compass halfway between due west and west-southwest, or 101°15' west of due north. — adv. & adj. Abbr. WbS Toward or from west by south.
- West-ches-ter (wĕst'chĕs'tər) A village of northeast Illinois, a suburb of Chicago. Population, 17,301.
- West Ches-ter (wĕst chĕs'tər) A borough of southeast Pennsylvania west of Philadelphia. It is primarily residential with some light industry. Population, 18,041.

West Coast (wĕst kōst) A region of the western United States bordering on the Pacific Ocean and including Washington, Oregon, and California.

West Co·vi·na (wĕst kō-vē'nə) A city of southern California east of Los Angeles. It is mainly residential. Population, 96,086.

West Des Moines (wĕst dī moin') A city of south-central Iowa, a manufacturing suburb of Des Moines. Population, 31,702.

West End (wĕst ěnd) The western section of central London, England, noted for its fashionable districts and its shops and theaters. It includes Mayfair and Hyde Park.

west·er (wĕs'tər) n. A strong wind coming from the west. — v. intr.

west·ered, west·er·ing, west·ers. To move westward. Used of the sun, the moon, or a star. [Middle English westren, from west, west. See WEST.]

west·er·ly (wĕs'tər-lē) adj. 1. Situated toward the west. 2. Coming or being from the west: westerly winds. — n. pl. west·er·lies. A storm or wind coming from the west. [Middle English, from wester, western, from Old English westra. See wes·pero- in Appendix.] — west'·er·ly adv.

Wes·ter·ly (wĕs'tər-lē) A town of extreme southwest Rhode Island on the border of Connecticut east of New London. It was first settled in 1648 and has a textile industry dating to 1814. Population, 21,605.

Wes·ter·marck (wĕs'tər-märk'), Edward Alexander. 1862-1939. Finnish anthropologist who asserted that monogamous marriage and the nuclear family were the fundamental elements of society even in primitive times.

west·ern (wĕs'tərn) adj. Abbr. W, W., w, w. 1. Situated in, toward, or facing the west. 2. Coming from the west: western breezes. 3. Native to or growing in the west. 4. Often Western. Of, relating to, or characteristic of western regions or the West. 5. Western. Of, relating to, or descended from those Christian churches that use or formerly used Latin as their liturgical language. — n. Often Western. A novel, film, or television or radio program about frontier life in the American West. [Middle English, from Old English westerne. See wes·pero- in Appendix.] — west'ern·ness n.

Western Bug (wĕs'tərn bōōg, bōōk) See Bug (sense 1).

Western Dvi·na (wĕs'tərn dvē-nä') See Dvina (sense 2).

Western Empire (wĕs'tərn ěm'pīr') or Western Ro·man Empire (wĕs'tərn rō'mən ěm'pīr') The western section of the Roman Empire, first set apart in A.D. 286 by Emperor Diocletian and later (395) formalized after the death of Theodosius I. It comprised Italy, Spain, Gaul, Britain, Illyricum, and northern Africa and lasted until 476.

west·ern·er also West·ern·er (wĕs'tər-nər) n. A native or inhabitant of the west, especially the western United States.

- Western Eu-rope (wěs'tərn yōōr'əp) The countries of western Europe, especially those that are allied with the United States and Canada in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (established 1949 and usually known as NATO).
- Western Ghats (wěs'tərn gôts) See Ghats.
- Western Hemisphere (wěs'tərn hēm'ī-sfīr') The half of the earth comprising North America, Mexico, Central America, and South America.
- western honey mesquite (wěs'tərn hūn'ē mē-skēt') n. See mesquite (n., sense 1a). [From the high sugar content of its pods.]
- Western Islands (wěs'tərn ī'ləndz) See Hebrides.
- west-ern-ize (wěs'tər-nīz') v. tr. west-ern-ized, west-ern-iz-ing, west-ern-iz-es. To convert to the customs of Western civilization.
—west'ern-i-za'tion (wěs'tər-nī-zā'shən) n.
- west-ern-most (wěs'tərn-mōst') adj. Farthest west.
- western omelet (wěs'tərn ɔm'ə-līt) n. An omelet cooked with diced ham, chopped green pepper, and onion.
- Western Reserve (wěs'tərn rī-zûrv') A region of northeast Ohio bordering on Lake Erie. It was retained by Connecticut after other western claims were ceded to the U.S. Congress in 1786. Much of the area was given or sold to immigrants from Connecticut (1786-1800), and the remainder of the territory was ceded to Ohio in 1800 and became part of the Northwest Territory.
- Western Ro-man Empire (wěs'tərn rō'mən ěm'pīr') See Western Empire.
- western saddle (wěs'tərn sād'l) n. See stock saddle.
- Western Sa-ha-ra (wěs'tərn sə-hār'ə, -hār'ə, -hă'rə) also Span-ish Sahara (spän'ish) A region of northwest Africa on the Atlantic coast. First visited by Portuguese navigators in 1434, it was claimed as a protectorate by Spain in 1884. The territory was partly annexed in 1976 and partly occupied in 1979 by Morocco.
- Western Sa-mo-a (wěs'tərn sə-mō'ə) An island country of the southern Pacific Ocean comprising the western Samoa Islands. The islands were awarded to Germany in 1899 but came under the control of New Zealand in 1914. Western Samoa achieved independence in 1962. Apia, on Upolu Island, is the capital. Population, 156,349.
- western sandwich (wěs'tərn sänd'wīch) n. A sandwich having a western omelet as a filling.
- Western Shoshone (wěs'tərn shō-shō'nē) n. See Shoshone (n., sense 1b).
- western tanager (wěs'tərn tăn'ī-jər) n. A tanager (Piranga ludoviciana) of western North America, the male of which is yellow with a red head and a black back.

Western Wall (wĕs'tərn wōl) n. Judaism. A remnant of the western wall of the second Temple in Jerusalem, traditionally a site of pilgrimage, lamentation, and prayer. Also called Wailing Wall

Wes-ter-vil-le (wĕs'tər-vīl') A city of central Ohio, an industrial suburb of Columbus. Population, 30,269.

West-field (wĕst'fēld') 1. A city of southwest Massachusetts, a residential and industrial suburb of Springfield. Population, 38,372. 2. A town of northeast-central New Jersey southwest of Newark. It is a residential community. Population, 28,870.

West Fri-sian Islands (wĕst frīzh'ən ī'ləndz, frē'zhən) See Frisian Islands.

West Germanic (wĕst jər-män'ik) n. A subdivision of the Germanic languages that includes High German, Low German, Yiddish, Dutch, Afrikaans, Flemish, Frisian, and English.

West Ger-ma·ny (wĕst jûr'mə-nē) A former country of central Europe bordering on the North Sea. It was part of Germany until 1945, when the country was divided into U.S., French, British, and Soviet zones of occupation. In 1949 the three western zones were reconstituted as West Germany; the Soviet zone became East Germany. West Germany was reunified with East Germany in October 1990.

—West Ger'man adj. & n.

West Hart-ford (wĕst hært'fərd) A town of central Connecticut, a residential suburb of Hartford. Population, 60,110.

West Ha-ven (wĕst hā'vən) A city of southern Connecticut, a residential suburb of New Haven. Population, 54,021.

West Hemp-stead (wĕst hĕmp'stĕd, hĕm'-) An unincorporated community of southeast New York on western Long Island. It is mainly residential. Population, 26,500.

West Highland white terrier (wĕst hī'lənd hwīt tĕr'ē-ər) n. A small white terrier with upright ears and tail, developed in Scotland from Cairn, Scottish, and Skye terriers.

West Hol-ly-wood (wĕst hōl'ē-wōd') A community of southern California northeast of Beverly Hills. It is mainly residential. Population, 36,118.

West In-dies (wĕst ɪn'dēz) Abbr. W.I. An archipelago between southeast North America and northern South America, separating the Caribbean Sea from the Atlantic Ocean and including the Greater Antilles, the Lesser Antilles, and the Bahama Islands. Several of the islands were originally sighted and explored by Columbus during his voyages of 1492-1504. The first permanent European settlement was made by the Spanish on Hispaniola in 1496. During the colonial period the English, French, and Dutch also laid claim to various islands, and the United States acquired Puerto Rico and part of the Virgin Islands in the late 19th and early 20th centuries. —West In'di-an adj. & n.

West Indies Federation (wĕst ĭn'dēz fĕd'ə-rā'shən) A group of ten former British colonies in the West Indies, including Jamaica, Trinidad and Tobago, and Barbados. It was established in 1958 and slated for independence in 1962 but broke up in May 1962 because of economic disagreements among the members. Some of the islands later formed the British-sponsored West Indies Associated States, which was gradually disbanded as the islands achieved independence in the 1970's and early 1980's.

west-ing (wĕs'tĭng) n. 1. The difference in longitude between two positions as a result of a movement to the west. 2. Progress toward the west. [From WEST.]

West-ing-house (wĕs'tĭng-hous'), George. 1846-1914. American engineer and manufacturer who received more than 400 patents for his many inventions, including the air brake (1869), an automatic railroad signaling device (1882), and a practical method for transmitting electric power. He founded the Westinghouse Electric Company in 1886.

West Jor-dan (wĕst jōr'dn) A city of northern Utah, a suburb of Salt Lake City. Population, 42,892.

West La-fay-ette (wĕst lä'fē-ĕt', läf'ē-) A city of western Indiana on the Wabash River opposite Lafayette. It is the seat of Purdue University (established 1869). Population, 25,907.

West-lake (wĕst'lāk') A city of northeast Ohio, a manufacturing suburb of Cleveland. Population, 27,018.

West-land (wĕst'lænd) A city of southeast Michigan, a suburb of Detroit. Population, 84,724.

West Mem-ph-is (wĕst mĕm'fĭs) A city of eastern Arkansas near the Mississippi River west of Memphis, Tennessee. It is a shipping and processing center. Population, 28,259.

West Mif-flin (wĕst mĭf'lĭn) A borough of southwest Pennsylvania, an industrial suburb of Pittsburgh on the Monongahela River. Population, 23,644.

West-min-ster (wĕst'mĭn'stər) 1. or Officially City of Westminster. A borough of Greater London in southeast England on the Thames River. It includes the principal offices of the British government, especially along Whitehall and Downing streets, and such famous structures as Westminster Abbey and Buckingham Palace. 2. A city of southern California, a residential suburb of Long Beach. Population, 78,118. 3. A city of north-central Colorado, a residential and industrial suburb of Denver. Population, 74,625.

West-mont (wĕst'mōnt') 1. A community of southern California, a residential suburb between Los Angeles and Long Beach. Population, 31,044. 2. A village of northeast Illinois, a residential suburb of Chicago. Population, 21,228.

West-more-land (wĕst-mōr'lænd, -mōr'-), William Childs. Born 1914. American general who was the senior commander of American troops in Vietnam (1964-1968).

West-mount (wĕst'mount') A city of southern Quebec, Canada, a residential suburb of Montreal on Montreal Island. Population, 20,480.

West New York (wĕst nōō yōrk', nyōō) A town of northeast New Jersey on the Hudson River opposite Manhattan. It is a residential community with varied light industries. Population, 38,125.

west-north-west (wĕst'nōrth'wĕst', -nōr-wĕst') n. Abbr. WNW The direction or point on the mariner's compass halfway between due west and northwest, or 67°30' west of due north. — adj. Abbr. WNW To, toward, of, facing, or in the west-northwest. — adv. Abbr. WNW In, from, or toward the west-northwest.

Wes-ton (wĕs'tən), Edward. 1886-1958. American photographer whose stark, realistic images of landscapes and nudes influenced photographic art.

Wes-ton-su-per-Mare (wĕs'tən-sōō'pər-mâr') A municipal borough of southwest England on the Bristol Channel west-southwest of Bristol. It is a popular seaside resort. Population, 57,900.

West Or-ange (wĕst ôr'inj, ôr'-) A town of northeast New Jersey, a residential suburb of Newark. Population, 39,103.

West Pak-i-stan (wĕst pāk'ī-stān', pā'kī-stān') A former region of Pakistan (after 1947) separated by about 1,609 km (1,000 mi) from East Pakistan, formerly East Bengal. In 1971 East Pakistan declared its independence as Bangladesh, and West Pakistan became the sole territory governed by Pakistan.

West Palm Beach (wĕst pām bĕch) A city of southeast Florida opposite Palm Beach. It is a winter resort and research center. Henry M. Flagler developed the city as a commercial center for Palm Beach in 1893. Population, 67,643.

West Pen-sa-co-la (wĕst pĕn'sə-kō'lə) A community of northwest Florida, a suburb of Pensacola in the Florida Panhandle. Population, 22,107.

West-pha-lia (wĕst-fāl'yə, -fāl'lē-ə) A historical region and former duchy of west-central Germany east of the Rhine River. The duchy was created in the 12th century and was administered for many centuries by ecclesiastical princes, especially the archbishop of Cologne. The Peace of Westphalia (1648) marked the end of the Thirty Years' War. Napoleon seized the area in 1807 and designated a portion of it as the kingdom of Westphalia, to be ruled by his brother Jérôme. The region became part of Prussia after 1815. —West-pha'lian adj. & n.

West Point (wĕst point) A U.S. military installation in southeast New York on the western bank of the Hudson River north of New York City. It has been a military post since 1778 and the seat of the U.S. Military Academy since 1802.

West-port (wĕst'pōrt', -pōrt') A town of southwest Connecticut on Long Island Sound. First settled in 1645, it is a residential community and summer resort. Population, 24,410.

West Prus-sia (wĕst prūsh'ə) A historical region of northeast Germany between Pomerania and East Prussia south of the Baltic Sea. Most of the territory was awarded to Poland in 1919 but reannexed by Germany in 1939. In 1945 West Prussia again became part of Poland.

West Saint Paul (wĕst sānt pōl') A city of southeast Minnesota, an industrial suburb of St. Paul. Population, 19,248.

West Saxon (wĕst sāk'sən) n. 1. The dialect of Old English used in southern England that was the chief literary dialect of England before the Norman Conquest. 2. One of the Saxons inhabiting Wessex during the centuries before the Norman Conquest.

West Sen·e·ca (wĕst sĕn'ī-kə) An unincorporated community of northwest New York, a suburb of Buffalo. Population, 47,866.

West Side (wĕst sīd) The western part of Manhattan Island in New York City bordering on the Hudson River. It includes a theater and entertainment district and many residential areas.

west-south-west (wĕst'south'wĕst', -sou-wĕst') n. Abbr. WSW The direction or point on the mariner's compass halfway between due west and southwest, or 112°30' west of due north. — adj. Abbr. WSW To, toward, of, facing, or in the west-southwest. — adv. Abbr. WSW In, from, or toward the west-southwest.

West Spring·field (wĕst sprīng'fīld') 1. A town of southwest Massachusetts, a manufacturing suburb of Springfield. Population, 27,537. 2. A community of northeast Virginia, a residential suburb of Alexandria. Population, 28,126.

West Van·cou·ver (wĕst vān-kōō'vər) A city of southwest British Columbia, Canada, a suburb of Vancouver. Population, 35,728.

West Vir·gin·ia (wĕst vər-jīn'ya) Abbr. WV, W.Va. A state of the east-central United States. It was admitted as the 35th state in 1863. West Virginia was part of Virginia until the area refused to endorse the ordinance of secession in 1861. Charleston is the capital and the largest city. Population, 1,801,625. — West Vir·gin'ian adj. & n.

west·ward (wĕst'wərd) adv. & adj. Toward, to, or in the west. — n. A westward direction, point, or region. — west'ward·ly adv., adj. — west'wards adv.

West War·wick (wĕst wōr'īk, wōr'wīk) A town of east-central Rhode Island south-southwest of Providence. Textile manufacturing is important to its economy. Population, 29,268.

wet (wĕt) adj. wet·ter, wet·test. 1. Covered or soaked with a liquid, such as water. 2. Not yet dry or firm: wet paint. 3. Stored or preserved in liquid.

4. Used or prepared with water or other liquids. 5. a. Rainy, humid, or foggy: wet weather. b. Characterized by frequent or heavy precipitation: a wet climate.

6. Informal. Allowing the sale of alcoholic beverages: a wet county. — n.

1. Something that wets; moisture. 2. Rainy or snowy weather: go out into the wet. 3. Informal. One who supports the legality of the production and sale of alcoholic beverages. 4. wets. Chicago. French fries served with gravy. — v. wet or wet-ted, wet-ting, wets. — v. tr. 1. To make wet; dampen: wet a sponge. 2. To make (a bed or one's clothes) wet by urinating. — v. intr. To become wet. — idioms. all wet. Slang. Entirely mistaken. wet behind the ears. Inexperienced; green. wet (one's) whistle. Informal. To take a drink. [Middle English, from Old English wæt. See wed¹ in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: wet, damp, moist, dank, humid. These adjectives mean covered with or saturated with liquid. Wet describes not only what is covered or soaked (a wet sidewalk; a wet sponge) but also what is not yet dry (wet paint). Damp and moist both mean slightly wet, but damp often implies an unpleasant clamminess: a cold, damp cellar; a moist breeze. Dank emphasizes disagreeable, often unhealthy wetness: a dank cave; dank tropical forests. Humid refers to an unpleasantly high degree of moisture in the atmosphere: hot, humid weather.

wet-back (wět'băk') n. Offensive Slang. Used as a disparaging term for a Mexican, especially a laborer who crosses the U.S. border illegally. [From the fact that the Rio Grande is a common entry point.]

wet blanket (wět bläng'kīt) n. Informal. One that discourages enjoyment or enthusiasm.

wet cell (wět sěl) n. Electricity. A primary cell having a liquid electrolyte.

wet dream (wět drēm) n. An erotic dream accompanied by ejaculation of semen.

wet fly (wět flī) n. An artificial fly used in fishing that floats beneath the water's surface when cast.

weth-er (wēth'ər) n. A castrated ram. [Middle English, from Old English. See wet² in Appendix.]

Weth-ers-field (wēth'ərz-fēld') A town of central Connecticut, a suburb of Hartford on the Connecticut River. It was first settled by English colonists in 1634. Population, 25,651.

wet-land (wět'länd') n. A lowland area, such as a marsh or swamp, that is saturated with moisture, especially when regarded as the natural habitat of wildlife: a program to preserve our state's wetlands.

wet monsoon (wět mōn-sōn') n. Meteorology. A monsoon.

wet-ness (wět'nīs) n. 1. The condition of being wet. 2. Moisture. 3. Rainy or persistently damp weather.

wet nurse (wět nûrs) n. 1. A woman who suckles another woman's child.

2. One who treats another with excessive care or solicitude.

wet-nurse (wět'nûrs') v. tr. wet--nursed, wet--nurs-ing, wet--nurs-es.

1. To serve as wet nurse for. 2. To treat with excessive care.

wet pack (wět pāk) n. A therapeutic pack moistened in hot or cold water.

wet suit (wět sōōt) n. A tight-fitting permeable suit worn in cold water, as by skin divers, to retain body heat.

wet·ter (wět'ər) n. One that wets.

Wet·ter·horn Peak (vēt'ər-hôrn' pēk) A mountain, 4,274.6 m (14,015 ft) high, in the San Juan Mountains of southwest Colorado.

wet·ting agent (wět'ing ā'jənt) n. A substance that reduces the surface tension of a liquid, causing the liquid to spread across or penetrate more easily the surface of a solid.

we've (wēv) We have.

Wey·den (wīd'n, vīd'n), Rogier van der. Also known as Roger de la Pasture. 1400?-1464. Flemish painter noted for his religious works of rich emotional expression, including The Deposition (c. 1435).

Wey·gand (vā-gän'), (Louis) Maxime. 1867-1965. French general who as supreme Allied commander (1940) at the outset of World War II was unable to prevent the fall of France.

Wey·mouth (wā'məθ) A town of eastern Massachusetts, a manufacturing suburb of Boston. Population, 54,063.

wf or w.f. abbr. Printing. Wrong font.

WFTU abbr. World Federation of Trade Unions.

w.g. abbr. Wire gauge.

WH abbr. Watt-hour.

wh. abbr. White.

whack (hwāk, wāk) v. whacked, whack·ing, whacks. — v. tr. To strike (someone or something) with a sharp blow; slap. — v. intr. To deal a sharp, resounding blow. — n. 1. A sharp, swift blow. 2. The sound made by a sharp, swift blow. — phrasal verb. whack off. Vulgar Slang. To masturbate. — idioms. have a whack at (or take a whack at). Informal. To try out; attempt. out of whack. Informal. Improperly ordered or balanced; not functioning correctly. whacked out. Slang. 3. Exhausted. 4. Crazy. 5. Under the influence of a mind-altering drug. [Probably imitative.]

whack·ing (hwāk'ing, wāk'-) Chiefly British. adj. Superlative; excellent. — adv. Used as an intensive.

whack·o (hwāk'ō, wāk'ō) n. Slang. Variant of wacko.

whack·y (hwāk'ē, wāk'ē) adj. Slang. Variant of wacky.

whale¹ (hwāl, wāl) n. 1. Any of various marine mammals of the order Cetacea, having the general shape of a fish with forelimbs modified to form flippers, a tail with horizontal flukes, and one or two blowholes for breathing, especially one of the very large species as distinguished from the smaller dolphins and porpoises. 2. Informal. An impressive example: a whale of a story. — v. intr. whaled, whal·ing, whales. To engage in the hunting of whales. [Middle English, from Old English hwæl.]

whale² (hwāl, wāl) v. whaled, whal-ing, whales. — v. tr. To strike or hit repeatedly and forcefully; thrash. — v. intr. To attack vehemently: The poet whaled away at the critics. [Origin unknown.]

whale-back (hwāl'bāk', wāl'-) n. Nautical. A steamship with the bow and upper deck rounded so as to shed water.

whale-boat (hwāl'bōt', wāl'-) n. Nautical. 1. A long rowboat, pointed at both ends and designed to move and turn swiftly, formerly used in the pursuit and harpooning of whales. 2. A boat similar to such a rowboat in size and shape; a whaler.

whale-bone (hwāl'bōn', wāl'-) n. 1. The elastic, horny material forming the fringed plates that hang from the upper jaw of baleen whales and strain plankton from the water. Also called baleen. 2. An object made of this material.

whalebone whale (hwāl'bōn' hwāl) n. See baleen whale.

whale oil (hwāl oil) n. A yellowish oil obtained from whale blubber, formerly used in making soap and candles and as a lubricating oil.

whal-er (hwā'lər, wā'-) n. 1. One that hunts or processes whales. 2. Nautical. A whaling ship. 3. Nautical. A whaleboat.

Whales (hwālz, wālz), Bay of. An inlet of the Ross Sea in the Ross Ice Shelf of Antarctica. It has been used as a base for Antarctic expeditions since 1911.

whale shark (hwāl shärk) n. A very large shark (Rhincodon typus) of warm marine waters, having a spotted body, small teeth, and a network of rakelike sieves extending from its gills for straining plankton from the water.

whal-ing (hwāl'ling, wāl'-) n. The business or practice of hunting, killing, and processing whales.

wham (hwäm, wäm) n. 1. A forceful, resounding blow. 2. The sound of such a blow; a thud. — v. whammed, wham-ming, whams. — v. tr. To strike or smash into with resounding impact. — v. intr. To smash with great force. [Imitative.]

wham-mo (hwäm'ō, wäm'ō) interj. Slang. Used to indicate the startling abruptness of a sound, an action, or an event: "The alarm goes off and—whammo!—we're all at our assigned stations" (Meg Greenfield). [Alteration of WHAM.]

wham-my (hwäm'ē, wäm'ē) n. pl. wham-mies. Slang. A supernatural spell for subduing an adversary; a hex: put the whammy on someone. [Perhaps from WHAM.]

whang¹ (hwäng, wäng) n. 1. A thong or whip of hide or leather. 2. a. A lashing blow, as of a whip. b. The sound of such a blow. — v. tr. whanged, whang-ing, whangs. 1. To beat or whip with a thong. 2. To beat with a sharp blow or blows. [Dialectal variant of Middle English thong, thwang, thong. See THONG.]

whang² (hwǎng, wǎng) Informal. v. whanged, whang-ing, whangs. — v. tr. To strike so as to produce a loud, reverberant noise. — v. intr. To produce a loud, reverberant noise. — n. A loud, reverberant noise. [Imitative.]

whang-ee (hwǎng-gē', wǎng'f-) n. 1. Any of several Asian bamboos of the genus Phyllostachys. 2. A walking stick made from the woody stem of any of these bamboos. [Chinese (Mandarin) huáng lí : huáng (short for huáng zhúhuáng, yellow + zhú, bamboo) + lí, a kind of bramble.]

wharf (hwôrf, wôrf) n. pl. wharves (hwôrvz, wôrvz) or wharfs. Abbr. whf.
1. A landing place or pier where ships may tie up and load or unload.
2. Obsolete. A shore or riverbank. — v. wharfed, wharf-ing, wharfs. — v. tr. 1. To moor (a vessel) at a wharf. 2. To take to or store (cargo) on a wharf.
3. To furnish, equip, or protect with wharves or a wharf. — v. intr. To berth at a wharf. [Middle English, from Old English hwearf.]

wharf-age (hwôrf'fij, wôrf'fij) n. 1. a. The use of wharves or a wharf. b. The charges for this usage. 2. A group of wharves.

wharf-in-ger (hwôrf'fin-jər, wôrf'-) n. One who owns or manages a wharf.
[Alteration of WHARFAGE + -ER¹.]

wharf rat (hwôrf răt) n. 1. A rat that infests wharves and ships. 2. Slang. A person who frequents wharves.

Whar-ton (hwôrf'tn, wôrf'-), Edith Newbold Jones. 1862-1937. American writer whose works include subtle satires on New York society, such as The House of Mirth (1905), and the short, tragic novel Ethan Frome (1911).

wharves (hwôrvz, wôrvz) n. A plural of wharf.

what (hwöt, hwüt, wôt, wüt; hwət, wət when unstressed) pron. 1. a. Which thing or which particular one of many: What are you having for dinner? What did she say? b. Which kind, character, or designation: What are these objects? c. One of how much value or significance: What are possessions to a dying man? 2. a. That which; the thing that: Listen to what I tell you. b. Whatever thing that: come what may. 3. Informal. Something: I'll tell you what. 4. Non-Standard. Which, who, or that: It's the poor what gets the blame. — adj. 1. Which one or ones of several or many: What college are you attending? You should know what musical that song is from. 2. Whatever: They soon repaired what damage had been done. 3. How great; how astonishing: What a fool! — adv. How much; in what respect; how: What does it matter? — conj. That: I don't know but what I'll go. — interj.

1. Used to express surprise, incredulity, or other strong and sudden excitement.

2. Chiefly British. Used as a tag question, often to solicit agreement. — idioms.

what for. Informal. A scolding or strong reprimand: The teacher gave the tardy student what for. what have you. What remains and need not be mentioned: a room full of chairs, lamps, radios, and what have you. what if. 3. What would occur if; suppose that. 4. What does it matter if. what it takes. The necessary expertise or qualities needed for success: She has what it takes to be a doctor.

what's what. Informal. The fundamentals and details of a situation or process; the true state or condition. what with. Taking into consideration; because of: "I've often wondered why some good crime writer... hasn't taken up with New Orleans, what with its special raffishness, its peculiar flavor of bonhomie and a slightly suspect charm" (Walker Percy). [Middle English, from Old English hwæt. See k^wo- in Appendix.]

USAGE NOTE: When what is the subject of a clause, it may be construed as singular or plural, depending on the sense. It is singular when taken as the equivalent of that which or the thing which, as in I see what seems to be a dead tree; and it is plural when it is taken as the equivalent of those which or the things which, as in He sometimes makes what seem to be gestures of aloofness. • When a what clause is itself the subject of a sentence, it may be construed as singular or plural, but the conditions governing this choice are somewhat more complicated. In general, a what clause will be taken as a plural when the clause contains an explicit indication of its own plurality. There are two principal cases. First, the clause is plural if what is the subject of the clause and the verb of the clause is itself plural: What seem to be two dead trees are blocking the road. What most surprise me are the inflammatory remarks at the end of his article. If the verb in the what clause does not anticipate the plural sense of the predicate in this way, a singular verb is generally used in the main clause as well, though the plural is sometimes found: What truly commands respect is (sometimes are) a large navy and a resolute foreign policy. Second, the what clause is treated as plural when its predicate contains a plural noun phrase that unambiguously establishes the plurality of the clause as a whole, as in What traditional grammarians called "predicates" are called "verb phrases" by modern linguists. What the Romans established as military outposts were later to become important trading centers. In the absence of explicit plural marking of either of these types in a subject what clause, the clause is usually treated as singular for the purposes of agreement, regardless of the sense: What she held in her lap was four kittens. What the apparent diamonds turned out to be was paste. In some cases, however, a clause with what as the subject may be treated as singular or plural, depending on a subtle distinction of sense. In What excite him most are money and power, the implication is that money and power are distinct elements; in What excites him most is money and power, the implication is that money and power are taken as constituting a single entity. See Usage Note at which.

what·cha·ma·call·it (hwöch'ə-mə-kôl'it, hwüch'-, wöch'-, wüch'-) also what·cha·ma·call·um (-əm) n. An item or a thing that is unnamed or unnamable. [Alteration of what you may call it.]

what·ev·er (hwöt-ëv'ər, hwüt-, wöt-, wüt-) pron. 1. Everything or anything that: Do whatever you please. 2. What amount that; the whole of what: Whatever is left over is yours. 3. No matter what: Whatever happens, we'll meet here tonight.

4. Also what ever. Informal. Which thing or things; what: Whatever does he mean? — adj. 1. Of any number or kind; any: Whatever requests you make will be granted. 2. All of; the whole of: She applied whatever strength she had left to the task. 3. Of any kind at all: No campers whatever may use the lake before noon.

USAGE NOTE: Both whatever and what ever can be used in sentences such as Whatever (or What ever) made her say that? Critics have occasionally objected to the one-word form, but it is supported by extensive precedent in reputable writing. The same is true of the forms whoever, whenever, wherever, and however when these expressions are used similarly. In adjectival uses only the one-word form is used: Take whatever (not what ever) books you need. • When a clause beginning with whatever is the subject of a sentence, no comma should be used: Whatever you do is right. Otherwise, a comma may be used: Whatever you do, don't burn the toast. • When the phrase preceding a restrictive clause is introduced by whichever or whatever, that should not be used in formal writing. It is regarded as incorrect to write whatever book that you want to look at; one should write instead Whatever book you want to look at will be sent to your office or Whichever book costs less (not that costs less) is fine with us. See Usage Note at however. See Usage Note at that.

what-not (hwöt'nöt', hwüt'-, wöt'-, wüt'-) n. 1. A minor or unspecified object or article. 2. A set of light, open shelves for ornaments. — pron. Any of various additional or unspecified things or items: “family differences, differing social origins, and whatnot” (George F. Kennan).

what-so-ev-er (hwöt'sō-ěv'ər, hwüt'-, wöt'-, wüt'-) pron. Whatever. — adj. Whatever: no power whatsoever.

wheel (hwēl, wēl) n. A small swelling on the skin, as from an insect bite, that usually itches or burns. [Probably alteration of WALE.]

wheat (hwēt, wēt) n. 1. Any of various annual cereal grasses of the genus Triticum of the Mediterranean region and southwest Asia, especially T. aestivum, widely cultivated in temperate regions in many varieties for its commercially important edible grain. 2. The grain of any of these grasses, ground to produce flour used in breadstuffs and pasta. [Middle English whete, from Old English hwæte. See kweit- in Appendix.]

wheat bread (hwēt brəd) n. A bread made from a mixture of white and whole-wheat flours.

wheat-ear (hwēt'ēr', wēt'-) n. A small thrush (Oenanthe oenanthe) having a gray back, buff breast, and white rump, found in open areas of most northern regions. [Back-formation from earlier wheatears (taken as pl.): probably by folk etymology from WHITE + ARSE.]

wheat-en (hwēt'n, wēt'n) adj. Of, relating to, or derived from wheat.

wheat germ (hwēt jûrm) n. The vitamin-rich embryo of the wheat kernel that is separated before milling for use as a cereal or food supplement.

Wheat·ley (hwēt'lē, wēt'-), Phillis. 1753?-1784. African-born American poet considered the first widely recognized Black writer in America. Her works include Poems on Various Subjects (1773).

Whea·ton (hwēt'n, wēt'n) 1. A city of northeast Illinois west of Chicago. Settled in the 1830's, it is mainly residential. Population, 51,464. 2. An unincorporated community of central Maryland, a residential suburb of Washington, D.C. Population, 53,720.

Wheat Ridge (hwēt'rij, wēt') A city of north-central Colorado, a residential suburb of Denver. Population, 29,419.

wheat rust (hwēt rüst) n. 1. A destructive disease of wheat caused by a rust fungus. 2. Any of several rust fungi of the genus Puccinia that cause this disease.

Wheat·stone bridge (hwēt'stōn'brīj, wēt'-) also Wheat·stone's bridge (-stōnz') n. An instrument or a circuit consisting of four resistors or their equivalent in series, used to determine the value of an unknown resistance when the other three resistances are known. [After Sir Charles Wheatstone (1802-1875), British physicist and inventor.]

wheat·worm (hwēt'wûrm', wēt'-) n. A small nematode worm (Anguina tritici) that is parasitic on and destructive to wheat.

whee (hwē, wē) interj. Used to express extreme pleasure or enthusiasm.

whee·dle (hwēd'l, wēd'l) v. whee·dled, whee·dling, whee·dles. — v. tr. 1. To persuade or attempt to persuade by flattery or guile; cajole. 2. To obtain through the use of flattery or guile: a swindler who wheedled my life savings out of me. — v. intr. To use flattery or cajolery to achieve one's ends. [Origin unknown.] — whee'dler n. — whee'dling·ly adv.

wheel (hwēl, wēl) n. 1. A solid disk or a rigid circular ring connected by spokes to a hub, designed to turn around an axle passed through the center.

2. Something resembling such a disk or ring in appearance or movement or having a wheel as its principal part or characteristic, as: a. The steering device on a vehicle. b. A potter's wheel. c. A water wheel. d. A spinning wheel. e. Games. A device used in roulette and other games of chance. f. A firework that rotates while burning. g. Informal. A bicycle. h. An instrument to which a victim was bound for torture during the Middle Ages. 3. wheels. Forces that provide energy, movement, or direction: the wheels of commerce. 4. The act or process of turning; revolution or rotation. 5. A military maneuver executed in order to change the direction of movement of a formation, as of troops or ships, in which the formation is maintained while the outer unit describes an arc and the inner or center unit remains stationary as a pivot. 6. wheels. Slang. A motor vehicle or access thereto: Do you have wheels tonight? 7. Slang. A person with a great deal of power or influence: thinks he's a wheel because he works in the state government.

— v. wheeled, wheel-ing, wheels. — v. tr. 1. To roll, move, or transport on wheels or a wheel. 2. To cause to turn around or as if around a central axis; revolve or rotate. 3. To provide with wheels or a wheel. — v. intr. 1. To turn around or as if around a central axis; revolve or rotate. 2. To roll or move on or as if on wheels or a wheel. 3. To fly in a curving or circular course: A flock of gulls wheeled just above the dock. 4. To turn or whirl around in place; pivot: “The boy wheeled and the fried eggs leaped from his tray” (Ivan Gold). 5. To reverse one’s opinion or practice: One can never tell when she’ll wheel about on that subject.

—idioms. at the wheel (or behind the wheel). 1. Operating the steering mechanism of a vehicle; driving. 2. Directing or controlling; in charge. wheel and deal. Informal. To engage in the advancement of one’s own interests, especially in a canny, aggressive, or unscrupulous way. [Middle English, from Old English hwēol. See k^wel-¹ in Appendix.]

wheel and axle (hwēl ənd ăk’səl) n. A simple machine consisting of an axle to which a wheel is fastened so that torque applied to the wheel winds a rope or chain onto the axle, yielding a mechanical advantage equal to the ratio of the diameter of the wheel to that of the axle.

wheel-bar-row (hwēl’băr’ō, wēl’-) n. A one- or two-wheeled vehicle with handles at the rear, used to convey small loads.

wheel-base (hwēl’bās’, wēl’-) n. The distance from the center of the front wheel to that of the rear wheel in a motor vehicle, usually expressed in inches.

wheel bug (hwēl бүg) n. A large assassin bug (Arilus cristatus) of North America that has a notched, wheellike projection on the back of the thorax and preys on other insects.

wheel-chair also wheel chair (hwēl’châr’, wēl’-) n. A chair mounted on large wheels for the use of a sick or disabled person.

wheeled (hwēld, wēld) adj. Having wheels or a wheel. Often used in combination: a three-wheeled bike.

wheel-er (hwē’lär, wē’-) n. 1. One that wheels. 2. A thing that moves on or is equipped with wheels or a wheel. Often used in combination: a three-wheeler; a paddle-wheeler. 3. A wheel horse.

Whee-ler (hwē’lär, wē’-), Joseph. 1836-1906. American Confederate general and politician. One of the South’s most popular and aggressive commanders, he later served as U.S. representative from Georgia (1881-1883 and 1885-1900) and sought reconciliation between the North and South.

Whee-ler (hwē’lär, wē’-), William Almon. 1819-1887. Vice President of the United States (1877-1881) under Rutherford B. Hayes.

wheel-er-deal-er (hwē’lär-dē’lär, wē’-) n. Informal. One who advances one’s own interests by canny, aggressive, or unscrupulous behavior.

Wheeler Peak (hwē’lär pēk) A mountain, 4,014.1 m (13,161 ft) high, in north-central New Mexico. It is the highest point in the state.

wheel horse (hwĕl hōrs) n. 1. The horse in a team that follows the leader and is harnessed nearest the front wheels. 2. A diligent, dependable worker, especially in a political organization.

wheel-house (hwĕl'hous', wĕl'-) n. Nautical. See pilothouse.

wheel-ie (hwĕ'lĕ, wĕ-) n. A stunt in which the front wheel or wheels of a vehicle, such as a bicycle or motorcycle, are raised so that the vehicle is balanced momentarily on its rear wheel or wheels. [Diminutive of WHEEL.]

Wheel-ing (hwĕ'lĭng, wĕl'-) 1. A village of northeast Illinois, a suburb of Chicago. Population, 29,911. 2. A city of northwest West Virginia in the Panhandle on the Ohio River southwest of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. Settled in 1769, it was an important trading post on the Cumberland Road until the 1850's. Wheeling was the state capital from 1863 to 1870 and from 1875 to 1885. Population, 34,882.

wheel lock (hwĕl lŏk) n. 1. A firing mechanism in certain obsolete small arms, in which a small wheel produces sparks by revolving against a flint. 2. A firearm using such a mechanism.

wheel-man (hwĕl'mən, wĕl'-) n. 1. Nautical. One who steers a ship; a helmsman. 2. The driver of an automobile, especially of a getaway car. 3. A bicyclist.

Whee-lock (hwĕ'lŏk', wĕl'-), Eleazar. 1711-1779. American cleric and educator who founded Dartmouth College, originally for the education of Native Americans, and served as its first president (1769-1779).

wheels-man (hwĕlz'mən, wĕlz'-) n. A wheelman.

wheel-work (hwĕl'wŭrk', wĕl'-) n. An arrangement of gears or wheels in a mechanical device.

wheel-wright (hwĕl'rīt', wĕl'-) n. One that builds and repairs wheels.

wheeze (hwĕz, wĕz) v. wheezed, wheez-ing, wheez-es. — v. intr. 1. To breathe with difficulty, producing a hoarse whistling sound. 2. To make a sound resembling laborious breathing. — v. tr. To produce or utter with a hoarse whistling sound: The old locomotive wheezed steam. — n. 1. A wheezing sound. 2. Informal. An old joke. [Middle English whesen, probably from Old Norse hvæsa, to hiss. See kwes- in Appendix.] —wheez'er n. —wheez'ing-ly adv.

wheez-y (hwĕ'zĕ, wĕl'-) adj. wheez-i-er, wheez-i-est. 1. Given to wheezing. 2. Producing a wheezing sound. —wheez'i-ly adv. —wheez'i-ness n.

whelk¹ (hwĕlk, wĕlk) n. Any of various large, mostly edible marine snails of the family Buccinidae, having a pointed, spiral shell, especially Buccinum undatum, which is commonly eaten in Europe. [Middle English welke, whelke, from Old English weoloc. See wel-² in Appendix.]

whelk² (hwĕlk, wĕlk) n. An inflamed swelling, such as a pimple or pustule. [Middle English whelke, from Old English hwylca; akin to hwelian, to suppurate.] —whelk'y adj.

whelm (hwělm, wělm) v. tr. whelmed, whelm-ing, whelms. 1. To cover with water; submerge. 2. To overwhelm. [Middle English whelmen, to overturn, probably alteration (influenced by helmen, to cover, from Old English helmian), of whelven, from Old English -hwelfan, as in āhwelfan, to cover over.]

whelp (hwělp, wělp) n. 1. A young offspring of a mammal, such as a dog or wolf. 2. a. A child; a youth. b. An impudent young fellow. See Usage Note at adage. 3. a. A tooth of a sprocket wheel. b. Nautical. Any of the ridges on the barrel of a windlass or capstan. — v. whelped, whelp-ing, whelps. — v. intr. To give birth to whelps or a whelp. — v. tr. To give birth to (whelps or a whelp). [Middle English, from Old English hwelp.]

when (hwĕn, wĕn) adv. At what time: When will we leave? — conj. 1. At the time that: in the spring, when the snow melts. 2. As soon as: I'll call you when I get there. 3. Whenever: When the wind blows, all the doors rattle. 4. During the time at which; while: When I was young, I was sick all the time. 5. Whereas; although: She stopped short when she ought to have continued. 6. Considering that; if: How can he get good grades when he won't study? — pron. What or which time: Since when has this been going on? — n. The time or date: Have they decided the where and when? [Middle English, from Old English hwenne. See k^wo- in Appendix.]

USAGE NOTE: In informal style when is often used after be in definitions: A dilemma is when you don't know which way to turn. The construction is useful, but it is widely regarded as incorrect or as unsuitable for formal discourse. In formal style there is no alternative but to rephrase such definitions to avoid is when: A dilemma is a situation in which you don't know which way to turn. You are in a dilemma when you don't know which way to turn.

when-as (hwĕn-ăz!, wĕn-) conj. Archaic. 1. When. 2. Whereas.

whence (hwĕns, wĕns) adv. 1. From where; from what place: Whence came this traveler? 2. From what origin or source: Whence comes this splendid feast? — conj. 1. Out of which place; from or out of which. 2. By reason of which; from which: The dog was coal black from nose to tail, whence the name Shadow. [Middle English whennes : whenne, whence (from Old English hwanon); see k^wo- in Appendix + -es, genitive sing. suff.; see *-s*³.]

USAGE NOTE: The construction from whence has been criticized as redundant since the 18th century. It is true that whence incorporates the sense of from: a remote village, whence little news reached the wider world. But from whence has been used steadily by reputable writers since the 14th century, most notably in the King James Bible: "I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my help" (Psalms). It is difficult to label as incorrect a construction with such respectable antecedents. Still, it may be observed that whence (like thence) is most often used nowadays to impart an archaic or highly formal tone to a passage, and that this effect is probably better realized if the archaic syntax of the word—without from—is preserved as well.

whence-so-ev-er (hwěns'sō-ěv'ər, wěns'-) adv. From whatever place or source. — conj. From any place or source that.

when-ev-er (hwěn-ěv'ər, wěn-) adv. 1. At whatever time. 2. Also when ever. When. See Usage Note at whatever. — conj. 1. At whatever time that: We can leave whenever you're ready. 2. Every time that: The child smiles whenever the puppy appears.

when-so-ev-er (hwěn'sō-ěv'ər, wěn'-) adv. At whatever time at all; whenever. — conj. Whenever.

where (hwâr, wâr) adv. 1. At or in what place: Where is the telephone? 2. In what situation or position: Where would we be without your help? 3. From what place or source: Where did you get this idea? 4. To what place; toward what end: Where is this argument leading? — conj. 1. At what or which place: She moved to the city, where jobs are available. 2. a. In a place in which: He lives where the climate is mild. b. In any place or situation in which; wherever: Where there's smoke, there's fire. 3. a. To a place in which: We should go where it is quieter. b. To a place or situation in which: They will go where they are happy. — n. 1. The place or occasion: We know the when but not the where of it. 2. What place, source, or cause: Where are you from? [Middle English, from Old English hwær. See k^wo- in Appendix.]

USAGE NOTE: When where is used to refer to a point of origin, the preposition from is required: Where did she come from? When it is used to refer to a point of destination, the preposition to is generally superfluous: Where is she going? (preferable to Where is she going to?). When it is used to refer to the place at which an event or a situation is located, the use of at is widely regarded as regional or colloquial: Where is the station? (not Where is the station at?). The idiomatic phrase where it's at, widely used in the 1960's to refer to "the current state of things," is now largely passé, except when used for stylistic effect: "Generally, I knew where he was at, but couldn't always tell where he was coming from" (Robert M. Adams). See Usage Note at why.

where-a-bouts (hwâr'ə-bouts', wâr'-) adv. About where; in, at, or near what location: Whereabouts do you live? — n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). Approximate location: His whereabouts is a matter of conjecture. Her whereabouts are still unknown.

- where·as (hwâr-ăz', wâr-) conj. 1. It being the fact that; inasmuch as. 2. While at the same time. 3. While on the contrary. — n. 1. An introductory statement to a formal document; a preamble. 2. A conditional statement.
- where·at (hwâr-ăt', wâr-) conj. 1. Toward or at which. 2. As a result or consequence of; whereupon.
- where·by (hwâr-bī', wâr-) conj. In accordance with which; by or through which.
- where ever (hwâr ɛv'ər) adv. Variant of wherever (n., sense 1).
- where·fore (hwâr'fôr', -fôr', wâr'-) adv. 1. For what purpose or reason; why. 2. Therefore. — n. A purpose or cause: wanted to know all the whys and wherefores.
- where·from (hwâr'früm', -fröm', wâr'-) conj. From which.
- where·in (hwâr-în', wâr-) adv. In what way; how: Wherein have we sinned? — conj. 1. In which location; where: the country wherein those people live. 2. During which. 3. In what way; how: showed them wherein they were wrong.
- where·in·to (hwâr-în'tōō, wâr-) conj. Into which.
- where·of (hwâr-öv', -üv', wâr-) conj. 1. Of what: I know whereof I speak. 2. a. Of which: ancient pottery whereof many examples are lost. b. Of whom. — adv. Archaic. Of what.
- where·on (hwâr-ön', -ôn', wâr-) adv. Archaic. On which or what: “the ground whereon she trod” (John Milton).
- where·so·ev·er (hwâr'sō-ɛv'ər, wâr'-) conj. In, to, or from whatever place at all; wherever.
- where·through (hwâr'thrōō', wâr'-) conj. Through, because of, or during which.
- where·to (hwâr'tōō', wâr'-) adv. To what place; toward what end. — conj. To which.
- where·un·to (hwâr-ün'tōō, wâr-) adv. & conj. Whereto.
- where·up·on (hwâr'ə-pŏn', -pôn', wâr'-) conj. 1. On which. 2. In close consequence of which: The instructor entered the room, whereupon we got to our feet.
- wher·ev·er (hwâr-ɛv'ər, wâr-) adv. 1. In or to whatever place: used red pencil wherever needed. 2. Also where ever. Where: Where ever have you been so long? See Usage Note at whatever. — conj. In or to whichever place or situation: He seems to make enemies wherever he goes.
- where·with (hwâr'wīth', -wīth', wâr'-) pron. The thing or things with which. — conj. By means of which. — adv. Obsolete. With what or which.
- where·with·al (hwâr'wīth-ôl', -wīth-, wâr'-) n. The necessary means, especially financial means: didn't have the wherewithal to survive an economic downturn. — conj. Wherewith. — pron. Wherewith.

wher-ry (hwĕr'ē, wĕr'ē) n. pl. wher-ries. Nautical. 1. A light, swift rowboat built for one person and often used in racing. 2. A sailing barge used in East Anglia. [Middle English whery.]

whet (hwĕt, wĕt) v. tr. whet-ted, whet-ting, whets. 1. To sharpen (a knife, for example); hone. 2. To make more keen; stimulate: The frying bacon whetted my appetite. — n. 1. The act of whetting. 2. Something that whets.

3. Informal. An appetizer. [Middle English whetten, from Old English hwettan.]

wheth-er (hwĕth'ər, wĕth'-) conj. 1. Used in indirect questions to introduce one alternative: We should find out whether the museum is open. See Usage Note at doubt. See Usage Note at if. 2. Used to introduce alternative possibilities: Whether she wins or whether she loses, this is her last tournament. 3. Either: He passed the test, whether by skill or luck. — pron. Archaic. Which: "We came in full View of a great Island or Continent, (for we knew not whether)" (Jonathan Swift). — idiom. whether or no. Regardless of circumstances. [Middle English, from Old English hwether. See k^{wo}- in Appendix.]

whet-stone (hwĕt'stōn', wĕt'-) n. A hard, fine-grained stone for honing tools. Also called snakestone whew (hwyōō, hwōō, hwyōō unvoiced) interj. Used to express strong emotion, such as relief or amazement.

whew (hwā, wā) n. The watery part of milk that separates from the curds, as in the process of making cheese. [Middle English, from Old English hwæg.]

—whew'ey adj.

whew-face (hwā'fās', wā'-) n. A person with a pallid face.

whf. abbr. Wharf.

which (hwĭch, wĭch) pron. 1. What particular one or ones: Which of these is yours? 2. The one or ones previously mentioned or implied, specifically: a. Used as a relative pronoun in a clause that provides additional information about the antecedent: my house, which is small and old. b. Used as a relative pronoun preceded by that or a preposition in a clause that defines or restricts the antecedent: that which he needed; the subject on which she spoke. c. Used instead of that as a relative pronoun in a clause that defines or restricts the antecedent: The movie which was shown later was better. 3. Any of the things, events, or people designated or implied; whichever: Choose which you like best. 4. A thing or circumstance that: He left early, which was wise. — adj. 1. What particular one or ones of a number of things or people: Which part of town do you mean? 2. Any one or any number of; whichever: Use which door you please. 3. Being the one or ones previously mentioned or implied: It started to rain, at which point we ran. [Middle English, from Old English hwilc. See k^{wo}- in Appendix.]

USAGE NOTE: The antecedent of which can sometimes be a sentence or clause, as opposed to a noun phrase, as in She ignored him, which proved to be unwise.

They swept the council elections, which could never have happened under the old rules. Such examples are unexceptionable, but care should be taken that this usage does not cause ambiguities. The sentence It emerged that Edna made the complaint, which surprised everybody may mean either that the complaint was surprising or that it was surprising that Edna made it. The ambiguity can be avoided with phrases such as It emerged that Edna made the complaint, a revelation that surprised everybody. • In its use to refer to the contents of sentences and clauses, which should be used only when it is preceded by its antecedent. When the antecedent follows, what should be used, particularly in formal style: Still, he has not said he will withdraw, which is more surprising but Still, what (not which) is more surprising, he has not said he will withdraw. See Usage Note at that. See Usage Note at what. See Usage Note at whose.

which-ev-er (hwĭch-ĕv'ər, wĭch-) pron. Whatever one or ones. — adj. Being any one or any number of a group: Read whichever books you please. It's a long trip whichever road you take. See Usage Note at whatever.

which-so-ev-er (hwĭch'sō-ĕv'ər, wĭch'-) pron. & adj. Whichever.

whick-er (hwĭk'ər, wĭk'-) v. intr. whick-ered, whick-er-ing, whick-ers. To whinny. — n. A whinny. [Imitative.]

whid-ah (hwĭd'ə, wĭd'ə) n. Variant of whydah.

Whid-bey Island (hwĭd'bē ī'lənd, wĭd'-) An island of northwest Washington in Puget Sound northwest of Everett and east of Admiralty Inlet.

whiff (hwĭf, wĭf) n. 1. A slight, gentle gust of air; a waft: a whiff of cool air.

2. a. A brief, passing odor carried in the air: a whiff of perfume. b. A minute trace: "Humanity is unregenerable and hates the language of conformity, since conformity has a whiff of the inhuman about it" (Anthony Burgess).

3. An inhalation, as of air or smoke: Take a whiff of this pipe. 4. Baseball. A strikeout. — v.

whiffed, whiff-ing, whiffs. — v. intr. 1. To be carried in brief gusts; waft: puffs of smoke whiffing from the chimney. 2. Sports. To swing at and miss a ball or puck. 3. Baseball. To strike out. Used of a batter. — v. tr. 1. To blow or convey in whiffs. 2. To inhale through the nose; sniff: a dog whiffing the air. 3. Baseball. To strike out (a batter). [Perhaps alteration of Middle English weffe, offensive smell.] — whiff'er n.

whif-fle (hwĭf'əl, wĭf'-) v. whif-fled, whif-fling, whif-fles. — v. intr.

1. To move or think erratically; vacillate. 2. To blow in fitful gusts; puff: The wind whiffled through the trees. 3. To whistle lightly. — v. tr. To blow, displace, or scatter with gusts of air. [Perhaps frequentative of WHIFF.]

whif-fle-tree (hwĭf'əl-trē, wĭf'-) n. Northeastern U.S. The pivoted horizontal crossbar to which the harness traces of a draft animal are attached and which is in turn attached to a vehicle or an implement. Also called singletree, swingletreeRegional., whippetree. [Variant of WHIPPLETREE.]

REGIONAL NOTE: Whiffletree, a term primarily used in the northeast United States, is derived from an older term whippetree, which is used in the Upper Northern states farther to the west. The fact that whiffletree, the newer term, is used in the Northeast, the older dialect area, illustrates the process of linguistic change. Even as the older word whippetree was spreading westward into a new dialect area, it was evolving into something different—whiffletree—in the area where it originated, as if the older dialect area were somehow trying to keep a step ahead.

Whig (hwĭg, wĭg) n. 1. A member of an 18th- and 19th-century British political party that was opposed to the Tories. 2. A supporter of the war against England during the American Revolution. 3. A 19th-century American political party formed to oppose the Democratic Party and favoring high tariffs and a loose interpretation of the Constitution. [Probably short for Whiggamore, a member of a body of 17th-century Scottish Presbyterian rebels.] —Whig'ger-y n. —Whig'gish adj. —Whig'gism n.

while (hwĭl, wĭl) n. 1. A period of time: stay for a while; sang all the while. See Usage Note at awhile. 2. The time, effort, or trouble taken in doing something: The project wasn't worth my while. — conj. 1. As long as; during the time that: It was lovely while it lasted. 2. At the same time that; although: While the grandparents love the children, they are strict with them. 3. Whereas; and: The soles are leather, while the uppers are canvas. — v. tr. whiled, whil-ing, whiles. To spend (time) idly or pleasantly: while the hours away. [Middle English, from Old English hwĭl. See k^weiǝ- in Appendix.]

whiles (hwĭlz, wĭlz) conj. Archaic. While. [Middle English : while, while; see WHILE + -es, genitive sing. suff.; see -s³.] whi-lom (hwĭ'ləm, wĭl'-) adj. Having once been; former: the whilom editor in chief. — adv. Archaic. At a past time; formerly. [Middle English, at times, from Old English hwĭlum, dative pl. of hwĭl, time, while. See k^weiǝ- in Appendix.]

whilst (hwĭlst, wĭlst) conj. Chiefly British. While. [Middle English whilest, alteration of whiles, whiles. See WHILES.]

whim (hwĭm, wĭm) n. 1. A sudden or capricious idea; a fancy. 2. Arbitrary thought or impulse: governed by whim. See Synonyms at caprice. 3. A vertical horse-powered drum used as a hoist in a mine. [Short for whim-wham, fanciful object.]

whim·brel (hwĭm'brəl, wĭm'-) n. A grayish-brown wading bird (Numenius phaeopus) having a white, heavily streaked breast. [Perhaps alteration of WHIMPER (from its cry).]

whim·per (hwĭm'pər, wĭm'-) v. whim·pered, whim·per-ing, whim·pers. — v. intr. 1. To cry or sob with soft intermittent sounds; whine. See Synonyms at cry. 2. To complain. — v. tr. To utter in a whimper. — n. A low, broken, sobbing sound; a whine. [Probably imitative.] — whim'per-er n. — whim'per-ing-ly adv.

whim-sey (hwīm'zē, wīm'-) n. Variant of whimsy.

whim-si-cal (hwīm'zī-kəl, wīm'-) adj. 1. Determined by, arising from, or marked by whim or caprice. See Synonyms at arbitrary. 2. Erratic in behavior or degree of unpredictability: a whimsical personality. [From WHIMSY.] — whim'si-cal-ly adv.

whim-si-cal-i-ty (hwīm'zī-kāl'ī-tē, wīm'-) n. pl. whim-si-cal-i-ties. 1. The quality or state of being whimsical. 2. A whimsical idea or its expression; a caprice.

whim-sy also whim-sey (hwīm'zē, wīm'-) n. pl. whim-sies also whim-seys.

1. An odd or fanciful idea; a whim. See Synonyms at caprice. 2. A quaint or fanciful quality: stories full of whimsy. [Probably from whim-wham, fanciful object.]

whin¹ (hwīn, wīn) n. Botany. See gorse. [Middle English whinne, probably of Scandinavian origin.]

whin² (hwīn, wīn) n. A whinstone. [Middle English quin.]

whin-chat (hwīn'chăt', wīn'-) n. A small brownish Old World songbird (Saxicola rubetra) often found in open country.

whine (hwīn, wīn) v. whined, whin-ing, whines. — v. intr. 1. To utter a plaintive, high-pitched, protracted sound, as in pain, fear, supplication, or complaint. 2. To complain or protest in a childish fashion. 3. To produce a sustained noise of relatively high pitch: jet engines whining. — v. tr. To utter with a whine. — n. 1. The act of whining. 2. A whining sound. 3. A complaint uttered in a plaintive tone. [Middle English whinen, from Old English hwīnan, to make a whizzing sound.] — whin'er n. — whin'ing-ly adv. — whin'y, whin'ey adj.

whin-ny (hwīn'ē, wīn'ē) v. whin-nied (hwīn'ēd, wīn'-), whin-ny-ing, whin-nies (hwīn'ēz, wīn'-). — v. intr. To neigh, as a horse, especially in a gentle tone. — v. tr. To express in a whinny. — n. pl. whin-nies. The sound made in whinnying; a neigh. [; akin to Probably akin to WHINE, to whinny.]

whin-stone (hwīn'stōn', wīn'-) n. Any of various hard, dark-colored rocks, especially basalt and chert.

whip (hwīp, wīp) v. whipped or whipt (hwīpt, wīpt), whip-ping, whips. — v. tr. 1. To strike with repeated strokes, as with a strap or rod; lash. 2. a. To punish or chastise by repeated striking with a strap or rod; flog. b. To afflict, castigate, or reprove severely: "For nonconformity the world whips you with its displeasure" (Ralph Waldo Emerson). 3. To drive, force, or compel by flogging, lashing, or other means. 4. To strike or affect in a manner similar to whipping or lashing: Icy winds whipped my face. 5. To beat (cream or eggs, for example) into a froth or foam. 6. Informal. To snatch, pull, or remove in a sudden manner: He whipped off his cap. 7. To sew with a loose overcast or overhand stitch. 8. To wrap or bind (a rope, for example) with twine to prevent unraveling or fraying. 9. Nautical. To hoist by means of a rope passing through an overhead pulley. 10. Informal. To defeat; outdo: Our team can whip your team. — v. intr. 1. To move in a sudden, quick manner; dart. 2. To move in a manner similar to a whip; thrash or snap about: Branches whipped against the windows. — n. 1. An instrument, either a flexible rod or a flexible thong or lash attached to a handle, used for driving animals or administering corporal punishment. 2. A whipping or lashing motion or stroke; a whiplash. 3. A blow, wound, or cut made by or as if by whipping.

4. Something, such as a long radio antenna on a motor vehicle, that is similar to a whip in form or flexibility. 5. Sports. Flexibility, as in the shaft of a golf club.

6. Sports. A whipper-in. 7. a. A member of a legislative body, such as the U.S. Congress or the British Parliament, charged by his or her party with enforcing party discipline and ensuring attendance. b. A call issued to party members in a lawmaking body to ensure attendance at a particular time. 8. A dessert made of sugar and stiffly beaten egg whites or cream, often with fruit or fruit flavoring: prune whip. 9. An arm on a windmill. 10. Nautical. A hoist consisting of a single rope passing through an overhead pulley. 11. A ride in an amusement park, consisting of small cars that move in a rapid, whipping motion along an oval track.

—phrasal verbs. whip in. To keep together, as members of a political party or hounds in a pack. whip up. 2. To arouse; excite: whipped up the mob; whip up enthusiasm. 3. Informal. To prepare quickly: whip up a light lunch. —idiom.

whip into shape. Informal. To bring to a specified state or condition, vigorously and often forcefully. [Middle English wippen, whippen. See weip- in Appendix.] —whip'per n.

whip-cord (hwĭp'kôrd', wĭp'-) n. 1. A worsted fabric with a distinct diagonal rib. 2. A strong twisted or braided cord sometimes used in making whiplashes.

3. Catgut.

whip hand (hwĭp händ) n. 1. A dominating position; advantage. 2. The hand in which a whip is held.

whip-lash (hwĭp'lăsh', wĭp'-) n. 1. The lash of a whip. 2. An injury to the cervical spine caused by an abrupt jerking motion of the head, either backward or forward. In this sense, also called whiplash injury whip-per-in (hwĭp'ər-ĭn', wĭp'-) n. pl. whip-pers-in (hwĭp'ərz-, wĭp'-).

1. Sports. A person who assists the huntsman in handling a pack of hounds in foxhunting. 2. The whip in a legislative body.

whip-per-snap-per (hwĭp'ər-snăp'ər, wĭp'-) n. A person regarded as insignificant and pretentious. [Alteration (influenced by WHIP), of dialectal snipper-snapper.]

whip-pet (hwĭp'ĭt, wĭp'-) n. Any of a breed of swift, short-haired dog developed in England for racing, resembling the greyhound but smaller. [Probably from WHIP.]

whip-ping (hwĭp'ĭng, wĭp'-) n. 1. The act of one that whips. 2. A thrashing administered especially as punishment. 3. Material, such as cord or thread, used to lash or bind parts.

whipping boy (hwĭp'ĭng boi) n. 1. A scapegoat. 2. A boy formerly raised with a prince or other young nobleman and whipped for the latter's misdeeds.

Whipple (hwĭp'əl, wĭp'-), George Hoyt. 1878-1976. American pathologist. He shared a 1934 Nobel Prize for discovering that a diet of liver relieves anemia.

whip-ple-tree (hwĭp'əl-trē', wĭp'-) n. Upper Northern U.S. See whiffletree. See Regional note at whiffletree. [Perhaps blend of dialectal whippin, whipple-tree and SWINGLETREE.]

whip-poor-will (hwĭp'ər-wĭl', wĭp'-, hwĭp'ər-wĭl', wĭp'-) n. An insect-eating nocturnal North American bird (Caprimulgus vociferus) of the goatsucker family, having spotted brown feathers that blend with its woodland habitat. [Imitative of its call.]

whip-saw (hwĭp'sô', wĭp'-) n. A narrow two-person crosscut saw. — v. tr.

whip-sawed, whip-sawed or whip-sawn (-sôn'), whip-saw-ing, whip-saws. 1. To cut with a whipsaw. 2. Games. To win two bets from (a person) at one time, as in faro. 3. To defeat or best in two ways at once: "Our internal divisions handed the Soviet leadership an irresistible opportunity to whipsaw us" (Henry A. Kissinger).

whip scorpion (hwĭp skôr'pē-ən) n. Any of various arachnids of the order Pedipalpi, such as the vinegarroon, that resemble scorpions but have a slender whiplike process on the abdomen and no poisonous sting.

whip snake (hwĭp snāk) n. 1. Any of several slender nonvenomous New World snakes of the genus Masticophis, having a long tail that resembles a whip.

2. Any of several similar or related snakes.

whip-stall (hwĭp'stôl', wĭp'-) n. A usually intentional stall in which a small aircraft enters a vertical climb, pauses, slips backward momentarily, then drops nose downward.

whip-stitch (hwĭp'stĭch', wĭp'-) v. tr. whip-stitched, whip-stitch-ing, whip-stitch-es. To sew with overcast stitches, as in finishing a fabric edge or binding two pieces of fabric together. — n. A stitch made in this manner.

whipt (hwĭpt, wĭpt) v. A past tense and a past participle of whip.

whip-tail (hwĭp'tāl') n. Any of various New World lizards of the genus Cnemidophorus, having a long, slender tail.

whip-worm (hwĭp'wûrm', wĭp'-) n. A slender, whip-shaped, parasitic nematode worm (Trichuris trichiura) that often infests the intestine of human beings.

whir (hwûr, wûr) v. whirred, whir-ring, whirs. — v. intr. To move so as to produce a vibrating or buzzing sound. — v. tr. To cause to make a vibratory sound. — n. 1. A sound of buzzing or vibration: the whir of turning wheels. 2. Excited, noisy activity; bustle: the whir of busy shoppers. [Middle English whirren, probably of Scandinavian origin.]

whirl (hwûrl, wûrl) v. whirled, whirl-ing, whirled. — v. intr. 1. To revolve rapidly about a center or an axis. See Synonyms at turn. 2. To rotate or spin rapidly: The dancer whirled across the stage. 3. To turn rapidly, changing direction; wheel: She whirled around to face him. 4. To have the sensation of spinning; reel: My head is whirling with data. 5. To move circularly and rapidly in varied, random directions: The wind whirled across the steppes. — v. tr. 1. To cause to rotate or turn rapidly: whirl a baton. 2. To move or drive in a circular or curving course. 3. To drive at high speed: whirled the motorcycle around the corner. 4. Obsolete. To hurl. — n. 1. The act of rotating or revolving rapidly. 2. Something, such as a cloud of dust, that whirls or is whirled. 3. A state of confusion; tumult. 4. A swift succession or round of events: the social whirl. 5. A state of mental confusion or giddiness; dizziness: My head is in a whirl. 6. Informal. A short trip or ride. 7. Informal. A brief or experimental try: Let's give the plan a whirl. [Middle English whirlen, probably from Old Norse hvirfla.] — whirl'er n.

whirl-i-gig (hwûr'lî-gîg', wûr'-) n. 1. Any of various spinning toys. 2. A carousel; a merry-go-round. 3. Something that continuously whirls. 4. The whirligig beetle. [Middle English whirlegigge: whirlen, whirl; see WHIRL + -gigge, something that rotates possibly of Scandinavian origin; akin to akin to GIG¹.]

whirligig beetle (hwûr'lî-gîg' bêt'l) n. Any of various gregarious beetles of the family Gyrinidae that circle about rapidly on the surface of water.

whirl-pool (hwûrl'pōol', wûrl'-) n. 1. A rapidly rotating current of water; a vortex. 2. a. Turmoil; whirl. b. A magnetic, impelling force into which one may be pulled. 3. A bathtub or pool having jets of warm water that can be directed toward a body part as for therapeutic purposes.

whirl-wind (hwûrl'wînd', wûrl'-) n. 1. A rapidly rotating, generally vertical column of air, such as a tornado, dust devil, or waterspout. 2. a. A tumultuous, confused rush. b. A destructive force or thing. — adj. Tumultuous or rapid: a whirlwind political campaign.

whirl-y-bird (hwûr'lē-bûrd', wûr'-) n. Informal. A helicopter.

whirr (hwûr, wûr) v. & n. Chiefly British. Variant of whir.

whisk (hwîsk, wîsk) v. whisked, whisk-ing, whisks. — v. tr. 1. To move or cause to move with quick light sweeping motions: whisked crumbs off the table; whisked the children away. 2. To whip (eggs or cream). — v. intr. To move lightly, nimbly, and rapidly. — n. 1. A quick light sweeping motion. 2. A whiskbroom. 3. A small bunch, as of twigs or hair, attached to a handle and used in brushing. 4. A kitchen utensil for whipping foodstuffs. [Middle English wisken, of Scandinavian origin.]

whisk-broom (hwɪsk'brōom', -brōom', wɪsk'-) n. A small short-handled broom used especially to brush clothes.

whisk-er (hwɪs'kər, wɪs'-) n. 1. a. whiskers. The hair on a man's cheeks and chin. b. A single hair of a beard or mustache. 2. One of the long stiff tactile bristles or hairs that grow near the mouth and elsewhere on the head of most mammals; a vibrissa. 3. Informal. A narrow margin; a hairsbreadth: The candidate lost the election by a whisker. 4. Nautical. One of two spars or booms projecting from the side of a bowsprit for spreading the jib or flying-jib guys.

5. Chemistry. An extremely fine filamentary crystal with extraordinary shear strength and unusual electrical or surface properties. [Middle English wisker, anything that wisks, from wisken, to whisk. See WHISK.] —whisk'ered, whisk'er-y adj.

whis-key also whis-ky (hwɪs'kē, wɪs'-) n. pl. whis-keys also whis-kies.

1. An alcoholic liquor distilled from grain, such as corn, rye, or barley, and containing approximately 40 to 50 percent ethyl alcohol by volume. 2. A drink of such liquor. [From USQUEBAUGH.]

USAGE NOTE: Either whiskey or, less frequently, whisky can be used to refer to spirits distilled in the United States. Some writers prefer to reserve whisky for spirits distilled in Great Britain, but there is no widespread agreement on this point.

WORD HISTORY: Whiskey, vodka, and water seem a potent, incompatible combination. However, all three words share a common Indo-European root, •wed-, “water, wet.” The differences between their present forms are partially explained by the fact that under certain conditions the Indo-European e could appear as o, or both e and o could disappear. Water is a native English word, which goes back by way of prehistoric Common Germanic •watar to the Indo-European suffixed form •wodō(r), with an o. Vodka is borrowed from Russian, in which vodka is a diminutive of voda, “water.” Voda goes back to the Indo-European suffixed form •woda-. Whiskey is a shortened form of usquebaugh, meaning “whiskey.” English borrowed usquebaugh from Irish Gaelic uisce beatha and Scottish Gaelic uisge beatha, a compound whose members descend from Old Irish uisce, “water,” and bethad, “of life,” and mean literally “water of life.” Uisce comes from the Indo-European form udskio- (without e or o).

whiskey jack (hwɪs'kē jæk) n. See gray jay. [Alteration of whiskey-john, by folk etymology from Cree dialectal wiiskachaan.]

whiskey sour (hwɪs'kē sour) n. A cocktail made with whiskey, lemon juice, and sugar.

whis-ky (hwɪs'kē, wɪs'-) n. Variant of whiskey.

whis-per (hwɪs'pər, wɪs'(-) n. 1. Soft speech produced without full voice.

2. Something uttered very softly. 3. A secretly or surreptitiously expressed belief, rumor, or hint: whispers of scandal. 4. A low rustling sound: the whisper of wind in the pines. — v. whis-pered, whis-per-ing, whis-pers. — v. intr. 1. To speak softly.

2. To speak quietly and privately, as by way of gossip, slander, or intrigue. 3. To make a soft rustling sound. — v. tr. 1. To utter very softly.

2. To say or tell privately or secretly. [From Middle English whisperen, to whisper, from Old English hwisprian.] — whis'per-er n. — whis'per-y adj.

whist (hwɪst, wɪst) n. Games. A card game ancestral to bridge, played with a full deck by two teams of two players, in which the last card dealt indicates trump, tricks of four cards are played, and a point is scored for each trick over six won by each team. [Alteration (perhaps influenced by the exclamation whist, silence!), of obsolete and dialectal whisk, perhaps from WHISK.]

whis-tle (hwɪs'əl, wɪs'(-) v. whis-tled, whis-ting, whis-tles. — v. intr.

1. To produce a clear musical sound by forcing air through the teeth or through an aperture formed by pursing the lips. 2. To produce a clear, shrill, sharp musical sound by blowing on or through a device. 3. a. To produce a high-pitched sound when moving swiftly through the air: The stone whistled past my head.

b. To produce a high-pitched sound by the rapid movement of air through an opening or past an obstruction: Wind whistled through the cracks in the windows.

4. To emit a shrill, sharp, high-pitched cry, as some birds and other animals.

5. To summon by whistling. — v. tr. 1. To produce by whistling: whistle a tune.

2. To summon, signal, or direct by whistling. 3. To cause to move with a whistling noise. — n. 1. a. A small wind instrument for making whistling sounds by means of the breath. b. A device for making whistling sounds by means of forced air or steam: a factory whistle. 2. A sound produced by a whistling device or by whistling through the lips. 3. A whistling sound, as of an animal or a projectile. 4. The act of whistling. 5. A whistling sound used to summon or command. — idioms. blow the whistle. Slang. To expose a wrongdoing in the hope of bringing it to a halt: an attorney who blew the whistle on governmental corruption. whistle in the dark. To attempt to keep one's courage up. [Middle English whistlen, from Old English hwistlian.]

whistle blower or whis-tle-blow-er or whis-tle-blow-er (hwɪs'əl blō'ər, wɪs'(-) n. Slang. One who reveals wrongdoing within an organization to the public or to those in positions of authority: "The Pentagon's most famous whistle-blower is... hoping to get another chance to search for government waste" (Washington Post). — whis'tle-blow'ing n.

whistle pig (hwɪs'əl pɪg) n. Appalachian Mountains. See woodchuck. See Regional note at woodchuck.

whis-ler (hwɪs'lər, wɪs'(-) n. 1. One that whistles: a whistler of popular tunes.

2. a. A marmot (Marmota caligata) of the mountains of northwest North America, having a grayish coat and a shrill, whistling cry. b. Any of various birds that produce a whistling sound. c. A horse having a respiratory disease characterized by wheezing. 3. Physics. An electromagnetic wave of audio frequency produced by atmospheric disturbances such as lightning, having a characteristically decreasing frequency responsible for a whistling sound of descending pitch in detection equipment.

Whis-ler (hwɪs'lər, wɪs'-), James Abbott McNeill. 1834-1903. American painter whose subtle coloring and tonal harmony were influenced by musical aesthetics and Japanese art. His works include a portrait of his mother, entitled Arrangement in Grey and Black (1872).

whistle stop (hwɪs'əl stɒp) n. 1. A town or station at which a train stops only if signaled. 2. A brief appearance of a political candidate in a small town, traditionally on the observation platform of a train.

whis-tle-stop (hwɪs'əl-stɒp', wɪs'-) v. intr. whis-tle--stopped, whis-tle--stop-ping, whis-tle--stops. To conduct a political campaign by making brief appearances or speeches in a series of small towns.

whis-ting swan (hwɪs'liŋ swɒn, wɪs'-) n. A white North American swan (Olor columbianus) having a soft, musical trumpeting voice and a black beak with a yellow spot at the base.

whit (hwɪt, wɪt) n. The least bit; an iota: doesn't give a whit what was said; not a whit afraid. [Middle English, amount, from Old English wiht. See WIGHT¹.]

Whit-by (hwɪt'bē, wɪt'-) A town of southeast Ontario, Canada, on Lake Ontario northeast of Toronto. It is a port of entry and manufacturing center. Population, 36,698.

white (hwɪt, wɪt) n. Abbr. wh. 1. Color. The achromatic color of maximum lightness; the color of objects that reflect nearly all light of all visible wavelengths; the complement or antagonist of black, the other extreme of the neutral gray series. Although typically a response to maximum stimulation of the retina, the perception of white appears always to depend on contrast. 2. The white or nearly white part, as: a. The albumen of an egg. b. The white part of an eyeball. c. A blank unprinted area, as of an advertisement. 3. One that is white or nearly white, as: a. whites. White trousers or a white outfit of a special nature: tennis whites. b. whites. The white dress uniform of the U.S. Navy or Coast Guard. c. A white wine. d. A white pigment. e. A white breed, species, or variety of animal. f. Also White. A member of a racial group of people having light skin coloration, especially one of European origin. See Usage Note at black. g. Often whites. Products of a white color, such as flour, salt, and sugar. 4. Games. a. The white or light-colored pieces, as in chess. b. The player using these pieces. 5. a. The outermost ring of an archery target. b. A hit in this ring. 6. whites. Pathology. Leukorrhea. 7. A politically ultraconservative or reactionary person. — adj. whit-er, whit-est. Abbr. wh. 1. Being of the color white; devoid of hue, as new snow. 2. Approaching the color white, as: a. Weakly colored; almost colorless; pale: white wine. b. Pale gray; silvery and lustrous: white hair. c. Bloodless; blanched. 3. Light or whitish in color or having light or whitish parts. Used with animal and plant names. 4. Also White. Of, relating to, or belonging to a racial group having light skin coloration, especially one of European origin: voting patterns within the white population. 5. Not written or printed on; blank. 6. Unsullied; pure. 7. Habited in white: white nuns. 8. Accompanied by or mantled with snow: a white Christmas. 9. a. Incandescent: white flames. b. Intensely heated; impassioned: white with fury. 10. Ultraconservative or reactionary. 11. With milk added. Used of tea or coffee. — v. tr. whit-ed, whit-ing, whites. 1. Printing. To create or leave blank spaces in (printed or illustrated matter). Often used with out. 2. Archaic. a. To whiten; whitewash. b. To blanch. [Middle English, from Old English hwīt. See kweit- in Appendix.] —white/ness n.

White (hwīt, wīt), Andrew Dickson. 1832-1918. American educator and diplomat who founded Cornell University with Ezra Cornell and was its first president (1868-1885). He also served as U.S. ambassador to Germany (1897-1902).

White (hwīt, wīt), Byron Raymond. 1917-1993. American jurist who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1962-1993).

White (hwīt, wīt), Edward Douglass. 1845-1921. American jurist who served as an associate justice (1894-1910) and the chief justice (1910-1921) of the U.S. Supreme Court.

White (hwīt, wīt), E(lwyn) B(rooks). 1899-1985. American writer and humorist who contributed essays, editorials, and parodies to the New Yorker. He also wrote children's books, including Charlotte's Web (1952), and revised a 1918 writing manual, The Elements of Style (1959).

White (hwīt, wīt), Gilbert. 1720-1793. British naturalist known for his classic work of ornithology, Natural History and Antiquities of Selborne (1789).

White (hwīt, wīt), John. Died 1593?. English painter and cartographer who traveled to Roanoke Island as a member of Sir Walter Raleigh's colonizing expedition (1585-1586) and executed paintings of native inhabitants and local flora and fauna.

White (hwīt, wīt), Patrick. 1912-1990. Australian writer whose powerfully descriptive and original novels include The Tree of Man (1955) and Voss (1957). He won the 1973 Nobel Prize for literature.

White (hwīt, wīt), Stanford. 1853-1906. American architect. A member of the prominent architectural firm McKim, Mead & White, he was particularly known for his interior designs and his ornate, eclectic buildings.

White (hwīt, wīt), T(erence) H(anbury). 1906-1964. British writer best known for the novel The Once and Future King (1958), a retelling of the Arthurian legend.

- White (hwīt, wīt), T(heodore) H(arold). 1915-1986. American political journalist noted for his commentaries on presidential elections, including The Making of the President 1960 (1961).
- White (hwīt, wīt), Walter Francis. 1893-1955. American writer. The secretary of the NAACP (1931-1955), he wrote novels with racial themes, such as Rising Wind (1945).
- White (hwīt, wīt), William Allen. 1868-1944. American newspaper editor and writer noted for his politically influential editorials and for his autobiography (1946).
- white admiral (hwīt ăd'mər-əl) n. A nymphalid butterfly (Limenitis arthemis) of eastern North America, having a broad white band on blue-black wings.
- white ant (hwīt ănt) n. See termite.
- white-bait (hwīt'bāt', wīt'-) n. 1. The young of various fishes, especially the herring, considered a delicacy when fried. 2. Any of various similar or related small edible fishes.
- white-bark pine (hwīt'bărk' pīn, wīt'-) n. A prostrate shrub or tree (Pinus albicaulis) native to the mountains of Pacific North America and having small, purplish-brown, ovoid seed-bearing cones.
- white bass (hwīt bās) n. A North American freshwater food fish (Morone chrysops) having a silvery color and blackish stripes on each side.
- white bear (hwīt bār) n. See polar bear.
- White Bear Lake (hwīt bār' lāk, wīt') A city of eastern Minnesota, a residential suburb of St. Paul. Population, 24,704.
- white birch (hwīt būrch) n. Any of several birch trees having white bark, as Betula pendula of Europe or the paper birch B. papyrifera of North America.
- white blood cell (hwīt blūd sĕl) n. Abbr. WBC Any of the colorless or white cells in the blood that have a nucleus and cytoplasm and help protect the body from infection and disease through specialized neutrophils, lymphocytes, and monocytes. Also called leukocyte, white cell, white corpuscle.
- white book (hwīt böök) n. An official publication of a national government. [From its formerly being bound in white.]
- white bread (hwīt brĕd) n. Bread made from finely ground, usually bleached wheat flour. Regional. Also called light bread
- white bryony (hwīt brī'ə-nē) n. A climbing Eurasian vine (Bryonia alba) having lobed leaves, greenish-white flowers, and blackish berries.
- white-cap (hwīt'kăp', wīt'-) n. A wave with a crest of foam.
- white cedar (hwīt sē'dər) n. Either of two North American evergreen trees (Thuja occidentalis or Chamaecyparis thyoides) having light-colored wood.
- white cell (hwīt sĕl) n. See white blood cell.
- White Center (hwīt sĕn'tər) A community of west-central Washington, a suburb of Seattle. Population, 20,531.

white chip (hwīt chīp) n. 1. Games. A white disk used in poker as a betting token of minimal value. 2. Something of minimal value or worth.

white cloud (hwīt kloud) n. A small, brightly colored freshwater fish (Tanichthys albonubes) native to China and popular in home aquariums.

white clover (hwīt klō'vər) n. A common European clover (Trifolium repens) widely naturalized in North America, having rounded white flower heads. Also called Dutch clover white-col-lar (hwīt'kōl'ər, wīt'-) adj. Of or relating to workers whose work usually does not involve manual labor and who are often expected to dress with a degree of formality.

white corpuscle (hwīt kōr'pə-səl) n. See white blood cell.

white crab (hwīt krăb) n. See ghost crab.

white crappie (hwīt kröp'ē) n. A silvery, edible North American freshwater fish (Pomoxis annularis) related to the sunfish.

white-crowned sparrow (hwīt'kround' spär'ō, wīt'-) n. A North American sparrow (Zonotrichia leucophrys) having a pearly gray breast and a black-and-white striped crown.

white daisy (hwīt dā'zē) n. See daisy (n., sense 1).

whit-ed sepulcher (hwīt'tīd səp'əl-kər, wīt'-) n. An evil person who pretends to be holy or good; a hypocrite. [From the simile applied by Jesus to hypocrites as exemplified by some scribes and Pharisees (Matthew 23:27).]

white dwarf (hwīt dwōrf) n. A whitish star in a latter stage of development, having low luminosity, small size, and very great density.

white elephant (hwīt ěl'ə-fənt) n. 1. a. A rare, expensive possession that is a financial burden to maintain. b. Something of dubious or limited value. 2. An article, an ornament, or a household utensil no longer wanted by its owner. 3. An endeavor or a venture that proves to be a conspicuous failure. 4. A rare whitish or light-gray form of the Asian elephant, often regarded with special veneration in regions of southeast Asia and India.

white-eye (hwīt'ī', wīt'ī') n. Any of various small greenish birds of the genus Zosterops of Africa, southern Asia, and the Pacific islands, having a narrow ring of white feathers around each eye. Also called silveryeye white-face (hwīt'fās', wīt'-) n. 1. White facial makeup: a mime performing in whiteface. 2. A white-faced animal, especially a Hereford.

white-faced (hwīt'fāst', wīt'-) adj. 1. Having a pale face; pallid. 2. Having a white face or a white patch extending from the muzzle to the forehead: a white-faced antelope; white-faced cattle.

white feather (hwīt'fēth'ər) n. A sign of cowardice. —idiom. show the white feather. To act like a coward. [From the belief that a gamecock with a white feather in its tail was a poor fighter.]

White-field (hwīt'fēld', wīt'-, hwīt'-, wīt'-), George. 1714-1770. British religious leader. A follower of John Wesley, he preached widely in the American colonies and was a central figure in the Great Awakening of Protestantism and the establishment of Methodism in America.

white-fish (hwīt'fish', wīt'-) n. pl. whitefish or white-fish-es. 1. a. Any of various chiefly North American freshwater food fishes of the genus Coregonus, having a generally white or silvery color. b. Any of various similar or related fishes, such as the lake herring, whiting, or menhaden. 2. See beluga (n., sense 2).

white flag (hwīt fläg) n. A white cloth or flag signaling truce or surrender.

white-flow-ered gourd (hwīt'flou'ərd gōrd, wīt'-) n. See calabash (n., sense 1).

white-fly (hwīt'fli', wīt'-) n. Any of various small whitish homopterous insects of the family Aleyrodidae, having long wings and a white waxy body, often injurious to plants.

white-foot-ed mouse (hwīt'foōt'īd mous, wīt'-) n. A semidesert mouse (Peromyscus leucopus) of New Mexico that feeds on crop-damaging insects.

white fox (hwīt fōks) n. The arctic fox in its winter color phase.

White Friar (hwīt frī'ər) n. See Carmelite (n., sense 1). [From the color of the habit.]

white-fronted goose (hwīt'frün'tīd gōōs, wīt'-) n. A gray-brown wild goose (Anser albifrons) of northern regions of Eurasia and North America, having yellow legs and a white area around the bill.

white frost (hwīt frōst) n. See hoarfrost.

white gasoline (hwīt gās'ə-lēn') n. Gasoline containing no tetraethyl lead.

white gold (hwīt gōld) n. An alloy of gold and nickel, sometimes also containing palladium or zinc, having a pale platinumlike color.

White-hall¹ (hwīt'hôl', wīt'-) A wide thoroughfare in London, England, running north and south between Trafalgar Square and the Houses of Parliament. Named after Whitehall Palace (1529-1698), the chief residence of the Court of London, it is noted for its government offices.

White-hall² (hwīt'hôl', wīt'-) 1. A city of central Ohio, an industrial suburb of Columbus. Population, 20,572. 2. A borough of southwest Pennsylvania, a residential suburb of Pittsburgh. Population, 15,206.

White-hall³ (hwīt'hôl', wīt'-) n. The British civil service. [After Whitehall¹.]

white-head (hwīt'hēd', wīt'-) n. See milium.

White-head (hwīt'hēd', wīt'-), Alfred North. 1861-1947. British mathematician and philosopher. A founder of mathematical logic, he wrote Principia Mathematica (1910-1913) with Bertrand Russell.

White-head (hwīt'hĕd', wīt'-), William. 1715-1785. British writer whose works include poetry and plays, including The Roman Father (1750). He was appointed poet laureate in 1757.

white-head-ed (hwīt'hĕd'ĭd, wīt'-) adj. 1. Having white hair, fur, or plumage on the head: white-headed elders; a white-headed bald eagle. 2. Irish. Favorite; darling: our white-headed child.

white heat (hwīt'hēt) n. 1. The temperature or physical condition of a white-hot substance. 2. Intense emotion or excitement: working at white heat to make the deadline.

white hole (hwīt'hōl) n. A hypothetical hole in outer space from which energy, stars, and other celestial matter emerge or explode. [WHITE + (BLACK) HOLE.]

white hope (hwīt'hōp) n. 1. Someone, especially a beginning competitor, whom supporters hope will achieve great success. 2. A white prizefighter believed by fans to have a chance of defeating a Black champion.

White-horse (hwīt'hôrs', wīt'-) The capital and largest city of Yukon Territory, Canada, in the southern part of the territory on the Yukon River. It was an important trading center during the Klondike gold rush (1897-1898) and has been the territorial capital since 1952. Population, 14,814.

white-hot (hwīt'hōt', wīt'-) adj. 1. So hot as to glow with a bright white light. 2. Zealous; fervid.

White House (hwīt'hous) n. 1. The executive branch of the U.S. government. 2. The executive mansion of the President of the United States.

white iron pyrites (hwīt'ī'ərn pī-rī'tēz) n. See marcasite (n., sense 1).

white knight (hwīt'nīt) n. 1. One that comes to the rescue; a savior. 2. A person or company that rescues a targeted firm from a takeover attempt by buying the firm.

white-knuckle (hwīt'nŭk'əl, wīt'-) adj. Slang. Characterized by tense nervousness or apprehension: a white-knuckle emergency landing; white-knuckle time in the hospital waiting room.

white lead (hwīt'lĕd) n. A heavy white poisonous powder, essentially basic lead carbonate, used in paint pigments.

white leather also whit-leath-er (hwīt'lĕth'ər, wīt'-) n. A soft leather specially treated with salt and alum.

white lie (hwīt'lī) n. A trivial, harmless, or well-intentioned untruth.

white lightning (hwīt'līt'nĭng) n. Chiefly Southern U.S. See moonshine (n., sense 3).

white list (hwīt'lĭst) n. A list of people or organizations considered worthy of approval or acceptance. [WHITE + (BLACK)LIST.] —white'-list'ed (hwīt'līs'tĭd, wīt'-) adj.

white-liv-ered (hwīt'lĭv'ərd, wīt'-) adj. Cowardly.

white magic (hwīt māj'ik) n. Magic or incantation practiced for good purposes or as a counter to evil.

white mahogany (hwīt mə-hög'ə-nē) n. See primavera¹ (n., sense 2).

White-man (hwīt'mən, wīt'-), Paul. 1890-1967. American conductor who introduced symphonic jazz to a general audience. He commissioned George Ger-shwin's Rhapsody in Blue.

white man's burden (hwīt mänz bûr'dn) n. The supposed responsibility of white people to govern and impart their culture to nonwhite people. [From "The White Man's Burden", a poem by Rudyard Kipling.]

white marlin (hwīt mär'līn) n. A small marlin (Tetrapturus albidus) of the western Atlantic, having silvery underparts.

white marriage (hwīt mār'ij) n. A marriage without sexual relations.

white matter (hwīt măt'ər) n. Whitish nerve tissue, especially of the brain and spinal cord, consisting chiefly of myelinated nerve fibers.

white meat (hwīt mēt) n. Light-colored meat, especially of poultry.

white metal (hwīt mēt'l) n. Any of various whitish alloys, such as pewter, that contain high percentages of tin or lead.

white mica (hwīt mī'kə) n. See muscovite.

White Mountain (hwīt moun'tən) A peak, 4,345 m (14,246 ft) high, in the Sierra Nevada of east-central California.

White Mountains (hwīt moun'tənz) A section of the Appalachian Mountains in northern New Hampshire rising to 1,917.8 m (6,288 ft) at Mount Washington.

white mulberry (hwīt mül'bër'ē) n. A deciduous Chinese tree (Morus alba) having edible whitish or purplish multiple fruit.

whit·en (hwīt'n, wīt'n) v. tr. intr. whit·ened, whit·en·ing, whit·ens. To make or become white, especially by bleaching. —whit'·en·er n.

white night (hwīt nīt) n. 1. A night without sleep. 2. A night without full darkness, as during the summer in high latitudes.

White Nile (hwīt nīl) A section of the Nile River in eastern Africa flowing generally northward to Khartoum, where it joins the Blue Nile to form the Nile River proper.

white noise (hwīt noiz) n. Acoustical or electrical noise of which the intensity is the same at all frequencies within a given band. [From the analogy with white light.]

white oak (hwīt ōk) n. 1. A large oak (Quercus alba) of eastern North America, having heavy, hard, light-colored wood. 2. See roble (n., sense 1).

white·out (hwīt'out', wīt'-) n. A polar weather condition caused by a heavy cloud cover over the snow, in which the light coming from above is approximately equal to the light reflected from below, and which is characterized by absence of shadow, invisibility of the horizon, and discernibility of only very dark objects.

white paper (hwīt pā'pər) n. 1. A government report. 2. An authoritative report on a major issue, as by a team of journalists.

White Pass (hwīt pās) A pass, 880.8 m (2,888 ft) high, in the Coast Mountains between southeast Alaska and northwest British Columbia, Canada, north of Skagway.

white pepper (hwīt pĕp'ər) n. Pepper ground from peppercorns from which the outer black layer has been removed.

white perch (hwīt pŭrch) n. A small silver-colored food fish (Roccus americana) of the Atlantic coast and freshwater streams of eastern North America.

white pine (hwīt pīn) n. 1. A timber tree (Pinus strobus) of eastern North America, having needles in clusters of five and durable, easily worked wood. 2. The wood of this tree. 3. Any of several other pines having needles in clusters of five.

white plague (hwīt plāg) n. Tuberculosis, especially of the lungs.

White Plains (hwīt plānz) A city of southeast New York, a residential suburb of New York City. Population, 48,718.

white poplar (hwīt pŏp'lər) n. A deciduous Eurasian tree (Populus alba) having palmately lobed leaves with whitish undersides. Also called abele white potato (hwīt pə-tā'tō) n. The edible tuber of the common potato.

white-print (hwīt'prīnt', wīt'-) n. A photomechanical copy, usually of a line drawing, in which black or colored lines appear on a white background.

white rat (hwīt răt) n. A domesticated albino variety of the Norway rat.

White River (hwīt rĭv'ər) 1. A river of northern Arkansas and southern Missouri flowing about 1,110 km (690 mi) generally southeast to the Mississippi River. 2. A river, about 257 km (160 mi) long, of northwest Colorado and eastern Utah flowing westward to the Green River. 3. A river of northwest Nebraska and southern South Dakota flowing about 523 km (325 mi) northeast and east to the Missouri River.

white room (hwīt rōōm) n. See clean room.

White Rus-sia (hwīt rŭsh'ə) See Belarus.

white sauce (hwīt sôs) n. A sauce made with butter, flour, and milk, cream, or stock, used as a base for other sauces.

White Sea (hwīt sē) A sea of northwest Russia, an inlet of the Barents Sea. It was the principal outlet for Muscovite seagoing trade in the 16th century.

white shark (hwīt shărk) n. The great white shark.

white slave (hwīt slāv) n. A woman held unwillingly for purposes of prostitution.

white slaver (hwīt slāv'ər) n. A procurer of or trafficker in white slaves.

white slavery (hwīt slāv'və-rē) n. Forced prostitution.

white-smith (hwīt'smith', wīt'-) n. 1. One who works white metal. 2. One who does finish work, such as polishing, on iron. [WHITE + (BLACK)SMITH.]

- white snakeroot (hwīt snāk' rōōt') n. A poisonous eastern North American plant (Eupatorium rugosum) having opposite, heart-shaped leaves and flat-topped clusters of small white flower heads.
- white space (hwīt spās) n. Space on a page or poster not covered by print or graphic matter.
- white squall (hwīt skwōl) n. A sudden squall occurring in tropical or subtropical waters, characterized by the absence of a dark cloud and the presence of white-capped waves or broken water.
- white squire (hwīt skwīr) n. An investor sympathetic to management who holds a large block of stock in a company that is or could be subject to a takeover unwanted by the management.
- white stork (hwīt stōrk) n. The common stork (Ciconia ciconia) of Europe and Asia, having black and white plumage, a dark red bill, and pinkish-red legs.
- white sturgeon (hwīt stūr'jən) n. A large freshwater food and sport fish (Acipenser transmontanus) of the American Pacific coast.
- white supremacy (hwīt sōō-prēm' ə-sē) n. The belief or theory that the white race is inherently superior to and therefore entitled to rule over all other races. —white supremacist n.
- white-tail (hwīt'tāl', wīt'-) n. See white-tailed deer.
- white-tailed deer (hwīt'tāld' dīr, wīt'-) n. A common North American deer (Odocoileus virginianus) having a grayish coat that turns reddish-brown in summer and a tail that is white on the underside. Also called Virginia deer, whitetail.
- white-throat (hwīt'thrōt', wīt'-) n. 1. Either of two Old World songbirds (Sylvia communis or S. curruca) having brownish plumage and a white throat and belly. 2. See white-throated sparrow.
- white-throat-ed sparrow (hwīt'thrō'tīd spār'ō, wīt'-) n. A large North American sparrow (Zonotrichia albicollis) having a white patch on the throat, black and white stripes on the crown, and a distinctive song. Also called whitethroat
- white tie (hwīt tī) n. 1. A white bow tie worn as a part of men's formal evening dress. 2. Men's formal evening dress. —white/-tie' (hwīt'tī', wīt'-) adj.
- white trash (hwīt trāsh) n. Offensive Slang. Used as a disparaging term for a poor white person or poor white people.
- white vitriol (hwīt vīt'rē-ōl') n. See zinc sulfate.
- White Vol-ta (hwīt vōl'tə, vōl'-, vōl'-) A river of Burkina Faso and northern Ghana flowing about 885 km (550 mi) southward to join the Black Volta and form the Volta River.
- white-wall tire (hwīt'wōl' tīr, wīt'-) n. A vehicular tire having a white sidewall.
- white walnut (hwīt wōl'nūt') n. See butternut (n., sense 1a).

white-wash (hwīt'wōsh', -wōsh', wīt'-) n. 1. A mixture of lime and water, often with whiting, size, or glue added, that is used to whiten walls, fences, or other structures. 2. Concealment or palliation of flaws or failures. 3. Sports & Games. A defeat in a game in which the loser scores no points. — v. tr.

white-washed, white-wash-ing, white-wash-es. 1. To paint or coat with or as if with whitewash. 2. To conceal or gloss over (wrongdoing, for example). See Synonyms at palliate. —white/wash'er n.

white water (hwīt wō'tər) n. Turbulent or frothy water, as in rapids or surf.

white-wa-ter (hwīt'wō'tər, -wōt'ər, wīt'-) adj. Of, relating to, intended for, or taking place on white water, especially in river rapids: white-water rafting.

white whale (hwīt hwāl) n. A small toothed whale (Delphinapterus leucas), chiefly of northern waters, that is white when full-grown. Also called beluga, sea canary.

white-winged dove (hwīt'wīngd' düv, wīt'-) n. A large gray American dove (Zenaida asiatica) having a patch of white on each wing.

white-winged scoter (hwīt'wīngd' skō'tər) n. A large, black North American diving duck (Melanitta deglandi) having a patch of white on each wing.

white-wood (hwīt'wōod', wīt'-) n. 1. Any of various deciduous trees such as the tulip tree, basswood, or cottonwood. 2. The soft, light-colored wood of any of these trees.

whit-ey also Whit-ey (hwī'tē, wī'-) n. pl. whit-eyes. Offensive Slang. Used as a disparaging term for a white person or white people.

whith-er (hwīth'ər, wīth'-) adv. To what place, result, or condition: Whither are we wandering? — conj. 1. To which specified place or position: landed on the shores whither the storm had tossed them. 2. To whatever place, result, or condition: "Whither thou goest, I will go" (Ruth 1:16). [Middle English, from Old English hwider. See k^wo- in Appendix.]

whith-er-so-ev-er (hwīth'ər-sō-ěv'ər, wīth'-) adv. To whatever place; to any place whatsoever.

whit-ing¹ (hwī'tīng, wī'-) n. A pure white grade of chalk that has been ground and washed for use in paints, ink, and putty. [Middle English whityng, from whiten, to whiten, from white, white. See WHITE.]

whit-ing² (hwī'tīng, wī'-) n. pl. whiting or whit-ings. 1. A food fish (Merlangus merlangus) of European Atlantic waters, related to the cod. 2. Any of several marine food fishes of the genera Menticirrhus and Merluccius, including the corbina and the silver hake, of North American coastal waters. [Middle English whitynge, from Middle Dutch wijting. See kweit- in Appendix.]

whit-ish (hwī'tīsh, wī'-) adj. Somewhat white.

whit-leath-er (hwīt'lēth'ər, wīt'-) n. Variant of white leather.

whit·low (hwīt'lō, wīt'-) n. See felon². [Alteration of Middle English whitflawe : white, white (perhaps alteration of Middle Dutch vijt, abscess) + flaue, splinter, flaw; see FLAW¹.]

Whit·man (hwīt'mən, wīt'-), Marcus. 1802-1847. American frontier missionary who with his wife Narcissa Prentiss (1808-1847) established a missionary post in the Oregon region (1836), where they introduced Christianity, schooling, and medical advances to the Native Americans.

Whit·man (hwīt'mən, wīt'-), Walt. 1819-1892. American poet whose great work Leaves of Grass (first published 1855), written in unconventional meter and rhyme, celebrates the self, death as a process of life, universal brotherhood, and the greatness of democracy and the United States.

Whit·mon·day also Whit·Mon·day (hwīt'mūn'dē, -dā', wīt'-) n. The day after Whitsunday.

Whit·ney (hwīt'nē, wīt'-), Eli. 1765-1825. American inventor and manufacturer whose invention of the cotton gin (1793) revolutionized the cotton industry. He also established the first factory to assemble muskets with interchangeable parts, marking the advent of modern mass production.

Whit·ney (hwīt'nē, wīt'-), Josiah Dwight. 1819-1896. American geologist who measured (1864) the highest peak in the continental United States, which was later named after him. His brother William Dwight Whitney (1827-1894), a philologist and lexicographer, edited the Century Dictionary and Cyclopaedia (1889-1891).

Whitney, Mount. A peak, 4,420.7 m (14,494 ft) high, in the Sierra Nevada of east-central California. It is the highest elevation in the contiguous United States.

Whit·sun (hwīt'sən, wīt'-) adj. Of, relating to, or observed on Whitsunday or at Whitsuntide. [Middle English whitsonē, back-formation from whitsonday, Whitsunday. See WHITSUNDAY.]

Whit·sun·day (hwīt'sən-dē, -dā', wīt'-) n. See Pentecost (n., sense 1). [Middle English whitsonday, from Old English hwīta sunnandæg, White Sunday (from the white ceremonial robes worn on this day) : hwīt, white; see WHITE + sunnandæg, Sunday; see SUNDAY.]

Whit·sun·tide also Whit·sun Tide (hwīt'sən-tīd', wīt'-) n. The week beginning on Whitsunday, especially the first three days of this week.

Whit·ta·ker (hwīt'ə-kər, wīt'-), Charles Evans. 1901-1973. American jurist who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1957-1962).

Whit·ti·er (hwīt'ē-ər, wīt'-) A city of southern California east-southeast of Los Angeles. Founded by Quakers in 1887, it is a residential community with varied industries. Population, 77,671.

Whit·ti·er (hwīt'ē-ər, wīt'-), John Greenleaf. 1807-1892. American poet. His early works, such as Voices of Freedom (1846), reflect his opposition to slavery, but he is best known for his nostalgic poems about New England, including Snow-Bound (1866).

Whit-ting-ton (hwīt'īng-tən, wīt'-), Richard. 1358?-1423. English merchant and mayor of London (1397-1399, 1406-1407, and 1419-1420) who loaned large sums of money to Henry IV and Henry V.

whit-tle (hwīt'l, wīt'l) v. whit-tled, whit-ting, whit-tles. — v. tr. 1. a. To cut small bits or pare shavings from (a piece of wood). b. To fashion or shape in this way: whittle a toy boat. 2. To reduce or eliminate gradually, as if by whittling with a knife: whittled down the debt by making small payments. — v. intr. To cut or shape wood with a knife. [From Middle English whyttel, knife, variant of thwitel, from thwiten, to whittle, from Old English thwītan, to strike, whittle down.] — whit'tler n.

Whit-worth (hwīt'wūth', wīt'-), Kathryne Ann. Born 1939. American golfer who was the dominant professional woman golfer in the 1960's.

whiz also whizz (hwīz, wīz) v. whizzed, whiz-zing, whiz-zes. — v. intr.

1. To make a whirring or hissing sound, as of an object speeding through air.

2. To move swiftly with or as if with such a sound; rush: whizzed past on a ten-speed bike; as the days whizzed by. — v. tr. To throw or spin rapidly: The pitcher whizzed the ball to first. — n. 1. A whirring or hissing sound, as of an object speeding through air. 2. A rapid passage or journey. 3. Informal. One who has remarkable skill: a whiz at all sorts of games. [Imitative.]

whiz-bang also whizz-bang (hwīz'bāŋg', wīz'-) Informal. n. One that is conspicuously effective, successful, or skillful: a whiz-bang of a speech. — adj.

1. Conspicuously effective, successful, or skillful: a whiz-bang ad campaign.

2. Very rapid and eventful; rushed: whiz-bang pacing; a whiz-bang schedule.

[From whizzbang, a shell used in World War I that was heard only an instant before landing and exploding : WHIZ + BANG¹.]

whiz kid (hwīz kīd) n. Informal. A young person who is exceptionally intelligent, innovatively clever, or precociously successful. [Alteration of Quiz Kid, a panelist on an early game show.]

whizz-bang (hwīz'bāŋg', wīz'-) n. & adj. Variant of whiz-bang.

who (hō) pron. 1. What or which person or persons: Who left? 2. Used as a relative pronoun to introduce a clause when the antecedent is a person or persons or one to whom personality is attributed: the visitor who came yesterday; our child, who is gifted; informed sources who denied the story. 3. The person or persons that; whoever: Who believes that will believe anything. [Middle English, from Old English hwā. See k^wo- in Appendix.]

USAGE NOTE: The traditional rules that determine the use of who and whom are relatively simple: who is used for a grammatical subject, where a nominative pronoun such as I or he would be appropriate, and whom is used elsewhere. Thus, we write The actor who played Hamlet was there, since who stands for the subject of played Hamlet; and Who do you think is the best candidate? where who stands for the subject of is the best candidate. But we write To whom did you give the letter? since whom is the object of the preposition to; and The man whom the papers criticized did not show up, since whom is the object of the verb criticized.

- Considerable effort and attention are required to apply the rules correctly in complicated sentences. To produce correctly a sentence such as I met the man whom the government had tried to get France to extradite, we must anticipate when we write whom that it will function as the object of the verb extradite, several clauses distant from it. It is thus not surprising that writers from Shakespeare onward should often have interchanged who and whom. And though the distinction shows no signs of disappearing in formal style, strict adherence to the rules in informal discourse might be taken as evidence that the speaker or writer is paying undue attention to the form of what is said, possibly at the expense of its substance. In speech and informal writing who tends to predominate over whom; a sentence such as Who did John say he was going to support? will be regarded as quite natural, if strictly incorrect. By contrast, the use of whom where who would be required, as in Whom shall I say is calling? may be thought to betray a certain linguistic insecurity.
- When the relative pronoun stands for the object of a preposition that ends a sentence, whom is technically the correct form: the strict grammarian will insist on Whom (not who) did you give it to? But grammarians since Noah Webster have argued that the excessive formality of whom in these cases is at odds with the relative informality associated with the practice of placing the preposition in final position and that the use of who in these cases should be regarded as entirely acceptable.
- The relative pronoun who may be used in restrictive relative clauses, in which case it is not preceded by a comma, or in nonrestrictive clauses, in which case a comma is required. Thus, we may say either The scientist who discovers a cure for cancer will be immortalized, where the clause who discovers a cure for cancer indicates which scientist will be immortalized, or The mathematician over there, who solved the four-color theorem, is widely known, where the clause who solved the four-color theorem adds information about a person already identified by the phrase the mathematician over there.
- Some grammarians have argued that only who and not that should be used to introduce a restrictive relative clause that identifies a person. This restriction has no basis either in logic or in the usage of the best writers; it is entirely acceptable to write either the man that wanted to talk to you or the man who wanted to talk to you.
- The grammatical rules governing the use of who and whom apply equally to whoever and whomever. See Usage Note at else. See Usage Note at that. See Usage Note at whose.

WHO abbr. World Health Organization.

whoa (hwō, wō) interj. Used as a command to stop, as to a horse.

who'd (hōōd) 1. Who would. 2. Who had.

who·dun·it (hōō-dŭn'īt) n. Informal. A story dealing with a crime and its solution; a detective story. [Alteration of who done it?.]

who·ev·er (hōō-ĕv'ər) pron. 1. Whatever person or persons: Whoever comes will be welcomed. 2. Who: Whoever could have dreamed of such a thing? See Usage Note at whatever. See Usage Note at who.

whole (hōl) adj. 1. Containing all components; complete: a whole wardrobe for the tropics. 2. Not divided or disjoined; in one unit: a whole loaf. 3. Constituting the full amount, extent, or duration: The baby cried the whole trip home.

4. a. Not wounded, injured, or impaired; sound or unhurt: escaped the fire with a whole skin. b. Having been restored; healed: a whole person again. 5. Having the same parents: a whole sister. 6. Mathematics. Not fractional; integral. — n.

1. A number, group, set, or thing lacking no part or element; a complete thing.

2. An entity or a system made up of interrelated parts: treating the human body as a whole. — adv. Informal. Entirely; wholly: a whole new idea. — idioms. as a whole.

All parts or aspects considered; altogether: disliked the acting but enjoyed the play as a whole. on the whole. 2. Considering everything: on the whole, a happy marriage. 3. In most instances or cases; as a rule: can expect sunny weather, on the whole. [Middle English hole, unharmed, from Old English hāl. See kailo- in Appendix.] — whole/ness n.

SYNONYMS: whole, all, entire, gross, total. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “including every constituent or individual”: a whole town devastated by an earthquake; all the class going on a field trip; entire freedom of choice; gross income; the total cost.

ANTONYM: partial whole blood (hōl blŭd) n. Blood drawn from the body from which no constituent, such as plasma or platelets, has been removed.

whole cloth (hōl klōth) n. Pure fabrication or fiction: “He invented, almost out of whole cloth, what it means to be American” (Ned Rorem). “His account of being drugged, kidnapped and tortured was made up of whole cloth” (George Carver). [From the fabrication of garments out of newly manufactured, full-sized pieces of cloth.]

whole gale (hōl gāl) n. Meteorology. A wind with a speed ranging from 55 to 63 miles (87 to 102 kilometers) per hour, according to the Beaufort scale.

whole·heart·ed (hōl'här'tīd) adj. Marked by unconditional commitment, unstinting devotion, or unreserved enthusiasm: wholehearted approval. See Synonyms at sincere. — whole/heart/ed-ly adv. — whole/heart/ed-ness n.

whole hog (hōl hōg) Slang. n. The whole way; the fullest extent: went the whole hog and ordered dessert. — adv. Completely; unreservedly: swallowed the official version whole hog.

whole life insurance (hōl līf ɪn-shōōr'əns) n. Insurance that provides death protection for the insured's entire lifetime.

whole milk (hōl mīlk) n. Milk from which no constituent, such as fat, has been removed.

whole note (hōl nōt) n. Music. A note having, in common time, the value of four beats.

whole number (hōl nŭm'bər) n. Mathematics. Any of the set of numbers including zero and all negative and positive multiples of 1.

whole-sale (hōl'sāl') n. Abbr. whsle. The sale of goods in large quantities, as for resale by a retailer. — adj. 1. Of, relating to, or engaged in the sale of goods in large quantities for resale: a wholesale produce market; wholesale goods; wholesale prices. 2. Made or accomplished extensively and indiscriminately; blanket: wholesale destruction. — adv. 1. In large bulk or quantity. 2. Extensively; indiscriminately. — v. whole-saled, whole-sal-ing, whole-sales. — v. tr. To sell in large quantities for resale. — v. intr. 1. To engage in wholesale selling. 2. To be sold wholesale. — whole'sal'er n.

whole-some (hōl'səm) adj. whole-som-er, whole-som-est. 1. Conducive to sound health or well-being; salutary: simple, wholesome food; a wholesome climate. 2. Promoting mental, moral, or social health: wholesome entertainment. 3. Enjoying or marked by physical, mental, or moral soundness; healthy. See Synonyms at healthy. [Middle English holsom, from Old English hālsūm*. See kailo- in Appendix.] — whole'some-ly adv. — whole'some-ness n.

whole-wheat (hōl'hwēt', -wēt') adj. 1. Made from the entire grain of wheat, including the bran: whole-wheat flour. 2. Made with whole-wheat flour: whole-wheat bread.

who'll (hōōl) 1. Who will. 2. Who shall.

whol-ly (hō'lē, hōl'lē) adv. 1. Completely; entirely: "The old American purposes are still wholly relevant" (John F. Kennedy). 2. Exclusively; solely.

whom (hōōm) pron. The objective case of who. See Usage Note at who. [Middle English, from Old English hwæm, hwām. See k^wo- in Appendix.]

whom-ev-er (hōōm-ĕv'ər) pron. The objective case of whoever. See Usage Note at who.

whom-so-ev-er (hōōm'sō-ĕv'ər) pron. The objective case of whosoever.

whoop (hōōp, hwōōp, wōōp) n. 1. a. A loud cry of exultation or excitement. b. A shout uttered by a hunter or warrior. 2. A hooting cry, as of a bird. 3. The paroxysmal gasp characteristic of whooping cough. — v. whooped, whoop-ing, whoops. — v. intr. 1. To utter a loud shout or cry. See Synonyms at shout. 2. To utter a hooting cry. 3. To make the paroxysmal gasp characteristic of whooping cough. — v. tr. 1. To utter with a whoop. 2. To chase, call, urge on, or drive with a whoop: whooping the cattle down the road. — idiom. whoop it up. Slang. 1. To have a jolly, noisy celebration. 2. To express or arouse enthusiasm; cheer: conventioners whooping it up for their candidate. [From Middle English whopen, to whoop, variant of hopen, from Old French hopper, of imitative origin.]

whoop-ee (hwōōp'ē, wōōp'ē, hwōō'pē, wōō'-) Slang. interj. Used to express jubilation. — idiom. make whoopee. Slang. 1. To engage in a noisy, boisterous celebration. 2. To make love. [Alteration of WHOOP.]

whoop-er (hōō'pær, hwōō'-, wōō'-) n. 1. A whooping crane. 2. An Old World swan (Cygnus cygnus) having a loud cry.

whoop-ing cough (hōō'pĩng kōf, hwōō'-, wōō'-, hōōp'ĩng) n. A highly contagious disease of the respiratory system, usually affecting children, that is caused by the bacterium Bordetella pertussis and is characterized in its advanced stage by spasms of coughing interspersed with deep, noisy inspirations. Also called pertussis whooping crane (hōō'pĩng krān) n. A large, long-legged North American bird (Grus americana), now very rare, having predominantly white plumage and a loud trumpeting cry.

whoops (hwōōps, wōōps, hwōōps, wōōps) also woops (wōōps, wōōps) interj. Used to express apology or mild surprise.

whoosh (hwōōsh, wōōsh, hwōōsh, wōōsh) n. 1. A sibilant sound: the whoosh of the high-speed elevator. 2. A swift movement or flow; a rush or spurt. — v. intr. whooshed, whoosh-ing, whoosh-es. 1. To make a soft sibilant sound. 2. To move or flow swiftly with or as if with such a sound. [Imitative.]

whop (hwōp, wōp) v. tr. whopped, whop-ping, whops. 1. To strike with a heavy blow. 2. To defeat soundly; thrash. — n. A heavy blow; a sharp thud. [Middle English whappen, variant of wappen, to throw violently.]

whop-per (hwōp'ær, wōp'-) n. Slang. 1. Something exceptionally big or remarkable. 2. A gross untruth. [From WHOPPING.]

whop-ping (hwōp'ĩng, wōp'-) Slang. adj. Exceptionally large: “yet another whopping pay raise” (Lee Atwater). — adv. Used as an intensive: a whopping good joke. [Present participle of WHOP.]

whore (hōr, hōr) n. 1. A prostitute. 2. A person considered sexually promiscuous. 3. A person considered as having compromised principles for personal gain. — v. intr. whored, whor-ing, whores. 1. To associate or have sexual relations with prostitutes or a prostitute. 2. To accept payment in exchange for sexual relations. 3. To compromise one's principles for personal gain. [Middle English hore, from Old English hōre. See kā- in Appendix.]

WORD HISTORY: Derivatives of Indo-European roots often make strange

bedfellows. A prime example is the case of ·kā-, “to like, desire.” From the stem ·kāro- derived from this root came the prehistoric Common Germanic word ·hōraz with the underlying meaning “one who desires” and the effective meaning “adulterer.” From this word came the Old English word hōre, the ancestor of Modern English whore. The same stem produced the Latin word cārus, “dear,” from which came Modern English caress, cherish, and charity, the highest form of love. Contact with East Indian culture has added yet another pair of derivatives from this Indo-European root to the English language. From the stem ·kāmo- came the Sanskrit word kāmaḥ, “love, desire,” from which are derived the English borrowings Kama, “the Hindu god of love,” and Kamasutra, “a Sanskrit treatise on the rules of love and marriage according to Hindu law.”

whore·dom (hôr' dəm, hōr' -) n. 1. The practice of accepting payment in exchange for sexual relations; prostitution. 2. a. Unlawful sexual relations. b. Promiscuous sex. 3. Bible. Unfaithfulness to God; idolatry. [Middle English hordom, from Old Norse hōrdōmr. See kā- in Appendix.]

whore·house (hôr' hous', hōr' -) n. A house of prostitution.

whore·mas·ter (hôr' mäs' tər, hōr' -) n. 1. A man who associates with or pays for sexual relations with prostitutes or a prostitute. 2. A pimp.

whore·mong·er (hôr' mŭng' gər, -mŏng' -, hōr' -) n. A whoremaster.

whore·son (hôr' sən, hōr' -) n. An illegitimate child. — adj. Abominable.

whor·ish (hôr' ish, hōr' -) adj. Of or characteristic of whores or a whore; lewd. — whor'ish·ly adv. — whor'ish·ness n.

whorl (hwôrl, wôrl, hwûrl, wûrl) n. 1. A form that coils or spirals; a curl or swirl: spread the icing in peaks and whorls. 2. Botany. An arrangement of three or more leaves, petals, or other organs radiating from a single node. 3. Zoology. A single turn or revolution of a spiral shell. 4. One of the circular ridges or convolutions of a fingerprint. 5. Architecture. An ornamental device, as in stonework or weaving, consisting of stylized vine leaves and tendrils. 6. A small flywheel that regulates the speed of a spinning wheel. [Middle English whorle, alteration (influenced by wharle, variant of whorlwyl, from Middle Dutch worvel), of whirle, whirl, from whirlen, to whirl. See WHIRL.]

whorled (hwôrlđ, wôrlđ, hwûrlđ, wûrlđ) adj. Having or forming whorls or a whorl: whorled flower parts; a whorled textile pattern.

whort (hwûrt, wûrt) also whor·tle (hwûrt' l, wûrt' l) n. The whortleberry or its fruit. [Variant of dialectal hurt.]

whor·tle·ber·ry (hwûrt' l-běr' ē, wûrt' -) n. 1. Either of two deciduous shrubs, Vaccinium myrtillus, of Eurasia, or V. corymbosum, of eastern North America, having edible blackish berries. 2. The fruit of either of these plants. [Dialectal, variant of hurtleberry.]

who's (hōōz) 1. Who is. 2. Who has.

whose (hōōz) adj. 1. The possessive form of who. 2. The possessive form of which. [Middle English whos, from Old English hwæs. See k^wo- in Appendix.]

USAGE NOTE: It has sometimes been claimed that whose should be used only as the possessive form of who and should thus be restricted to animate antecedents, as in a man whose power has greatly eroded. But there is extensive literary precedent for the use of whose as the possessive of which, as in The play, whose style is rigidly formal, is typical of the period. In an earlier survey this example was acceptable to a large majority of the Usage Panel. The alternate form of which also can be used to this purpose, as in The play, the style of which is rigidly formal, is typical of the period. But as this example demonstrates, substituting of which for whose may result in stiltedness. See Usage Note at else. See Usage Note at which. See Usage Note at who.

who-so-ev-er (hōō'sō-ěv'ər) pron. Whoever.

who's who or Who's Who (hōōz hōō) n. 1. A reference work containing short biographical sketches of outstanding persons in a field: a who's who of musicians. 2. The outstanding or best-known persons of a group.

W-hr abbr. Watt-hour.

whs. abbr. Warehouse.

whsle. abbr. Wholesale.

whup (hwüp, wüp, hwööp, wööp) v. Chiefly Southern U.S. Variant of whip. [Scots, variant of WHIP.]

why (hwī, wī) adv. For what purpose, reason, or cause; with what intention, justification, or motive: Why is the door shut? Why do birds sing? — conj. 1. The reason, cause, or purpose for which: I know why you left. 2. Usage Problem. On account of which; for which: "The reason why [regular verbs] are called regular is that we can predict what all the other three forms are" (Randolph Quirk). — n. pl. whys. 1. The cause or intention underlying a given action or situation: studying the whys of antisocial behavior. 2. A difficult problem or question. — interj. Used to express mild surprise, indignation, or impatience. [Middle English, from Old English hwȳ. See k^wo- in Appendix.]

USAGE NOTE: Many critics have held that why is redundant in the expression the reason why, as in The reason why he accepted the nomination is not clear. It is true that why could be eliminated from such examples with no loss to the sense, but the construction has been used by reputable English writers since the Renaissance. See Usage Note at where.

whyd·ah also whid·ah (hwīd'ə, wīd'ə) n. Any of several African weaverbirds of the genus Vidua, the male of which grows long, drooping, predominantly black tail feathers during the breeding season. Also called widow bird [Probably alteration of WIDOW (BIRD).]

WI abbr. Wisconsin.

w.i. abbr. Business. When issued (financial stock).

W.I. abbr. 1. West Indian. 2. West Indies.

WIA abbr. Wounded in action.

Wic·ca (wĭk'ə) n. 1. A pagan nature religion having its roots in pre-Christian western Europe and undergoing a 20th-century revival, especially in the United States and Great Britain. 2. A group or community of believers or followers of this religion. [Old English wicca, necromancer. See WITCH.]

Wic·can (wĭk'ən) adj. Of or relating to Wicca: the Wiccan religion; a Wiccan ritual. — n. A believer or follower of Wicca; a witch.

Wich·i·ta¹ (wĭch'ĭ-tô') n. pl. Wichita or Wich·i·tas. 1. a. A Native American confederacy formerly inhabiting south-central Kansas and later moving southward into Oklahoma and Texas, with a present-day population in southwest Oklahoma. b. A member of this confederacy. 2. The Caddoan language of the Wichita. [Caddo wĭc'ita.]

Wich·i·ta² (wĭch'ĭ-tô') A city of south-central Kansas on the Arkansas River southwest of Kansas City. It was founded in the 1860's on the site of an earlier Wichita Village and boomed as a cow town after the coming of the railroad in 1872. Population, 304,011.

Wichita Falls (wĭch'ĭ-tô' fôlz) A city of north-central Texas near the Oklahoma border northwest of Fort Worth. It prospered after the discovery of oil in the area in the early 20th century. Population, 96,259.

wick (wĭk) n. 1. A cord or strand of loosely woven, twisted, or braided fibers, as on a candle or an oil lamp, that draws up fuel to the flame by capillary action.

2. A piece of material that conveys liquid by capillary action. — v. tr. intr.

wicked (wĭkt), wick·ing, wicks. To convey or be conveyed by capillary action: absorbent cloth that wicks moisture away from the skin; water gradually wicking up through the bricks. [Middle English wike, from Old English wēoce.]

wick·ed (wĭk'ĭd) adj. wick·ed·er, wick·ed·est. 1. Evil by nature and in practice. See Synonyms at bad¹. 2. Playfully malicious or mischievous: a wicked prank; a critic's wicked wit. 3. Severe and distressing: a wicked cough; a wicked gash; wicked driving conditions. 4. Highly offensive; obnoxious: a wicked stench.

5. Slang. Strikingly good, effective, or skillful: a wicked curve ball; a wicked imitation. — adv. Slang. Used as an intensive: "a... body suit, which she describes as wicked comfortable" (Nathan Cobb). [Middle English, alteration of wicke, ultimately from Old English wicca, sorcerer. See WITCH.] — wick'ed·ly adv.

— wick'ed·ness n.

wick·er (wĭk'ər) n. 1. A flexible plant branch or twig, as of a willow, used in weaving baskets or furniture. 2. Wickerwork. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a wicker chair; a wicker birdcage. [Middle English wiker, of Scandinavian origin. See weik-² in Appendix.]

Wick·er·sham (wĭk'ər-shəm), George Woodward. 1858-1936. American lawyer who as U.S. attorney general (1909-1913) brought antitrust suits against Standard Oil and other corporations.

wick·er·work (wĭk'ər-wŭrk') n. Work made of interlaced plant branches or twigs.

wick·et (wĭk'ĭt) n. 1. A small door or gate, especially one built into or near a larger one. 2. A small window or opening, often fitted with glass or a grating. 3. A sluice gate for regulating the amount of water in a millrace or a canal or for emptying a lock. 4. Sports. In cricket: a. Either of the two sets of three stumps, topped by bails, that forms the target of the bowler and is defended by the batsman. b. A batsman's innings, which may be terminated by the ball knocking the bails off the stumps. c. The termination of a batsman's innings. d. The period during which two batsmen are in together. e. See pitch² (n., sense 3).

5. Games. Any of the small arches, usually made of wire, through which players try to drive their ball in croquet. [Middle English, from Old North French wiket, nook, wicket. See weik-² in Appendix.]

wick·et·keep·er (wĭk'ĭt-kē'pər) n. Sports. The cricket player positioned immediately behind the wicket in play.

wick·i·up also wik·i·up (wĭk'ĭ-ŭp') n. A frame hut covered with matting, as of bark or brush, used by nomadic Native Americans of North America. [Fox wiikiyaapi, wigwam.]

Wick·liffe (wĭk'lĭf) A city of northeast Ohio, an industrial suburb of Cleveland on Lake Erie. Population, 14,558.

Wick·liffe or Wic·lif (wĭk'lĭf), John. See John Wycliffe.

wic·o·py (wĭk'ə-pē) n. pl. wic·o·pies. See leatherwood (n., sense 1). [Eastern Abenaki wikəpi, inner bark used for cordage.]

wid. abbr. 1. Widow. 2. Widower.

Wi·dal test (vē-däl' tĕst) n. A test of blood serum that uses an agglutination reaction to diagnose typhoid fever. [After Fernand Widal (1862-1929), French physician.]

wid·der·shins (wĭd'ər-shĭnz') or with·er·shins (wĭth'-) adv. In a contrary or counterclockwise direction: "The coracle whirled round, clockwise, then widder-shins" (Anthony Bailey). [Middle Low German weddersinnes, from Middle High German widersinnes: wider, back (from Old High German widar); see wi- in Appendix + sinnes, in the direction of (from sin, direction, from Old High German); see sent- in Appendix.]

wide (wĭd) adj. wid·er, wid·est. 1. a. Abbr. w. Having a specified extent from side to side: a ribbon two inches wide. b. Extending over a great distance from side to side; broad: a wide road; a wide necktie. 2. Having great extent or range; including much or many: a wide selection; granting wide powers; wide variations. 3. Fully open or extended: look with wide eyes. 4. a. Being at a distance from a desired goal or point: a shot that was wide of the mark; a claim that was wide of the truth. b. Baseball. Outside. 5. Linguistics. Lax. — adv. wider, widest. 1. Over a great distance; extensively: traveled far and wide. 2. To the full extent; completely. 3. So as to miss a target; astray. — n. Sports. A ball bowled outside of the batsman's reach, counting as a run for the batting team in cricket. [Middle English, from Old English wīd. See wi- in Appendix.]

—wide/ly adv. —wide/ness n.

-wide suff. Extending or effective throughout a specified area or region: state-wide. [From WIDE.]

wide-angle (wīd'äng'gəl) adj. Of, having, or being a camera lens with a relatively short focal length that permits an angle of view wider than approximately 70°.

wide-a-wake (wīd'ə-wāk') adj. 1. Completely awake. 2. Alert; watchful. — n. See sooty tern. —wide/a-wake/ness n.

wide-bodied (wīd'bōd'ēd) adj. Being or relating to a jet aircraft having a wide fuselage with passenger seats divided by two lengthwise aisles.

wide-eyed (wīd'id') adj. 1. Having the eyes completely opened, as in wonder. 2. Innocent; credulous.

wid-en (wīd'n) v. tr. intr. wid-ened, wid-en-ing, wid-ens. To make or become wide or wider. —wid/en-er n.

wide-o-pen (wīd'ō'pən) adj. 1. Completely open: a wide-open door. 2. Being without laws or law enforcement: a wide-open frontier town.

wide-rang-ing (wīd'rān'jīng) adj. Covering a wide area; including much: a pianist's wide-ranging repertoire; a wide-ranging interview.

wide receiver (wīd rī-sē'vər) n. Football. A receiver who usually lines up several yards to the side of the offensive formation.

wide-spread (wīd'sprəd') adj. 1. Spread or scattered over a considerable extent: widespread fallout from a nuclear explosion. 2. Occurring or accepted widely: a widespread misunderstanding.

wid-geon also wi-geon (wīj'ən) n. pl. widgeon also wigeon or also wid-geons. Either of two wild, freshwater ducks (Anas americana of North America or A. penelope of Europe) having a grayish or brownish back and a white belly and wing coverts. The European widgeon has a reddish-brown head and creamy crown, and the American widgeon has a shiny white crown. [Origin unknown.]

widg-et (wīj'it) n. 1. A small mechanical device or control; a gadget. 2. An unnamed or hypothetical manufactured article. [Perhaps alteration of GADGET.]

Wid-nes (wĭd'nĭs) A municipal borough of northwest England on the Mersey River east-southeast of Liverpool. It is a processing and manufacturing center. Population, 122,500.

wid-ow (wĭd'ō) n. 1. Abbr. wid. A woman whose husband has died and who has not remarried. 2. Informal. A woman whose husband is often away pursuing a sport or hobby. 3. Games. An additional hand of cards dealt face down in some card games, to be used by the highest bidder. Also called *kitty*¹ 4. Printing. a. A single, usually short line of type, as one ending a paragraph, carried over to the top of the next page or column. b. A short line at the bottom of a page, column, or paragraph. — v. tr. wid-owed, wid-ow-ing, wid-ows. To make a widow or widower of. [Middle English widewe, from Old English widuwe.]

widow bird (wĭd'ō būrd) n. See whydah. [From its black plumage.]

wid-ow-er (wĭd'ō-ər) n. Abbr. wid. A man whose wife has died and who has not remarried. [Middle English widewer, from widewe, widow. See WIDOW.]

wid-ow-er-hood (wĭd'ō-ər-hōod') n. The condition or period of being a widower.

wid-ow-hood (wĭd'ō-hōod') n. The condition or period of being a widow.

wid-ow's mite (wĭd'ōz mīt) n. A small contribution made by one who has little. [From the widow who gave two small coins to the Temple treasury in the Gospel according to Saint Mark.]

widow's peak (wĭd'ōz pēk) n. A V-shaped point formed by the hair at the middle of the human forehead. [From the superstition that it is a sign of early widowhood.]

widow's walk (wĭd'ōz wōk) n. A railed, rooftop platform typically on a coastal house, originally designed to observe vessels at sea.

width (wĭdth, wĭth, wĭthh) n. 1. The state, quality, or fact of being wide. 2. Abbr. w. The measurement of the extent of something from side to side. 3. A piece of material measured along its smaller dimension, especially a piece of fabric measured from selvage to selvage in sewing. [WIDE + -TH².]

width-wise (wĭdth'wĭz', wĭth'-, wĭthh-) adv. From side to side; in terms of width.

Wie-land (vē'lānt'), Christoph Martin. 1733-1813. German writer and translator whose works include ornate poetry, novels, such as the satire Republic of Fools (1774), and translations of many Shakespearian plays.

Wie-land (vē'lānt'), Heinrich. 1877-1957. German chemist. He won a 1927 Nobel Prize for studying bile acids.

wield (wēld) v. tr. wield-ed, wield-ing, wields. 1. To handle (a weapon or tool, for example) with skill and ease. 2. To exercise (authority or influence, for example) effectively. See Synonyms at handle. [Middle English welden, from Old English wealdan, to rule, and wieldan, to govern; see wal- in Appendix.]

—wield'a-ble adj. —wield'er n.

wield·y (wēl'dē) adj. wield·i·er, wield·i·est. Easily wielded or managed.

Wien (vēn), Wilhelm. 1864-1928. German physicist. He won a 1911 Nobel Prize for formulating laws on the radiation of heat.

wie·ner (wē'nər) n. 1. Wienerwurst. 2. A frankfurter. [German, short for Wienerwurst. See WIENERWURST.]

Wie·ner (wē'nər), Norbert. 1894-1964. American mathematician who founded the field of cybernetics.

Wie·ner schnit·zel (vē'nər shnīt'səl) n. A breaded veal cutlet. [German : Wiener, of Vienna, Austria + schnitzel, cutlet.]

Wie·ner·wald (vē'nər-vält') A forested range of northeast Austria west and northwest of Vienna. It is a popular resort area.

wie·ner·wurst (wē'nər-wûrst', -wöorst') n. A smoked pork or beef sausage similar to a frankfurter. [German : Wiener, of Vienna, Austria + Wurst, sausage; see WURST.]

Wies·ba·den (vēs'bād'n) A city of west-central Germany on the Rhine River west of Frankfurt. Founded as a Celtic settlement in the third century B.C., it has been a noted spa since Roman times. Wiesbaden became a free imperial city c. A.D. 1242 and passed to Prussia in 1866. Population, 267,467.

Wie·sel (vē'səl), Elie(zer). Born 1928. Romanian-born writer and lecturer. A survivor of Nazi concentration camps, he is dedicated to preserving the memory of the Holocaust. He won the 1986 Nobel Peace Prize.

Wie·sel (vē'səl), Torsten Nils. Born 1924. Swedish-born American physiologist. He shared a 1981 Nobel Prize for studies on the organization and function of the brain.

wife (wīf) n. pl. wives (wīvz). Abbr. w. A woman joined to a man in marriage; a female spouse. [Middle English, from Old English wīf.] —wife'hood' n.

wife·ly (wīf'lē) adj. Of or befitting a wife. —wife'li·ness n.

wig (wĭg) n. An artificial covering of human or synthetic hair worn on the head for personal adornment, as part of a costume, or to conceal baldness. — v. tr.

wigged, wig·ging, wigs. To scold or censure. —phrasal verb. wig out.

Slang. To make or become wildly excited or enthusiastic. [Short for PERIWIG.]

wig·an (wĭg'ən) n. A stiff fabric used for stiffening. [After Wigan.]

Wig·an (wĭg'ən) A borough of northwest England northeast of Liverpool. An important market town in the Middle Ages, it is an industrial city in a coal-mining region. Population, 310,000.

wi·geon (wĭj'ən) n. Variant of widgeon.

Wig·gin (wĭg'in), Kate Douglas Smith. 1856-1923. American writer of children's books, including Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm (1903).

wig·gle (wĭg'əl) v. intr. tr. wig·gled, wig·gling, wig·gles. To move or cause to move from side to side with short irregular twisting motions: wiggled restlessly in her chair; wiggle a finger at a waitron. — n. A wiggling movement or course.

—idiom. get a wiggle on. Slang. To hurry or hurry up. [Middle English wiglen, probably from Middle Low German wiggelen, to totter. See wegh- in Appendix.] —wig'gly adj.

wig·gler (wĭg'lər) n. 1. One that wiggles: a toddler who was a real wiggler on plane trips. 2. The larva or pupa of a mosquito.

Wig·gles·worth (wĭg'əlz-wŭrth'), Michael. 1631-1705. English-born American cleric and poet whose works include the popular poem The Day of Doom (1662).

wight¹ (wīt) n. Obsolete. A living being; a creature. [Middle English, from Old English wiht. See wekti- in Appendix.]

wight² (wīt) adj. Archaic. Valorous; brave. [Middle English, from Old Norse vīgt, neuter of vīgr, able to fight. See weik-³ in Appendix.]

Wight (wīt), Isle of. An island in the English Channel off south-central England. It is a popular resort area and yachting center. Queen Victoria often stayed at the Osborne House near Cowes.

Wig·ner (wĭg'nər), Eugene Paul. 1902-1995. Hungarian-born American physicist. He shared a 1963 Nobel Prize for research on the structure of the atom and its nucleus.

wig·wag (wĭg'wäg') v. wig·wagged, wig·wag·ging, wig·wags. — v. intr. 1. To move back and forth; wag steadily or rhythmically: watched the pendulum wigwag. 2. To signal by waving an upraised arm, a flag, or a light, especially in accordance with a code. — v. tr. 1. To move (something) back and forth steadily or rhythmically. 2. To convey (a message or signal) by waving an upraised arm, a flag, or a light. — n. 1. The act or practice of wigwagging. 2. A message sent by this method. [Dialectal wig, to move + WAG¹.] —wig'wag'ger n.

wig·wam (wĭg'wŏm') n. A Native American dwelling commonly having an arched or conical framework overlaid with bark, hides, or mats. [Eastern Abenaki wikəwəm.]

wik·i·up (wĭk'ē-ŭp') n. Variant of wickiup.

Wil·ber·force (wĭl'bər-fŏrs', -fōrs'), William. 1759-1833. British politician. As a member of Parliament (1780-1825) he campaigned for the British abolition of slavery.

Wil·bur (wĭl'bər), Richard Purdy. Born 1921. American poet whose works, including Things of This World (1956), adhere to formal conventions of rhyme and meter.

Wil·cox (wĭl'kŏks'), Ella Wheeler. 1850-1919. American writer whose works include sentimental poetry, such as Poems of Passion (1883), fiction, and spiritual essays.

wild (wĭld) adj. wild·er, wild·est. 1. Occurring, growing, or living in a natural state; not domesticated, cultivated, or tamed: wild geese; edible wild plants.

2. Not inhabited or farmed: remote, wild country. 3. Uncivilized or barbarous; savage. 4. a. Lacking restraint; unruly: wild children living in the streets. b. Characterized by a lack of moral restraint; dissolute or licentious: recalled his wild youth with remorse. 5. Disorderly; disarranged: wild locks of long hair. 6. Full of, marked by, or suggestive of strong, uncontrolled emotion: wild with jealousy; a wild look in his eye; a wild rage. 7. Extravagant; fantastic: a wild idea. 8. Furiously disturbed or turbulent; stormy: wild weather. 9. Risky; imprudent: wild financial schemes. 10. a. Impatiently eager: wild to get away for the weekend. b. Informal. Highly enthusiastic: just wild about the new music. 11. Based on little or no evidence or probability; unfounded: wild accusations; a wild guess. 12. Deviating greatly from an intended course; erratic: a wild bullet. 13. Games. Having an equivalence or value determined by the cardholder's choice: playing poker with deuces wild. — adv. In a wild manner: growing wild; roaming wild. — n. 1. A natural or undomesticated state: returned the zoo animals to the wild; plants that grow abundantly in the wild. 2. An uninhabited or uncultivated region: the wilds of the northern steppes. [Middle English wilde, from Old English.] — wild'ly adv. — wild'ness n.

wild bergamot (wīld bûr'gə-mōt') n. See horsemint (n., sense 1).

wild boar (wīld bôr) n. A wild pig (Sus scrofa) of Eurasia and northern Africa, having dark dense bristles. It is the ancestor of the domestic hog.

wild card (wīld kârd) n. 1. Games. A card assigned specific values that could vary during a game and acquire any value assigned by its holder. 2. Slang. An unpredictable or unforeseeable factor: A surprise witness proved to be the wild card at the trial.

wild carrot (wīld kâr'ət) n. See Queen Anne's lace.

wild-cat (wīld'kăt') n. 1. Any of various wild felines of small to medium size, especially of the genus Lynx, including the bobcat and the caracal. 2. Either of two small felines (Felis silvestris subsp. silvestris or subsp. lybica) of Europe, Asia, and Africa, often regarded as being the ancestor of the domestic cat. 3. a. A quick-tempered person. b. A person regarded as fierce. 4. An oil or natural-gas well drilled in an area not known to be productive. 5. A workers' strike unauthorized by their union. — adj. 1. a. Risky or unsound, especially financially. b. Issued by a financially irresponsible bank: wildcat currency. c. Operating or accomplished outside the norms of standard, ethical business procedures: wildcat life insurance schemes. 2. Of, relating to, or being an oil or natural-gas well drilled speculatively in an area not known to be productive. 3. Undertaken by workers without approval of the officials of their union: a wildcat strike. — v. wild-cat-ted, wild-cat-ting, wild-cats. — v. tr. To prospect for (oil, for example) in an area supposed to be unproductive. — v. intr. 1. To prospect for oil or other minerals in an area not known to be productive. 2. To go out on an unauthorized labor strike.

wild-cat-ter (wīld'kăt'ər) n. 1. One who is engaged in speculative mining or well drilling in areas not known to be productive. 2. A promoter of speculative or fraudulent enterprises. 3. A worker who participates in a wildcat strike.

wild celery (wīld sēl'ə-rē) n. See eelgrass.

Wilde (wīld), Oscar (Fingal O'Flahertie Wills). 1854-1900. Irish-born writer. Renowned as a wit in London literary circles, he achieved recognition with The Picture of Dorian Gray (1891), a novel. He also wrote plays of lively dialogue, such as The Importance of Being Earnest (1895), and poetry, including The Ballad of Reading Gaol (1898).

wil-de-beest (wīl'də-bēst', vīl'-) n. pl. wil-de-beests or wildebeest. See gnu. [Obsolete Afrikaans : Dutch wild, wild (from Middle Dutch wilt) + Dutch beest, beast (from Middle Dutch beeste, from Old French beste); see BEAST.]

wil-der (wīl'dər) v. wil-dered, wil-der-ing, wil-ders. Archaic. — v. tr. 1. To lead astray; mislead. 2. To bewilder; perplex. — v. intr. 1. To lose one's way. 2. To become bewildered. [Perhaps Middle English wildren*, blend of wilden, to be wild (from wilde, wild); see WILD, and wanderen, to wander; see WANDER.]

—wil'der-ment n.

Wil-der (wīl'dər), Billy. Born 1906. Austrian-born American filmmaker whose works include Double Indemnity (1944), Some Like It Hot (1959), and Fedora (1978).

Wil-der (wīl'dər), Laura Ingalls. 1867-1957. American writer of novels, such as Little House on the Prairie (1935), based on her childhood on the American frontier.

Wil-der (wīl'dər), Thornton (Niven). 1897-1975. American writer whose works include novels, such as The Bridge of San Luis Rey (1927), and the theatrically innovative drama Our Town (1938).

wil-der-ness (wīl'dər-nīs) n. 1. An unsettled, uncultivated region left in its natural condition, especially: a. A large wild tract of land covered with dense vegetation or forests. b. An extensive area, such as a desert or an ocean, that is barren or empty; a waste. c. A piece of land set aside to grow wild. 2. Something characterized by bewildering vastness, perilousness, or unchecked profusion: the wilderness of the city; the wilderness of counterespionage; a wilderness of voices. [Middle English, from Old English wilddeornes*, probably from wilddeor, wild beast : wilde, wild + dēor, wild animal.]

WORD HISTORY: Deer comes from the Old English word dēor, meaning “beast.” Clearly the word has narrowed in meaning and lost its general sense. But another word in English, wilderness, may point to this general sense of Old English dēor. The etymology of wilderness is variously given, but one etymology traces the -der- of wilderness back to dēor and wild- back to Old English wilde, “wild.” Der- may thus carry on dēor in its general sense, reminding us that wild beasts might be the only inhabitants of a wilderness. Wilderness, though it may have existed in Old English, is first found in 13th-century Middle English.

Wil-der-ness Road (wɪl'dər-nɪs rōd) The principal route for westward migration in the United States from c. 1790 to 1840. Blazed largely by Daniel Boone in 1775, it stretched from Virginia and across the Appalachian Mountains to the Cumberland Gap and the Ohio River.

wild-eyed (wɪld'ɪd') adj. 1. Glaring in or as if in anger, terror, or madness.

2. Extreme and passionate in belief or advocacy: wild-eyed conservatives.

wild fennel (wɪld fɛn'əl) n. Any of various Mediterranean and western Asian annual herbs of the genus Nigella, having finely dissected leaves, showy white, blue, or yellow solitary flowers, and an aggregate fruit composed of several follicles. Also called nigella wild-fire (wɪld'fɪr') n. 1. A raging, rapidly spreading fire. 2. Something that acts very quickly and intensely: a land swept by the wildfire of revolution.

3. Lightning occurring without audible thunder. 4. A luminosity that appears over swamps or marshes at night; ignis fatuus. 5. A highly flammable material, such as Greek fire, once used in warfare.

wild-flow-er also wild flow-er (wɪld'flou'ər) n. 1. A flowering plant that grows in a natural, uncultivated state. 2. The flower of such a plant.

wild-fowl (wɪld'foul') n. pl. wildfowl or wild-fowls. A wild game bird, such as a duck, goose, or quail.

wild geranium (wɪld jə-rā'nē-əm) n. A North American woodland plant (Geranium maculatum) having rose-purple flowers. Also called spotted cranesbill wild ginger (wɪld ʃɪn'jər) n. Any of various plants of the genus Asarum, especially A. canadense of North America, having broad leaves, a solitary brownish flower, and an aromatic root. Also called heartleaf wild goose (wɪld gōōs) n. Any of numerous species of undomesticated geese, as the Canada goose and the graylag.

wild-goose chase (wɪld'gōōs' chās) n. A futile pursuit or search.

wild hyacinth (wɪld hɪ'ə-sɪnth) n. See eastern camass.

wild indigo (wɪld ɪn'di-gō') n. Any of several North American plants of the genus Baptisia, especially B. tinctoria, having trifoliolate leaves and bright yellow flowers.

wild-ing (wɪl'dɪŋ) n. 1. A plant that grows wild or has escaped from cultivation, especially a wild apple tree or its fruit. 2. A wild animal. — adj.

1. Growing wild; not cultivated. 2. Undomesticated. [From WILD.]

wild-life (wɪld'lɪf') n. Wild animals and vegetation, especially animals living in a natural, undomesticated state.

wild lily of the valley (wīld līl'ē ÷v thē vāl'ē) n. A perennial woodland herb (Maianthemum canadense) of North America, having a terminal cluster of small fragrant white flowers.

wild-ling (wīld'lıng) n. A wild plant or animal, especially a wild plant transplanted to a cultivated spot.

wild marjoram (wīld mār'jər-əm) n. See marjoram.

wild oat (wīld ōt) n. 1. Often wild oats. An annual Eurasian grass (Avena fatua) related to the cultivated oat. 2. wild oats. Misdeeds and indiscretions committed when young.

wild olive (wīld ōl'iv) n. See devilwood.

wild pansy (wīld pān'zē) n. The heartsease.

wild pink (wīld pıngk) n. A perennial herb (Silene caroliniana) native to the eastern United States, having pink or white flowers, opposite leaves, and glandular, hairy flower clusters.

wild pitch (wīld pıch) n. Baseball. An erratic pitch that the catcher cannot be expected to catch and that enables a base runner to advance.

wild rice (wīld rīs) n. 1. A tall aquatic annual grass (Zizania aquatica) of North America, bearing edible grain. 2. The grain of this plant.

wild rye (wīld rī) n. Any of various grasses of the genus Elymus of the Northern Hemisphere.

wild turkey (wīld tūr'kē) n. A wild variety of turkey, especially one from which the common domesticated North American turkey is developed.

wild type (wīld tıp) n. The typical form of an organism, strain, gene, or characteristic as it occurs in nature, as distinguished from mutant forms that may result from selective breeding.

Wild West (wīld wěst) n. The western United States during the period of its settlement, especially with reference to its lawlessness.

wild-wood (wīld'wōöd') n. A forest or wooded area in its natural state.

wile (wīl) n. 1. A stratagem or trick intended to deceive or ensnare. See Synonyms at artifice. 2. A disarming or seductive manner, device, or procedure: the wiles of a skilled negotiator. 3. Trickery; cunning. — v. tr. wiled, wil-ing, wiles. 1. To influence or lead by means of wiles; entice. 2. To pass (time) agreeably: wile away a Sunday afternoon. [Middle English wil, from Old North French, from Old Norse vēl, trick, and or of Low German origin.]

wil-ful (wīl'fəl) adj. Variant of willful.

Wil-helm (vīl'hělm) See William.

Wil-hel-mi-na (wīl'ə-mē'nə, vīl'hěl-), 1880-1962. Queen of the Netherlands (1890-1948) who sought refuge in England during World War II but continued to encourage the Dutch resistance. In 1948 she abdicated in favor of her daughter Juliana.

Wil-helms-ha-ven (vīl'hělmz-hä'fən) A city of northwest Germany on an inlet of the North Sea. It was a major naval base during World Wars I and II and is now a port, an industrial center, and a resort with a new naval base rebuilt after 1956. Population, 97,495.

Wilkes (wīlks), Charles. 1798-1877. American naval officer and explorer of Antarctica and the Pacific coast of North America. Wilkes Land was named after him.

Wilkes (wīlks), John. 1727-1797. British political reformer noted for his published attacks on George III and for his support of the rights of American colonists.

Wilkes-Bar-re (wīlks'bär'ē, -bär'ə) A city of northeast Pennsylvania on the Susquehanna River southwest of Scranton. It was settled in 1769 and was twice burned (1778 and 1784) by the British and their allies during the American Revolution. Population, 47,523.

Wilkes Land (wīlks länd) A coastal region of Antarctica south of Australia. Most of the area has been included in Australia's Antarctic claims since 1936.

Wil-kins (wīl'kīnz), Sir George Hubert. 1888-1958. Australian explorer and aviator who was the first to explore the Arctic by air (1928).

Wil-kins (wīl'kīnz), Maurice Hugh Frederick. Born 1916. British biophysicist. He shared the 1962 Nobel Prize in physiology or medicine for advances in the study of DNA.

Wil-kins (wīl'kīnz), Roy. 1901-1981. American civil rights leader. Long associated with the NAACP, he asserted that racial equality should be achieved through the democratic process.

Wil-kins-burg (wīl'kīnz-bûrg') A borough of southwest Pennsylvania, a mainly residential suburb of Pittsburgh. Population, 21,080.

Wil-kin-son (wīl'kīn-sən), Sir Geoffrey. Born 1921. British chemist. He shared a 1973 Nobel Prize for research on pollutants in automobile exhaust.

Wil-kin-son (wīl'kīn-sən), James. 1757-1825. American Revolutionary general who was implicated in a plot to cede the Kentucky region to Spain but was eventually acquitted of all charges.

will¹ (wīl) n. 1. a. The mental faculty by which one deliberately chooses or decides upon a course of action; volition. b. The act of exercising the will. 2. a. Diligent purposefulness; determination: a candidate with the will to win. b. Self-control; self-discipline: lacked the will to overcome the addiction. 3. A desire, purpose, or determination, especially of one in authority: It is the sovereign's will that the prisoner be spared. 4. Deliberate intention or wish: Let it be known that I took this course of action against my will. 5. Free discretion; inclination or pleasure: wandered about, guided only by will. 6. Bearing or attitude toward others; disposition: full of good will. 7. a. A legal declaration of how a person wishes his or her possessions to be disposed of after death. b. A legally executed document containing this declaration. — v. willed, will-ing, wills.

— v. tr. 1. To decide on; choose. 2. To yearn for; desire: “She makes you will your own destruction” (George Bernard Shaw). 3. To decree, dictate, or order. 4. To resolve with a forceful will; determine. 5. To induce or try to induce by sheer force of will: We willed the sun to come out. 6. To grant in a legal will; bequeath.
— v. intr. 1. To exercise the will. 2. To make a choice; choose. —idiom. at will. Just as or when one wishes. [Middle English, from Old English willā. See wel-¹ in Appendix.]

will² (wīl) v. aux. Past tense would (wōōd). 1. Used to indicate simple futurity: They will appear later. 2. Used to indicate likelihood or certainty: You will regret this. 3. Used to indicate willingness: Will you help me with this package? 4. Used to indicate requirement or command: You will report to me afterward. 5. Used to indicate intention: I will too if I feel like it. 6. Used to indicate customary or habitual action: People will talk. 7. Used to indicate capacity or ability: This metal will not crack under heavy pressure. 8. Used to indicate probability or expectation: That will be the messenger ringing. — v. tr. intr. To wish; desire: Do what you will. Sit here if you will. See Usage Note at shall. [Middle English willen, to intend to, from Old English willan. See wel-¹ in Appendix.]

Wil-lam-ette (wə-lām'it) A river, about 473 km (294 mi) long, of northwest Oregon flowing generally northward to the Columbia River near Portland. The Willamette Valley, a fertile agricultural region, was first settled in the 1830's by pioneers traveling west along the Oregon Trail.

Wil-lard (wīl'ərd), Emma Hart. 1787-1870. American educator who was an early proponent of higher education for women.

Wil-lard (wīl'ərd), Frances Elizabeth Caroline. 1839-1898. American reformer. An ardent advocate of temperance and women's suffrage, she was the national president of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union (1879-1898).

willed (wīld) adj. 1. Having a will of a specified kind. Often used in combination: weak-willed; iron-willed. 2. Determined by or proceeding from the will; deliberate: “that most strained, willed, wooden, lifeless of novels” (Joyce Carol Oates).

wil-lem-ite (wīl'ə-mīt') n. A colorless, vitreous to resinous, often fluorescent mineral, Zn_2SiO_4 , a minor ore of zinc. [Dutch willemite, after Willem I (1772-1843), king of the Netherlands.]

Wil-lem-stad (vīl'əm-stät') The capital of the Netherlands Antilles, on the southern coast of Curaçao. Founded in 1634, it is a free port, a tourist resort, and an industrial center. Population, 43,547.

wil-let (wīl'it) n. A large grayish shore bird (Catoptrophorus semipalmatus) of North America, having black wings with a broad white stripe. [Imitative of its call.]

will·ful also wil·ful (wɪl'fəl) adj. 1. Said or done on purpose; deliberate. See Synonyms at voluntary. 2. Obstinate bent on having one's own way. See Synonyms at unruly. —will'ful·ly adv. —will'ful·ness n.

Wil·liam (wɪl'yəm) also Wil·helm (vɪl'hɛlm), 1882-1951. German crown prince. The son of Emperor William II, he commanded troops in the Battle of Verdun (1916) and renounced the crown at the close of World War I.

Wil·liam I¹ (wɪl'yəm), Known as "William the Conqueror." 1027?-1087. King of England (1066-1087) and duke of Normandy (1035-1087). He led the Norman invasion of England (1066) after being promised the English throne by his cousin Edward the Confessor. He defeated Harold at the Battle of Hastings and as king adopted a feudal constitution.

Wil·liam I² (wɪl'yəm), Prince of Orange. Known as "William the Silent." 1533-1584. Dutch stadholder (1579-1584) who was made governor of Holland, Zeeland, and Utrecht (1559) by Phillip II of Spain. Spurred by the Spanish persecution of Protestants, he led a revolt against Spanish rule (1568-1576).

Wil·liam I³ (wɪl'yəm) also Wil·helm I (vɪl'hɛlm), 1797-1888. King of Prussia (1861-1888) and emperor of Germany (1871-1888) whose reign was marked by war with Austria (1866), the Franco-Prussian War (1870-1871), and the wide reforms introduced by Bismarck.

Wil·liam II¹ (wɪl'yəm), Known as "William Rufus." 1056?-1100. King of England (1087-1100). He was the second son of William the Conqueror, on whose death he succeeded to the throne.

Wil·liam II² (wɪl'yəm) also Wil·helm II (vɪl'hɛlm), 1859-1941. Emperor of Germany and king of Prussia (1888-1918). Grandson of Queen Victoria, he supported the Afrikaners in South Africa and Austria's demands on Serbia (1914). He was forced to abdicate at the end of World War I.

Wil·liam III (wɪl'yəm), Known as "William of Orange." 1650-1702. King of England, Scotland, and Ireland (1689-1702), Dutch stadholder (1672-1702), and prince of Orange. Married to Mary, daughter of James II, he was asked by the opponents of James to invade England (1688) and was proclaimed joint monarch with Mary (1689) after James fled.

Wil·liam IV (wɪl'yəm), Known as "the Sailor King." 1765-1837. King of Great Britain and Ireland (1830-1837). Son of George III and brother of George IV, he ascended to the throne after a long naval career. Leaving no direct heir, he was succeeded by his niece Victoria.

Wil·liam of Mal·mes·bur·y (wɪl'yəm ŏf məmz'bɛr'ē, -bə-rē, -brē), 1090?-1143?. English monk and historian whose works include Chronicle of the Kings of England, written in Latin.

Wil·liam of Orange (wɪl'yəm ŏv ɔr'ɪnj) See William III.

Wil-liams (wīl'yəmz), Elizabeth. Known as "Betty." Born 1943. Irish peace activist. She shared the 1976 Nobel Peace Prize for work in Northern Ireland's peace movement.

Wil-liams (wīl'yəmz), Roger. 1603?-1683. English cleric in America. After being expelled from Massachusetts for his criticism of Puritanism, he founded Providence (1636), a community based on religious freedom and democratic ideals, and obtained a royal charter for Rhode Island in 1663.

Wil-liams (wīl'yəmz), Tennessee. Originally Thomas Lanier Williams. 1911-1983. American playwright whose works often concern family tensions and sexual anxiety. They include The Glass Menagerie (1944), A Streetcar Named Desire (1947), and Cat on a Hot Tin Roof (1955).

Wil-liams (wīl'yəmz), Theodore Samuel. Known as "Ted." Born 1918. American baseball player. Among the best hitters in the history of the game, he accrued 521 home runs and a .344 batting average as left fielder for the Boston Red Sox (1939-1960).

Wil-liams (wīl'yəmz), William Carlos. 1883-1963. American poet whose verse is marked by a lucid, spare style and vivid observations of the everyday. His works include Collected Poems (1934) and Paterson (1946-1958).

Wil-liams-burg (wīl'yəmz-bûrg') A city of southeast Virginia northwest of Newport News. Settled c. 1632, it was the capital of Virginia from 1699 to 1779 but declined after the capital was moved to Richmond. In 1926 a large-scale restoration project, financed mainly by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., was begun, in which some 700 modern buildings were removed, 83 colonial buildings were renovated, and more than 400 buildings were reconstructed on their original sites. The city is now a popular tourist center and the seat of William and Mary College (established 1693). Population, 11,530.

Wil-liam-son (wīl'yəm-sən), Mount. A peak, 4,382.9 m (14,370 ft) high, in the Sierra Nevada of east-central California.

Wil-liams-port (wīl'yəmz-pôrt', -pôrt') A city of central Pennsylvania north of Harrisburg. It developed as a lumbering center in the 19th century. Population, 31,933.

William the Conqueror (wīl'yəm thē kŏng'kær-ər) See William I¹.

wil-lies (wīl'ēz) pl.n. Slang. Feelings of uneasiness. Often used with the: The dark, dank cave gave me the willies. [Origin unknown.]

will-ing (wīl'ing) adj. 1. Disposed or inclined; prepared: I am willing to overlook your mistakes. 2. Acting or ready to act gladly; eagerly compliant: "The spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak" (Matthew 26:41). 3. Done, given, accepted, or borne voluntarily or ungrudgingly. See Synonyms at voluntary. 4. Of or relating to exercise of the will; volitional. —will'ing-ly adv. —will'ing-ness n.

Wil-ling-bo-ro (wĭl'ĭng-bŭr'ō, -bŭr'ō) A community of south-central New Jersey northeast of Camden. It is mainly residential. Population, 36,291.

wil-li-waw (wĭl'ē-wō') n. 1. A violent gust of cold wind blowing seaward from a mountainous coast, especially in the Straits of Magellan. 2. A sudden gust of wind; a squall. [Origin unknown.]

Will-kie (wĭl'kē), Wendell Lewis. 1892-1944. American politician who was the Republican nominee for President in 1940.

Will-mar (wĭl'mär', -mər) A city of southwest-central Minnesota west-northwest of Minneapolis. It is an industrial, processing, and medical center. Population, 17,531.

wil-o'-the-wisp (wĭl'ə-thə-wĭsp') n. 1. See ignis fatuus (n., sense 1). 2. A delusive or misleading hope. [From the name Will (nickname for William).]

Wil-lough-by (wĭl'ə-bē) A city of northeast Ohio on Lake Erie northeast of Cleveland. Its manufactures include electronic components. Population, 20,510.

wil-low (wĭl'ō) n. 1. a. Any of various deciduous trees or shrubs of the genus Salix, having usually narrow leaves, unisexual flowers borne in catkins, and strong lightweight wood. b. The wood of any of these trees. 2. Something, such as a cricket bat, that is made from willow. 3. A textile machine consisting of a spiked drum revolving inside a chamber fitted internally with spikes, used to open and clean unprocessed cotton or wool. — v. tr. wil-lowed, wil-low-ing, wil-lows. To open and clean (textile fibers) with a willow. [Middle English wilowe, from Old English welig. See wel-² in Appendix.]

Wil-low (wĭl'ō) A town of southern Alaska north of Anchorage. It has been proposed as a new state capital because of its central location.

Willow Grove (wĭl'ō grōv) A community of southeast Pennsylvania, an industrial suburb of Philadelphia. Population, 16,325.

willow herb (wĭl'ō ūrb) n. See fireweed (n., sense 1).

Wil-lo-wick (wĭl'ə-wĭk') A city of northeast Ohio, a residential suburb of Cleveland on Lake Erie. Population, 15,269.

willow oak (wĭl'ō ōk) n. A deciduous timber tree (Quercus phellos) of the southern and central United States, having narrow, linear to oblong willowlike leaves.

willow ptarmigan (wĭl'ō tär'mĭ-gən) n. The common ptarmigan (Lagopus lagopus) of Arctic regions, having brownish plumage that turns white in winter.

wil-low-ware (wĭl'ō-wâr') n. Household china decorated with a blue-on-white design depicting a willow tree and often a river.

wil-low-y (wĭl'ō-ē) adj. wil-low-i-er, wil-low-i-est. 1. Planted with or abounding in willows. 2. Resembling a willow tree, especially: a. Flexible; pliant. b. Tall, slender, and graceful.

will-pow-er or will pow-er (wĭl'pou'ər) n. The strength of will to carry out one's decisions, wishes, or plans.

Wills (wīlz), Helen Newington. Also Helen Wills Moody. Born 1906. American tennis player who was the dominant woman player in the 1920's and 1930's.

Will-stät-ter (wīl'shtēt'ər, vīl'-), Richard. 1872-1942. German chemist. He won a 1915 Nobel Prize for studying chlorophyll and other materials that color plants.

wil·ly-nil·ly (wīl'ē-nīl'ē) adv. 1. Whether desired or not: After her boss fell sick, she willy-nilly found herself directing the project. 2. Without order or plan; haphazardly. — adj. 1. Being or occurring whether desired or not: willy-nilly cooperation. 2. Disordered; haphazard: willy-nilly zoning laws. [Alteration of will ye (or he), nill ye (or he), be you (or he) willing, be you (or he) unwilling.]

Wil-mette (wīl-mēt') A village of northeast Illinois, a residential suburb of Chicago on Lake Michigan. Population, 26,690.

Wil-ming-ton (wīl'mīng-tən) 1. A city of northeast Delaware on the Delaware River southwest of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. It was founded as Fort Christina by Swedish settlers in 1638 and held by the Dutch from 1655 until 1664, when it was taken by the English. The name Wilmington dates from 1739. E.I. Du Pont established a powder mill nearby in 1802. The city is now a port of entry and manufacturing center with an extensive chemical industry. It is also the largest city in the state. Population, 71,529. 2. A town of northeast Massachusetts, an industrial suburb of Boston. Population, 17,654 3. A city of southeast North Carolina on the Cape Fear River south-southeast of Raleigh. Settled c. 1730, it was used as a port by blockade runners during the Civil War and is now a manufacturing and resort center and the state's largest port. Population, 55,530.

Wil-mot (wīl'mət, -mōt'), David. 1814-1868. American politician. A U.S. representative (1845-1851) and senator (1861-1863) from Pennsylvania, he introduced (1846) a proviso to prohibit slavery in territories acquired during the Mexican War (1846-1848).

Wil-son (wīl'sən) A city of east-central North Carolina east of Raleigh. It is a trade and processing center. Population, 36,930.

Wil-son (wīl'sən), Charles Thomson Rees. 1869-1959. British physicist. He shared a 1927 Nobel Prize for devising the cloud chamber.

Wil-son (wīl'sən), Edith Bolling. 1872-1961. First Lady of the United States (1915-1921) as the second wife of President Woodrow Wilson. She was actively involved in government during the serious illness of her husband (1919-1920).

Wil-son (wīl'sən), Edmund. 1895-1972. American literary critic whose influential works include Axel's Castle (1931), a study of the symbolist movement, and Patriotic Gore (1962), a critique of literature from the Civil War era.

Wil-son (wīl'sən), Ellen Louise Axson. 1860-1914. First Lady of the United States (1913-1914) as the first wife of President Woodrow Wilson. She died during Wilson's first term.

Wil-son (wĭl'sən), Henry. Originally Jeremiah Jones Colbath. 1812-1875. Vice President of the United States (1873-1875) under Ulysses S. Grant.

Wil-son (wĭl'sən), James. 1742-1798. American Revolutionary patriot and jurist. A signer of the Declaration of Independence, he later served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1789-1798).

Wil-son (wĭl'sən), (James) Harold Baron Wilson of Rievaulx. Born 1916. British politician who served as prime minister (1964-1970 and 1974-1976). His administration was marked by turmoil in Rhodesia and Northern Ireland and resistance to a price and income policy. He resigned in 1976.

Wil-son (wĭl'sən), Kenneth Geddes. Born 1936. American physicist. He won a 1982 Nobel Prize for studying the changes in matter under pressure and temperature.

Wilson, Mount. 1. A mountain, 1,741.6 m (5,710 ft) high, in the San Gabriel Mountains of southwest California northeast of Pasadena. Its observatory was established in 1904. 2. A peak, 4,345 m (14,246 ft) high, in the San Juan Mountains of southwest Colorado.

Wil-son (wĭl'sən), Robert Woodrow. Born 1936. American physicist and radio astronomer. He shared a 1978 Nobel Prize for research on cosmic microwave radiation.

Wil-son (wĭl'sən), (Thomas) Woodrow. 1856-1924. The 28th President of the United States (1913-1921), whose administration was marked by World War I and the introduction of prohibition. At the Paris Peace Conference (1919) he included the establishment of the League of Nations as a proviso of the Treaty of Versailles. The winner of the 1919 Nobel Peace Prize, he was unable to convince the U.S. Senate to ratify the treaty. —Wil-so'ni-an (-sō'nĕ-ən) adj.

Wil-son's disease (wĭl'sənz dī-zēz') n. A rare hereditary disease caused by a defect in the body's ability to metabolize copper that results in an accumulation of copper deposits in organs such as the brain, liver, and kidneys. [After Samuel A.K. Wilson (1878-1937), British neurologist.]

Wilson's phalarope (wĭl'sənz fāl'ə-rōp') n. A grayish American wading bird (Phalaropus tricolor) with white underparts and a needlelike bill. [After Alexander Wilson (1766-1813), Scottish-born American ornithologist.]

Wilson's snipe (wĭl'sənz snīp) n. A common North American snipe (Capella gallinago subsp. delicata.) [After Alexander Wilson (1766-1813), Scottish-born American ornithologist.]

Wilson's thrush (wĭl'sənz thrʊsh) n. See veery. [After Alexander Wilson (1766-1813), Scottish-born American ornithologist.]

Wilson's warbler (wĭl'sənz wôr'blər) n. A North American warbler (Wilsonia pusilla) with olive-green plumage, yellow underparts, and a black patch on top of the head. [After Alexander Wilson (1766-1813), Scottish-born American ornithologist.]

wilt¹ (wīlt) v. wilt-ed, wilt-ing, wilts. — v. intr. 1. To become limp or flaccid; droop: plants wilting in the heat. 2. To feel or exhibit the effects of fatigue or exhaustion; weaken markedly: “His brain wilted from hitherto unprecedented weariness” (Vladimir Nabokov). — v. tr. 1. To cause to droop or lose freshness. 2. To deprive of energy or vigor; fatigue or exhaust. — n. 1. The act of wilting or the state of being wilted. 2. Any of various plant diseases characterized by slow or rapid collapse of terminal shoots, branches, or entire plants. [Possibly alteration of dialectal welk, from Middle English welken.]

wilt² (wīlt) v. aux. Archaic. A second person singular present tense of will².

Wil-ton¹ (wīl'tən) A town of southwest Connecticut north of Norwalk. It is mainly residential. Population, 15,989.

Wil-ton² (wīl'tən) n. A carpet woven on a jacquard loom and having a velvety surface formed by the cut loops of a pile. [After Wilton, a municipal borough of south-central England.]

Wilt-shire (wīlt'shîr, -shər) n. A white sheep of a breed originating in England, characterized by a long head with spiraling horns. [After Wiltshire, a county of south-central England.]

wi-ly (wī'lî) adj. wi-li-er, wi-li-est. Full of wiles; cunning. See Synonyms at sly. — wil'i-ly adv. — wil'i-ness n.

wim-ble (wĭm'bəl) n. Any of numerous hand tools for boring holes. [Middle English, from Anglo-Norman, probably from Middle Dutch wimmel. See weip- in Appendix.] — wim'ble v.

Wim-ble-don (wĭm'bəl-dən) A district of southern Greater London, England. It is the site of a major annual tennis tournament.

wimp (wĭmp) n. Slang. A person who is regarded as weak or ineffectual: “the impression that he is a colorless, indecisive wimp, and not a leader among men” (James J. Kilpatrick). [Perhaps from WHIMPER.] — wimp'ish adj. — wimp'y adj.

wim-ple (wĭm'pəl) n. 1. A cloth wound around the head, framing the face, and drawn into folds beneath the chin, worn by women in medieval times and as part of the habit of certain orders of nuns. 2. a. A fold or pleat in cloth. b. A ripple, as on the surface of water. c. A curve or bend. — v. wim-pled, wim-pling, wim-ples. — v. tr. 1. To cover with or dress in a wimple. 2. To cause to form folds, pleats, or ripples. — v. intr. 1. Archaic. To form or lie in folds. 2. To ripple. [Middle English wimpel, from Old English. See weip- in Appendix.]

Wims-hurst machine (wĭmz'hûrst' mæ-shēn') n. An electrostatic generator having oppositely rotating mica or glass disks with metal carriers on which charges are produced by induction, used chiefly as a demonstration apparatus. [After James Wimshurst (1832-1903), British engineer.]

win (wĭn) v. won (wŭn), win-ning, wins. — v. intr. 1. To achieve victory or finish first in a competition. 2. To achieve success in an effort or a venture:

struggled to overcome the handicap and finally won. — v. tr. 1. To achieve victory or finish first in. 2. To receive as a prize or reward for performance. 3. a. To achieve or attain by effort: win concessions in negotiations. b. To obtain or earn (a livelihood, for example). See Synonyms at earn¹. 4. To make (one's way) with effort. 5. To reach with difficulty: The ship won a safe port. 6. To take in battle; capture: won the heights after a fierce attack. 7. To succeed in gaining the favor or support of; prevail on: Her eloquence won over the audience. 8. a. To gain the affection or loyalty of. b. To appeal successfully to (someone's sympathy, for example). c. To persuade (another) to marry one: He wooed and won her. 9. a. To discover and open (a vein or deposit) in mining. b. To extract from a mine or from mined ore. — n. 1. a. A victory, especially in a competition. b. First place in a competition. 2. An amount won or earned. — phrasal verbs. win out. To succeed or prevail. win through. To overcome difficulties and attain a desired goal or end. — idiom. win the day. To be successful. [Middle English winnen, from Old English winnan, to fight, strive. See wen⁻¹ in Appendix.]

wince (wĩns) v. intr. winced, winc-ing, winc-es. To shrink or start involuntarily, as in pain or distress; flinch. — n. A shrinking or startled movement or gesture. [Middle English wincen, to kick, from Old North French wencier*, variant of Old French guencir, of Germanic origin.] — winc'er n.

winch (wĩnch) n. 1. A stationary motor-driven or hand-powered hoisting machine having a drum around which is wound a rope or chain attached to the load being lifted. 2. The crank used to give motion to a grindstone or similar device. — v. tr. winched, winch-ing, winch-es. To move with or as if with a winch. [Middle English winche, pulley, from Old English wince, reel, roller.] — winch'er n.

Win-chell (wĩn'chəl), Walter. 1897-1972. American journalist whose newspaper column "On Broadway" (1924-1963) and radio newscasts (1932-1953) reported on entertainment and politics.

Win-ches-ter¹ (wĩn'chēs'tər, -chĩ-stər) 1. A municipal borough of south-central England southwest of London. The capital of the Anglo-Saxon kingdom of Wessex, it was an important center of learning that attracted many religious scholars after the Norman Conquest (1066). Population, 32,100. 2. A city of east-central Kentucky east-southeast of Lexington. It is a manufacturing and processing center in a tobacco and livestock area. Population, 15,799. 3. A town of northeast Massachusetts, a residential suburb of Boston. Population, 20,267. 4. A community of southeast Nevada, a suburb of Las Vegas. Population, 23,365. 5. An independent city of northern Virginia west-northwest of Washington, D.C. Settled c. 1744, it was an important military base during the French and Indian War and the Civil War, in which it changed hands a number of times. George Washington began his career as a surveyor here in 1748. Population, 21,947.

Win-ches-ter² (wɪn'chɛs'tər, -chə-stər) A trademark used for a shoulder fire-arm.

Winck-el-mann (vɪŋk'kəl-män'), Johann Joachim. 1717-1768. German archaeologist and antiquary. Considered the father of archaeology, he was the first to study ancient art as history.

wind¹ (wɪnd) n. 1. a. Moving air, especially a natural and perceptible movement of air parallel to or along the ground. b. A movement of air generated artificially, as by bellows or a fan. 2. a. The direction from which a movement of air comes: The wind is north-northwest. b. A movement of air coming from one of the four cardinal points of the compass: the four winds. 3. Moving air carrying sound, an odor, or a scent. 4. a. Breath, especially normal or adequate breathing; respiration: had the wind knocked out of them. b. Gas produced in the stomach or intestines during digestion; flatulence. 5. Often winds. Music. a. The brass and woodwinds sections of a band or an orchestra. b. Wind instruments or their players considered as a group. 6. a. Something that disrupts or destroys: the winds of war. b. A tendency; a trend: the winds of change. 7. Information, especially of something concealed; intimation: Trouble will ensue if wind of this scandal gets out. 8. a. Speech or writing empty of meaning; verbiage. b. Futile or idle labor or thought. — v. tr. wind-ed, wind-ing, winds. 1. To expose to free movement of air; ventilate or dry. 2. a. To detect the smell of; catch a scent of. b. To pursue by following a scent. 3. To cause to be out of or short of breath. 4. To afford a recovery of breath: stopped to wind and water the horses. — idioms. before the wind. Nautical. In the same direction as the wind. close to the wind. Nautical. As close as possible to the direction from which the wind is blowing. in the wind. Likely to occur; in the offing: Big changes are in the wind. near the wind. Nautical. Close to the wind. 5. Close to danger. off the wind. Nautical. In a direction away from the wind. on the wind (or into the wind) (or down the wind). Nautical. In the same or nearly the same direction as the wind. under the wind. Nautical. To the leeward. 9. In a location protected from the wind. up the wind. Nautical. In a direction opposite or nearly opposite the wind. [Middle English, from Old English wind. See wē- in Appendix.]

wind² (wɪnd) v. wound (wound), wind-ing, winds. — v. tr. 1. To wrap (something) around a center or another object once or repeatedly: wind string around a spool. 2. To wrap or encircle (an object) in a series of coils; entwine: wound her injured leg with a bandage; wound the waist of the gown with lace and ribbons. 3. a. To go along (a curving or twisting course): wind a path through the mountains. b. To proceed on (one's way) with a curving or twisting course. 4. To introduce in a disguised or devious manner; insinuate: He wound a plea for money into his letter. 5. To turn (a crank, for example) in a series of circular motions. 6. a. To coil the spring of (a mechanism) by turning a stem or cord, for example: wind a watch. b. To coil (thread, for example), as onto a spool or into a ball. c. To remove or unwind (thread, for example), as from a spool: wound the line off the reel. 7. To lift or haul by means of a windlass or winch: Wind the pail to the top of the well. — v. intr. 1. To move in or have a curving or twisting course: a river winding through a valley. 2. a. To move in or have a spiral or circular course: a column of smoke winding into the sky. b. To be coiled or spiraled: The vine wound about the trellis. 3. To be twisted or whorled into curved forms. 4. To proceed misleadingly or insidiously in discourse or conduct. 5. To become wound: a clock that winds with difficulty. — n. 1. The act of winding. 2. A single turn, twist, or curve. — phrasal verbs. wind down. Informal. 1. To diminish gradually in energy, intensity, or scope: The party wound down as guests began to leave. 2. To relax; unwind. wind up. 3. To come or bring to a finish; end: when the meeting wound up; wind up a project. 4. To put in order; settle: wound up her affairs before leaving the country. 5. Informal. To arrive in a place or situation after or because of a course of action: took a long walk and wound up at the edge of town; overspent and wound up in debt. 6. Baseball. To swing back the arm and raise the foot in preparation for pitching the ball. [Middle English winden, from Old English windan.]

wind³ (wīnd, wīnd) v. tr. wind-ed (wīn'dīd, wīn'-) or wound (wound), wind-ing, winds. Music. 1. To blow (a wind instrument). 2. To sound by blowing. [From WIND¹.] — wind'er n.

wind-age (wīn'dīj) n. 1. a. The effect of wind on the course of a projectile. b. The point or degree at which the wind gauge or sight of a rifle or gun must be set to compensate for the effect of the wind. c. The difference in a given firearm between the diameter of the projectile fired and the diameter of the bore of the firearm. 2. The disturbance of air caused by the passage of a fast-moving object, such as a railway train. 3. Nautical. The part of the surface of a ship left exposed to the wind.

Win-daus (vīn'dous'), Adolf. 1876-1959. German chemist. He won a 1928 Nobel Prize for conducting research on sterols and their connection with vitamins.

wind-bag (wīnd'bāg') n. 1. Music. The flexible air-filled chamber of a bagpipe, an accordion, or a similar wind instrument. 2. Slang. A talkative person who communicates nothing of substance or interest.

wind-bell (wīnd'bēl') n. 1. A light bell that can be sounded by the wind. 2. wind-bells. See wind chimes.

wind-blast (wīnd'blāst') n. 1. An exceedingly strong gust of wind. 2. The damaging effect of air friction on a pilot ejected from a high-speed aircraft.

wind-blown (wīnd'blōn') adj. 1. Blown or dispersed by the wind: windblown pollen. 2. Growing or shaped in a manner governed by the prevailing winds:

windblown scrub pines. 3. Cut short and curled or combed toward the front of the head: a windblown hairstyle.

wind-borne (wɪnd' bôrn', -bôrn') adj. Carried by the wind: wind-borne ashes.

wind-break (wɪnd' brāk') n. A hedge, fence, or row of trees serving to lessen or break the force of the wind.

Wind-break-er (wɪnd' brā' kər) A trademark used for a warm outer jacket having close-fitting, often elastic, cuffs and waistband. This trademark often occurs in print in lowercase and in the plural: "Whether a trenchcoat, balmacaan or windbreaker, it is a coverup that makes sense" (New York Times). "Politicians love photo opportunities featuring helicopters, devastation and nifty windbreakers" (San Francisco Chronicle).

wind-bro-ken (wɪnd' brō' kən) adj. Suffering from the heaves or other impairment of breathing. Used of a horse.

wind-burn (wɪnd' bûrn') n. A reddened irritation of the skin caused by long exposure to the wind. —wind/burned' adj.

wind-chill factor (wɪnd' chɪl' fāk'tər) n. The temperature of windless air that would have the same effect on exposed human skin as a given combination of wind speed and air temperature.

wind chimes (wɪnd chīmz) pl.n. An arrangement of small suspended pieces, as of glass, metal, or ceramic, hung loosely together so that they tinkle pleasingly when blown by the wind. Also called wind-bells wind cone (wɪnd kōn) n. See windsock.

wind-ed (wɪn' dɪd) adj. 1. Having breath or respiratory power of a specified kind. Often used in combination: short-winded; broken-winded. 2. Out of breath: a winded runner.

wind-er¹ (wɪn' dər) n. 1. One that winds, especially a textile worker or machine that winds cloth or materials. 2. An object, such as a spool or barrel, around which material is wound. 3. A device, such as a key, for winding up a spring-driven mechanism. 4. One of the steps of a winding staircase.

win-der² (wɪn' dər) n. Upper Southern U.S. Variant of window. See Regional note at holler².

Win-der-mere (wɪn' dər-mîr'), Lake. A lake of northwest England. It is the largest lake in England and a popular tourist area in the Lake District.

wind-fall (wɪnd' fôl') n. 1. A sudden, unexpected piece of good fortune or personal gain. 2. Something, such as a ripened fruit, that has been blown down by the wind.

wind-flaw (wɪnd' flô') n. A sudden gust or blast of wind.

wind-flow-er (wɪnd' flou' ər) n. See anemone (n., sense 1).

wind gap (wɪnd gǎp) n. A shallow notch in the crest of a mountain ridge.

Wind-ham (wɪn' dəm) A town of east-central Connecticut north-northwest of Norwich. It is an industrial center. Population, 22,039.

wind harp (wɪnd hɑːrp) n. See Aeolian harp.

Windhoek (vɪnt'hoːk') The capital of Namibia, in the central part of the country. Originally the headquarters of a Nama leader, it was occupied by German forces in 1885. Population, 88,700.

wind-ing (wɪn'dɪŋ) n. 1. a. Something wound about a center or an object: an armature with its wire winding. b. The way in which something is wound. c. One complete turn of something wound: two windings of electrical tape. 2. A curve or bend, as of a road. — adj. 1. Twisting or turning; sinuous. 2. Spiral. — wind'ing-ly adv.

wind-ing-sheet (wɪn'dɪŋ-shē't') n. A sheet for wrapping a corpse; a shroud.

wind instrument (wɪnd ɪn'strə-mənt) n. Music. An instrument, such as a clarinet, trumpet, or harmonica, in which sound is produced by the movement of an enclosed column of air, especially the breath.

wind-jam-mer (wɪnd'jəm'ər) n. Nautical. A large sailing ship.

wind-lass (wɪnd'læs) n. Any of numerous hauling or lifting machines consisting essentially of a horizontal cylinder turned by a crank or a motor so that a line attached to the load is wound around the cylinder. — v. tr. wind-lassed, wind-lass-ing, wind-lass-es. To raise with a windlass. [Middle English wynd-las, alteration of windas, from Old Norse vindäss : vinda, to wind + äss, pole.]

win-dle-straw (wɪn'dl-strô') n. Chiefly British. A thin, dried stalk of grass. [Old English windelstrēaw : windel, basket (from windan, to wind) + strēaw, straw; see STRAW.]

wind-mill (wɪnd'mɪl') n. 1. A machine that runs on the energy generated by a wheel of adjustable blades or slats rotated by the wind. 2. Something, such as a toy pinwheel, that is similar to a windmill in appearance or operation. — v. intr. tr. wind-milled, wind-mill-ing, wind-mills. To move or cause to move like the wheel of a windmill; rotate sweepingly. — idiom. tilt at windmills. To confront and engage in conflict with an imagined opponent or threat.

Win-dom Peak (wɪn'dəm pēk) A mountain, 4,295 m (14,082 ft) high, in the San Juan Mountains of southwest Colorado.

win-dow (wɪn'dō) n. 1. a. An opening constructed in a wall or roof that functions to admit light or air to an enclosure and is often framed and spanned with glass mounted to permit opening and closing. b. A framework enclosing a pane of glass for such an opening; a sash. c. A pane of glass or similar material enclosed in such a framework. 2. a. An opening that resembles a window in function or appearance. b. The transparent panel on a window envelope. 3. The area or space immediately behind a window, especially at the front of a shop. 4. A means of access or observation: St. Petersburg was Peter the Great's window onto the Baltic. 5. An interval of time during which an activity can or must take place: a brief window of opportunity for a space mission; a window of vulnerability during which the air force was subject to attack. 6. Strips of foil dropped from an aircraft to confuse enemy radar; chaff. 7. A range of electromagnetic frequencies that pass unobstructed through a planetary atmosphere. 8. Computer Science. A small area on a screen in which a file or a part of a file can be displayed. 9. Aerospace. a. A launch window. b. An area at the outer limits of the earth's atmosphere through which a spacecraft must pass in order to return safely. [Middle English, from Old Norse vindauga : vindr, air, wind; see wē- in Appendix + auga, eye; see ok^w- in Appendix.]

WORD HISTORY: The word window conceals a poetic image that is not at all transparent. Our word comes to us from the Scandinavian invaders and settlers of England in the early Middle Ages. Although we have no record of the exact word they gave us, it was related to Old Norse vindauga, “window,” a compound made up of vindr, “wind,” and auga, “eye,” reflecting the fact that at one time windows contained no glass. In our time we have taken window, which has been recorded in the language for almost 800 years, in a figurative direction with phrases such as launch window, weather window, and window of opportunity or vulnerability. Rockets and missiles now travel through the “wind’s eye.”

window box (wɪnˈdō bɒks) n. 1. A usually long, narrow box for growing plants, placed on a windowsill or ledge. 2. One of the vertical grooves on the inner sides of a window frame for the weights that counterbalance the sash.

win·dow·dress·ing also win·dow dress·ing (wɪnˈdō-drɛsˈɪŋ) n.

1. a. Decorative exhibition of retail merchandise in store windows. b. Goods and trimmings used in such displays. 2. A means of improving appearances or creating a falsely favorable impression: The candidate called the new users’ fees a window-dressing for a tax increase. —winˈdow·dressˈer n.

window envelope (wɪnˈdō ɛnˈvə-lɒpˈ) n. An envelope with a transparent panel that reveals the address on the enclosure.

win·dow·pane (wɪnˈdō-pānˈ) n. A piece of glass in a window.

window shade (wɪnˈdō shād) n. An opaque fabric mounted to cover or expose a window.

win·dow·shop (wɪnˈdō-shɒpˈ) v. intr. win·dow--shopped, win·dow--shop·ping, win·dow--shops. To look at merchandise in store windows or showcases without making purchases. —winˈdow·shopˈper n.

win·dow·sill (wɪnˈdō-sɪlˈ) n. The horizontal member at the base of a window opening.

wind·pipe (wɪndˈpɪpˈ) n. Anatomy. See trachea (n., sense 1).

Wind River (wɪnd rɪvˈɛr) A river, about 193 km (120 mi) long, of west-central Wyoming flowing generally southeast as a tributary of the Bighorn River.

Wind River Range (wɪnd rɪvˈɛr rānj) A section of the Rocky Mountains in west-central Wyoming rising to 4,210.2 m (13,804 ft) at Gannett Peak.

Wind River Shoshone (wĭnd rĭv'ər shō-shō'nē) n. See Shoshone (n., sense 1c).

wind rose (wĭnd rōz) n. A meteorological diagram depicting the distribution of wind direction and speed at a location over a period of time. [Translation of German Windrose, compass card : Wind, wind, air + Rose, rose.]

wind-row (wĭnd'rō') n. 1. A row, as of leaves or snow, heaped up by the wind. 2. A long row of cut hay or grain left to dry in a field before being bundled. — v. tr. wind-rowed, wind-row-ing, wind-rows. To shape or arrange into a windrow. — wind'row'er n.

wind-sail-ing (wĭnd'sā'lĭng) n. Sports. See windsurfing. [WIND(SURFING) + (BOARD)SAILING.]

wind-screen (wĭnd'skrēn') n. 1. A screen for protection against the wind. 2. Chiefly British. The windshield of a motor vehicle.

wind-shake (wĭnd'shāk') n. A crack or separation between growth rings in timber, attributed to the straining of tree trunks in high winds.

wind shear (wĭnd shîr) n. A change in wind direction and speed between slightly different altitudes, especially a sudden downdraft.

wind-shield (wĭnd'shēld') n. 1. A framed pane of usually curved glass or other transparent shielding located in front of the occupants of a vehicle to protect them from the wind. 2. A shield placed to protect an object from the wind.

wind-sock (wĭnd'sök') n. A tapered, open-ended sleeve pivotally attached to a standard, that indicates the direction of the wind blowing through it. Also called air sock, wind cone, wind sleeve.

Wind-sor¹ (wĭn'zər) Ruling house of Great Britain (since 1917), including George V, who adopted the name Windsor in 1917, and his descendants Edward VIII, George VI, and Elizabeth II.

Wind-sor² (wĭn'zər) 1. A city of southeast Ontario, Canada, on the Detroit River opposite Detroit, Michigan. Settled by the French after 1701, it is a port of entry and an industrial center. Population, 192,083. 2. A municipal borough of south-central England on the Thames River southwest of London. Windsor Castle has been a royal residence since the time of William the Conqueror. Population, 28,700. 3. A town of northern Connecticut north of Hartford. Settled c. 1635, it is the oldest town in the state. Population, 27,817.

Wind-sor (wĭn'zər), Duke of. See Edward VIII.

Wind-sor (wĭn'zər), Wallis Warfield Duchess of Windsor. 1896-1986. American divorcée who married the Duke of Windsor, formerly Edward VIII of England, in 1937.

Windsor chair (wĭn'zər châr) n. A wooden chair having a high spoked back, outward-slanting legs connected by a crossbar, and a saddle seat. [After Windsor², England.]

Windsor knot (wɪn'zər nɒt) n. A wide, triangular slipknot used to tie a four-in-hand necktie. [Perhaps after the Duke of. WINDSOR.]

Windsor tie (wɪn'zər tī) n. A wide silk necktie tied in a loose bow.

wind sprint (wɪnd sprɪnt) n. Sports. A sprint run repeatedly to develop breath and endurance.

wind-storm (wɪnd'stɔrm') n. A storm with high winds or violent gusts but little or no rain.

wind-suck-ing (wɪnd'sʊk'ɪŋ) n. The injurious habit of drawing in and swallowing air. Used of horses. —wind/suck-er n.

wind-surf (wɪnd'sɜrf') v. intr. wind-surfed, wind-surf-ing, wind-surfs. Sports. To engage in windsurfing.

Wind-surf-er (wɪnd'sɜrf'fɛr) A trademark used for a brand of sailboard.

wind-surf-ing (wɪnd'sɜrf'fɪŋ) n. Sports. The sport of sailing while standing on a sailboard. Also called boardsailing, windsailing.

wind-swept (wɪnd'swɛpt') adj. Exposed to or swept by winds: windswept moors.

wind tee (wɪnd tē) n. A large weathervane with a horizontal T-shaped wind indicator, commonly found at airfields.

wind tunnel (wɪnd tʌn'əl) n. A chamber through which air is forced at controlled velocities in order to study the effects of aerodynamic flow around airfoils, scale models, or other objects.

wind-up or wind-up (wɪnd'ʊp') n. 1. a. The act of bringing something to an end. b. A concluding part; a conclusion. 2. Baseball. The movements of a pitcher, including the swinging back of the arm and the raising of the forward foot, preparatory to pitching the ball. — adj. Operated by a spring that is wound up by hand.

wind-ward (wɪnd'wɔrd) adj. 1. Of or moving toward the quarter from which the wind blows. 2. Of or on the side exposed to the wind or to prevailing winds. — adv. In a direction from which the wind blows; against the wind. — n. The direction from which the wind blows. —idiom. to windward. Into or to an advantageous posture or position.

Wind-ward Islands (wɪnd'wɔrd ɪ'lændz) An island group of the southeast West Indies, including the southern group of the Lesser Antilles from Martinique south to Grenada.

Windward Passage (wɪnd'wɔrd pæs'ɪj) A channel between eastern Cuba and northwest Haiti connecting the Atlantic Ocean with the Caribbean Sea.

wind-y (wɪn'dē) adj. wind-i-er, wind-i-est. 1. Characterized by or abounding in wind: a windy night. 2. Open to the wind; unsheltered: a windy terrace. 3. Swift, forceful, or variable: windy haste. 4. a. Lacking substance; empty: windy promises. b. Given to or characterized by prolonged talk; verbose: a windy speaker. 5. Flatulent. —wind/i-ly adv. —wind/i-ness n.

wine (wīn) n. 1. a. A beverage made of the fermented juice of any of various kinds of grapes, usually containing from 10 to 15 percent alcohol by volume. b. A beverage made of the fermented juice of any of various other fruits or plants. 2. Something that intoxicates or exhilarates. 3. Color. The color of red wine. — v. wined, win-ing, wines. — v. tr. To provide or entertain with wine. — v. intr. To drink wine. [Middle English, from Old English wīn, from Latin vīnum.]

wine-bib-bing (wīn'bib'ing) adj. Given to much drinking of wine. — n. Habitual drinking of wine. — wine'bib'ber n.

wine cellar (wīn sĕl'ər) n. 1. A place for storing wine. 2. A stock of wines.

wine cooler (wīn kōō'lər) n. 1. A container, such as an ice-filled bucket or chest, for cooling wine. 2. A bottled mixture of wine, fruit juice, and sometimes soda water.

wine-glass (wīn'glās') n. A glass, usually with a stem, from which wine is drunk.

wine-grow-er (wīn'grō'ər) n. One that owns a vineyard and produces wine.

wine-mak-ing (wīn'mā'king) n. The art and science of making wine.

— wine'mak'er n. — wine'mak'ing adj.

wine palm (wīn pām) n. Any of various palm trees having sap or juice from which wine is made.

wine-press (wīn'prĕs') n. 1. A vat in which the juice is pressed from grapes.

2. A machine or device that presses the juice from grapes.

win-er-y (wī'nə-rĕ) n. pl. win-er-ies. An establishment at which wine is made.

Wine-sap (wīn'săp') n. A variety of apple having fruit with dark red skin.

wine-skin (wīn'skīn') n. A bag made from the skin of a goat for example, and used for holding and dispensing wine.

wine taster (wīn tā'stər) n. 1. One who evaluates the quality of wine by tasting it, especially on a professional basis. 2. A small bowl used to hold wine for tasting.

wine-tast-ing (wīn'tā'sting) n. A gathering of people to taste and compare a number of wines.

wine-y (wī'nĕ) adj. Variant of winy.

wing (wīng) n. 1. One of a pair of movable organs for flying, as the feather-covered modified forelimb of a bird or the skin-covered modified digits of the forelimb of a bat. 2. Any of usually four membranous organs for flying that extend from the thorax of an insect. 3. A winglike organ or structure used for flying, as the folds of skin of a flying squirrel or the enlarged pectoral fin of a flying fish.

4. Botany. a. A thin or membranous extension, such as of the fruit of the elm, maple, or ash or of the seed of the pine. b. One of the lateral petals of the flower of a pea or of most plants in the pea family. 5. Informal. An arm of a human being. 6. An airfoil whose principal function is providing lift, especially either of two such airfoils symmetrically positioned on each side of the fuselage of an aircraft. 7. Something that resembles a wing in appearance, function, or position relative to a main body. 8. a. The act or manner of flying. b. A means of flight or of rapid ascent. 9. a. Something, such as a weathervane, that is moved by or moves against the air. b. The sail of a ship. 10. Chiefly British. The fender of a motor vehicle. 11. A folding section, as of a double door or of a movable partition. 12. Either of the two side projections on the back of a wing chair. 13. a. A flat of theatrical scenery projecting onto the stage from the side. b. wings. The unseen backstage area on either side of the stage of a proscenium theater. 14. A structure attached to and connected internally with the side of a main building. 15. A section of a large building devoted to a specific purpose: the children's wing of the hospital. 16. A group affiliated with or subordinate to an older or larger organization. 17. a. Either of two groups with opposing views within a larger group; a faction. b. A section of a party, legislature, or community holding distinct, especially dissenting, political views: the conservative wing. 18. a. Either the left or right flank of an army or a naval fleet. b. An air force unit larger than a group but smaller than a division. 19. Sports. Either of the forward positions played near the sideline, especially in hockey. 20. wings. An outspread pair of stylized bird's wings worn as insignia by qualified pilots or air crew members.

— v. winged, wing-ing, wings. — v. intr. To move on or as if on wings; fly. — v. tr. 1. a. To furnish with wings. b. To cause or enable to fly or speed swiftly along. 2. To feather (an arrow). 3. a. To pass over or through with or as if with wings. b. To carry or transport by or as if by flying. c. To effect or accomplish by flying. 4. To throw or dispatch (a ball, for example). 5. a. To wound the wing of (a game bird, for example). b. To wound superficially, as in an appendage. 6. To furnish with side or subordinate extensions, as a building or an altarpiece.

—idioms. in the wings. 1. In the stage wings, unseen by the audience.

2. Close by in the background; available at short notice: a presidential candidate waiting in the wings. on the wing. In flight; flying. take wing. To fly off; soar away. under (one's) wing. Under one's protection; in one's care. wing it.

Informal. To say or do something without preparation, forethought, or sufficient information or experience; improvise: She hadn't studied for the exam, so she decided to wing it. [Middle English wenge, winge, of Scandinavian origin. See wē- in Appendix.]

wing and wing (wɪŋ ənd wɪŋ) adv. Nautical. With sails extended on both sides.

wing-back (wɪŋ'băk') n. Football. 1. A back positioned on offense behind or outside of an end. 2. The position played by such a back.

wing-bow (wɪŋ'bō') n. A distinctive mark of color on the bend of a bird's wing, especially in domestic fowl.

wing case (wɪŋ kās) n. See elytron.

wing chair also wing-chair (wĩng'châr') n. An armchair with a high back from which project large, enclosing side pieces.

wing-ding (wĩng'dĩng') n. Informal. A lavish or lively party or celebration. [Origin unknown.]

winged (wĩngd, wĩng'id) adj. 1. a. Having wings or winglike appendages. b. Having wings of a specified kind. Often used in combination: broken-winged; big-winged. 2. Moving on or as if on wings; flying. 3. Soaring as if with wings; elevated or sublime. 4. Swift; fleet.

winged bean (wĩngd bēn) n. See asparagus pea.

wing-foot-ed (wĩng'fũt'id) adj. 1. Having winged feet. 2. Swift; fleet.

wing-less (wĩng'lis) adj. Having no wings or only rudimentary wings.
—wing/less-ness n.

wing-let (wĩng'lĩt) n. 1. A small or rudimentary wing. 2. A short, almost vertical stabilizing fin projecting from the tip of an aircraft wing.

wing loading (wĩng lō'dĩng) n. The gross weight of an airplane divided by the wing area. Used in stress analysis.

wing-man (wĩng'mən) n. A pilot whose plane is positioned behind and outside the leader in a formation of flying aircraft.

wing nut (wĩng nũt) n. A nut with winglike projections for thumb and forefinger leverage in turning. Also called thumbnut wing-o-ver (wĩng'ō'vər) n. A flight maneuver or stunt in which an airplane enters a climbing turn until almost stalled and is allowed to fall while the turn is continued until normal flight is attained in a direction opposite the original heading.

wing-span (wĩng'spän') n. 1. The linear distance between the extremities of an airfoil. 2. Wingspread.

wing-spread (wĩng'sprēd') n. The distance between the tips of the wings, as of a bird or an insect, when fully extended.

wing-tip also wing tip (wĩng'tĩp') n. 1. a. An often perforated shoe part that covers the toe and extends backward along the sides of the shoe from a point at the center. b. A style of shoe having such a tip. 2. The tip of the wing of a bird, a bat, an insect, or another animal. 3. The extreme edge of a wing, as of an aircraft.

wink (wĩngk) v. winked, wink-ing, winks. — v. intr. 1. To close and open the eyelid of one eye deliberately, as to convey a message, signal, or suggestion. 2. To close and open the eyelids of both eyes; blink. See Synonyms at blink. 3. To shine fitfully; twinkle: Harbor lights were winking in the distance. — v. tr. 1. To close and open (an eye or the eyes) rapidly. 2. To signal or express by winking. — n. 1. a. The act of winking. b. A signal or hint conveyed by winking. 2. The very brief time required for a wink; an instant. 3. A quick closing and opening of the eyelids; a blink. 4. A gleam or twinkle. 5. Informal. A brief period of sleep. —phrasal verbs. wink at. To pretend not to see: winked at corruption in the ministry. wink out. To come to a close; end. [Middle English winken, to close one's eyes, from Old English wincian.]

wink·er (wɪŋg'kər) n. One that winks, as: a. A blinder for a horse. b. Informal. An eye. c. Informal. An eyelash.

win·kle¹ (wɪŋg'kəl) n. Zoology. A periwinkle.

win·kle² (wɪŋg'kəl) v. tr. win·kled, win·kling, win·kles. Chiefly British. To pry, extract, or force from a place or position. Often used with out. [From WINKLE¹ (from the process of extracting periwinkles from their shells).]

win·na·ble (wɪn'ə-bəl) adj. Possible to win or achieve: a winnable election campaign; winnable games. —win'na·bil'i·ty n.

Win·ne·ba·go (wɪn'ə-bā'gō) n. pl. Winnebago or Win·ne·ba·gos or Win·ne·ba·goes. 1. a. A Native American people formerly inhabiting the Green Bay area of Wisconsin, with present-day populations in Wisconsin and Nebraska. b. A member of this people. 2. The Siouan language of the Winnebago. [Fox wiinepyeekooha, those of the dirty water.]

Winnebago, Lake. A lake of eastern Wisconsin traversed by the Fox River. It is a popular recreation area.

win·ner (wɪn'ər) n. One that wins, especially a victor in sports or a notably successful person.

win·ner's circle (wɪn'ərz sūr'kəl) n. pl. winners' circles. Sports. An enclosed area at a racetrack where the winning horse and jockey are brought for awards and publicity.

win·ning (wɪn'ɪŋg) adj. 1. a. Of or relating to the act of winning: drew the winning number in the lottery. b. Successful; victorious: the winning entry; the winning team. 2. Attractive; charming: a winning personality; a winning smile. — n. 1. The act of one that wins; victory. 2. Often winnings. Something won, especially money. 3. A section of a mine that has been recently prepared or opened for working. —win'ning·ly adv. —win'ning·ness n.

win·ning·est (wɪn'ɪŋg-ɪst) adj. Slang. More successful or winning more often than any others of its kind: "It was one of America's winningest days for women" (Christian Science Monitor).

winning gallery (wɪn'ɪŋg gəl'ə-rē) n. Sports. A winning opening in court tennis below the side penthouse and on the hazard side of the net.

winning opening (wɪn'ɪŋg ɔ'pə-nɪŋg) n. Sports. Any of three openings in court tennis into which a played ball may be hit, thus affording the player a point.

winning post (wɪn'ɪŋg pōst) n. Sports. The post at the end of a racecourse.

Win·ni·peg (wɪn'ə-pɛg') The capital and largest city of Manitoba, Canada, in the southeast part of the province at the confluence of the Red and Assiniboine rivers. Founded as a fur-trading post, it developed rapidly after the coming of the railroad in 1881. Population, 564,473.

Winnipeg, Lake. A lake of south-central Manitoba, Canada. A remnant of the glacial Lake Agassiz, it is now a popular resort area surrounded by valuable timberlands.

Win-ni-pe-go-sis (wɪn'ə-pĭ-gō'sĭs), Lake. A lake of southwest Manitoba, Canada, west of Lake Winnipeg. It drains southward into Lake Manitoba and has important fisheries.

Winnipeg River (wɪn'ə-pĕg' rĭv'ər) A river, about 322 km (200 mi) long, of southwest Ontario and southeast Manitoba, Canada, flowing northwest to Lake Winnipeg.

Win-ni-pe-sau-kee (wɪn'ə-pĭ-sô'kē), Lake. A lake of east-central New Hampshire. It is in a popular resort area.

win-now (wɪn'ō) v. win-nowed, win-now-ing, win-nows. — v. tr.

1. a. To separate the chaff from (grain) by means of a current of air. b. To rid of undesirable parts. 2. To blow (chaff) off or away. 3. To blow away; scatter.

4. To blow on; fan: a breeze winnowing the tall grass. 5. To examine closely in order to separate the good from the bad; sift. 6. a. To separate or get rid of (an undesirable part); eliminate: winnowing out the errors in logic. b. To sort or select (a desirable part); extract.

— v. intr. 1. To separate grain from chaff. 2. To separate the good from the bad. — n. 1. A device for winnowing grain. 2. An act of winnowing. [Middle English winnewen, alteration of windwen, from Old English windwian, from wind, wind. See WIND¹.] — win'now-er n.

win-o (wī'nō) n. pl. win-os. Slang. An indigent wine-drinking alcoholic.

Wi-no-na (wĭ-nō'nə) A city of southeast Minnesota on the Mississippi River southeast of St. Paul. It is a manufacturing and trade center. Population, 25,399.

Win-slow (wɪnz'lō), Edward. 1595-1655. English colonial administrator who traveled to America on the Mayflower and served three times as governor of Plymouth Colony (1633, 1636, and 1644). His son Josiah (1629?-1680) was the first native-born governor of Plymouth (1673-1680).

win-some (wɪn'səm) adj. Charming, often in a childlike or naive way. [Middle English winsum, from Old English wynsum : from wynn, joy; see wen⁻¹ in Appendix + -sum, characterized by; see -SOME¹.] — win'some-ly adv. — win'some-ness n.

Win-sor (wɪn'zər), Justin. 1831-1897. American librarian and historian who was a founder and the first president (1876-1885) of the American Library Association.

Win-ston-Sa-lem (wɪn'stən-sā'ləm) A city of north-central North Carolina north-northeast of Charlotte. Salem was founded by Moravians in 1766, and Winston was established in 1849; the cities were consolidated in 1913. Winston-Salem is chiefly known for tobacco production but also has a wide variety of manufacturing industries. Population, 143,485.

winter (wĭn'tər) n. 1. The usually coldest season of the year, occurring between autumn and spring, extending in the Northern Hemisphere from the winter solstice to the vernal equinox, and popularly considered to be constituted by December, January, and February. 2. A year as expressed through the recurrence of the winter season. 3. A period of time characterized by coldness, misery, barrenness, or death. — adj. 1. Of, relating to, occurring in, or appropriate to the season of winter: winter blizzards; winter attire. 2. Grown during the season of winter: winter herbs. — v. wintered, wintering, winters. — v. intr. 1. To spend the winter: wintered in Arizona. 2. To feed in winter. Used with on: deer wintering on cedar bark. — v. tr. To lodge, keep, or care for during the winter: wintering the sheep in the stable. [Middle English, from Old English. See wed-¹ in Appendix.] — winterish adj.

WORD HISTORY: Winter, spring, summer, fall. It is not too difficult to see how the season names spring and fall came into being, but without some background information it is impossible to tell what the origins of the words winter and summer are. Summer goes back to the Indo-European root ·sem-, meaning “summer.” From a suffixed form of this root came the prehistoric Common Germanic word ·sumaraz, the ancestor of Old English sumor and its descendant, Modern English summer. This is the only Indo-European root referring to a season that has survived in an English name for a season. Of the other three, ·wesr-, “spring,” has produced words such as vernal; ghyem-, “winter,” has given us words such as hibernate; and esen-, “harvest, fall,” has yielded earn (from the prehistoric Common Germanic word ·aznōn, “to do harvest work, serve”). Winter does, however, go back to the Indo-European root wed-, “water, wet.” From the form we-n-d- of this root with the nasal infix -n- was derived the Germanic word ·wintruz, with the underlying meaning “wet season” and the literal meaning “winter.” The Germanic word is the source of Old English winter, the ancestor of Modern English winter.

winter aconite (wĭn'tər äk'ə-nīt') n. Any of various Eurasian herbs of the genus Eranthis, especially E. hyemalis, having palmately dissected leaves and a solitary yellow flower that blooms in winter or early spring.

winter-ber-ry (wĭn'tər-bĕr'ē) n. 1. Any of several North American shrubs of the genus Ilex, having showy red berries. 2. See black alder (n., sense 1).

winter break (wĭn'tər brāk) n. A period of recess, usually lasting one week, during the winter term at school.

winter cherry (wĭn'tər chĕr'ē) n. A frequently cultivated Eurasian plant (Physalis alkekengi) having small red berries enclosed in inflated papery, orange-red seed cases. Also called Chinese lantern plant winter cress (wĭn'tər krĕs) n. Any of various herbs of the genus Barbarea of the mustard family, having pinnately divided basal leaves and yellow flowers.

win·ter·feed (wĭn'tər-fĕd') v. tr. win·ter·fed (-fĕd'), win·ter·feed·ing, win·ter·feeds. To feed (livestock) when grazing is not possible.

winter flounder (wĭn'tər floun'dər) n. A dark, rusty brown flounder (Pseudopleuronectes americanus) of the North American Atlantic coast, prized especially in winter as a food fish.

win·ter·green (wĭn'tər-grĕn') n. 1. a. A low-growing, creeping evergreen plant (Gaultheria procumbens) of North America, having solitary, nodding white flowers, aromatic leaves, and spicy, edible scarlet berries. Also called checkerberry, teaberry. b. An oil or a flavoring obtained from this plant. 2. Any of several similar or related plants, such as the pipsissewa. [Translation of Dutch wintergroen.]

Win·ter Ha·ven (wĭn'tər hā'vən) A city of central Florida east of Lakeland. It is a winter resort and processing center. Population, 24,725.

win·ter·ize (wĭn'tə-rĭz') v. tr. win·ter·ized, win·ter·iz·ing, win·ter·iz·es. To prepare or equip (an automobile or a house, for example) for winter weather. — win'ter·i·za'tion (-tĕr-ĭ-zā'shən) n.

win·ter·kill (wĭn'tər-kĭl') v. win·ter·killed, win·ter·kill·ing, win·ter·kills. — v. tr. To kill (plants, for example) by exposing to extremely cold winter weather. — v. intr. To die from exposure to cold winter weather. Used especially of plants. — n. Death, as of plants, resulting from exposure to winter weather.

winter melon (wĭn'tər mĕl'ən) n. See honeydew melon. [Translation of Chinese dōng guā : dōng, winter + guā, melon.]

Winter Park (wĭn'tər pārk) A city of central Florida north of Orlando. It is a tourist center in a citrus-growing area. Population, 22,242.

winter purslane (wĭn'tər pŭrs'lĭn) n. An annual plant (Montia perfoliata) of western North America, having small white flowers and fleshy leaves sometimes eaten in salads. Also called miner's lettuce winter savory (wĭn'tər sāv'və-rĕ) n. See savory² (n., sense 2).

winter solstice (wĭn'tər sŏl'stĭs) n. In the Northern Hemisphere, the solstice that occurs on or about December 22.

winter squash (wĭn'tər skwŏsh) n. Any of several thick-rinded varieties of squash, such as the acorn squash, that can be stored for long periods. Regional. Also called hubbard squash Win·ter·thur (wĭn'tər-tŏr') A city of northern Switzerland northeast of Zurich. It passed to the Hapsburgs in 1264 and became a free imperial city in 1415. Population, 84,600.

win·ter·time (wĭn'tər-tīm') n. The season of winter.

winter wheat (wĭn'tər hwĕt) n. Wheat planted in the autumn and harvested the following spring or early summer.

winter wren (wɪn'tər rɛn) n. A small wren (Troglodytes troglodytes) having a short tail and black bars on the belly.

Win-throp (wɪn'thrəp) A town of eastern Massachusetts, a resort and residential suburb of Boston. Population, 18,127.

Win-throp¹ (wɪn'thrəp), John. 1588-1649. English colonial administrator who was the first governor of Massachusetts Bay Colony, serving seven terms between 1629 and 1649. His son John (1606-1676) was three times governor of Connecticut (1636, 1657, and 1659-1676), and his grandson John (1638-1707), born in America, was also governor of Connecticut (1698-1707).

Win-throp² (wɪn'thrəp), John. 1714-1779. American astronomer, mathematician, and physicist who founded the first physics laboratory in the United States (1646).

win·try (wɪn'trē) also win·ter·y (wɪn'tə-rē) adj. win·tri·er also win·ter·i·er, win·tri·est also win·ter·i·est. 1. Belonging to or characteristic of winter; cold.

2. Suggestive of winter, as in cheerlessness or coldness: a wintry welcome.

—win'tri·ly adv. —win'tri·ness n.

win·y or wine·y (wɪ'nē) adj. win·i·er, win·i·est. Having the qualities or taste of wine; heady or intoxicating.

winze (wɪnz) n. An inclined or vertical shaft or passage between levels in a mine. [Alteration of obsolete winds, probably from WIND², apparatus for winding.]

wipe (wɪp) v. tr. wiped, wip·ing, wipes. 1. a. To subject to light rubbing or friction, as with a cloth or paper, in order to clean or dry. b. To clean or dry by rubbing: wiped my feet before I went inside. c. To rub, move, or pass (a cloth, for example) over a surface. 2. a. To remove by or as if by rubbing: wipe off dirt; wipe away grease. b. To blot out completely, as from the memory. 3. a. To spread or apply by or as if by wiping: wiped furniture polish over the table. b. To form (a joint) in plumbing by spreading solder with a piece of cloth or leather.

— n. 1. The act or an instance of wiping. 2. Something, such as a towel or tissue, used for wiping. 3. A cam that activates another part; a wiper. 4. a. A blow or swipe. b. Informal. A jeer; a gibe. 5. A shift from one scene in a film or movie to another, effected by means of a line passing across the screen.

—phrasal verb. wipe out. 1. To destroy or be destroyed completely. 2. Slang. To murder. 3. Sports. To lose one's balance and fall or jump off a surfboard. [Middle English wipen, from Old English wīpian. See weip- in Appendix.]

wiped-out (wɪpt'out') adj. Slang. Totally exhausted.

wipe-out (wɪp'out') n. 1. a. The act or an instance of wiping out.

b. Complete destruction. 2. Sports. A fall from a surfboard.

wip·er (wɪ'pər) n. 1. One that wipes. 2. Something, such as a towel, used for wiping. 3. A device designed for wiping, as on an automobile windshield. 4. A projecting cam, as on a rotating shaft, that activates another machine part.

5. Electricity. A movable electrical contact, as in a rheostat.

wire (wīr) n. 1. A usually pliable metallic strand or rod made in many lengths and diameters, sometimes clad and often electrically insulated, used chiefly for structural support or to conduct electricity. 2. A group of wire strands bundled or twisted together as a functional unit; cable. 3. Something resembling a wire, as in slenderness or stiffness. 4. An open telephone connection. 5. Slang. A hidden microphone, as on a person's body or in a building. 6. a. A telegraph service. b. A telegram or cablegram. 7. Computer Science. A pin in the print head of a computer printer. 8. The screen on which sheets of paper are formed in a paper-making machine. 9. Sports. The finish line of a racetrack. 10. wires. a. The system of strings employed in manipulating puppets in a show. b. Hidden controlling influences. 11. Slang. A pickpocket. 12. Fencing made of usually barbed wire. — v. wired, wir-ing, wires. — v. tr. 1. To bind, connect, or attach with wires or a wire. 2. To string (beads, for example) on wire. 3. To equip with a system of electrical wires. 4. Slang. To install electronic eavesdropping equipment in (a room, for example). 5. To send by telegraph: wired her congratulations. 6. To send a telegram to. — v. intr. To send a telegram. — idioms. down to the wire. Informal. To the very end, as in a race or contest. under the wire. 2. Sports. At the finish line. 3. Informal. Just in the nick of time; at the last moment. [Middle English, slender metal rod, from Old English wīr. See wei- in Appendix.] — wir'a-ble adj.

wired (wīrd) adj. 1. Equipped with a system of wires, as for electric or telephone connections. 2. Slang. Equipped with hidden electronic eavesdropping devices: a wired hotel room. 3. a. Reinforced or supported by wires. b. Tied or bound up with wire: wired bundles of newspaper. 4. Slang. Well connected, as with high-ranking members of an organization. 5. Slang. Very stimulated or excited, as from a stimulant or a rush of adrenaline.

wire-draw (wīr'drô') v. tr. wire-drew (-drô'), wire-drawn (-drôn'), wire-draw-ing, wire-draws. 1. To draw (metal) into wire. 2. To treat (a subject, for example) with great length, excessive detail, or overrefinement; spin out. — wire'draw'er n.

wire-drawn (wīr'drôn') adj. Overly subtle and particularized, such as comparisons or points in an argument.

wire-drew (wīr'drô') v. Past tense of wire-draw.

wire fox terrier (wīr fōks tēr'ē-ər) n. Any of a breed of small fox terrier developed in northern England, having a rough, wiry, white coat with patches of black or tan. Also called wirehair, wirehaired terrier.

wire gauge (wīr gāj) n. 1. A gauge for measuring the diameter of wire, usually consisting of a disk having variously sized slots in its periphery or a long graduated plate with similar slots along its edge. 2. A standardized system of wire sizes.

wire glass (wīr glās) n. Sheet glass reinforced with wire netting. Also called safety glass wire-grass (wīr'grās') n. Any of various grasses, such as Bermuda grass, having tough wiry roots or rootstocks.

wire-hair (wīr'hâr') n. See wire fox terrier.

wire-haired (wīr'hârd') adj. Having a coat of stiff, wiry hair. Used especially of breeds of dogs.

wirehaired point-ing griffon (wīr'hârd' pōin'tĩng grīf'ən) n. Any of a breed of medium-sized hunting dog originating in the Netherlands, having a rough steel-gray coat with patches of chestnut.

wirehaired terrier (wīr'hârd' tēr'ē-ər) n. See wire fox terrier.

wire-less (wīr'līs) adj. 1. Having no wires: a wireless security system. 2. Chiefly British. Of or relating to radio or communication by radiotelegraphy or radiotelephony. — n. 1. A radio telegraph or radiotelephone system. 2. A message transmitted by wireless telegraph or telephone. 3. Chiefly British. Radio. — v. tr. intr. wire-lessed, wire-less-ing, wire-less-es. To communicate with or send communications by wireless.

wireless telegraphy (wīr'līs tē-lēg'rā-fē) n. Telegraphy by radio rather than by long-distance transmission lines. Also called wireless telegraph wireless telephone (wīr'līs tēl'ə-fōn') n. See radiotelephone.

wire-man (wīr'mən) n. 1. One who works with electric wiring. 2. Slang. One who taps telephone lines; a wiretapper.

Wire-pho-to (wīr'fō'tō) A trademark used for a photograph electrically transmitted over telephone wires.

wire-pull-er (wīr'pōōl'ər) n. 1. Slang. One who uses subterfuge, private influence, or underhand means to reach a goal. 2. One who pulls wires or strings, as of puppets. — wire-pull'ing n.

wir-er (wīr'ər) n. 1. One that wires: a wirer of fences. 2. A trapper who uses wire traps to snare game.

wire rope (wīr rōp) n. Rope made of twisted strands of wire.

wire service (wīr sūr'vīs) n. A news-gathering organization that distributes syndicated copy electronically to subscribers.

wire-tap (wīr'tăp') n. 1. A concealed listening or recording device connected to a communications circuit. 2. The act of installing such a device. — v.

wire-tapped, wire-tap-ping, wire-taps. — v. tr. 1. To connect a concealed listening or recording device to. 2. To monitor (a telephone line) by means of such a device. — v. intr. To install a concealed listening or recording device or use it to monitor communications. — wire/tap/per n.

wire-walk-er (wīr'wô'kər) n. An acrobat who walks on a wire tightrope.

wire-work (wīr'wûrk') n. 1. Something made of wire or wires. 2. Walking on a wire tightrope: acrobats skilled in wirework.

wire-worm (wīr'wūrm') n. 1. The yellowish, hard-bodied larva of various click beetles that feeds on the roots and seedlings of many crop plants. 2. Any of various millipedes.

wiring (wīr'ing) n. 1. The act of attaching, connecting, or installing electric wires. 2. A system of electric wires.

wir-ra (wīr'ə) interj. Irish. Used to express sorrow or anxious concern. [From Irish Gaelic a Muire, Virgin Mary : a, O + Muire, Mary.]

wiry (wīr'ē) adj. wir-ier, wir-iest. 1. Of or relating to wire. 2. Resembling wire in form or quality, especially in stiffness: wiry red hair. 3. Sinewy and lean: He had a wiry build. 4. Produced by or as if by wire being vibrated. Used of sounds: a wiry tone. —wir'i-ly adv. —wir'i-ness n.

Wis-con-sin¹ (wīs-kōn'sin) Abbr. WI, Wis. A state of the north-central United States. It was admitted as the 30th state in 1848. First settled by the French, the region was ceded to Great Britain in 1763 and became part of the Northwest Territory in 1787. Madison is the capital and Milwaukee the largest city. Population, 4,906,745. —Wis-con'sin-ite' n.

Wis-con-sin² (wīs-kōn'sin) adj. Geology. Of or relating to the fourth glacial stage of the Pleistocene Epoch in North America. [After Wisconsin¹.]

Wisconsin Rapids (wīs-kōn'sin rāp'idz) A city of central Wisconsin south of Wausau on the Wisconsin River. It is a processing center. Population, 18,245.

Wisconsin River (wīs-kōn'sin rīv'ər) A river of central and southwest Wisconsin flowing about 692 km (430 mi) south and west to the Mississippi River.

wis-dom (wīz'dəm) n. 1. Understanding of what is true, right, or lasting; insight: “One cannot have wisdom without living life” (Dorothy McCall). 2. Common sense; good judgment: “It is a characteristic of wisdom not to do desperate things” (Henry David Thoreau). 3. a. The sum of scholarly learning through the ages; knowledge: “In those homely sayings was couched the collective wisdom of generations” (Maya Angelou). b. Wise teachings of the ancient sages. 4. A wise outlook, plan, or course of action. 5. Wisdom. Bible. Wisdom of Solomon. [Middle English, from Old English wīsdōm. See weid- in Appendix.]

Wisdom of Jesus, the Son of Si-rach (wīz'dəm ÷v jē'zəs thē sūn ÷v sī'rāk') n. Bible. Ecclesiasticus.

Wisdom of Solomon (wīz'dəm ÷v söl'ə-mən) n. Bible. A book of the Bible. See Table at Bible.

wisdom tooth (wīz'dəm tōōth) n. One of four rearmost molars on each side of the upper and lower jaw in human beings. Wisdom teeth are the last teeth to erupt, typically in early adulthood. [Translation of New Latin dēns sapientiae : dēns, tooth + sapientiae, genitive of sapientia, wisdom.]

wise¹ (wīz) adj. wis-er, wis-est. 1. Having wisdom or discernment for what is true, right, or lasting; sagacious: a wise leader. 2. a. Exhibiting common sense; prudent: a wise decision. b. Shrewd; crafty. 3. Having great learning; erudite.

4. Provided with information; informed. Used with to: was wise to the politics of the department. 5. Slang. Rude and disrespectful; impudent. —phrasal verb. wise up. Slang. To make or become aware, informed, or sophisticated. [Middle English, from Old English wīs. See weid- in Appendix.] —wise/ly adv.

—wise/ness n.

wise² (wīz) n. Method or manner of doing; way: in no wise; in any wise. [Middle English, from Old English wīse. See weid- in Appendix.]

Wise (wīz), Isaac Mayer. 1819-1900. Bohemian-born American religious leader who united Reform Jewish organizations in the United States.

Wise (wīz), Stephen Samuel. 1874-1949. Hungarian-born American religious leader who was an ardent Zionist and founded the World Jewish Congress (1936).

-wise suff. 1. In a specified manner, direction, or position: clockwise. 2. Usage Problem. With reference to; in regard to: profitwise. [Middle English, from Old English -wīsan, from -wīse, manner. See WISE².]

USAGE NOTE: The suffix -wise has a long history of use to mean “in the manner or direction of,” as in clockwise, otherwise, and slantwise. Since the 1930’s, however, the suffix has been widely used in the vaguer sense of “with reference to,” as in This has not been a good year saleswise. Taxwise, it is an unattractive arrangement. From their introduction, these usages were associated with the more informal prose of the newsmagazines, and 50 years later the usages still show no sign of achieving critical respectability. In an earlier survey the examples cited were unacceptable to the large majority of the Usage Panel. The suffix may save a few syllables, but in most writing there is no alternative to paraphrases such as This has not been a good year with respect to sales. As far as taxes are concerned, it is an unattractive arrangement.

wise-a-cre (wīz’ā’kər) n. Slang. A person regarded as being disagreeably egotistical and self-assured. [Alteration of Middle Dutch wijsseggher, soothsayer, translation of Middle High German wīssage, from Old High German wīssago, wīssago, seer. See weid- in Appendix.]

wise-ass also wise-ass (wīz’ās’) n. Vulgar Slang. A smart aleck.

wise-crack (wīz’krāk’) Slang. n. A flippant, typically sardonic remark or retort.

See Synonyms at joke. — v. intr. wise-cracked, wise-crack-ing, wise-cracks. To make or utter a wisecrack. —wise/crack’er n.

wise guy (wīz gī) n. Slang. A smart aleck.

wise man (wīz mǎn) n. 1. One of the magi who paid homage to the baby Jesus; a magus. 2. A sage.

Wise-man (wīz’mən), Nicholas Patrick Stephen. 1802-1865. Spanish-born British prelate and theologian. An important figure in the 19th-century English revival of Roman Catholicism, he served as archbishop of Westminster from 1850 to 1865.

wis-en-heim-er also weis-en-heim-er (wī'zən-hī'mər) n. Informal. A smart aleck. [WISE¹ + German -enheimer (as in surnames such as Oppenheimer).]

wi-sent (vē'zənt) n. The European bison (Bison bonasus) having a smaller and higher head than the North American bison. Also called aurochs [German, from Middle High German, from Old High German wisunt.]

wish (wɪʃ) n. 1. A desire, longing, or strong inclination for a specific thing.

2. An expression of a desire, longing, or strong inclination; a petition.

3. Something desired or longed for. — v. wished, wish-ing, wish-es. — v.

tr. 1. To long for; want. See Synonyms at desire. 2. To entertain or express wishes for; bid: He wished her good night. 3. To call or invoke upon: I wish them luck. 4. To order or entreat: I wish you to go. 5. To impose or force; foist: They wished a hard job on her. — v. intr. 1. To have or feel a desire: wish for the moon. 2. To express a wish. [Middle English wissh, from wisshen, to wish, from Old English wýscan. See wen⁻¹ in Appendix.] —wish'er n.

USAGE NOTE: Wish is widely used as a polite substitute for want with infinitives: Do you wish to sit at a table on the terrace? Anyone who wishes to may leave now. This usage is consonant with formal style, where it is natural to treat the desires of others with exaggerated deference. The corresponding use of wish with a noun-phrase object is less frequent, though it cannot be regarded as incorrect: Anyone who wishes an aisle seat should see an attendant. Both usages are likely to sound stilted in informal style, however. • When wish precedes a subordinate clause containing a contrary-to-fact statement, strict grammatical correctness requires that one use were rather than was: I wish I were (not was) lighter on my feet. Many writers continue to insist on this rule, but precedent for using the indicative was in such clauses can be found in the works of many writers, including King Alfred and Jonathan Swift. See Usage Note at if. See Usage Note at want.

wish-bone (wɪʃ'bōn') n. 1. The forked bone anterior to the breastbone of most birds, formed by the fusion of the clavicles. 2. Football. An offensive formation in which the halfbacks are positioned behind and to the left and right of the fullback. [From the superstition that when two people pull the bone apart a wish will be fulfilled for the person who retains the longer piece.]

wish-ful (wɪʃ'fəl) adj. Having or expressing a wish or longing. —wish'-ful-ly adv. —wish'/ful-ness n.

wish fulfillment (wɪʃ fʊl-fil'mənt) n. 1. Gratification of a desire. 2. In psychoanalytic theory, the satisfaction of a desire, a need, or an impulse through a dream, a fantasy, or other exercise of the imagination.

wishful thinking (wĭsh'fəl thĭng'kĭng) n. Identification of one's wishes or desires with reality.

wish list (wĭsh lĭst) n. Informal. An often mental list of things wanted or wished for.

wish-wash (wĭsh'wōsh', -wōsh') n. Informal. 1. Speech or writing deemed banal or foolish. 2. A thin, watery drink. [Reduplication of WASH.]

wish-y-wash-y (wĭsh'ē-wōsh'ē, -wō'shē) adj. wish-y-wash-i-er, wish-y-wash-i-est. Informal. 1. Thin and watery, as tea or soup; insipid. 2. Lacking in strength of character or purpose; ineffective. [Reduplication of washy, thin, watery, from WASH.] —wish'y-wash'i-ness n.

Wis-kott-Al-drich syndrome (wĭs'kōt-ōl'drĭch sĭn'drōm', -ōl'-, wĭs'-) n. A hereditary, sex-linked, recessive disorder characterized by chronic eczema, recurring infections, and a decrease in the number of white blood cells and platelets. [After Alfred Wiskott (1898-1978), German pediatrician, and Robert Anderson Aldrich (born 1917), American physician.]

Wis-mar (wĭz'mär', wĭs'-) A city of north-central Germany on an inlet of the Baltic Sea. It was an important member of the Hanseatic League after 1266 and later passed to Sweden (1648). The city was heavily damaged during World War II. Population, 57,874.

wisp (wĭsp) n. 1. A small bunch or bundle, as of straw, hair, or grass. 2. a. One that is thin, frail, or slight. b. A thin or faint streak or fragment, as of smoke or clouds. 3. A fleeting trace or indication; a hint: a wisp of a smile. 4. A flock of birds, especially snipe. See Synonyms at flock¹. 5. See ignis fatuus (n., sense 1). — v. wisped, wisp-ing, wisps. — v. tr. To twist into wisps or a wisp. — v. intr. To drift in wisps: smoke wisping from chimneys. [Middle English.] —wisp/i-ly adv. —wisp'i-ness (wĭs'pē-nĭs) n. —wisp'y adj.

Wiss-ler (wĭs'lər), Clark. 1870-1947. American anthropologist noted for his studies of Native American cultural and geographic patterns, including The American Indians (1917) and Indians of the United States (1940).

wist (wĭst) v. Past tense and past participle of wit².

Wis-ter (wĭs'tər), Owen. 1860-1938. American writer known for his novel The Virginian (1902), often considered the first Western.

wis-ter-i-a (wĭ-stĭr'ē-ə) also wis-tar-i-a (wĭ-stâr'-) n. Any of several climbing woody vines of the genus Wisteria in the pea family, having pinnately compound leaves and drooping racemes of showy purplish or white flowers. [New Latin Wisteria, genus name, after Caspar Wistar (1761-1818), American physician.]

wist-ful (wĭst'fəl) adj. 1. Full of wishful yearning. 2. Pensively sad; melancholy. [From obsolete wistly, intently.] —wist'ful-ly adv. —wist'ful-ness n.

wit¹ (wĭt) n. 1. The natural ability to perceive and understand; intelligence. 2. a. Often wits. Keeness and quickness of perception or discernment; ingenuity: living by one's wits. b. wits. Sound mental faculties; sanity: scared out of my wits. 3. a. The ability to perceive and express in an ingeniously humorous manner the relationship between seemingly incongruous or disparate things: “Wit has truth in it; wisecracking is simply calisthenics with words” (Dorothy Parker).

b. One noted for this ability, especially one skilled in repartee. c. A person of exceptional intelligence. — idioms. at (one’s) wits’ end. At the limit of one’s mental resources; utterly at a loss. have (one’s) wits about (one) (or keep (one’s) wits about (one)). To remain alert or calm, especially in a crisis. [Middle English, from Old English. See weid- in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: wit, humor, repartee, sarcasm, irony. These nouns are compared as they denote forms of expression that elicit amusement or laughter. Wit implies intellectual keenness and the ability to perceive and express in a diverting, often pointed way analogies between essentially dissimilar things; humor, on the other hand, suggests the faculty of recognizing what is amusing, comical, incongruous, or absurd and using it as the basis for expression: “Humor is, as it were, the growth of nature and accident; wit is the product of art and fancy” (William Hazlitt). Repartee implies a facility for answering swiftly and cleverly: “framing comments... that would be sure to sting and yet leave no opening for repartee” (H.G. Wells). Sarcasm is a form of caustic wit intended to wound or ridicule another: “Sarcasm I now see to be, in general, the language of the Devil; for which reason I have, long since, as good as renounced it” (Thomas Carlyle). Irony is a form of expression in which an intended meaning is the opposite of the literal meaning of the words used: “A drayman in a passion [a rage] calls out, ‘You are a pretty fellow,’ without suspecting that he is uttering irony” (Macaulay). See also Synonyms at mind wit² (wīt) v. wist (wīst), wit·ting (wīt’īng) first and third person singular present tense, wot (wōt). Archaic. — v. tr. To be or become aware of; learn. — v. intr. To know. — idiom. to wit. That is to say; namely. [Middle English, from Old English witan. See weid- in Appendix.]

wit·an (wīt’ān) pl.n. 1. The members of the witenagemot in Anglo-Saxon England. 2. The witenagemot. [Old English, pl. of wita, councilor. See WITENAGEMOT.]

witch (wīch) n. 1. A woman popularly believed to have supernatural powers and practice sorcery, and often believed to be aided by spirits or a familiar. 2. A believer or follower of Wicca; a Wiccan. 3. A hag. 4. Informal. A woman or girl considered bewitching. 5. One particularly skilled or competent at one’s craft: “A witch of a writer, [she] is capable of developing an intensity that verges on ferocity” (Peter S. Prescott). — v. witched, witch·ing, witch·es. — v. tr. 1. To work or cast a spell on; bewitch. 2. To cause, bring, or effect by witchcraft. — v. intr. To use a divining rod to find underground water or minerals; dowse. [Middle witch-craft (wĭch'kräft') n. 1. Magic; sorcery. 2. Wicca. 3. A magical or irresistible influence, attraction, or charm.

English wicche, from Old English wicce, witch, and wicca, wizard, sorcerer; see

weg- in Appendix.] —witch'er-y (-ə-rē) n. —witch'y adj.

witch doctor (wĭch dŏk'tər) n. Anthropology. A shamanistic healer, a sorcerer, or a prophet, especially among African peoples. Not in scientific use.

witch elm (wĭch ělm) n. Variant of wych elm. [Alteration of WYCH ELM.]

witch-es' brew (wĭch'ĭz brōō) n. A powerful or terrifying concoction.

witch-es' broom (wĭch'ĭz brōōm) n. An abnormal brushlike growth of weak, closely clustered shoots or branches on a tree, such as the hackberry, caused by fungi or viruses.

witches' Sabbath (wĭch'ĭz sǎb'əθ) n. A meeting of witches, supposed by medieval Christians to be a demonic orgy.

witch grass (wĭch grǎs) n. 1. An annual North American grass (Panicum capillare) having branching, purplish panicles. 2. See couch grass. [Probably alteration of QUITCH GRASS.]

witch hazel (wĭch hǎ'zəl) n. 1. Any of several deciduous shrubs or small trees of the genus Hamamelis, especially H. virginiana, of eastern North America, having yellow flowers that bloom in late autumn or winter. 2. An alcoholic solution containing an extract of the bark and leaves of this plant, applied externally as a mild astringent. [Alteration of obsolete wych, wych elm; see WYCH ELM + HAZEL.]

witch-hunt (wĭch'hünt') n. An investigation carried out ostensibly to uncover subversive activities but actually used to harass and undermine those with differing views. —witch'-hunt'er n. —witch'-hunt'ing adj. & n.

witch-ing (wĭch'ĭng) adj. 1. Relating to or characteristic of witchcraft.

2. Having the power to charm or enchant; bewitching. — n. Witchcraft; sorcery. —witch'ing-ly adv.

witch moth (wĭch mŏth) n. Any of several large noctuid moths of the genus Erebus of the southern United States and tropical America. [From its nocturnal habits.]

witch of Ag-ne-si (wĭch ŭv ǎn-yā'zē) n. Mathematics. A planar cubic curve that is symmetric about the y-axis and that approaches the x-axis as an asymptote. Its equation is $x^2y = 4a^2(2a - y)$, where a is a constant. [WITCH (translation of Italian avversiera, versiera, confused with versiera, curve, turning, from New Latin versōria, from Latin versus, turned, reversed, past participle of vertere, to turn); see VERSE¹ + Maria Gaetana Agnesi (1718-1799), Italian mathematician.]

wite (wīt) n. Scots. Blame; fault. [Middle English, from Old English wīte, penalty. See weid- in Appendix.]

wit-e-na-ge-mot (wĭt'n-ə-gə-mŏt') n. An Anglo-Saxon advisory council to the king, composed of about 100 nobles, prelates, and other officials, convened at intervals to discuss administrative and judicial affairs. [Old English witena gemōt, meeting of councilors : witena, genitive pl. of wita, councilor; see weid- in Appendix + gemōt, meeting (ge-, collective pref.; see kom in Appendix + mōt, meeting).]

with (wĭth, wĭth) prep. Abbr. w. 1. In the company of; accompanying: Did you go with her? 2. Next to; alongside of: stood with the rabbi; sat with the family. 3. a. Having as a possession, an attribute, or a characteristic: arrived with bad news; a man with a moustache. b. Used as a function word to indicate accompanying detail or condition: just sat there with his mouth open. 4. a. In a manner characterized by: performed with skill; spoke with enthusiasm. b. In the performance, use, or operation of: had trouble with the car. 5. In the charge or keeping of: left the cat with the neighbors. 6. In the opinion or estimation of: if it's all right with you. 7. a. In support of; on the side of: I'm with anyone who wants to help the homeless. b. Of the same opinion or belief as: He is with us on that issue. 8. In the same group or mixture as; among: planted onions with the carrots. 9. In the membership or employment of: plays with a symphony orchestra; is with a publishing company. 10. a. By the means or agency of: eat with a fork; made us laugh with his jokes. b. By the presence or use of: a pillow stuffed with feathers; balloons filled with helium. 11. In spite of: With all her experience, she could not get a job. 12. In the same direction as: sail with the wind; flow with the river. 13. At the same time as: gets up with the birds. 14. a. In regard to: We are pleased with her decision. They are disgusted with the status quo. b. Used as a function word to indicate a party to an action, a communicative activity, or an informal agreement or settlement: played with the dog; had a talk with the class; lives with an aunt. 15. In comparison or contrast to: a dress identical with the one her sister just bought. 16. Having received: With her permission, he left. I escaped with just a few bruises. 17. a. And; plus: My books, with my brother's, make a sizable library. We had turkey with all the trimmings. b. Inclusive of; including: comes to $29.95 with postage and handling. 18. In opposition to; against: wrestling with an opponent. 19. As a result or consequence of: trembling with fear; sick with the flu. 20. So as to be touching or joined to: coupled the first car with the second; linked arms with their partners. 21. So as to be free of or separated from: parted with her husband. 22. In the course of: We grow older with the hours. 23. In proportion to: wines that improve with age. 24. In relationship to: at ease with my peers. 25. As well as; in favorable comparison to: She could sing with the best of them. 26. According to the experience or practice of: With me, it is a question of priorities. 27. Used as a function word to indicate close association: With the advent of the rockets, the Space Age began. —idiom. in with. Informal. In league or association with: He is in with the wrong crowd. [Middle English, with, against, from, from Old English. See wi- in Appendix.]

USAGE NOTE: With does not have the conjunctive force of and. Consequently, in the following example the verb is governed by the singular subject and remains singular: The governor, with his aides, is expected at the fair on Monday. See Usage Note at and.

with-al (wĭth-ôl', wĭth-) adv. 1. In addition; besides: "And, withal, a wider publicity was given to thought-provoking ideas" (Holbrook Jackson). 2. Despite that; nevertheless. 3. Archaic. Therewith. — prep. Archaic. With. Used after its object at the end of a sentence or clause. [Middle English : with, with; see WITH + al, all; see ALL.]

with-draw (wĭth-drô', wĭth-) v. with-drew (-drôo'), with-drawn (-drôn'), with-draw-ing, with-draws. — v. tr. 1. a. To take back or away; remove. b. To remove (money) from an account. c. To turn away (one's gaze, for example). d. To draw aside: withdrew the curtain. 2. a. To remove from consideration or participation: withdrew her application; withdrew his son from the race. b. To recall or retract: withdrew the accusation. — v. intr. 1. a. To move or draw back; retire. b. To retreat from a battlefield. 2. a. To remove oneself from active participation: withdrew from the competition. b. To become detached from social or emotional involvement. 3. To recall or remove a motion from consideration in parliamentary procedure. 4. a. To discontinue the use of an addictive substance. b. To adjust physiologically and mentally to this discontinuation. [Middle English withdrawen : with, away from; see WITH + drawen, to pull; see DRAW.] — with-draw/a-ble adj. — with-draw'er n.

with-draw-al (wĭth-drô'al, wĭth-) n. 1. The act or process of withdrawing, as: a. A retreat or retirement. b. Retreat of a military force in the face of enemy attack or after a defeat. c. Detachment, as from social or emotional involvement. d. A removal from a place or position of something that has been deposited. 2. a. Discontinuation of the use of an addictive substance. b. The physiological and mental readjustment that accompanies such discontinuation. 3. The act or an instance of retracting or revoking: feared the withdrawal of his parents' permission.

with-drawn (wĭth-drôn', wĭth-) v. Past participle of withdraw. — adj. 1. Not readily approached; remote. 2. a. Not friendly or sociable; aloof. b. Emotionally unresponsive and detached; introverted. — with-drawn/ness n.

with-drew (wĭth-drôo', wĭth-) v. Past tense of withdraw.

withe (wĭth, wĭth, wĭth) n. A tough, supple twig, especially of willow, used for binding things together; a withy. [Middle English, from Old English withe. See wei- in Appendix.]

with-er (wĭth'er) v. with-ered, with-er-ing, with-ers. — v. intr. 1. To dry up or shrivel from or as if from loss of moisture. 2. To lose freshness; droop. — v. tr. 1. To cause to shrivel or fade. 2. To render speechless or incapable of action; stun: The teacher withered the noisy student with a glance. [Alteration of Middle English widderen, perhaps variant of wederen, to weather, from weder, weather. See WEATHER.]

With·er (wĭth'əɹ), George. 1588-1667. English poet whose works include The Shepherd's Hunting (1615) and Britain's Remembrancer (1628).

with·ered (wĭth'ərd) adj. Shriveled, shrunken, or faded from or as if from loss of moisture or sustenance: "the battle to keep his withered dreams intact" (Time).

with·er·ing (wĭth'əɹ-ɪŋ) adj. Tending to overwhelm or destroy; devastating: withering sarcasm. —with'er·ing·ly adv.

with·er·ite (wĭth'ə-rīt') n. A white, yellow, or gray mineral, chiefly BaCO₃. [German Witherit, after William Withering (1741-1799), British physician.]

with·e rod (wĭth rōd) n. An eastern North American deciduous shrub (Viburnum cassinoides) having clusters of small white flowers and bluish-black edible fruit. Also called Appalachian tea, teaberry.

with·ers (wĭth'əɹz) pl.n. The high part of the back of a horse or similar animal, located between the shoulder blades. [Possibly from obsolete wither-, against (from the strain exerted on them when a horse draws a load), from Middle English, from Old English wither-. See wi- in Appendix.]

with·er·shins (wĭth'əɹ-shɪnz') adv. Variant of widdershins.

With·er·spoon (wĭth'əɹ-spōn'), John. 1723-1794. Scottish-born American cleric, educator, and Revolutionary leader. A signer of the Declaration of Independence, he was president (1768-1794) of the college that became Princeton University.

with·hold (wĭth-hōld', wĭth-) v. with·held (-hēld'), with·hold·ing, with·holds. — v. tr. 1. To keep in check; restrain. 2. To refrain from giving, granting, or permitting. See Synonyms at keep. 3. To deduct (withholding tax) from an employee's salary. — v. intr. To refrain or forbear. [Middle English witholden : with, away from; see WITH + holden, to hold; see HOLD¹.]

—with·hold'er n.

with·hold·ing tax (wĭth-hōl'dɪŋ tākz, wĭth-) n. A portion of an employee's wages or salary withheld by the employer as partial payment of the employee's income tax.

with·in (wĭth-ɪn', wĭth-) adv. 1. In or into the inner part; inside. 2. Inside the mind, heart, or soul; inwardly. — prep. 1. In the inner part or parts of; inside: resentment seething within him. 2. a. Inside the limits or extent of in time or distance: arrived within two days; stayed within earshot; within ten miles of home. b. Inside the fixed limits of; not beyond: lived within her income. c. In the scope or sphere of: acted within the law; within the medical profession. d. Inside a specified amount or degree: The team had pulled to within five points of winning. — n. An inner position, place, or area: treachery from within. [Middle English withinne, from Old English withinnan : with, with; see WITH + innan, from within (from in, in); see IN¹.]

with-in-doors (wĭth-ĭn'dôrz', -dôrz', wĭth-) adv. Into or inside a house or other building; indoors.

with-it (wĭth'ĭt', wĭth-) adj. Slang. 1. Interested in and sensitive to the latest styles and trends; up-to-date. 2. Streetwise and knowing; savvy.

With-la-coo-chee (wĭth'lə-kōō'chē) 1. A river, about 257 km (160 mi) long, of central Florida flowing into the Gulf of Mexico. 2. A river, about 185 km (115 mi) long, of southern Georgia and northwest Florida, where it empties into the Suwannee River.

with-out (wĭth-out', wĭth-) adv. 1. On the outside: a sturdy structure within and without. 2. With something absent or lacking: had to do without. — prep. Abbr. w/o 1. a. Not having; lacking: a family without a car. b. Not accompanied by; in the absence of: volunteered without hesitation; spoke without thinking. 2. At, on, to, or toward the outside or exterior of: standing without the door. — conj. Regional. Unless: “You don't know about me without you have read a book by the name of The Adventures of Tom Sawyer” (Mark Twain). [Middle English withoute, from Old English withūtan : with, with; see WITH + ūtan, from without (from ūt, out); see OUT.] with-out-doors (wĭth-out'dôrz', -dôrz', wĭth-) adv. Outside a house or other building; outdoors.

with-stand (wĭth-stănd', wĭth-) v. with-stood (-stōod'), with-stand-ing, with-stands. — v. tr. 1. To oppose with force or resolution. 2. To be successful in resisting. See Synonyms at oppose. — v. intr. To resist or endure successfully. [Middle English withstanden, from Old English withstandan : with, against; see WITH + standan, to stand; see STAND.] — with-stand'er n.

with-y (wĭth'ē, wĭth'ē) adj. 1. Made of or as flexible as withes; tough. 2. Wiry and agile. — n. pl. with-ies. 1. A rope or band made of withes. 2. a. A long flexible twig, as that of an osier. b. A tree or shrub having such twigs. [WITHE + -Y¹. N., from Middle English withye, willow branch from Old English wīthig, willow. See wei- in Appendix.]

wit-less (wĭt'lis) adj. Lacking intelligence or wit; foolish. — wit/less-ly adv. — wit/less-ness n.

wit-ling (wĭt'ling) n. 1. One who aspires to wittiness. 2. One who has little wit.

wit-loof (wĭt'lōf') n. See endive (n., sense 2). [Dutch dialectal : wit, white (from Middle Dutch); see kweit- in Appendix + loof, leaf (from Middle Dutch).]

wit-ness (wĭt'nĭs) n. 1. a. One who can give a firsthand account of something seen, heard, or experienced: a witness to the accident. b. One who furnishes evidence. 2. Something that serves as evidence; a sign. 3. Law. a. One who is called on to testify before a court. b. One who is called on to be present at a transaction in order to attest to what takes place. c. One who signs one's name to a document for the purpose of attesting to its authenticity. 4. An attestation to a fact, a statement, or an event; testimony. 5. Witness. A member of the Jehovah's Witnesses. — v. wit-nessed, wit-ness-ing, wit-ness-es. — v. tr. 1. a. To be present at or have personal knowledge of. b. To take note of; observe. 2. To provide or serve as evidence of. See Synonyms at indicate. 3. To testify to; bear witness. 4. To be the setting or site of: This old auditorium has witnessed many ceremonies. 5. To attest to the legality or authenticity of by signing one's name to. — v. intr. 1. To furnish or serve as evidence; testify. 2. To testify to one's religious beliefs. [Middle English, from Old English, from wit, knowledge. See WIT¹.] —wit/-ness-er n.

witness box (wīt'nīs bōks) n. Chiefly British. A witness stand.

witness stand (wīt'nīs stānd) n. Law. A stand or an enclosed area in a courtroom from which a witness presents testimony.

Wit-te (vīt'ə, vȳē'tyə), Count Sergei Yulievich. 1849-1915. Russian politician. He served as minister of finance (1892-1903) and was the first prime minister of the Russian Empire (1905-1906).

wit-ted (wīt'id) adj. Having wit or intellectual comprehension. Often used in combination: keen-witted; dull-witted. —wit/ted-ness n.

Wit-ten (vīt'n) A city of west-central Germany on the Ruhr River east-southeast of Essen. Chartered in 1825, it is an industrial center. Population, 102,195.

Wit-ten-berg (wīt'n-bûrg', vīt'n-bĕrk') A city of east-central Germany on the Elbe River east of Dessau. Martin Luther made the city the center of the Protestant Reformation when he nailed his 95 theses to the door of the Schlosskirche in 1517. Population, 54,306.

Witt-gen-stein (vīt'gən-shtīn', -stīn), Ludwig. 1889-1951. Austrian-born British philosopher noted for his analyses of language and meaning. Among his writings are Tractatus Logico-Philosophicus (1921) and Philosophical Investigations (1953).

wit-ti-cism (wīt'ī-sīz'əm) n. A witty remark. See Synonyms at joke. [WITT(Y) + (CRIT)ICISM.]

Wit-tig (vīt'īKH), Georg. 1897-1987. German chemist. He shared a 1979 Nobel Prize for studies of organic phosphorous compounds.

wit-ting (wīt'īng) adj. 1. Aware or conscious of something. 2. Done intentionally or with premeditation; deliberate. — v. Present participle of wit². — n. Chiefly British. 1. Knowledge or awareness; cognizance. 2. Information obtained and passed on; news. —wit/ting-ly adv.

wit-tol (wīt'l) n. Archaic. A man who knows of and tolerates his wife's infidelity. [Middle English wetewold: weten, to know (from Old English witan); see WIT² + (coke)wold, cuckold; see CUCKOLD.]

wit·ty (wīt'ē) adj. wit·ti·er, wit·ti·est. 1. Possessing or demonstrating wit in speech or writing; very clever and humorous. 2. Characterized by or having the nature of wit; funny or jocular: a witty saying. 3. Quick to discern and express amusing insights or relationships. 4. Entertainingly and strikingly clever or original in concept, design, or performance: a witty sculpture; witty choreography.
—wit'ti·ly adv. —wit'ti·ness n.

Wit·wa·ters·rand (wīt-wō'tərz-ränd', -ränd', -wōt'ərz-) Often called Rand (ränd). A region of northeast South Africa between the Vaal River and Johannesburg. It has been one of the richest gold-mining areas in the world since the discovery of gold in 1886.

wive (wīv) v. wived, wiv·ing, wives. — v. tr. 1. To marry as a wife. 2. To provide a wife for. — v. intr. To marry a woman. [Middle English wiven, from Old English wīfian, from wīf, woman.]

wi·vern (wī'vərn) n. Heraldry. Variant of wyvern.

wives (wīvz) n. Plural of wife.

wiz (wīz) n. Informal. A person considered exceptionally gifted or skilled. [Short for WIZARD.]

wiz·ard (wīz'ərd) n. 1. One who practices magic; a sorcerer or magician. 2. A skilled or clever person: a wizard at math. 3. Archaic. A sage. — adj. 1. Chiefly British. Excellent. 2. Archaic. Of or relating to wizards or wizardry. [Middle English wisard: wise, wise; see WISE¹ + -ard, pejorative suff.; see -ARD.] wiz·ard·ly (wīz'ərd-lē) adj. 1. Having the qualities or attributes of a wizard. 2. Astonishingly remarkable in design, performance, or execution; fabulous: wizardly lighting and special effects.

wiz·ard·ry (wīz'ər-drē) n. pl. wiz·ard·ries. 1. The art, skill, or practice of a wizard; sorcery. 2. a. A power or an effect that appears magical by its capacity to transform: computer wizardry. b. Great ability or adroitness in a pursuit: a pianist gifted with technical wizardry.

wiz·en (wīz'ən) v. wiz·ened, wiz·en·ing, wiz·ens. — v. intr. To dry up; wither or shrivel. — v. tr. To cause to wither, shrivel, or dry up. — adj. Shrivelled or dried up; withered: "There would be a day when his face would be wrinkled and wizen" (Oscar Wilde). [Middle English wisenen, from Old English wisnian.] wiz·ened (wīz'ənd) adj. Withered; wizen.

wk. abbr. 1. Week. 2. Work.

wkly. abbr. Weekly.

WL abbr. 1. Or w.l. Water line. 2. Wavelength.

Wlo·cla·wek (vlōt-slā'vĕk) A city of central Poland on the Vistula River west-northwest of Warsaw. It was founded in the 12th century, passed to Russia in 1815, and reverted to Poland after World War I. Population, 115,300.

wm. abbr. Wattmeter.

wmk. abbr. Watermark.

WNW abbr. West-northwest.

wo (wō) n. Archaic. Variant of woe.

WO or W.O. abbr. Warrant officer.

w/o abbr. Without.

woad (wōd) n. 1. An annual Old World plant (Isatis tinctoria) in the mustard family, formerly cultivated for its leaves that yield a blue dye. 2. The dye obtained from this plant. [Middle English wode, from Old English wād.]

woad·wax·en (wōd'wāk'sən) n. See dyer's greenweed. [Alteration of WOODWAXEN.]

wob·ble also wab·ble (wōb'əl) v. wob·bled, wob·bling, wob·bles. — v. intr. 1. To move or rotate with an uneven or rocking motion or unsteadily from side to side. 2. To tremble or quaver: The child's voice wobbled with emotion. 3. To waver or vacillate in one's opinions or feelings. — v. tr. To cause to wobble. — n. 1. The act or an instance of wobbling; unsteady motion. 2. A tremulous, uncertain tone or sound: a vocal wobble. [Probably from Low German wabbeln. See webh- in Appendix.] — wob'bler n.

wob·bly (wōb'lē) adj. wob·bli·er, wob·bli·est. Tending to wobble; unsteady. — wob'bli·ness n.

Wo·burn (wō'bərn, wō'-'-) A city of northeast Massachusetts, an industrial suburb of Boston. Population, 35,943.

w.o.c. abbr. Without compensation.

Wode·house (wōd'hous'), P(elham) G(renville). 1881-1975. British writer known for his humorous novels and stories that feature the aristocrat Bertie Wooster and his butler Jeeves.

Wo·den also Wo·dan (wōd'n) n. Mythology. An Anglo-Saxon god identified with Odin. [Middle English, from Old English Wōden. See wet-¹ in Appendix.]

Wod·zi·slaw Sł·ski (vō-jē'swäf shlōn'skē) A city of southern Poland southwest of Katowice. It is a rail junction and manufacturing center. Population, 107,700.

woe (wō) n. 1. Deep distress or misery, as from grief; wretchedness. See Synonyms at regret. 2. Misfortune; calamity: economic and political woes. — interj. Used to express sorrow or dismay. [Middle English wa, wo, from Old English wā, woe!] woe·be·gone (wō'bī-gōn', -gōn') adj. 1. Affected with or marked by deep sorrow, grief, or wretchedness. See Synonyms at sad. 2. Of an inferior or deplorable condition: a rundown, woebegone old shack. [Middle English wo begon, beset with woe : wo, woe; see WOE + begon, past participle of begon, to beset (from Old English begān : bī, be-, be- + gān, to go); see GO¹.]

—woe'be·gone'ness n.

woe-ful also wo-ful (wō'fəl) adj. 1. Affected by or full of woe; mournful.
2. Causing or involving woe. 3. Deplorably bad or wretched: woeful treatment of the accused; woeful errors in judgment. —woe-ful-ly adv. —woe-ful-ness n.

wog (wɔ̃g) n. Chiefly British & Offensive Slang. Used as a disparaging term for a person of color, especially a foreigner from the Middle East or Asia. [Probably short for GOLLIWOG.]

Wöh-ler (wûr'lər, vûr'-, vœ'-), Friedrich. 1800-1882. German chemist. The founder of organic chemistry, he refuted the theory that an élan vital was necessary to synthesize organic compounds.

wok (wɔ̃k) n. A metal pan having a rounded bottom, used especially for frying and steaming in Asian cooking. [Chinese (Cantonese).]

woke (wɔ̃k) v. A past tense of wake¹. See Regional note at wake¹.

wok-en (wɔ̃'kən) v. A past participle of wake¹.

Wo-king (wō'kɪŋ) An urban district of southeast England, a mainly residential suburb of London. Population, 81,800.

Wol-cott (wɔ̃l'kət), Oliver. 1726-1797. American Revolutionary leader. He was a member of the Continental Congress (1775-1778 and 1780-1784), a signer of the Declaration of Independence, and the governor of Connecticut (1796-1797).

wold¹ (wɔ̃ld) n. An unforested rolling plain; a moor. [Middle English, from Old English weald, forest.]

wold² (wɔ̃ld) n. Variant of weld².

Wolds (wɔ̃ldz) A range of chalk hills in northeast England along both banks of the Humber River.

wolf (wɔ̃lf) n. pl. wolves (wɔ̃lvz). 1. a. Either of two carnivorous mammals of the family Canidae, especially the gray wolf of northern regions, that typically live and hunt in hierarchical packs and prey on livestock and game animals.
b. The fur of such an animal. c. Any of various similar or related mammals, such as the hyena. 2. The destructive larva of any of various moths, beetles, or flies.
3. One that is regarded as predatory, rapacious, and fierce. 4. Slang. A man given to paying unwanted sexual attention to women. 5. Music. a. A harshness in some tones of a bowed stringed instrument produced by defective vibration.
b. Dissonance in some intervals of a keyboard instrument tuned to a system of unequal temperament. — v. tr. wolfed, wolf-ing, wolfs. To eat greedily or voraciously: "The town's big shots were... wolfing down the buffet" (Ralph Ellison). —idioms. keep the wolf from the door. Slang. To avoid the privation and suffering resulting from a lack of money: Both spouses had to take jobs in order to keep the wolf from the door. wolf at the door. Creditors or a creditor. wolf in sheep's clothing. One who feigns congeniality while actually holding malevolent intentions. [Middle English, from Old English wulf. See wɪk^wo- in Appendix.]

Wolf (vôlf), Baron Christian von. See Baron Christian von Wolff.

Wolf (vôlf), Friedrich August. 1759-1824. German classical scholar who proposed that the Iliad and the Odyssey are the work of several authors.

Wolf (vôlf), Hugo. 1860-1903. Austrian composer known for his musical settings of the poetry of Goethe and Italian and Spanish writers and for the opera Der Corregidor (1895).

wolf-ber-ry (wôolf'bër'ē) n. A deciduous shrub (Symphoricarpos occidentalis) of western North America, having white berries and pinkish, bell-shaped flowers.

Wolf Cub (wôolf kûb) n. Chiefly British. A Cub Scout.

wolf dog (wôolf dôg) n. 1. A dog trained to hunt wolves. 2. The hybrid offspring of a dog and a wolf.

Wolfe (wôolf), Charles. 1791-1823. Irish poet and cleric remembered for his elegy "The Burial of Sir John Moore at Corunna" (1817).

Wolfe (wôolf), James. 1727-1759. British general in Canada. He defeated the French at Quebec (1759) but was mortally wounded in the battle.

Wolfe (wôolf), Thomas (Clayton). 1900-1938. American writer who is best known for his two autobiographical novels, Look Homeward, Angel (1929) and You Can't Go Home Again (1940).

Wolfe (wôolf), Thomas (Kennerly). Known as "Tom." Born 1931. American writer. A leading exponent of New Journalism, he has written extensively on popular culture. His works include The Electric Kool-Aid Acid Test (1968) and The Right Stuff (1979).

wolf eel (wôolf ēl) n. A Pacific wolf fish (Anarrhichthys ocellatus) having a long body and a pointed tail.

Wolff or Wolf (vôlf), Baron Christian von. 1679-1754. German mathematician and philosopher who popularized the work of Leibnitz.

Wolff (vôlf), Kaspar Friedrich. 1733-1794. German anatomist noted for his pioneering work in embryology.

Wolff-i-an body (wôolf'fē-ən bôd'ē) n. Biology. See mesonephros. [After Kaspar Friedrich WOLFF.]

Wolffian duct (wôolf'fē-ən dŭkt) n. Biology. The embryonic duct of the mesonephros, which in the male becomes the vas deferens and in both sexes gives rise to the ureter. [After Kaspar Friedrich WOLFF.]

wolf fish (wôolf fîsh) n. Any of several northern marine fishes of the genus Anarhichas, having sharp, powerful teeth and a voracious appetite.

wolf-hound (wôolf'hound') n. Any of various large dogs, such as the Irish wolfhound or the borzoi, trained to hunt wolves or other large game.

wolf-ish (wôolf'fîsh) adj. 1. Of or relating to wolves. 2. a. Suggestive of or resembling a wolf. b. Fierce or rapacious. —wolf-ish-ly adv.

—wolf-ish-ness n.

wolf pack (wōolf pāk) n. A group of submarines that attack a single vessel or a convoy.

wolf-ram (wōol'frəm) n. See tungsten. [German, wolframite, tungsten : probably Wolf, wolf (from Middle High German, from Old High German); see włk^wo- in Appendix + -ram (from Middle High German rām, dirt).]

wolf-ram-ite (wōol'frə-mīt') n. Any of several red-brown to black minerals with the general formula (Fe,Mn)WO₄, which constitute a major source of tungsten.

wolfs-bane (wōolfs'bān') n. 1. See monkshood (n., sense 2). 2. Any of several poisonous perennial herbs of the genus Aconitum, especially A. lycotonum, having broad, rounded leaves, elongate racemes, and purple-lilac flowers.

Wolfs-burg (wōolfs'bûrg', vōlfs'bōork') A city of north-central Germany northeast of Brunswick. It grew after the establishment of a Volkswagen automobile factory in the late 1930's. Population, 122,099.

wolf spider (wōolf spī'dər) n. Any of various spiders of the family Lycosidae that stalk prey on the ground and do not spin webs, especially a common small species (Lycosa tarentula) of southern Europe found on beaches and in woods.

wolf whistle (wōolf hwīs'əl) n. A typically two-note whistle made by a boy or man as an expression of sexual attention, often unsolicited, to a girl or woman.
—wolf whistle v.

Wol-las-ton (wōol'ə-stən), William Hyde. 1766-1828. British chemist and physicist who discovered palladium (1803) and rhodium (1804).

wol-las-ton-ite (wōol'ə-stə-nīt') n. A white to gray mineral, essentially CaSiO₃, found in metamorphic rocks and used in ceramics, paints, plastics, and cements. [After William Hyde WOLLASTON.]

Wol-las-ton Lake (wōol'ə-stən lāk, wōl'-) A lake of northeast Saskatchewan, Canada, draining into the Churchill and Mackenzie river systems.

Wol-lon-gong (wōol'ən-gōng', -gōng') A city of southeast Australia on the Tasman Sea south-southwest of Sydney. It is an iron and steel center. Population, 176,500.

Woll-stone-craft (wōol'stən-kräft', -kräft'), Mary. In full Mary Wollstonecraft Godwin. 1759-1797. British writer and reformer noted for A Vindication of the Rights of Woman (1792), considered the first important feminist essay.

Wo-lof (wō'löf') n. 1. A member of a West African people primarily inhabiting coastal Senegal. 2. The West Atlantic language of this people, widely used as a lingua franca in Senegal.

Wolse-ley (wōolz'lē), First Viscount Title of Garnet Joseph Wolseley. 1833-1913. Irish-born British general and colonial administrator. He defeated Egyptian forces in the struggle for control of the Suez Canal (1882) and was commander in chief of the army (1895-1901).

Wol-sey (wōōl'zē), Thomas. 1475?-1530. English prelate and politician. The influential chief adviser to Henry VIII, he fell from favor after failing to secure papal approval of Henry's divorce from Catherine of Aragon (1529).

Wol-ver-hamp-ton (wōōl'vər-hämp'tən, -hämp'-) A borough of west-central England northwest of Birmingham. It is a highly industrialized city. Population, 256,500.

wol-ver-ine (wōōl'və-rēn', wōōl'və-rēn') n. 1. A solitary, burrowing carnivorous mammal (Gulo gulo) of northern forest regions, related to the weasel and having a heavyset body, short legs, and dark fur with a bushy tail. Also called car-cajou, glutton, skunk bear. 2. Wolverine. A native or inhabitant of Michigan. [Probably from WOLF.]

wolves (wōōlvz) n. Plural of wolf.

wom-an (wōōm'ən) n. pl. wom-en (wīm'in). 1. An adult female human being. 2. Women considered as a group; womankind: "Woman feels the invidious distinctions of sex exactly as the black man does those of color" (Elizabeth Cady Stanton). 3. An adult female human being belonging to a specified occupation, group, nationality, or other category. Often used in combination: Englishwoman; congresswoman; saleswoman. 4. Feminine quality or aspect; womanliness. 5. A female servant or subordinate. 6. Informal. a. A wife. b. A lover or sweetheart. 7. A representative, as of a company. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a woman athlete; a woman electrician. — idioms. (one's) own woman. Independent in judgment or action: She has always been her own woman. to a woman. Without exception. [Middle English, from Old English wimman, variant of wifman : wif, woman + man, person; see MAN.] — wom-'an-less adj.

woman about town (wōōm'ən ə-bout' toun) n. pl. women about town. A sophisticated and socially active woman who frequents fashionable places.

wom-an-ful-ly (wōōm'ən-fül'ē) adv. With the characteristic grace, strength, or purposefulness of a woman: "I will trample... upon all the prickles of the impossibilities and flatten them womanfully" (Maria Edgeworth).

wom-an-hood (wōōm'ən-hōōd') n. 1. The state or time of being a woman. 2. The composite of qualities thought to be appropriate to or representative of women. 3. Women considered as a group: "The true worth of a race must be measured by the character of its womanhood" (Mary McLeod Bethune).

wom-an-ish (wōōm'ə-nīsh) adj. 1. Of, characteristic of, or natural to a woman. See Synonyms at feminine. 2. Resembling, imitative of, or suggestive of a woman. — wom'an-ish-ly adv. — wom'an-ish-ness n.

wom-an-ist (wōōm'ən-īst) adj. Having or expressing a belief in or respect for women and their talents and abilities beyond the boundaries of race or class: "Womanist tradition assumes, because of our experiences during slavery, that black women already are capable” (Alice Walker). — n. One whose beliefs or actions are informed by womanist ideals. — wom’an’ism n.

wom-an-ize (wōōm’ə-nīz’) v. woman-ized, woman-iz-ing, woman-iz-es. — v. intr. To pursue women lecherously. — v. tr. To give female characteristics to; feminize. — wom’an-iz’er n.

wom-an-kind (wōōm’ən-kīnd’) n. Women considered as a group.

wom-an-like (wōōm’ən-lik’) adj. 1. Resembling a woman: a womanlike stone image. 2. Belonging to or befitting a woman.

wom-an-ly (wōōm’ən-lē) adj. wom-an-li-er, wom-an-li-est. 1. Having qualities generally attributed to a woman. 2. Belonging to or representative of a woman; feminine: womanly attire. See Synonyms at feminine. — wom’an-li-ness n.

woman of the house (wōōm’ən ÷v thē hous) n. pl. women of the house. The primary woman of a household.

woman of the world (wōōm’ən ÷v thē wûrld) n. pl. women of the world. A sophisticated, worldly woman.

wom-an-pow-er (wōōm’ən-pou’ər) n. Power in terms of the women available to a particular group or required for a particular task.

woman suffrage (wōōm’ən sŭf’rij) n. 1. The right of women to vote; exercise of the franchise by women. 2. A movement to promote and secure such rights.

wom-an-to-wom-an (wōōm’ən-tə-wōōm’ən) adj. Characterized by direct interaction between or among women: woman-to-woman talks; a woman-to-woman conference.

womb (wōōm) n. 1. See uterus (n., sense 1). 2. a. A place where something is generated. b. An encompassing, protective hollow or space. 3. Obsolete. The belly. [Middle English, from Old English wamb.] — wombed adj.

wom-bat (wōm’băt’) n. Any of several stocky, burrowing, Australian marsupials of the family Vombatidae, somewhat resembling a small bear and feeding mainly on grass, leaves, and roots. [Dharuk (Aboriginal language of southeast Australia) wambat’.]

wom-en (wīm’in) n. Plural of woman.

wom-en-folk (wīm’in-fōk’) also wom-en-folks (-fōks’) pl.n. 1. Women considered as a group. 2. The women of a community or family.

wom-en-kind (wīm’ən-kīnd’) n. Womankind.

wom-en’s movement (wīm’inz mōōv’mənt) n. A loosely organized movement in the United States beginning in the late 1960’s and focusing chiefly on women’s roles as wage earners, women’s control of their own sexuality, an end to violence against women, and ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment: “The women’s movement brought new possibilities for social change, particularly for women” (Art in America).

women's rights (wĭm'inz rīts) pl.n. 1. Socioeconomic, political, and legal rights for all women equal to those of men. 2. A movement in support of these rights.

women's room (wĭm'inz rōom) n. A restroom for women.

wom-en's studies also Wom-en's Studies (wĭm'inz stüd'ēz) n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). An academic curriculum focusing on the roles and contributions of women in fields such as literature, history, and the social sciences: "Until the 1970s most colleges had never heard of Women's Studies. Now, there are over 30,000 such courses" (Gloria Steinem).

women's wear (wĭm'inz wâr) n. Clothing for women.

wom-er-a (wŏm'ər-ə) n. Variant of woomera.

won¹ (wŭn, wŏn) v. intr. wonned, won-ning, wons. Archaic. To dwell or abide. [Middle English wonen, from Old English wunian. See wen¹ in Appendix.]

won² (wŏn) n. pl. won. A basic unit of currency in North Korea and South Korea. See Table at currency. [Korean.]

won³ (wŭn) v. Past tense and past participle of win.

won-der (wŭn'dər) n. 1. a. One that arouses awe, astonishment, surprise, or admiration; a marvel: "The decision of one age or country is a wonder to another" (John Stuart Mill). b. The emotion aroused by something awe-inspiring, astounding, or marvelous: gazed with wonder at the northern lights. 2. An event inexplicable by the laws of nature; a miracle. 3. A feeling of puzzlement or doubt. 4. Often Wonder. A monumental human creation regarded with awe, especially one of seven monuments of the ancient world that appeared on various lists of late antiquity. — v. won-dered, won-der-ing, won-ders. — v. intr. 1. a. To have a feeling of awe or admiration; marvel: "She wondered at all the things civilization can teach a woman to endure" (Frances Newman). b. To have a feeling of surprise. 2. To be filled with curiosity or doubt. — v. tr. To feel curiosity or be in doubt about: wondered what was going on. — adj. 1. a. Arousing awe or admiration. b. Wonderful. 2. Far superior to anything formerly recognized or foreseen. — idiom. for a wonder. As a cause for surprise; surprisingly. [Middle English, from Old English wundor.] — won'der-er n.

SYNONYMS: wonder, marvel, miracle, phenomenon, prodigy, sensation. The central meaning shared by these nouns is "one that evokes amazement or admiration": saw the wonders of Paris; a marvel of modern technology; a miracle of culinary art; organ transplantation, a phenomenon of medical science; a musical prodigy; a performance that was the sensation of the season.

wonder drug (wŭn'dər drŭg) n. See miracle drug.

won·der·ful (wŭn'dər-fəl) adj. 1. Capable of eliciting wonder; astonishing: "The... whale is one of the most wonderful animals in the world" (Charles Darwin). 2. Admirable; excellent: "The spirit of the movement was wonderful. It was joyous and grave at the same time" (Christabel Pankhurst). —won'der·ful·ly adv. —won'der·ful·ness n.

won·der·ing (wŭn'dər-ɪŋ) adj. Feeling or expressing awe, admiration, amazement, or surprise. —won'der·ing·ly adv.

won·der·land (wŭn'dər-länd') n. 1. A marvelous imaginary realm. 2. A marvelous real place or scene.

won·der·ment (wŭn'dər-mənt) n. 1. Astonishment, awe, or surprise. 2. Something that produces wonder; a marvel. 3. Puzzlement or curiosity.

won·der·work (wŭn'dər-wŭrk') n. A marvelous or miraculous act, work, or achievement; a marvel. —won'der·work'er n. —won'der·work'ing adj.

won·drous (wŭn'drəs) adj. Remarkable or extraordinary; wonderful. — adv. Archaic. To a wonderful or remarkable extent. —won'drous·ly adv. —won'drous·ness n.

wonk (wŏngk) n. Slang. A student who studies excessively; a grind. [Origin unknown.]

won·ky (wŏng'kē) adj. won·ki·er, won·ki·est. Chiefly British. 1. Shaky; feeble. 2. Wrong; awry. [Probably alteration of dialectal wanky, alteration of wankle, from Middle English wankel, from Old English wancol, unsteady.]

Won·san (wŭn'sän') A city of southeast North Korea on the Sea of Japan east of Pyongyang. Opened to foreign trade in 1883, it is a major port and naval base. Population, 350,000.

wont (wŏnt, wŏnt, wŭnt) adj. 1. Accustomed or used: "The poor man is wont to complain that this is a cold world" (Henry David Thoreau). 2. Likely: chaotic as holidays are wont to be. — n. Customary practice; usage. See Synonyms at habit. — v. wont or wont·ed, wont·ing, wonts. — v. tr. To make accustomed to. — v. intr. To be in the habit of doing something. [Middle English, past participle of wonen, to be used to, dwell. See WON¹.]

won't (wŏnt) Will not.

wont·ed (wŏn'tid, wŏn'-, wŭn'-) adj. Accustomed; usual: striding along with her wonted purposefulness. —wont'ed·ly adv. —wont'ed·ness n.

won ton or won·ton (wŏn'tŏn') n. 1. A noodle-dough dumpling filled typically with spiced minced pork or other ground meat, usually boiled in soup or fried and eaten as a side dish. 2. Soup containing such dumplings. [Chinese (Cantonese) wan tan.]

woo (wō) v. wooed, woo·ing, woos. — v. tr. 1. To seek the affection of with intent to romance. 2. a. To seek to achieve; try to gain. b. To tempt or invite. 3. To entreat, solicit, or importune. — v. intr. To court a woman. Used of a man. [Middle English wowen, from Old English wōgian.] —woo'er n.

wood¹ (wōōd) n. Abbr. wd. 1. a. The secondary xylem of trees and shrubs, lying beneath the bark and consisting largely of cellulose and lignin. b. This tissue, often cut and dried especially for use as building material and fuel. 2. Often woods. A dense growth of trees; a forest. 3. An object made of wood, especially: a. Music. A woodwind. b. Sports. A golf club used to hit long shots, having a wooden head numbered one to five in order of increasing loft. — v. wood-ed, wood-ing, woods. — v. tr. 1. To fuel with wood. 2. To cover with trees; forest. — v. intr. To gather or be supplied with wood. — adj. 1. Made or consisting of wood; wooden. 2. Used or suitable for cutting, storing, or working with wood. 3. woods. Living, growing, or present in forests: woods animals; a woods path. — idiom. out of the woods. Informal. Free of a difficult or hazardous situation; in a position of safety or security. [Middle English wode, from Old English wudu.]

wood² (wōōd) adj. Archaic. Mentally unbalanced; insane. [Middle English, from Old English wōd. See wet-¹ in Appendix.]

Wood (wōōd), Grant. 1892-1942. American artist noted for his paintings based on life in the Midwest, especially American Gothic (1930).

Wood (wōōd), Leonard. 1860-1927. American military leader and colonial administrator who was chief of staff of the U.S. Army (1910-1914) and governor-general of the Philippines (1921-1927).

wood alcohol (wōōd ăl'kə-hôl') n. See methanol.

wood anemone (wōōd ə-nĕm'ə-nĕ) n. Either of two plants, Anemone quinquefolia of eastern North America or A. nemorosa of Eurasia, having deeply divided leaves and a solitary, showy, white to crimson flower.

wood betony (wōōd bĕt'n-ĕ) n. See lousewort.

wood-bin (wōōd'bĭn') n. A box for holding firewood.

wood-bine (wōōd'bĭn') n. 1. Any of various climbing vines, especially a Mediterranean honeysuckle (Lonicera periclymenum) having yellowish flowers. 2. See Virginia creeper. [Middle English wodebinde, from Old English wudubinde: wudu, wood + binde, wreath (from bindan, to bind); see bhendh- in Appendix.]

wood-block (wōōd'blŏk') n. 1. See woodcut. 2. Also wood block. Music. A hollow block of wood struck with a drumstick to produce percussive effects in an orchestra.

wood-bor-er (wōōd'bŏr'ər, -bŏr'ər) n. Any of various insects, insect larvae, or mollusks that bore into wood. — wood'bor'ing adj.

Wood-bridge (wōōd'brij') 1. A city of northeast New Jersey south-southwest of Elizabeth. Settled in 1665, it is an industrial center. Population, 90,074. 2. A community of northeast Virginia, a suburb of Alexandria and Washington, D.C. Population, 26,401.

Wood-bur-y (wōōd'běr'ē, -bə-rē), Helen Laura Sumner. 1876-1933. American social economist noted for her studies of labor and woman suffrage.

Wood-bur-y (wōōd'běr'ē, -bə-rē), Levi. 1789-1851. American jurist who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1845-1851).

wood-carv-ing (wōōd'kär'vīng) n. 1. The art of creating or decorating objects of wood by carving with a sharp, hand-held tool. 2. A carved wood object. —wood'carv'er n.

wood-chat (wōōd'chăt') n. An Old World shrike (Lanius senator) having black and white plumage with a reddish crown.

wood-chop-per (wōōd'chöp'ər) n. One who chops wood, especially one who chops down trees. —wood'chop'ping n.

wood-chuck (wōōd'chük') n. A common burrowing rodent (Marmota monax) of northern and eastern North America, having a short-legged, heavy-set body and grizzled brownish fur. Also called groundhog Regional., whistle pig. [By folk etymology, probably of New England Algonquian origin.]

REGIONAL NOTE: The woodchuck goes by several names in the United States. The most famous of these is groundhog, under which name all the legends about the animal's hibernation have accrued. In the Appalachian Mountains the woodchuck is known as a whistle pig. The word woodchuck is probably a folk etymology of a New England Algonquian word—that is, English-speaking settlers “translated” the Indian word into a compound of two words that made sense to them in light of the animal's habitat.

wood coal (wōōd kōl) n. 1. Charcoal. 2. Lignite.

wood-cock (wōōd'kōk') n. pl. woodcock or wood-cocks. Either of two related game birds, Scolopax rusticola of the Old World or Philohela minor of North America, having brownish plumage, short legs, and a long bill.

wood-craft (wōōd'kräft') n. 1. Skill and experience in matters relating to the woods, as hunting, fishing, or camping. 2. The act, process, or art of carving or fashioning objects from wood.

wood-craft-er (wōōd'kräf'tər) n. One who carves or fashions objects from wood. —wood'craft'ing n.

wood-cut (wōōd'küt') n. 1. A block of wood on whose surface a design for printing is engraved along the grain. 2. A print made from a woodcut. Also called woodblock, woodprint.

wood-cut-ter (wōōd'küt'ər) n. One that cuts wood.

wood-cut-ting (wōōd'küt'īng) n. 1. The act, activity, or job of cutting wood. 2. The art or process of making woodcuts. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: woodcutting gear; a woodcutting saw.

wood duck (wōod dŭk) n. A brightly colored American duck (Aix sponsa) that nests in hollow trees and the male of which is noted for its large crest.

wood·ed (wōod'īd) adj. Covered with trees or woods: a wooded area near the highway; a heavily wooded tract.

wood·en (wōod'n) adj. 1. Made or consisting of wood. 2. Stiff and unnatural; without spirit: a wooden performance; a wooden smile. 3. Clumsy and awkward; ungainly. —wood'en·ly adv. —wood'en·ness n.

wood engraving (wōod ěn-grā'vīng) n. 1. a. A block of wood on whose surface a design for printing is engraved across the end grain. b. A print made from a wood engraving. 2. The art or process of making wood engravings.

wood·en·head (wōod'n-hĕd') n. A person regarded as stupid.

—wood'en·head'ed adj.

wooden Indian (wōod'n ĩn'dĕ-ən) n. A cigar-store Indian.

wood·en·ware (wōod'n-wār') n. Articles, such as kitchenware, furniture, or ornaments, made of wood.

wood frog (wōod frŏg) n. A North American frog (Rana sylvatica) that inhabits damp woodlands and has a brown masklike patch running from snout to ears.

wood grouse (wōod grous) n. See capercaillie.

wood hoopoe (wōod hōō'pōō) n. Any of several tropical and southern African birds of the family Phoeniculidae, similar to the hoopoe but having metallic plumage, long graduated tails, and no crest.

Wood·hull (wōod'hŭl'), Victoria Clafin. 1838-1927. American reformer. An outspoken advocate of woman suffrage and free love, she was the first woman to run for the U.S. presidency (1872).

wood hyacinth (wōod hī'ə-sīnth) n. See bluebell (n., sense 1).

wood ibis (wōod ĩ'bīs) n. Any of several large, mainly white wading birds of the subfamily Mycteriinae, related to and resembling the storks, especially the New World species Mycteria americana, which inhabits wooded areas of tropical and subtropical America. Also called flinthead, wood stork.

wood·ie (wōod'ē) n. Variant of woody².

wood·land (wōod'lænd, -lænd') n. Land having a cover of trees and shrubs.

— adj. 1. Of, relating to, or constituting woodland. 2. Living, growing, or present in woodland: woodland flowers. —wood'land·er (-lænd-dər) n.

Wood·land (wōod'lænd) A city of north-central California west-northwest of Sacramento. It is a manufacturing center in an agricultural area. Population, 39,802.

woodland caribou (wōod'lænd kār'ə-bōō') n. A large dark brown caribou with a light muzzle and heavily palmate antlers, inhabiting forested areas of Canada and the northwest United States.

wood·lark (wōod'lärk') n. An Old World songbird (Lullula arborea) resembling the skylark.

wood lot or wood·lot (wōōd'lōt') n. A usually private area restricted to the growing of forest trees, especially for building material or fuel.

wood louse (wōōd lous) n. See sow bug.

wood·man (wōōd'mən) n. A woodsman.

Wood·mere (wōōd'mîr) A town of southeast New York on western Long Island. It is mainly residential. Population, 15,578.

wood mouse (wōōd mous) n. A mouse, such as a deer mouse, that commonly lives in woodlands.

wood·note (wōōd'nōt') n. 1. A song or call characteristic of a woodland bird. 2. Natural, spontaneous verbal utterance.

wood nymph (wōōd nîmf) n. 1. A nymph of the forest; a dryad. 2. Any of several tropical hummingbirds of the genera Thalurania and Cyanophaia. 3. Any of various butterflies of the family Satyridae, especially Cercyonis pegala, having brownish wings with dark eyespots.

wood·peck·er (wōōd'pĕk'ər) n. Any of various usually brightly colored birds of the family Picidae, having strong claws and a stiff tail adapted for clinging to and climbing trees and a chisel-like bill for drilling through bark and wood.

Regional. Also called peckerwood wood pewee (wōōd pē'wē) n. Either of two small pewees, Contopus virens of the eastern United States or C. sordidulus of western North America, living in wooded areas.

wood pigeon (wōōd pjī'ən) n. A large pigeon (Columba palumbus) of Europe and Asia, having a white band on each wing. Also called ringdove wood·pile (wōōd'pîl') n. A pile of wood, especially when used for fuel.

wood·print (wōōd'prînt') n. See woodcut.

wood pulp (wōōd pŭlp) n. Pulp made from wood, used especially to make paper.

wood pussy (wōōd pōōs'ē) n. Slang. A skunk.

wood rabbit (wōōd răb'īt) n. See cottontail.

wood rat (wōōd răt) n. See pack rat (n., sense 1).

Wood·ridge (wōōd'rîj') A village of northeast Illinois west of Chicago. It is a residential community in a farm area. Population, 26,256.

wood·ruff (wōōd'rəf, -rŭf') n. 1. A fragrant perennial herb (Galium odoratum) native to Eurasia and North Africa and widely cultivated as a shade ground cover, having small white flowers and narrow leaves used for flavoring wine and in sachets. Also called sweet woodruff 2. Any of various plants of the genus Asperula, having whorled leaves and small funnel-shaped flowers. [Middle English woderofe, from Old English wudurofe : wudu, wood + -rofe, of unknown meaning.]

Woods (wōodz), Lake of the. A lake of southwest Ontario and southwest Manitoba, Canada, and northern Minnesota. It is a popular fishing and resort area.

Woods (wōodz), William Burnham. 1824-1887. American jurist who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1880-1887).

woods colt (wōodz kōlt) n. Chiefly Southern U.S. See old-field colt. See Regional note at old-field colt.

wood-shed (wōod'shēd') n. A shed in which firewood is stored. — v. intr. wood-shed-ded, wood-shed-ding, wood-sheds. Slang. To practice on a musical instrument.

wood shot (wōod shōt) n. Sports. 1. A golf shot made with a wood. 2. A stroke in racket games made with the frame of the racket instead of the strings.

wood-si-a (wōod'zē-ə) n. Any of several small tufted ferns of the genus Wood-sia, having pinnately divided fronds and growing in cool, rocky areas. [After Joseph Woods (1776-1864), British botanist.]

woods-man (wōodz'mən) n. A man who works or lives in the woods or is versed in woodcraft; a forester.

wood sorrel (wōod sōr'əl) n. See oxalis.

wood spirits (wōod spīr'īts) pl.n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). See methanol.

Wood-stock (wōod'stōk') 1. A city of southern Ontario, Canada, on the Thames River west-southwest of Toronto. It is a manufacturing center. Population, 26,603. 2. A village of southeast New York south-southwest of Albany. In 1969 a large rock music festival named after the village was held at another small town in the Catskill Mountains. Population, 1,073.

wood stork (wōod stōrk) n. See wood ibis.

wood sugar (wōod shōog'ər) n. See xylose.

woods-y (wōod'zē) adj. woods-i-er, woods-i-est. Of, relating to, characteristic of, or suggestive of the woods.

wood tar (wōod tär) n. A viscous black fluid that is a byproduct of the destructive distillation of wood and is used in pitch, preservatives, and medicines.

wood thrush (wōod thrūsh) n. A large, plump thrush (Hylocichla mustelina) of wooded areas of eastern North America, having a reddish-brown head and a spotted, cream-colored breast.

wood tick (wōod tīk) n. Any of various ticks of the genus Dermacentor, which transmit the microorganism that causes Rocky Mountain spotted fever and tularemia in human beings.

wood-turn-ing (wōod'tūr'nīng) n. The art or process of shaping wood into forms on a lathe. — wood/turn'er n.

wood vinegar (wōod vīn'ĭ-gər) n. See pyroligneous acid.

wood warbler (wōod wōr'blər) n. See warbler (n., sense 1).

Wood-ward (wōd'wərd), C(omer) Vann. Born 1908. American historian whose works include Origins of the New South (1951) and The Strange Career of Jim Crow (1955).

Wood-ward (wōd'wərd), Robert Burns. 1917-1979. American chemist. He won a 1965 Nobel Prize for work in synthesizing complicated organic compounds.

wood-wax-en (wōd'wāk'sən) n. See dyer's greenweed. [Middle English wodewaxen, from Old English wuduweaxe: wudu, wood + weaxan, to grow; see WAX².]

wood-wind (wōd'wīnd') n. Music. 1. A wind instrument, such as a bassoon, clarinet, flute, oboe, or saxophone, in which sound is produced by the vibration of reeds in or by the passing of air across the mouthpiece. 2. woodwinds.

a. The section of a band or an orchestra composed of woodwind instruments.

b. Woodwind instruments or their players considered as a group.

wood-work (wōd'wŭrk') n. Objects made of or work done in wood, especially wooden interior fittings in a house, as moldings, doors, staircases, or windowsills. —idiom. out of the woodwork. Out of obscurity or a place of seclusion: People were coming out of the woodwork to apply for the plummy job.

wood-work-ing (wōd'wŭr'kīng) n. The act, art, or trade of working with wood. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a woodworking shop; woodworking tools. —wood/work'er n.

wood-worm (wōd'wŭrm') n. A worm or an insect larva that bores into wood.

wood-y¹ (wōd'ē) adj. wood-i-er, wood-i-est. 1. Forming or consisting of wood; ligneous: woody tissue. 2. Marked by the presence of wood or xylem: woody plants. 3. Characteristic or suggestive of wood: a woody smell.

4. Abounding in trees; wooded.

wood-y² also wood-ie (wōd'ē) n. pl. wood-ies. A station wagon with exterior wood paneling. —wood/i-ness n.

woof¹ (wōf, wōf) n. 1. The threads that run crosswise in a woven fabric, at right angles to the warp threads. 2. The texture of a fabric. [Alteration (influenced by WARP), of Middle English oof, from Old English ōwef: ō-, on, on; see ON + wefan, to weave; see webh- in Appendix.]

woof² (wōf) n. 1. The characteristically deep, gruff bark of a dog. 2. A sound similar to a woof. — v. intr. woofed, woof-ing, woofs. To make this sound. [Imitative.]

woof-er (wōf'ər) n. A loudspeaker designed to reproduce bass frequencies. [From WOOF².]

wool (wōl) n. 1. a. The dense, soft, often curly hair forming the coat of sheep and certain other mammals, such as the goat and alpaca, consisting of cylindrical fibers of keratin covered by minute overlapping scales and much valued as a textile fabric. b. A material or garment made of this hair. 2. The furry hair of some insect larvae, such as the caterpillar. 3. A filamentous or fibrous covering or substance suggestive of the texture of true wool. [Middle English wolle, from Old English wull.] —wool adj.

wool-en also wool-len (wōōl'ən) adj. 1. Made or consisting of wool. 2. Of or relating to the production or marketing of woolen goods. — n. Fabric or clothing made from wool. Often used in the plural.

Woolf (wōōlf), (Adeline) Virginia (Stephen). 1882-1941. British writer whose works include fiction written in an experimental stream-of-consciousness style, such as Mrs. Dalloway (1925) and To the Lighthouse (1927), and collections of essays, such as A Room of One's Own (1929).

wool fat (wōōl fāt) n. 1. See wool grease. 2. See lanolin.

wool-gath-er (wōōl'gāth'ər) v. intr. wool-gath-ered, wool-gath-er-ing, wool-gath-ers. To engage in fanciful daydreaming. —wool/gath'er-er n.

wool-gath-er-ing (wōōl'gāth'ər-īng) n. Indulgence in fanciful daydreams. — adj. Indulging in fanciful daydreams.

wool grease (wōōl grēs) n. A fatty, pale yellow wax that coats the fibers of sheep's wool and yields lanolin. Also called wool fat wool-grow-er (wōōl'grō'ər) n. One that raises sheep or other animals for the production of wool. —wool/grow'ing n.

Wooll-cott (wōōl'kət, -kōt'), Alexander. 1887-1943. American drama critic and journalist whose collections of essays include While Rome Burns (1934) and Long, Long Ago (1943).

wool-len (wōōl'ən) adj. & n. Variant of woolen.

Wool-ley (wōōl'ē), Sir Charles Leonard. 1880-1960. British archaeologist who led excavations at Carchemish (1912-1914 and 1919) and Ur (1922-1934).

Wool-ley (wōōl'ē), Mary Emma. 1863-1947. American educator who was president (1900-1937) of Mount Holyoke College and an activist in the peace and woman suffrage movements.

wool-ly also wool-y (wōōl'ē) adj. wool-li-er also wool-i-er, wool-li-est also wool-i-est. 1. a. Relating to, consisting of, or covered with wool. b. Resembling wool. 2. a. Lacking sharp detail or clarity: woolly television reception.

b. Mentally or intellectually disorganized or unclear: woolly thinking. 3. Having the characteristics of the rough, generally lawless atmosphere of the American frontier: wild and woolly. — n. pl. wool-lies also wool-ies. 1. A garment made of wool, especially an undergarment of knitted wool. 2. Australian. A sheep. —wool/li-ness n.

woolly bear (wōōl'ē bār) n. The hairy caterpillar of any of various moths, especially that of the North American tiger moth Isia isabella, having a reddish-brown middle stripe and black at either end.

wool-ly-head-ed (wōōl'ē-hēd'īd) adj. 1. Having hair that looks or feels like wool. 2. Vague or muddled: wooly-headed ideas.

wool-sack (wōōl'sāk') n. 1. A sack for wool. 2. The official seat of the Lord Chancellor in the House of Lords.

wool shed (wōōl shēd) n. A building or complex of buildings in which sheep are sheared and wool is prepared for shipment to market.

wool-skin (wōōl'skīn') n. A sheepskin with the wool still on it.

wool-sort-er's disease (wōōl'sôr'tərz dī-zēz') n. A pulmonary form of anthrax that results from the inhalation of spores of the bacterium Bacillus anthracis in the wool of contaminated sheep.

wool-stapler (wōōl'stā'plər) n. 1. A dealer in wool. 2. One who sorts wool by the quality of the staple or fiber. —wool'-sta'pling adj. & n.

Wool-worth (wōōl'wūrth'), Frank Winfield. 1852-1919. American merchant. Starting in 1879, he built a successful national chain of five-and-tens.

wool-y (wōōl'ē) adj. & n. Variant of woolly.

woom-er-a (wōōm'ər-ə) also wom-er-a (wōm'-) n. A hooked wooden stick used by aboriginal peoples of Australia for hurling a spear or dart. [Dharuk (Aboriginal language of southeast Australia) wumara.]

Woon-sock-et (wōōn-sōk'īt, wōōn'sōk'-) A city of northern Rhode Island north-northwest of Providence near the Massachusetts border. Settled c. 1666, it has long been a manufacturing center. Population, 43,877.

woops (wōōps, wōōps) interj. Variant of whoops.

Woo-ster (wōōs'tər) A city of north-central Ohio southwest of Akron. It is a manufacturing center in a farming region. Population, 22,191.

wooz-y (wōō'zē, wōōz'ē) adj. wooz-i-er, wozz-i-est. 1. Dazed or confused. 2. Dizzy or queasy. [Possibly from alteration of boozy, drunken, from BOOZE.] —wooz'i-ly adv. —wooz'i-ness n.

wop (wōp) n. Offensive Slang. Used as a disparaging term for an Italian. [Italian dialectal guappo, thug, from Spanish guapo, handsome, dashing, braggart, bully, from French dialectal wape, rogue, from Latin vappa, flat wine, scoundrel.]

Worces-ter¹ (wōōs'tər) 1. A borough of west-central England on the Severn River south-southwest of Birmingham. Oliver Cromwell and the Parliamentary army gained their final victory over Charles II and the Scottish army here on September 3, 1651. Population, 73,900. 2. A city of central Massachusetts west of Boston. It is a commercial, industrial, and educational center. Population, 169,759.

Worces-ter² (wōōs'tər) A trademark used for a fine porcelain made in Worcester, England.

Worces-ter (wōōs'tər), Joseph Emerson. 1784-1865. American lexicographer. The publication of his Comprehensive Pronouncing and Explanatory Dictio- nary of the English Language (1830) brought charges of plagiarism from Noah Webster and started the battle known as the “Dictionary War.”

Worces-ter-shire (wōōs'tər-shîr, -shər) n. A piquant sauce of soy, vinegar, and spices.

word (wûrd) n. Abbr. wd. 1. A sound or a combination of sounds, or its representation in writing or printing, that symbolizes and communicates a meaning and may consist of a single morpheme or of a combination of morphemes.

2. Something said; an utterance, a remark, or a comment: May I say a word about that? 3. Computer Science. A set of bits constituting the smallest unit of addressable memory. 4. words. Discourse or talk; speech: Actions speak louder than words. 5. words. Music. The text of a vocal composition; lyrics. 6. An assurance or a promise; sworn intention: She has kept her word. 7. a. A command or direction; an order: gave the word to retreat. b. A verbal signal; a password or watchword. 8. a. News: Any word on your promotion? See Synonyms at news.

b. Rumor: Word has it they're divorcing. 9. words. Hostile or angry remarks made back and forth. 10. Word. a. See Logos (n., sense 3). b. The Scriptures; the Bible. — v. tr. word-ed, word-ing, words. To express in words: worded the petition carefully. — idioms. at a word. In immediate response. good word. 2. A favorable comment: She put in a good word for me. 3. Favorable news. have no words for. To be unable to describe or talk about. in a word. In short; in summary: In a word, the situation is serious. in so many words. 6. In precisely those words; exactly: hinted at impending indictments but did not say it in so many words. 7. Speaking candidly and straightforwardly: In so many words, the weather has been beastly. of few words. Not conversational or loquacious; laconic: a person of few words. of (one's) word. Displaying personal dependability: a woman of her word. take at (one's) word. To be convinced of another's sincerity and act in accord with his or her statement: We had to take them at their word that the job would be done on time. upon my word. Indeed; really. [Middle English, from Old English. See wer-⁵ in Appendix.]

word-age (wûr'dij) n. 1. Words considered as a group. 2. The use of an excessive number of words; verbiage. 3. The number of words used, as in a novel. 4. Wording.

word association test (wûrd ə-sō'sē-ā'shən tĕst) n. Psychology. A test in which the subject is asked to respond to a given word with the first word that comes to mind or with a predetermined type of word, such as an antonym.

word blindness (wûrd blīnd'nīs) n. See alexia. — word'-blind' (wûrd'blīnd') adj.

word-book (wûrd'bōōk') n. A lexicon, vocabulary, or dictionary.

word deafness (wûrd dĕf'nīs) n. A form of aphasia in which the meaning of ordinary spoken words becomes incomprehensible.

Worde (wôrd), Wynkyn de. Died c. 1534. English printer credited with the introduction of italic type and numerous other innovations.

word for word (wûrd fôr wûrd) adv. In exactly the same words; verbatim.
—word'-for-word' (wûrd'fər-wûrd') adj.

word-hoard (wûrd'hôrd', -hôrd') n. The sum of words one uses or understands; a vocabulary.

word-ing (wûr'dĩng) n. The act or style of expressing in words. See Synonyms at diction.

word-less (wûrd'lis) adj. 1. Not expressed in words; unspoken. wordless animosity; wordless joy. 2. Inarticulate; silent: wordless spectators. —word'/less-ly adv. —word'/less-ness n.

word-mon-ger (wûrd'mŭng'gər, -mŏng'-) n. A writer or speaker who uses language pretentiously or carelessly. —word'/mon'ger-ing n.

word of mouth (wûrd ŭv mouth) n. Spoken communication: News of their success spread by word of mouth. —word'-of-mouth' (wûrd'əv-mouth') adj.

word order (wûrd ôr'dər) n. The syntactic arrangement of words in a sentence, clause, or phrase.

word-play or word play (wûrd'plā') n. 1. Witty or clever verbal exchange; repartee. 2. The act or an instance of playing on words.

word proc-ess-ing (wûrd prŏs'ēs'ĩng, prŏ'sēs'-) n. Abbr. WP Computer Science. The creation, input, editing, and production of documents and texts by means of computer systems. —word'-proc'ess (wûrd'prŏs'ēs, -prŏ'sēs) v. —word'-proc'ess-ing adj.

word processor (wûrd prŏs'ēs'ər) n. Abbr. WP Computer Science. A computer system either specially designed for or capable of word processing.

word-smith (wûrd'smith') n. 1. A fluent and prolific writer, especially one who writes professionally. 2. An expert on words.

word square (wûrd skwâr) n. Games. A set of words arranged in a square such that they read the same horizontally and vertically. Also called acrostic Words-worth (wûrdz'wûrth'), William. 1770-1850. British poet whose most important collection, Lyrical Ballads (1798), published jointly with Samuel Taylor Coleridge, helped establish romanticism in England. He was appointed poet laureate in 1843. —Words-worth'i-an adj.

word-y (wûr'dē) adj. word-i-er, word-i-est. 1. Relating to or consisting of words; verbal. 2. Tending to use, using, or expressed in more words than are necessary to convey meaning. —word'/i-ly adv. —word'/i-ness n.

SYNONYMS: wordy, diffuse, long-winded, prolix, verbose. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “given to using or marked by the use of an excessive number of words”: a wordy apology; a diffuse historical novel; a long-winded speak- wore (wôr, wôr) v. Past tense of wear.

work (wûrk) n. Abbr. wk. 1. Physical or mental effort or activity directed toward the production or accomplishment of something. 2. a. A job; employment: looking for work. b. A trade, profession, or other means of livelihood. 3. a. Something that one is doing, making, or performing, especially as an occupation or undertaking; a duty or task: begin the day's work. b. An amount of such activity either done or required: a week's work. 4. a. The part of a day devoted to an occupation or undertaking: met her after work. b. One's place of employment: Should I call you at home or at work? 5. a. Something that has been produced or accomplished through the effort, activity, or agency of a person or thing: This story is the work of an active imagination. Erosion is the work of wind, water, and time. b. Full action or effect of an agency: The sleeping pills did their work. c. An act; a deed: "I have seen all the works that are done under the sun; and, behold, all is vanity" (Ecclesiastes 1:14). 6. a. An artistic creation, such as a painting, sculpture, or literary or musical composition; a work of art. b. works. The output of a writer, an artist, or a musician considered or collected as a whole: the works of Shakespeare. 7. a. works. Engineering structures, such as bridges or dams. b. A fortified structure, such as a trench or fortress. 8. a. Needlework, weaving, lacemaking, or a similar textile art. b. A piece of such textile art. 9. A material or piece of material being processed in a machine during manufacture: work to be turned in the lathe. 10. works. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). A factory, plant, or similar building or complex of buildings where a specific type of business or industry is carried on. Often used in combination: a steelworks. 11. works. Internal mechanism: the works of a watch. 12. The manner, style, or quality of working or treatment; workmanship. 13. Abbr. w Physics. The transfer of energy from one physical system to another, especially the transfer of energy to a body by the application of a force that moves the body in the direction of the force. It is calculated as the product of the force and the distance through which the body moves and is expressed in joules, ergs, and foot-pounds. 14. works. Theology. Moral or righteous acts or deeds: salvation by faith rather than works. 15. works. a. Informal. The full range of possibilities; everything. Used with the: ordered a pizza with the works. b. Slang. A thorough beating or other severe treatment. Used with the: took him outside and gave him the works. — adj. Of, relating to, designed for, or engaged in work. — v. worked also wrought (rôt), work-ing, works. — v. intr. 1. To exert oneself physically or mentally in order to do, make, or accomplish something. 2. To be employed; have a job. 3. a. To function; operate: How does this latch work? b. To function or operate in the desired or required way: The telephone hasn't worked since the thunderstorm. 4. a. To have a given effect or outcome: Our friendship works best when we speak our minds. b. To have the desired effect or outcome; prove successful: This recipe seems to work. 5. To exert an influence. Used with on or upon: worked on her to join the group. 6. To arrive at a specified condition through gradual or repeated movement: The stitches worked loose. 7. To proceed or progress slowly and laboriously: worked through the underbrush. 8. To move in an agitated manner, as with emotion: Her mouth worked with fear. 9. To behave in a specified way when handled or processed: Not all metals work easily. 10. To ferment. 11. Nautical. a. To strain in heavy seas so that the joints give slightly and the fastenings become slack. Used of a boat or ship. b. To sail against the wind. 12. To undergo small motions that result in friction and wear: The gears work against each other. — v. tr. 1. To cause or effect; bring about: working miracles. 2. To cause to operate or function; actuate, use, or manage: worked the controls; can work a lathe. 3. To shape or forge: worked the metal into a sculpture. 4. To make or decorate by needlework: work a sampler. 5. To solve (a problem) by calculation and reasoning. 6. To knead, stir, or otherwise manipulate in preparation: Work the dough before shaping it. 7. To bring to a specified condition by gradual or repeated effort or work: finally worked the window open; worked the slaves to death. 8. To make, achieve, or pay for by work or effort: worked her way to the top; worked his passage on the ship. 9. Informal. To arrange or contrive. Often used with it: worked it so that her weekends are free. 10. To make productive; cultivate: work a farm. 11. To cause to work: works his laborers hard. 12. To excite or provoke: worked the mob into a frenzy. 13. Informal. a. To gratify, cajole, or enchant artfully, especially for the purpose of influencing: The politician worked the crowd. The comedian worked the room with flawless rhythm. b. To use or manipulate to one's own advantage; exploit: learned how to work the system; worked his relatives for sympathy. 14. To carry on an operation or a function in or through: the agent who works that area; working the phones for donations. 15. To ferment (liquor, for example). — phrasal verbs. work in. 1. To insert or introduce: worked in a request for money. 2. To make an opening for, as in a schedule: said the doctor would try to work her in. 3. To cause to be inserted by repeated or continuous effort. work into. 4. To insert or introduce into. 5. To make an opening for (someone or something) in: worked a few field trips into the semester's calendar. 6. To cause to be inserted in by repeated or continuous effort: worked the pick into the lock. work off. To get rid of by work or effort: work off extra pounds; work off a debt. work out. 8. To accomplish by work or effort. 9. To find a solution for; solve: worked out the equations; worked out their personal differences. 10. To formulate or develop: work out a plan. 11. To discharge (an obligation or a debt) with labor in place of money. 12. To prove successful, effective, or satisfactory: The new strategy may not work out. 13. To have a specified result: The ratio works out to an odd number. It worked out that everyone left on the same train. 14. To engage in strenuous exercise for physical conditioning. 15. To exhaust (a mine, for example). work over. 16. To do for a second time; rework. 17. Slang. To inflict severe physical damage on; beat up. work up. 18. To arouse the emotions of; excite. 19. a. To increase one's skill, responsibility, efficiency, or status through work: worked up to 30 sit-ups a day; worked up to store manager. b. To intensify gradually: The film works up to a thrilling climax. 20. To develop or produce by mental or physical effort: worked up a patient profile; worked up an appetite. —idioms. at work. 1. Engaged in labor; working: I'm at work on a new project now. 2. In operation: inflationary forces at work in the economy. in the works. In preparation; under development: has a novel in the works. out of work. Without a job; unemployed. put in work. To perform labor or duties, as on a specified project: put in work on the plastering. work both sides of the street. To engage in double-dealing; be duplicitous. work like a charm. To function very well or have a very good effect or outcome. work (one's) fingers to the bone. To labor extremely hard; toil or travail. [Middle English, from Old English weorc. See werg- in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: work, labor, toil, drudgery, travail. These nouns refer to physical or mental effort expended to produce or accomplish something. Work is the most widely applicable; it can refer both to the activity and the output of persons, machines, and the forces of nature: “Which of us... is to do the hard and dirty work for the rest—and for what pay?” (John Ruskin). “A work that aspires... to the condition of art should carry its justification in every line” (Joseph Conrad). Labor usually implies human work, especially of a hard physical or intellectual nature: “a youth of labor with an age of ease” (Oliver Goldsmith); “where men must beg with bated breath for leave to... garner the fruits of their own labors” (Roger Casement). Toil applies principally to strenuous, fatiguing labor: “I have nothing to offer but blood, toil, tears and sweat” (Winston S. Churchill). Drudgery suggests dull, wearisome, or monotonous work: “the drudgery of penning definitions and marking quotations for transcription” (Macaulay). Travail connotes arduous work involving pain or suffering: “I have had my labor for my travail” (Shakespeare).

Work (wûrk), Henry Clay. 1832-1884. American songwriter noted for his Union compositions during the Civil War, including “Babylon Is Fallen” (1863).

work-a-ble (wûr'kə-bəl) adj. 1. Capable of being worked, dealt with, or handled. 2. Capable of being put into effective operation; practicable or feasible.

See Synonyms at possible. —work'a-bil'i-ty, work'a-ble-ness n.

—work'a-bly adv.

work-a-day (wûr'kə-dā') adj. 1. Relating to or suited for working days; everyday. 2. Mundane; commonplace: “the practical, workaday world, of... ordinary undistinguished things” (Lionel Trilling). [From Middle English werkeday, work-day : work, work; see WORK + day, day; see DAY.]

work-a-hol-ic (wûr'kə-hô'lik, -höl'ik) n. One who has a compulsive and unrelenting need to work. —work'a-hol'ism n.

work-bench (wûrk'bēnch') n. A sturdy table or bench at which manual work is done, as by a machinist, carpenter, or jeweler.

work-boat (wûrk'bōt') n. Nautical. A boat used for work rather than for recreation, transportation, or military purposes.

work-book (wûrk'bōok') n. 1. A booklet containing problems and exercises that a student may work directly on the pages. 2. A manual containing operating instructions, as for an appliance or a machine. 3. A book in which a record is kept of work proposed or accomplished.

work camp (wûrk kămp) n. 1. See prison camp (n., sense 2). 2. A camp where volunteers, often from religious organizations, work together on community service projects.

work-day (wûrk'dā') n. 1. A day on which work is usually done. 2. The part of the day during which one works: an eight-hour workday. — adj. Workaday.

work-er (wûr'kər) n. 1. a. One who works at a particular occupation or activity: an office worker. b. One who does manual or industrial labor. 2. A member of the working class. 3. A member of a colony of social insects such as ants, bees, wasps, or termites, usually a sterile female but often a sexually immature individual of either sex, that performs specialized work such as building the nest, collecting and storing food, and feeding other members of the colony.

work-er-priest (wûr'kər-prēst') n. Roman Catholic Church. A priest, especially in France, who spends time in secular employment for missionary purposes.

work-ers' compensation (wûr'kərz kōm'pən-sā'shən) n. Payments required by law to be made to an employee who is injured or disabled in connection with work.

work ethic (wûrk ēth'ik) n. A set of values based on the moral virtues of hard work and diligence.

work-fare (wûrk'fâr') n. A form of welfare in which able-bodied adults receiving aid are required to perform public-service work. [WORK + (WEL)FARE.]

work farm (wûrk färm) n. A correctional facility that operates as a farm worked by prisoners.

work-flow (wûrk'flō') n. 1. The flow or progress of work done by a company, an industry, a department, or a person. 2. The rate at which such flow or progress takes place.

work-folk (wûrk'fōk') also work-folks (-fōks') pl.n. Laborers, especially farm workers.

work force or work-force (wûrk'fôrs', -fôrs') n. 1. The workers employed in a specific project or activity. 2. All the people working or available to work, as in a nation, a company, an industry, or on a project.

work function (wûrk fûngk'shən) n. The minimum amount of energy required to remove an electron from the surface of a metal.

work hardening (wûrk här'dn-ĭng) n. The increase in strength that accompanies plastic deformation of a metal.

work-horse (wûrk'hôrs') n. 1. Something, such as a machine, that performs dependably under heavy or prolonged use: "the 50-year-old DC-3... one of aviation's most effective workhorses" (Christian Science Monitor). 2. A horse that is used for labor rather than for racing or riding. 3. Informal. A person who works tirelessly, especially at difficult or time-consuming tasks.

work-house (wûrk'hous') n. 1. A prison in which limited sentences are served at manual labor. 2. Chiefly British. A poorhouse.

work-ing (wûr'kĭng) adj. 1. a. Performing work: a working committee. b. Operating or functioning as required: a working flashlight. 2. Having a paying job; employed: working mothers. 3. a. Spent at work: a working life of 40 years. b. Taken while continuing to work: a working vacation. 4. a. Sufficient to allow action: a working majority. b. Adequate for practical use: a working knowledge of Spanish. 5. Serving as a basis or guide for further work: a working hypothesis. — n. 1. Often workings. The manner in which something operates or functions: the workings of the mind. 2. Often workings. The parts of a mine or quarry that have been or are being excavated.

working capital (wûr'kĭng kăp'ĭ-tl) n. 1. The assets of a business that can be applied to its operation. 2. The amount of current assets that exceeds current liabilities.

working class (wûr'kĭng klăs) n. The part of society consisting of those who work for wages, especially manual or industrial laborers. —work'ing-class' (wûr'kĭng-klăs') adj.

working day (wûr'kĭng dā) n. A workday.

working dog (wûr'kĭng dôg) n. Any of various breeds of dogs developed or trained to do useful work, such as herding animals, pulling wagons or sleds, or guarding property.

working fluid (wûr'kĭng floō'ĭd) n. A working substance that is a fluid.

working girl (wûr'kĭng gûrl) n. 1. A young woman who works. 2. Slang. A woman prostitute.

work-ing-man (wûr'kĭng-măn') n. 1. A man who works for wages. 2. A man who performs heavy manual or industrial labor.

working papers (wûr'kĭng pā'pərz) pl.n. Legal documents certifying the right to employment of a minor or an alien.

- working storage (wûr'kĩng stôr'ij) n. Abbr. WS Computer Science. The section of computer storage reserved for data to be temporarily stored during the running of a program.
- working substance (wûr'kĩng sũb'stəns) n. A substance, such as a fluid, used to effect a thermodynamic or other change in a system.
- work-ing-wom-an (wûr'kĩng-wõm'ən) n. A woman who works for wages.
- work in progress (wûrk ĩn prõg'rēs') n. pl. works in progress. A yet incomplete artistic, theatrical, or musical work, often made available for public viewing or listening.
- work-load (wûrk'lõd') n. 1. The amount of work assigned to or expected from a worker in a specified time period. 2. The amount of work that a machine produces or can produce in a specified time period.
- work-man (wûrk'mən) n. 1. A man who performs manual or industrial labor for wages. 2. A craftsman or an artisan.
- Work-man (wûrk'mən), Fanny Bullock. 1859-1925. American explorer and writer. With her husband William Hunter Workman (1847-1937) she wrote several accounts of their travels, including Through Town and Jungle (1904) and In the Ice World of Himálaya (1900).
- work-man-like (wûrk'mən-lik') adj. Befitting a skilled artisan or crafts-person; skillfully done.
- work-man-ship (wûrk'mən-ship') n. 1. The skill of a craftsperson or an artisan. 2. The quality of something made, as by an artisan: a silver tray of excellent workmanship. 3. Something made or produced by a workman. 4. The product of effort or endeavor.
- work-men's compensation (wûrk'mənz kõm'pən-sā'shən) n. Workers' compensation.
- work of art (wûrk ũv ärt) n. pl. works of art. 1. A product of the fine arts, especially a painting or sculpture. 2. Something likened to a fine artistic work, as by reason of beauty or craft.
- work-out (wûrk'out') n. 1. A session of exercise or practice to improve fitness, as for athletic competition. 2. A strenuous test of ability and endurance.
- work-peo-ple (wûrk'pē'pəl) pl.n. Chiefly British. Those who work for wages; workers.
- work-place also work place (wûrk'pläs') n. 1. A place, such as an office or a factory, where people are employed. 2. The work setting in general: "one of the last male bastions of the American workplace" (Wall Street Journal).
- work release (wûrk rĩ-lēs') n. A correctional program under which prisoners are permitted employment outside a prison while serving their sentences.
—work'-re-lease' (wûrk'rĩ-lēs') adj.
- work-room (wûrk'rõm', -rõm') n. A room where work is done.

- work sheet or work-sheet (wûrk/'shēt') n. 1. A sheet of paper on which work records are kept. 2. A sheet of paper on which preliminary notes or computations are set down.
- work-shop (wûrk/'shöp') n. 1. A room, an area, or a small establishment where manual or light industrial work is done. 2. An educational seminar or series of meetings emphasizing interaction and exchange of information among a usually small number of participants: a creative writing workshop.
- work song (wûrk sông) n. Music. A song sung to accompany work, typically having a steady rhythm.
- work-space (wûrk/'spās') n. An area used or allocated for one's work, as in an office.
- work-sta-tion (wûrk/'stā'shən) n. An area, as in an office, outfitted with equipment and furnishings for one worker, often including a computer or computer terminal.
- work stoppage (wûrk stöp/'ij) n. A cessation of work by a group of employees as a means of protest.
- work-stud-y (wûrk/'stüd'ē) adj. Of, relating to, or being an academic program that enables high-school or college students to gain work experience and make money while continuing their studies.
- work-ta-ble (wûrk/'tā'bəl) n. A table designed for a specific kind of task or activity, such as needlework or the graphic arts.
- work-up (wûrk/'ŭp') n. A thorough medical examination for diagnostic purposes.
- work-week (wûrk/'wēk') n. The hours or days worked in a week: a four-day workweek.
- work-wom-an (wûrk/'wŏm'ən) n. A woman who performs manual or industrial labor for wages.
- world (wûrld) n. 1. The earth. 2. The universe. 3. The earth with its inhabitants. 4. The inhabitants of the earth; the human race. 5. a. Humankind considered as social beings; human society: turned her back on the world. b. People as a whole; the public: The event amazed the world. 6. Often World. A specified part of the earth: the Western World. 7. A part of the earth and its inhabitants as known at a given period in history: the ancient world. 8. A realm or domain: the animal world; the world of imagination. 9. a. A sphere of human activity or interest: the world of sports. b. A class or group of people with common characteristics or pursuits: the scientific world. 10. A particular way of life: the world of the homeless. 11. All that relates to or affects the life of a person: He saw his world collapse about him. 12. Secular life and its concerns: a man of the world. 13. a. Human existence; life: brought a child into the world. b. A state of existence: the next world. 14. Often worlds. A large amount; much: did her a world of good; candidates that are worlds apart on foreign policy. 15. A celestial body such as a planet: the possibility of life on other worlds. — adj. 1. Of or relating to the world: a world champion. 2. Involving or extending throughout the entire world: a world crisis. — idioms. for all the world. In all respects; precisely: She looked for all the world like a movie star. in the world. Used as an intensive: How in the world did they manage? I never in the world would have guessed. out of this world. Informal. Extraordinary; superb: The dinner was out of this world. the world over. Throughout the world: known the world over. world without end. Forever. [Middle English, from Old English weorold. See wī-ro- in Appendix.]

world-beat-er (wûrld'bē'tər) n. One that is markedly superior to all others, as in the ability to succeed.

world-class (wûrld'klās') adj. 1. Ranking among the foremost in the world; of an international standard of excellence; of the highest order: a world-class figure skater. 2. Usage Problem. Great, as in importance, concern, or notoriety.

USAGE NOTE: The adjective world-class became current as a result of its original use to describe athletes capable of performing at an international level of competition, as in A ten-second time would put him in the first rank of world-class sprinters. In recent years it has been extended to mean “of an international standard of excellence” and has been applied to a wide variety of categories. When used of things that naturally admit such comparison, the extended use of the word is generally acceptable to the Usage Panel. In the most recent survey 65 percent accepted the description world-class restaurant, and 53 percent accepted world-class sports car. But the expression is not generally accepted as a vague way of emphasizing magnitude or degree. The sentence Johann Sebastian Bach's 300th birthday will rank as a world-class anniversary was acceptable to only 7 percent, and only 4 percent accepted a newspaper's description of AIDS as a world-class tragedy.

world line (wûrld līn) n. The path in space-time traveled by an elementary particle for the time and distance that it retains its identity.

world-ling (wûrld'līng) n. One who is absorbed by worldly pursuits and pleasures.

world-ly (wûrld'lē) adj. world-li-er, world-li-est. 1. Of, relating to, or devoted to the temporal world. 2. Sophisticated; cosmopolitan: “an experienced and worldly man who had been almost everywhere” (Willa Cather). — adv. In a worldly manner. — world/li-ness n.

world-ly-mind-ed (wûrld'lē-mīn'dīd) adj. Absorbed in the affairs of this world. — world/ly-mind/ed-ness n.

world-ly-wise (wûrld'lē-wīz') adj. Experienced in the ways of the world.

world power (wûrld pou'ər) n. A nation or other political entity having the power to influence the course of world events.

world-re-nowned (wûrld'ri-nound') adj. Widely known and acclaimed.

World Series (wûrld sîr'ēz) n. Baseball. A series of baseball games played each fall between the winning teams of the American League and the National League to decide the championship of the major leagues.

world's fair (wûrldz fâr) n. A large exposition featuring exhibits, as of arts and crafts, scientific discoveries, and products of industry and agriculture, provided by countries from around the world.

world-shak-ing (wûrld'shâ'kîng) adj. Of great significance or consequence.

world soul (wûrld sōl) n. A spiritual principle having the same relation to the physical world as the human soul does to the body; the animating force of the world.

world-view or world-view (wûrld'vyōō') n. 1. The overall perspective from which one sees and interprets the world. 2. A collection of beliefs about life and the universe held by an individual or a group. [Translation of German Weltanschauung.]

World War I (wûrld wôr wûn) n. Abbr. WWI A war fought from 1914 to 1918, in which Great Britain, France, Russia, Belgium, Italy, Japan, the United States, and other allies defeated Germany, Austria-Hungary, Turkey, and Bulgaria.

World War II (wûrld wôr tōō) n. Abbr. WWII A war fought from 1939 to 1945, in which Great Britain, France, the Soviet Union, the United States, China, and other allies defeated Germany, Italy, and Japan.

world-wea-ry (wûrld'wîr'ē) adj. world-wea-ri-er, world-wea-ri-est.
Tired of the world; bored with life. —world'-wea'ri-ness n.

world-wide (wûrld'wîd') adj. Involving or extending throughout the entire world; universal: a worldwide epidemic. — adv. Throughout the world: distributed worldwide.

World Wide Web (wûrld wîd wēb) n. Computer Science. An information server on the Internet composed of interconnected sites and files, accessible with a browser.

worm (wûrm) n. 1. Any of various invertebrates, as those of the phyla Annelida, Nematoda, Nemertea, or Platyhelminthes, having a long, flexible, rounded or flattened body, often without obvious appendages. 2. Any of various crawling insect larvae, such as a grub or a caterpillar, having a soft, elongated body. 3. Any of various unrelated animals, such as the shipworm or the slowworm, resembling a worm in habit or appearance. 4. a. Something, such as the thread of a screw or the spiral condenser in a still, that resembles a worm in form or appearance. b. The spirally threaded shaft of a worm gear. 5. An insidiously tormenting or devouring force: "felt the black worm of treachery growing in his heart" (Mario Puzo). 6. A person regarded as pitiable or contemptible. 7. worms. Pathology. Infestation of the intestines or other parts of the body with worms or wormlike parasites; helminthiasis. 8. Computer Science. A program that replicates itself and interferes with software function or destroys stored information. — v.

wormed, worm-ing, worms. — v. tr. 1. To make (one's way) with or as if with the sinuous crawling motion of a worm. 2. To work (one's way or oneself) subtly or gradually; insinuate: She wormed her way into his confidence. 3. To elicit by artful or devious means. Usually used with out of: wormed a confession out of the suspect. 4. To cure of intestinal worms. 5. Nautical. To wrap yarn or twine spirally around (rope). — v. intr. 1. To move in a manner suggestive of a worm. 2. To make one's way by artful or devious means: He can't worm out of this situation. [Middle English, from Old English wurm, variant of wyrm. See wer-² in Appendix.]

worm-eat-en (wûrm'ēt'n) adj. 1. Bored through or gnawed by worms.

2. Decayed; rotten. 3. Antiquated; decrepit.

worm fence (wûrm fěns) n. A fence of crossed rails supporting one another and forming a zigzag pattern. Also called snake fence, Virginia fence.

worm gear (wûrm gîr) n. 1. A gear consisting of a spirally threaded shaft and a wheel with marginal teeth that mesh into it. 2. The toothed wheel of this gear; a worm wheel.

worm-grass (wûrm'grăs') n. See pinkroot. [From its use as a vermifuge.]

worm-hole (wûrm'hōl') n. A hole made by a burrowing worm.

worm lizard (wûrm lîz'ərd) n. Any of various small, legless, burrowing lizards of the family Amphisbaenidae, resembling worms and found chiefly in tropical regions.

Worms (wûrmz, vôrms) A city of southwest Germany on the Rhine River north-northwest of Mannheim. Originally a Celtic settlement, it was the site of the Diet of Worms (1521) in which Martin Luther refused to recant his beliefs and was outlawed by the Roman Catholic Church. Population, 72,610.

worm screw (wûrm skrōō) n. The spirally threaded shaft of a worm gear.

worm-seed (wûrm'sēd') n. 1. A tropical American plant (Chenopodium ambrosioides) yielding an oil used as an anthelmintic. 2. Any of several other plants used as an anthelmintic.

worm's-eye view (wûrmz'ī'vyōō) n. A view from below or from an inferior position.

worm snake (wûrm snāk) n. A small, harmless burrowing snake (Carphophis amoena) of the central and eastern United States, usually living under stones or logs and feeding chiefly on earthworms.

worm wheel (wûrm hwēl) n. The toothed wheel of a worm gear.

worm-wood (wûrm'wōōd') n. 1. Any of several aromatic plants of the genus Artemisia, especially A. absinthium, native to Europe, yielding a bitter extract used in making absinthe and in flavoring certain wines. 2. Something harsh or embittering. [Middle English, alteration of wermod, from Old English wermod.]

worm-y (wûr'mē) adj. worm-i-er, worm-i-est. 1. Infested with or damaged by worms. 2. Suggestive of a worm. —worm'i-ness n.

worn (wôrn, wôrn) v. Past participle of wear. — adj. 1. Affected by wear or use. 2. Impaired or damaged by wear or use: the worn pockets on a jacket.

3. Showing the wearing effects of overwork, care, worry, or suffering. See Synonyms at haggard. [Middle English, past participle of weren, to wear. See WEAR.]

worn-out (wôrn'out', wôrn'-) adj. 1. Worn or used until no longer usable or effective. 2. Thoroughly exhausted; spent.

wor-ri-ment (wûr'ē-mənt, wûr'-) n. 1. The act or an instance of worrying. 2. A source of anxiety; a worry.

wor-ri-some (wûr'ē-səm, wûr'-) adj. 1. Causing worry or anxiety. 2. Tending to worry; anxious. —wor'ri-some-ly adv.

wor-ry (wûr'ē, wûr'ē) v. wor-ried (wûr'ēd, wûr'-), wor-ry-ing, wor-ries (wûr'ēz, wûr'-). — v. intr. 1. To feel uneasy or concerned about something; be troubled. See Synonyms at brood. 2. To pull or tear at something with or as if with the teeth. 3. To proceed doggedly in the face of difficulty or hardship; struggle: worried along at the problem. — v. tr. 1. To cause to feel anxious, distressed, or troubled. See Synonyms at trouble. 2. To bother or annoy, as with petty complaints. 3. a. To seize with the teeth and shake or tug at repeatedly: a dog worrying a bone. b. To attack roughly and repeatedly; harass. c. To touch, move, or handle idly; toy with: worrying the loose tooth with his tongue. — n. pl. wor-ries. 1. The act of worrying or the condition of being worried; persistent mental uneasiness. See Synonyms at anxiety. 2. A source of nagging concern or uneasiness. —idiom. not to worry. There is nothing to worry about; there is no need to be concerned: "But not to worry: it all... falls into place in the book's second half, where the language is plainer" (Hallowell Bowser). [Middle English werien, worien, to strangle, from Old English wyrgan. See wer-² in Appendix.] —wor'ri-er n.

WORD HISTORY: "Don't worry" is a much milder injunction than it once would have been, for the word worry has softened its sense greatly over the course of its history. Its Old English ancestor, wyrgan, meant "to strangle." Its Middle English descendant, worien, kept this sense and developed the new sense "to grasp by the throat with the teeth and lacerate" or "to kill or injure by biting and shaking." This is the way wolves or dogs might attack sheep, for example. In the 16th century worry began to be used in the sense "to harass, as by rough treatment or attack," or "to assault verbally," and in the 17th century the word took on the sense "to bother, distress, or persecute." It was a small step from this sense to the main modern senses "to cause to feel anxious or distressed" and "to feel troubled or worry beads (wûr'ē bēdz) pl.n. A string of beads for fingering in times of worry, boredom, or tension.

uneasy,” first recorded in the 19th century.

wor-ry-wart (wûr'ē-wôrt', wŭr'-) n. One who worries excessively and needlessly.

worse (wûrs) adj. Comparative of bad¹, ill. 1. More inferior, as in quality, condition, or effect. 2. More severe or unfavorable. 3. Being further from a standard; less desirable or satisfactory. 4. Being in poorer health; more ill. — n.

Something that is worse: Of the two routes, the eastern one is the worse. She was accused of cheating on exams, lying, and worse. — adv. Comparative of badly, ill. In a worse manner; to a worse degree. — idiom. for better or (for) worse. Whether the situation or consequences be good or ill: For better or worse, he trusts everyone. [Middle English, from Old English wyrsa. See wers- in Appendix.]

wors-en (wûr'sən) v. tr. intr. wors-ened, wors-en-ing, wors-ens. To make or become worse.

wors-er (wûr'sər) adv. & adj. Non-Standard. Worse.

wor-ship (wûr'shĭp) n. 1. a. The reverent love and devotion accorded a deity, an idol, or a sacred object. b. The ceremonies, prayers, or other religious forms by which this love is expressed. 2. Ardent devotion; adoration. 3. Often Worship. Chiefly British. Used as a form of address for magistrates, mayors, and certain other dignitaries: Your Worship. — v. wor-ship-ed or wor-ship-ped, wor-ship-ing or wor-ship-ping, wor-ships or wor-ships. — v. tr. 1. To honor and love as a deity. 2. To regard with ardent or adoring esteem or devotion. See Synonyms at revere¹. — v. intr. 1. To participate in religious rites of worship. 2. To perform an act of worship. [Middle English worshipe, worthiness, honor, from Old English weorthscipe: weorth, worth; see WORTH¹ + -scipe, -ship.] — wor'ship-er, wor'ship-per n.

wor-ship-ful (wûr'shĭp-fəl) adj. 1. Given to or expressive of worship; reverent or adoring. 2. Chiefly British. Used as a respectful form of address. — wor'ship-ful-ly adv. — wor'ship-ful-ness n.

wor-sle-ya (wûrz'lē-ə) n. A bulbous Brazilian plant (Worsleya rayneri) having lilac-colored, dark-spotted flowers and black seeds. [After Arthington Worsley, 19th-20th century British botanist and civil engineer.]

worst (wûrst) adj. Superlative of bad¹, ill. 1. Most inferior, as in quality, condition, or effect. 2. Most severe or unfavorable. 3. Being furthest from an ideal or a standard; least desirable or satisfactory. — adv. Superlative of badly, ill. In the worst manner or degree. — v. tr. worst-ed, worst-ing, worsts. To gain the advantage over; defeat. — n. Something that is worst. — idioms. at (the) worst. Under the most negative circumstances, estimation, or interpretation: At worst, the storm will make us postpone the trip. get the worst of it (or have the worst of it). To suffer a defeat or disadvantage. if (the) worst comes to (the) worst. If the very worst thing happens. in the worst way. Informal. Very much; a great deal: wanted to be elected in the worst way. [Middle English, from Old English wyrsta. See wers- in Appendix.]

worst-case (wŭrst'kās') adj. Most unfavorable; being or involving the worst possibility: "has exceeded even the worst-case estimate of his harshest critics" (Alan Cranston).

worsted (wōos'tīd, wŭr'stīd) n. 1. Firm-textured, compactly twisted woolen yarn made from long-staple fibers. 2. Fabric made from such yarn. [Middle English, variant of worthstede, after Worthstede (Worstead), a village of eastern England.] —worsted adj.

wort¹ (wŭrt, wōrt) n. A plant. Often used in combination: liverwort; milkwort. [Middle English, from Old English wyrt. See wrād- in Appendix.]

wort² (wŭrt, wōrt) n. An infusion of malt that is fermented to make beer. [Middle English, from Old English wyrt. See wrād- in Appendix.]

worth¹ (wŭrth) n. 1. The quality that renders something desirable, useful, or valuable: the worth of higher education. 2. Material or market value: stocks having a worth of ten million dollars. 3. A quantity of something that may be purchased for a specified sum or by a specified means: ten dollars' worth of natural gas; wanted their money's worth. 4. Wealth; riches: her net worth. 5. Quality that commands esteem or respect; merit: a person of great worth. — adj. 1. Equal in value to something specified: worth its weight in gold. 2. Deserving of; meriting: a proposal not worth consideration. 3. Having wealth or riches amounting to: a person worth millions. — idioms. for all (one) is worth. To the utmost of one's powers or ability. for what it's worth. Even though it may not be important or valuable: Here's my advice, for what it's worth. [Middle English, from Old English weorth. See wer-² in Appendix.]

worth² (wŭrth) v. intr. worthed, worth-ing, worths. Archaic. To befall; betide: "Howl ye, Woe worth the day!" (Ezekiel 30:2). [Middle English worthen, from Old English weorthan. See wer-² in Appendix.]

Worthing (wŭr'thīng) A borough of southeast England on the English Channel south-southwest of London. It is a seaside resort. Population, 92,600.

Worthing-ton (wŭr'thīng-tən) A city of central Ohio, a suburb of Columbus. Population, 15,016.

worth-less (wŭrth'lis) adj. 1. Lacking worth; of no use or value. 2. Low; despicable. —worth/less-ly adv. —worth/less-ness n.

worth-while (wŭrth'hwīl', -wīl') adj. Sufficiently valuable or important to be worth one's time, effort, or interest. —worth/while-ness n.

wor-thy (wŭr'thē) adj. wor-thi-er, wor-thi-est. 1. Having worth, merit, or value; useful or valuable. 2. Honorable; admirable: a worthy fellow. 3. Having sufficient worth; deserving: worthy to be revered; worthy of acclaim. — n. pl.

wor-thies. An eminent or distinguished person. —wor'thi-ly adv.

—wor'thi-ness n.

-worthy suff. 1. Of sufficient worth for: creditworthy. 2. Suitable or safe for: crashworthy. [From WORTHY.]

wot (wõt) v. First and third person singular present tense of wit².

Wo-tan (vō'tän') n. Mythology. A German god identified with Odin. [German, from Middle High German, from Old High German Wuotan. See wet⁻¹ in Appendix.]

Wot-ton (wōõt'n, wõt'n), Sir Henry. 1568-1639. English diplomat and writer. Most of his poetry and prose works are contained in Reliquiae Wottonianae, published posthumously in 1651.

Wouk (wōk), Herma. Born 1915. American writer whose novels include The Caine Mutiny (1951), for which he won a Pulitzer Prize, and The Winds of War (1971).

would (wōöd) v. aux. Past tense of will². 1. Used after a statement of desire, request, or advice: I wish you would stay. 2. Used to make a polite request: Would you go with me? 3. Used to indicate uncertainty: It would seem to be getting warmer. See Usage Note at if.

would-be (wōöd'bē') adj. Desiring, attempting, or professing to be: "Would-be home buyers will have a somewhat easier time getting loans" (Wall Street Journal).

would-n't (wōöd'nt) Would not.

wouldst (wōödst) or would-est (wōöd'ist) v. Archaic. Second person singular past tense of will².

wound¹ (wōōnd) n. 1. An injury, especially one in which the skin or other external surface is torn, pierced, cut, or otherwise broken. 2. An injury to the feelings. — v. wound-ed, wound-ing, wounds. — v. tr. To inflict wounds or a wound on. — v. intr. To inflict wounds or a wound: harsh criticism that wounds. [Middle English, from Old English wund. See wen⁻² in Appendix.] —wound'ed-ly adv. —wound'ing-ly adv.

wound² (wound) v. Past tense and past participle of wind².

wound³ (wound) v. Music. A past tense and a past participle of wind³.

Wound-ed Knee (wōōn'dīd nē') A creek of southwest South Dakota. Almost 200 Native Americans were massacred here by U.S. troops on December 29, 1890.

wound-wort (wōōnd'wûrt', -wôrt') n. 1. See betony (n., sense 1). 2. Any of several plants formerly used to treat wounds.

wove (wōv) v. Past tense of weave.

wo-ven (wō'vən) v. Past participle of weave. — adj. Made by weaving: a finely woven rug. — n. Material or a fabric made by weaving.

wove paper (wōv pā'pər) n. Paper made on a closely woven wire roller or mold and having a faint mesh pattern. [Variant past participle of WEAVE.]

Wo·vo·ka (wō-vō'kə), Also called Jack Wilson. 1858?-1932. Paiute religious leader who founded the Ghost Dance movement. The movement faded when a number of its followers, thought to have supernatural protection, were massacred at Wounded Knee (1890).

wow¹ (wou) Informal. interj. Used to express wonder, amazement, or great pleasure. — n. An outstanding success. — v. tr. wowed, wow·ing, wows. To have a strong, usually pleasurable effect on: a performance that wowed the audience.

wow² (wou) n. Slow variation in the pitch of a sound reproduction resulting from variations in the speed of the recording or reproducing equipment. [Imitative.]

wow·ser (wou'zər) n. Australian & New Zealand. A person regarded as obnoxiously puritanical. [Possibly from dialectal wow, to howl, complain, of imitative origin.]

WP abbr. 1. Weather permitting. 2. Computer Science. Word processing; word processor WPA abbr. Work Projects Administration.

W particle (düb'əl-yōō pər'tī-kəl) n. A massive elementary particle, existing in positively and negatively charged forms, that is the quantum of weak interactions in which the charges of participating particles change.

wpm or w.p.m. abbr. Words per minute.

wpn. abbr. Weapon.

WRAC or W.R.A.C. abbr. Women's Royal Army Corps.

wrack¹ also rack (rāk) n. 1. Destruction or ruin. 2. A remnant or vestige of something destroyed. [Middle English, from Old English wræc, punishment (influenced by Middle Dutch wrak, shipwreck).]

wrack² also rack (rāk) n. 1. a. Wreckage, especially of a ship cast ashore. b. Chiefly British. Violent destruction of a building or vehicle. 2. a. Dried seaweed. b. Marine vegetation, especially kelp. — v. wracked also racked, wrack·ing also rack·ing, wracks also racks. — v. tr. To cause the ruin of; wreck. — v. intr. To be wrecked. [Middle English wrak, from Middle Dutch.]

WRAF or W.R.A.F. abbr. Women's Royal Air Force.

wraith (rāth) n. 1. An apparition of a living person that appears as a portent just before that person's death. 2. The ghost of a dead person. 3. Something shadowy and insubstantial. [Origin unknown.]

Wran·gel Island (räng'gəl ī'lənd, vrän'gyīl) An island of northeast Russia in the Arctic Ocean northwest of the Bering Strait. Discovered in 1867, it is named in honor of Ferdinand Petrovich von Wrangel (1796-1870), a Russian explorer who made an unsuccessful attempt to locate the island (1820-1824).

Wran·gell (rǎng'gəl), Mount. A peak, 4,319.7 m (14,163 ft) high, of the central Wrangell Mountains in southern Alaska.

Wrangell Mountains (rǎng'gəl moun'tənz) A mountain range of southern Alaska extending about 161 km (100 mi) from the Copper River to the Canadian border. Mount Bona, at 5,032.5 m (16,500 ft), is the highest peak.

wran·gle (rǎng'gəl) v. wran·gled, wran·gling, wran·gles. — v. intr. To quarrel noisily or angrily; bicker. See Synonyms at argue. — v. tr. 1. To win or obtain by argument. 2. To herd (horses or other livestock). — n. 1. The act of wrangling. 2. An angry, noisy argument or dispute. [Middle English wranglen, of Middle Low German origin. See wer⁻² in Appendix.]

wran·gler (rǎng'glər) n. 1. One who wrangles or quarrels. 2. A cowboy or cowgirl, especially one who tends saddle horses.

wrap (rǎp) v. wrapped or wrapt (rǎpt), wrap·ping, wraps. — v. tr. 1. To arrange or fold (something) about as cover or protection: She wrapped her fur coat closely about herself. 2. To cover, envelop, or encase, as by folding or coiling something about: wrapped my head in a scarf. 3. To enclose, especially in paper, and fasten: wrap a package; wrapped up the peelings. 4. To clasp, fold, or coil about something: She wrapped her arms about his neck. 5. To envelop and obscure: Fog wrapped the city. 6. To surround or involve in a specified quality or atmosphere: The plan was wrapped in secrecy. 7. To engross: She was wrapped in thought. — v. intr. 1. To coil or twist about or around something: The flag wrapped around the pole. 2. To put on warm clothing. Usually used with up. 3. To conclude filming: The movie is scheduled to wrap next week. — n. 1. A garment to be wrapped or folded about a person, especially an outer garment such as a robe, cloak, shawl, or coat. 2. A blanket. 3. A wrapping or wrapper. 4. The completion of filming on a movie. — phrasal verb. wrap up. 1. To bring to a conclusion; settle finally or successfully: wrap up a business deal. 2. To summarize; recapitulate. — idioms. under wraps. Informal. Secret or concealed: "The news was kept under wraps for the three-day weekend" (Boston Globe). wrapped up in. 2. Completely immersed or absorbed in: She is wrapped up in her studies. 3. Involved in: They were wrapped up in criminal activities. [Middle English wrappen. See wer⁻² in Appendix.]

wrap·a·round (rǎp'ə-round') adj. 1. Designed to be wrapped around the body and fastened: a wraparound skirt. 2. Shaped to curve around the sides: a wraparound windshield. — n. 1. A garment that is open to the side and is wrapped around the body. 2. Something that encompasses or laps over something else.

wrap·per (rǎp'ər) n. 1. That in which an object is wrapped or covered, as:
a. The material, such as paper, in which something is wrapped: a candy wrapper.
b. The material encircling a magazine or newspaper sent by mail. c. A book jacket. d. The tobacco leaf covering a cigar. 2. A loose dressing gown or negligee. 3. One that wraps, as a store employee who wraps parcels.

wrap·ping (răp'ing) also wrap·pings (-ingz) n. The material in which something is wrapped.

wrapt (răpt) v. A past tense and a past participle of wrap.

wrap-up (răp'ŭp') n. 1. A brief final summary, as of the news. 2. A concluding or final action: the wrap-up of a campaign.

wrasse (răs) n. Any of numerous chiefly tropical, often brightly colored marine fishes of the family Labridae, having spiny fins, thick lips, and powerful jaws, and often valued for food. [Cornish gwragh, and Welsh gwrach, old woman.]

wrath (răth, răth) n. 1. Forceful, often vindictive anger. See Synonyms at anger. 2. a. Punishment or vengeance as a manifestation of anger. b. Divine retribution for sin. — adj. Archaic. Wrathful. [Middle English, from Old English wræththu, from wrāth, angry. See wer-² in Appendix.]

Wrath (răth), Cape. A promontory at the northwest extremity of the Scottish mainland.

wrath·ful (răth'fəl, răth'-) adj. 1. Full of wrath; fiercely angry. 2. Proceeding from or expressing wrath: wrathful vengeance. See Synonyms at angry.

—wrath'ful·ly adv. —wrath'ful·ness n.

wreak (rĕk) v. tr. wreaked, wreak·ing, wreaks. 1. To inflict (vengeance or punishment) upon a person. 2. To express or gratify (anger, malevolence, or resentment); vent. 3. To bring about; cause: wreak havoc. 4. Archaic. To take vengeance for; avenge. [Middle English wreken, from Old English wrecan.]

USAGE NOTE: Wreak is sometimes confused with wreck, perhaps because the wreaking of damage may leave a wreck: The storm wreaked (not wrecked) havoc along the coast. The past tense and past participle of wreak is wreaked, not wrought, which is an alternative past tense and past participle of work.

wreath (rĕth) n. pl. wreaths (rĕthz, rĕths). 1. a. A ring or circlet of flowers, boughs, or leaves worn on the head, placed on a memorial, or hung as a decoration. b. A representation of this ring or circlet, as in woodwork. 2. A curling or circular form: a wreath of smoke. [Middle English wrethe, from Old English wriþa, band. See wer-² in Appendix.]

wreathe (rĕth) v. wreathed, wreath·ing, wreathes. — v. tr. 1. To twist or entwine into a wreath. 2. To twist or curl into a wreathlike shape or contour. 3. To crown, decorate, or encircle with or as if with a wreath. 4. To coil or curl. 5. To form a wreath or wreathlike shape around. — v. intr. 1. To assume the form of a wreath. 2. To curl, writhe, or spiral: The smoke wreathed upward.

[From WREATH.]

wreck (rĕk) n. 1. The act of wrecking or the state of being wrecked; destruction. 2. Accidental destruction of a ship; a shipwreck. 3. a. The stranded hulk of a severely damaged ship. b. Fragments of a ship or its cargo cast ashore by the sea after a shipwreck; wreckage. 4. The remains of something that has been wrecked or ruined. 5. Something shattered or dilapidated. 6. A person who is physically or mentally broken down or worn out. — v. wrecked, wreck-ing, wrecks. — v. tr. 1. To cause the destruction of in or as if in a collision. 2. To dismantle or raze; tear down. 3. To cause to undergo ruin or disaster. See Synonyms at blast. See Synonyms at ruin. See Usage Note at wreak. — v. intr. 1. To suffer destruction or ruin; become wrecked. 2. To work as a wrecker. [Middle English wrek, from Anglo-Norman wrec, of Scandinavian origin; akin to Old Norse rec, wreckage.]

wreck-age (rĕk'ij) n. 1. The act of wrecking or the state of being wrecked. 2. Something wrecked. 3. The debris of something wrecked.

wreck-er (rĕk'ər) n. 1. One that wrecks or destroys: a wrecker of dreams. 2. a. One who is in the business of demolishing old buildings. b. One who dismantles cars for salvage. 3. a. A person, vehicle, or piece of equipment employed in recovering or removing wrecks, especially a truck with a hoist and towing apparatus used in towing disabled or wrecked vehicles. b. One that salvages wrecked cargo or parts. 4. a. One who lures a vessel to destruction, as by a display of lights on a rocky coastline, in order to plunder it. b. A plunderer.

wreck-ing bar (rĕk'ing bär) n. A small crowbar with a claw at one end and a slight curve at the other end.

wren (rĕn) n. 1. Any of various small brownish songbirds of the family Troglodytidae, having rounded wings, a slender bill, and a short, often erect tail. 2. Any of various similar unrelated songbirds. [Middle English wrenne, from Old English wrenna.]

Wren (rĕn) n. A member of the Women's Royal Naval Service.

Wren (rĕn), Sir Christopher. 1632-1723. English architect who designed more than 50 London churches, most notably Saint Paul's Cathedral (1675-1710). His secular works include the Sheldonian Theatre in Oxford (1664-1669) and Trinity College Library in Cambridge (1676-1684).

wrench (rĕnch) n. 1. A sudden sharp, forcible twist or turn. 2. An injury produced by twisting or straining. 3. A sudden tug at one's emotions; a surge of compassion, sorrow, or anguish. 4. a. A break or parting that causes emotional distress. b. The pain so associated: felt a wrench when he was parted from his children. 5. A distortion in the original form or meaning of something written or spoken; twisted interpretation. 6. Any of various hand or power tools with fixed or adjustable jaws for gripping, turning, or twisting objects such as nuts, bolts, or pipes. — v. wrenched, wrench-ing, wrench-es. — v. tr. 1. a. To twist or turn suddenly and forcibly. b. To twist and sprain: I wrenched my knee. 2. a. To force free by pulling at; yank. See Synonyms at jerk¹. b. To pull with a wrench. 3. To pull at the feelings or emotions of; distress: It wrenched her to watch them go. 4. To distort or twist the original character or import of: wrenched the text to prove her point. — v. intr. To give a wrench, twist, or turn. [From Middle English wrenchen, to twist, from Old English wrencan. See wer-² in Appendix.] —wrench'ing-ly adv.

wren tit also wren-tit (rĕn'tīt') n. A small grayish-brown songbird (Chamaea fasciata) of the western United States, resembling both a wren and a titmouse and found usually in low scrub or chaparral.

wrest (rĕst) v. tr. wrest-ed, wrest-ing, wrests. 1. To obtain by or as if by pulling with violent twisting movements: wrested the book out of his hands; wrested the islands from the settlers. 2. To usurp forcefully: wrested power from the monarchy. 3. To extract by or as if by force, twisting, or persistent effort; wring: wrest the meaning from an obscure poem. 4. a. To distort or twist the nature or meaning of: wrested the words out of context. b. To divert to an improper use; misapply. — n. 1. The act of wresting. 2. Music. A small tuning key for the wrest pins of a stringed instrument. [Middle English wresten, from Old English wrĕstan, to twist. See wer-² in Appendix.] —wrest'er n.

wres-tle (rĕs'təl) v. wres-tled, wres-ting, wres-tles. — v. intr. 1. To contend by grappling and attempting to throw or immobilize one's opponent, especially under contest rules. 2. To contend or struggle: wrestling with budget cuts. 3. To strive in an effort to master something: wrestle with one's conscience. — v. tr. 1. a. To take part in (a wrestling match). b. To take part in a wrestling match with. 2. To move or lift with great effort and force: wrestled the piano up the stairs. 3. To throw (a calf or other animal) for branding. — n. 1. The act or a bout of wrestling. 2. A struggle. [Middle English wrestlen, from Old English wrĕstlian*, frequentative of wrĕstan, to twist. See wer-² in Appendix.]

—wres'tler n.

wres-ting (rĕs'lĭng) n. Sports. A sport in which two competitors attempt to throw or immobilize each other by grappling.

wrest pin (rĕst pĭn) n. Music. One of the pins to which the strings of a musical instrument, especially of a keyboard instrument, are attached and by turning which they are tuned.

wretch (rĕch) n. 1. A miserable, unfortunate, or unhappy person. 2. A person regarded as base, mean, or despicable: "a stony adversary, an inhuman wretch" (Shakespeare). [Middle English wrecche, from Old English wrecca, exile, wretch.]

wretch-ed (rĕch'id) adj. wretch-ed-er, wretch-ed-est. 1. In a deplorable state of distress or misfortune; miserable: "the wretched prisoners huddling in the stinking cages" (George Orwell). 2. Characterized by or attended with misery or woe: a wretched life. 3. Of a poor or mean character; dismal: a wretched building. 4. Contemptible; despicable: wretched treatment of the patients. 5. Of very inferior quality: wretched prose. [Middle English wrecched, from wrecche, wretch. See WRETCH.] —wretch/ed-ly adv. —wretch/ed-ness n.

wri-er (rī'ər) adj. A comparative of wry.

wri-est (rī'ɪst) adj. A superlative of wry.

wrig-gle (rīg'əl) v. wrig-gled, wrig-gling, wrig-gles. — v. intr. 1. To turn or twist the body with sinuous writhing motions; squirm. 2. To proceed with writhing motions. 3. To worm one's way into or out of a situation; insinuate or extricate oneself by sly or subtle means. — v. tr. 1. To move with a wriggling motion: wriggle a toe. 2. To make (one's way, for example) by or as if by wriggling: He wriggled his way into favor. — n. 1. A wriggling movement. 2. A sinuous path, line, or marking. [Middle English wrigglen, perhaps from Middle Low German wriggeln. See wer² in Appendix.] —wrig'gly adj.

wrig-gler (rīg'lər) n. 1. The larva of a mosquito. 2. One that wriggles or squirms.

wright (rīt) n. One that constructs or repairs something. Often used in combination: a playwright; a shipwright. [Middle English, from Old English wryhta. See werg- in Appendix.]

Wright (rīt), Frances. Known as "Fanny." 1795-1852. Scottish-born American reformer who lectured nationwide on women's rights, birth control, and public education and wrote Views of Society and Manners in America (1823).

Wright (rīt), Frank Lloyd. 1869-1959. American architect whose distinctive style, based on natural forms, had a great influence on the modern movement in architecture. His designs include private homes, the Johnson Wax Company Building in Racine, Wisconsin (1939), and the Guggenheim Museum in New York City (1943-1959).

Wright (rīt), Henry. 1878-1936. American architect and planner of innovative communities, including Sunnyside Gardens in Queens, New York, and Chatham Village in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

Wright (rīt), Joseph. 1855-1930. British lexicographer and philologist who is best known for The English Dialect Dictionary (1905).

Wright (rīt), Orville. 1871-1948. American aviation pioneer who with his brother Wilbur (1867-1912) invented the airplane. On December 17, 1903, near Kitty Hawk, North Carolina, they made the first controlled, sustained flights in a powered heavier-than-air vehicle.

Wright (rīt), Patience Lovell. 1725-1786. American sculptor noted for her wax models of public figures.

Wright (rīt), Richard. 1908-1960. American writer whose powerful fiction explores the oppression suffered by Black Americans. His works include Native Son (1940) and Black Boy (1945).

Wright (rīt), Willard Huntington. Pen name S.S. Van Dine. 1888-1939.

American writer of detective novels, including The Canary Murder Case (1927) and The Casino Murder Case (1934).

Wrigley (rīg'lē), William, Jr. 1861-1932. American manufacturer who founded (1891) William Wrigley, Jr., Company, one of the world's largest chewing gum manufacturers.

wring (rīng) v. wrung (rūng), wring-ing, wrings. — v. tr. 1. To twist, squeeze, or compress, especially so as to extract liquid. Often used with out. 2. To extract (liquid) by twisting or compressing. Often used with out. 3. To wrench or twist forcibly or painfully: wring the neck of a chicken. 4. To clasp and twist or squeeze (one's hands), as in distress. 5. To clasp firmly and shake (another's hand), as in congratulation. 6. To cause distress to; affect with painful emotion: a tale that wrings the heart. 7. To obtain or extract by applying force or pressure: wrung the truth out of the recalcitrant witness. — v. intr. To writhe or squirm, as in pain. — n. The act or an instance of wringing; a squeeze or twist. [Middle English wringen, from Old English wringan. See wer-² in Appendix.]

wring-er (rīng'ər) n. One that wrings, especially a device in which laundry is pressed between rollers to extract water. — idiom. put (someone) through the wringer. Slang. To subject to a severe trial or ordeal.

wrinkle (rīng'kəl) n. 1. A small furrow, ridge, or crease on a normally smooth surface, caused by crumpling, folding, or shrinking. 2. A line or crease in the skin, as from age. 3. Informal. A clever trick, method, or device, especially one that is new and different; an innovation. — v. wrinkled, wrinkling, wrinkles. — v. tr. 1. To make wrinkles or a wrinkle in. 2. To draw up into wrinkles; pucker: wrinkled her nose in disdain. — v. intr. To form wrinkles. [Middle English, back-formation from wrinkled, wrinkled, probably from Old English gewrinclod, past participle of gewrinclian, to wind, crease. See wer-² in Appendix.] — wrinkly adj.

wrist (rīst) n. 1. a. The joint between the hand and the forearm. b. See carpus (n., sense 1). 2. The part of a sleeve or glove that encircles the wrist. [Middle English, from Old English. See wer-² in Appendix.]

wrist-band (rīst'bānd') n. A band, as on a long sleeve or a wristwatch, that encircles the wrist.

wrist-let (rīst'līt) n. 1. A band of material worn round the wrist for warmth or support. 2. A bracelet.

wrist-lock (rīst'lök') n. Sports. A wrestling hold in which an opponent's wrist is gripped and twisted to immobilize the opponent.

wrist pin (rīst pīn) n. A pin that attaches one end of a connecting rod to a wheel, crank, or piston. Also called gudgeon pin wrist-watch (rīst'wöch') n. A watch worn on a band that fastens about the wrist.

writ¹ (rīt) n. 1. Law. A written order issued by a court, commanding the party to whom it is addressed to perform or cease performing a specified act. 2. Writings: holy writ. [Middle English, from Old English.]

writ² (rīt) v. A past tense and a past participle of write.

write (rīt) v. wrote (rōt), writ-ten (rīt'n) also writ (rīt), writ-ing, writes.

— v. tr. 1. a. To form (letters, words, or symbols) on a surface such as paper with an instrument such as a pen. b. To spell: How do you write your name?

2. To form (letters or words) in cursive style. 3. To compose and set down, especially in literary or musical form: write a poem; write a prelude. 4. To draw up in legal form; draft: write a will. 5. To fill in or cover with writing: write a check;

wrote five pages in an hour. 6. To express in writing; set down: write one's thoughts. 7. To communicate by correspondence: wrote that she was planning to visit. 8. To underwrite, as an insurance policy. 9. To depict clearly; mark: "Utter dejection was written on every face" (Winston S. Churchill). 10. To ordain or prophesy: It was written that the empire would fall. 11. Computer Science. To record (data) on a storage device. — v. intr. 1. To trace or form letters, words, or symbols on paper or another surface. 2. To produce written material, such as articles or books. 3. To compose a letter; communicate by mail. —phrasal verbs. write down. 1. To set down in writing. 2. To reduce in rank, value, or price. 3. To disparage in writing. 4. To write in a conspicuously simple or condescending style: felt he had to write down to his students. write in. 5. To cast a vote by inserting (a name not listed on a ballot). 6. To insert in a text or document: wrote in an apology at the end of the note. 7. To communicate with an organization by mail: write in with a completed entry form. write off. 8. To reduce to zero the book value of (an asset that has become worthless). 9. To cancel from accounts as a loss. 10. To consider as a loss or failure: wrote off the rainy first day of the vacation. write out. 11. To express or compose in writing: write out a request. 12. To write in full or expanded form: All abbreviations are to be written out. write up. 13. To write a report or description of, as for publication. 14. To bring (a journal, for example) up to date. 15. To overstate the value of (assets). 16. To report (someone) in writing, as for breaking the law: wrote him up for speeding. —idioms. write (one's) own ticket. To set one's own terms or course of action entirely according to one's own needs or wishes: an open-ended and generous scholarship that lets recipients write their own ticket. writ large. Signified, expressed, or embodied in a greater or more prominent magnitude or degree: "The man was no more than the boy writ large" (George Eliot). [Middle English writen, from Old English wrītan.]

write-down (rīt'doun') n. Accounting. A reduction of the entered value of an asset.

write-in (rīt'in') n. 1. A vote cast by writing in the name of a candidate not on the ballot. 2. A candidate voted for in this manner.

write-off (rīt'ôf', -ôf') n. Accounting. 1. a. A cancellation of an item in account books. b. The amount canceled or lost. 2. A reduction or depreciation of the entered value of an item.

writ-er (rī'tər) n. One who writes, especially as an occupation.

writ-er-ly (rī'tər-lē) adj. Of, relating to, characteristic of, or befitting a writer: “set a standard of writerly craft for that... well-wrought magazine” (Newsweek).

writ-er's block (rī'tərz blɔk) n. A usually temporary psychological inability to begin or continue work on a piece of writing.

writer's cramp (rī'tərz kræmp) n. pl. writers' cramps. A cramp or spasm of the muscles of the fingers, hand, and forearm during writing.

write-up (rīt'ŭp') n. 1. A published account, review, or notice, especially a favorable one. 2. Accounting. An intentional overevaluation of a corporation's assets.

writhe (rīth) v. writhed, writh-ing, writhes. — v. intr. 1. To twist, as in pain, struggle, or embarrassment. 2. To move with a twisting or contorted motion. 3. To suffer acutely. — v. tr. To cause to twist or squirm; contort. — n. The act or an instance of writhing; a contortion. [Middle English writhen, from Old English wrīthan. See wer² in Appendix.] —writh'er n.

SYNONYMS: writhe, agonize, squirm. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to twist and turn in discomfort or suffering”: writhing in pain; agonized over the impending examination; squirming in embarrassment.

writ-ing (rī'tɪŋ) n. 1. The act of one who writes. 2. Written form: Put it in writing. 3. Handwriting; penmanship. 4. Something written, especially: a. Meaningful letters or characters that constitute readable matter. b. A written work, especially a literary composition. 5. The occupation or style of a writer. 6. Writings. (used with a sing. or pl. verb.) Bible. The third of the three divisions of the Hebrew Bible, usually composed of Psalms, Proverbs, Job, Song of Solomon, Ruth, Lamentations, Ecclesiastes, Esther, Daniel, Ezra, Nehemiah, and Chronicles. See Table at Bible.

writing paper (rī'tɪŋ pā'pər) n. Paper on which to write, especially in ink.

writ of election (rīt ŭv ĩ-lĕk'shən) n. pl. writs of election. A writ issued by a governor or other executive authority requiring that an election be held, especially a special election to fill a vacancy.

writ of error (rīt ŭv ər'ər) n. pl. writs of error. Law. A writ commissioning an appellate court to review the proceedings of another court and correct the judgment given if deemed necessary.

writ of prohibition (rīt ŭv prō'ə-bĭsh'ən) n. pl. writs of prohibition. Law. An order issued by a higher court commanding a lower court to cease from proceeding in some matter not within its jurisdiction.

writ of summons (rĭt ŭv sŭm'ənz) n. pl. writs of summons. Law. A writ directing a person to appear in court to answer a complaint.

writ·ten (rĭt'n) v. Past participle of write.

wrnt. abbr. Warrant.

Wro·claw (vrôt'släf') also Bres·lau (brēs'lou) A city of southwest Poland on the Oder River. It was a member of the Hanseatic League (1368-1474) before passing to the Hapsburgs (1526) and Prussia (1742). Wroclaw was assigned to Poland by the Potsdam Conference (1945). Population, 636,000.

wrong (rông, rông) adj. 1. Not in conformity with fact or truth; incorrect or erroneous. 2. a. Contrary to conscience, morality, or law; immoral or wicked. b. Unfair; unjust. 3. Not required, intended, or wanted: took a wrong turn. 4. Not fitting or suitable; inappropriate or improper: said the wrong thing. 5. Not in accord with established usage, method, or procedure: the wrong way to shuck clams. 6. Not functioning properly; out of order. 7. Unacceptable or undesirable according to social convention. 8. Designating the side, as of a garment, that is less finished and not intended to show: socks worn wrong side out. — adv. 1. In a wrong manner; mistakenly or erroneously. 2. In a wrong course or direction. 3. Immorally or unjustly: She acted wrong to lie. 4. In an unfavorable way. See Synonyms at amiss. — n. 1. a. An unjust or injurious act. b. Something contrary to ethics or morality. 2. a. An invasion or a violation of another's legal rights. b. Law. A tort. See Synonyms at injustice. 3. The condition of being in error or at fault: in the wrong. — v. tr. wronged, wrong·ing, wrongs. 1. To treat unjustly or injuriously. 2. To discredit unjustly; malign. 3. To treat dishonorably; violate. — idioms. do (someone) wrong. Informal. To be unfaithful or disloyal. go wrong. 2. To take a wrong turn or make a wrong move. 3. To go astray morally. 4. To go amiss; turn out badly. [Middle English, of Scandinavian origin. See wer-² in Appendix.] — wrong'er n. — wrong'ly adv. — wrong'ness n.

wrong·do·er (rông'dō'ər, rông'-) n. One who does wrong, especially morally or ethically. — wrong'do'ing n.

wrong·ful (rông'fəl, rông'-) adj. 1. Wrong; unjust: wrongful criticism. 2. Unlawful: wrongful death. — wrong'ful·ly adv. — wrong'ful·ness n.

wrong·head·ed (rông'hěd'id, rông'-) adj. Stubbornly defiant of what is right or reasonable; obstinately perverse in judgment or opinion. — wrong'head'ed·ly adv. — wrong'head'ed·ness n.

wrote (rôt) v. Past tense of write.

wroth (rôth) adj. Wrathful; angry. [Middle English, from Old English wrāth. See wer-² in Appendix.]

wrought (rôt) v. A past tense and a past participle of work. — adj. 1. Put together; created: a carefully wrought plan. 2. Shaped by hammering with tools. Used chiefly of metals or metalwork. 3. Made delicately or elaborately. [Middle wrought iron (rôt ī'ərn) n. An easily welded and forged iron that is a mechanical mixture of refined metallic iron with 1 to 3 percent siliceous slag.

English wrought, from Old English geworht, past participle of wyrcan, to work. See werg- in Appendix.]

wrought-up also wrought up (rôt'ŭp') adj. Agitated; excited.

wrung (rŭng) v. Past tense and past participle of wring.

wry (rī) adj. wri-er (rī'əɾ) or wry-er, wri-est (rī'ist) or wry-est. 1. Dryly humorous, often with a touch of irony. 2. Temporarily twisted in an expression of distaste or displeasure: made a wry face. 3. Abnormally twisted or bent to one side; crooked: a wry nose. 4. Being at variance with what is right, proper, or suitable; perverse. [From Middle English wrien, to turn, from Old English wrīgian. See wer-² in Appendix.] —wry'ly adv. —wry'ness n.

wry-neck (rī'nĕk') n. 1. Either of two small Old World woodpeckers (Jynx torquilla or J. ruficollis), having a sharply pointed bill and the habit of twisting the head and neck into contortions. 2. a. See torticollis. b. A person with torticollis.

WS abbr. Computer Science. Working storage.

WSW abbr. West-southwest.

wt. abbr. Weight.

Wu-han (wōō'hän') A city of east-central China on the Yangtze River (Chang Jiang). It is the industrial, commercial, and transportation center of central China and the capital of Hubei province. Population, 3,400,000.

Wu-hu (wōō'hōō') A city of east-central China on the Yangtze River (Chang Jiang) south-southwest of Nanjing. It is a commercial center and a deep-water port. Population, 360,000.

Wu Jiang (wōō' jyäng') A river rising in south-central China and flowing about 805 km (500 mi) east and north to the Yangtze River (Chang Jiang).

wul-fen-ite (wōōl'fə-nīt') n. A usually yellow to orange-brown mineral, PbMoO_4 , used as a molybdenum ore. [German Wulfenit, after Franz X. von Wulfen (1728-1805), Austrian mineralogist.]

wun-der-kind (vōōn'dər-kīnd', wŭn'-) n. pl. wun-der-kin-der (-kīn'dər).

1. A child prodigy. 2. A person of remarkable talent or ability who achieves great success or acclaim at an early age. [German : Wunder, wonder, prodigy (from Middle High German, from Old High German wuntar) + Kind, child; see KINDER-GARTEN.]

Wundt (vōōnt), Wilhelm. 1832-1920. German physiologist and founder of experimental psychology. His Principles of Physiological Psychology (1873-1874) is considered a classic text.

Wup-per-tal (vōōp'ər-täl') A city of west-central Germany north-northeast of Düsseldorf. It is an industrial center. Population, 379,393.

wurst (wûrst, wöörst) n. Sausage. [German, from Middle High German, from Old High German. See wers- in Appendix.]

Würt-tem-berg (wûr'təm-bûrg', vür'təm-bërk') A historical region and former kingdom of southwest Germany. A duchy after 1495, it was a kingdom from 1806 to 1918 and came under German sovereignty in 1934.

Würz-burg (wûrts'bûrg', vürts'böörk') A city of south-central Germany on the Main River. Originally a Celtic settlement, it is an industrial city in a wine-making region. Population, 129,995.

wu-shu also wu shu (wōō'shōō') n. The Chinese martial arts. [Chinese (Mandarin) wǔ shù : wǔ, martial + shù, skill, art.]

Wu-sih (wōō'shē') See Wuxi.

Wu-tai Shan (wōō'tī' shän') A range of mountains in northeast China between Taiyuan and Beijing, rising to 3,507.5 m (11,500 ft).

Wu-xi also Wu-sih (wōō'shē') A city of eastern China between Shanghai and Nanjing. It is a shipping center. Population, 696,300.

WV abbr. West Virginia.

W.Va. abbr. West Virginia.

WVS abbr. Women's Voluntary Service.

WWI abbr. World War I.

WWII abbr. World War II.

WY abbr. Wyoming.

Wy-an-dot also Wy-an-dotte (wī'ən-dōt') n. pl. Wyandot or Wy-an-dots also Wyandotte or Wy-an-dottes. 1. a. A Native American people formed of groups displaced by the destruction of the Huron confederacy in the mid-17th century, formerly located in Ohio and the upper Midwest and now living in northeast Oklahoma. b. A member of this people. 2. The Iroquoian language of the Wyandot. [Wyandot wādát, tribal name.]

Wy-an-dotte¹ (wī'ən-dōt') A city of southeast Michigan, an industrial suburb of Detroit. Population, 30,938.

Wy-an-dotte² (wī'ən-dōt') n. 1. A medium-sized domestic chicken of a breed developed in North America for its eggs and meat. 2. Variant of Wyandot.

Wyandotte Cave (wī'ən-dōt' kāv) A cave of southern Indiana west of New Albany. Discovered in 1898, it is one of the largest caverns in the United States.

Wy-att or Wy-at (wī'ət), Sir Thomas. 1503-1542. English diplomat and poet noted for introducing the sonnet form into English literature.

wych elm also witch elm (wīch ělm) n. A Eurasian elm (Ulmus glabra) often planted as a shade tree. [From Middle English wiche, from Old English wice. See weik-² in Appendix.]

Wych-er-ley (wīch'ər-lē), William. 1640?-1716. English comic playwright and satirist whose plays include The Country Wife (1675) and The Plain Dealer (1676).

Wyck-off (wī'kôf, -kôf) A town of northeast New Jersey north of Paterson. It is mainly residential. Population, 15,372.

Wyc-liffe also Wick-liffe or Wyc-lif or Wic-lif (wīk'lif), John. 1328?-1384. English theologian and religious reformer. His rejection of the biblical basis of papal power and dispute with the doctrine of the transubstantiation of the host anticipated the Protestant Reformation.

wye (wī) n. 1. The letter y. 2. An object shaped like a Y.

Wy-eth (wī'īth), Andrew. Born 1917. American painter whose realistic canvases depict stark rural scenes. His major works include Christina's World (1948) and Tenant Farmer (1961). His father, Newell Convers Wyeth (1882-1945), was also a painter and a book illustrator.

Wy-ler (wī'lər), William. 1902-1981. American filmmaker who directed such film classics as Jezebel (1938), Wuthering Heights (1939), and Ben Hur (1959).

Wy-lie (wī'lē), Elinor Morton Hoyt. 1885-1928. American writer best remembered for her poems, especially those collected in Nets to Catch the Wind (1921). Her novels include Jennifer Lorn (1923).

Wy-lie (wī'lē), Philip Gordon. 1902-1971. American writer known for his essays on American morality. His most famous work is A Generation of Vipers (1942).

wynn (wīn) or wen (wēn) n. An Old English rune having the sound (w) and used in Old English and Middle English writing. [Old English. See wen⁻¹ in Appendix.]

Wynn (wīn), Ed. 1886-1966. American actor who wrote and performed in such comedies as Ed Wynn's Carnival (1920) and The Perfect Fool (1921).

Wy-o-ming (wī-ō'mīng) 1. Abbr. WY, Wyo. A state of the western United States. It was admitted as the 44th state in 1890. Acquired by the United States as part of the Louisiana Purchase (1803), Wyoming became a ranching center after the Union Pacific Railroad was established (1868). Cheyenne is the capital and the largest city. Population, 455,975. 2. A city of west-central Michigan, a manufacturing suburb of Grand Rapids. Population, 63,891.

WYSIWYG (wīz'ē-wīg') Computer Science. adj. Relating to or being a word-processing or desktop publishing system in which the screen displays text exactly as it will be printed. — n. A WYSIWYG system, effect, or screen display. [w(hat) y(ou) s(ee) i(s) w(hat) y(ou) g(et).]

Wy-szyń-ski (vī-shīn'skē), Stefan. 1901-1981. Polish prelate whose agreements with Soviet authorities brought greater religious freedom to Poland.

Wythe (wīth), George. 1726-1806. American Revolutionary patriot and jurist. A signer of the Declaration of Independence, he was the first professor of law in the United States (1779-1789).

wy·vern also wi·vern (wī'vərn) n. Heraldry. A two-legged dragon having wings and a barbed tail. [Alteration of Middle English wyvere, viper, from Old North French wivre, from Latin vīpera. See VIPER.]

x¹ or X (ěks) n. pl. x's or X's. 1. The 24th letter of the modern English alphabet. 2. Any of the speech sounds represented by the letter x. 3. The 24th in a series. 4. Something shaped like the letter X. 5. A mark inscribed to represent the signature of one who is unable to sign one's name. 6. An unknown or unnamed factor, thing, or person. — v. tr. x'd or X'd, x'ing or X'ing, x's or X's. 1. To mark or sign with an X. 2. To delete, cancel, or obliterate with a series of X's. Often used with out.

x² Mathematics. The symbol for abscissa.

X¹ (ěks) n. A movie rating that allows admission to no one under the age of 17. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: an X movie.

X² 1. Electricity. The symbol for reactance. 2. Also x. The symbol for the Roman numeral 10.

X³ abbr. 1. Christ (Greek Χριστός, Christos). 2. Christian. 3. Or x. Experimental. 4. Extra.

x. abbr. Business. Ex.

Xan·a·du (zăn'ə-dōō', -dyōō') n. An idyllic, beautiful place. [After Xanadu,, a place in "Kubla Khan," a poem by Samuel Taylor Coleridge.]

xanth- pref. Variant of xantho-.

xan·than gum (zăn'thən gŭm) n. A natural gum of high molecular weight produced by culture fermentation of glucose and used as a stabilizer in commercial food preparation. [From New Latin Xanthomonas (campestris), name of the bacterium used to produce it : Greek xanthos, yellow (from its color) + Greek monas, monad; see MONAD.]

xan·thate (zăn'thāt') n. A salt of a xanthic acid, especially a simple xanthic acid salt, as of sodium or potassium, used as a flotation collector for copper, silver, and gold.

xan·thene (zăn'thēn') n. A yellow crystalline organic compound, $\text{CH}_2(\text{C}_6\text{H}_4)_2\text{O}$, that is soluble in ether and is used as a fungicide and in organic synthesis.

xan·thic acid (zăn'thĭk əs'ĭd) n. Any of various unstable acids of the form ROC(S)SH , in which R is usually an alkyl radical. [From the yellow color of its salts.]

xan·thine (zăn'thēn', -thĭn) n. 1. A yellowish-white, crystalline purine base, $\text{C}_5\text{H}_4\text{N}_4\text{O}_2$, that is a precursor of uric acid and is found in blood, urine, muscle tissue, and certain plants. 2. Any of several derivatives of this compound.

Xan·thip·pe (zăn-thĭp'ē, -tĭp'ē) or Xan·tip·pe (-tĭp'ē), Fifth century B.C. Greek woman. The wife of Socrates, she is traditionally described as shrewish and scolding.

xantho- or xanth- pref. 1. Yellow: xanthine. 2. Xanthic acid: xanthate. [Greek, yellow, from xanthos.]

xan·tho·chroid (zăn'thə-kroid') adj. Having a light complexion and light hair. — n. A person having a light complexion and light hair. [New Latin xanthochroi, yellow-haired, fair-skinned people (Greek xantho-, xantho- + Greek ōkhroi, pl. of ōkhros, pale) + -OID.] — xan'tho·chro'ic (-krō'ik) adj.

xan·tho·ma (zăn-thō'mə) n. pl. xan·tho·mas or xan·tho·ma·ta (-mə-tə). A yellowish-orange, lipid-filled nodule or papule in the skin, often on an eyelid or over a joint. — xan·thom'a·tous (-thōm'ə-təs) adj.

xan·tho·ma·to·sis (zăn'thō-mə-tō'sis) n. A metabolic disorder characterized by excessive accumulation of lipids in the body and a resulting spread of xanthomas. [New Latin xanthōma, xanthōmat-, xanthoma (XANTHO- + -OMA) + -OSIS.]

xan·tho·phore (zăn'thə-fōr', -fōr') n. A chromatophore that contains a yellow pigment.

xan·tho·phyll (zăn'thə-fil') n. 1. A yellow carotenoid pigment, $C_{40}H_{56}O_2$, found with chlorophyll in green plants and identical with lutein. 2. Any of various related yellow pigments. — xan'tho·phyl'lic, xan'tho·phyl'lous adj.

xan·thous (zăn'thəs) adj. 1. Color. Yellow. 2. Having light brown or yellowish skin.

xan·thop·ter·in (zăn-thōp'tər-īn) n. A yellow pigment in the wings of certain butterflies and moths, found also in the urine of mammals.

Xan·thus (zăn'thəs) An ancient city of Lycia in present-day southwest Turkey. It was besieged and taken by the Persians (c. 546 B.C.) and the Romans (c. 42 B.C.). Both times the residents destroyed the city before surrendering.

Xan·tip·pe (zăn-tīp'ē) See Xanthippe.

Xa·ve·ri·an Brother (zə-vēr'ē-ən brūth'ər) n. Roman Catholic Church. A member of a congregation of lay brothers dedicated to education. [After Saint Francis XAVIER.]

Xa·vi·er (zā'vē-ər, zāv'ē-), Saint Francis. 1506-1552. Spanish Jesuit missionary. A cofounder of the Jesuit order (1534) with Ignatius of Loyola, he established missionaries in Japan, Ceylon, and the East Indies.

x·ax·is (ěks'āk'sis) n. pl. x·ax·es (-āk'sēz). Mathematics. 1. The horizontal axis of a two-dimensional Cartesian coordinate system. 2. One of three axes in a three-dimensional Cartesian coordinate system.

XC or X-C abbr. Sports. Cross-country.

X·chro·mo·some (ěks'krō'mə-sōm') n. The sex chromosome associated with female characteristics, occurring paired in the female and single in the male sex-chromosome pair.

XD abbr. Ex dividend.

x·dis·ease (ěks'dī-zēz') n. Hyperkeratosis of cattle caused by ingestion of a toxic substance, especially one of uncertain origin or chemical composition.

x·div. abbr. Ex dividend.

Xe The symbol for the element xenon.

xe·bec also ze·bec or ze·beck (zē'běk') n. Nautical. A small three-masted Mediterranean vessel with both square and triangular sails. [French chebec, probably from Catalan xabec, from Arabic dialectal šabbāk.]

xen- pref. Variant of xeno-.

xe·ni·a (zē'nē-ə, zē'n'yə) n. Botany. The direct effect on a hybrid plant produced by the transfer of pollen from one strain to the endosperm of a different strain. [New Latin, from Greek, hospitality, from xenos, guest, stranger. See XENO-.]

Xen·ia (zē'n'yə, zē'nē-ə) A city of southwest-central Ohio east-southeast of Dayton. It is a manufacturing center. Population, 24,664.

xeno- or xen- pref. 1. Stranger; foreigner: xenophobia. 2. Strange; foreign; different: xenolith. [New Latin, from Greek, from xenos, stranger. See ghos-ti- in Appendix.]

xen·o·bi·ot·ic (zē'nə-bī-ōt'ik, zē'nə-) adj. Foreign to the body or to living organisms. Used of chemical compounds. — n. A xenobiotic chemical, such as a pesticide.

xen·o·blast (zē'nə-bləst', zē'nə-) n. A mineral deposit that has developed during metamorphism without developing crystalline faces.

xen·o·cryst (zē'nə-krist', zē'nə-) n. A crystal foreign to the igneous rock in which it occurs. [XENO- + CRYST(AL).]

xen·o·di·ag·no·sis (zē'nə-dī'əg-nō'sis, zē'nə-) n. pl. xen·o·di·ag·no·ses (-sēz). Diagnosis of an infectious disease at an early stage by exposing a presumably infected individual or tissue to a clean, laboratory-bred mosquito, tick, or other vector and then examining the vector for the presence of the infective microorganism. — xen'·o·di·ag·nos'tic (-nōs'tik) adj.

xe·nog·a·my (zī-nōg'ə-mē) n. pl. xe·nog·a·mies. Botany. Transfer of pollen from one plant to another; cross-pollination. — xe·nog'·a·mous *adj.

xen·o·ge·ne·ic (zē'nə-jə-nē'ik, -nā'-, zē'nə-) adj. Derived or obtained from an organism of a different species: a xenogeneic tissue graft; xenogeneic antibodies.

xen·o·gen·e·sis (zē'nə-jěn'i-sis, zē'nə-) n. 1. The supposed production of offspring markedly different from either parent. 2. See alternation of generations. — xen'·o·ge·net'ic (-jə-nēt'ik), xen'·o·gen'ic (-jěn'ik) adj.

xen·o·graft (zē'nə-grəft', zē'nə-) n. See heterograft.

xen·o·lith (zē'nə-lith', zē'nə-) n. A rock fragment foreign to the igneous mass in which it occurs.

xe·non (zē'nōn') n. Symbol Xe A colorless, odorless, highly unreactive gaseous element found in minute quantities in the atmosphere, extracted commercially from liquefied air and used in stroboscopic, bactericidal, and laser-pumping lamps. Atomic number 54; atomic weight 131.30; melting point -111.9°C ; boiling point -107.1°C ; density (gas) 5.887 grams per liter; specific gravity (liquid) 3.52 (-109°C). [From Greek, neuter of xenos, foreign, strange. See XENO-.]

Xe·noph·a·nes (zə-nŏf'ə-nēz'), 560?-478? B.C. Greek philosopher who was a founder of the Eleatic school.

xen·o·phile (zĕn'ə-fil', zĕ'nə-) n. A person attracted to that which is foreign, especially to foreign peoples, manners, or cultures. —xen'·o·phil'i·a (-fĭl'ē-ə) n. —xe·noph'i·lous (zĕ-nŏf'ə-ləs, zĕ-) adj.

xen·o·phobe (zĕn'ə-fŏb', zĕ'nə-) n. A person unduly fearful or contemptuous of that which is foreign, especially of strangers or foreign peoples.

—xen'·o·pho'bi·a n. —xen'·o·pho'bic adj.

Xen·o·phon (zĕn'ə-fən, -fŏn'), 430?-355? B.C. Greek soldier and writer. A disciple of Socrates, he joined Cyrus the Younger in an attack on Persia. After the death of Cyrus, Xenophon led the Greek troops to the Black Sea, an ordeal he recounted in Anabasis.

xer- pref. Variant of xero-.

Xer (ĕk'sər) n. A member of Generation X.

xer·arch (zĭr'ärk') adj. Originating in a dry habitat, such as a rocky shore, cliff, or desert. Used of a sere. [XER(O)- + Greek arkhē, beginning.]

xer·ic (zĕr'ĭk, zĭr'-) adj. Of, characterized by, or adapted to an extremely dry habitat. —xer'i·cal·ly adv. —xe·ric'i·ty (zĕ-rĭs'ĭ-tĕ) n.

xero- or xer- pref. Dry; dryness: xeroderma. [Greek xĕro-, from xĕros, dry.]

xer·o·der·ma (zĭr'ŏ-dŭr'mə) also xe·ro·der·mi·a (-mĕ-ə) n. Excessive or abnormal dryness of the skin, as in ichthyosis.

xeroderma pig·men·to·sum (zĭr'ŏ-dŭr'mə pĭg'mən-tŏ'səm) n. A rare hereditary skin disorder caused by a defect in the enzymes that repair DNA damaged by ultraviolet light. [New Latin xĕroderma pigmentŏsum : xĕroderma, xeroderma + pigmentŏsus, of pigment.]

xe·rog·ra·phy (zĭ-rŏg'rə-fĕ) n. A dry photographic or photocopying process in which a negative image formed by a resinous powder on an electrically charged plate is electrically transferred to and thermally fixed as positive on a paper or other copying surface. —xe·rog'ra·pher n. —xer'·o·graph'ic (zĭr'ə-gräf'ĭk) adj. —xer'·o·graph'i·cal·ly adv.

xe·roph'i·lous (zĭ-rŏf'ə-ləs) adj. Flourishing in or adapted to a dry, hot environment. —xe·roph'i·ly n.

xer·oph·thal·mi·a (zĭr'əf-thäl'mĕ-ə) n. Extreme dryness and thickening of the conjunctiva, often resulting from a deficiency of vitamin A.

—xer'oph·thal'mic adj.

xer·o·phyte (zĭr'ə-fĭt') n. A plant adapted to living in a dry, arid habitat; a desert plant. —xer'·o·phyt'ic (-fĭt'ĭk) adj. —xer'·o·phyt'i·cal·ly adv.

—xer'·o·phyt'ism (-fĭ'tĭz-əm, -fĭ-tĭz'-) n.

xe·ro·sere (zĭr'ə-sĭr') n. A succession of ecological communities originating in a dry habitat.

xe-ro-sis (zǐ-rō'sis) n. pl. xe-ro-ses (-sēz). 1. Abnormal dryness, especially of the skin, eyes, or mucous membranes. 2. The normal hardening of aging tissue.

xer-o-ther-mic (zîr'ə-thûr'mîk) adj. 1. Both dry and hot: a xerothermic climate. 2. Adapted to or flourishing in an environment that is both dry and hot: xerothermic organisms.

Xer-ox (zîr'öks) A trademark used for a photocopying process or machine employing xerography. This trademark often occurs in print in uppercase or lowercase as a verb, an adjective, and a noun: "Juicy stories circulated... in a book proposal that was Xeroxed and read as an alternate beach book in the Hamptons" (Washington Post). "Letters you send should be xeroxed after you sign them" (Progressive Architecture). "To walk around the... campus during the strike was to be confronted with their fact sheets, their xeroxed research summaries and news clips" (San Francisco Chronicle). "The group's teacher... asked the children how they would feel if they received a Xeroxed thank-you card" (New York Times). "He reaches inside his windbreaker to his shirt pocket. He has four or five sheets of foolscap, xeroxes, I see, of court documents" (Scott Turow). The trademark sometimes occurs in print in figurative contexts: "Her performance was Xeroxed from her imagination" (Chicago Tribune). "And of course sequels are nothing new: Andy Hardy and Nick Charles, for instance, were Xeroxed shamelessly in earlier days" (Boston Globe).

Xer-xes I (zûrk'sēz), Known as "Xerxes the Great." 519?-465 B.C. King of Persia (486-465) who organized a vast army that defeated the Greeks at Thermopylae and destroyed Athens (480). After the defeat of his navy at Salamis (480) and of his army at Plataea (479), he retreated to Persia, where he was later assassinated.

x-height (ëks'hīt') n. Printing. The height of a lowercase x.

Xho-sa also Xo-sa (kō'sä, -zə) n. pl. Xhosa or Xho-sas also Xosa or Xo-sas.

1. A member of a Bantu people inhabiting the eastern part of Cape Province, South Africa. 2. The Nguni language of this people, closely related to Zulu.

xi (zī, sī, ksē) n. 1. The 14th letter of the Greek alphabet. 2. See xi hyperon.
[Greek xēi.]

XI abbr. Business. Ex interest.

Xia or Hsia (shyä) The first Chinese dynasty (traditionally dated c. 2205-1766 B.C.). No historical documents or archaeological evidence has been found to corroborate the legends about this dynasty.

Xia-men (shyä'mən) also A-moy (ä-moi') A city of eastern China east-northeast of Guangzhou. One of the earliest seats of European commerce in China, it is a major harbor and a manufacturing center. Population, 350,000.

Xi'an (shē'än', shyän) also Si-an (sē'än', shē'-) or Hsian (shyän) A city of central China southwest of Beijing. The capital (221-206 B.C.) of the Qin dynasty, it is a major commercial center and the capital of Shaanxi province. Population, 1,730,000.

- Xiang Jiang (shyäng' jyäng') also Siang Kiang (syäng' kyäng', shyäng') or Hsiang Kiang (shyäng') A river, about 1,150 km (715 mi) long, flowing generally northward from southeast China. Its valley has important mineral resources.
- Xiang-tan (shyäng'tän') also Siang-tan (syäng'-, shyäng'-) A city of south-central China on the Xiang Jiang south-southwest of Changsha. It is an industrial center. Population, 350,000.
- xi hyperon (zī hī'pə-rǒn') n. Either of two subatomic particles in the baryon family, one neutral and one negatively charged, with masses of 2,573 and 2,585 times that of the electron and average lifetimes of 2.9×10^{-10} and 1.6×10^{-10} second. Also called xi
- Xi Jiang (shē' jyäng') also Si Kiang (sē' kyäng', shē') A river, about 2,011 km (1,250 mi) long, rising in southeast China and flowing generally eastward to the South China Sea near Guangzhou.
- Xin-gu (shēng-gōo') A river of central and northern Brazil rising in several streams and flowing about 1,979 km (1,230 mi) generally northward to the Amazon River at the head of the Amazon delta.
- Xi-ning (shē'nǐng') A city of central China north-northeast of Chengdu. The capital of Qinghai province, it has long been a commercial center on the caravan route to Xizang (Tibet). Population, 400,000.
- Xin-jiang Uy-gur (shǐn'jyäng' wē'gər) also Sin-kiang Ui-ghur or Sin-kiang Ui-gur (shǐn'kyäng' wē'gər, shǐn'jyäng') An autonomous region of extreme western China. It came under Chinese control in the 16th century and was the site of a conflict between China and the Soviet Union in 1969. Ürümqi is the capital. Population, 13,610,000.
- Xin-xiang (shǐn'shyäng') A city of eastern China south-southeast of Taiyuan. It is a rail center. Population, 325,000.
- xiph-i-ster-num (zǐf'ī-stūr'nəm) n. pl. xiph-i-ster-na (-nə). The posterior and smallest of the three divisions of the sternum, below the gladiolus and the manubrium. Also called xiphoid, xiphoid process. [Greek xiphos, sword + STERNUM.]
- xiph-oid (zǐf'oid') adj. 1. Shaped like a sword. 2. Of or relating to the xiphisternum. — n. See xiphisternum. [Greek xiphoeidēs: xiphos, sword + -oeidēs, -oid.]
- xiphoid process (zǐf'oid' prǒs'ēs') n. See xiphisternum.
- xiph-o-su-ran (zǐf'ə-sōōr'ən) n. An arthropod of the order Xiphosura, which includes the horseshoe crab and many extinct forms. — adj. Of or belonging to the order Xiphosura. [From New Latin Xiphosūra, order name: Greek xiphos, sword + Greek -oura, neuter pl. of -ouros, -urous.]
- Xi-zang (shē'dzäng') or Ti-bet (tə-bět') An autonomous region of China in the southwest part of the country north and west of the Himalaya Mountains. Controlled by China since 1720, it became an autonomous province in 1951 and was formally proclaimed an autonomous region in 1965. Xizang is a center of Buddhism, but many Buddhists have fled since the 1950's to escape religious persecution. Lhasa is the capital. Population, 1,990,000.

x-ir-ra-di-ate (ĕks'ĭ-rā'dē-āt') v. tr. x-ir-ra-di-at-ed, x-ir-ra-di-at-ing, x-ir-ra-di-ates. To expose or subject to x-ray radiation. — x'-ir-ra'di-a'tion n.

XL abbr. 1. Extra large. 2. Extra long.

X-mas (krĭs'məs, ĕks'məs) n. Usage Problem. Christmas. [From X, the Greek letter chi, abbreviation of Khristos, Christ. See CHRIST.]

USAGE NOTE: Xmas has been used for hundreds of years in religious writing, where the X is understood to represent a Greek chi, the first letter of Χριστός “Christ”; in this use it is parallel to other forms like Xtian, “Christian.” But the letter X, or especially x, is nowadays more frequently interpreted as a mathematical variable than as a Greek letter, as indicated by the common pronunciation of the form Xmas as (ĕks'məs). Thus, while the word is etymologically innocent of the charge that it omits Christ from Christmas, it is now generally understood only as an informal shortening. In an earlier survey 88 percent of the Usage Panel rejected the use of Xmas in writing.

Xo-sa (kō'sä, -zə) n. Variant of Xhosa.

x-ra-di-a-tion (ĕks'rā'dē-ā'shən) n. 1. Treatment with or exposure to x-rays. 2. Radiation composed of x-rays.

X-rat-ed (ĕks'rā'tĭd) adj. 1. Having the rating X: an X-rated movie. 2. Vulgar, obscene, or explicit in the treatment of sex: an X-rated novel; X-rated graffiti.

X rating (ĕks' rā'tĭng) n. A classification assigned to movies that feature explicit sex or violence and that may not be viewed by persons under 17 years of age.

x-ray also X-ray (ĕks'rā') n. also x ray or X ray 1. a. A relatively high-energy photon with wavelength in the approximate range from 0.01 to 10 nanometers. b. A stream of such photons, used for their penetrating power in radiography, radiology, radiotherapy, and scientific research. Often used in the plural. Also called roentgen ray 2. A photograph taken with x-rays. — v. tr. x-rayed also X-rayed, x-ray-ing also X-ray-ing, x-rays also X-rays. 1. To irradiate with x-rays. 2. To photograph with x-rays.

x-ray astronomy (ĕks'rā' ə-strŏn'ə-mē) n. The branch of astronomy that deals with the properties of celestial bodies as indicated by the x-rays they emit.

x-ray burster (ĕks'rā' būr'stər) n. Any of several celestial phenomena characterized by the emission of very powerful bursts of x-radiation in cycles lasting from a few seconds to a few minutes.

x-ray crystallography (ĕks'rā' krĭs'tə-lŏg'rə-fē) n. The study of crystal structure by means of x-ray diffraction.

- x-ray diffraction (ĕks'rá' dī-frāk'shən) n. The scattering of x-rays by crystal atoms, producing a diffraction pattern that yields information about the structure of the crystal.
- x-ray microscope (ĕks'rá' mī'krə-skōp') n. An instrument using x-rays to render a highly magnified image.
- x-ray star (ĕks'rá' stār) n. A celestial object, especially a star, that emits a major portion of its radiation in x-rays.
- x-ray therapy (ĕks'rá' thēr'ə-pē) n. Medical treatment using controlled doses of x-ray radiation.
- x-ray tube (ĕks'rá' tōōb) n. A vacuum tube containing electrodes that accelerate electrons and direct them to a metal anode, where their impacts produce x-rays.
- Xu·thus (zōō'thəs) n. Greek Mythology. The ancestor of the Ionian Greeks.
- Xu·zhou (shōō'jō') also Sü·chow (sōō'chou', sü'jō') A city of eastern China north-northwest of Nanjing. It is a manufacturing center. Population, 806,400.
- xyl- pref. Variant of xylo-.
- xy·lan (zī'lən) n. A yellow, water-soluble, gummy polysaccharide found in plant cell walls and yielding xylose upon hydrolysis.
- xy·lem (zī'ləm) n. The supporting and water-conducting tissue of vascular plants, consisting primarily of tracheids and vessels; woody tissue. [German, from Greek xulon, wood.]
- xy·lene (zī-lēn', zī'lēn') also xy·lol (zī'lôl', -lôl') n. 1. Any of three flammable isomeric hydrocarbons, $C_6H_4(CH_3)_2$, obtained from wood and coal tar. 2. A mixture of xylene isomers used as a solvent in making lacquers and rubber cement and as an aviation fuel.
- xy·li·dine (zī'lī-dēn', -dīn, zī'lī-) n. 1. Any of six toxic isomers, $(CH_3)_2C_6H_3NH_2$, derived from xylene, used chiefly as dye intermediates. 2. Any of various mixtures of xylidine isomers.
- xylo- or xyl- pref. 1. Wood: xylograph. 2. Xylene: xylidine. [Greek xulo-, from xulon, wood.]
- xy·lo·graph (zī'lə-grăf') n. 1. An engraving on wood. 2. An impression from a woodblock. — v. tr. xy·lo·graphed, xy·lo·graph·ing, xy·lo·graphs. To print from a wood engraving. — xy·log'ra·pher (-lōg'rə-fər) n.
- xy·log·ra·phy (zī-lōg'rə-fē) n. 1. Wood engraving, especially of an early period. 2. The art of printing texts or illustrations, sometimes with color, from woodblocks, as distinct from typography. — xy'lo·graph'ic (-lə-grăf'ik), xy'lo·graph'i·cal (-ī-kəl) adj. — xy'lo·graph'i·cal·ly adv.
- xy·loid (zī'lōid') adj. Of or similar to wood.
- xy·lol (zī'lôl', -lôl') n. Variant of xylene.
- xy·lo·phage (zī'lə-fāj') n. A xylophagous organism.

xy·loph·a·gous (zī-lōf'ə-gəs) adj. 1. Feeding on wood, as certain insects or insect larvae. 2. Destructive to wood, as certain crustaceans or fungi.

xy·lo·phone (zī'lə-fōn') n. Music. A percussion instrument consisting of a mounted row of wooden bars graduated in length to sound a chromatic scale, played with two small mallets. —xy'lo·phon'ist n.

WORD HISTORY: Xylophone is a word one expects to encounter in the X section of any children's alphabet book. It is there because it is one of the few words beginning with x that a child or most anyone else would know. Recognition of xerophagy, "the eating of dry food, especially as a form of fasting practiced in the early Christian Church and chiefly in the Eastern churches today," or xylotomy, "the preparation of sections of wood for microscopic study" is not to be expected. Most of the English words beginning with x, including these obscurities, are of Greek origin, the x, pronounced (z), representing the Greek letter xi. In the case of xylophone, xylo- is a form meaning "wood," derived from Greek xulon, "wood," and -phone represents Greek phōnē, "voice, sound," the same element found in words such as telephone, microphone, and megaphone. Our famous x word is first recorded in the April 7, 1866, edition of the Athenaeum: "A prodigy... who does wonderful things with little drumsticks on a machine of wooden keys, called the 'xylophone.'" xy·lose (zī'lōs') n. A white crystalline sugar, C₅H₁₀O₅, used in dyeing and tanning and in diabetic diets. Also called wood sugar xy·lot·o·my (zī-lōt'ə-mē) n. pl. xy·lot·o·mies. Preparation of sections of wood for microscopic study. —xy·lot'o·mist n.

XY recorder (ëks'wī' rī-kôr'dər) n. Engineering. An output device that sketches the relationship between two variables onto a grid of plane rectangular coordinates.

xys·ter (zīs'tər) n. A surgical instrument for scraping bones. [Greek xustēr, scraper, from xuein, to scrape.]

y¹ or Y (wī) n. pl. y's or Y's. 1. The 25th letter of the modern English alphabet.

2. Any of the speech sounds represented by the letter y. 3. Something shaped like the letter Y. 4. The 25th in a series.

y² Mathematics. The symbol for ordinate.

y³ or Y abbr. Yen.

Y¹ 1. The symbol for the element yttrium. 2. Electricity. The symbol for admittance (n., sense 3). 3. Physics. The symbol for hypercharge.

Y² abbr. Yeoman.

y. abbr. Year.

-y¹ or -ey suff. 1. Characterized by; consisting of: clayey. 2. a. Like: summery.

b. To some degree; somewhat; rather: chilly. 3. Tending toward; inclined toward: sleepy. [Middle English, from Old English -ig.]

-y² suff. 1. Condition; state; quality: jealousy. 2. a. Activity: cooking.

b. Instance of a specified action: entreaty. 3. a. Place for an activity: cannery.

b. Result or product of an activity: laundry. 4. Collection; body; group: soldiery. [Middle English -ie, from Old French, from Latin -ia. Sense 2b, ultimately from Latin -ium.]

-y³ or -ie suff. 1. Small one: doggy. 2. Dear one: sweetie. 3. One having to do with or characterized by: townie. [Middle English -ie, -y.]

YA abbr. Young adult.

yab·ber (yăb'ər) Australian. n. Jabber. — v. tr. intr. yab·bered, yab·ber·ing, yab·bers. To jabber (something) or engage in jabbering. [From Australian pidgin, probably from Wuywurung, Aboriginal language of southeast Australia yaba, to talk.]

Ya·blo·no·vy Range (yă'blə-nə-vē' rānj) A mountain chain of southeast Russia extending northeast from near the Mongolian border. It forms part of the watershed for rivers flowing to the Arctic and Pacific oceans.

yacht (yăt) Nautical. n. Any of various relatively small sailing or motor-driven vessels, generally with smart, graceful lines, used for pleasure cruises or racing.

— v. intr. yacht·ed, yacht·ing, yachts. To sail, cruise, or race in a yacht.

[Probably obsolete Norwegian jagt, from Middle Low German jacht, short for jachtschip : jagen, to chase (from Old High German jagōn) + schip, ship.]

yacht club (yăt klüb) n. Nautical. A club that promotes and supports yachting and boating.

yacht·ing (yă'tĩng) n. Nautical. The activity of sailing in yachts.

yachts·man (yäts'mən) n. Nautical. A man who owns or sails a yacht.

yachts·wom·an (yäts'wōm'ən) n. A woman who owns or sails a yacht.

yack (yăk) v. & n. Slang. Variant of yak².

yack·e·ty·yak (yăk'ī-tē-yăk') n. Slang. Prolonged, sometimes senseless talk. [Imitative.]

YAG (yăg) n. A hard synthetic yttrium aluminum garnet used in laser technology and as a gemstone. [Y(TTRIUM) + A(LUMINUM) + G(ARNET)¹.]

ya-gi (yă'gĕ, yăg'ĕ) n. pl. ya-gis. A directional radio and television antenna consisting of a horizontal conductor with several insulated dipoles parallel to and in the plane of the conductor. [After Hidetsugu Yagi (1886-1976), Japanese electrical engineer.]

ya-hoo (yă'hōō, yă'-) n. pl. ya-hoos. A person regarded as crude or brutish. See Synonyms at boor. [From Yahoo, member of a race of brutes having human form in Gulliver's Travels by Jonathan Swift.] —ya'hoo-ism n.

Yah-weh (yă'wā, -wĕ) also Yah-veh (-vā, -vĕ) or Jah-veh (yă'vā, -vĕ) or Jah-weh (yă'wā, -wĕ) n. A name for God assumed by modern scholars to be a rendering of the pronunciation of the Tetragrammaton. [Hebrew.]

Yah-wist (yă'wĭst) also Yah-vist (-vĭst) n. The author of the earliest sources of the Hexateuch in which God is called Yahweh. —Yah-wis'tic adj.

yak¹ (yăk) n. 1. A wild, shaggy-haired ox (Bos grunniens) of the mountains of central Asia. 2. A domesticated yak, used as a work animal or raised for meat and milk. [Tibetan gyag.]

yak² also yack (yăk) Slang. v. intr. yakked also yacked, yak-king also yack-ing, yaks also yacks. To talk persistently and meaninglessly; chatter. — n. Prolonged, sometimes senseless talk; chatter. [Imitative.]

Ya-ki-ma¹ (yăk'ə-mô, -mə) n. pl. Yakima or Ya-ki-mas. 1. a. A Native American people inhabiting south-central Washington. b. A member of this people. 2. The dialect of Sahaptin spoken by the Yakima.

Ya-ki-ma² (yăk'ə-mô', -mə) A city of south-central Washington southeast of Seattle. It is a trade, processing, and shipping center for an irrigated agricultural region. Population, 54,827.

Yakima River (yăk'ə-mô rĭv'ər) A river, about 327 km (203 mi) long, of central and southeast Washington rising in the Cascade Range and flowing generally southeast to the Columbia River.

ya-ki-to-ri (yă'kĭ-tô'rĕ, -tôr'ĕ) n. A dish consisting of bite-sized marinated chicken pieces that are grilled on small skewers. [Japanese : yaki, roasting + tori, bird.]

yak-ow (yăk'ou) n. The hybrid offspring of a yak and a cow. [YAK¹ + COW¹.]

Ya-kut (yă-kōōt') n. pl. Yakut or Ya-kuts. 1. A member of a people inhabiting the region of the Lena River in eastern Siberia. 2. The Turkic language of the Yakut. —Ya-kut' adj.

Ya-kutsk (yă-kōōtsk') A city of east-central Russia on the Lena River. Founded as a fort in 1632, it is a port and processing center. Population, 180,000.

ya-ku-za (yă'kōō-ză') n. pl. yakuza. 1. A loose alliance of Japanese criminal organizations and illegal enterprises. 2. A Japanese gangster. [Japanese, good-for-nothing, gambler, racketeer.]

Yale (yāl), Elihu. 1649-1721. Colonial-born English merchant and philanthropist who made a series of contributions to the Collegiate School in Connecticut, which was renamed in Yale's honor (1718).

Yale, Mount. A peak, 4,329.8 m (14,196 ft) high, in the Sawatch Range of the Rocky Mountains in central Colorado.

y'all (yôl) pron. Chiefly Southern U.S. Variant of you-all. See Regional note at you-all.

Ya-long Jiang (yă'lōŋg' jyäng') A river of south-central China flowing about 1,287 km (800 mi) generally southward to the Yangtze River (Chang Jiang).

Yal-ow (yă'lō), Rosalyn Sussman. Born 1921. American medical physicist. She shared a 1977 Nobel Prize for research on hormones.

Yal-ta (yôl'tə) A city of southeast Ukraine in the southern Crimea on the Black Sea. A popular resort, it was the site of an Allied conference (attended by Franklin D. Roosevelt, Winston Churchill, and Joseph Stalin) in February 1945. Population, 86,000.

Ya-lu Jiang (yă'lōo' jyäng') A river, about 805 km (500 mi) long, forming part of the North Korea-China border.

yam (yăm) n. 1. Any of numerous chiefly tropical vines of the genus Dioscorea, many of which have edible tuberous roots. 2. The starchy root of any of these plants, used in the tropics as food. 3. Chiefly Southern U.S. See sweet potato (n., sense 1). See Regional note at goober. [Portuguese inhame, or obsolete Spanish igname, iñame both from Portuguese and English Creole nyam, to eat, of West African origin; akin to Fulani nyami, to eat Wolof ñam, food, to eat or Mandingo (Bambara) ñambu, manioc.]

Ya-ma-ga-ta (yă'mə-gă'tə, yă'mä-gä'tä, yä-mä'gä-tä) A city of northern Honshu, Japan, west of Sendai. It is a processing center, especially for silk. Population, 245,159.

Ya-ma-ga-ta (yă'mə-gă'tə, yă'mä-gä'tä, yä-mä'gä-tä), Prince Aritomo. 1838-1922. Japanese soldier and politician who was largely responsible for transforming Japan into a military power in the 20th century.

Ya-ma-mo-to (yă'mə-mō'tō, -mä-), Isoroku. 1884-1943. Japanese naval officer who planned Japan's naval strategies during World War II, including the attack on Pearl Harbor (1941).

Ya-ma-ni (yə-mä'nē, yä-), Ahmed Zaki. Born 1930. Saudi Arabian oil minister who was a central figure in the founding of OPEC (1960).

Ya-ma-see (yă'mə-sē') n. pl. Yamasee or Ya-ma-sees. 1. A Native American people formerly inhabiting parts of coastal Georgia and South Carolina. The Yamasee dispersed to other Native American groups after conflict with English colonists in the early 18th century. 2. A member of this people.

Ya·ma·shi·ta (yǎ'mə-shē'tə, yǎ'mā-shē'tǎ), Tomoyuki. 1885-1946. Japanese general who commanded troops in northern China, Malasia, and Singapore during World War II. He was executed for war crimes.

Yam·bol (yäm'böl') A city of southeast Bulgaria east of Stara Zagora. It was under Turkish rule from the 15th to the 19th century. Population, 91,000.

ya·men (yǎ'mən) n. The office or residence of an official in the Chinese Empire. [Chinese (Mandarin) yámen : yá, magistracy (from yá, tooth, flag with a serrated edge) + mén, gate.]

yam·mer (yǎm'ər) Informal. v. yam·mered, yam·mer·ing, yam·mers. — v. intr. 1. To complain peevishly or whimperingly; whine. 2. To talk volubly and loudly. — v. tr. To utter or say in a complaining or clamorous tone. — n. The act of yammering. [Middle English yameren, to lament, probably from Middle Flemish jammeren, to be sorrowful.] —yam'mer·er n.

Yam·pa (yǎm'pə) A river, about 402 km (250 mi) long, of northwest Colorado flowing north then west to the Green River near the Utah border.

Ya·na (yǎ'nə) A river, about 1,207 km (750 mi) long, of northeast Russia flowing northward to the Laptev Sea.

Yan·cey (yǎn'sē), William Lowndes. 1814-1863. American politician who was an early and influential proponent of Southern secession from the Union.

yang (yǎng) n. The active, masculine cosmic principle in Chinese dualistic philosophy. [Chinese (Mandarin) yáng, sun, light, masculine element.]

Yang Chen Ning (yǎng' chěn' nǐng', joen'), Born 1922. Chinese-born American physicist. He shared a 1957 Nobel Prize for disproving the principle of conservation of parity.

Yang·chow (yǎng'jō') See Yangzhou.

Yang·chü·an (yǎng'chwän', -chü'än') See Yangquan.

Yan·gon (yǎn'gôn') See Rangoon.

Yang·quan (yǎng'chwän') also Yang·chü·an (-chwän', -chü'än') A city of eastern China southwest of Beijing. It is an industrial center in a coal and iron area. Population, 325,000.

Yang·tze River (yǎng'sē' rǐv'ər, -tsē', yǎng'dzə') or Chang Jiang (chǎng' jyǎng') The longest river of China and of Asia, flowing about 5,551 km (3,450 mi) from Xizang (Tibet) to the East China Sea. The river has been an important trade and transportation route since ancient times.

Yang·zhou also Yang·chow (yǎng'jō') A city of east-central China on the Grand Canal. It was a capital of China in the sixth century A.D. and an important literary and cultural center. Marco Polo was governor of the city from 1282 to 1285. Population, 255,000.

yank (yǎngk) v. yanked, yank·ing, yanks. — v. tr. 1. To pull with a quick, strong movement; jerk: yanked the emergency cord. 2. Slang. To extract or remove abruptly: yanked the starting pitcher early in the game. — v. intr. To pull on something suddenly. See Synonyms at jerk¹. — n. A sudden vigorous pull; a jerk. [Origin unknown.]

Yank (yǎngk) n. Informal. A Yankee.

Yan-kee (yǎng'kē) n. 1. A native or inhabitant of New England. 2. A native or inhabitant of a northern U.S. state, especially a Union soldier during the Civil War. 3. A native or inhabitant of the United States. [Origin unknown.] — Yan/-kee-dom n.

WORD HISTORY: Yankee is an excellent example of a widely known word whose origins cannot be determined. The best hypothesis is that Yankee comes from Dutch Janke, a nickname for Jan, “John.” Evidence can be found in the Oxford English Dictionary that the forms Yankey, Yanky, and Yankee were used as surnames or nicknames in the 17th century. The word Yankee is first found in one of our modern senses in 1758, the sense being “a New Englander.” The 17th-century nickname for Jan was derisive, and the first instances of our word show the term being used derisively by the British for New Englanders. After the Battle of Lexington (1775) New Englanders dignified the name. The British were responsible for application of the term to all Americans (a use first recorded around 1784); and Southerners, for application of the term to Northerners (first recorded in 1817).

Yankee Doodle (yǎng'kē dōōd'l) n. A Yankee. [From the title of a song popular during the Revolutionary War.]

Yan-kee-ism (yǎng'kē-iz'əm) n. A Yankee custom, characteristic, usage, or pronunciation.

Yank-ton (yǎngk'tən) n. pl. Yankton or Yank-tons. 1. A division of the Sioux people formerly inhabiting northern Minnesota, now located mainly in the eastern Dakotas. The Yankton and Yanktonai occupy a middle position between the Santee and Teton divisions of the Sioux. 2. A member of this division.

Yank-to-nai (yǎngk'tə-nī') n. pl. Yanktonai or Yank-to-nais. A division of the Sioux people formerly inhabiting northern Minnesota, now located mainly in North and South Dakota and eastern Montana.

Yao¹ (you) n. pl. Yao or Yaos. 1. A member of a people related to the Hmong and inhabiting southern China, northern Laos, Thailand, and Vietnam. 2. The Miao-Yao language of the Yao.

Yao² (you) A city of southern Honshu, Japan, a suburb of Osaka. Population, 276,397.

Ya-oun-dé (yā-ōōn-dā') The capital of Cameroon, in the south-central part of the country. It was founded in 1888 as an ivory-trading post. Population, 561,000.

yap (yǎp) v. yapped, yap-ping, yaps. — v. intr. 1. To bark sharply or shrilly; yelp. 2. Slang. To talk noisily or stupidly; jabber. — v. tr. To utter by yapping. — n. 1. A sharp, shrill bark; a yelp. 2. Slang. Noisy, stupid talk; jabber. 3. Slang. The mouth: Shut your yap. 4. Slang. A person regarded as stupid, crude, or loud. [Probably imitative.] —yap'per n.

Yap (yăp, yäp) An island group in the western Caroline Islands of the western Pacific Ocean. Discovered by the Spanish in 1791, it became part of a Japanese mandate after 1920 and fell to U.S. forces in 1945.

ya·pok (yă-pök') n. An aquatic opossum (Chironectes minimus) of tropical America, having dense fur, webbed hind feet, and a long tail. [After the Oyapock, a river of northern South America.]

Ya·qui (yă'kē) n. pl. Yaqui or Ya·quis. 1. a. A Native American people of Sonora, a state of northwest Mexico, now also located in southern Arizona. Many Yaqui sought asylum in the United States in the early 19th century because of conflict with the Mexican government. b. A member of this people. 2. The Uto-Aztecan language of the Yaqui. [Spanish, from Yaqui hiaki.] yar·bor·ough (yăr'bûr'ō, -bûr'ō, -bər-ə) n. Games. A bridge or whist hand containing no honor cards. [After Charles Anderson Worsley, Second Earl of Yarborough (1809-1897), said to have bet 1,000 to 1 that such a hand would not occur.]

yard¹ (yărd) n. 1. Abbr. yd A fundamental unit of length in both the U.S. Customary System and the British Imperial System, equal to 3 feet, or 36 inches (0.9144 meter). See Table at measurement. 2. Nautical. A long tapering spar slung to a mast to support and spread the head of a square sail, lugsail, or lateen. [Middle English yerde, stick, unit of measure, from Old English gerd.] yard² (yărd) n. 1. A tract of ground adjacent to, surrounding, or surrounded by a building or group of buildings. 2. A tract of ground, often enclosed, used for a specific work, business, or other activity. 3. An area where railroad trains are made up and cars are switched, stored, and serviced on tracks and sidings. 4. a. A winter pasture for deer or other grazing animals. b. An enclosed tract of ground in which animals, such as chickens or pigs, are kept. — v. yarded, yard·ing, yards. — v. tr. To enclose, collect, or put into or as if into a yard. — v. intr. To be gathered into or as if into a yard. [Middle English, from Old English geard. See gher-¹ in Appendix.]

yard·age¹ (yăr'dĭj) n. 1. An amount or length measured in yards. 2. Cloth sold by the yard.

yard·age² (yăr'dĭj) n. 1. The use of a livestock yard at a station in the process of transporting cattle by railroad. 2. A fee paid for such usage.

yard·arm (yărd'ărm') n. Nautical. Either end of a yard of a square sail.

yard bird (yărd būrd) n. Slang. 1. a. An untrained military recruit. b. A soldier confined to a restricted area or assigned menial tasks as a punishment. 2. A convict; a prisoner.

yard goods (yărd gōodz) pl.n. See piece goods.

yard grass (yărd grās) n. Any of several weedy African grasses of the genus Eleusine, having usually digitately grouped spikes and flattened spikelets. Also called goose grass yard-long bean (yărd'lông' bēn, -lông') n. A type of cowpea (Vigna unguiculata subsp. sesquipedalis) in the pea family, native to southern Asia, having drooping fruits that reach up to a yard long. Also called asparagus bean yard-man (yărd'mən) n. A man employed in a yard, especially a railroad yard.

yard-mas-ter (yărd'măs'tər) n. A railroad employee in charge of a yard.

yard of ale (yărd üv āl) n. pl. yards of ale. 1. A slender glass shaped like a horn that is about three feet tall and holds about three pints. 2. The amount of liquid that a yard of ale can hold.

yard sale (yărd sāl) n. A sale of used household belongings on the front or back lawn of a house.

yard-stick (yărd'stik') n. 1. A graduated measuring stick one yard in length.

2. A test or standard used in measurement, comparison, or judgment. See Synonyms at standard.

yare (yâr) adj. 1. Agile; lively. 2. Nautical. Responding easily; maneuverable. Used of a vessel. 3. Archaic. Ready; prepared. — adv. Archaic. Soon; quickly. [Middle English, from Old English gearo, ready.] — yare/ly adv.

Yar-kant He (yăr-kănt' hə', -kănt') also Yar-kand River (-kănd', -kănd') A river, about 805 km (500 mi) long, of northwest China rising in the Karakoram Range and flowing generally northeast to the Tarim He.

Yar-mouth (yăr'məth) A town of southeast Massachusetts on south-central Cape Cod east of Barnstable. It is a resort and processing center. Population, 21,174.

yar-mul-ke also yar-mel-ke (yăr'məl-kə, yă'məl-) n. A skullcap worn by Jewish men and boys, especially those adhering to Orthodox or Conservative Judaism. [Yiddish, from Polish, and Ukrainian yarmulka possibly from Turkish yağmurluk, rain clothing, from yağmur, rain.]

yarn (yärn) n. 1. A continuous strand of twisted threads of natural or synthetic material, such as wool or nylon, used in weaving or knitting. 2. Informal. A long, often elaborate narrative of real or fictitious adventures; an entertaining tale. — v. intr. yarned, yarn-ing, yarns. Informal. To tell an entertaining tale or series of tales. [Middle English, from Old English gearn. See gherə- in Appendix.]

Ya-ro-slavl (yăr'ə-slă'vəl, yə-rə-) A city of west-central Russia on the Volga River northeast of Moscow. Traditionally founded in 1010, it was annexed by Moscow in 1463. Population, 626,000.

yar-row (yăr'ō) n. Any of several plants of the genus Achillea of the composite family, especially A. millefolium, native to Eurasia, having finely dissected foliage and flat corymbs of usually white flower heads. Also called achillea, milfoil.

[Middle English yarowe, from Old English gearwe.]

yash·mak also yash·mac (yāsh-māk', yāsh'māk) n. A veil worn by Muslim women to cover the face in public. [Turkish.]

Ya·strzem·ski (yə-strēm'skē), Carl. Born 1939. American baseball player. A left fielder for the Boston Red Sox (1961-1983), he won the American League Triple Crown and most valuable player award in 1967.

yat·a·ghan also yat·a·gan (yăt'ə-gān', -gān) or at·a·ghan (ăt'-) n. A Turkish sword or scimitar having a double-curved blade and an eared pommel, but lacking a handle guard. [Turkish yatağan.]

yaup (yôp) v. & n. Variant of yawp.

yau·pon (yô'pən) n. An evergreen holly (Ilex vomitoria) of the southeast United States, having lustrous red or sometimes yellow fruit, whose dried leaves are used to make a bitter tea. Also called cassina [Catawba yā'pā.]

Ya·va·pai (yāv'ə-pī', yä'və-) n. pl. Yavapai or Ya·va·pais. 1. a. A Native American people inhabiting western Arizona. b. A member of this people.

2. The Yuman language of the Yavapai.

yaw (yô) v. yawed, yaw·ing, yaws. — v. intr. 1. Nautical. To swerve off course momentarily or temporarily: The ship yawed as the heavy wave struck abeam. 2. To turn about the vertical axis. Used of an aircraft, a spacecraft, or a projectile. 3. To move unsteadily; weave. — v. tr. To cause to yaw. — n.

1. The act of yawing. 2. Extent of yawing, measured in degrees. [Perhaps of Scandinavian origin.]

yawl (yôl) n. Nautical. 1. A two-masted fore-and-aft-rigged sailing vessel similar to the ketch but having a smaller jigger mast stepped abaft the rudder. Also called dandy 2. A ship's small boat, crewed by rowers. [Dutch jol, possibly from Low German jolle.]

yawn (yôn) v. yawned, yawn·ing, yawns. — v. intr. 1. To open the mouth wide with a deep inhalation, usually involuntarily from drowsiness, fatigue, or boredom. 2. To open wide; gape: The chasm yawned at our feet. — v. tr. To utter wearily, while or as if while yawning: yawned his disapproval of the silly venture. — n. 1. The act of yawning. 2. A fatigued or bored response. 3. Informal. One that provokes yawns; a bore: The movie was nothing more than one big yawn. [Middle English yanen, alteration of yonen, yenen, from Old English geonian.] —yawn'er n.

yawn·ing (yô'nĭng) adj. Gaping open; cavernous: a yawning abyss.
—yawn'ing·ly adv.

yawp also yaup (yôp) v. intr. yawped also yauped, yawp·ing also yaup·ing, yawps also yaups. 1. To utter a sharp cry; yelp. 2. To talk loudly, raucously, or coarsely. — n. 1. A bark; a yelp. 2. Loud or coarse talk or utterance: "I sound my barbaric yawp over the roofs of the world" (Walt Whitman). [Middle English yolpen, possible variant of yelpen. See YELP.] —yawp'er n.

yaws (yôz) pl.n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). A highly contagious tropical disease that chiefly affects children, caused by the spirochete Treponema pertenue and characterized by raspberrylike sores, especially on the hands, feet, and face. Also called frambesia [From American Spanish yaya, sore, from Carib yaya, disease.]

y-axis (wī'āk'sīs) n. pl. y-axes (wī'āk'sēz). Mathematics. 1. The vertical axis of a two-dimensional Cartesian coordinate system. 2. One of three axes in a three-dimensional Cartesian coordinate system.

Yazd (yāzd) A city of central Iran south-southeast of Tehran. Dating from the fifth century B.C., it is a textile and carpet-weaving center. Population, 193,000.

Ya-zoo (yā-zōō', yāz'ōō) A river, 302.5 km (188 mi) long, of west-central Mississippi flowing generally southwest to the Mississippi River above Vicksburg.

Yb The symbol for the element ytterbium.

YB abbr. Yearbook.

Y-chro·mo·some (wī'krō'mə-sōm') n. The sex chromosome associated with male characteristics, occurring with one X-chromosome in the male sex-chromosome pair.

y·clept or y·cleped (ī-klēpt', ī-klēpt') v. A past participle of clepe. [Middle English icleped, from Old English geclepod, past participle of gecleopian, to call : ge-, participial pref.; see kom in Appendix + cleopian, to call.]

yd abbr. Yard (measurement).

ye¹ (thē) def.art. Archaic. The. [Misreading of ye, from Middle English e, spelling of the, the (using the letter thorn).]

ye² (yē) pron. 1. (used with a pl. verb). Archaic. You. 2. (used with a sing. verb). Archaic. You. [Middle English, from Old English gē. See yu- in Appendix.]

yea (yā) adv. 1. Yes; aye. 2. Indeed; truly: They have spoken, yea, shouted their reply. — n. 1. An affirmative statement or vote. 2. One who votes affirmatively. [Middle English, from Old English gēa. See i- in Appendix.]

yeah (yē'ə, yā'ə, yā-) adv. Informal. Yes. [Variant of YEA.]

yea·n (yēn) v. yeaned, yea·ning, yea·ns. — v. intr. To bear young. Used of sheep and goats. — v. tr. To give birth to; bear. Used of sheep and goats. [Middle English iyenen, yenen, from Old English geēanian* : ge-, verb pref.; see YCLEPT + ēanian, to bear young.]

yea·ling (yēn'liŋ) n. The young of a sheep or goat; a lamb or kid. — adj. Newly born; infant.

year (yîr) n. Abbr. yr., y. 1. a. The period of time during which the earth completes a single revolution around the sun, consisting of 365 days, 5 hours, 49 minutes, and 12 seconds of mean solar time. In the Gregorian calendar the year begins on January 1 and ends on December 31 and is divided into 12 months, 52 weeks, and 365 or 366 days. Also called calendar year b. A period approximately equal to a year in other calendars. c. A period of approximately the duration of a calendar year: We were married a year ago. 2. A sidereal year. 3. A solar year. 4. A period equal to the calendar year but beginning on a different date: a tax-reckoning year; a farming year. 5. A specific period of time, usually shorter than 12 months, devoted to a special activity: the academic year. 6. years. Age, especially old age: I'm feeling my years. 7. years. An indefinitely long period of time: it's been years since we saw her. [Middle English yere, from Old English gēar. See yēr- in Appendix.]

year-book (yâr'bōōk') n. Abbr. YB 1. A documentary, memorial, or historical book published every year, containing information about the previous year. 2. A usually bound publication compiled by the graduating class of a school or college, recording the year's events and typically containing photographs of students and faculty.

Yeard·ley (yârd'lē), Sir George. 1587?-1627. English colonial administrator who as governor of Virginia (1619-1621 and 1626-1627) convoked the first representative assembly in the New World (1619).

year-end also year·end (yâr'ënd') n. The end of a year. — adj. Occurring or done at the end of the year: a year-end audit.

year·ling (yâr'lıng) n. 1. An animal that is one year old or has not completed its second year. 2. A thoroughbred racehorse one year old dating from January 1 of the year in which it was foaled. — adj. Being one year old.

year·long (yâr'lông', -lông') adj. Lasting one year.

year·ly (yâr'lē) adj. Occurring once a year or every year; annual. — adv. Once a year; annually. — n. pl. year·lies. A publication issued once a year.

yearn (yûrn) v. intr. yearned, yearn·ing, yearns. 1. To have a strong, often melancholy desire. 2. To feel deep pity, sympathy, or tenderness: yearned over the poor child's fate. [Middle English yernen, from Old English geornan, giernan. See gher-² in Appendix.] — yearn'er n. — yearn'ing·ly adv.

SYNONYMS: yearn, long, pine, hanker, hunger, thirst. These verbs mean to have a strong desire for something. Yearn and long both stress earnest, heartfelt, often melancholy desire, as for the return of something lost or the attainment of something unfulfilled or beyond reach: "She yearned for reconciliation" (W.H. Hudson). "You don't really long for another country. You long for something in yourself that you don't have, or haven't been able to find" (John Cheever). Pine implies a lingering, often nostalgic desire that saps strength or spirit: "Like all sailors ashore, I at last pined for the billows" (Herman Melville). Hanker refers to a persistent or restless desire: "What business had he to be hankering after this girl at all!" (John Galsworthy). Hunger and thirst are applied to compelling desire likened to the need for food or drink: The child hungered for approval. Actors thirst for acclaim.

yearn·ing (yûr'nîng) n. A persistent, often wistful or melancholy desire; a longing: the yearnings for romance and adventure that are awakened by spring.

year-round (yîr'round') adj. Existing, active, or continuous throughout the year: a year-round resort.

yea-say·er (yā'sā'ər) n. 1. One who is confidently affirmative in attitude.

2. One who uncritically agrees.

yeast (yĕst) n. 1. a. Any of various unicellular fungi of the genus Saccharomyces, especially S. cerevisiae, reproducing by budding and from ascospores and capable of fermenting carbohydrates. b. Any of various similar fungi. 2. Froth consisting of yeast cells together with the carbon dioxide they produce in the process of fermentation, present in or added to fruit juices and other substances in the production of alcoholic beverages. 3. A commercial preparation in either powdered or compressed form, containing yeast cells and inert material such as meal and used especially as a leavening agent or as a dietary supplement.

4. Foam; froth. 5. An agent of ferment or activity: political agitators who are the yeast of revolution. See Synonyms at catalyst. — v. intr. yeast-ed, yeast-ing, yeasts. 1. To ferment. 2. To froth or foam. [Middle English yeest, from Old English gist. See yes- in Appendix.]

yeast-y (yĕ'stē) adj. yeast-i-er, yeast-i-est. 1. Of, similar to, or containing yeast: a yeasty froth; yeasty bread dough; a yeasty home-brewed beer. 2. Causing or characterized by unrest or agitation; turbulent: the yeasty days before the new government was established. 3. Frothy; frivolous: a yeasty comedy. 4. Full of productivity or vitality; exuberantly creative. — yeast'i-ly adv. — yeast'i-ness n.

Yeats (yāts), William Butler. 1865-1939. Irish writer who is considered among the greatest poets of the 20th century. A founder of the Irish National Theatre Company at the Abbey Theatre, Dublin, he wrote many short plays, including The Countess Cathleen (1892). His poetry, published in collections such as The Winding Stair (1929), ranges from early love lyrics to the complex symbolist works of his later years. He won the 1923 Nobel Prize for literature.

—Yeats'i-an adj.

yech or yecch (yĕKH, yŭKH, yĕk) interj. Used to express contempt or disgust. [Imitative.]

yegg (yĕg) n. Slang. A thief, especially a burglar or safecracker. [Origin unknown.]

yel. abbr. Color. Yellow.

Ye-lets (yĕ-lĕts', yĭ-lyĕts') A city of western Russia east of Orel. It is a rail junction and manufacturing center. Population, 116,000.

yell (yĕl) v. yelled, yell-ing, yells. — v. intr. To cry out loudly, as in pain, fright, surprise, or enthusiasm. — v. tr. To utter or express with a loud cry; shout. See Synonyms at shout. — n. 1. A loud cry; a shout. 2. A rhythmic cheer uttered or chanted in unison by a group: a college yell. [Middle English yellen, from Old English giellan, gellan. See ghel-¹ in Appendix.] —yell/er n.

yel·low (yěł'ō) n. 1. a. Abbr. yel. Color. The hue of that portion of the visible spectrum lying between orange and green, evoked in the human observer by radiant energy with wavelengths of approximately 570 to 590 nanometers; any of a group of colors of a hue resembling that of ripe lemons and varying in lightness and saturation; one of the subtractive primaries; one of the psychological primary hues. b. A pigment or dye having this hue. c. Something that has this hue.

2. Chiefly Southern U.S. The yolk of an egg. 3. Western U.S. Gold. Used formerly by prospectors. 4. yellows. Any of various plant diseases usually caused by fungi of the genus Fusarium or viruses of the genus Chlorogenus and characterized by yellow or yellowish discoloration. — adj. yel·low·er, yel·low·est.

1. Color. Of the color yellow. 2. a. Having a yellow-brown skin color.

b. Offensive. Of or being a person of Asian origin. 3. Slang. Cowardly. — v. tr. intr. yel·lowed, yel·low·ing, yel·lows. To make or become yellow: documents that had been yellowed by age; clouds that yellow in the evening light. [Middle English yellow, from Old English geolu. See ghel-² in Appendix.]

—yel/low·ness n.

yel·low·bel·lied (yěł'ō-běł'ēd) adj. 1. Having a belly that is yellow or yellowish. Used of certain birds, for example. 2. Slang. Cowardly. —yel/low·bel/ly n.

yellow-bellied sapsucker (yěł'ō-běł'ēd sǎp'sŭk'ər) n. A showy sapsucker (Sphyrapicus varius) having a yellowish belly and in the male a bright scarlet crown and throat.

yellow bile (yěł'ō bīl) n. Archaic. Cholera.

yellow birch (yěł'ō būrch) n. A North American deciduous tree (Betula alleghaniensis) having aromatic twigs, yellowish bark that peels off in thin flakes, and hard, light-colored wood used for furniture and flooring.

yel·low·bird (yěł'ō-bŭrd') n. Any of various yellow or mostly yellow birds, such as the goldfinch or the yellow warbler.

yel·low·breast·ed chat (yěł'ō-brěs'tīd chăt) n. A large North American warbler (Icteria virens) having a bright yellow throat and breast, noted for its highly variable song.

yel·low·cake (yěł'ō-kāk') n. The concentrated oxide of uranium formed in the milling of uranium ore.

yel·low·dog contract (yěł'ō-dôg' kŏn'trăkt', -dŏg') n. An employer-employee contract, no longer legal, by which the employee agrees not to join a union while employed.

yellow enzyme (yěł'ō ěn'zīm) n. Any of various flavoproteins that take part in oxidation-reduction.

yellow fever (yě'l'ō fē'vər) n. An infectious tropical disease caused by an arbovirus transmitted by mosquitoes of the genera Aedes, especially A. aegypti, and Haemagogus and characterized by high fever, jaundice, and dark-colored vomit resulting from gastrointestinal hemorrhaging. Also called yellow jack yel·low·fe·ver mosquito (yě'l'ō-fē'vər mə-skē'tō) n. See aedes.

yel·low·fin tuna (yě'l'ō-fīn' tōō'nə) n. A commercially important tuna (Thunnus albacares) with bright yellow fins and many scales, found in warm parts of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans.

yel·low·green alga (yě'l'ō-grēn' əl'gə) n. An alga of the division Chryso-phyta, plastids of which contain golden yellow pigments that mask the chlorophyll.

yel·low·ham·mer (yě'l'ō-hām'ər) n. 1. A small bunting (Emberiza citrinella) of Europe and western Asia having bright yellow plumage on the head, neck, and breast. 2. See yellow-shafted flicker. [By folk etymology from earlier yelambre, perhaps from Middle English yelwambre* : yellow, yellow; see YELLOW + Old English amore, a kind of bird.]

yel·low·ish (yě'l'ō-īsh) adj. Color. Somewhat yellow; tinged with yellow.
—yel'low·ish·ness n.

yellow jack (yě'l'ō jăk) n. 1. A yellowish-silver carangid food fish (Caranx bartholomaei) of western Atlantic and Caribbean waters. 2. Nautical. A yellow flag hoisted on a ship to request pratique or warn of disease on board. 3. See yellow fever.

yellow jacket (yě'l'ō jăk'it) n. Any of several small social wasps of the family Vespidae, having yellow and black markings and usually making nests in the ground or within the hollows of trees.

yellow jessamine (yě'l'ō jēs'ə-mīn) n. See Carolina jasmine.

yellow journalism (yě'l'ō jūr'nə-līz'əm) n. Journalism that exploits, distorts, or exaggerates the news to create sensations and attract readers. [From the use of yellow ink in printing “Yellow Kid,” a cartoon strip in the New York World, a newspaper noted for sensationalism.]

Yel·low·knife (yě'l'ō-nīf') The capital of Northwest Territories, Canada, on the northern shore of Great Slave Lake. It was founded in 1935 after the discovery of gold and silver deposits in the area and became the provincial capital in 1967. Population, 9,483.

yel·low·legs (yě'l'ō-lěgz') n. pl. yellowlegs. Either of two North American wading birds (Tringa melanoleuca or T. flavipes) having yellow legs and a long narrow bill.

yellow ocher (yě'l'ō ō'kər) n. 1. A yellow pigment, usually containing limonite. 2. Color. A moderate orange with yellow overtones.

yellow pages or Yellow Pages (yě'l'ō pā'jiz) pl.n. A volume or section of a telephone directory that lists businesses, services, or products alphabetically according to field. [So called because they are usually printed on yellow paper.]

yellow perch (yě'l'ō pûrch) n. A North American perch (Perca flavescens) having golden yellow sides marked by broad, dark vertical bars, much valued as a food and game fish.

yellow peril or Yellow Peril (yě'l'ō pěr'əl) n. Offensive. Threatened expansion of Asian populations as magnified in the Western imagination.

yellow pine (yě'l'ō pīn) n. 1. See shortleaf pine. 2. See longleaf pine. 3. The wood of either of these pines.

yellow poplar (yě'l'ō pöp'lər) n. The tulip tree.

yellow rain (yě'l'ō rān) n. A powdery, poisonous, yellow substance reported as dropping from the air in southeast Asia and found to be the excrement of wild honeybees contaminated by a fungal toxin.

Yellow River (yě'l'ō rīv'ər) See Huang He.

Yellow Sea (yě'l'ō sē) An arm of the Pacific Ocean between the Chinese mainland and the Korean Peninsula. It connects with the East China Sea to the south.

yel·low·shaft·ed flicker (yě'l'ō-shăf'tid flīk'ər) n. A large woodpecker (Colaptes auratus) of eastern North America, having a black crescent on the breast, a conspicuous white rump, and yellow shafts in the wing and tail feathers. Also called yellowhammer yellow sheet (yě'l'ō shēt) n. Slang. A criminal record.

yellow spot (yě'l'ō spöt) n. See macula lutea.

Yel·low·stone (yě'l'ō-stōn') A river, about 1,080 km (671 mi) long, of northwest Wyoming and southern and eastern Montana. It flows northward through Yellowstone Lake and Yellowstone National Park then east and northeast to the Missouri River. The park includes numerous geysers, including Old Faithful.

yel·low·tail (yě'l'ō-tāl') n. 1. Any of several large marine game fishes of the genus Seriola, having a yellow or yellowish tail, such as S. dorsalis, of coastal waters of southern California and Mexico. 2. Any of several other fishes having a yellowish tail, as the silver perch.

yel·low·throat (yě'l'ō-thrōt') n. Any of several small New World warblers of the genus Geothlypis, especially G. trichas, having a brownish back, yellow throat, and, in the male, a black facial mask.

yel·low·throat·ed vireo (yě'l'ō-thrō'tid vîr'ē-ō') n. A vireo (Vireo flavifrons) of eastern North America, having a green back, bright yellow throat and breast, and a pair of white bars on each wing.

yellow-throated warbler (yě'l'ō-thrō'tid wôr'blər) n. A warbler (Dendroica dominica) of the southern United States, having a gray back, yellow throat and breast, and a white belly.

yellow warbler (yě'l'ō wōr'blər) n. A small New World warbler (Dendroica petechia) having mostly yellow plumage with chestnut streaks along the sides.

yel·low·weed (yě'l'ō-wēd') n. Any of various plants, such as the dyer's rocket, having yellow flowers.

yel·low·wood (yě'l'ō-wōd') n. 1. a. A deciduous tree (Cladrastis lutea) of the southeast United States, having pinnately compound leaves, drooping clusters of white flowers, and yellow wood yielding a yellow dye. b. The wood of this tree. 2. Any of various trees having yellow wood.

yel·low·y (yě'l'ō-ē) adj. Somewhat yellow; yellowish.

yelp (yělp) v. yelped, yelp·ing, yelps. — v. intr. To utter a short, sharp bark or cry: excited dogs yelping; yelped in pain when the bee stung. — v. tr. To utter by yelping. — n. A short, sharp cry or bark. [Middle English yelpen, to cry aloud, from Old English gelpan, gielpan, to boast. See ghel-¹ in Appendix.]
—yelp'er n.

Yel·tsin (yělt'sin), Boris Nikolayevich. Born 1931. Russian political leader who was elected president of the republic of Russia in 1991.

Yem·en (yěm'ən, yā'mən) A country of southwest Asia at the southern tip of the Arabian peninsula. It was formed when Yemen (or North Yemen) merged with Southern Yemen in May 1990. Sana is the capital and Aden the largest city. Population, 8,959,000. —Yem/en·ite', Yem/e·ni (-ə-nē) adj. & n.

yen¹ (yěn) n. A strong desire or inclination; a yearning or craving. — v. intr. yenned, yen·ning, yens. To have a strong desire or inclination; yearn. [Cantonese yem.]

yen² (yěn) n. pl. yen. Abbr. y, Y A basic unit of currency in Japan. See Table at currency. [Japanese en, from Chinese (Mandarin) yuán, dollar.]

Yen·a·ki·ye·vo (yěn-ə-kē'yə-və) A city of southeast Ukraine. It is an industrial suburb of Donetsk. Population, 117,000.

Yen Hsi·shan (yěn' shē'shän', yoen'), 1883-1960. Chinese general who supported Chiang Kai-shek (1927-1930) and opposed the Japanese forces in northern China (1935-1937).

Ye·ni·sei (yěn'ī-sā', yī-nī-syā') A river of central Russia flowing about 4,023 km (2,500 mi) westward and generally north to the Kara Sea through Yenisei Bay, a long estuary.

yen·ta (yěn'tə) n. Slang. A person, especially a woman, who is regarded as meddling or gossipy. [Yiddish yente, back-formation from the woman's name Yente, alteration of Yentl, from Old Italian Gentile, from gentile, amiable, high-born, from Latin gentilis, of the same clan. See GENTLE.]

yeo. abbr. Yeoman; yeomanry.

yeo·man (yō'mən) n. Abbr. yeo., Y 1. a. An attendant, a servant, or a lesser official in a royal or noble household. b. A yeoman of the guard. 2. A petty officer performing chiefly clerical duties in the U.S. Navy. 3. An assistant or other subordinate, as of a sheriff. 4. A diligent, dependable worker. 5. A farmer who cultivates his own land, especially a member of a former class of small freeholding farmers in England. — adj. 1. Of, relating to, or ranking as a yeoman. 2. Sturdy, staunch, or workmanlike: did yeoman service. [Middle English yoman, perhaps from Old English gēaman*, from Old Frisian gāman, villager.]

yeoman of the guard (yō'mən ūv thē gārd) n. pl. yeomen of the guard.

A member of a ceremonial guard attending the British sovereign and royal family and also guarding the Tower of London.

yeo·man·ry (yō'mən-rē) n. pl. yeo·man·ries. 1. The class of yeomen; small freeholding farmers. 2. Abbr. yeo. A British volunteer cavalry force organized in 1761 to serve as a home guard and later incorporated into the Territorial Army.

yep (yěp) adv. Informal. Yes. [Alteration of YES.]

yer·ba bue·na (yâr'bə bwā'nə, yûr'bə) n. An aromatic perennial herb (Satureja douglasii) of the mint family, having crenate opposite leaves and white or purplish axillary flowers. [Spanish : yerba, herb + buena, good.]

yerba ma·té (yâr'bə mä'tā, mä-tā') n. See maté (n., sense 2). [American Spanish : yerba, herb + mate, maté.]

yerba san·ta (yâr'bə sän'tə) n. Any of various western North American evergreen shrubs of the genus Eriodictyon, having purple or white flowers borne in coiled cymes and a funnel-shaped corolla. [Spanish : yerba, herb + santa, holy.]

Ye·re·van also E·re·van or E·ri·van (yě'rī-vän') The capital of Armenia, in the west-central part of the country. An ancient city founded on the site of a fortress established in the eighth century B.C., it was strategically important as a trade center on caravan routes linking Transcaucasia and India after the seventh century A.D. Population, 1,133,000.

Yer·kes (yûr'kēz), Charles Tyson. 1837-1905. American financier who owned the syndicate of companies that developed the Chicago transit system.

Yer·kes (yûr'kēz), Robert Mearns. 1876-1956. American psychobiologist who studied the intelligence of humans and primates.

Yerk·ish (yûr'kîsh) n. An artificial language using geometric forms to represent words, created for experimental communication between chimpanzees and human beings. [After Robert Mearns YERKES.]

yer·sin·i·a (yər-sîn'ē-ə) n. pl. yer·sin·i·ae (-ē-ē'). A gram-negative bacillus of the genus Yersinia that causes various animal diseases. [From New Latin Yersinia, genus name, after Alexandre Émile Jean Yersin (1863-1943), Swiss-born French bacteriologist.]

yer·sin·i·o·sis (yər-sîn'ē-ō'sîs) n. An intestinal disease with symptoms resembling those of appendicitis, occurring chiefly in children and young adults and caused by a species of yersinia (Yersinia enterocolitica) that infects human beings and animals.

yes (yĕs) adv. It is so; as you say or ask. Used to express affirmation, agreement, positive confirmation, or consent. — n. pl. yes-es. 1. An affirmative or consenting reply. 2. An affirmative vote or voter. — v. tr. yessed, yes-sing, yes-es. To give an affirmative reply to. [Middle English, from Old English gĕse, so be it! : probably gĕa, so; see i- in Appendix + sĕe, may it be so; see es- in Appendix.]

WORD HISTORY: The word yes is a good example of how an ordinary and frequently used word can have a complex etymology. We can trace yes back to two Indo-European roots, ·i-, a pronominal stem, and ·es-, “to be.” From two extended forms of ·i-, ·yām and ·yāi, came the prehistoric Common Germanic forms ·jā and jai, which gave us Old English geā, an affirmative particle, the source of Modern English yea. The Indo-European root ·es- is the source of our forms am and is. From the stem ·sĭ- used to make verb forms in the optative mood, a mood used to express a wish, came the Germanic form ·sijai-, which gave us Old English sĕe, “may it be so.” This form, unlike the sources of am and is, died out, but before disappearing it had combined with Old English gĕa to form the compound gĕse, the ancestor of our word yes. This sĕe was destined to have even more of a triumph. Until around 1600 yea was used to respond to positive expressions, whereas yes was used to respond to negative expressions. After that time yes became a response to both positive and negative expressions, yea surviving primarily in voice votes.

Ye-se-nin or E-se-nin (yĭ-sā'nyĭn, -syĕ'-), Sergei Aleksandrov. 1895-1925. Russian poet whose works lament the passing of rural life in Russia.

ye-shi-va or ye-shi-vah (yĕ-shĕ'və) n. Judaism. 1. An institute of learning where students study the Talmud. 2. An elementary or secondary school with a curriculum that includes religion and culture as well as general education. [Hebrew yĕšĭbā, from yāšab, to sit down.]

yes man (yĕs măn) n. Informal. One who slavishly agrees with a superior; a sycophant.

yester- pref. Yesterday: yestermorning. [Middle English, from Old English geostran. See dhgh(y)es- in Appendix.]

yes-ter-day (yĕs'tər-dā', -dĕ) n. 1. The day before the present day. 2. Also yesterdays. Time in the past, especially the recent past. — adv. 1. On the day before the present day. 2. A short while ago. [Middle English, from Old English geostran dæg : geostran, yesterday; see YESTER- + dæg, day; see DAY.]

yes-ter-eve-ning (yĕs'tər-ĕv'nĭng) also yes-ter-eve (-ĕv') or yes-ter-e-ven (-ĕ'vən) n. The evening of yesterday. — yes'ter-eve'ning adv.

yes-ter-morn-ing (yĕs'tər-môr'nĭng) also yes-ter-morn (-môr'n') n. Yesterday morning. — yes'ter-morn'ing adv.

yes-ter-night (yēs'tər-nīt') n. Last night. —yes'ter-night' adv.

yes-ter-year (yēs'tər-yîr') n. 1. The year before the present year. 2. Time past; yore. —yes'ter-year' adv.

yes-treen (yēs-trēn') n. Scots. Yesterday evening.

yet (yēt) adv. 1. At this time; for the present: isn't ready yet. 2. Up to a specified time; thus far: The end had not yet come. 3. At a future time; eventually: may yet change his mind. 4. Besides; in addition: returned for yet another helping. 5. Still more; even a yet sadder tale. 6. Nevertheless: young yet wise. — conj. And despite this; nevertheless: She said she would be late, yet she arrived on time.

—idiom. as yet. Up to the present time; up to now. [Middle English, from Old English gīet. See i- in Appendix.]

USAGE NOTE: In formal style yet in the sense “up to now” requires that the accompanying verb be in the present perfect, rather than in the simple past: He hasn't started yet, not He didn't start yet.

ye-ti (yēt'ē) n. pl. ye-tis. See abominable snowman. [Alteration of Tibetan miti: mi, person + ti, a kind of animal.]

Yev-tu-shen-ko (yēv'tə-shēng'kō, yīf-tōō-shēn'kə), Yevgeny Aleksandrovich. Born 1933. Soviet antiestablishment poet. Much of his work, including “Babi Yar” (1961) and “The Heirs of Stalin” (1962), is critical of Soviet government and society.

yew (yoō) n. 1. Any of several poisonous evergreen trees or shrubs of the genus Taxus, having scarlet cup-shaped seeds and flat needles that are dark green above and yellowish below. 2. The wood of any of these trees, especially the durable, fine-grained wood of the Old World species Taxus baccata, used in cabinetmaking and for archery bows. [Middle English, from Old English īw.]

Ygg-dra-sil also Yg-dra-sil (ig'drə-sīl, üg'-) n. Mythology. The great ash tree that holds together earth, heaven, and hell by its roots and branches in Norse mythology.

YHWH also YHVH or JHVH or JHWH (yoōd'hä'vāv'hä', yä'wā, yä'wě) n.

The Hebrew Tetragrammaton representing the name of God.

yid (yīd) n. Offensive Slang. Used as a disparaging term for a Jew. [Yiddish, from Middle High German jüde. See YIDDISH.]

Yid-dish (yīd'ish) n. The language historically of Ashkenazic Jews of Central and Eastern Europe, resulting from a fusion of elements derived principally from medieval German dialects and secondarily from Hebrew and Aramaic, various Slavic languages, and Old French and Old Italian. [Yiddish yidish, Jewish, Yid-dish, from Middle High German jüdisch, Jewish, from jude, jüde, Jew, from Old High German judo, from Latin Jūdaeus. See JEW.] —Yid'dish adj.

—Yid'dish-ism n.

yield (yēld) v. yield·ed, yield·ing, yields. — v. tr. 1. a. To give forth by or as if by a natural process, especially by cultivation: a field that yields many bushels of corn. b. To furnish as return for effort or investment; be productive of: an investment that yields high percentages. 2. a. To give over possession of, as in deference or defeat; surrender. b. To give up (an advantage, for example) to another; concede. — v. intr. 1. a. To give forth a natural product; be productive. b. To produce a return for effort or investment: bonds that yield well. 2. a. To give up, as in defeat; surrender or submit. b. To give way to pressure or force: The door yielded to a gentle push. c. To give way to argument, persuasion, influence, or entreaty: The child pleaded, but the parents wouldn't yield. d. To give place, as to one that is superior: She yields to no one in her condemnation of violence. — n. 1. a. An amount yielded or produced; a product. b. A profit obtained from an investment; a return. 2. The energy released by an explosion, especially by a nuclear explosion, expressed in units of weight of TNT required to produce an equivalent release: The atomic bomb dropped on Hiroshima had a yield of 20 kilotons. [Middle English yielden, from Old English geldan, to pay.]
—yield'er n.

SYNONYMS: yield, relent, bow, defer, submit, capitulate, succumb. These verbs all mean to give in to what one can no longer oppose or resist. Yield has the widest application: yield to an enemy; wouldn't yield to reason; yielded to desire. “The child... soon yielded to the drowsiness” (Charles Dickens). To relent is to moderate the harshness or severity of an attitude or decision with respect to another over whom one has authority or influence: “The captain at last relented, and told him that he might make himself at home” (Herman Melville). Bow suggests giving way in defeat or through courtesy: “Bow and accept the end/Of a love” (Robert Frost). To defer is to yield out of respect or in recognition of another's authority, knowledge, or judgment: “Philip... had the good sense to defer to the long experience and the wisdom of his father” (William Hickling Prescott). Submit implies giving way out of necessity, as after futile or unsuccessful resistance. “What must the King do now? Must he submit?” (Shakespeare). Capitulate implies surrender to pressure, force, compulsion, or inevitability: “I will be conquered; I will not capitulate [to illness]” (Samuel Johnson). Succumb strongly suggests submission to something overpowering or overwhelming: “I didn't succumb without a struggle to my uncle's allurements” (H.G. Wells). See also Synonyms at produce relinquish yield·ing (yēl'dīng) adj. Inclined to give way to pressure, argument, or influence; docile. —yield'ing·ly adv. —yield'ing·ness n.

yin (yīn) n. The passive, female cosmic principle in Chinese dualistic philosophy. [Chinese (Mandarin) yīn, moon, shade, femininity.]

Yin-chuan also Yin-chwan (yĭn'chwän') A city of north-central China west-southwest of Beijing. In the 13th century Marco Polo visited the city, which is now the capital of Ningxia Hui province. Population, 200,000.

yip (yĭp) n. A sharp, high-pitched bark; a yelp. — v. intr. yipped, yip-ping, yips. To emit a sharp, high-pitched bark; yelp. [Perhaps Middle English yippe, a cheeping sound, from yippen, to cheep, of imitative origin.]

yipe (yĭp) also yipes (yĭps) interj. Informal. Used to express surprise, fear, or dismay.

yip-pee (yĭp'ē) interj. Informal. Used to express joy or elation.

-yl suff. An organic acid radical: carbonyl. [French -yle, from Greek hulē, wood, matter.]

y-lang-y-lang or i-lang-i-lang (ē'läng-ē'läng) n. 1. A tropical Asian tree (Cananga odorata) having fragrant greenish-yellow flowers that yield an oil used in perfumery. 2. An oil or a perfume obtained from the flowers of this tree.

[Tagalog ilang-ilang.]

y-lem (ī'ləm) n. A form of matter hypothesized by proponents of the big bang theory to have existed before the formation of the chemical elements. [Middle English, universal matter, from Old French ilem, from Medieval Latin hylem, accusative of hylē, matter, from Greek hulē.]

YMCA or Y.M.C.A. abbr. Young Men's Christian Association

YMHA or Y.M.H.A. abbr. Young Men's Hebrew Association.

yo (yō) interj. Slang. Used as a greeting or to attract someone's attention.

job (yōb) n. Chiefly British. A rowdy, destructive youth; a hooligan or ruffian. [Alteration of BOY (spelled backward).]

YOB abbr. Year of birth.

yock (yök, yŭk) Slang. v. intr. yocked, yock-ing, yocks. To laugh or joke, especially boisterously. — n. A loud laugh or joke: "It contains a few yocks, but the humor... never emerges" (Variety). [Imitative.]

yo-del (yōd'l) Music. v. yo-deled or yo-delled, yo-del-ing or yo-del-ling, yo-dels or yo-dels. — v. intr. To sing so that the voice fluctuates rapidly between the normal chest voice and a falsetto. — v. tr. To sing (a song) by yodeling. — n. A song or cry that is yodeled. [German jodeln, from German dialectal jo, exclamation of delight, of imitative origin.] — yo'del-er n.

yodh (yōd, yōd) n. The tenth letter of the Hebrew alphabet. [Hebrew yōd, from yād, hand.]

yo-ga (yō'gə) n. 1. Also Yoga. A Hindu discipline aimed at training the consciousness for a state of perfect spiritual insight and tranquillity. 2. A system of exercises practiced as part of this discipline to promote control of the body and mind. [Hindi, from Sanskrit yogah, union, joining. See yeug- in Appendix.]

—yo'gic (-gĭk) adj.

yogh (yōKH) n. The Middle English letter ȝ. [Middle English, possibly from Old English īw, ēoh, yew.]

yo-ghurt or yo-ghourt (yō'gərt) n. Variants of yogurt.

yo-gi (yō'gē) n. pl. yo-gis. One who practices yoga. [Hindi, from Sanskrit yogī, from yogah, union. See YOGA.]

yo-gurt also yo-ghurt or yo-ghourt (yō'gərt) n. A custardlike food with a tart flavor, prepared from milk curdled by bacteria, especially Lactobacillus bulgaricus and Streptococcus thermophilus, and often sweetened or flavored with fruit. [Turkish yoğurt.]

Yog·ya·kar·ta (yōg'yə-kär'tə, jōk'jä-, jōk'yə-) See Jogjakarta.

yo·him·bine (yō-hīm'bēn') n. A poisonous alkaloid, C₂₁H₂₆N₂O₃, derived from the bark of a tree, Corynanthe yohimbe, and formerly used as an aphrodisiac, a local anesthetic, and a mydriatic. [New Latin yohimbe, specific epithet of Corynanthe yohimbe, species of tree from which it is derived (of Cameroonian Bantu origin; akin to Duala djombe) + -INE².]

yoicks (yoiks) also hoicks (hoiks) interj. Used as a hunting cry to urge hounds after a fox.

yoke (yōk) n. 1. a. A crossbar with two U-shaped pieces that encircle the necks of a pair of oxen or other draft animals working together. b. pl. yoke or yokes. A pair of draft animals, such as oxen, joined by a yoke. See Synonyms at couple. c. A bar used with a double harness to connect the collar of each horse to the pole of a wagon or coach. 2. A frame designed to be carried across a person's shoulders with equal loads suspended from each end. 3. Nautical. A crossbar on a ship's rudder to which the steering cables are connected. 4. A clamp or vise that holds a machine part in place or controls its movement or that holds two such parts together. 5. A piece of a garment that is closely fitted, either around the neck and shoulders or at the hips, and from which an unfitted or gathered part of the garment is hung. 6. Something that connects or joins together; a bond or tie. 7. Electronics. A series of two or more magnetic recording heads fastened securely together for playing or recording on more than one track simultaneously. 8. a. Any of various emblems of subjugation, such as a structure made of two upright spears with a third laid across them, under which conquered enemies of ancient Rome were forced to march in subjection. b. The condition of being subjugated by or as if by a conqueror; subjugation or bondage: 14th-century Russia under the Tartar yoke; the yoke of drug addiction. — v. yoked, yok-ing, yokes. — v. tr. 1. To fit or join with a yoke. 2. a. To harness a draft animal to. b. To harness (a draft animal) to a vehicle or an implement. 3. To join securely as if with a yoke; bind: partners who were yoked together for life. 4. To force into heavy labor, bondage, or subjugation. — v. intr. To become joined securely. [Middle English, from Old English geoc. See yeug- in Appendix.]

yo·kel (yō'kəl) n. A rustic; a bumpkin. [Origin unknown.]

Yok-kai-chi (yō-kī'chē, yō'kā-ē'chē) A city of southern Honshu, Japan, on Ise Bay southwest of Nagoya. It is a manufacturing and shipping center. Population, 263,003.

Yo-ko-ha-ma (yō'kə-hä'mə, yō'kô-hä'mä) A city of southeast Honshu, Japan, on the western shore of Tokyo Bay. It was a small fishing village when Matthew Perry visited it in 1854 but was chosen as a site for foreign settlement in 1859 and grew rapidly thereafter. Almost entirely destroyed by an earthquake and fire in 1923, it was quickly rebuilt and modernized. The city is now a leading port and an industrial center. Population, 2,992,644.

Yo-ko-su-ka (yō'kə-sōō'kə, yō'kô-sōō'kä) A city of southeast Honshu, Japan, on Tokyo Bay. It is a naval base with shipyards and ironworks. Population, 427,087.

Yo-kuts (yō'küts) n. pl. Yokuts. 1. a. A group of Native American peoples formerly inhabiting the southern San Joaquin Valley and adjacent foothills of the Sierra Nevada, with present-day descendants in the same area. b. A member of this group. 2. Any or all of the languages of the Yokuts peoples.

yolk (yök) n. 1. a. The yellow, usually spherical portion of an egg of a bird or reptile, surrounded by the albumen and serving as nutriment for the developing young. b. A corresponding portion of the egg of other animals, consisting of protein and fat which serve as the primary source of nourishment for the early embryo and protoplasmic substances from which the embryo develops. 2. A greasy substance found in unprocessed sheep's wool. [Middle English yolke, from Old English geolca, from geolu, yellow. See YELLOW.] —yolk'y adj.

yolk sac (yök säk) n. A membranous sac attached to an embryo, providing early nourishment in the form of yolk in bony fishes, sharks, reptiles, birds, and primitive mammals and functioning as the circulatory system of the human embryo before internal circulation begins.

yolk stalk (yök stök) n. A narrow ductlike part that connects the yolk sac to the middle of the digestive tract of an embryo.

Yom Kip-pur (yôm' kîp'ər, yôm', yöm', yôm' kē-pöör') n. Judaism. A holy day observed on the tenth day of Tishri and marked by fasting and prayer for the atonement of sins. Also called Day of Atonement [Hebrew yôm kippûr : yôm, day + kippûr, atonement (from kippēr, to cover, atone).]

yon (yön) adv. & adj. Yonder. — pron. Regional. That one or those yonder. [Middle English, short for yond, yond; see YOND, and yonder, yonder; see YONDER. Pron., Middle English from Old English geon. See i- in Appendix.]

yond (yönd) adv. & adj. Archaic. Yonder. [Middle English, from Old English geond. See i- in Appendix.]

yon-der (yön'dər) adv. In or at that indicated place: the house over yonder. — adj. Being at an indicated distance, usually within sight: “Yonder hills,” he said, pointing. — pron. One that is at an indicated place, usually within sight. [Middle English, from yond, yond. See YOND.]

REGIONAL NOTE: The adverb yonder, from Old English geond, is not exclusively Southern but is more frequently used there than in any other region of the United States, and not only by older or uneducated speakers. Yonder is not merely a Southern synonym for there, which in the South tends to mean “only a few feet from the speaker.” Yonder carries with it an inherent sense of distance farther than “there” and is used if the person or thing indicated can be seen at all: the shed over yonder. Or it might be nearby but completely out of sight, as in the next room.

yo·ni (yō'nē) n. pl. yo·nis. Hinduism. A stylized vulva worshiped as a symbol of a goddess or Shakti. [Sanskrit yonih, womb, abode, source.]

Yon·kers (yōng'kərz) A city of southeast New York north of New York City. First inhabited by the Dutch in the mid-1600's, it is a residential and manufacturing center. Population, 188,082.

yoo-hoo (yōō'hōō') interj. Used to call someone at a distance or to gain someone's attention.

Yor·ba Lin·da (yôr'bə līn'də) A city of southern California southeast of Los Angeles. It is the site of the presidential library of Richard M. Nixon (dedicated 1990). Population, 52,422.

yore (yôr, yōr) n. Time long past: days of yore. [Middle English, long ago, time long past, from Old English gēara, geāra, long ago, from genitive pl. of gēar, year. See YEAR.]

York¹ Ruling house of England (1461-1485), including Edward IV, Edward V, and Richard III. During the Wars of the Roses its symbol was a white rose.
—York'ist adj. & n.

York² (yôrk) 1. A borough of northern England on the Ouse River east-northeast of Leeds. Originally a Celtic settlement, it was later held by Romans, Angles, Danes, and Normans. During the Middle Ages the city was a prosperous wool market and an educational center. Its archbishopric is second only to Canterbury in importance. Population, 101,600. 2. A city of southern Pennsylvania south-southeast of Harrisburg. Settled in 1735, it was the meeting place of the Continental Congress in 1777-1778 during the British occupation of Philadelphia. Population, 42,192.

York (yôrk), Alvin Cullum. Known as “Sergeant York.” 1887-1964. American World War I hero famed for his single-handed attack on a German post, during which he captured 132 of the enemy.

York, Cape. 1. The northernmost point of Australia, on Torres Strait at the tip of Cape York Peninsula. 2. A cape of northwest Greenland in northern Baffin Bay. It was used as an exploration base by Robert E. Peary, who discovered its famous iron meteorites.

Yorke Peninsula (yôrk pə-nĭn'syə-lə) A narrow peninsula of southern Australia bounded by Spencer Gulf.

York River (yôrk rĭv'ər) An estuary, about 64 km (40 mi) long, of eastern Virginia flowing southeast into Chesapeake Bay.

Yorkshire (yôrk'shîr, -shər) A historical region and former county of northern England. It was an important area during Roman times and later became part of the kingdom of Northumbria.

Yorkshire pudding (yôrk'shîr pööd'ĭng) n. A popoverlike quick bread served with roast beef, made by baking a batter of eggs, flour, and milk in the drippings of the beef. [After Yorkshire.]

Yorkshire terrier (yôrk'shîr tĕr'ē-ər) n. Any of a breed of toy terrier developed in Yorkshire and having a long, silky bluish-gray coat.

York-ton (yôrk'tən) A city of southeast Saskatchewan, Canada, northeast of Regina. It is a railroad junction and processing center in a farming region. Population, 15,339.

York-town (yôrk'toun') A village of southeast Virginia on the York River north of Newport News. It was the site of Cornwallis's surrender of the British forces (1781) in the American Revolution. During the Civil War Union troops occupied the town after a siege lasting from April to May 1862.

Yo·ru·ba (yô'rə-bə, yô'rōō-bä) n. pl. Yoruba or Yo·ru·bas. 1. A member of a West African people living chiefly in southwest Nigeria. 2. The South Central Niger-Congo language of this people. —Yo'ru·ban adj.

Yo·sem·i·te Valley (yō-sĕm'ĭ-tē vāl'ē) A valley of east-central California along the Merced River. It is surrounded by Yosemite National Park and includes many noted waterfalls, including Yosemite Falls, with a total drop of 739.6 m (2,425 ft).

Yo·shi·hi·to (yô'shĭ-hĕ'tō, yô'shĕ-hĕ'tō), 1879-1926. Emperor of Japan (1912-1926) whose reign was marked by World War I and Japan's increased international influence.

Yosh·kar·O·la (yəsh-kär'ə-lä') A city of west-central Russia northwest of Kazan. Founded in 1578 as a frontier outpost, it is a manufacturing center. Population, 231,000.

you (yō) pron. 1. Used to refer to the one or ones being addressed: I'll lend you the book. You shouldn't work so hard. Does she telephone you from San Francisco? See Regional note at you-all. 2. Used to refer to an indefinitely specified person; one: You can't win them all. [Middle English, from Old English ēow, dative and accusative of gē, ye, you. See yu- in Appendix.]

you-all (yōō'ôl') also y'all (yôl) pron. Chiefly Southern U.S. You. Used in addressing two or more people or referring to two or more people, one of whom is addressed.

REGIONAL NOTE: The single most famous feature of southern United States dialects is the pronoun you-all, probably heard more often in its variant y'all. You and you-all preserve the singular/plural distinction that English used to have in thou/you. You-all functions with perfect grammatical regularity as a second person plural pronoun, taking its own possessive you-all's (or less frequently, your-all's, where both parts of the word are inflected for possession): You-all's voices sound alike. Southerners do not, as is sometimes believed, use you-all or y'all for both singular and plural you. A single person may only be addressed as you-all if the speaker implies in the reference other persons not present: Did you-all [you and others] have dinner yet?

you'd (yōöd) 1. You had. 2. You would.

you'll (yōol, yool; yəl when unstressed) 1. You will. 2. You shall.

young (yŭng) adj. young-er, young-est. 1. Being in an early period of life, development, or growth. 2. Newly begun or formed; not advanced: The evening is still young. 3. Of, belonging to, or suggestive of youth or early life: He is young for his age. 4. Vigorous or fresh; youthful. 5. Lacking experience; immature: a young hand at plowing. 6. Being the junior of two people having the same name. 7. Geology. Being of an early stage in a geologic cycle. Used of bodies of water and land formations. — n. 1. Young persons considered as a group; youth: entertainment for the young. 2. Offspring; brood: a lioness with her young. —idiom. with young. Pregnant. [Middle English yong, from Old English geong. See yeu- in Appendix.] —young'ness n.

SYNONYMS: young, youthful, adolescent, immature, juvenile, puerile, green. These adjectives are compared as they mean of, relating to, characteristic of, or being in an early period of growth or development. Young is the most general of the terms: a young child. Youthful suggests characteristics, such as enthusiasm, freshness, or energy, that are associated with youth: youthful ardor. Adolescent specifically implies the characteristics of those in the period between childhood and maturity: adolescent insecurity. Immature applies to what is not yet fully grown or developed; the term sometimes suggests that someone falls short of an expected level of maturity: an emotionally immature adult. Juvenile connotes immaturity, often childishness: the juvenile pranks of the conventioners. Puerile is used derogatorily to suggest silliness, foolishness, or infantilism: a puerile joke. Green implies lack of training or experience and sometimes callowness: The crew couldn't deal with the emergency. They were all green recruits.

Young (yŭng), Andrew Jackson, Jr. Born 1932. American diplomat and politician. Director of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (1964-1970), he later served as U.S. ambassador to the United Nations (1977-1979) and as mayor of Atlanta (1981-1989).

Young (yŭng), Brigham. 1801-1877. American religious leader who directed the Mormon Church after the assassination (1844) of its founder, Joseph Smith. He led an exodus of the Mormons from their troubled settlement in Illinois to the site of present-day Salt Lake City, Utah, where they established a permanent home for the church (1847).

Young (yŭng), Denton True. Known as “Cy.” 1867-1955. American baseball player. A pitcher for 22 seasons, he won 515 games, including 76 shutouts, 3 no-hit games, and the first perfect game in modern baseball (1904).

Young (yŭng), Edward. 1683-1765. English poet known for his dramatic monologue Night Thoughts on Life, Death, and Immortality (1742-1745).

Young (yŭng), Ella Flagg. 1845-1918. American educator who was superintendent of Chicago public schools (1909-1915) and president of the National Education Association (1910-1915).

Young (yŭng), Lester Willis. Known as “Pres.” 1909-1959. American jazz musician whose innovative tenor saxophone style greatly influenced jazz improvisation.

Young (yŭng), Thomas. 1773-1829. British physician, physicist, and Egyptologist who revived the wave theory of light and postulated the three-color theory of color vision. He also helped decipher the hieroglyphics on the Rosetta Stone.

Young (yŭng), Whitney Moore, Jr. 1921-1971. American civil rights leader who was executive director of the National Urban League (1961-1971).

young·ber·ry (yŭng/bĕr'ĕ) n. 1. A trailing, prickly hybrid between a blackberry and a dewberry (Rubus ursinus cv. Young) of the rose family, cultivated in the western United States. 2. The edible, dark red berry of this plant. [After B.M. Young (fl. 1905), American fruit grower.]

Young·er (yŭng/gĕr), Thomas Coleman. Known as “Cole.” 1844-1916. American outlaw who fought as a Confederate guerrilla during the Civil War and later joined the notorious gang of Jesse James.

young·ish (yŭng/'ish) adj. Somewhat young.

young·ling (yŭng/'lĭng) n. A young person, animal, or plant.

young·ster (yŭng/'stĕr) n. 1. A young person; a child or youth. 2. A young animal. 3. A member of the second-year class in the U.S. Naval Academy.

Youngs·town (yŭngz/'toun') A city of northeast Ohio east of Akron. It is a major center of iron and steel production with extensive manufacturing facilities. Population, 95,732.

Young Turk (yŭng tŭrk) n. 1. A young progressive or insurgent member of a collective enterprise, such as a political party. 2. A member of a Turkish reformist and nationalist political party active in the early 20th century. [After the Young Turks, a late 19th- and early 20th-century revolutionary party in Turkey.]

young'un (yŭng'ən) n. Informal. A young one; a child.

youn-ker (yŭng'kær) n. 1. A young man. 2. A child. [Obsolete Dutch jonchere, young nobleman, from Middle Dutch : jonc, young; see yeu- in Appendix + here, lord.]

your (yōor, yôr, yör; yər when unstressed) adj. The possessive form of you. Abbr.

yr. 1. Used as a modifier before a noun: your boots; your accomplishments. 2. A person's; one's: The light switch is on your right. 3. Informal. Used with little or no sense of possession to indicate a type familiar to the listener: not one of your two-bit philosophers; your basic three-story frame house. [Middle English, from Old English ēower, genitive of gē, ye. See YOU.]

you're (yōor; yər when unstressed) You are.

yours (yōorz, yôrz, yôrz) pron. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). 1. Used to indicate the one or ones belonging to you: The larger boots are yours. If I can't find my book, I'll take yours. 2. Used often with an adverbial modifier in the complimentary close of a letter: Sincerely yours. —idiom. yours truly. I, myself, or me: "Let me talk about a typical day in the life of yours truly" (Robert A. Spivey). [Middle English, from your, your. See YOUR.]

yourself (yōor-sëlf', yôr-, yör-, yər-) pron. 1. That one identical with you. a. Used reflexively as the direct or indirect object of a verb or as the object of a preposition: Did you buy yourself a gift? b. Used for emphasis: You yourself were certain of the facts. c. Used in an absolute construction: In office yourself, you helped push the bill along. 2. Your normal or healthy condition: Are you feeling yourself again? See Usage Note at myself.

your-selves (yōor-sëlvz', yôr-, yör-, yər-) pron. 1. Those ones identical with you. a. Used reflexively as the direct or indirect object of a verb or as the object of a preposition: Help yourselves. Have yourselves a good time. You should all watch out for yourselves. b. Used for emphasis: You should take care of the matter yourselves. c. Used in an absolute construction: Yourselves having run the race, you four should receive the prize. 2. Your normal or healthy condition: Just relax and be yourselves. See Usage Note at myself.

youth (yōoth) n. pl. youths (yōoths, yōothz). 1. a. The condition or quality of being young. b. An early period of development or existence: a nation in its youth. 2. The time of life between childhood and maturity. 3. a. A young person, especially a young male in late adolescence. b. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). Young people considered as a group. 4. Geology. The first stage in the erosion cycle. [Middle English youth, from Old English geoguth. See yeu- in Appendix.]

youthful (yōoth'fəl) adj. 1. Characterized by youth; young. 2. Of, relating to, or characteristic of youth. 3. Marked by or possessing characteristics, such as vigor, freshness, or enthusiasm, that are associated with youth. See Synonyms at young. 4. In an early stage of development; new. 5. Geology. Young: a youthful streambed. —youth/ful-ly adv. —youth/ful-ness n.

youth hostel (yōōth hōs'təl) n. A supervised, inexpensive lodging place for young travelers.

you-uns (yōō'ənz) pron. Upper Southern U.S. You. Used in addressing two or more people. [YOU + dialectal uns, people variant of ones, pl. of ONE.]

you've (yōōv) You have.

yow (you) interj. Used to express alarm, pain, or surprise.

yowl (youl) v. yowled, yowl-ing, yowls. — v. intr. To utter a long, loud, mournful cry; wail. — v. tr. To say or utter with a yowl. — n. A long, loud, mournful cry; a wail. [Middle English yowlen, probably of imitative origin.]

yo-yo (yō'yō') n. pl. yo-yos. 1. A toy consisting of a flattened spool wound with string that is spun down from and reeled up to the hand by motions of the wrist. 2. Informal. One that undergoes frequent abrupt shifts or reversals, as of opinion or emotion; a vacillator. 3. Slang. A person regarded as stupid or objectionable. — v. intr. yo-yoed, yo-yo-ing, yo-yos. Informal. To undergo frequent abrupt shifts or reversals, as of opinion or emotion; vacillate. [Originally a trademark.]

Y·pres (ē'prə) See Ieper.

Yp-si-lan-ti (ip'sə-län'tē) A city of southeast Michigan west-southwest of Detroit. Founded on the site of a Native American village and French trading post, it is a residential, commercial, and industrial center. Population, 24,846.

Y·quem (ē-kēm') n. A sweet white wine from the Sauternes region of southwest France. [After Château d'Yquem, an estate in southwest France.]

yr. abbr. 1. Year. 2. Younger. 3. Your.

Y.T. abbr. Yukon Territory.

yt-ter-bi-a (ī-tūr'bē-ə) n. See ytterbium oxide. [New Latin, from YTTERRBIUM.]

yt-ter-bi-um (ī-tūr'bē-əm) n. Symbol Yb A soft, bright, silvery rare-earth element occurring in two allotropic forms and used as an x-ray source for portable irradiation devices, in some laser materials, and in some special alloys. Atomic number 70; atomic weight 173.04; melting point 824°C; boiling point 1,196°C; specific gravity 6.972 or 6.54 (25°C) depending on allotropic form; valence 2, 3. [After Ytterby, a town in Sweden.] —yt-ter'bic (-bīk) adj.

ytterbium oxide (ī-tūr'bē-əm ők'sīd') n. A colorless hygroscopic compound, Yb₂O₃, used in certain alloys. Also called ytterbia yt-tri-a (īt'rē-ə) n. See yttrium oxide. [New Latin, after Ytterby. See YTTERRBIUM.]

yt-tri-um (īt'rē-əm) n. Symbol Y A silvery metallic element, not a rare earth but occurring in nearly all rare-earth minerals, used in various metallurgical applications, notably to increase the strength of magnesium and aluminum alloys.

Atomic number 39; atomic weight 88.905; melting point 1,522°C; boiling point 3,338°C; specific gravity 4.45 (25°C); valence 3. [From YTRIA.] —yt'ric (it'rik) adj.

yttrium oxide (it'rē-əm ök'sid') n. A yellowish powder, Y₂O₃, used in optical glasses, ceramics, and color-television tubes. Also called yttria yu-an (yō-än', yüän) n. pl. yuan or yu-ans. A unit of currency in the Republic of China (Taiwan). See Table at currency. [Chinese (Mandarin) yuán, dollar.]

Yu-an (yō-än', yüän) A Chinese dynasty (1271-1368) established by the Mongolian ruler Kublai Khan at Peking (Beijing). It was superseded by the Ming dynasty.

Yuan Jiang (yō-än' jyäng') See Red River (sense 1).

Yuan Shi-gai also Yuan Shih-k'ai (yō-än' shē'ki'), 1859-1916. Chinese politician. Authorized by China's final imperial edict to create a republican government, he was named president but ruled as a dictator (1912-1916).

Yu-ba City (yō-ä'bə sīt'ē) A city of north-central California north of Sacramento. It is a processing center in an agricultural region. Population, 27,437.

Yu-cai-pa (yō-kī'pə) A community of southern California in the foothills of the San Bernardino Mountains east of Los Angeles. It is a processing center. Population, 32,824.

Yu-ca-tán (yō'kə-tän', -tän') A peninsula mostly in southeast Mexico between the Caribbean Sea and the Gulf of Mexico. The region includes many Mayan and Toltec sites and is separated from western Cuba by the Yucatán Channel.

Yuc-a-tec (yō'kə-těk') n. pl. Yucatec or Yuca-tecs. 1. A member of a Mayan people inhabiting the Yucatán Peninsula. 2. The Mayan language of the Yucatec.

yuc-ca (yŭk'ə) n. Any of various evergreen plants of the genus Yucca, native to the warmer regions of North America, having often tall stout stems and a terminal cluster of white flowers. [From New Latin Iucca, genus name, from Spanish yuca, cassava, from Taino.]

yucca moth (yŭk'ə mōth) n. A small white moth (Tegeticula alba) of North America that pollinates the yucca plant and at the same time lays its eggs in the ovaries of the flower.

Yu-chi (yō-ö'chē) n. pl. Yuchi or Yu-chis. 1. a. A Native American people formerly inhabiting northern Georgia and eastern Tennessee, politically included in the Creek confederacy since the 19th century. b. A member of this people. 2. The language of the Yuchi. [Probably Cherokee yutsi.]

yuck (yŭk) interj. Slang. Used to express rejection or strong disgust.

yuck-y (yŭk'ē) adj. yuck-i-er, yuck-i-est. Slang. Repugnant; disgusting. —yuck'i-ness n.

Yug. abbr. Yugoslavian.

Yu-ga (yō-ög'ə) n. Hinduism. One of the four ages constituting a cycle of history. [Sanskrit yugam, yoke, pair, era. See yeug- in Appendix.]

Yugo. abbr. Yugoslavian.

Yu·go·sla·vi·a (yōō'gō-slä'vê-ə) A country of southeast Europe on the Balkan Peninsula. It was originally formed in 1918 as the Kingdom of Serbs, Croats, and Slovenes after the collapse of the Austro-Hungarian Empire and was renamed Yugoslavia in 1929. After 1946 the country included six constituent republics, four of which (Slovenia, Croatia, Bosnia-Herzegovina, and Macedonia) declared independence in 1991. Serbia and Montenegro formed a new Yugoslavian nation in 1992. Belgrade is the capital and the largest city. Population, 12,098,779.

—Yu'go·sla'vi·an adj. & n.

Yu·ka·wa (yōō-kä'wä), Hideki. 1907-1981. Japanese physicist. He won a 1949 Nobel Prize for mathematically predicting the existence of the meson.

Yu·kon (yōō'kōn') A city of central Oklahoma west of Oklahoma City. It is a processing center. Population, 20,935.

Yukon River (yōō'kōn' rīv'ər) A river flowing about 3,218 km (2,000 mi) from southern Yukon Territory, Canada, through Alaska to the Bering Sea. It was a major route to the Klondike during the gold rush of 1897-1898.

Yukon Territory (yōō'kōn' tēr'ī-tōr'ē) Abbr. Y.T. A territory of northwest Canada east of Alaska. It joined the Confederacy in 1898. The region was first explored by fur traders in the 1840's and was acquired by Canada from the Hudson's Bay Company in 1870. Whitehorse is the capital and the largest city. Population, 23,153.

Yukon Time (yōō'kōn' tīm) n. Alaska Standard Time.

yu·lan (yōō'län, yü'län') n. A deciduous Chinese tree (Magnolia heptapeta) often cultivated for its large, cup-shaped, fragrant white flowers. [Chinese (Mandarin) yùlán : yù, jade + lán, orchid.]

Yule (yōōl) n. Christmas, or the season or feast celebrating Christmas. [Middle English yole, from Old English geōl.]

yule log (yōōl lôg) n. A large log traditionally burned in a fireplace at Christmas.

Yule-tide (yōōl'tīd') n. The Christmas season.

Yu·ma¹ (yōō'mə) n. pl. Yuma or Yu·mas. 1. a. A Native American people inhabiting an area along the lower Colorado River, formerly on both banks but now mainly on the California side. b. A member of this people. 2. The Yuman language of the Yuma. Also called Quechan [Spanish, from Papago yuumi.]

Yu·ma² (yōō'mə) A city of southwest Arizona on the Colorado River and the California border. It is a resort and processing center in a gold-mining region. Population, 54,923.

Yu·man (yōō'mən) n. A language family constituting the languages of the Yuma and Mohave peoples and other Native American languages of western Arizona and adjacent parts of California and Mexico. —Yu'man adj.

yum·my (yŭm'ē) adj. yum·mi·er, yum·mi·est. Slang. 1. Very pleasing to the taste or smell; delicious. See Synonyms at delicious. 2. Delightful; delicious. [From yum, the sound of smacking the lips.] —yum'·mi·ness n.

Yun·nan (yōō'nän') A province of south-central China bordering on Vietnam, Laos, and Burma. The region was overrun by Mongols in 1253 and became part of China in the 17th century. Kunming is the capital. Population, 34,060,000.

Yu·pik (yōō'pĭk) n. pl. Yupik or Yu·piks. 1. A member of a group of Eskimoan peoples inhabiting coastal areas of western Alaska and northeast Siberia. 2. The group of Eskimoan languages spoken by the Yupik.

yup·pie also Yup·pie (yŭp'ē) n. Informal. A young city or suburban resident with a well-paid professional job and an affluent, materialistic lifestyle. [Y(OUNG) + U(RBAN) + P(ROFESSIONAL) influenced by yippie, politically active hippie.] —yup'pie·dom n.

Yu·rok (yōōr'ōk) n. pl. Yurok or Yu·roks. 1. a. A Native American people inhabiting northwest California along the Pacific coast and lower Klamath River. b. A member of this people. 2. The language of this people, distantly related to Algonquian.

yurt (yŭrt) n. A circular, domed, portable tent used by the nomadic Mongols of central Asia. [Russian yurta, of Turkic origin.]

YWCA or Y.W.C.A. abbr. Young Women's Christian Association.

YWHA or Y.W.H.A. abbr. Young Women's Hebrew Association.

y·wis (ĭ-wĭs') adv. Variant of iwis.

z or Z (zē) n. pl. z's or Z's. 1. The 26th letter of the modern English alphabet.

2. Any of the speech sounds represented by the letter z. 3. The 26th in a series.

4. Something shaped like the letter Z.

Z 1. The symbol for atomic number. 2. The symbol for impedance.

z. abbr. 1. Zero. 2. Zone.

Zaan·dam (zän-däm', -däm') A city of western Netherlands west-northwest of Amsterdam. Peter the Great of Russia lived here in 1697 while he was studying shipbuilding. Population, 128,413.

za·ba·glio·ne (zä'bäl-yō'nē, -bäl-yō'nē) n. A dessert or sauce consisting of egg yolks, sugar, and wine or liqueur beaten until thick and served hot or cold. Also called sabayon [Italian, variant of zabaione, ultimately from Illyrian sabaium, beer.]

Zab·rze (zäb'zhě) A city of south-central Poland west of Katowice. Founded in the 13th century, it passed to Prussia in 1742 and was ceded to Poland in 1945. Population, 198,000.

Zach·a·rias (zäk'ə-rī'əs) also Zech·a·ri·ah (zëk'ə-rī'ə) In the New Testament, the husband of Elizabeth and the father of John the Baptist.

zaf·fer also zaf·fre (zäf'ər) n. An impure oxide of cobalt, used to produce a blue color in enamel and in the making of smalt. [Italian zaffera, from Old French safre, perhaps alteration of safir, sapphire; see SAPPHIRE, or from Arabic şufr, yellow copper, brass.]

zaf·tig or zof·tig (zäf'tik, -tĭg) adj. 1. Full-bosomed. 2. Having a full, shapely figure. [Yiddish zaftik, juicy, from Middle High German saftec, from saft, juice, from Old High German saf.]

zag (zäg) n. One of a series of sharp turns or reversals: many zigs and zags in the mountain road; the zigs and zags of the stock market. — v. intr. zagged, zag·ging, zags. 1. To turn or change direction suddenly. Usually used in contrast to zig: The runner zigged when he should have zagged. 2. To behave erratically or indecisively. Usually used with zig: zigging and zagging for years over the question of disarmament. [From ZIGZAG.]

Zagh·lul Pa·sha (zäg'-lōōl pä'shä), Saad. 1857?-1927. Egyptian politician who was instrumental in the movement for Egyptian independence from Great Britain.

Za·gorsk (zə-gōrsk') A city of west-central Russia northeast of Moscow. It developed around a monastery founded in 1340. Population, 112,000.

Za·greb (zä'grëb) The capital and largest city of Croatia, in the northern part on the Sava River north-northwest of Belgrade. It was a center of the Yugoslavian nationalist movement in the 19th century. Population, 768,700.

Za·greus (zä'grōōs, -grē-əs) n. Greek Mythology. The son of Zeus and Persephone who was slain by the Titans and reborn as Dionysus.

Zag-ros Mountains (zǎg'rəs moun'tənz) A range of western Iran forming the western and southern borders of the central Iranian plateau and rising to 4,550.6 m (14,920 ft).

Za-har·i-as (zə-här'ē-əs), Mildred Ella Didrikson. See Mildred Ella Didrikson.

zai·bat·su (zī'bät-sōo') n. pl. zaibatsu. 1. A powerful family-controlled commercial combine of Japan. 2. A Japanese conglomerate or cartel. [Japanese : zai, wealth (from Chinese cái) + batsu, powerful person or family (from Chinese fá).]

zai·kai (zī'kī') n. The commercial and financial community of Japan. [Japanese : zai, wealth + -kai, community.]

zaire (zī'îr, zä-îr') n. A basic unit of currency in Zaire. See Table at currency. [Portuguese, the Congo River, from Kongo n-zadi, large river.]

Zaire (zī'îr, zä-îr') Formerly (1885-1908) Con-go Free State (köng'gō) and (1908-1960) Bel-gian Congo (běl'jən) and (1960-1971) Congo. A country of central Africa astride the equator. Inhabited since ancient times, the region came under the control of Leopold II of Belgium in the late 1870's and was annexed outright in 1908. Full independence was achieved in 1960. Kinshasa is the capital and the largest city. Population, 29,671,407. —Za-ir'e-an, Za-ir'i-an adj. & n.

Zaire River (zī'îr rīv'ər) See Congo River.

Za-ma (zā'mə, zä'mä) An ancient town of northern Africa southwest of Carthage in present-day northern Tunisia. The Romans decisively defeated Hannibal here in the final battle of the Second Punic War (202 B.C.).

Zam-be-zi (zǎm-bē'zē) A river, about 2,735 km (1,700 mi) long, of central and southern Africa rising in northwest Zambia and flowing south and west to the Mozambique Channel.

Zam-bi-a (zǎm'bē-ə) A country of south-central Africa. Under British jurisdiction after 1889, it became a protectorate in 1924 and achieved independence in 1964. Lusaka is the capital and the largest city. Population, 5,661,801.

—Zam'bi-an adj. & n.

za-mi-a (zā'mē-ə) n. Any of various chiefly tropical American cycads of the genus Zamia, having a thick, usually underground trunk, palmlike terminal leaves, and seeds borne in woody cones. [New Latin Zamia, genus name, from misreading of (nucēs) azāniae, pine cone (nuts), probably from Greek azainein, to dry up, from azein, to dry. See as- in Appendix.]

zam-in·dar also zem-in·dar (zǎm'ən-där', zēm'-, zə-mēn-där') n. 1. An official in precolonial India assigned to collect the land taxes of his district. 2. A landholder in British colonial India responsible for collecting and paying to the government the taxes on the land under his jurisdiction. [Hindi zamīndār, from Persian : zamīn, earth; see dhghem- in Appendix + -dār, -holder; see dher- in Appendix.]

zam-in-dar-i also zem-in-dar-y (zām'ən-dār'ē, zēm'-, zə-mēn-) n. pl.

zam-in-dar-is also zem-in-dar-ies. 1. The system of tax collection by zamindars. 2. The area administered by a zamindar. [Hindi zamīndāri, from Persian, from zamīndār, zamindar. See ZAMINDAR.]

Za-mo-ra (zə-mô'rə, -mōr'ə, thä-mô'rä) A city of northwest Spain on the Duero River northwest of Madrid. Because of its strategic location, it was frequently contested during the Middle Ages. Population, 61,151.

za-na-na (zə-nä'nə) n. Variant of zenana.

zan-der (zän'dər) n. pl. zander or zan-ders. A common European pikeperch (Stizostedion lucioperca) valued as a food fish. [German, from Low German Sander.]

Zanes-ville (zānz'vīl') A city of east-central Ohio east of Columbus. Incorporated in 1800, it was state capital from 1810 to 1812. Population, 26,778.

Zan-gwill (zäng'gwīl', -wīl'), Israel. 1864-1926. British writer and Zionist whose works, including the novel Children of the Ghetto (1892) and the play Melting Pot (1908), concern the lives of Jewish immigrants.

Zan-uck (zän'ək), Darryl Francis. 1902-1979. American motion-picture producer whose works include The Jazz Singer (1927), the first feature-length film with sound sequences, The Grapes of Wrath (1940), and Gentlemen's Agreement (1947).

za-ny (zā'nē) n. pl. za-nies. 1. A ludicrous, buffoonish character in old comedies who attempts feebly to mimic the tricks of the clown. 2. A comical person given to extravagant or outlandish behavior. — adj. za-ni-er, za-ni-est.

1. Ludicrously comical; clownish. 2. Comical because of incongruity or strangeness; bizarre. [French zani, from Italian dialectal zanni, from Zanni, variant of Italian Gianni, nickname for Giovanni, John, the name of servants who act as clowns in commedia dell'arte.] — za'ni-ly adv. — za'ni-ness n.

Zan-zi-bar (zän'zə-bär') 1. A region of eastern Africa, comprising Zanzibar Island and several adjacent islands off the northeast coast of Tanzania. Formerly a British protectorate, it became an independent sultanate in December 1963 and a republic after an uprising in January 1964. In April 1964 it joined Tanganyika to form a new republic that was renamed Tanzania in October 1964. 2. A city of Tanzania on the western coast of Zanzibar Island. Founded in the 16th century as a Portuguese trading post, it was a major center of the East African ivory trade in the 19th century. Population, 110,699.

zap (zăp) Slang. v. zapped, zap-ping, zaps. — v. tr. 1. a. To destroy or kill with a burst of gunfire, flame, or electric current. b. To kill or destroy as if by shooting. c. To strike suddenly and forcefully as if with a projectile or weapon: "His... narrative runs marvelously on and on, zapping the reader with often surprising and... painful glimpses" (Publishers Weekly). d. To expose to radiation; irradiate: "perfect for those who can't bring themselves to zap food in a microwave" (John F. Mariani). 2. To attack (an enemy) with heavy firepower; strafe or bombard.

3. To use a remote control device to switch (channels on a television) or to turn off (a television set). — v. intr. To move swiftly; zoom. — n. Something that imparts excitement or great interest. — interj. 1. Used to imitate a sound made by a gun when fired. 2. Used to indicate a sudden occurrence. [Imitative.]

Za-pa-ta (zə-pä'tə, sä-pä'tä), Emiliano. 1879?-1919. Mexican revolutionary who led a revolt (1910-1919) for agrarian reforms, during which he captured Mexico City three times.

Zapata mustache (zə-pä'tə müs'täsh') n. A mustache that curves downward on each side. [After Emiliano ZAPATA.] za-pa-te-a-do (zä'pə-tä-ä'dō, thä'pä-tä-ä'thō, sä'-) n. pl. za-pa-te-a-dos.

1. The rhythmic stamping of the heels characteristic of Spanish flamenco dances.
2. A Spanish flamenco dance in which the performer stamps rhythmically with the heels. [Spanish, from zapatear, to tap with the shoe, from zapato, shoe.]

Za-po-pan (zä'pō-pän', sä'pō-) A city of southwest Mexico west of Guadalajara. It is the center of a cattle-raising region. Population, 345,390.

Za-po-ro-zhe (zä'pə-rō'zhə, zə-pə-rō'zhyě) Formerly A-lek-san-drovsk (äl'ik-sän'drəfsk, ə-lik-sän'-). A city of southern Ukraine on the Dnieper River west of Donetsk. It was founded in 1770 on the site of a Cossack camp. Population, 852,000.

Za-po-tec (zä'pə-těk', sä'pō-) n. pl. Zapotec or Za-po-tecs. 1. a. A member of a Mesoamerican Indian people centered at Monte Albán in southern Mexico, whose civilization reached its height around A.D. 300-900. b. A modern-day descendant of this people. 2. Any of a group of related languages spoken in southern Mexico. [Spanish Zapoteco, from Nahuatl tzapotēcah, pl. of tzapotēcatl, person from Tzapotlan, from Tzapotlān, place name : tzapotl, sapodilla + tlān, place.] — Za'po-tec' adj.

zap-per (zäp'ər) n. Slang. 1. A destructive device, especially one that destroys by means of electric current or radiation: a bug zapper. 2. A remote-control device for switching a television set on and off and for changing channels.

zap-py (zäp'ē) adj. zap-pi-er, zap-pi-est. Slang. Lively: a zappy advertisement.

Za-ra-go-za (zär'ə-gō'zə, thä'rä-gō'thä) See Saragossa.

Zar-a-thu-stra (zär'ə-thō'strə) See Zoroaster.

za-re-ba also za-ree-ba (zə-rē'bə) n. 1. An enclosure of bushes or stakes protecting a campsite or village in northeast Africa. 2. A campsite or village protected by such an enclosure. [Arabic zarībah, pen for cattle.]

zarf (zärf) n. A chalice-like holder for a hot coffee cup, typically made of ornamented metal, used in the Middle East. [Arabic zarf, container.]

Za-ri-a (zä'rē-ə) A city of north-central Nigeria south-southwest of Kano. It is a processing center in a cotton-growing region. Population, 267,300.

zas-tru-ga (zä-strō'gə, zä-) n. Variant of sastruga.

Za-wier-ci (zäv-yër'chē) A city of southern Poland northwest of Cracow. It passed to Prussia in 1795, to Russia in 1815, and to Poland after World War I. Population, 55,700.

zax (zäks) n. A tool similar to a hatchet, used for cutting and dressing roofing slates. [Variant of sax, from Middle English, knife, from Old English seax. See sek- in Appendix.]

z-ax-is (zē'äk'sis) n. pl. z-ax-es (zē'äk'sēz). Mathematics. One of three axes in a three-dimensional Cartesian coordinate system.

za-yin (zä'yin) n. The seventh letter of the Hebrew alphabet. [Hebrew, from Aramaic.]

za-zen (zä'zēn') n. Meditation as practiced in Zen Buddhism. [Japanese : za, to sit down + zen, silent meditation; see ZEN BUDDHISM.]

Zc abbr. Bible. Zechariah.

zeal (zēl) n. Enthusiastic devotion to a cause, an ideal, or a goal and tireless diligence in its furtherance. See Synonyms at passion. [Middle English zele, from Old French zel, from Late Latin zēlus, from Greek zēlos.]

Zea-land (zē'lənd) See Sjaelland.

zeal-ot (zēl'ət) n. 1. a. One who is zealous, especially excessively so. b. A fanatically committed person. See Synonyms at fanatic. 2. Zealot. A member of a Jewish movement of the first century A.D. that fought against Roman rule in Palestine as incompatible with strict monotheism. [Middle English zelote, from Latin zēlōtēs, from Greek, from zēlos, zeal.]

zeal-ot-ry (zēl'ə-trē) n. Excessive zeal; fanaticism.

zeal-ous (zēl'əs) adj. Filled with or motivated by zeal; fervent. —zeal'ous-ly adv. —zeal'ous-ness n.

ze-a-tin (zē'ə-tin) n. A cytokinin originally isolated from young corn kernels and found later in various other plants. [New Latin Zea, corn genus; see ZEIN + -IN.]

ze-bec or ze-beck (zē'bēk') n. Nautical. Variant of xebec.

Zeb-e-dee (zēb'ī-dē') In the New Testament, a fisherman whose sons James and John became disciples of Jesus.

ze-bra (zē'brə) n. 1. Any of several swift, wild, horselike African mammals of the genus Equus, having distinctive overall markings of alternating white and black or brown stripes. 2. The zebra butterfly. [Italian, from Old Portuguese zevro, zevra, wild ass.]

zebra butterfly (zē'brə бүт'ər-flī') n. A butterfly (Heliconius charitonius) of the southern United States, having a black body marked with yellow stripes.

zebra crossing (zē'brə krô'sing) n. Chiefly British. A pedestrian crosswalk. [So called because it is marked with white stripes.]

zebra danio (zē'brə dā'nē-ō') n. See zebra fish.

zebra finch (zē'brə fīnch) n. A small Australian bird (Poephila guttata) having black and white striped markings and popular as a cage bird.

zebra fish (zē'brə fīsh) n. A small freshwater tropical fish (Brachydanio rerio) of India, having horizontal dark blue and silvery stripes and popular in home aquariums. Also called zebra danio ze-bra-wood (zē'brə-wōd') n. 1. Any of several African or tropical American trees having striped wood. 2. The wood of any of these trees, used in cabinet-making.

ze-brine (zē'brīn') adj. Related to, resembling, or characteristic of a zebra.

ze-broid (zē'broid') adj. Zebrine. — n. The hybrid offspring of a zebra and a horse.

ze-bu (zē'bōō, -byōō) n. A domesticated ox (Bos indicus) of Asia and eastern Africa, having a prominent hump on the back and a large dewlap. [French zébu.]

Zeb-u-lon also Zeb-u-lun (zēb'yə-lən) In the Old Testament, a son of Jacob and Leah and the forebear of one of the tribes of Israel.

zec-chi-no (zē-kē'nō) also zec-chin or zech-in (zēk'īn) n. pl. zec-chi-ni (-nē) or zec-chi-nos or zec-chins or zech-ins. See sequin (n., sense 2). [Italian. See SEQUIN.]

Zech-a-ri-ah¹ (zēk'ə-rī'ə) n. Abbr. Zc, Zech. Bible. 1. A Hebrew prophet of the sixth century B.C. 2. A book of the Bible. See Table at Bible. [Hebrew Zēkaryāh: zekar, remembrance + Yāh, God.]

Zech-a-ri-ah² (zēk'ə-rī'ə) See Zacharias.

zed (zēd) n. Chiefly British. The letter z. [Middle English, from Old French zede, from Late Latin zēta, zeta, from Greek. See ZETA.]

Zed-e-ki-ah (zēd'ī-kī'ə), Sixth century B.C. The last king of Judah (597-586 B.C.). He revolted unsuccessfully (588-586) against Nebuchadnezzar II and was sent to captivity in Babylon, where he died.

zed-o-ar-y (zēd'ō-ēr'ē) n. pl. zed-o-ar-ies. 1. An Indian plant (Curcuma zedoaria) having yellow flowers, purple bracts, and starchy tuberous rhizomes. 2. The dried rhizomes of this plant, used as a condiment and in perfumes, medicines, and cosmetics. [Middle English zeduarie, from Medieval Latin zeduāria, from Arabic zadwār, from Persian.]

ze-donk (zē'dōngk', -dūngk', -dōngk') n. The hybrid offspring of a male zebra and a female donkey. [ZE(BRA) + DONK(EY).]

zee (zē) n. The letter z.

Zee-land (zē'lənd, zā'lənt) A historical region of southwest Netherlands bordering on Belgium and the North Sea. Part of Holland after the tenth century, it later became a separate county but continued to be ruled by the counts of Holland.

Zee-man (zā'män'), Pieter. 1865-1943. Dutch physicist. He shared a 1902 Nobel Prize for researching the influence of magnetism on radiation.

Zeeman effect (zā'män' ĭ-fěkt') n. The splitting of single spectral lines of an emission spectrum into three or more polarized components when the radiation source is in a magnetic field. [After Pieter ZEEMAN.]

ze-in (zē'ĭn) n. A prolamine protein derived from corn, used in the manufacture of various plastics, coatings, and lacquers. [New Latin Zea, corn genus (from Latin zēa, emmer, from Greek zeia, one-seeded wheat, barley); see yewo- in Appendix + -IN.]

Zeist (zīst) A city of central Netherlands east of Utrecht. It is largely residential. Population, 60,478.

Zeit-geist (tsīt'gīst', zīt'-) n. The spirit of the time; the taste and outlook characteristic of a period or generation: "It's easy to see how a student... in the 1940's could imbibe such notions. The Zeitgeist encouraged Philosopher-Kings" (James Atlas). [German : Zeit, time (from Middle High German zīt, from Old High German); see dā- in Appendix + Geist, spirit; see POLTERGEIST.]

zek (zĕk) n. An inmate of a Soviet labor camp. [Russian, from abbr. for zaklyuchennyĭ, prisoner, from past passive participle of zaklyuchat', to imprison, from klyuch, key, from Old Church Slavonic ključĭ.]

zem-in-dar (zäm'ən-där', zēm'-, zə-mēn-där') n. Variant of zamindar.

zem-in-dar-y (zäm'ən-där'ē, zēm'-, zə-mēn-) n. Variant of zamindari.

zemst-vo (zēmst'vō, zyēm'stvə) n. pl. zemst-vos. An elective council responsible for the local administration of a provincial district in czarist Russia. [Russian, from Old Russian zemĭ, land. See dhghem- in Appendix.]

Zen (zĕn) n. Zen Buddhism.

ze-na-na also za-na-na (zə-nä'nə) n. The part of a house in southwest Asia reserved for the women of the household. [Hindi zenāna, from Persian, from zan, woman. See g^wen- in Appendix.]

Zen Buddhism (zĕn bōō'dĭz'əm) n. A Chinese and Japanese school of Mahayana Buddhism that asserts that enlightenment can be attained through meditation, self-contemplation, and intuition rather than through faith and devotion. [Japanese zen, from Chinese (Mandarin) chán, meditation, from Pali jhānaṃ, from Sanskrit dhyānam, from dhyāti, he meditates.] —Zen Buddhist n.

Zend (zĕnd) n. The Zend-Avesta.

Zend-A-ves-ta (zĕn'də-vĕs'tə) n. The entire body of sacred writings of the Zoroastrian religion. [French, from Persian zandavastā, from Avesta-va-zend, Avesta with an interpretation : Middle Persian apastāk, text + Middle Persian va, with + Middle Persian zend, interpretation.] —Zend'-A-ves-ta'ic (-vĕs-tā'ĭk) adj.

ze-ner diode or Ze-ner diode (zē'nər dī'ōd') n. A silicon semiconductor device used as a voltage regulator because of its ability to maintain an almost constant voltage with a wide range of currents. [After Clarence Melvin Zener (born 1905), American physicist.]

Zeng-er (zɛŋg'gər, -ər), John Peter. 1697-1746. German-born colonial printer and journalist whose acquittal (1735) of libel charges in New York City established a legal precedent for freedom of the press.

ze-nith (zē'nīth) n. 1. The point on the celestial sphere that is directly above the observer. 2. The upper region of the sky. 3. The highest point above the observer's horizon attained by a celestial body. 4. The point of culmination; the peak: the zenith of her career. See Synonyms at summit. [Middle English senith, from Old French cenith, from Medieval Latin, from Arabic samt (ar-ra's), path (over the head).]

Ze-no of Cit-i-um (zē'nō ūv sīt'ē-əm, sīt'ē-əm), 335?-263? B.C. Greek philosopher who founded the Stoic school, teaching that virtue is necessarily good and that objects of desire are morally ambiguous.

Zeno of E-le-a (zē'nō ūv ē-lē'ə), 495?-430? B.C. Greek philosopher who formulated numerous paradoxes that challenged the ideas of pluralism and the existence of motion and change.

ze-o-lite (zē'ə-līt') n. Any one of a family of hydrous aluminum silicate minerals, whose molecules enclose cations of sodium, potassium, calcium, strontium, or barium, or a corresponding synthetic compound, used chiefly as molecular filters and ion-exchange agents. [Swedish zeolit, from Greek zein, to boil (from its swelling and boiling under the blowpipe). See yes- in Appendix.]

zep (zɛp) n. Chiefly New Jersey. See submarine (n., sense 2). See Regional note at submarine. [Possibly short for ZEPPELIN (from its shape).]

Zeph-a-ni-ah (zɛf'ə-nī'ə) n. Abbr. Zeph., Zp Bible. 1. A Hebrew prophet of the seventh century B.C. 2. A book of the Bible. See Table at Bible.

zeph-yr (zɛf'ər) n. 1. The west wind. 2. A gentle breeze. 3. Any of various soft, light fabrics, yarns, or garments. 4. Something that is airy, insubstantial, or passing. [Middle English Zephirus, Zephyrus, from Latin Zephyrus, from Greek Zephuros.]

zephyr lily (zɛf'ər līl'ē) n. Any of several plants of the genus Zephyranthes, native to tropical America, having grasslike leaves and solitary, funnel-shaped, variously colored flowers. Also called fairy lily, rain lily.

Zeph-y-rus (zɛf'ər-əs) n. Greek Mythology. A god personifying the gentle west wind.

zep-pe-lin also Zep-pe-lin (zɛp'ə-līn) n. A rigid airship having a long cylindrical body supported by internal gas cells. [After Count Ferdinand von ZEPPELIN.]

Zep-pe-lin (zɛp'ə-līn, zɛp'līn, tsɛp'ə-lēn'), Count Ferdinand von. 1838-1917. German inventor who designed and manufactured the first motorized, rigid-frame dirigible balloon (1900).

Zer-matt (tsër-mät') A village of southern Switzerland in the Pennine Alps northwest of the Matterhorn. It is a noted tourist resort. Population, 3,548.

Zer-ni-ke (zâr'nə-kə, zûr'-), Frits. 1888-1966. Dutch physicist. He won a 1953 Nobel Prize for developing the phase contrast microscope.

ze-ro (zâr'ō, zē'rō) n. pl. ze-ros or ze-roes. Abbr. z. 1. The numerical symbol 0; a cipher. 2. Mathematics. a. An element of a set that when added to any other element in the set produces a sum identical with the element to which it is added. b. A cardinal number indicating the absence of any or all units under consideration. c. An ordinal number indicating an initial point or origin. d. An argument at which the value of a function vanishes. 3. The temperature indicated by the numeral 0 on a thermometer. 4. A sight setting that enables a firearm to shoot on target. 5. Informal. One having no influence or importance; a nonentity: a manager who was a total zero. 6. The lowest point: His prospects were approaching zero. 7. A zero-coupon bond. 8. Informal. Nothing; nil: Today I accomplished zero. — adj. 1. Of, relating to, or being zero. 2. a. Having no measurable or otherwise determinable value. b. Informal. Absent, inoperative, or irrelevant in specified circumstances: "The town has... practically no opportunities for amusement, zero culture" (Robert M. Adams). 3. Meteorology. a. Designating a ceiling not more than 16 meters (52 feet) high. b. Limited in horizontal visibility to no more than 55 meters (180 feet). — v. tr. ze-roed, ze-ro-ing, ze-roes. To adjust (an instrument or a device) to zero value. — phrasal verb. zero in. 1. a. To aim or concentrate firepower on an exact target location. b. To adjust the aim or sight of by repeated firings. 2. To converge intently; close in: The children zeroed in on the display of toys in the store window. [Italian, from alteration of Medieval Latin zephirum, from Arabic ṣifr, nothing, cipher.]

ze-ro-base (zâr'ō-bās', zē'rō-) or ze-ro-based (-bāst') adj. Having each expenditure or item justified as to need or cost: "Zero-base budgeting requires its practitioners to justify every dollar they spend" (Wall Street Journal).

ze-ro-cou-pon (zâr'ō-kōō'pōn, -kyōō'-, zē'rō-) adj. Paying no interest to the holder until maturity or sale: a zero-coupon bond; a zero-coupon certificate of deposit.

ze-ro-de-fect (zâr'ō-dē'fēkt', -dī-fēkt', zē'rō-) adj. Having no flaws or errors: a zero-defect political campaign.

zero gravity (zâr'ō grāv'ī-tē) n. The condition of apparent weightlessness occurring when the centrifugal force on a body exactly counterbalances the gravitational attraction on it.

zero hour (zâr'ō our) n. The scheduled time for the start of an operation or action, especially a combat operation of great size.

ze-ro-point energy (zâr'ō-point' ěn'ər-jē, zē'rō-) n. The irreducible minimum energy possessed by a substance at absolute zero temperature.

zero population growth (zîr'ō pöp'yə-lā'shən grōth) n. Abbr. ZPG The limiting of population increase to the number of live births needed to replace the existing population.

ze-ro-rate (zâr'ō-rāt', zē'rō-) v. tr. ze-ro-rat-ed, ze-ro-rat-ing, ze-ro-rates. Chiefly British. To exempt from paying a value-added tax.

ze-ro-sum game (zâr'ō-sŭm' gām, zē'rō-) n. A situation in which a gain by one person or side must be matched by a loss by another person or side: "It's not a zero-sum game in which either youth or pensioners must lose" (Earl W. Foell).

zest (zĕst) n. 1. a. Flavor or interest; piquancy. b. The outermost part of the rind of an orange or a lemon, used as flavoring. 2. Spirited enjoyment; gusto: "At 53 he retains all the heady zest of adolescence" (Kenneth Tynan). — v. tr.

zest-ed, zest-ing, zests. To give zest, charm, or spirit to. [Obsolete French, orange or lemon peel.] —zest'ful adj. —zest'ful-ly adv. —zest'ful-ness n.

SYNONYMS: zest, gusto, relish. The central meaning shared by these nouns is "keen, hearty pleasure or appreciation": ate with zest; telling a joke with gusto; has no relish for repetitive work.

ze-ta (zā'tə, zē'-) n. The sixth letter of the Greek alphabet. [Greek zēta, of Phoenician origin; akin to Hebrew zayin.]

Ze-thus also Ze-thos (zē'thəs) n. Greek Mythology. The twin brother of Amphion.

zeug-ma (zōōg'mə) n. 1. A construction in which a single word, especially a verb or an adjective, is applied to two or more nouns when its sense is appropriate to only one of them or to both in different ways, as in He took my advice and my wallet. 2. Syllepsis. [Latin, from Greek, a joining, bond. See yeug- in Appendix.]

Zeus (zōōs) n. Greek Mythology. The principal god of the Greek pantheon, ruler of the heavens, and father of other gods and mortal heroes. [Greek. See deiw- in Appendix.]

Zeux-is (zōōk'sīs), Fifth century B.C. Greek artist who was among the first Athenians to use shading, thereby achieving a degree of realism hitherto unknown in Greek painting.

Ze-ya (zā'yə, zyĕ'-) A river of southeast Russia flowing about 1,287 km (800 mi) south and southeast to the Amur River.

Zgierz (zgyĕzh) A city of central Poland north of Łódź. Chartered c. 1300, it grew as a textile center after 1818. Population, 54,900.

Zhang-jia-kou (jäng'jyäkō') also Kal-gan (käl'gän') A city of northeast China near the Great Wall northwest of Beijing. It was a commercial and military center under the Ming and Manchu dynasties. Population, 350,000.

- Zhan-jiang also Chan-chiang (jǎn'jyǎng') or Chan-kiang (chǎn'kyǎng') A city of southeast China southwest of Guangzhou on an inlet of the South China Sea. It is a seaport and trade center with varied industries. Population, 300,000.
- Zhao Kuang-yin or Chao K'uang-yin (jou' kwǎng'yǐn'), 927-976. Emperor of China (960-976) who founded the Song dynasty and unified much of China.
- Zhao Zi-yang (jou' dzē-yǎng') or Chao Tzu-yang (jou' dzō-), Born 1919. Chinese politician. Purged from the Communist Party in the Cultural Revolution, he was reinstated (1971), served as premier (1980-1987), and was appointed general secretary of the Communist Party (1987). He was dismissed in 1989 for showing support for prodemocracy demonstrators.
- Zhda-nov (zhdä'nəf) A city of southeast Ukraine on the Sea of Azov. Founded in 1779, it is a port with extensive iron and steel works. Population, 522,000.
- Zhe-jiang (jœ'jyǎng') also Che-kiang (chǔ'kyǎng', jə'gyǎng') A province of eastern China on the East China Sea. It was a cultural center of early China and now is one of the most densely populated regions in the country. Hangzhou is the capital. Population, 40,300,000.
- Zheng-zhou also Cheng-chow (jǔng'jō', jœng'-) A city of east-central China south-southwest of Beijing. An important railroad junction and industrial center, it is the capital of Henan province. Population, 1,000,000.
- Zhen-jiang (jǔn'jyǎng', jœn'-) also Chin-kiang (chǐn'kyǎng', jǐn'gyǎng') A city of eastern China on the Grand Canal east of Nanjing. It was an important trade center during the Ming and Manchu dynasties. Population, 250,000.
- Zhi-to-mir (zhǐ-tô'mîr) A city of western Ukraine west of Kiev. First mentioned in 1240, it was a way station on the trade route between Scandinavia and Constantinople, passed to Lithuania (1320) and Poland (1569), and was incorporated into Russia in the late 1770's. Population, 275,000.
- Zhou or Chou or Chow (jō) A Chinese dynasty (traditionally dated 1122-221 B.C.) characterized by great intellectual achievements, including the rise of Confucianism and Taoism and the writing of the oldest known Chinese literature.
- Zhou En-lai or Chou En-lai (jō' ěn-lī'), 1898-1976. Chinese revolutionary and politician. A leader of the Chinese Communist Party, he was the first prime minister (1949-1976) and foreign minister (1949-1958) of China.
- Zhu De or Chu Teh (jō' də'), 1886-1976. Chinese military leader who took part in a Communist rebellion that marked the birth of the Chinese Red Army (1927). He commanded the Communist forces until 1954.
- Zhu Jiang (jō' jyǎng') also Can-ton River (kǎn'tǒn', kǎn'tǒn') or Chu Kiang (chō' kyǎng', jō' gyǎng') A river, about 177 km (110 mi) long, of southeast China flowing into the South China Sea.

- Zhu-kov (zhōō'kəf), Georgi Konstantinovich. 1896-1974. Soviet army officer. As chief of staff during World War II, he directed the counteroffensive at Stalingrad, relieved Leningrad (1942-1943), and captured Berlin (April 1945).
- Zi-a ul-Haq (zē'ə ööl-häk', -häk'), Mohammad. 1924-1988. Pakistani politician. An army general, he led the military coup d'état that overthrew President Ali Bhutto (1977). As president (1978-1988) he postponed general elections, had Bhutto executed, and introduced strict Islamic law. He was killed in an airplane explosion.
- zib-e-line or zib-el-line (zīb'ə-lēn', -līn') n. 1. A thick, lustrous, soft fabric of wool and other animal hair, such as mohair, having a silky nap. 2. The sable or its fur. [French, sable, from Italian zibellino, of Slavic origin.]
- zib-et also zib-eth (zīb'it) n. A civet cat (Viverra zibetha) of India and southeast Asia. [Medieval Latin zibethum, or Italian zibetto both from Arabic zabād, civet.]
- Zi-bo (dzē'bō') also Tze-po (tsū'pō', dzū'bō') A city of eastern China east of Jinan. Population, 762,500.
- zi-do-vu-dine (zī-dō'vyōō-dēn') n. See azidothymidine. [Alteration of (A)ZIDO(THYMI)DINE.]
- Zieg-feld (zīg'fēld', -fēld', zēg'-), Florenz. 1869-1932. American theatrical producer famed for his extravagant revues known as the Ziegfeld Follies, which were produced annually from 1907 to 1931 (except 1926, 1928, and 1929).
- Zie-gler (zē'glər, tsē'-), Karl Waldemar. 1898-1973. German chemist. He shared a 1963 Nobel Prize for research on polymers.
- Zie-lo-no Gó-ra (zhě-lō'nə gōōr'ə) A city of western Poland west of Łódź. Founded in the 13th century, it was assigned to Poland by the Postdam Conference in 1945. Population, 109,400.
- zig (zīg) n. One of a series of sharp turns or reversals: The zigs and zags of foreign policy. — v. intr. zigged, zig-ging, zigs. 1. To turn or change direction suddenly. Usually used in contrast to zag: When your opponent zigs, zag! 2. To behave erratically or indecisively. Usually used with zag: The market has zigged and zagged for months. [From ZIGZAG.]
- zig-gu-rat (zīg'ə-rät') n. A temple tower of the ancient Assyrians and Babylonians, having the form of a terraced pyramid of successively receding stories. [Assyrian zigguratu, summit.]
- Zi-gong (dzē'gōōng') also Tze-kung (tsū'kōōng', dzū'gōōng') A city of south-central China west of Chongqing. It is an oil and natural gas center. Population, 450,000.
- zig-zag (zīg'zäg') n. 1. a. A line or course that proceeds by sharp turns in alternating directions. b. One of a series of such sharp turns. 2. Something, such as a road or design, that exhibits one or a series of sharp turns. — adj. Moving in or having a zigzag. — adv. In a zigzag manner or pattern. — v. zig-zagged, zig-zag-ging, zig-zags. — v. intr. To move in or form a zigzag: a destroyer zigzagging to evade torpedos. — v. tr. To cause to move in or form a zigzag.

[French, alteration of zic-zac, from German Zickzack, perhaps reduplication of Zacke, tooth, cog, from Middle High German zacke, point, nail.]

zig-zag-ger (zīg'zǎg'ər) n. 1. One that zigzags. 2. A sewing-machine attachment for sewing zigzag stitches.

zilch (zīlch) Slang. n. 1. Zero; nothing. 2. A person regarded as being insignificant; a nonentity. — adj. Amounting to nothing; nil: “Business was zilch” (New York). [Origin unknown.]

zill (zīl) n. Music. One of a pair of round metal cymbals attached to the fingers and struck together for rhythm and percussion in belly dancing. [Turkish zil, cymbals.]

zil·lion (zīl'yən) n. Informal. An extremely large, indefinite number. [On the model of MILLION, BILLION, etc.]

zil·lion·aire (zīl'yə-nâr') n. Informal. One having an immense, incalculable amount of wealth. [ZILLION + (MILLION)AIRE.]

Zim·bab·we¹ (zīm-bāb'wē, -wā) A ruined city of southeast Zimbabwe south of Harare. First occupied by Iron Age peoples in the third century A.D., it was rediscovered c. 1870 and is believed by some to be the site of King Solomon's mines.

Zim·bab·we² (zīm-bāb'wē, -wā) Formerly Rho·de·sia (rō-dē'zhə). A country of southern Africa. Administered by the British South Africa Company from 1889 to 1923, it became a British protectorate in 1923 and declared itself independent in 1965, although independence was not formally granted by Great Britain until 1980. Harare is the capital and the largest city. Population, 7,539,000.

—Zim·bab·we·an adj. & n.

Zim·ba·list (zīm'bə-līst'), Efrem. 1889-1985. Russian-born American violinist noted for his pure intonation and interpretive sense.

Zim·mer·mann (zīm'ər-mən, tsīm'ər-män'), Arthur. 1864-1940. German diplomat whose intercepted telegram to Mexico (1917), offering alliance with Germany and aid in regaining lost territories in the United States, precipitated American involvement in World War I.

zinc (zīngk) n. Symbol Zn A bluish-white, lustrous metallic element that is brittle at room temperature but malleable with heating. It is used to form a wide variety of alloys including brass, bronze, various solders, and nickel silver, in galvanizing iron and other metals, for electric fuses, anodes, and meter cases, and in roofing, gutters, and various household objects. Atomic number 30; atomic weight 65.37; melting point 419.4°C; boiling point 907°C; specific gravity 7.133 (25°C); valence 2. — v. tr. zinced or zincked, zinc·ing or zinck·ing, zincs or zincks. To coat or treat with zinc; galvanize. [German Zink, possibly from Zinke, spike (so called because it becomes jagged in the furnace), from Middle High German zinke, from Old High German zinko.]

zinc-ate (zɪŋg'kāt') n. A salt of zinc hydroxide, such as $\text{Zn}(\text{OH})_2$.

zinc blende (zɪŋk blænd) n. See sphalerite.

zinc-ite (zɪŋg'kīt') n. A red to yellow-orange zinc ore, ZnO .

zinck-en-ite (zɪŋg'kə-nīt') n. Variant of zinkenite.

zinc-o-graph (zɪŋg'kə-gräf') n. 1. A prepared zinc plate used in zincography.

2. A print or picture obtained from a zincograph.

zinc-og-ra-phy (zɪŋg-kɔg'rə-fē) n. The process of engraving zinc printing plates. — zinc-og'ra-pher n. — zinc'o-graph'ic (zɪŋg'kə-gräf'ik), zinc'o-graph'i-cal (-i-kəl) adj.

zinc ointment (zɪŋk oint'mənt) n. A salve consisting of about 20 percent zinc oxide with beeswax or paraffin and petrolatum, used in the treatment of skin disorders.

zinc oxide (zɪŋk ɔk'sid') n. An amorphous white or yellowish powder, ZnO , used as a pigment, in compounding rubber, in the manufacture of plastics, and in pharmaceuticals and cosmetics. Also called Chinese white, zinc white.

zinc oxide ointment (zɪŋk ɔk'sid' oint'mənt) n. Zinc ointment.

zinc spinel (zɪŋk spī-nēl') n. See gahnite.

zinc sulfate (zɪŋk sül'fāt') n. A colorless crystalline compound, $\text{ZnSO}_4 \cdot 7\text{H}_2\text{O}$, used medicinally as an emetic and astringent, as a fungicide, and in wood and skin preservatives. Also called white vitriol zinc white (zɪŋk hwīt) n. See zinc oxide.

zin-fan-del also Zin-fan-del (zɪn'fən-dēl') n. A dry red California table wine similar to claret. [Origin unknown.]

zing (zɪŋ) n. A brief high-pitched humming or buzzing sound, such as that made by a swiftly passing object or a taut vibrating string. — v. zinged, zing-ing, zings. — v. intr. 1. To make a zing. 2. To move swiftly with or as if with a zing: an arrow zinging toward its target. 3. Informal. To be vivacious or lively: a conversation zinging along. — v. tr. Informal. 1. To attack verbally; criticize sharply: zing an opponent in a debate. 2. To strike suddenly. [Imitative.]

zing-er (zɪŋg'ər) n. Informal. 1. A witty, often caustic remark. 2. A sudden shock, revelation, or turn of events.

zing-y (zɪŋg'ē) adj. zing-i-er, zing-i-est. Informal. 1. Pleasantly stimulating: "The times are good. The living is easy. The vibes are zingy" (Saturday Review).

2. Exceptionally attractive or appealing: a zingy gown.

zink-en-ite also zinck-en-ite (zɪŋg'kə-nīt') n. A dark gray mineral, $\text{Pb}_6\text{Sb}_{14}\text{S}_{27}$. [German Zinkenit, after J.K.L. Zinken (1790-1862), German mineralogist.]

zin-ni-a (zɪn'ē-ə) n. Any of various plants of the genus Zinnia, native to tropical America, especially Z. elegans, widely cultivated for its showy, rayed, variously colored flower heads. Regional. Also called old maid Regional., old maid flower.

[New Latin Zinnia, genus name, after Johann Gottfried Zinn (1727-1759), German botanist.]

Zi·nov·iev (zī-nō'vē-ĕf', zyĭ-nôf'yĭf), Grigori Evseyevich. 1883-1936. Soviet politician. A close colleague of Lenin, he shared power with Kamenev and Stalin after Lenin's death (1924). Joining Trotsky and Kamenev in opposition to Stalin, he was expelled from the party (1927) and was ultimately executed during a Stalinist purge.

Zins·ser (zĭn'sər), Hans. 1878-1940. American bacteriologist and pioneer immunologist who helped develop immunization against varieties of typhus fever (1930).

Zin·zen·dorf (zĭn'zən-dôrf', tsĭn'tsən-), Count Nikolaus Ludwig von. 1700-1760. German theologian who founded the Moravian Church (1722).

Zi·on¹ (zī'ən) A city of northeast Illinois on Lake Michigan north of Waukegan. It was founded in 1901 as a communal settlement with a theocratic government. Population, 19,775.

Zi·on² (zī'ən) also Si·on (sī'ən) n. 1. a. The historic land of Israel as a symbol of the Jewish people. b. The Jewish people; Israel. 2. A place or religious community regarded as sacredly devoted to God. 3. An idealized, harmonious community; utopia. [Middle English Sion, from Old English, from Late Latin Siōn, from Greek Seiōn, from Hebrew šîyôn.]

Zi·on·ism (zī'ə-nĭz'əm) n. An organized movement of world Jewry that arose in Europe in the late 19th century with the aim of reconstituting a Jewish state in Palestine. Modern Zionism is concerned with the development and support of the state of Israel. — Zi'on·ist adj., n. — Zi'on·is'tic adj.

zip (zĭp) n. 1. A brief, sharp, hissing sound. 2. Energy; vim. 3. A zipper. 4. Slang. Nothing; nil; zero: received zip for money after doing the job for them. — v. zipped, zip·ping, zips. — v. intr. 1. a. To move with a sharp, hissing sound. b. To move or act with a speed that suggests such a sound: The cars zipped by endlessly. 2. To act or proceed swiftly and energetically: zipped through her homework. 3. To become fastened or unfastened by a zipper. — v. tr. 1. To give speed and force to. 2. To impart life or zest to. 3. To fasten or unfasten with a zipper. [Imitative.]

ZIP code (zĭp kōd) A service mark used for a system designed to expedite the sorting and delivery of mail by assigning a series of numbers to each delivery area in the United States.

zip gun (zĭp gŭn) n. Slang. A crude homemade pistol.

zip·per (zĭp'ər) n. A fastening device consisting of parallel rows of metal, plastic, or nylon teeth on adjacent edges of an opening that are interlocked by a sliding tab. [From ZIP.]

WORD HISTORY: The word zipper is an example of what the owners of trademarks try to prevent. Registered in 1925, zipper was originally a B.F. Goodrich trademark for overshoes with fasteners. A Goodrich executive is said to have slid the fastener up and down on the boot and exclaimed, “Zip ’er up,” from the zipping sound made by the device. The noun zip and the verb zip, referring to a light sharp sound or to motion accompanied by that kind of sound, were already in existence (zip as a noun was first recorded in 1875; as a verb, in 1852). The two words owed their origin to the imitation by speakers of the sound made by a rapidly moving object. As the fastener that “zipped” came to be used in other articles, its name became generalized. B.F. Goodrich sued to protect its trademark but was allowed to retain proprietary rights over it only for its Zipper Boots. Zipper had moved out into the world of common nouns.

zip-pered (zĭp’ərd) adj. 1. Having or equipped with zippers or a zipper: a coat with zippered pockets. 2. Closed or fastened with or as if with a zipper.

zip-py (zĭp’ē) adj. zip-pi-er, zip-pi-est. Full of energy; lively.

zir-ca-loy (zûr’kə-loi’) n. A stable, corrosion-resistant zirconium alloy.
[ZIRC(ONIUM) + AL(L)OY.]

zir-con (zûr’kôn’) n. A brown to colorless mineral, $ZrSiO_4$, which is heated, cut, and polished to form a brilliant blue-white gem. [German Zirkon, from Arabic zarqûn, minium, from Aramaic sîrîqûn, from Greek surikon, from Persian âzargûn, fire color, from zar, gold.]

zir-co-ni-a (zûr-kō’nē-ə) n. Cubic zirconia. [New Latin, from ZIRCON.]

zir-co-ni-um (zûr-kō’nē-əm) n. Symbol Zr A lustrous, grayish-white, strong, ductile metallic element obtained primarily from zircon and used chiefly in ceramic and refractory compounds, as an alloying agent, and in nuclear reactors as a highly corrosion-resistant alloy. Atomic number 40; atomic weight 91.22; melting point 1,852°C; boiling point 3,578°C; specific gravity 6.56 (20°C); valence 2, 3, 4.

zirconium oxide (zûr-kō’nē-əm ők’sīd’) n. A hard white amorphous powder, ZrO_2 , derived from zirconium and also found naturally, used chiefly in pigments, refractories, and ceramics and as an abrasive.

zit (zĭt) n. Slang. A pimple. [Origin unknown.]

zith-er (zĭth’ər, zĭth’-) also zith-ern (-ərn) n. Music. An instrument composed of a flat sound box with about 30 to 40 strings stretched over it and played horizontally with the fingertips or a plectrum. [German, from Middle High German zitter*, from Old High German zitera, from Latin cithara, cithara, from Greek kithara.] —zith’er-ist n.

zi-ti (zē’tē) n. Medium-sized tubular pasta. [Italian, from pl. of zito, boy.]

zi-zith (tsē-tsēt’, tsĭt’sĭs) pl.n. Judaism. The tassels or fringes of thread on the corners of a garment, especially a prayer shawl, worn by men as prescribed by ritual law. [Hebrew šĭšĭt.]

Žiž·ka (zhish'kə, -kä), Count Jan. 1376?-1424. Bohemian military leader who commanded the Hussite forces (1420-1424) during the Hussite Wars against Catholic forces.

Zl abbr. Zloty.

Zla·to·ust (zlä'tə-ōōst', zlə-) A city of western Russia in the southern Ural Mountains west of Chelyabinsk. It is a rail junction and metallurgical center. Population, 204,000.

Z line (zē' līn) n. Any of the dark, thin protein bands to which actin filaments are attached in a striated muscle fiber and that mark the boundaries of adjoining contractile units.

zlo·ty (zlô'tē) n. pl. zloty or zlo·tys. Abbr. Zl A basic unit of currency in Poland. See Table at currency. [Polish złoty, golden, zloty, from złoto, gold. See ghel² in Appendix.]

Zn The symbol for the element zinc.

zo- pref. Variant of zoo-.

zo·a (zō'ə) n. A plural of zoon¹.

zo·ar·i·um (zō-âr'ē-əm) n. pl. zo·ar·i·ums also zo·ar·i·a (-ē-ə). The aggregate of zooids that make up a colonial or compound organism. —zo·ar'·i·al (-ē-əl) adj.

zo·ca·lo (sō'kə-lō', sô'-) n. pl. zo·ca·los. A town square or plaza, especially in Mexico. [American Spanish zócalo, from Spanish, socle, from Italian zoccolo. See SOCLE.]

zo·di·ac (zō'dē-ăk') n. 1. a. Astronomy. A band of the celestial sphere extending about 8° to either side of the ecliptic that represents the path of the principal planets, the moon, and the sun. b. In astrology, this band divided into 12 equal parts called signs, each 30° wide, bearing the name of a constellation for which it was originally named but with which it no longer coincides owing to the precession of the equinoxes. c. A diagram or figure representing the zodiac. 2. A complete circuit; a circle. [Middle English, from Old French zodiaque, from Latin zōdiacus, from Greek zōidiakos (kuklos), (circle) of the zodiac, from zōidion, small represented figure, zodiacal sign, diminutive of zōion, living being. See ZOON¹.] —zo·di'·a·cal (-dī'ə-kəl) adj.

zodiacal light (zō-dī'ə-kəl līt) n. A faint, hazy cone of light, often visible in the west just after sunset or in the east just before sunrise, apparently caused by the reflection of sunlight from meteoric particles in the plane of the ecliptic.

zo·e·a (zō-ē'ə) n. pl. zo·e·ae (-ē'ē) or zo·e·as. A larval form of crabs and other decapod crustaceans, characterized by one or more spines on the carapace and rudimentary limbs on the abdomen and thorax. [New Latin, from Greek zōē, life. See AZO-.]

zof·tig (zäf'tik, -tīg) adj. Variant of zaf·tig.

Zog I (zōg), 1895-1961. King of Albania (1928-1946) who fled the country after Italy's invasion (1939) and later abdicated.

-zoic suff. 1. Relating to a specified manner of animal existence: holozoic. 2. Of or relating to a specified geologic era: Archeozoic. [From Greek zōikos, of animals, from zōion, living being. See g^wei- in Appendix.]

zoi·site (zoi'sīt') n. A gray, brown, or pink mineral, $\text{Ca}_2\text{Al}_3(\text{SiO}_4)_3(\text{OH})$, used in ornamental stonework. [German Zoisit, after Baron Sigismund Zois von Edelstein (1747-1819), Slovenian noble.]

Zo·la (zō'lə, zō-lä'), Émile. 1840-1902. French writer and critic who was a leading proponent of naturalism in fiction. His works include Les Rougon-Macquart (1871-1893), a series of 20 novels, and "J'Accuse" (1898), a letter in defense of Alfred Dreyfus.

zom·bie also zom·bi (zöm'bē) n. pl. zom·bies also zom·bis. 1. A snake god of voodoo cults in West Africa, Haiti, and the southern United States. 2. a. A supernatural power or spell that according to voodoo belief can enter into and reanimate a corpse. b. A corpse revived in this way. 3. One who looks or behaves like an automaton. 4. A tall mixed drink made of various rums, liqueur, and fruit juice. [Caribbean French, and English Creole from Kimbundu n-zumbi, ghost, departed spirit.]

zo·nal (zō'nəl) also zo·na·ry (-nə-rē) adj. 1. Of or associated with a zone. 2. Divided into zones. —zo'nal·ly adv.

zo·na pel·lu·ci·da (zō'nə pə-lōō'sī-də, pël-yōō'-) n. The thick, solid, transparent outer membrane of a developed mammalian ovum. Also called oolemma [New Latin zōna pellūcida: Latin zōna, belt, girdle + Latin pellūcidus, transparent.]

zo·na·ry (zō'nə-rē) adj. Variant of zonal.

zo·nate (zō'nāt') also zo·nat·ed (-nā'tīd) adj. Having zones; belted, striped, or ringed.

zo·na·tion (zō-nā'shən) n. 1. Arrangement or formation in zones; zonate structure. 2. Ecology. The distribution of organisms in biogeographic zones.

zone (zōn) n. Abbr. z. 1. An area or a region distinguished from adjacent parts by a distinctive feature or characteristic. 2. a. Any of the five regions of the surface of the earth that are loosely divided according to prevailing climate and latitude, including the Torrid Zone, the North and South Temperate zones, and the North and South Frigid zones. b. A similar division on any other planet.

c. Mathematics. A portion of a sphere bounded by the intersections of two parallel planes with the sphere. 3. Ecology. An area characterized by distinct physical conditions and populated by communities of certain kinds of organisms.

4. Anatomy. A ringlike or cylindrical growth or structure. 5. Geology. A region or stratum distinguished by composition or content. 6. A section of an area or a territory established for a specific purpose, as a section of a city restricted to a particular type of building, enterprise, or activity: a residential zone. See Synonyms at area. 7. An area of a given radius within which a uniform rate is charged, as for transportation or shipping. 8. Computer Science. a. A region on a punch card or on magnetic tape in which nondigital information is recorded. b. A section of storage to be used for a particular purpose. 9. Archaic. A belt or girdle. — v. tr. zoned, zon·ing, zones. 1. To divide into zones. 2. To designate or mark off into zones. 3. To surround or encircle with or as if with a belt or girdle. [Latin zōna, girdle, from Greek zōnē.]

zone melting (zōn mēl'ting) n. A purification technique for crystalline substances in which a heating system passes slowly over a bar of the material to be refined, creating a molten region that carries impurities with it across the bar.

Also called zone refining zone of accumulation (zōn ūv ə-kyōm'yə-lā'shən) n. Geology. See B-horizon.

zone of illuviation (zōn ūv ĭ-lōō'vē-ā'shən) n. Geology. See B-horizon.

zone of leach·ing (zōn ūv lē'ching) n. Geology. See A-horizon.

zone re·fin·ing (zōn rī-fī'nīng) n. See zone melting.

zone·time (zōn'tīm') n. Nautical. The standard time throughout a time zone that is the actual time at the meridian on which the time zone is based.

zonk (zōngk, zōngk) v. zonked, zonk·ing, zonks. Slang. — v. tr. 1. To stupefy; stun. 2. To intoxicate with drugs or alcohol: “zonk their patients with tranquilizers” (Psychology Today). — v. intr. To become intoxicated with drugs or alcohol. [Origin unknown.]

zon·ule (zōn'yōōl) n. A small zone, as of a ligament.

ZOO (zōō) *n. pl. zoos. 1. A park or an institution in which living animals are kept and usually exhibited to the public. Also called zoological garden 2. Slang. A place or situation marked by confusion or disorder: The bus station is a zoo on Fridays. [Short for ZOOLOGICAL GARDEN.]*

ZOO- or zo- pref. 1. Animal; animal kingdom: zoography. 2. Motile: zoospore. [Greek zōo-, zōio-, from zōion, living being. See g^wei- in Appendix.]

zo·o·chlor·el·la (zō'ə-klə-rēl'ə) n. pl. zo·o·chlor·el·las also zo·o·chlor·el·lae (-klə-rēl'ē). Any of numerous unicellular green algae that live symbiotically within the cells of other organisms, especially those of many freshwater invertebrates.

zo·o·chore (zō'ə-kôr', -kōr') n. A plant dispersed by animals.

zo·o·flag·el·late (zō'ə-flāj'ə-līt, -lāt') n. A flagellated protist that ingests food and lacks chlorophyll.

zo·o·gen·ic (zō'ə-jěn'ik) also zo·og·e·nous (zō-ōj'ə-nəs) adj. Originating in or produced by animals.

zo·o·ge·og·ra·phy (zō'ə-jē-ōg'rə-fē) n. The biological study of the geographic distribution of animals, especially the causes and effects of such distribution. —zo' o-ge-og'ra-pher n. —zo' o-ge' o-graph'ic (-ə-gräf'ik), zo' o-ge' o-graph'i-cal (-ĩ-kəl) adj. —zo' o-ge' o-graph'i-cal-ly adv.

zo-o-gle-a also zo-o-gloe-a (zō'ə-glē'ə) n. pl. zo-o-gle-ae (-glē'ē') or zo-o-gle-as also zo-o-gloe-ae (-glē'ē') or zo-o-gloe-as. An aggregate of bacteria forming a jellylike mass with cell walls swollen by the absorption of water or other fluid. [ZOO- + New Latin gloea, gum (from Medieval Greek gloia, glia, gum, glue, from Greek gloios.)] —zo' o-gle'al adj.

zo-og-ra-phy (zō-ög'rə-fē) n. The biological description of animals and their habitats. —zo' o-graph'ic (-ə-gräf'ik), zo' o-graph'i-cal (-ĩ-kəl) adj.

zo-oid (zō'oid') n. 1. Biology. a. An organic cell or organized body that has independent movement within a living organism, especially a motile gamete such as a spermatozoon. b. An independent animallike organism produced asexually, as by budding or fission. 2. Zoology. One of the distinct individuals forming a colonial animal such as a bryozoan or hydrozoan. —zo-oid'al (-oid'l) adj.

zoo-keep-er (zōō'kē'pər) n. One who takes care of animals in a zoo.

zool. abbr. Zoological; zoology.

zo-ol-a-try (zō-öl'ə-trē) n. Worship of animals. —zo-ol'a-ter n. —zo-ol'a-trous adj.

zo-o-log-i-cal (zō'ə-lōj'ĩ-kəl) also zo-o-log-ic (-lōj'ik) adj. Abbr. zool. 1. Of or relating to animals or animal life. 2. Of or relating to the science of zoology. —zo' o-log'i-cal-ly adv.

zoological garden (zō'ə-lōj'ĩ-kəl gār'dn) n. See zoo (n., sense 1).

zo-ol-o-gy (zō-öl'ə-jē) n. pl. zo-ol-o-gies. Abbr. zool. 1. The branch of biology that deals with animals and animal life, including the study of the structure, physiology, development, and classification of animals. 2. The animal life of a particular area or period: the zoology of Alaska; the zoology of the Pleistocene. 3. The characteristics of a particular animal group or category: the zoology of mammals. 4. A book or scholarly work on zoology. —zo-ol'o-gist n.

zoom (zōōm) v. zoomed, zoom-ing, zooms. — v. intr. 1. a. To make a continuous low-pitched buzzing or humming sound. b. To move while making such a sound. 2. To climb suddenly and sharply. Used of an airplane. 3. To move about rapidly; swoop. 4. a. To move a camera lens rapidly toward or away from a subject. b. To simulate such a movement, as by means of a zoom lens. — v. tr. To cause to zoom. — n. The act or sound of zooming. [Imitative.]

zo-om-e-try (zō-öm'ĩ-trē) n. pl. zo-om-e-tries. Measurement and comparison of the sizes and proportions of animals or animal parts. —zo' o-met'ric (-ə-mět'rik), zo' o-met'ri-cal (-ri-kəl) adj. —zo' o-met'ri-cal-ly adv.

zoom lens (zōōm lěnz) n. A camera lens whose focal length can be rapidly changed, allowing rapid change in the size of an image.

zo-o-mor-phism (zō'ə-môr'fiz'əm) n. 1. Attribution of animal characteristics or qualities to a god. 2. Use of animal forms in symbolism, literature, or graphic representation. —zo'o-mor'phic adj.

zo-on¹ (zō'ôn') n. pl. zo-ons or zo-a (zō'ə). 1. An animal developed from a fertilized egg. 2. One of the distinct individuals that join to form a compound or colonial animal; a zooid. [New Latin zōon, from Greek zōion, zōon, living being. See g^wei- in Appendix.]

zoon² (zōon) v. intr. zooned, zoon-ing, zoons. Chiefly Southern U.S. To fly with a humming or buzzing sound. [Probably imitative.]

-zoon suff. Animal; independently moving organic unit: spermatozoon. [New Latin -zōon, from Greek zōion, zōon, living being. See g^wei- in Appendix.]

zo-on-o-sis (zō-ôn'ə-sis) n. pl. zo-on-o-ses (-sēz'). A disease of animals, such as rabies or psittacosis, that can be transmitted to human beings. [New Latin : ZOO- + -nosis alteration (influenced by -OSIS), of Greek nosos, disease.]

zo-o-par-a-site (zō'ə-pär'ə-sīt') n. A parasitic animal. —zo'o-par-a-sit'ic (-sīt'ik) adj.

zo-oph-a-gous (zō-ōf'ə-gəs) adj. Feeding on animal matter.

zo-o-phile (zō'ə-fīl') n. A lover of animals, especially one opposed to vivisection.

zo-oph-i-lism (zō-ōf'ə-līz'əm) also zo-oph-i-ly (-ə-lē) or zo-o-phil-i-a (zō'ə-fīl'ē-ə) n. Attraction to or affinity for animals. —zo'o-phil'ic (zō'ə-fīl'ik) adj.

zo-oph-i-lous (zō-ōf'ə-ləs) adj. Botany. Pollinated by animals.

zo-oph-i-ly (zō-ōf'ə-lē) n. Variant of zoophilism.

zo-o-pho-bi-a (zō'ə-fō'bē-ə) n. An abnormal fear of animals.

—zo'o-phobe' (-fōb') n.

zo-o-phyte (zō'ə-fīt') n. Any of various invertebrate animals, such as a sea anemone or sponge, that attach to surfaces and superficially resemble plants.

—zo'o-phyt'ic (-fīt'ik), zo'o-phyt'i-cal (-ī-kəl) adj.

zo-o-plank-ter (zō'ə-plängk'tər) n. One of the animal organisms constituting zooplankton.

zo-o-plank-ton (zō'ə-plängk'tən) n. Plankton that consists of animals, including the corals, rotifers, sea anemones, and jellyfish. —zo'o-plank-ton'ic (-tön'ik) adj.

zo-o-plas-ty (zō'ə-pläs'tē) n. pl. zo-o-plas-ties. Surgical transfer of tissue from an animal to a human being. —zo'o-plas'tic adj.

zo-o-sperm (zō'ə-spûrm') n. See spermatozoon.

zo-o-spo-ran-gi-um (zō'ə-spə-răn'jē-əm) n. pl. zo-o-spo-ran-gi-a (-jē-ə). A sporangium in which zoospores develop.

zo-o-spore (zō'ə-spôr', -spôr') n. A motile, flagellated asexual spore, as of certain algae and fungi. Also called swarm spore —zo'o-spor'ic (-spôr'ik, -spör'-), zo'o-spor'ous (zō'ə-spôr'əs, -spör'-, zō-ös'pər-əs) adj.

- zo-os-ter-ol (zō-ös'tə-rôl', -rôl', -rôl') n. A sterol, such as cholesterol, that is produced by animals rather than plants.
- zo-o-tech-nics (zō'ə-tĕk'nĭks) n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb.) Zootechny.
- zo-o-tech-ny (zō'ə-tĕk'nĕ) n. The domestication, breeding, and improvement of animals; the technology of animal husbandry. [ZOO- + Greek tekhne, art; see TECHNICAL.] —zo'o-tech'ni-cal adj. —zo'o-tech-ni'cian (-nĭsh'ən) n.
- zo-ot-o-my (zō-öt'ə-mĕ) n. pl. zo-ot-o-mies. 1. The anatomy of animals. 2. Dissection of animals. —zo'o-tom'ic (zō'ə-tŏm'ĭk), zo'o-tom'i-cal (-ĭ-kəl) adj. —zo-ot'o-mist n.
- zo-o-tox-in (zō'ə-tŏk'sĭn) n. A toxin of animal origin.
- zoot suit (zōöt sōöt) n. Slang. A man's suit popular during the early 1940's, characterized by full-legged, tight-cuffed trousers and a long coat with wide lapels and heavily padded, wide shoulders. [Probably from an alteration of SUIT.] —zoot'suit'er (zōöt'sōō'tər) n.
- zo-o-xan-thel-la (zō'ə-zăn-thĕl'ə) n. pl. zo-o-xan-thel-lae (-thĕl'ĕ). Any of various yellow-green algae that live symbiotically within the cells of other organisms, such as those of certain radiolarians and marine invertebrates. [New Latin : ZOO- + XANTH(O)- + -ella, diminutive suff.]
- Zor-ach (zō'rāk', -rāk', -rākH'), William. 1887-1966. Lithuanian-born American sculptor whose simple, monumental works include Builders of the Future (1939).
- zo-ri (zôr'ĕ, zôr'ĕ) n. pl. zori or zo-ris. A flat sandal with thongs, usually made of straw or leather. [Japanese zōri : sō, grass, straw + ri, sole.]
- zor-ille also zor-il (zôr'ĭl, zŏr'-) or zo-ril-la (zə-rĭl'ə) n. A carnivorous African mammal (Ictonyx striatus) related to the weasel but resembling the skunk in appearance and in its method of defense. [French, from Spanish zorriillo, skunk, diminutive of zorro, fox, from Old Spanish, idler, vagabond, fox.]
- Zorn (sôrn, zôrn), Anders Leonhard. 1860-1920. Swedish artist noted for his sculptures and his paintings and etchings of landscapes, nudes, and genre scenes.
- Zo-ro-as-ter (zôr'ō-ăs'tər, zôr'-) also Zar-a-thu-stra (zăr'ə-thōō'strə), Sixth century B.C. Persian prophet who founded Zoroastrianism. Little is known about his life.
- Zo-ro-as-tri-an-ism (zôr'ō-ăs'trĕ-ə-nĭz'əm) n. The religious system founded in Persia by Zoroaster and set forth in the Zend-Avesta, teaching the worship of Ormazd in the context of a universal struggle between the forces of light and of darkness. —Zo-ro-as'tri-an adj. & n.
- Zor-ril-la y Mo-ral (zə-rĕ'ə ĕ mə-räl', thô-rĕ'lyă ĕ mô-räl'), José. 1817-1893. Spanish writer whose romantic works include the play Don Juan Tenorio (1844) and the unfinished narrative poem Granada (1852).
- zos-ter (zŏs'tər) n. 1. A belt or girdle worn by men in ancient Greece. 2. Herpes zoster. [Greek zōstēr, girdle.]

Zou-ave (zōō-äv', zwäv) n. 1. A member of a French infantry unit, formerly composed of Algerian recruits, characterized by colorful uniforms and precision drilling. 2. A member of a group patterned after the French Zouaves, especially a member of such a unit of the Union Army in the U.S. Civil War. [French, from Berber Zwāwa, an Algerian tribe.]

zounds (zoundz) interj. Used to express anger, surprise, or indignation. [Shortening and alteration of God's wounds!.]

zoy-sia (zoi'shə, -zhə, -sē-ə, -zē-ə) n. Any of several creeping grasses of the genus Zoysia, native to southeast Asia and New Zealand and widely cultivated for lawns. [New Latin Zoysia, genus name, after Karl von Zois zu Laubach (1756-1800?), Austrian botanist.]

Zp abbr. Bible. Zephaniah.

Z particle (zē' pār'tī-kəl) n. A massive elementary particle, electrically neutral, that is the quantum of weak interactions in which the charges of participating particles do not change.

ZPG abbr. Zero population growth.

Zr The symbol for the element zirconium.

Z score (zē' skôr) n. Statistics. A measure of the distance in standard deviations of a sample from the mean.

Zsig-mon-dy (zhīg'môn-dē), Richard Adolf. 1865-1929. German chemist. He won a 1925 Nobel Prize for work on colloid solutions.

zuc-chet-to (zōō-kēt'ō, tsōōk-kēt'tô) n. pl. zuc-chet-tos. Roman Catholic Church. A skullcap worn by clerics, varying in color with the rank of the wearer. [Italian, variant of zucchetta, diminutive of zucca, gourd, head. See ZUCCHINI.]

zuc-chi-ni (zōō-kē'nē) n. pl. zucchini or zuc-chi-nis. A variety of squash having an elongated shape and a smooth, thin, dark green rind. [Italian, pl. of zucchini diminutive of zucca, gourd, from Late Latin cucutia.]

Zug-spit-ze (zōōg'spīt-sə, tsōōk'shpīt-) A mountain, 2,964.9 m (9,721 ft) high, in the Bavarian Alps of south-central Germany. It is the highest peak in the range.

Zug-un-ru-he (tsōōk'ōōn-rōō'hə) n. The migratory drive in animals, especially birds. [German : Zug, a pulling, move, migration; see ZUGZWANG + Unruhe, unrest (from Middle High German unruowe, from Old High German unruowa : un-, not; see ne in Appendix + ruowa, rest).]

zug-zwang (tsōōk'tsväng') n. Games. A situation in a chess game in which a player is forced to make an undesirable or disadvantageous move. [German Zugzwang : Zug, pull, move (from Middle High German zuc, pull, from Old High German, from ziohan, to pull); see deuk- in Appendix + Zwang, compulsion (from Middle High German twanc, from Old High German).]

Zui-der Zee (zī'dər zē', zā', zoi'dər zā') A former shallow inlet of the North Sea in northeast Netherlands. Originally a lake, it was joined with the North Sea by heavy flooding. A dike, completed in 1932, turned the southern section into the IJsselmeer, which has largely been reclaimed for agriculture.

Zuk·er·man (zōō'kər-mən), Pinchas. Born 1948. Israeli violinist noted particularly for his performance of chamber music.

Zu·lu (zōō'lōō) n. pl. Zulu or Zu·lus. 1. A member of a Bantu people of southeast Africa, primarily inhabiting northeast Natal province in South Africa.

2. The Nguni language of this people, closely related to Xhosa. —Zu'lu adj.

Zu·lu·land (zōō'lōō-länd') A historical region of northeast South Africa. Settled by members of a Bantu nation, it was annexed by the British in 1887.

Zu·ni (zōō'nē) also Zu·ñi (-nyē, -nē) n. pl. Zuni or Zu·nis also Zuñi or Zu·ñis.

1. a. A Pueblo people located in western New Mexico. b. A member of this people. 2. The language of the Zuni.

Zu·ni·an (zōō'nē-ən) or Zu·ñi·an (zōōn'yē-) n. A language family consisting only of Zuni. —Zu'ni·an, Zu'ñi·an adj.

Zur·ba·rán (zōōr'bä-rän', thōōr'-), Francisco de. 1598-1664. Spanish painter noted for his simple naturalism. His works include still lifes and religious scenes, such as The Adoration of the Shepherds (1638).

Zu·rich (zōōr'ĭk) A city of northeast Switzerland at the northern tip of the Lake of Zurich. Founded before Roman times, Zurich became a free imperial city after 1218 and joined the Swiss Confederation in 1351. In the 16th century it was a center of the Swiss Reformation under the leadership of Ulrich Zwingli. Today it is the largest city in the country. Population, 354,500.

Zweig (zwīg, swīg, tsvĭk), Arnold. 1887-1968. German-born writer. A Zionist, he wrote about Judaism, the persecution of the Jews, and war. His works include the novel The Case of Sergeant Grischa (1927).

Zweig (zwīg, swīg, tsvĭk), Stefan. 1881-1942. Austrian writer of poetry, fiction, and sensitive psychoanalytic biographies, notably Three Masters (1920), a study of Balzac, Dickens, and Dostoyevsky.

Zwick·au (zwĭk'ou, tsvĭk'-) A city of east-central Germany south of Leipzig. Chartered in the early 13th century, it was a free imperial city from 1290 to 1323. Population, 120,486.

zwie·back (swē'bäck', -bäk', swī'-, zwē'-, zwī'-) n. A usually sweetened bread baked first as a loaf and later cut into slices and toasted. [German : zwie-, twice (from Middle High German zwi-, from Old High German); see dwo- in Appendix + backen, to bake (from Middle High German, from Old High German bahan, backan).]

Zwing·li (zwĭng'lē, swĭng'-, tsvĭng'-), Ulrich or Huldreich. 1484-1531. Swiss religious reformer whose sermons on the absolute authority of the Bible (1519) marked the beginning of the Reformation in Switzerland.

Zwing·li·an (zwĭng'lē-ən, swĭng'-, tsvĭng'-) adj. Of or relating to Ulrich Zwingli or to his theological system, especially his doctrine that the physical body of Jesus is not present in the Eucharist and that the ceremony is merely a symbolic commemoration of Jesus's death. — n. A follower of Zwingli.

—Zwing'li-an-ism n.

zwit·ter·i·on (zwīt'ər-ī'ən, swīt'-, tsvīt'-) n. Physics. A molecule carrying both a positive and a negative charge. [German : Zwitter, hybrid (from Middle High German zwitarn, from Old High German, from zwi-, twice); see dwo- in Appendix + ion, ion (from Greek); see ION.] —zwit'ter·i·on'ic (-ī-ōn'ik) adj.

Zwol·le (zwôl'ə, zvôl'ə) A city of northern Netherlands on the Ijssel River. Thomas à Kempis lived at a monastery nearby for more than 60 years. Population, 87,340.

Zwor·y·kin (zwôr'ī-kīn, zvôr'yə-), Vladimir Kosma. 1889-1982. Russian-born American physicist and inventor of the iconoscope (1923), the first practical television camera.

zy·de·co (zī'dī-kō') n. Music. Popular music of southern Louisiana that combines French dance melodies, elements of Caribbean music, and the blues, played by small groups featuring the guitar, the accordion, and a washboard. [From Louisiana French, possibly alteration of Les haricots (sont pas salé), name of a song, pl. of French haricot, bean. See HARICOT¹.]

zyg- pref. Variant of zygo-.

zyg·a·poph·y·sis (zīg'ə-pŏf'ī-sīs, zī'gə-) n. pl. zyg·a·poph·y·ses (-sēz'). One of two usually paired processes of the neural arch of a vertebra that articulates with corresponding parts of adjacent vertebrae. —zyg'ap·o·phys'e·al, zyg'ap·o·phys'i·al (zīg'əp-ə-fiz'ē-əl, zī'gəp-) adj.

zygo- or zyg- pref. 1. Yoke; pair: zygodactyl. 2. Union: zygospore. [New Latin, from Greek zugō-, from zugon, yoke. See yeug- in Appendix.]

zy·go·dac·tyl (zī'gə-dāk'tīl, zīg'ə-) adj. Having two toes projecting forward and two projecting backward, as certain climbing birds. — n. A zygodactyl bird, such as a parrot.

zy·go·dac·ty·lous (zī'gə-dāk'tə-ləs, zīg'ə-) adj. Zygodactyl.

zy·go·gen·e·sis (zī'gō-jěn'ī-sīs) n. pl. zy·go·gen·e·ses (-sēz'). Reproduction involving the formation of a zygote. —zy'go·ge·net'ic (-jə-nēt'ik) adj.

zy·go·ma (zī-gō'mə, zī-) n. pl. zy·go·ma·ta (-mə-tə) or zy·go·mas. 1. The zygomatic bone. 2. The zygomatic arch. 3. The zygomatic process. [New Latin zygōma, zygōmat-, from Greek zugōma, bolt, from zugoun, to join. See yeug- in Appendix.]

zy·go·mat·ic (zī'gə-măt'ik, zīg'ə-) adj. Of, relating to, or located in the area of the zygoma: a zygomatic muscle.

zygomatic arch (zī'gə-măt'ik ärch) n. The bony arch in vertebrates that extends along the side or front of the skull beneath the eye socket and that is formed by the zygomatic bone and the zygomatic process of the temporal bone.

zygomatic bone (zī'gə-măt'ik bōn) n. A small bone in vertebrates on each side of the face socket, forming the prominence of the cheek. Also called cheek-bone zygomatic process (zī'gə-măt'ik prōs'ēs') n. Any of three processes that articulate with the zygomatic bone, especially the process from the temporal bone that articulates to form the zygomatic arch.

zy-go-mor-phic (zī'gə-môr'fĭk, zĭg'ə-) also zy-go-mor-phous (-fəs) adj.

Bilaterally symmetrical. Used of organisms or parts. —zy'go-mor'phism n.

zy-go-sis (zī-gō'sĭs, zĭ-) n. pl. zy-go-ses (-sēz). The union of gametes to form a zygote; conjugation.

zy-gos-i-ty (zī-gōs'ĭ-tē) n. The genetic condition of a zygote, especially with respect to its being a homozygote or a heterozygote.

zy-go-spore (zī'gə-spôr', -spôr', zĭg'ə-) n. A large multinucleate spore formed by union of similar gametes, as in algae or fungi.

zy-gote (zī'gōt') n. 1. The cell formed by the union of two gametes, especially a fertilized ovum before cleavage. 2. The organism that develops from a zygote.

[From Greek zugōtos, yoked, from zugoun, to yoke. See yeug- in Appendix.]

—zy-got'ic (-gōt'ĭk) adj. —zy-got'i-cal-ly adv.

zy-go-tene (zī'gə-tēn') n. The stage in prophase of meiosis during which homologous chromosomes become paired. [French zygotène: zygo-, pair (from New Latin); see ZYGO- + -tène, ribbon (from Latin taenia); see TAENIA.]

-zygous suff. Having a zygotic constitution of a specified kind: heterozygous.

[From Greek -zugos, yoked, from zugon, yoke. See yeug- in Appendix.]

zym- pref. Variant of zymo-.

zym-ase (zī'mās', -māz') n. The enzyme complex in yeasts that catalyzes the breakdown of sugar into alcohol and carbon dioxide.

-zyme suff. Enzyme: lysozyme. [From Greek zumē, leaven.]

zymo- or zym- pref. 1. Fermentation: zymurgy. 2. Enzyme: zymogram. [New Latin, from Greek zumē, leaven.]

zy-mo-gen (zī'mə-jən) n. See proenzyme.

zy-mo-gen-ic (zī'mə-jĕn'ĭk) also zy-mog-e-nous (zī-mōj'ə-nəs) adj. 1. Of or relating to a zymogen. 2. Capable of causing fermentation. 3. Enzyme-producing.

zy-mo-gram (zī'mə-grām') n. A strip or band of electrophoretic medium showing the pattern of enzymes or isoenzymes after their separation by electrophoresis.

zy-mol-o-gy (zī-mōl'ə-jē) n. The chemistry of fermentation.

—zy'mo-log'ic (-mə-lōj'ĭk), zy'mo-log'i-cal (-ĭ-kəl) adj. —zy-mol'o-gist n.

zy-mol-y-sis (zī-mōl'ĭ-sĭs) n. Fermentation. —zy'mo-lyt'ic (-mə-lĭt'ĭk) adj.

zy-mom-e-ter (zī-mōm'ĭ-tər) n. See zymoscope.

zy·mo·san (zī'mə-săn') n. An insoluble carbohydrate from the cell wall of yeast, used especially in the immunoassay of properdin. [ZYMOS(IS) + -AN².]

zy·mo·scope (zī'mə-skōp') n. An instrument used to determine fermentation efficiency by measurement of carbon dioxide produced. Also called zymometer zy·mo·sis (zī-mō'sis) n. pl. zy·mo·ses (-sēz). 1. Fermentation. 2. Medicine.

a. The process of infection. b. An infectious disease, especially one caused by a fungus. [Greek zumōsis, from zumoun, to leaven, from zumē, leaven.]

—zy·mot'ic (-mōt'ik) adj. —zy·mot'i·cal·ly adv.

zy·mur·gy (zī'mûr'jē) n. The branch of chemistry that deals with fermentation processes, as in brewing.

zyz·zy·va (zīz'ə-və) n. Any of various tropical American weevils of the genus Zyzyva, often destructive to plants. [New Latin Zyzyva, genus name, probably from Zyzza, former genus of leafhoppers.]

INDO-EUROPEAN AND THE INDO-EUROPEANS

CALVERT WATKINS

After the initial identification of a prehistoric language underlying the modern Indo-European family and the foundation of the science of comparative linguistics, the detailed reconstruction of Proto-Indo-European proceeded by stages still fascinating to observe. The main outlines of the reconstructed language were already seen by the end of the 1870's, but it was only during the course of the 20th century that certain of these features received general acceptance. The last decades of the 20th century have happily witnessed a resurgence of Indo-European studies, catalyzed by advances in linguistic theory and by an increase in the available data, which have resulted in a picture of the reconstructed protolanguage that is, in a word, "tighter." The grammar of Indo-European today is more tightly organized and more sharply focused, at all levels. There are fewer loose ends, fewer hazy areas, and those that do remain are more clearly identified as such. New etymologies continue to be made, and older etymologies undergo revision to incorporate new evidence or better analyses. The attention to detail in reconstruction in this revised Roots Appendix reflects these ongoing developments in the field: Indo-European studies are alive with excitement, growth, and change.

AN EXAMPLE OF RECONSTRUCTION

Before proceeding with a survey of the lexicon and culture of the Indo-Europeans (see "Lexicon and Culture"), it may be helpful to give a concrete illustration of the method used to reconstruct the Proto-Indo-European vocabulary, followed by a brief description of some of the main features of the Proto-Indo-European language. This example will serve as an introduction to the comparative method and indicate as well the high degree of precision that the techniques of reconstruction permit.

A number of Indo-European languages show a similar word for the kinship term “daughter-in-law”: Sanskrit snusā, Old English snoru, Old Church Slavonic snŭkha (Russian snokhá), Latin nurus, Greek nuós, and Armenian nu. All of these forms, called cognates, provide evidence for the phonetic shape of the prehistoric Indo-European word for “daughter-in-law” that is their common ancestor. Sanskrit, Germanic, and Slavic agree in showing an Indo-European word that began with sn-. We know that an Indo-European s was lost before n in other words in Latin, Greek, and Armenian, so we can confidently assume that Latin nurus, Greek nuós, and Armenian nu also go back to an Indo-European sn-*. (Compare Latin nix [stem niv-], “snow,” with English SNOW, which preserves the s.) This principle is spoken of as the regularity of sound correspondences; it is basic to the sciences of etymology and comparative linguistics.

Sanskrit, Latin, Greek, and Armenian agree in showing the first vowel as -u-. We know from other examples that Slavic ŭ regularly corresponds to Sanskrit u and that in this position Germanic o (of Old English snoru) has been changed from an earlier u. It is thus justifiable to reconstruct an Indo-European word beginning snu-*.

For the consonant originally following snu-*, closer analysis is required. The key is furnished first by the Sanskrit form, for we know there is a rule in Sanskrit that s always changes to ṣ (a sh-like sound) after the vowel u. Therefore a Sanskrit snus- must go back to an earlier snus-*. In the same position, after u, an old s changes to kh (like the ch in Scottish loch or German ach) in Slavic; hence the Slavic word, too, reflects snus-*. In Latin always, and in Germanic under certain conditions, an old -s- between vowels went to -r-. For this reason Latin nurus and Old English snoru may go back to older snus-* (followed by a vowel) as well. In Greek and Armenian, on the other hand, an old -s- between vowels disappeared entirely, as we know from numerous instances. Greek nuós and Armenian nu (stem nuo-) thus regularly presuppose the same earlier form, snus-* (followed by a vowel). All the comparative evidence agrees, then, on the Indo-European root form snus-*.

For the ending, the final vowels of Sanskrit snusā, Old English snoru, and Slavic snŭkha all presuppose earlier -ā (snus-ā*), which is the ordinary feminine ending of these languages. On the other hand, Latin nurus, Greek nuós, and Armenian nu (stem nuo-) all regularly presuppose the earlier ending -os* (snus-os*). We have an apparent impasse; but the way out is given by the gender of the forms in Greek and Latin. They are feminine, even though most nouns in Latin -us and Greek -os are masculine.

Feminine nouns in Latin -us and Greek -os, since they are an abnormal type, cannot have been created afresh; they must have been inherited. This suggests that the original Indo-European form was snusos*, of feminine gender. On the other hand, the commonplace freely-formed ending for feminine nouns was -ā*. It is reasonable to suggest that the three languages Sanskrit, Germanic, and Slavic replaced the peculiar feminine ending -os* (because that ending was normally masculine) with the normal ordinary feminine ending -ā*, and thus that the oldest form of the word was snusos* (feminine).

One point remains to be ascertained: the accent. Of those four language groups that reflect the Indo-European accent, Sanskrit, (Balto-)Slavic, Greek, and Germanic, the first three are agreed in showing a form accented on the last syllable: snusā́, snokhá, nuós. The Germanic form is equally precise, however, since the rule is that old -s- went to -r- (Old English snoru) only if the accented syllable came after the -s-.

On this basis we may add the finishing touch to our reconstruction: the full form of the word for “daughter-in-law” in Indo-European is snusós*.

It is noteworthy that no single language in the family preserves this word intact. In every language, in every tradition in the Indo-European family, the word has been somehow altered from its original shape. It is the comparative method that permits us to explain the different forms in this variety of languages by the reconstruction of a unitary common prototype, a common ancestor.

PROTO-INDO-EUROPEAN GRAMMAR: SOUNDS AND FORMS

A large part of the success of the comparative method with the Indo-European family is due to the number and the precision of the agreements among the languages, not only in the regular sound correspondences of the roots but even more strikingly so in the particulars of morphology, the forms of language in their grammatical function. Consider the partial paradigms of the words for “dog” (kwon-) and “to kill” (g^when-):

	Hittite	Greek	Vedic
nominative	kuwas	kúōn	ś(u)vá
accusative	kuwanan	kúna	śvānam
genitive	kūnas	kunós	śúnas

	Lithuanian	Old Irish	Proto-Indo-European
nominative	šuo	cú	*k(u)wō(n)
accusative	šuni	coín	*kwónm̄
genitive	šun̄s	con	*kunés

	Hittite	Vedic	PIE
third singular present indicative	kuenzi	hánti	*g^whén-ti

Hittite Vedic PIE

third plural present indicative	kunanzi	ghnánti	*g ^w hn-énti
------------------------------------	----------------	----------------	-------------------------

The agreement of detail in sound correspondences, in vowel alternations and their distribution, in the accent, in the grammatical forms (endings), and in the syntactic functions is little short of astounding.

SPEECH SOUNDS AND THEIR ALTERNATIONS

The system of sounds in Proto-Indo-European was rich in stop consonants. There was an unvoiced series, p, t, k, k^w (like the qu of quick), a voiced series, b, d, g, g^w, and a voiced aspirate or “murmured” series, bh, dh, gh, g^wh, pronounced like the voiced series but followed by a puff of breath. (Some scholars would reinterpret the traditional voiced series as an unvoiced ejective, or glottalized, one. While this new “glottalic theory” accounts for some typological difficulties, it introduces more problems than it solves. In this work, as in most current handbooks, Indo-European forms appear in their traditional shape.) If the language was rich in stop consonants, it was correspondingly poor in continuants, or fricatives, such as English f, v, th, s, and z, having only s, which was voiced to z before voiced stop consonants. It had as well three so-called laryngeals or h-like sounds, all of which are written here as schwa, or ə (equivalent notations are H or h). The sound is preserved as such (at least in part) only in Hittite and the other Anatolian languages in cuneiform documents from the second millennium B.C. Compare Hittite pahs-, “to protect,” coming directly from Indo-European paə-s-* (PASTOR). In all the other languages of the family, its former presence in a word can only be deduced from indirect evidence such as the contractions discussed immediately below. Elucidation of the details of these laryngeals remains one of the most interesting problems confronting Indo-Europeanists today.

Proto-Indo-European had two nasals, m and n, two liquids, r and l, and the glides w and y. A salient characteristic of Indo-European was that these sounds could function both as consonants and as vowels. Their consonantal value was as in English. As vowels, symbolized ṛ, ṛ, ̥, and ̥, the liquids and nasals sounded much like the final syllables of English bottom, button, bottle, and butter. The vocalic counterparts of w and y were the vowels u and i. The laryngeals too could function both as consonants and as vowels: their consonantal value was that of h-like sounds, while as vowels they were varieties of schwa, much like the final syllable of English sofa; hence the choice of schwa to represent laryngeals in this Appendix.

The other vowels of Indo-European were e, o, and a. These, as well as i and u, occurred both long and short, as did the diphthongs ei, oi, ai, eu, ou, au. (All vowels are pronounced as in Latin or Italian.) Since we can distinguish chronological layers in Proto-Indo-European, it can be said that a number of the long vowels of later Indo-European resulted from the contraction of early Indo-European short vowels with a following a. Already in Proto-Indo-European itself, two of the three laryngeals had the property of “coloring” an adjacent fundamental vowel e to a and o, respectively, before the contractions took place. Thus the root pā-, “to protect,” is contracted from older paə-, with “a-coloring”; the root dō-, “to give,” is contracted from older doə-, with “o-coloring”; and the root dhē-, “to set, put,” is contracted from older dheə-*, without coloring. The fundamental vowel in each of these roots, as in most Indo-European roots, was originally e. In scholarly usage it is now customary to write the noncoloring laryngeal as ə_1 (or h_1), thus dheə₁-; the a-coloring laryngeal as ə_2 (or h_2), thus paə₂-; and the o-coloring laryngeal as ə_3 (or h_3), thus doə₃-. This typographically cumbersome notation has been simplified in the Appendix, since the vowel before the schwa is sufficient to distinguish the three in the cases of contraction to a long vowel, and in other positions in most languages other than Greek the three merge to one. No systematic notice has been taken in this Appendix of word-initial laryngeals before vowels (amply attested in Hittite), since the root forms with initial vowel are readily convertible by the student. Thus ant-, “front, forehead,” from ə₂ant-, əant-* (Hittite hant-, “front, forehead”); op-, “to work, produce in abundance,” from ə₃op-, əop- (Hittite happ-in-ant-, “rich”); and ed-, “to eat,” from ə₁ed-, əed- (Hittite ed-, “to eat”).

A characteristic feature of Indo-European was the system of vocalic alternations termed apophony or ablaut. This was a set of internal vowel changes expressing different morphological functions. A clear reflex of this feature is preserved in the English strong verbs, where, for example, the vocalic alternations between write and wrote, give and gave, express the present and past tenses. Ablaut in Indo-European affected the vowels e and o. The fundamental form was e; this e could appear as o under certain conditions, and in other conditions both e and o could disappear entirely. On this basis we speak of given forms in Indo-European as exhibiting, respectively, the e-grade (or full grade), the o-grade, or the zero grade. The e and the o might furthermore occur as long \bar{e} or \bar{o} , termed the lengthened grade.

To illustrate: the Indo-European root ped-, “foot,” appears in the e-grade in Latin ped- (PEDAL), but in the o-grade in Greek pod- (PODIATRIST). Germanic fōtuz* (FOOT) reflects the lengthened o-grade pōd-. The zero grade of the same root shows no vowel at all: pd-, a form attested in Sanskrit.

When the zero grade involved a root with one of the sounds m, n, r, l, w, or y (collectively termed resonants), the resonant would regularly appear in its vocalic function, forming a syllable. We have the e-grade root senk^w- in English SINK, the o-grade form sonk^w-* in SANK, and the zero-grade form sŋk^w-* in SUNK.

In the paradigms cited earlier, the word for “dog,” kwon-, appears in the o-grade in the accusative case kwón-(ŋ), in the zero grade in the genitive case kun-(és), and in the lengthened o-grade in the nominative case kwō(n)*. Note that the nonsyllabic resonant w appears as the vowel u when it becomes syllabic. The verb “to kill,” g^when-, appears in the e-grade in the third singular g^whén-(ti), and in the zero grade in the third plural g^whn-(énti). It appears in the o-grade g^whon-* in Germanic ban-ōn-* (BANE). The n of the zero grade g^whn-* becomes syllabic (n) before a consonant: g^whn̥(tyǎ-)* becoming Germanic gundjō* (GUN).

In the case of roots with long vowels arising from contraction with ə, the ablaut can be most clearly understood by referring to the older, uncontracted forms. Thus pā-, “to protect,” contracted from paə-, has a zero grade pə-; dō-, “to give,” contracted from doə-, has a zero grade də-; dhē-, “to place,” contracted from dheə-, has a zero grade dhə-. The fundamental vowel of the full grade disappears in the zero grade, and only the ə remains. Long ū and long ī could also arise from contraction: full grade peuə-, “to purify,” has a zero grade puə-* contracted to pū-* (PURE); full grade peiaə-, “to be fat, swell,” has a zero grade piaə-* contracted to pī-* (IRISH).

GRAMMATICAL FORMS AND SYNTAX. Proto-Indo-European was a highly inflected language. Grammatical relationships and the syntactic function of words in the sentence were indicated primarily by variations in the endings of the words. Nouns had different endings for different cases, such as the subject and the direct object of the verb, the possessive, and many other functions, and for the different numbers, namely the singular, plural, and a special dual number for objects occurring in pairs. Verbs had different endings for the different persons (first, second, third) and numbers (singular, plural, dual), for the voices active and passive (or middle, a sort of reflexive), as well as special affixes for a rich variety of tenses, moods, and categories such as causative-transitive (-éyo-) and stative-intransitive (-ē-) verbs. Practically none of this rich inflection is preserved in Modern English, but it has left its trace in many formations in Germanic and in other languages such as Latin and Greek. These are noted in the Appendix where they are relevant.

With the exception of the numbers five to ten and a group of particles including certain conjunctions and quasi-adverbial forms, all Indo-European words underwent inflection. The structure of all inflected words, regardless of part of speech, was the same: root plus one or more suffixes plus ending. Thus the word ker-wo-s*, “a stag,” is composed of the root ker-¹, “horn,” plus the noun suffix -wo-, plus the nominative singular ending -s. The root contained the basic semantic kernel, the underlying notion, which the suffix could modify in various ways. It was primarily the suffix that determined the part of speech of the word. Thus a single root like prek-, “to ask,” could, depending on the suffix, form a verb prk-sko-*, “to ask” (Latin poscere), a noun prek-*, “prayer” (Latin precēs), and an adjective prok-o-*, “asking” (underlying Latin procus, “suitor”). Note that prek-, prok-, and pṛk-* have, respectively, e-grade, o-grade, and zero grade.

The root could undergo certain modifications. Extensions or enlargements did not affect the basic meaning and simply reflect formal variations between languages. Suffixes had more specific values. There were verbal suffixes that made nouns into verbs and others that marked different types of action, like transitive and intransitive. There were nominal suffixes that made agent nouns, abstract nouns, verbal nouns and verbal adjectives, and nouns of instrument and other functions.

The root plus the suffix or suffixes constituted the stem. The stems represented the basic lexical stock of Indo-European, the separate words of its dictionary. Yet a single root would commonly furnish a large number of derivative stems with different suffixes, both nominal and verbal, much as English love is both noun and verb as well as the base of such derivatives as lovely, lover, and beloved. For this reason it is customary to group such collections of derivatives, in a variety of Indo-European languages, under the root on which they are built. The root entries of the Appendix are arranged in this way, with derivatives that exhibit similar suffixes forming subgroups consisting of Indo-European stems or words.

Indo-European made extensive use of suffixation in the formation of words but had very few prefixes. The use of such prefixes (“preverbs”) as Latin ad-, con-, de-, ex- (ADVENT, CONVENE, DERIVE, EXPRESS) or Germanic be- (BECOME, BEGET) can be shown to be a development of the individual languages after the breakup of the common language. In Indo-European such “compounds” represented two independent words, a situation still reflected in Hittite and the older Sanskrit of the Vedas (the sacred books of the ancient Hindus) and surviving in isolated remnants in Greek and Latin.

An important technique of word formation in Indo-European was composition, the combining of two separate words or notions into a single word. Such forms were and continue to be built on underlying simple sentences; an example in English would be “he is someone who cuts wood,” whence “he is a woodcutter.” It is in the area of composition that English has most faithfully preserved the ancient Indo-European patterns of word formation, by continuously forming them anew, re-creating them. Thus housewife is immediately analyzable into house + wife, a so-called descriptive compound in which the first member modifies the second; the same elements compounded in Old English, hūs + wīf, have been preserved as an indivisible unit in hussy. Modern English has many different types of compound, such as catfish, housewife, woodcutter, pickpocket, or blue-eyed; exactly similar types may be found in the other Germanic languages and in Sanskrit, Greek, Latin, Celtic, and Slavic.

The comparative study of Indo-European poetics has shown that such compounds were considered particularly apt for elevated, formal styles of discourse; they are a salient characteristic especially of Indo-European poetic language. In addition, it is amply clear that in Indo-European society the names of individual persons—at least in the priestly and ruling (or warrior) classes—were formed by such two-member compounds. Greek names like Sophocles, “famed for wisdom,” Celtic names like Vercingetorix, “warrior-king,” Slavic names like Mstislav, “famed for vengeance,” Old Persian names like Xerxes, “ruling men,” and Germanic names like Bertram, “bright raven,” are all compounds. The type goes as far back as Proto-Indo-European, even if the individual names do not. English family names continue the same tradition with such types as Cartwright and Shakespeare, as do those of other languages, like Irish (O')Toole, “having the people’s valor.”

SEMANTICS. A word of caution should be entered about the semantics of the roots. It is perhaps more hazardous to attempt to reconstruct meaning than to reconstruct linguistic form, and the meaning of a root can only be extrapolated from the meanings of its descendants. Often these diverge sharply from one another, and the scholar is reduced in practice to inferring only what seems a reasonable, or even merely possible, semantic common denominator. The result is that reconstructed words and particularly roots are often assigned hazy, vague, or unspecific meanings. This is doubtless quite illusory; a portmanteau meaning for a root should not be confused with the specific meaning of a derivative of that root at a particular time and place. The apparent haziness in meaning of a given Indo-European root often simply reflects the fact that with the passage of several thousand years the different words derived from this root in divergent languages have undergone semantic changes that are no longer recoverable in detail.

LEXICON AND CULTURE

The reconstruction of a protolanguage—the common ancestor of a family of spoken or attested languages—has a further implication. Language is a social fact; languages are not spoken in a vacuum but by human beings living in a society. When we have reconstructed a protolanguage, we have also necessarily established the existence of a prehistoric society, a speech community that used that protolanguage. The existence of Proto-Indo-European presupposes the existence, in some fashion, of a society of Indo-Europeans.

Language is intimately linked to culture in a complex fashion; it is at once the expression of culture and a part of it. Especially the lexicon of a language—its dictionary—is a face turned toward culture. Though by no means a perfect mirror, the lexicon of a language remains the single most effective way of approaching and understanding the culture of its speakers. As such, the contents of the Indo-European lexicon provide a remarkably clear view of the whole culture of an otherwise unknown prehistoric society.

The evidence that archaeology can provide is limited to material remains. But human culture is not confined to material artifacts alone. The reconstruction of vocabulary can offer a fuller, more interesting view of the culture of a prehistoric people than archaeology precisely because it includes nonmaterial culture.

Consider the case of religion. To form an idea of the religion of a people, archaeologists proceed by inference, examining temples, sanctuaries, idols, votive objects, funerary offerings, and other material remains. But these may not be forthcoming; archaeology is, for example, of little or no utility in understanding the religion of the ancient Hebrews. Yet, for the Indo-European-speaking society, we can reconstruct with certainty the word for “god,” deiw-os*, and the two-word name of the chief deity of the pantheon, dyeu-pāter-* (Latin Jūpiter, Greek Zeus patēr, Sanskrit Dyaus pitar, and Luvian Tatis Tiwaz). The forms dyeu-* and deiw-os* are both derivatives of a root deiw-, meaning “to shine,” which appears in the word for “day” in numerous languages (Latin diēs; but English DAY is not related). The notion of deity was therefore linked to the notion of the bright sky.

The second element of the name of the chief god, dyeu-pāter-*, is the general Indo-European word for FATHER, used not in the sense of father as parent but with the meaning of the adult male who is head of the household, the sense of Latin pater familias. For the Indo-Europeans the society of the gods was conceived in the image of their own society as patriarchal. The reconstructed words deiw-os* and dyeu-pāter-* alone tell us more about the conceptual world of the Indo-Europeans than a roomful of graven images.

The comparative method enables us to construct a basic vocabulary for the society of speakers of Proto-Indo-European that extends to virtually all aspects of their culture. This basic vocabulary is, to be sure, not uniform in its attestation. Most Indo-European words are found only in some of the attested languages, not in all, which suggests that they may well have been formed only at a period later than the oldest common Indo-European we can reconstruct. There are also dialectal words that are limited in the area of their extension, as in the case of an important sociological term such as the word for “people,” teutā-, which is confined to the western branches: Italic, Celtic, and Germanic. (It is the base of German Deutsch and of DUTCH and TEUTONIC.) In cases such as these, where a word is attested in several traditions, it is still customary to call it Indo-European, even though it may not date from the remotest reconstructible time. It is in this sense, universally accepted by scholars, that the term Indo-European has been used in this Appendix.

We may examine the contents of this Indo-European lexicon, which aside from its inherent interest permits us to ascertain many characteristics of Indo-European society. It is remarkable that by far the greater part of this reconstructed vocabulary is preserved in native or borrowed derivatives in Modern English.

GENERAL TERMS. It is appropriate to begin with a sampling of basic terms in the lexicon, which have no special cultural value but attest to the richness of the tradition. All are widespread in the family. There are two verbs expressing existence, es- and bheuə-, found in English IS, Latin esse, and English BE, Latin fu-tūrus (FUTURE), respectively. There are verbs meaning “to sit” (sed-), “to lie” (leg-, kei-¹), and “to stand” (stā-). There are a number of verbs of motion, like g^wā-, “to come,” ei-, “to go,” terə-², “to cross over,” sek^w-¹, “to follow,” kei-, “to set in motion,” and the variants of “rolling or turning motion” in wel-, wer-, and k^wel-¹.

Reconstructions are by no means confined to general, imprecise meanings such as these; we have also such specific semantic values as nes-¹, “to return safely home” (NOSTALGIA).

The notion of carrying is represented by the widespread root bher¹ (BEAR¹), found in every branch except Anatolian. This root is noteworthy in that it formed a phrase nōmen- bher-, “to bear a name,” which is reconstructible from several traditions, including English. This phrase formed a counterpart to nō-men- dhē-, “to give a name,” with the verb dhē-, “to set, put,” in Sanskrit, Greek, and Slavic tradition. The persistence of these expressions attests the importance of the name-giving ritual in Indo-European society.

For the notions of eating and drinking, the roots ed- and pō(i)- are most widespread. The metaphor in “drunk, intoxicated,” seems to have been created independently a number of times in the history of the Indo-European languages; Latin ēbrius, “drunk” (INEBRIATED), was without etymology until a cognate turned up in the Hittite verb meaning “to drink”; both are derived from the root ēg^wh-.

The verb “to live” was g^wei-; it formed an adjective *g^wī-wos, “alive,” which survives in English QUICK, whose original sense is seen in the biblical phrase the quick and the dead. For the notion of begetting or giving birth there are two roots, tek- and the extremely widely represented genə-, which appears not only as a verb but also in various nominal forms like *gen-os, “race,” and the prototypes of English KIN and KIND.

A number of qualitative adjectives are attested that go back to the protolanguage. Some come in semantic pairs: sen-, “old,” and newo-, “new”; also sen-, “old,” and yeu-, “youthful vigor”; *tenu-, “thin” (under ten-), and tegu-, “thick”; g^werə¹, “heavy,” and leg^wh-, “light.” There are also the two prefixes su-, “good, well-,” and dus-, “bad, ill-,” in the Greek forms borrowed as EU- and DYS-. But normally adjectives denoting value judgments like “good” and “bad” are not widespread in the family and are subject to replacement; English good, Latin bonus, and Greek agathos have nothing to do with each other, and each is confined to its own branch of the family.

The personal pronouns belong to the very earliest layer of Indo-European that can be reached by reconstruction. Their forms are unlike those of any other paradigms in the language; they have been called the “Devonian rocks” of Indo-European. The lack of any formal resemblance in English between the subject case (nominative) I and the object case (accusative) ME is a direct and faithful reflection of the same disparity in Proto-Indo-European, respectively eg (*egō) and me¹. The other pronouns are tu- (*te-), “thou,” nes² or we-, “we,” and yu-, “you.” No pronouns for the third person were in use.

The cognate languages give evidence for demonstrative and interrogative pronouns. Both have also developed into relative pronouns in different languages. The most persistent and widespread pronominal stems are to- and k^wo-, which are preserved in the English demonstrative and interrogative-relative pronouns and adverbs beginning with th- (THIS, THEN) and wh- (WHO, WHICH, WHEN).

All the languages of the family show some or all of the Indo-European numerals. The language had a decimal system. There is complete agreement on the numerals from two to ten: dwo- (*duwō), trei- (*treyes), k^wetwer- (k^wetwores), penk^we, s(w)eks, sept, oktō(u), newn₁, dekṃ. For the numeral “one” the dialects vary. We have a root sem-¹ in some derivatives, while the western Indo-European languages Germanic, Celtic, and Latin share the form oi-no-. The word for “hundred,” formed from dekṃ, “ten,” was (d)kṃtom. No common form for “thousand” or any other higher number can be reconstructed for the protolanguage.

NATURE AND THE PHYSICAL ENVIRONMENT. A large number of terms relating to time, weather, seasons, and natural surroundings can be reconstructed from the daughter languages, some of which permit certain inferences about the homeland of the Indo-European-speaking people before the period of migrations took them to the different localities where they historically appear.

There are several words for “year,” words that relate to differing conceptions of the passage of time. Such are yēr- (YEAR), related to words denoting activity; wet-², the year as a measure of the growth of a domestic animal (WETHER, basically “yearling”); and at- in Latin annus (ANNUAL), from a verb meaning “to go,” referring to the year as passage or change. The seasons were distinguished in Indo-European: ghei-, “winter,” wes-r-, “spring,” and sem-², “summer.”

The lunar month was a unit of time. The word for “month” (mēns-) is in some languages identical with the word for “moon,” in others a derivative of it, as in Germanic mēnōth- from mēnōn-. “Moon/month” in Indo-European is a derivative of the verb “to measure,” mē-². The adjective sen- (seno-), “old,” was also used for the waning of the moon, on the evidence of several languages.

The other celestial bodies recognized were the sun, sāwel-, and the stars, ster-³. There is evidence from several traditions for similar designations of the constellation Ursa Major, though these may not go back to the earliest Indo-European times. The movement of the sun dictated the names for the points of the compass. The word EAST is derived from the verbal root aus-, “to shine,” as is the word for “dawn” (Latin Aurora), deified since Indo-European times on the evidence of Greek, Lithuanian, and Sanskrit. The setting sun furnished the word for “evening” and “west”: wes-pero-. The most widespread of the words for “night” was nek^w-t-. Words for “day” include agh- and such dialectal creations as Latin diēs.

The Indo-Europeans knew snow in their homeland; the word sneig^wh- is nearly ubiquitous. Curiously enough, however, the word for “rain” varies among the different branches; we have words of differing distribution such as seuə-².

Conceptions of the sky, or heaven, were varied in the different dialects. As we have seen, the root deiw- occurs widely as the divine bright sky. On the other hand, certain languages viewed the heavens as basically cloudy; nebh- is “sky” in Balto-Slavic and Iranian, but “cloud” elsewhere. Another divine natural phenomenon is illustrated by the root (s)tenə-, “thunder,” and the name of the Germanic god THOR.

A word for the earth can be reconstructed as dhghem- (dheghom*). Other terms of lesser distribution, like kaito-, designated forest or uncultivated land. Swampy or boggy terrain was apparently also familiar, judging from the evidence of the root pelə-¹. But since none of these runs through the whole family, it would not be justifiable to infer anything from them regarding the terrain of a hypothetical original homeland of the Indo-Europeans.

On the other hand, from the absence of a general word for “sea” we may deduce that the Indo-Europeans were originally an inland people. The root mori- is attested dialectally (MERE), but it may well have referred to a lake or other smaller body of water. Transportation by or across water was, however, known to the Indo-Europeans, since most of the languages attest an old word for “boat” or “ship,” nāu-, probably propelled by oars or a pole (erə-, “to row”).

The names for a number of different trees are widely enough attested to be viewed as Proto-Indo-European in date. The general term for “tree” and “wood” was deru-. The original meaning of the root was doubtless “to be firm, solid,” and from it is derived not only the family of English TREE but also that of English TRUE. Note that the semantic evolution has here been from the general to the particular, from “solid” to “tree” (and even “oak” in some dialects), and not the other way around.

There are very widely represented words for the beech tree, bhāgo-, and the birch, bherəg-. These formerly played a significant role in attempts to locate the original homeland of the Indo-Europeans, since their distribution is geographically distinct. But their ranges may have changed over several millenniums, and, more important, the same word may have been applied to entirely different species of tree. Thus the Greek and Latin cognates of BEECH designate a kind of oak found in the Mediterranean lands.

Indo-European had a generic term for “wild animal,” ghwer- (FERAL). The wolf was known and evidently feared; its name is subject to taboo deformation (the conscious alteration of the form of a tabooed word, as in English gol-derned, dad-burned). The variant forms wļk^wo-, lupo-*, and wļp- (also “fox”) are all found. The name of the bear was likewise subject to a hunter’s taboo: the animal could not be mentioned by its real name on the hunt. The southern Indo-European languages have the original form, rtko- (Latin ursus, Greek arktos), but all the northern languages have a substitute term. In Slavic the bear is the “honey-eater,” in Germanic the “brown one” (BEAR², and note also BRUIN).

The BEAVER was evidently known (bhi-bhru-*, from bher-²), at least in Europe, and the MOUSE (m s-) then as now was ubiquitous. The HARE, probably named from its color (kas-, “gray”), is also widespread. Domesticated animals are discussed below.

A generic term for “fish” existed, dhghū-* (also peisk-* in Europe). The salmon (laks-) and the eel (ang^wi-*) were known, the latter also in the meaning “snake.” Several birds were known, including the crane (gerə-²) and the eagle (or-). The generic term for “bird” was awi- (Latin avis), and from this was derived the well-represented word for “egg,” ōwyo-*.

The names for a number of insects can be reconstructed in the protolanguage, including the wasp (wopsā*), the hornet (krəs-ṛo-, a derivative of ker-¹, “head,” from the shape of the insect), and the fly (mū-). The bee (bhei-) was particularly important as the producer of honey, for which we have the common Indo-European name melit- (MILDEW). Honey was the only source of sugar and sweetness (swād-, “sweet,” is ancient), and notably was the base of the only certain Indo-European alcoholic beverage, medhu-, which in different dialects meant both MEAD (“wine” in Greece and Anatolia) and “honey.”

PEOPLE AND SOCIETY. For human beings themselves, a number of terms were employed, with different nuances of meaning. The usual terms for “man” and “woman” are wī-ro- (VIRILE) and g^wenā-* from g^wen- (GYNECOLOGY). For “person” in general, the oldest word was apparently manu-* (man-¹), as preserved in English MAN and in Slavic and Sanskrit. In other dialects we find interesting metaphorical expressions, which attest a set of religious concepts opposing the gods as immortal and celestial to humankind as mortal and terrestrial. Humans are either mortos*, “mortal” (mer-, “to die”), or dhghomyo-*, “earthling” (dhghem-, “earth”).

The parts of the body belong to the basic layer of vocabulary and are for the most part faithfully preserved in Indo-European languages. Such are ker-¹, “head” (also kaput- in dialects, doubtless a more colloquial word), genu-², “chin, jaw,” dent-, “tooth,” ok^w-, “to see,” whence “eye,” ous-, “ear,” nas-, “nose,” leb-, “lip,” bhr -, “brow,” ōs-, “mouth,” and dngh -, “tongue.” The word for “foot” is attested everywhere (ped-), while that for “hand” differs according to dialect; the most widespread is ghes-ǵ-* (CHIRO-).

Internal organs were also named in Indo-European times, including the heart (kerd-), womb (g^welbh-), gall (ghel-²), and liver (yek^w). The male sexual organs, pes- and ergh-, are common patrimony, as is ors-, “backside.”

A large number of kinship terms have been reconstructed. They are agreed in pointing to a society that was patriarchal, patrilocal (the bride leaving her household to join that of her husband’s family), and patrilineal (descent reckoned by the male line). “Father” and “head of the household” are one: pāter-, with his spouse, the māter-. These terms are ultimately derived from the baby-talk syllables pa(pa) and ma(ma), but the kinship-term suffix -ter- shows that they had a sociological significance over and above this in the Indo-European family. Related terms are found for the grandfather (awo-) and the maternal uncle (awon-), and correspondingly the term nepōt- (feminine neptī-) applied to both grandson (perhaps originally “daughter’s son”) and nephew (“sister’s son”). English SON and DAUGHTER clearly reflect Indo-European sūnu-* (from seuə-¹) and dhughāter-.

Male blood relations were designated as bhrāter- (BROTHER), which doubtless extended beyond those with a common father or mother; the Greek cognate means “fellow member of a clan-like group.” The female counterpart was swesor- (SISTER), probably literally “the female member of the kin group,” with a feminine suffix -sor-* and the root s(w)e-, designating the self, one’s own group.

While there exist many special terms for relatives by marriage on the husband’s side, like daiwer-, “husband’s brother,” fewer corresponding terms on the wife's side can be reconstructed for the protolanguage. The terms vary from dialect to dialect, providing good evidence for the patrilocal character of marriage.

The root dem- denoted both the house (Latin domus) and the household as a social unit. The father of the family (Latin pater familias) was the “master of the house” (Greek despotēs) or simply “he of the house” (Latin dominus). A larger unit was the village, designated by the word weik-¹. The community may have been grouped into divisions by location; this seems to be the basic meaning of the dā-mo-* (from dā-) in Greek dēmos, people (DEMOCRACY).

Human settlements were frequently built on the top of high places fortified for defense, a practice taken by Indo-European migrants into central and western Europe and into Italy and Greece, as confirmed by archaeological finds. Words for such fortified high places vary; there are pelə-³, variant poli-* (ACROPOLIS), the Celtic word for “ring fort,” dh no- (TOWN), and bhergh-² (-burg in place names).

ECONOMIC LIFE AND TECHNOLOGY. A characteristic of Indo-European and other archaic societies was the principle of exchange and reciprocal gift-giving. The presentation of a gift entailed the obligation of a counter-gift, and the acts of giving and receiving were equivalent. They were simply facets of a single process of generalized exchange, which assured the circulation of wealth throughout the society.

This principle has left clear traces in the Indo-European vocabulary. The root dō- of Latin dōnāre means “to give” in most dialects but in Hittite means “to take.” The root nem- is “to distribute” in Greek (NEMESIS), but in German it means “to take,” and the cognate of English GIVE (ghabh-) has the meaning “to take” in Irish. The notion of exchange predominates in the roots mei- and gher-². The GUEST (ghos-ti-) in Indo-European times was the person with whom one had mutual obligations of hospitality. But he was also the stranger, and the stranger in an uncertain and warring tribal society may well be hostile: the Latin cognate hostis means “enemy.”

The Indo-Europeans practiced agriculture and the cultivation of cereals. We have several terms of Indo-European antiquity for grain: grə-no- (CORN), yewo-, and pūro-, which may have designated wheat or spelt. Of more restricted distribution is bhares-, “barley.” A root for grinding is attested, melə- (MEAL², mill). Another Indo-European term is sē-, “to sow,” not found in Greek, Armenian, or Indo-Iranian. The verb “to plow” is arə-, again a common European term, with the name of the plow, arə-trom*. Other related roots are yeug-, “to yoke,” and kerp-, “to gather, pluck” (HARVEST). The root g^werə-¹, “heavy,” is the probable base of g^werə-nā-*, “hand mill” (QUERN). The term is found throughout the Indo-European-speaking world, including India.

Stockbreeding and animal husbandry were an important part of Indo-European economic life. The names for all the familiar domesticated animals are present throughout the family: gwou-, “cow” and “bull,” owi-, “sheep,” ag^wh-no-*, “swine,” and porko-, “farrow.” The domestic dog was ancient (kwon-). The common Indo-European name of the horse, ekwo-, is probably derived from the adjective ōku-, “swift.” The expansion and migration of the Indo-European-speaking peoples in the later third and early second millenniums B.C. is intimately bound up with the diffusion of the horse. The verbal root demə-, “to force,” acquired the special sense of “to tame horses,” whence English TAME. Stock was a source and measure of wealth; the original sense of peku- was probably “wealth, riches,” as in Latin pecunia, which came to mean “wealth in cattle” and finally “cattle” proper.

The verbal roots pā-, “to protect,” and k^wel-1, “to revolve, move around,” are widely used for the notion of herding or watching over stock, and it is interesting to note that the metaphor of the god or priest watching over humankind like a shepherd (Latin pāstor) over his flock occurs in many Indo-European dialects as well as outside Indo-European.

Roots indicating a number of technical operations are attested in most of the languages of the family. One such is teks-, which in some dialects means “to fabricate, especially by working with an ax,” but in others means “to weave” (TEXTILE). The root dheigh-, meaning “to mold, shape,” is applied both to bread (DOUGH) and to mud or clay, whence words for both pottery and mud walls (Iranian pari-daiza*, “walled around,” borrowed into Greek as the word that became English PARADISE.)

The house (dem-) included a dhwer- (DOOR), which probably referred originally to the gateway into the enclosure of the household. The house would have had a central hearth, denoted in some languages by as- (properly a verb, “to burn”). Fire itself was known by two words, one of animate gender (egni-*, Latin ignis) and one neuter (p r-, Greek pur).

Indo-European had a verb “to cook” (pek^w-, also having the notion “to ripen”). Other household activities included spinning ((s)nē-), weaving (webh-), and sewing (sy -). The verb wes-2 (WEAR) is ancient and everywhere attested.

The Indo-Europeans knew metal and metallurgy, to judge from the presence of the word ayes-* in Sanskrit, Germanic, and Latin. The term designated copper and perhaps bronze. Iron is a latecomer, technologically, and the terms for it vary from dialect to dialect. Latin has ferrum, while the Germanic and Celtic term was isarno-*, properly “holy (metal),” from eis-, doubtless so called because the first iron was derived from small meteorites. Gold, ghel-2, probably “yellow (metal),” was known from ancient times, though the names for it vary. Silver was arg-, with various suffixes, doubtless meaning “white (metal).”

It was probably not long before the dispersal of the Proto-Indo-European community that the use of the wheel and wheeled transport was adopted. Despite the existence of widespread word families, most terms relating to wheeled vehicles seem to be metaphors formed from already existing words, rather than original, unanalyzable ones. So NAVE, or hub of the wheel (nobh-), is the same word as NAVEL. This is clearly the case with WHEEL itself, where the widespread k^w(e)-k^wl-o-* is an expressive derivative of a verb (k^wel-1) meaning “to revolve or go around.” Other words for “wheel” are dialectal and again derivative, such as Latin rota from a verbal root ret-, “to run.” The root wegh-, “to go, transport in a vehicle” (WAGON), is attested quite early, though not in Hittite. This evidence for the late appearance of the wheel agrees with archaeological findings that date the distribution of the wheel in Europe to the latter part of the fifth millennium B.C., the latest possible date for the community of Proto-Indo-European proper.

IDEOLOGY. We pointed out earlier that the great advantage of the lexicon as an approach to culture and history is that it is not confined to material remains. Words exist for natural phenomena, objects, and things that can be found in nature or identified from their material remains. But there are also words for ideas, abstractions, and relations. The Indo-European protolanguage is particularly rich in such vocabulary items.

A number of verbs denoting mental activity are found. The most widespread is men-¹, preserved in English MIND. Other derivatives refer to remembering, warning (putting in mind), and thinking in general. A root notable for the diversity of its derivatives is med-, which may be defined as “to take the appropriate measures.” Reflexes of this verb range in meaning from “rule,” through “measure” (MODICUM, from Latin), to “physician” (Latin medicus).

The notions of government and sovereignty were well represented. The presence of the old word for tribal king, reg-* (reg-), only in the extreme east (RAJAH) and the extreme west (Latin rēx, Celtic -rīx) virtually guarantees its presence in the earliest Indo-European society. (Here is an example of the phenomenon of marginal or peripheral conservation of a form lost in the central innovating area.) Roman tradition well attests the sacral character of kingship among the Indo-Europeans. The functions of king and priest were different aspects of a single function of sovereignty. It is this that is symbolized by the divine name dyeu-pāter-* (deiw-), the chief of the gods.

Another aspect of the function of sovereignty is the sphere of the law. There is an old word, yewes-, probably for “religious law,” in Latin iūs. Latin lēx is also ancient (leg- or legh-), though the details of its etymology are uncertain. In a society that emphasized the principle of exchange and reciprocity, it is scarcely surprising that the notion of contractual obligation should be well represented. Several roots specify the notion of “bond”: bhendh-, ned-, and leig-, all of which have derivatives with technical legal meanings in various languages. The verb kwei-¹ meant “to pay compensation for an injury.” Its derivative noun k^woinā* was borrowed from Doric Greek into the most ancient Roman law as Latin poena and pūnīre, whence English PUNISH and a host of legal terms. The Greek word for “justice,” dikē, is derived from the notion of “boundary marker” (deik-).

Indo-European is particularly rich in religious vocabulary. An important form, which is also found only in the peripheral languages Sanskrit, Latin, and Celtic, is the two-word metaphoric phrase kred-dhē-*, literally “to put (dhē-) heart (kerd-).” The two words have been joined together in the western languages, as in Latin crēdō, “I believe.” Here a term of the most ancient pagan religion has been taken over by Christianity. A common word for religious “formulation,” bhregh-men-*, is preserved in Brahmin, a member of the priestly class, from Sanskrit.

Oral prayers, requests of the deity, and other ritual utterances must have played a significant role in Indo-European religion. We have already seen prek- (PRAY), and note also the roots weg^wh-* (in Latin vovēre, to vow), seng^wh- (SING), and gwerə-², which in Latin grātia (GRACE) has had a new life in Christianity.

The root spend- has the basic meaning of “to make an offering or perform a rite,” whence “to engage oneself by a ritual act.” Its Latin derivative spondēre means “to promise” (SPOUSE).

A hint of Indo-European metaphysics appears in the word aiw-, “vital force,” whence “long life, the eternal re-creation of life, eternity” (EON). It is noteworthy that the idea of “holy” is intimately bound up with that of “whole, healthy,” in a number of forms: kailo- (WHOLE and HOLY) and solə-, whence Latin salvus (SALVATION). An ancient root relating solely to religion is sak- (SACRED).

In conclusion we may add that poetry and a tradition of poetics are also common patrimony in most of the Indo-European traditions. The hymns of the Rig-Veda are composed in meters related to those used by the Greek poets, and the earliest verse forms found among the Celts and the Slavs go back to the same Indo-European source. Many, perhaps most, of the stylistic figures and embellishments of poetic language that we associate with “classical” poetics and rhetoric can be shown, by the comparative method, to have their roots in Indo-European poetics itself.

A number of metaphorical expressions appear to be creations of ancient, even Indo-European date. Latin terra, “earth” (TERRAN), is historically a transferred epithet, “dry (land),” from ters-, “to dry,” whose English descendant is THIRST. One securely reconstructible Indo-European place name rests squarely on a metaphor: Pīwer-iā* in Greek Pieria (PIERIAN SPRING) and Īwer-ion-, the prehistoric Celtic name for Ireland (Gaelic Éire, Érin), both continue an Indo-European feminine adjective pīwer-iā*, “fat,” metaphorically “fertile,” from peīə-, the same root that gives English FAT.

Most interesting are the cases where it is possible to reconstruct from two or more traditions (usually including Homer and the Rig-Veda) a poetic phrase or formula consisting of two members. Such are the expressions “imperishable fame,” klewos ṅdhg^whitom* (kleu-); “holy (mental) force,” isərom menos* (eis-, men-¹); and the “weaver (or crafter) of words,” the Indo-European poet himself, wek^wōm teks-on* (wek^w- teks-). The immortality of the gods (ṅ-mrto-*, from mer-) is emphasized anew by the vivid verb phrase nek-¹ terə-², “to overcome death,” appearing in the Greek word nektar, the drink of the gods. And at least one three-member formula (in the sense of the word in traditional oral poetry) can be reconstructed for the poetic language of prayer, on the combined evidence of four languages, Latin, Umbrian, Avestan, and Sanskrit: “Protect, keep safe, man and cattle!” (pā- wī-ro- peku).

CONCLUSION

This survey has touched on only a representative sample of the available reconstructed Indo-European lexicon and has made no attempt to cite the mass of evidence in all the languages of the family, ancient and modern, for these reconstructions.

For this essay, we have given only the information about Indo-European culture that could be derived from language and lexicon alone. Other disciplines serve to fill out and complete the picture to be gathered from the study of vocabulary: archaeology, prehistory, comparative religion, and the history of institutions.

Archaeologists have not in fact succeeded in locating the Indo-Europeans. An artifact other than a written record is silent on the language of its user, and prehistoric Eurasia offers an abundant choice of culture areas. Archaeologists are generally agreed that the so-called Kurgan peoples, named after the Russian word for their characteristic “barrow” or “tumulus” grave structure, spoke an Indo-European language. The correlation between the Kurgan cultural features described by archaeologists and the Indo-European lexicon are striking: for example, small tribal units (teutā-) ruled by powerful chieftains (reg-), a predominantly pastoral (pā-) economy including horse (ekwo-) breeding (demə-) and plant cultivation (yewo-), and architectural features such as a small subterranean or aboveground rectangular hut (dom-, dem-) of timber uprights (kli-t-, klei-, and stu-t-*, stā-, still with us in English STUD).

Some time around the middle of the fifth millennium B.C., these people expanded from the steppe zone north of the Black Sea and beyond the Volga into the Balkans and adjacent areas. These Kurgan peoples bore a new mobile and aggressive culture into Neolithic Europe, and it is not unreasonable to associate them with the coming of the Indo-Europeans. But the Kurgan peoples' movement into Europe took place in distinct waves from the fifth to the third millennium B.C. The earliest so far discovered might be compatible with a reasonable date for Proto-Indo-European, that is, a date sufficiently long ago for a single language to develop into forms as divergent as Mycenaean Greek and Hittite as they are historically attested by the middle of the second millennium B.C. But the subsequent Kurgan immigrations, after 4000 B.C., are too late to be regarded as incursions of speakers of undifferentiated Proto-Indo-European. The archaeological evidence for the later waves of Kurgan migrations points to their having had an Indo-European culture, but the languages spoken by the later Kurgan peoples must have been already differentiated Indo-European dialects, some of which would doubtless evolve into some of the historical branches of the family tree. We must be content to recognize the Kurgan peoples as speakers of certain Indo-European languages and as sharing a common Indo-European cultural patrimony. The ultimate “cradle” of the Indo-Europeans may well never be known, and language remains the best and fullest evidence for prehistoric Indo-European society. It is the comparative method in historical linguistics that can illumine not only ancient ways of life but also ancient modes of thought.

GUIDE TO THE APPENDIX

This Dictionary carries the etymology of the English language to its logical and natural conclusion, for if the documentary history of words is of interest and value, so is their reconstructed prehistory. The historical component is given in the etymologies, after the definitions in the main body of the Dictionary. This Appendix supplies the prehistoric component, tracing the ultimate Indo-European derivations of those English words that are descended from a selected group of Indo-European roots.

The form given in boldface type at the head of each entry is, unless otherwise identified, an Indo-European root in its basic form; this is followed by a list of some of its more important Modern English descendants. The entry proper begins with a repetition of the basic root form, followed in some cases by one or more variants, also in boldface type. The basic meaning or meanings of the root are given immediately after the entry form and its variants (but see the cautionary note under “Semantics” in the preceding essay). Meanings that are different parts of speech are separated by a semicolon:

kei-¹. To lie; bed, couch; beloved, dear.

pele-². Flat; to spread.

leg-. To collect; with derivatives meaning “to speak.”

After the basic meaning there may appear further information about the phonological shape or nature of the root:

skei-. To cut, split. Extension of sek-.

k^wmi-. Worm. Rhyme word to wrmi-*, worm (see wer-²).

pā-. To protect, feed. Contracted from paə-*.

lik-. Body, form; like, same. Germanic root.

Most, but not all, of the additional information is self-explanatory. In the first two examples, the boldface forms sek- and wer-² are cross-references to those roots, which are main entries in this Appendix. Every boldface form appearing in the text of an entry is such a cross-reference. In the example pā- the form paə-* represents an older root form; the nature of these contractions is explained in the preceding essay under “Speech Sounds and their Alternations” (page 0000). The entries lik-, nēhw-iz, and re- are not, strictly speaking, Indo-European, since they are represented in only one branch of the family, but they are included within boldface brackets because of the number of English words among their descendants.

The text of each entry describes in detail the development of Modern English words from the root. Each section of an entry begins with a list, in SMALL CAPITALS, of the Modern English words derived from a particular form of the root. The simple (uncompounded) derivatives are given first; the compounds follow, separated from them by a semicolon. Parentheses indicate that the etymology of a word in the main body of the Dictionary contains a cross-reference to the etymology at another entry. In some cases no further semantic or morphological development needs to be explained, and the lemma, the historically attested representative of the root, is immediately given:

awi-. Bird. I. 1. AVIAN . . . from Latin avis, bird.

Much more commonly, however, intermediate developments require explanation. These intermediate stages are reconstructions representing a word stem in Indo-European that is necessary to explain the lemma following it (see the section “Grammatical Forms and Syntax” in the preceding essay). The reconstructed forms are not historically attested; they are preceded by an asterisk (*) to note this fact. Sometimes earlier or later developments of the intermediate forms are given in parentheses, as in the example of stā- below. In these cases the symbol < is used to mean “derived from” and the symbol > is used to mean “developed into.” The following terms are used to describe typical morphological processes of Indo-European:

Full-grade form: A form with e-vocalism (the basic form); so identified for descriptive contrast

O-grade form: A form with o-vocalism:

nek^w-t-. O-grade form nok^w-t-*.

Zero-grade form: A form with zero-vocalism:

men-¹. I. Zero-grade form m-*.

Lengthened-grade form: A form with lengthened vocalism:

ked-. 1. Lengthened-grade form kēd-*.

Secondary full-grade form: A new full-grade form created by inserting the fundamental vowel e in the zero-grade form of an extended root:

stā-. V. Zero-grade extended root stū-* (< stuə-). . . . VI. Secondary full-grade form steuə-.

Basic form: The unchanged root; so identified for descriptive contrast.

Suffixed form: A form with one or more suffixes, written with an internal hyphen:

laks-. Suffixed form laks-o-*.

maghu-. Suffixed form magho-ti-*.

mel-². 1. Suffixed (comparative) form mel-yos-*.

Prefixed form: A form with a prefix, written with an internal hyphen:

op-. 6. . . . from prefixed form co-op-*.

Extended form: A form with an extension or enlargement, written without internal hyphens:

pel-⁵. II. Extended form pelə-*.

Nasalized form: A form with a nasal infix, written with internal hyphens:

tag-. 1. Nasalized form ta-n-g-*.

Reduplicated form: A form prefixed by its own initial consonant followed by a vowel:

segh-. 5. Reduplicated form si-sgh-*.

Expressive form: A form with “expressive gemination” (doubling of the final consonant), written without internal hyphens:

gal-. 3. Expressive form gall-*.

Compound form. A form compounded with a form of another root, written with internal hyphens:

dem-. 3. Compound form dems-pot-*.

Shortened form. A form with shortened vocalism:

sy -. III. Suffixed shortened form syu-men-*.

Reduced form. A form with loss of one or more sounds:

ghesor-. Reduced form ghesr-*.

Oldest root form. A root form showing a laryngeal (ə) in a position, typically at the beginning or end of a root, where it is preserved in only a few Indo-European languages, such as Greek or Hittite:

ster⁻³. 3. Oldest root form aster-*.

Variant form. A form altered in any way other than those described in the above categories:

deru-. 2. Variant form dreu-*.

These terms can be combined freely to describe in as much detail as necessary the development from the root to the lemma.

dhē(i)-. 1. Suffixed reduced form dhē-mnā-*. FEMALE, FEMININE; EFFEMINATE, from Latin fēmina, woman (< “she who suckles”).

gerə⁻¹. 1. Suffixed lengthened-grade form gērə-s-*. AGERATUM, GERIATRICS, from Greek gēras, old age.

petə-. 2. Suffixed (stative) variant zero-grade form pat-ē-*. PATENT, PATULOUS, from Latin patēre, to be open.

In order to emphasize the fact that English belongs to the Germanic branch of Indo-European and give precedence to directly inherited words in contrast to words borrowed from other branches, the intermediate stages in Germanic etymologies are covered in fuller detail. The Common or Proto-Germanic (here called simply Germanic) forms underlying English words are always given. Where no other considerations intervene, Germanic is given first of the Indo-European groups, and Old English is given first within Germanic, although this order of precedence is not rigidly applied.

The final item in most entries is an abbreviated reference, in brackets, to Julius Pokorny's Indogermanisches Etymologisches Wörterbuch (Bern, 1959). This, the standard work of reference and synthesis in the Indo-European field, carries a full range of the actual comparative material on which the roots are reconstructed. Our Appendix presents only those aspects of the material that are directly relevant to English. For example, the English word MANY is found at the root menegh-, "copious." This entry describes the transition of the Indo-European form through Germanic managa-* to Old English manig, mænig, "many." It does not cite the evidence on which this assertion is based, but it refers to "Pokorny men(e)gh- 730." The entry men(e)gh- on page 730 in Pokorny's dictionary cites, in addition to the Old English word, the forms attested in Sanskrit, Celtic, Gothic, Old High German, Old Norse, Slavic, and Lithuanian, from which the reconstruction of the root was made. These references should serve as a reminder that the information given in this Appendix is assertive rather than expository and that the evidence and evaluation upon which its assertions are based are not presented here.

Symbols: * unattested < derived from > developed into

INDO-EUROPEAN ROOTS

ad-

Important derivatives are: *at*¹, aid.

To, near, at.

1. ADO, AT¹, from Old English æt, near, by, at, and from Middle English at, “to,” from Old Norse at, both from Germanic at*.
2. AD-, -AD; (ADJUVANT), AID, AMOUNT, (PARAMOUNT), from Latin ad, ad-, to, toward.

[Pokorny 1. ad- 3.]

ag-

Important derivatives are: act, agent, agile, ambiguous, essay, exact, navigate, agony.

To drive, draw, move.

1. ACT, AGENDUM, AGENT, AGILE, AGITATE; (ALLEGE), AMBAGE, AMBIGUOUS, (ASSAY), (CACHE), COAGULUM, COGENT, ESSAY, EXACT, (EXAMINE), (EXIGENT), FUMIGATE, FUSTIGATE, INTRANSIGENT, LEVIGATE, LITIGATE, NAVIGATE, OBJURGATE, PRODIGALITY, RETROACTIVE, SQUAT, TRANSACT, VARIEGATE, from Latin agere, to do, act, drive, conduct, lead, weigh.
2. -AGOGUE, AGONY; ANAGOGE, (ANTAGONIZE), CHORAGUS, DEMAGOGUE, EPACT, GLUCAGON, HYPNAGOGIC, MYSTAGOGUE, PEDAGOGUE, PROTAGONIST, STRATAGEM, SYNAGOGUE, from Greek agein, to drive, lead, weigh.
3. Suffixed form ag-to-*. AMBASSADOR, EMBASSAGE, (EMBASSY), from Latin ambactus, servant, from Celtic amb(i)-ag-to-, “one who goes around” (ambi, around; see ambhi).
4. Suffixed form ag-ti-, whence adjective ag-ty-o-, “weighty.” AXIOM; AXIOLOGY, CHRONAXIE, from Greek axios, worth, worthy, of like value, weighing as much.

5. Possibly suffixed form ag-ro-*, driving, pursuing, grabbing.
PELLAGRA, PODAGRA, from Greek agra, a seizing.

[Pokorny aĝ- 4.] Derivative agro-.

agh-

Important derivatives are: day, today, dawn.

A day (considered as a span of time).

- a. DAY; DAISY, TODAY, from Old English dæg, day;
- b. LANDTAG, from Old High German tag, day;
- c. DAWN, from Old English denominative dagian, to dawn.
a, b, and c all from Germanic dagaz* (with initial d- of obscure origin), day.

[Pokorny agher- 7.]

agro-

Important derivatives are: acre, pilgrim, agro-.

Field.

Probably a derivative of ag-, “to drive.”

1. ACRE, from Old English æcer, field, acre, from Germanic akraz*.
2. AGRARIAN; AGRICULTURE, PEREGRINE, (PILGRIM), from Latin ager (genitive agri), earlier agros*, district, property, field.
3. AGRIA, AGRO-; (AGROSTOLOGY), ONAGER, STAVESACRE, from Greek agros, field, and agrios, wild.

[In Pokorny aĝ- 4.]

ais-

An important derivative is: ask.

To wish, desire.

Suffixed form ais-sk-*. ASK, from Old English āscian, ācsian, to ask, seek, from Germanic aiskōn*.

aiw-

Important derivatives are: *no*¹, ever, every, never, medieval, age, eternal, eon.

Vital force, life, long life, eternity; also “endowed with the acme of vital force, young.”

1.
 - a. *NO*¹, from Old English ā, ever;
 - b. *AUGHT*¹, from Old English āwiht, āuht, anything, “ever a creature”;
 - c. EVER; EVERY, NEVER, from Old English ǣfre (second element obscure), ever;
 - d. *AYE*²; NAY, from Old Norse ei, ever. a, c, and d all from extended form in Germanic aiwi*; b from Germanic aiwi* + wihti*, “ever a thing, anything” (wihti-*, thing; see wekti-).

2.
 - a. Suffixed form aiw-o-*. COEVAL, LONGEVITY, MEDIEVAL, PRIMEVAL, from Latin aevum, age, eternity;
 - b. suffixed form aiwo-tā(ti)-*. AGE; COETANEOUS, from Latin aetās (stem aetāti-), age;
 - c. suffixed form aiwo-t-erno-*. ETERNAL; SEMPITERNAL, from Latin aeternus, eternal.

3. Suffixed form aiw-en-*. EON, from Greek aiōn, age, vital force.

[Pokorny aiu- 17.] See also yuwen-* under yeu-.

ak-

Important derivatives are: edge, acute, hammer, heaven, acid, *eager*¹, vinegar, acid, acme, acne, acro-, oxygen.

Sharp.

1. Suffixed form ak-yā-*.

- a. EDGE, from Old English ecg, sharp side, from Germanic agjō*;
 - b. EGG², from Old Norse eggja, to incite, goad, from Germanic agjan*.
2. Suffixed form ak-u-*.
- a. EAR², from Old English æhher, ēar, spike, ear of grain, from Germanic ahuz-*;
 - b. ACICULA, (ACUITY), ACUMEN, ACUTE, AGLET, EGLANTINE, from Latin acus, needle;
 - c. ACEROSE, from Latin acus, chaff.
3. Suffixed form ak-i-*. ACIDANTHERA, from Greek akis, needle.
4. Suffixed form ak-men-, stone, sharp stone used as a tool, with metathetic variant ka-men-, with variants:
- a. ka-mer-*. HAMMER, from Old English hamor, hammer, from Germanic hamaraz*;
 - b. ke-men-* (probable variant). HEAVEN, from Old English heofon, hefn, heaven, from Germanic hibin-, “the stony vault of heaven,” dissimilated form of himin-.
5. Suffixed form ak-onā-*, independently created in:
- a. AWN, from Old Norse ^gn, ear of grain, and Old English agen, ear of grain, from Germanic aganō*, and
 - b. PARAGON, from Greek akonē, whetstone.
6. Suffixed lengthened form āk-ri-*. ACERATE, ACRID, ACRIMONY, EAGER¹; CARVACROL, VINEGAR, from Latin ācer, sharp, bitter.
7. Suffixed form ak-ri-bhwo-*. ACERBIC, EXACERBATE, from Latin acerbus, bitter, sharp, tart.
8. Suffixed (stative) form ak-ē-*. ACID, from Latin acēre, to be sharp.
9. Suffixed form ak-ēto-*. (ACETABULUM), (ACETIC), ACETUM; ESTER, from Latin acētum, vinegar.

10. Suffixed form ak-mā-*. ACME, (ACNE), from Greek akmē, point.
11. Suffixed form ak-ro-*. ACRO-; (ACROBAT), ACROMION, from Greek akros, topmost.
12. Suffixed o-grade form ok-ri-*. MEDIOCRE, from Latin ocris, rugged mountain.
13. Suffixed o-grade form ok-su-*. AMPHIOXUS, OXALIS, OXYGEN, OXYURIASIS, PAROXYSM, from Greek oxus, sharp, sour.

[Pokorny 2. āk- 18, 3. kēm- 556.]

ak^w-ā-

Important derivatives are: island, aquatic, ewer, *sewer*¹.

Water.

1. ISLAND, from Old English īg, īeg, island, from Germanic aujō*, “thing on the water,” from agwjō*.
2. AQUA, AQUARELLE, AQUARIUM, AQUATIC, AQUI-, EWER, GOUACHE; SEWER¹, from Latin aqua, water.

[Pokorny ak^wā- 23.]

al-¹

Important derivatives are: alarm, alert, ultimate, ultra-, alternate, adulterate, other, else, alien, alibi, parallel.

Beyond.

1. Variant ol-*, “beyond.”
 - a. Suffixed forms ol-se-, ol-so-. ALARM, ALERT, ALLIGATOR, EL NIÑO, VOIL†, from Latin ille (feminine illa, neuter illud), “yonder,” that, from Old Latin ollus;
 - b. suffixed forms ol-s*, ol-tero-*. OÙTRÈ, ULTERIOR, ULTIMATE, ULTRA-, UTTERANCE², from Latin uls, ulter*, ultrā, beyond.
2. Suffixed form al-tero-*, “other of two.”
 - a. ALTER, ALTERCATE, ALTERNATE, ALTRUISM; SUBALTERN, from Latin alter, other, other of two;

- b. ADULTERATE, (ADULTERINE), (ADULTERY), from Latin adulterāre, to commit adultery with, pollute, probably from the phrase ad alterum, “(approaching) another (unlawfully)” (ad-, to; see ad-);
- c. variant suffixed form an-tero-*, “other (of two).” OTHER, from Old English ōther, other, from Germanic antharaz*.

3. Extended form alyo-*, “other of more than two.”

- a. ELSE; ELDRITCH, from Old English el-, elles, else, otherwise, from Germanic aljaz* (with adverbial suffix);
- b. ALIAS, ALIEN; ALIBI, ALIQUOT, HIDALGO, from Latin alius, other of more than two;
- c. ALLO-; ALLEGORY, ALLELOMORPH, ALLELOPATHY, MORPHALLAXIS, PARALLAX, PARALLEL, TROPHALLAXIS, from Greek allos, other.

[Pokorny 1. al- 24, 2. an- 37.]

al⁻²

Important derivatives are: old, *elder*¹, haughty, altitude, enhance, exalt, adolescent, alumnus, coalesce, prolific.

To grow, nourish.

I. Suffixed (participial) form al-to-*, “grown.”

- a. ALDERMAN, OLD, from Old English eald, ald, old;
 - b. ELDER¹, from Old English (comparative) ieldra, eldra, older, elder;
 - c. ELDEST, from Old English (superlative) ieldesta, eldesta, eldest;
 - d. (see wī-ro-) Germanic compound wer-ald-, “life or age of man.” a, b, c, and d all from Germanic alda-.
2. ALT, ALTO, HAUGHTY, HAWSER; ALTIMETER, ALTIPLANO, ALTITUDE, ALTOCUMULUS, ALTOSTRATUS, ENHANCE, EXALT, (HAUTBOY), from Latin

altus, high, deep.

- II. ADOLESCENT, (ADULT), ALIBLE, ALIMENT, ALIMONY, ALTRICIAL, ALUMNUS; COALESCE, from Latin alere, to nourish.
- III. Suffixed (causative) form ol-eye-*. ABOLISH, from Latin abolēre, to retard the growth of, abolish (ab-, from; see apo-).
- IV. Compound form pro-al-* (pro-, forth; see per¹). PROLAN, PROLETARIAN, PROLIFEROUS, PROLIFIC, from Latin prōlēs, offspring.
- V. Extended form aldh-*. ALTHEA, from Greek althein, althainein, to get well.

[Pokorny 2. al-26.]

al⁻³

Important derivatives are: all, also.

All.

Germanic and Celtic root.

1. Suffixed form al-na-*. ALL; ALSO, from Old English all, eall, eal-, al-, all, from Germanic allaz*.
 2. (see man⁻¹) Germanic prefix ala-, all, in Ala-manniz, “all men.”
-

albho-

Important derivatives are: elf, oaf, albino, album, auburn, daub.

White.

- a. ELF, from Old English ælf, elf;
 - b. OAF, from Old Norse alfr, elf;
 - c. OBERON, from Old French Auberon, from a source akin to Old High German Alberich. a, b, and c all possibly from Germanic albiz*, albaz*, if meaning “white ghostly apparitions.”
1. ELFIN, from Old English -elfen, elf, possibly from Germanic albinjō*.

2. ABELE, ALB, ALBEDO, ALBESCENT, ALBINO, ALBITE, ALBUM, ALBUMEN, AUBADE, AUBURN; DAUB, from Latin albus, white.

[Pokorny albho- 30.]

alu-

An important derivative is: ale.

In words related to sorcery, magic, possession, and intoxication.

Suffixed form alu-t-*. ALE, from Old English (e)alu, ale, from Germanic aluth-*.

[Pokorny alu- 33.]

ambhi

Important derivatives are: *by*¹, be-, ambi-, amphi-.

Also mbhiAround.

Probably derived from ant-bhi. See ant-.

1. Reduced form bhi*.

- a. BY¹; ABAFT, BUT, from Old English bi, bī, be, by;
- b. BE-, from Old English be-, on all sides, be-, also intensive prefix;
- c. BELEAGUER, from Middle Dutch bie, by;
- d. BIVOUAC, from Old High German bi, by, at. a, b, c, and d all from Germanic bi*, bi-* (intensive prefix).
 - a. EMBER DAY, from Old English ymbe, around;
 - b. OMBUDSMAN, from Old Norse um(b), about, around;
 - c. UMLAUT, from Old High German umbi, around. a, b, and c all from Germanic umbi*.
 - a. AMBI-, from Latin ambi-, around, about;
 - b. (ALLEY¹); AMBULATE, FUNAMBULIST, (PREAMBLE), from Latin amb-, around, about, in ambulāre, to go about, walk (alāre*, to go).

2. AMPHI-, from Greek amphi, around, about.
3. (see ag-) Celtic ambi*.

[Pokorny ambhi 34.]

an-

Important derivatives are: on, acknowledge, alike, aloft, onslaught, ana-.
On.

Extended form ana*.

- a. ON; (ACKNOWLEDGE), ALIKE, from Old English an, on, a, on, and prefixed on-;
 - b. ALOFT, AMISS, from Old Norse ā, in, on;
 - c. ANLAGE, ANSCHLUSS, from Old High German ana-, on;
 - d. ONSLAUGHT, from Middle Dutch aen, on. a, b, c, and d all from Germanic ana*, anō*.
1. ANA², ANA-, from Greek ana, on, up, at the rate of.

[Pokorny 4. an 39.]

anə-

Important derivatives are: anima, animal, animus, equanimity, unanimous.
To breathe.

Suffixed form anə-mo-*.

- a. ANIMA, ANIMADVERT, ANIMAL, ANIMATE, (ANIMATO), ANIMISM, ANIMOSITY, ANIMUS; EQUANIMITY, LONGANIMITY, MAGNANIMOUS, PUSILLANIMOUS, UNANIMOUS, from Latin animus, reason, mind, spirit, and anima, soul, spirit, life, breath;
- b. ANEMO-, from Greek anemos, wind.

[Pokorny 3. an(ə)- 38.]

angh-

Important derivatives are: anger, anxious, anguish, angina.

Tight, painfully constricted, painful.

1. AGNAIL, (HANGNAIL), from Old English ang-nægl, “painful spike (in the flesh),” corn, excrescence (nægl, spike; see nogh-), from Germanic ang-*, compressed, hard, painful.
2. Suffixed form angh-os-*. ANGER, from Old Norse anгр, sorrow, grief, from Germanic angaz*.
3. Suffixed form angh-os-ti-*. ANGST¹, from Old High German angust, anxiety, from Germanic angusti-*.
4. ANXIOUS, from Latin angere, to strangle, torment.
5. Suffixed form angh-os-to-*. ANGUISH, from Latin angustus, narrow.
6. QUINSY, from Greek ankhein, to squeeze, embrace.
7. ANGINA, from Greek ankhonē, a strangling.

[Pokorny anĝh- 42.]

ansu-

Important derivatives are: Aesir, Ormazd.

Spirit, demon.

1. AESIR, from Old Norse āss, god, from Germanic ansu-*.
2. Suffixed reduced form nsu-ro-*. AHURA MAZDA, (ORMAZD), from Avestan ahura-, spirit, lord.

[Pokorny ansu- 48.]

ant-

Important derivatives are: along, end, ante-, advance, anti-, antic, antique, until.

Front, forehead.

- I. Inflected form (locative singular) anti*, “against,” with derivatives meaning in front of, before; also end.

1. UN-²; ALONG, from Old English and-, indicating opposition, from Germanic andi-* and anda-*.
2. END, from Old English ende, end, from Germanic andja-*.
3. ANCIENT¹, ANTE, ANTE-, ANTERIOR; ADVANCE, from Latin ante, before, in front of, against.
4. ANTI-; ENANTIOMER, ENANTIOMORPH, from Greek anti, against, and enantios, opposite.
5. Compound form anti-ək^wo-, “appearing before, having prior aspect” (ək^w-, appearance; see ok^w-). ANTIC, ANTIQUE, from Latin antiquus, former, antique.
6. Reduced form nti-*.
 - a. UNTIL, from Old Norse und, until, unto;
 - b. ELOPE, from Middle Dutch ont-, away from. Both a and b from Germanic und-*.
7. Variant form anto-*. VEDANTA, from Sanskrit antaḥ, end.

II. Probable inflected form (ablative plural) antbhi*, “from both sides,” whence ambhi*. See ambhi-.

[Pokorny ant-s 48.]

apo-

Important derivatives are: of, off, ebb, apo-, after, post-, deposit, dispose, impose, oppose, position, positive, post², post³, suppose.

Also ap-Off, away.

- a. OF, OFF, OFFAL, from Old English of, æf, off;
- b. EBB, from Old English ebba, low tide;
- c. ABLAUT, from Old High German aba, off, away from;
- d. AFT; ABAFT, from Old English æftan, behind, from Germanic aftan-. a, b, c, and d all from Germanic af.

1. AB⁻¹, from Latin ab, ab-, away from.
2. APO-, from Greek apo, away from, from.
3. Suffixed (comparative) form ap(o)-tero-*. AFTER, from Old English æfter, after, behind, from Germanic aftar-*.
4. Suffixed form ap-t-is-*. EFTSOONS, from Old English eft, again, from Germanic aftiz*.
5. Suffixed form apu-ko-*. AWKWARD, from Old Norse ˆfugr, turned backward, from Germanic afug-*.
6. Possible variant root form po(s)*, on, in.
 - a. POGROM, from Russian po, at, by, next to;
 - b. POST-, POSTERIOR; (POSTMORTEM), PREPOSTEROUS, PUISNE, (PUNY), from Latin post, behind, back, afterward;
 - c. APPOSITE, (APPOSITION), COMPONENT, (COMPOSE), (COMPOSITE), (COMPOSITION), (COMPOUND), CONTRAPPOSTO, DEPONE, DEPOSIT, DISPOSE, EXPOUND, IMPOSE, INTERPOSE, OPPOSE, POSITION, POSITIVE, POST², POST³, POSTICHE, POSTURE, PREPOSITION, PROPOSE, PROVOST, REPOSIT, SUPPOSE, TRANSPOSE, from Latin pōnere, to put, place, from po-sinere* (sinere, to leave, let; of obscure origin).

[Pokorny apo- 53.]

ar-

Important derivatives are: *arm*¹, *arm*², army, alarm, disarm, harmony, *art*¹, artist, inert, article, aristocracy, order, ordinary, ornate, adorn, *rate*¹, ratio, reason, read, hatred, *riddle*², rite, arithmetic, rhyme.

Also arə-To fit together.

I. Basic form arə-*.

1. Suffixed form ar(ə)-mo-*.

- a. ARM¹, from Old English earm, arm, from Germanic armaz*;
- b. ARM², (ARMADA), ARMADILLO, ARMATURE, ARMOIRE, ARMY;

ALARM, DISARM, from Latin arma, tools, arms;

- c. ARMILLARY SPHERE, from Latin armus, upper arm.
2. Suffixed form ar(ə)-smo-*. HARMONY, from Greek harmos, joint, shoulder.
3. Suffixed form ar(ə)-ti-*.
 - a. ART¹, ARTISAN, ARTIST; INERT, (INERTIA), from Latin ars (stem art-), art, skill, craft;
 - b. further suffixed form ar(ə)-ti-o-*. ARTIODACTYL, from Greek artios, fitting, even.
4. Suffixed form ar(ə)-tu-*. ARTICLE, from Latin artus, joint.
5. Suffixed form ar(ə)-to-*. COARCTATE, from Latin artus, tight.
6. Suffixed form ar(ə)-dhro-*. ARTHRO-; ANARTHROUS, DIARTHROSIS, ENARTHROSIS, SYNARTHROSIS, from Greek arthron, joint.
7. Suffixed (superlative) form ar(ə)-isto-*. ARISTOCRACY, from Greek aristos, best.

II. Possibly suffixed variant form (or separate root) ōr-dh-*.

1. ORDAIN, ORDER, ORDINAL, ORDINANCE, ORDINARY, ORDINATE, ORDO; COORDINATION, INORDINATE, SUBORDINATE, from Latin ōrdō, order (originally a row of threads in a loom).
2. EXORDIUM, PRIMORDIAL, from Latin ōrdīrī, to begin to weave.
3. ORNAMENT, ORNATE; ADORN, SUBORN, from Latin ōrnāre, to adorn.

III. Variant or separate root rē-* (< reə-*).

1. RATE¹, RATIO, REASON; (ARRAIGN), from Latin rērī, to consider, confirm, ratify.
2. Suffixed form rē-dh-*.
 - i. READ, REDE, from Old English rædan, to advise;
 - ii. HATRED, KINDRED, from Old English ræden, condition. Both (i) and (ii) from Germanic rēdan*;

- i. RATHSKELLER, from Old High German rāt, counsel;
 - ii. RIDDLE², from Old English rǣdels(e), opinion, riddle. Both (i) and (ii) from Germanic rēdaz*.
3. Zero-grade form rə-. (see dekṃ) Germanic radam, number.

IV. Variant (or separate root) rī-*.

1. Suffixed form rī-tu-*. RITE, from Latin rītus, rite, custom, usage.
2. Suffixed form (a)rī-dhmo-*. ARITHMETIC, LOGARITHM, from Greek arithmos, number, amount.
3. RHYME, from a Germanic source akin to Old High German rīm, number, series.

[Pokorny 1. ar- 55.]

arg-

An important derivative is: argue.

To shine; white; the shining or white metal, silver.

1. Suffixed form arg-ent-*. ARGENT, ARGENTINE, from Latin argentum, silver.
2. Suffixed form arg-i-l(l)-*. ARGIL, from Greek argillos, white clay.
3. Suffixed form arg-u-ro-*. LITHARGE, (PYRARGYRITE), from Greek arguros, silver.
4. Suffixed form arg-i-n-*. ARGININE, from Greek arginoeis, brilliant, bright-shining.
5. Extended form argu-*, brilliance, clarity, ARGUE, from Latin denominative arguere, to make clear, demonstrate.
6. Suffixed form arg-ro-*.
 - a. (see pel-¹). Greek argos (< argros*), white;
 - b. AGRIMONY, possibly from Greek argos, white.

[Pokorny ar(e)ǵ- 64.]

as-

Important derivatives are: *ash*¹, arid, ardent, arson, azalea.

To burn, glow.

1. Extended form asg-*. ASH¹, from Old English æsce, asce, ash, from Germanic askōn-*.
2. Suffixed form ās-ā-*. ARA, from Latin āra, altar, hearth.
3. Suffixed (stative) form ās-ē-*.
 - a. ARID, from Latin āridus, dry, parched, from ārēre, to be dry;
 - b. ARDENT, ARDOR, ARSON, from Latin ārdēre, to burn, be on fire, from āridus, parched.
4. Extended form asd-*.
 - a. ZAMIA, from Greek azein, to dry;
 - b. AZALEA, from Greek azaleos, dry.

[Pokorny as- 68.]

at-

Important derivatives are: annual, anniversary, millennium, perennial.

To go; with Germanic and Latin derivatives meaning a year (conceived as “the period gone through, the revolving year”).

Suffixed form at-no-*. ANNALS, ANNUAL, ANNUITY; ANNIVERSARY, BIENNium, DECENNium, MILLENNium, PERENNIAL, QUADRENNium, QUINDECENNIAL, QUINQUENNium, SEPTENNIAL, SEXENNIAL, SUPERANNUATED, TRIENNium, VICENNIAL, from Latin annus, year.

[Pokorny at- 69.]

āter-

Important derivatives are: atrium, atrocious.

Fire.

1. Suffixed zero-grade form ātr-o-*. ATRABILIOUS, from Latin āter (feminine ātra), black (
2. Suffixed zero-grade form ātr-yo-*. ATRIUM, from Latin ātrium, forecourt, hall, atrium (perhaps originally the place where the smoke from the hearth escaped through a hole in the roof).
3. Compound shortened zero-grade form atro-ək^w-* (ək^w-*, “looking”; see ok^w-). ATROCIOUS, from Latin ātrōx, “black-looking,” frightful.

[Pokorny āt(e)r- 69.]

au-

Important derivatives are: audible, audience, audio-, audit, auditorium, obey, aesthetic, anesthesia.

To perceive.

Compound forms aw-dh-, awis-dh-, “to place perception” (see dhē-).

1. Suffixed form awisdh-yo-* or awdh-yo-*. AUDIBLE, AUDIENCE, AUDILE, AUDIO-, AUDIT, AUDITION, AUDITOR, AUDITORIUM, AUDITORY, OYEZ; OBEY, SUBAUDITION, from Latin audīre, to hear.
2. AESTHETIC; ANESTHESIA, from Greek aisthanesthai, to feel.

[Pokorny 8. au- 78.]

aug-

Important derivatives are: nickname, wax², auction, augment, author, inaugurate, auxiliary..

To increase.

Variant (a)weg-* (< əweg-*).

1. EKE¹, from Old English ēacan, ēcan, to increase;
 - a. NICKNAME, from Old English ēaca, an addition. Both a and b from Germanic aukan*.
2. Variant extended forms wogs-, wegs-.
 - a. WAX², from Old English weaxan, to grow, from Germanic wahsan*;

- b. WAIST, from Old English wæst*, growth, hence perhaps waist, size, from Germanic wahs-tu-*.
3. Form aug-ē-*. AUCTION, AUGEND, AUGMENT, AUTHOR, (AUTHORIZE), (OCTROI), from Latin augēre, to increase.
4. AUGUR; INAUGURATE, from Latin augur, diviner (
5. AUGUST, from Latin augustus, majestic, august.
6. Suffixed form aug-s-*.
 - a. AUXILIARY, from Latin auxilium, aid, support, assistance;
 - b. AUXIN, AUXESIS from Greek auxein, auxanein, to increase.

[Pokorny auēg- 84.]

aus-

Important derivatives are: east, Easter, aurora.

To shine.

- a. EAST, from Old English ēast, east (
- b. OSTMARK, from Old High German ōstan, east. Both a and b from Germanic aust-*.
 - a. EASTERN, from Old English ēasterne, eastern;
 - b. OSTROGOTH, from Late Latin ostro-, eastern. Both a and b from Germanic austra-*.
1. EASTER, from Old English ēastre, Easter, from Germanic austrōn-*, a dawn-goddess whose holiday was celebrated at the vernal equinox.
2. Possibly in AUSTRO⁻¹, from Latin auster, the south wind, formally identical to the Germanic forms in 2 and 3, but the semantics are unclear.
3. Probably suffixed form ausōs-*, dawn, also Indo-European goddess of the dawn.

- a. AURORA, from Latin aurōra, dawn;
- b. EO-, EOS; EOSIN, from Greek ēōs, dawn.

[Pokorny auēs- 86.]

awi-

Important derivatives are: aviation, bustard, osprey, ostrich, auspice, cockney, oval, ovary, ovum, caviar.

Bird.

1. AVIAN, AVIARY, AVIATION; AVICULTURE, AVIFAUNA, BUSTARD, OCARINA, OSPREY, OSTRICH, from Latin avis, bird.
2. Compound awi-spek-, “observer of birds” (spek-, to see; see spek-). AUSPICE, from Latin auspex, augur.

II. Possible derivatives are the Indo-European words for egg, ōwyo-, əyo-.

- a. COCKNEY, from Old English æġ, egg;
- b. EGG¹, from Old Norse egg, egg. Both a and b from Germanic ajja(m)*.
2. OVAL, OVARY, OVATE, OVI-, OVOLO, OVULE, OVUM, from Latin ōvum, egg.
3. OO-, from Greek ōion, egg.
4. CAVIAR, from a source akin to Middle Persian khāyak, egg, from Old Iranian āvyaka-, diminutive of avya-.

[Pokorny auēi- 86.]

awo-

Important derivatives are: avuncular, uncle.

An adult male relative other than one's father.

1. ATAVISM, from Latin avus, grandfather.
2. AVUNCULAR, UNCLE, from Latin avunculus, maternal uncle.

3. AYAH, from Latin avia, grandmother.

[Pokorny ayo-s 89.]

ayer-

Important derivatives are: early, ere.

Day, morning.

- a. EARLY, ERE, OR², from Old English ǣr, before;
 - b. OR², from Old Norse ār, before. Both a and b from Germanic airiz*.
1. ERST, from Old English ǣrest, earliest, from Germanic (superlative) airistaz*.

[Pokorny ajer- 12.]

eyes-

An important derivative is: era.

A metal, copper or bronze.

AENEUS, ERA, from Latin aes, bronze, money.

[Pokorny ajos- 15.]

bak-

Important derivatives are: imbecile, bacterium.

Staff used for support.

3. BACILLUS, BAGUETTE, (BAIL⁴), (BAILEY); BACULIFORM, DEBACLE, IMBECILE, possibly from Latin baculum, rod, walking stick.
4. BACTERIUM; (CORYNEBACTERIUM), from Greek baktron, staff.

[Pokorny bak- 93.]

bel-

Derivatives are: Bolshevik, debilitate.

Strong.

6. Suffixed o-grade form bol-iyō-*. BOLSHEVIK, from Russian bol'shoĭ, large.
7. Prefixed form dē-bel-i-*, “without strength” (dē-, privative prefix; see de-). DEBILITATE, DEBILITY, from Latin dēbilis, weak.

[Pokorny 2. bel- 96.]

bhā⁻¹

Important derivatives are: beacon, beckon, berry, banner, photo-, fantasy, phase.
To shine.

Contracted from bhaə-*.

1. Suffixed zero-grade form bhə-w-*.
 - a. BEACON, from Old English bēac(e)n, beacon;
 - b. BECKON, from Old English denominative bēcnan, bēcnian, to make a sign, beckon;
 - c. BUOY, from Old French boue, buoy. a, b, and c all from Germanic baukna-*, beacon, signal.
 - d. BERRY; MULBERRY, from Old English berie, berige, berry, and Old High German beri, berry;
 - e. FRAMBESIA, from Old French framboise, raspberry, alteration of Frankish brām-besi*, “bramble berry.” Both a and b from Germanic bazja-*, berry (bhā⁻¹).
 - f. BANDOLEER, from Spanish banda, sash;
 - g. BANNER, (BANNERET¹), (BANNERET²), from Late Latin bandum, banner, standard. Both a and b from Germanic bandwa-*, “identifying sign,” banner, standard, sash, also “company united under a (particular) banner.”
2. Suffixed form bhə-w-es-*. PHOS-, PHOT, PHOTO-; PHOSPHORUS, from Greek phōs (stem phōt-), light.

3. Extended and suffixed form bhā-n-yo-*. FANTASY, (PANT), -PHANE, PHANTASM, (PHANTOM), PHASE, PHENO-, PHENOMENON; DIAPHANOUS, EMPHASIS, EPIPHANY, HIEROPHANT, PHANEROGAM, (PHANTASMAGORIA), PHOSPHENE, SYCOPHANT, THEOPHANY, (TIFFANY), from Greek phainein, “to bring to light,” cause to appear, show, and phainesthai (passive), “to be brought to light,” appear, with zero-grade noun phasis (bhā-ti-*), an appearance.

[Pokorny 1. bhā- 104.]

bhā⁻²

Important derivatives are: fable, fate, infant, preface, prophet, abandon, banish, bandit, fame, phono-, symphony, confess, blame.

To speak.

Contracted from bhaə-*.

4. FABLE, FATE; AFFABLE, (FANTOCCINI), INEFFABLE, INFANT, (INFANTRY), PREFACE, from Latin fārī, to speak.
5. -PHASIA; APOPHASIS, PROPHET, from Greek phanai, to speak.
 - a. BAN¹, from Old English bannan, to summon, proclaim, and Old Norse banna, to prohibit, curse;
 - b. BANAL, BANNIS; ABANDON, from Old French ban, feudal jurisdiction, summons to military service, proclamation, Old French bandon, power, and Old English gebann, proclamation;
 - c. BANISH, from Old French banir, to banish;
 - d. CONTRABAND, from Late Latin bannus, bannum, proclamation;
 - e. BANDIT, from Italian bandire, to muster, band together (a, b, c, d, and e all from Germanic suffixed form ban-wan, bannan, to speak publicly (used of particular kinds of proclamation in feudal or prefeudal custom; “to proclaim under penalty, summon to the levy, declare outlaw”).
6. Suffixed form bhā-ni-*.

- a. BOON¹, from Old Norse bōn, prayer, request;
 - b. BEE¹, perhaps from Old English bēn, prayer, from a Scandinavian source akin to Old Norse bōn, prayer. Both a and b from Germanic bōni-*.
7. Suffixed form bhā-ma*.
- a. FAME, FAMOUS; DEFAME, INFAMOUS, from Latin fāma, talk, reputation, fame;
 - b. EUPHEMISM, from Greek phēmē, saying, speech.
8. Suffixed o-grade form bhō-nā*. PHONE², -PHONE, PHONEME, PHONETIC, PHONO-, -PHONY; ANTHEM, (ANTIPHON), APHONIA, CACOPHONOUS, EUPHONY, SYMPHONY, from Greek phōnē, voice, sound, and (denominative) phōnein, to speak.
9. Suffixed zero-grade form bhə-to-*. CONFESS, PROFESS, from Latin fatēri, to acknowledge, admit.
10. (BLAME), BLASPHEME, from Greek blasphēmos, evil-speaking, blasphemous (first element obscure).

[Pokorny 2. bhā- 105.]

bha-bhā-

An important derivative is: bean.

Broad bean.

- 4. FAVA BEAN, from Latin faba, broad bean.
- 5. Variant form bha-un-*. BEAN, from Old English bēan, broad bean, bean of any kind, from Germanic baunō*.
- 6. Possible suffixed form bha-ko-*. PHACOEMULSIFICATION, from Greek phakos, lentil.

[Pokorny bhabhā 106.]

bhad-

Important derivatives are: better, best.

Good.

14. BETTER, from Old English betera, better, from Germanic (comparative) batizō*.
15. BEST, from Old English bet(e)st, best, from Germanic (superlative) batistaz*.
16. BOOT², from Old English bōt, remedy, aid, from Germanic noun bōtō*.
17. BATTEN¹, ultimately from Old Norse batna, to improve, from Germanic verb batnan*, to become better.

[Pokorny bhād- 106.]

bhag-

Derivatives are: phago-, -phagous.

To share out, apportion, also to get a share.

3. -PHAGE, -PHAGIA, PHAGO-, -PHAGOUS, from Greek phagein, to eat (
4. NEBBISH, from a Slavic source akin to Czech neboh, poor, unfortunate, from Common Slavic ne-bogŭ*, poor (“un-endowed”).
5. PAGODA; BHAGAVAD-GITA, from Sanskrit bhagah, good fortune.
6. Extended form bhags-*. BAKSHEESH, (BUCKSHEE), from Persian bakhshīdan, to give, from Avestan bakhsh-.

[Pokorny 1. bhag- 107.]

bhāghu-

An important derivative is: bough.

Arm.

BOUGH, from Old English bōg, bōh, bough, from Germanic bōguz*.

[Pokorny bhāgh’-s 108.]

bhāgo-

Important derivatives are: book, buckwheat, beech.

Beech tree.

- d. BOOK, from Old English bōc, written document, composition;
 - e. BUCKWHEAT, from Middle Dutch boek, beech;
 - f. BOKMÅL, from Norwegian bok, book. a, b, and c all from Germanic bōkō*, beech, also “beech staff for carving runes on” (an early Germanic writing device).
4. BEECH, from Old English bēce, beech, from Germanic bōkjōn-*.

[Pokorny bhāgo-s 107.]

bhardh-ā-

Important derivatives are: beard, *barb*¹, barber.

Beard.

1. BEARD, from Old English beard, beard, from Germanic bardaz*.
2. HALBERD, from Old High German barta, beard, ax, from Germanic bardō*, beard, also hatchet, broadax.
3. BARB¹, BARBEL¹, BARBELLATE, BARBER, (BARBETTE), BARBICEL, BARBULE; REBARBATIVE, from Latin barba, beard.

[Pokorny bhardhā 110.]

bhares-

Important derivatives are: barley, barn, farina.

Also bhars-Barley.

- a. BARN, from Old English bere, barley, from Germanic bariz-*;
 - b. BARLEY, from Old English bærlic, barley-like, barley, from Germanic barz-*.
3. FARINA, (FARINACEOUS), (FARRAGINOUS), FARRAGO, from Latin far (stem farr-), spelt, grain.

bhau-

Important derivatives are: beat, buttock, halibut, *butt*¹, button, refute.

To strike.

Contracted from *bhaəu-

3. BEAT, from Old English bēatan, to beat, from Germanic bautan*.
4. BEETLE³, from Old English bȳtl, hammer, mallet, from Germanic bautilaz*, hammer.
5. BASTE³, probably from a Scandinavian source akin to Old Norse beysta, to beat, denominative from Germanic baut-sti-*.
6. BUTTOCK, from Old English diminutive buttuc, end, strip of land, from Germanic būtaz*.
 - a. HALIBUT, from Middle Dutch butte, flatfish;
 - b. TURBOT, from a Scandinavian source akin to Old Swedish but, flatfish. Both a and b from Germanic butt-*, name for a flatfish.
7. (BOUTON), BUTT¹, BUTTON, BUTTRESS; ABUT, REBUT, SACKBUT, from Old French bo(u)ter, to strike, push, from Germanic buttan*.
8. Zero-grade form bhū-* (bhuə-*) with verbal suffix -tā-.
 - a. CONFUTE, from Latin cōnfūtāre, to check, suppress, restrain (com-, intensive prefix; see kom);
 - b. REFUTE, from Latin refūtāre, to drive back, rebut (re-, back; see re-).
9. Possibly reduced suffixed form bhu-tu-* (bhəu-*). FOOTLE, from Latin futuere, to have intercourse with (a woman).

Derivatives are: -phobe, -phobia.

To run.

4. BECK², from Old Norse bekkr, a stream, from Germanic bakjaz*, a stream.
5. -PHOBE, -PHOBIA, from Greek phobos, panic, flight, fear, from phebesthai, to flee in terror.

[Pokorny bheg^u- 116.]

bhei-

An important derivative is: bee¹.

A bee.

BEE¹, from Old English bēo, a bee, from Germanic suffixed form bīōn-*.

[Pokorny bhei- 116.]

bheid-

Important derivatives are: beetle¹, bite, bit¹, bitter, bait¹, boat, fission.

To split; with Germanic derivatives referring to biting (hence also to eating and to hunting) and woodworking.

- a. BEETLE¹, BITE, from Old English bītan, to bite;
 - b. TSIMMES, from Old High German bīzan, bizzan, to bite.
Both a and b from Germanic bītan*.
2. Zero-grade form bhid-*.
- a. BIT², from Old English bite, a bite, sting, from Germanic bitiz*;
 - b. (i) BIT¹, from Old English bita, a piece bitten off, morsel;
(ii) BITT, from a Germanic source akin to Old Norse biti, bit, crossbeam. Both (i) and (ii) from Germanic bitōn-*;
 - c. suffixed form bhid-ro-*. BITTER, from Old English bit(t)er, “biting,” sharp, bitter.
3. O-grade form bhoid-*.

- a. BAIT¹, from Old Norse beita (verb), to hunt with dogs, and beita (noun), pasture, food;
 - b. ABET, from Old French beter, to harass with dogs. Both a and b from Germanic baitjan*.
4. BATEAU, BOAT; (BOATSWAIN), from Old English bāt, boat, from Germanic bait-*, a boat (
 5. Nasalized zero-grade form bhi-n-d-*. -FID, FISSI-, (FISSILE), (FISSION), (FISSURE), from Latin findere, to split.

[Pokorny bheid- 116.]

bheidh-

Important derivatives are: bide, abide, fiancÈ, affidavit, confide, confident, defy, federal, faith, fidelity, infidel.

To trust, confide, persuade.

1. BIDE; ABIDE, (ABODE), from Old English bīdan, to wait, stay, from Germanic bīdan*, to await (bheidh-).
2. FIANCÈ, FIDUCIAL, (FIDUCIARY); AFFIANCE, (AFFIANT), (AFFIDAVIT), (CONFIDANT), CONFIDE, (CONFIDENT), (DEFIANCE), DEFY, DIFFIDENT, from Latin fīdere, to trust, confide, and fīdus, faithful.
3. Suffixed o-grade form bhoidh-es-*. FEDERAL, FEDERATE; CONFEDERATE, from Latin foedus (stem foeder-), treaty, league.
4. Zero-grade form bhidh-*. FAITH, FEALTY, FIDELITY; INFIDEL, PERFIDY, from Latin fidēs, faith, trust.

[Pokorny bheidh- 117.]

bhel-¹

Important derivatives are: blue, bleach, *bleak*¹, *blaze*¹, blemish, blind, blend, blond, blank, blanket, blush, black, flagrant, flame.

To shine, flash, burn; shining white and various bright colors.

1. BELUGA, from Russian belyĭ, white.
2. PHALAROPE, from Greek phalaros, having a white spot.

3. Suffixed variant form bhlē-wo-*. BLUE, from Old French bleu, blue, from Germanic blēwaz*, blue.
4. Suffixed zero-grade form bhlā-wo-*. FLAVESCENT, FLAVO-; (FLAVIN), (FLAVONE), (FLAVOPROTEIN), from Latin flāvus, golden or reddish yellow.

II. Various extended Germanic forms.

1. BLEACH, from Old English blācan, to bleach, from Germanic blaikjan*, to make white.
2. BLEAK¹, from Old Norse bleikr, shining, white, from Germanic blaikaz*, shining, white.
3. BLITZKRIEG, from Old High German bl"chazzen, to flash, lighten, from Germanic blikkatjan*.
 - a. BLAZE¹, from Old English blāse, torch, bright fire;
 - b. BLESBOK, from Middle Dutch bles, white spot;
 - c. BLEMISH, from Old French ble(s)mir, to make pale. a, b, and c all from Germanic blas-*, shining, white.
 - d. BLIND; (BLINDFOLD), (PURBLIND), from Old English blind, blind;
 - e. BLENDE, from Old High German blentan, to blind, deceive;
 - f. BLEND, from Old Norse blanda, to mix;
 - g. BLOND, from Old French blond, blond. a, b, c, and d all from Germanic blendaz*, clouded, and bland-, bland-ja-, to mix, mingle (
 - h. BLENCH¹, from Old English blencan, to deceive;
 - i. BLANCH, BLANK, BLANKET; BLANCMANGE, from Old French blanc, white. Both a and b from Germanic blenk-, blank-, to shine, dazzle, blind.
4. BLUSH, from Old English blyscan, to glow red, from Germanic blisk-*, to shine, burn.

III. Extended form bhleg-*, to shine, flash, burn.

1. O-grade form bhlog-. BLACK, from Old English blæc, black, from Germanic blakaz*, burned.
2. Zero-grade form bhlg-*.
 - a. FULGENT, FULGURATE; EFFULGENT, FOU DROYANT, REFULGENT, from Latin fulgēre, to flash, shine, and fulgur, lightning;
 - b. FULMINATE, from Latin fulmen (< ful-men*), lightning, thunderbolt.
 - c. FLAGRANT; CONFLAGRANT, (CONFLAGRATION), DEFLAGRATE, from Latin flagrāre, to blaze;
 - d. (FLAMBÈ), (FLAMBEAU), (FLAMBOYANT), FLAME, FLAMINGO, FLAMMABLE; INFLAME, from Latin flamma (< flag-ma*), a flame.
3. PHLEGM, PHLEGMATIC, PHLEGETHON, from Greek phlegein, to burn.
4. O-grade form bhlog-*. PHLOGISTON, PHLOX; PHLOGOPITE, from Greek phlox, a flame, also a wallflower.

[Pokorny 1. bhel- 118, bheleg- 124, bhleu-(k)- 159.]

bhel-²

Important derivatives are: bowl¹, bulk¹, boulevard, boulder, bull¹, phallus, ball¹, balloon, ballot, bold, fool.

To blow, swell; with derivatives referring to various round objects and to the notion of tumescent masculinity.

3. Zero-grade form bhl-.
 - a. BOWL¹, from Old English bolla, pot, bowl;
 - b. BOLE, from Old Norse bolr, tree trunk;
 - c. BULK, from Old Norse bulki, cargo (
 - d. ROCAMBOLE, from Old High German bolla, ball;
 - e. (BOULEVARD), BULWARK, from Middle High German bole, beam, plank;

- f. BOLL, from Middle Dutch bolle, round object;
 - g. BILTONG, from Middle Dutch bille, buttock;
 - h. BOULDER, from a Scandinavian source akin to Swedish bullersten, “rounded stone,” boulder, from buller-, “round object.” a, b, c, d, e, f, g, and h all from Germanic bul-.
4. Suffixed zero-grade form bh_l-n-*.
- a. BULL¹, from Old Norse boli, bull, from Germanic bullōn-*, bull;
 - b. BULLOCK, from Old English bulluc, bull, from Germanic bulluka-*;
 - c. PHALLUS; ITHYPHALLIC, from Greek phallos, phallus;
 - d. FULL², from Latin fullō, a fuller, possibly from bhel-².
5. O-grade form bhol-*.
- a. BOLLIX, from Old English beallucas, testicles;
 - b. BALL¹, from Old English beall*, ball;
 - c. BILBERRY, probably from a Scandinavian source akin to Danish bolle, round roll;
 - d. BALLOON, BALLOT, (BALLOTTEMENT), from Italian dialectal balla, ball;
 - e. PALL-MALL, from Italian palla, ball;
 - f. BALE¹, from Old French bale, rolled-up bundle. a, b, c, d, e, and f all from Germanic ball-*.
6. Possibly suffixed o-grade form bhol-to-*.
- a. BOLD, from Old English bald, beald, bold;
 - b. BAWD, from Old Low German bald, bold. Both a and b from Germanic balthaz*, bold.
7. Suffixed o-grade form bhol-n-*. FILS², FOLLICLE, FOOL; (FOLLICULITIS), from Latin follis, bellows, inflated ball.

8. BALEEN, from Greek phal(l)aina, whale, possibly from bhel⁻².
9. PHELLEM; PHELLODERM, PHELLOGEN, from Greek phellos, cork, cork oak, conceivably from bhel⁻² (but more likely unrelated).

[Pokorny 3. bhel- 120. (The following derivatives of this root are entered separately: bhel⁻³, bhelgh-, bhleu-.)]

bhel⁻³

Important derivatives are: foliage, folio, *bloom*¹, blossom, flora, flour, flourish, flower, bleed, blood, bless, blade.

To thrive, bloom. Possibly from bhel⁻².

III. Suffixed o-grade form bhol-yo-*, leaf.

1. FOIL², (FOLIAGE), FOLIO, FOLIUM; (CINQUEFOIL), DEFOLIATE, EXFOLIATE, FEUILLETON, FOLIICOLOUS, MILFOIL, PERFOLIATE, PORTFOLIO, TREFOIL, from Latin folium, leaf.
2. (-PHYLL), PHYLLO-, -PHYLOUS; CHERVIL, GILLYFLOWER, PODOPHYLLIN, from Greek phullon, leaf.

IV. Extended form bhlē-* (< bhleā-*).

1. O-grade form bhlō-*.
 - a. suffixed form bhlō-w-*. BLOW³, from Old English blōwan, to flower, from Germanic blō-w-*;
 - i. BLOOM¹, from Old Norse blōm, blōmi, flower, blossom;
 - ii. BLOOM², from Old English blōma, a hammered ingot of iron (semantic development obscure). Both (i) and (ii) from Germanic suffixed form blō-mōn-*;
 - b. BLOSSOM, from Old English blōstm, blōstma, flower, blossom, from Germanic suffixed form blō-s-*;
 - c. FERRET², (FLORA), FLORA, (FLORAL), FLORIATED, FLORID, FLORIN, FLORIST, -FLOROUS, (FLOUR), FLOURISH, FLOWER; (CAULIFLOWER), DEFLOWER, EFFLORESCE, ENFLEURAGE, FLORIGEN, from Latin flōs (stem flōr-), flower, from Italic suffixed form flō-s-*;

- d. suffixed form bhlō-to-;
 - i. BLEED, BLOOD, from Old English blōd, blood;
 - ii. BLESS, from Old English bloedsian, blētsian, to consecrate, from Germanic blōdisōn*, to treat or hallow with blood. Both (i) and (ii) from Germanic blō-dam*, possibly from bhel⁻³ in the meaning “swell, gush, spurt.”
2. EMBLEMENTS, from Medieval Latin blādum, bladium, produce of the land, grain, from Germanic suffixed form blē-da-*.
3. Suffixed zero-grade form bhlā-to-*. BLADE, from Old English blæd, leaf, blade, from Germanic bladaz*.

[Pokorny 4. bhel- 122.]

bhelgh-

Important derivatives are: bellows, belly, billow, budget, bulge.

To swell.

Extension of bhel⁻².

7. O-grade form bholgh-*. BELLOWS, BELLY, from Old English bel(i)g, bælig, bag, bellows, from Germanic balgiz*.
8. Zero-grade form bhlgh-*. BILLOW, from Old Norse bylgja, a wave, from Germanic bulgjan*.
9. Zero-grade form bhlgh-*. BOLSTER, from Old English bolster, cushion, from Germanic bulgstraz*.
10. O-grade form bholgh-*. BUDGET, BULGE, from Latin bulga, leather sack, from Celtic bolg-*.

[Pokorny bhelgh- 125.]

bhendh-

Important derivatives are: bind, bend^l, band^l, bond, bundle.

To bind.

- a. BIND; WOODBINE, from Old English bindan, to bind;

- b. BINDLESTIFF, from Old High German binten, to bind.
Both a and b from Germanic bindan*.
1. BANDANNA, from Sanskrit bandhati, he ties.
 2. O-grade form bhondh-*.
 - a. BEND²; RIBBON, from Old English bend, band, and Old French bende, band;
 - b. BEND¹, from Old English bendan, to bend;
 - c. BAND¹, BOND, from Old Norse band, band, fetter;
 - d. BAND¹, from Old French bande, bond, tie, link. a, b, c, and d all from Germanic band-*.
 3. Suffixed form bhond-o-*. BUND¹; (CUMMERBUND), from Old Iranian banda-, bond, fetter.
 4. Zero-grade form bh̥ndh-*.
 - a. BUND², from Middle High German bunt, league;
 - b. BUNDLE, from Middle Dutch bondel, sheaf of papers, bundle. Both a and b from Germanic bund-*.

[Pokorny bhendh- 127.]

bher-¹

Important derivatives are: bear¹, burden¹, birth, bring, fertile, differ, offer, prefer, suffer, transfer, furtive, metaphor.

To carry; also to bear children.

- i. BEAR¹, from Old English beran, to carry;
- ii. FORBEAR¹, from Old English forberan, to bear, endure (for-, for-; see per¹). Both (i) and (ii) from Germanic beran*;
- c. BIER, from Old English bēr, bār, bier, and Old French biere bier, both from Germanic bērō*;
- d. BORE³, from Old Norse bāra, wave, billow, from Germanic bēr-*.

- e. BAIERN, from Old English bearn, child, from Germanic barnam*;
 - f. BARROW¹, from Old English bearwe, basket, wheelbarrow, from Germanic barwōn-*.
 - g. BURLY, from Old English borlic*, excellent, exalted (bur-*;
;
 - h. BURDEN¹, from Old English byrthen, burden, from Germanic burthinja*;
 - i. BIRTH, from a source akin to Old Norse burdhr, birth, from Germanic burthiz*;
 - j. BIRR¹, from Old Norse byrr, favorable wind, perhaps from Germanic burja-*.
7. Compound root bhrenk-, to bring (< bher- + enk-*, to reach; see nek-2). BRING, from Old English bringan, to bring, from Germanic bregan*.
 8. -FER, FERTILE; AFFERENT, CIRCUMFERENCE, CONFER, (DEFER¹), DEFER², DIFFER, EFFERENT, INFER, OFFER, PREFER, (PROFFER), REFER, SUFFER, TRANSFER, VOCIFERATE, from Latin ferre, to carry.
 9. OPPROBRIUM, from Latin probrum, a reproach (< pro-bhr-o-*, “something brought before one”; pro-, before; see per¹).
 10. Probably lengthened o-grade form bhōr-*. FERRET¹, FURTIVE, FURUNCLE; (FURUNCULOSIS), from Latin fūr, thief.
 11. FERETORY, -PHORE, -PHORESIS, -PHOROUS; AMPHORA, ANAPHORA, DIAPHORESIS, EUPHORIA, METAPHOR, PERIPHERY, PHEROMONE, TELPHER, TOCOPHEROL, from Greek pherein, to carry, with o-grade noun phoros, a carrying.
 12. PARAPHERNALIA, from Greek phernē, dowry (“something brought by a bride”).
 13. SAMBAL, from Sanskrit bharati, he carries, brings.

bher-²

Important derivatives are: brown, burnish, *beaver*¹, *bear*².

Bright, brown.

5. Suffixed variant form bhrū-no-*.
 - a. BROWN, from Old English brūn, brown;
 - b. BRUIN, from Middle Dutch bruun;
 - c. BRUNET, BURNET, BURNISH, from Old French brun, shining, brown. a, b, and c all from Germanic brūmaz*.
6. Reduplicated form bhibhru-, bhebhru-, “the brown animal,” beaver. BEAVER¹, from Old English be(o)for, beaver, from Germanic bebruz*.
7. BEAR², from Old English bera, bear, from Germanic berō*, “the brown animal,” bear.
8. BERSERKER, from Old Norse bj^rn, bear, from Germanic bernuz*.

[Pokorny 5. bher- 136.]

bheræg-

Important derivatives are: bright, birch.

To shine; bright, white.

4. BRIGHT, from Old English beorht, bright, from Germanic berhtaz*, bright.
5. “The white tree,” the birch (also the ash).
 - a. BIRCH, (BIRK), from Old English birc(e), birch, from Germanic birkjōn-*;
 - b. probably suffixed zero-grade form bhrag-s-*. FRAXINELLA, from Latin fraxinus, ash tree.

[Pokorny bheræg- 139.]

bhergh-¹

Important derivatives are: bury, burial, borrow, bargain.

To hide, protect.

- a. (see k^wel-¹) Germanic compound h(w)als-berg-, “neck-protector,” gorget (h(w)alsaz, neck);
 - b. (see sker-¹) Germanic compound skēr-berg-, “sword-protector,” scabbard (skēr-, sword). Both a and b from Germanic bergan*.
3. Zero-grade form bhr̥gh-*.
- a. BURY, from Old English byrgan, to bury, from Germanic burgjan*;
 - b. BURIAL, from Old English byrgels, burial, from Germanic derivative burgisli-*.
 - c. BORROW, from Old English borgian, to borrow, from Germanic borgēn*, to pledge, lend, borrow;
 - d. BARGAIN, from Old French bargainier, to haggle, from Germanic derivative borganjan*.

[Pokorny bhergh- 145.]

bhergh-²

Important derivatives are: iceberg, bourgeois, burglar, force, fort, comfort, effort, enforce, fortify.

High; with derivatives referring to hills and hill-forts.

- c. BARROW², from Old English beorg, hill;
 - d. ICEBERG, from Middle Dutch bergh, mountain. Both a and b from Germanic bergaz*, hill, mountain.
7. (see koro-) Germanic compound harja-bergaz*, “army-hill,” hill-fort (harjaz*, army).
8. BELFRY, from Old French berfroi, tower, from Germanic compound berg-frij-, “high place of safety,” tower (frij-, peace, safety; see pri-).
9. Zero-grade form bhr̥gh-*.

- a. BOROUGH, BURG, from Old English burg, burh, byrig, (fortified) town;
- b. BURGHER, from Old High German burg, fortress;
- c. BURGOMASTER, from Middle Dutch burch, town;
- d. BOURG, (BOURGEOIS), BURGESS, BURGLAR; FAUBOURG, from Late Latin burgus, fortified place, and Old French burg, borough. a, b, c, and d all from Germanic burgs*, hill-fort.

10. Possibly suffixed zero-grade form bhrg̥h-to-*. FORCE, FORT, (FORTALICE), FORTE¹, FORTE², FORTIS, (FORTISSIMO), FORTITUDE, FORTRESS; COMFORT, DEFORCE, EFFORT, (ENFORCE), FORTIFY, (PIANOFORTE), (REINFORCE), from Latin fortis, strong (but this is also possibly from dher-).

[Pokorny bheregh- 140.]

bhes-

Important derivatives are: psyche, psychic, psycho-.

To breathe. Probably imitative.

Zero-grade form bhs-*. PSYCHE, PSYCHIC, PSYCHO-; METEMPSYCHOSIS, from Greek psukhē, spirit, soul, from psukhein (< bhs-ū-kh-*), to breathe.

[Pokorny 2. bhes- 146.]

bheudh-

Important derivatives are: bid, forbid, *bode*¹, *Buddha*².

To be aware, to make aware.

- c. BID, from Old English bēodan, to proclaim;
- d. FORBID, from Old English forbēodan, to forbid;
- e. VERBOTEN, from Old High German farbiotan, to forbid. a, b, and c all from Germanic (for)beudan* (for*, before; see per¹).

4. BODE¹, from Old English bodian, to announce, from boda, messenger, from Germanic budōn-*.

5. BEADLE, from Old English bydel, herald, messenger, and Old High German butil, herald, both from Germanic budilaz*, herald.
6. OMBUDSMAN, from Old Norse bodh, command, from Germanic budam*.
7. BUDDHA²; BODHISATTVA, BO TREE, from Sanskrit bodhati, he awakes, is enlightened, becomes aware, and bodhiḥ, perfect knowledge.

[Pokorny bheudh- 150.]

bheuə-

Important derivatives are: be, husband, booth, build, future, neighbor, beam.

Also bheu-To be, exist, grow.

III. Extended forms bhwi(y)(o)-, bhwī-.

1. BE, from Old English bēon, to be, from Germanic biju*, I am, will be.
2. FIAT, from Latin fieri, to become.
3. Possibly suffixed form bhwī-lyo-*. (see dhē(i)-) Latin filius, son.

IV. Lengthened o-grade form bhōw-*.

- a. BONDAGE, BOUND⁴; BUSTLE¹, HUSBAND, from Old Norse būa, to live, prepare, and būask, to make oneself ready (-sk, reflexive suffix; see s(w)e-);
- b. BAUHAUS, from Old High German būan, to dwell;
- c. BOOTH, from Middle English bothe, market stall, from a Scandinavian source akin to Old Danish bōth, dwelling, stall. a, b, and c all from Germanic bōwan*.

V. Zero-grade form bhu-*.

- a. BUILD, from Old English byldan, to build, from bold, dwelling, house, from Germanic buthla*;

- b. BOODLE, from Middle Dutch bōdel, riches, property, from alternate Germanic form bōthla*.
2. PHYSIC, PHYSICS, PHYSIO-, PHYSIQUE, -PHYTE, PHYTO-, (PHYTON); APOPHYSIS, DIAPHYSIS, DIPHYDONT, EPIPHYSIS, EUPHUISM, HYPOPHYSIS, IMP, MONOPHYSITE, NEOPHYTE, PERIPHYTON, SYMPHYSIS, TRACHEOPHYTE, from Greek phuein, to bring forth, make grow, phutos, phuton, a plant, and phusis, growth, nature.
3. Suffixed form bhū-tā-*. EISTEDDFOD, from Welsh bod, to be.
4. Suffixed form bhū-tu-*. FUTURE, from Latin futūrus, “that is to be,” future.

VI. Zero-grade form bhū-* (< bhua-*).

- a. BOWER¹, from Old English būr, “dwelling space,” bower, room;
 - b. NEIGHBOR, from Old English gebūr, dweller (ge-, collective prefix; see kom);
 - c. BOER, BOOR, from Middle Dutch gheboer, ghebuer, peasant. a, b, and c all from Germanic būram*, dweller, especially farmer.
2. BYRE, from Old English bȳre, stall, hut, from Germanic būrjam*, dwelling.
3. BYLAW, from a Scandinavian source akin to Old Norse bȳr, settlement, from Germanic būwi-*.
4. Suffixed form bhū-lo-*. PHYLE, PHYLETIC, PHYLUM; PHYLOGENY, from Greek phulon, tribe, class, race, and phulē, tribe, clan.

VII. Suffixal forms in Latin.

1. (see dwo-) Latin dubius, doubtful, and dubitāre, to doubt, from du-bhw-io-*.
2. (see per¹) Latin probus, upright, from pro-bhw-o-*, “growing well or straightforward.”
3. (see uper) Latin superbus, superior, proud, from super-bhw-o-*, “being above.”

- a. BEAM, from Old English bēam, tree, beam;
- b. BOOM², from Middle Dutch boom, tree;
- c. BUMPKIN¹, from Flemish boom, tree. a, b and c all from Germanic baumaz* (and bagmaz*), tree (? bheuə-).

[Pokorny bheu- 146.]

bheug-

Important derivatives are: *bow*³, *bow*², bog.

To bend; with derivatives referring to bent, pliable, or curved objects.

I. Variant form bheugh-* in Germanic beug-*.

- a. BEE², from Old English bēag, a ring;
 - b. BAGEL, from Old High German boug, a ring. Both a and b from Germanic baugaz*.
 - c. BOW³, from Old English boga, a bow, arch;
 - d. (see el-) Germanic compound alino-bugōn-, “bend of the forearm,” elbow (alino-, forearm);
 - e. BOW¹, from a source akin to Middle Low German boog, bow of a boat. a, b, and c all from Germanic bugōn-*.
2. BOW², BUXOM, from Old English būgan, to bend, from Germanic būgan.
 3. BAIL³, from Middle English beil, a handle, perhaps from Old English bēgel* or from a Scandinavian source akin to Old Swedish b^hghil*, both from Germanic baugil-*.
 4. BIGHT, from Old English byht, a bend, angle, from Germanic buhtiz*.

II. BOG, from Scottish and Irish Gaelic bog, soft, from Celtic buggo-*, “flexible.”

[Pokorny 3. bheug- 152.]

bhlē-

Important derivatives are: *blow*¹, bladder, blast, flavor, inflate.

Also bhlā-To blow. Possibly identical to bhel-³ || bhlē*- above.

2. BLOW¹, from Old English blāwan, to blow, from Germanic suffixed form blē-w*-.
 - a. BLADDER, from Old English blædre, blister, bladder;
 - b. BLATHER, from Old Norse bladhra (noun), bladder, and bladhra (verb), to prattle. Both a and b from Germanic suffixed form blēdram*, “something blown up.”
 - c. BLAST, from Old English blæst, a blowing, blast;
 - d. ISINGLASS, from Middle Dutch blas(e), a bladder;
 - e. BLASÈ, BLAZE³, from Middle Dutch blāsen, to blow up, swell. a, b and c all from Germanic extended form blēs*-.
3. Variant form bhlā*-. FLABELLUM, FLATUS, FLAVOR; AFFLATUS, CONFLATE, (DEFLATE), INFLATE, SOUFFLÈ, from Latin flāre, to blow.

[In Pokorny 3. bhel- 120.]

bhleu-

Important derivatives are: bloat, fluctuate, fluent, fluid, affluent, influence.

To swell, well up, overflow.

Extension of bhel-².

1. BLOAT, from Old Norse blautr, soft, wet, from Germanic blaut-*, possibly from bhleu-.
2. Extended form bhleug*^w-. FLUCTUATE, FLUENT, FLUERIC, FLUID, FLUME, FLUOR, (FLUORO-), (FLUSH²), FLUVIAL, FLUX; AFFLUENT, CONFLUENT, EFFLUENT, (EFFLUVIUM), (EFFLUX), (FLUORIDE), FLUVIOMARINE, INFLUENCE, (INFLUENZA), MELLIFLUOUS, REFLUX, SUPERFLUOUS, from Latin fluere, to flow, and -fluus, flowing.
3. Zero-grade form bhlu*-. PLYCTENA, from Greek phluein, phluzein, to boil over.

4. PHLOEM, from Greek phloos, phloios, tree bark (bhleu-).

[Pokorny bhleu- 158.]

bhoso-

An important derivative is: *bare*¹.

Naked.

- a. BARE¹, from Old English bær, bare;
- b. BALLAST, from Old Swedish and Old Danish bar, bare. Both a and b from Germanic bazaz*.

[Pokorny bhoso-s 163.]

bhrāter-

Important derivatives are: brother, fraternal, pal.

Brother, male agnate.

- a. BROTHER, from Old English brōthor, brother;
 - b. BULLY¹, from Middle Dutch broeder, brother. Both a and b from Germanic brōthar-*.
1. FRA, FRATERNAL, FRIAR; CONFRERE, FRATRICIDE, from Latin frāter, brother.
 2. PHRATRY, from Greek phratēr, fellow member of a clan.
 3. PAL, from Sanskrit bhrātā, bhrātar-, brother.

[Pokorny bhrāter- 163.]

bhreg-

Important derivatives are: break, breach, fraction, fracture, fragile, fragment, *frail*¹, infringe, suffrage.

To break.

- a. BREAK, from Old English brecan, to break;
- b. BREACH, from Old English brēc, a breaking;
- c. (BRASH²), BRECCIA, from Italian breccia, breccia, rubble, breach in a wall, from Old High German brehha*, from brehhan, to break;

- d. BRAY², from Old French breier, to break;
 - e. BRIOCHE, from Old French brier, dialectal variant of broyer, to knead. a, b, c, d, and e all from Germanic brekan*.
1. BRACKEN, (BRAKE⁴), from Middle English brake(n), bracken, probably from a Scandinavian source akin to Old Norse brakni*, undergrowth;
 - a. BRAKE⁵, from Middle Low German brake, thicket. Both a and b from Germanic brak-*, bushes (
 2. BRAKE², from Middle Low German brake, flax brake, from Germanic brāk-*, crushing instruments.
 3. Nasalized zero-grade form bhṛ-n-g-*. (FRACTED), FRACTION, (FRACTIOUS), FRACTURE, FRAGILE, FRAGMENT, FRAIL¹, FRANGIBLE; ANFRACTUOUS, CHAMFER, DEFRAI, DIFFRACTION, (INFRACT), INFRANGIBLE, INFRINGE, OSSIFRAGE, REFRACT, (REFRAIN²), (REFRINGENT), SAXIFRAGE, SEPTIFRAGAL, from Latin frangere, to break.
 - a. SUFFRAGAN, SUFFRAGE, from Latin suffrāgium, the right to vote, from suffrāgārī, to vote for (?)
 - b. IRREFRAGABLE, from Latin refrāgārī, to vote against.

[Pokorny 1. bhreĝ- 165.]

bhreu-

Important derivatives are: brew, bread, broth, brood, breed, ferment, fervent. To boil, bubble, effervesce, burn; with derivatives referring to cooking and brewing.

1. BREW, from Old English brēowan, to brew, from Germanic breuwan*, to brew.
2. BREAD, from Old English brēad, piece of food, bread, from Germanic braudam*, (cooked) food, (leavened) bread.
 - a. BROTH, from Old English broth, broth;

- b. BREWIS, BROIL², from Vulgar Latin brodum*, broth. Both a and b from Germanic brudam*, broth.

II. Variant form bhrē-*.

- a. BROOD, from Old English brōd, offspring, brood;
- b. BREED, from Old English brēdan, to beget or cherish offspring, breed, from Germanic denominative brōdjan*, to rear young. Both a and b from Germanic derivative brōd-ō*, “a warming,” hatching, rearing of young.
- c. BRATWURST, SAUERBRATEN, from Old High German brāt, brāto, roast meat;
- d. BRAWN, from Old French braon, meat. Both a and b from Germanic derivative brēd-ōn-, roast flesh. Both 1 and 2 from Germanic brēdan, to warm.
- e. Variant form bhres-*. BRAISE, BRAZE², (BRAZIER²), BREEZE², from Old French brese, burning coal, ember;
- f. BRACIOLA, from Italian dialectal bras'a, burning coal. Both a and b from Germanic bres-*.

III. Reduced form bher-*, especially in derivatives referring to fermentation.

- a. Suffixed form bher-men-*, yeast. BARM, (BARMY), from Old English beorma, yeast, from Germanic bermōn-*;
 - b. further suffixed form bhermen-to-*. FERMENT, from Latin fermentum, yeast.
2. Extended form bherw-*. FERVENT, FERVID, (FERVOR); DEFERVESCE, EFFERVESCE, from Latin fervēre, to be boiling or fermenting.

IV. As a very archaic word for a spring.

- 1. Suffixed zero-grade form bhru-n(e)n-*. BOURN¹, BURN², from Old English burn, burna, spring, stream, from Germanic brunnōn-*.
- 2. Suffixed form bhrēw-ŕ*. PHREATIC, from Greek phrear, spring.

bhrū-

Important derivatives are: brow, *bridge*¹..
Eyebrow.

Contracted from bhruə-*.

1. BROW, from Old English brū-, eyebrow, eyelid, eyelash, from Germanic brūs*.
2. Possibly in the sense of a beam of wood, and perhaps a log bridge. BRIDGE¹, from Old English brycg(e), bridge, from Germanic brugjō* (with cognates in Celtic and Slavic).

[Pokorny 1. bhrū- 172, 2. bhrū- 173.]

dā-

Important derivatives are: democracy, epidemic, demon, *tide*¹, time.
To divide. Contracted from daə-*.

- I. Suffixed form dā-mo-*, perhaps “division of society.” DEME, DEMOS, DEMOTIC; DEMAGOGUE, DEMIURGE, DEMOCRACY, DEMOGRAPHY, ENDEMIC, EPIDEMIC, PANDEMIC, from Greek dēmos, people, land.
- II. Variants dai-, dī-, from extended root daəi-*.
 1. Root form dai-*. GEODESY, from Greek daiesthai, to divide.
 2. Suffixed form dai-mon-*, divider, provider. DEMON, from Greek daimōn, divinity.
 3. Suffixed variant form dī-ti-*.
 - a. TIDE¹; EVENTIDE, from Old English tīd, time, season;
 - b. TIDE², from Old English denominative tīdan, to happen (
 - c. TIDING, from Old Norse tīdhr, occurring;
 - d. ZEITGEIST, from Old High German zīt, time. a, b, c, and d all from Germanic tīdiz*, division of time.
 4. Suffixed variant form dī-mon-*. TIME, from Old English tīma, time, period, from Germanic tīmōn-*.

[Pokorny dā- 175.]

dail-

Important derivatives are: *deal*¹, ordeal.

To divide.

Northern Indo-European root extended from da(ə)i-* (see dā-).

8. *DEAL*¹, from Old English dāelan, to share, from Germanic dailjan*.
9. *DOLE*¹, from Old English dāl, portion, lot, from Germanic dailaz*.
10. ORDEAL, from Old English ordāl, trial by ordeal, from Germanic prefixed form uz-dailjam*, “a portioning out,” judgment (uz-*, out; see ud-).
11. FIRKIN, from Middle Dutch deel, part, from Germanic dailiz*.

[In Pokorny dā- 175.]

daiwer-

A derivative is: levirate.

Husband's brother.

LEVIRATE, from Latin lēvir, husband's brother.

[Pokorny dāiūēr 179.]

dakru-

An important derivative is: *tear*².

Tear.

- a. *TEAR*², from Old English tēar, tehher, tear;
- b. TRAIN OIL, from Middle Dutch trane, tear, drop. Both a and b from Germanic tahr-, tagr-.
4. Suffixed form dakru-mā*. LACHRYMAL, from Latin lacrima (Old Latin dacruma), tear.

de-

Important derivatives are: to, too, de-, deteriorate.

Demonstrative stem, base of prepositions and adverbs.

- a. TO, TOO, from Old English tō, to;
 - b. TSIMMES, from Old High German zuo, ze, to;
 - c. TATTOO¹, from Middle Dutch toe, to, shut. a, b, and c all from Germanic tō*.
11. DE-, from Latin dē, dē-, from, perhaps from de-.
 12. (see k^wo-) Latin quandō, when.
 13. DETERIORATE, from Latin dēterior, worse.
 14. (see bel-) Latin dēbilis, weak.
 15. EISTEDDFOD, from Welsh eistedd, sitting, from Celtic eks-dī-sedo-* (dī-* from dē-*).

deik-

Important derivatives are: teach, token, digit, toe, dictate, addict, condition, predict, preach, index, indicate, judge, prejudice, revenge, disk.

To show, pronounce solemnly; also in derivatives referring to the directing of words or objects.

I. Variant deig-*.

1. O-grade form doig-*.

- a. TEACH, from Old English tācan, to show, instruct, from Germanic taikjan*, to show;
 - i. TOKEN, from Old English tācen, tācn, sign, mark;
 - ii. BETOKEN, from Old English tācnian, to signify;

iii. TETCHY, from Gothic taikns, sign;

iv. TACHISME, from Old French tache, teche, mark, stain. (i), (ii), (iii), and (iv) all from Germanic taiknam*.

2. DIGIT, from Latin digitus, finger (< “pointer,” “indicator”).

II. Basic form deik-*.

1. Possibly o-grade form doik-*. TOE, from Old English tā, tahe, toe, from Germanic taihwō*.
2. Basic form deik-*. DICTATE, DICTION, DICTUM, DITTO, DITTY; ADDICT, BENEDICTION, CONDITION, CONTRADICT, EDICT, FATIDIC, (INDICT), INDITE, INTERDICT, JURIDICAL, JURISDICTION, MALEDICT, PREDICT, VALEDICTION, VERDICT, VERIDICAL, VOIR DIRE, from Latin dīcere, to say, tell.
3. Zero-grade form dik-ā-*. ABDICATE, DEDICATE, PREACH, PREDICATE, from Latin dicāre, to proclaim.
4. Agential suffix -dik-*.
 - a. INDEX, INDICATE, from Latin index, indicator, forefinger (in-, toward; see en);
 - b. JUDGE, JUDICIAL; PREJUDICE, from Latin iūdex (< yewes-dik-*), judge, “one who shows or pronounces the law” (iūs, law; see yewes-);
 - c. (VENDETTA), VINDICATE; (AVENGE), REVENGE, from Latin vindex (first element obscure), surety, claimant, avenger.
5. DEICTIC; APODICTIC, PARADIGM, POLICY², from Greek deiknūnai, to show, with deigma (deik-mŋ*), sample, pattern.
6. Zero-grade form dik-. DISK; DICTYOSOME, from suffixed form dik-skos, from Greek dikein, to throw (
7. Form dikā*. DICAST; SYNDIC, THEODICY, from Greek dikē, justice, right, court case.

deiw-

Important derivatives are: Tuesday, deity, divine, jovial, July, Jupiter, Zeus, dial, diary, dismal, journey, psychedelic.

To shine (and in many derivatives, “sky, heaven, god”).

I. Noun deiwos*, god.

- a. TIU, (TUESDAY), from Old English Tīw (genitive Tīwes), god of war and sky;
 - b. TYR, from Old Norse Týr, sky god. Both a and b from Germanic Tīwaz*.
2. DEISM, DEITY, DEUS, JOSS; ADIEU, DEIFIC, from Latin deus, god.
 3. DIVA, DIVINE, from Latin dīvus, divine, god.
 4. DIVES, from Latin dīves, rich (< “fortunate, blessed, divine”).
 5. Suffixed zero-grade form diw-yo-*, heavenly. DIANA, from Latin Diāna, moon goddess.
 6. DEVI; DEODAR, DEVANAGARI, from Sanskrit de- vah, god, and deva-, divine.

II. Variant dyeu-*, Jove, the name of the god of the bright sky, head of the Indo-European pantheon.

1. JOVE, JOVIAL, from Latin Iovis, Jupiter, or Iov-, stem of Iuppiter, Jupiter.
2. JULY, from Latin Iūlius, “descended from Jupiter” (name of a Roman gens), from derivative iou-il-*.
3. Vocative compound dyeu-pāter-, “O father Jove” (pāter-, father; see pāter-). JUPITER, from Latin Iuppiter, Iūpiter, head of the Roman pantheon.
4. DIONE, ZEUS; DIOSCURI, from Greek Zeus (genitive Dios), Zeus.

III. Variant dyē-* (< dyeǝ-*). DIAL, DIARY, DIET², DISMAL, DIURNAL; ADJOURN, CIRCADIAN, (JOURNAL), (JOURNEY), MERIDIAN, (POSTMERIDIAN), QUOTIDIAN, SOJOURN, from Latin diēs, day.

IV. Variant deiǝ-*. PSYCHEDELIC, from Greek dēlos, (< deyalos*), clear.

dek-

Important derivatives are: decent, doctor, doctrine, document, dogma, paradox, decorate, dainty, dignity, disdain, indignant, disciple, discipline.

To take, accept.

7. Suffixed (stative) form dek-ē-*. DECENT, from Latin decēre, to be fitting (
8. Suffixed (causative) o-grade form dok-eye-*.
 - a. DOCENT, DOCILE, DOCTOR, DOCTRINE, DOCUMENT, from Latin docēre, to teach (
 - b. DOGMA, (DOGMATIC); DOCETISM, DOXOLOGY, HETERODOX, ORTHODOX, PARADOX, from Greek dokein, to appear, seem, think (
9. Suffixed form dek-es-*.
 - a. (DÈCOR), DECORATE, from Latin decus, grace, ornament;
 - b. DECOROUS, from Latin decor, seemliness, elegance, beauty.
10. Suffixed form dek-no-*. DAINTY, DEIGN, DIGNITY, CONDIGN, DIGNIFY, DISDAIN, INDIGN, (INDIGNANT), (INDIGNATION), from Latin dignus, worthy, deserving, fitting.
11. Reduplicated form di-dk-ske-*. DISCIPLE, (DISCIPLINE), from Latin discere, to learn.
12. (DOWEL), PANDECT, SYNECDOCHE, from Greek dekhesthai, to accept.
13. DIPLODOCUS, from Greek dokos, beam, support.

dekṃ

Important derivatives are: ten, December, decimal, dime, dozen, dean, decade, tenth, hundred, cent, century, percent.

Ten.

I. Basic form dek̑m̑*.

- a. TEN, from Old English tīen, ten;
 - b. (see oktō(u)) Old Norse tjan, ten. Both a and b from Germanic tehun*.
2. EIGHTEEN, FIFTEEN, FOURTEEN, NINETEEN, SEVENTEEN, SIXTEEN, THIRTEEN, from Old English suffix -tēne, -tīne, -tȳne, ten, -teen, from Germanic tehan*.
 3. DECEMBER, DECEMVIR, DECI-, DECIMAL, DECIMATE, DECUPLE, DICKER, DIME; (DECENNARY), DECENNIUM, DECUSSATE, DOZEN, DUODECIMAL, OCTODECIMO, SEXTODECIMO, from Latin decem, ten.
 4. (DENARIUS), DENARY, (DENIER²), from irregular Latin distributive dēnī, by tens, ten each (formed by analogy with nōnī, nine each).
 5. DEAN, DECA-, DECADE, (DOYEN); DECAGON, DECALOGUE, DODECAGON, from Greek deka, ten.

II. Extended form dek̑mt-*. (see dwo-) Old English -tig, ten, from Germanic -tig*.

III. Ordinal number dek̑mto-*. TENTH, (TITHE), from Old English teogotha, tēotha, tenth, from Germanic teguntha-*.

IV. Suffixed zero-grade form -dk̑m-tǎ*, reduced to -k̑mtǎ*, and lengthened o-grade form -dk̑m-tǎ*, reduced to -kontǎ*.

1. NONAGENARIAN, OCTOGENARIAN, SEPTUAGINT, SEXAGENARY, from Latin -gintā, ten times.
2. PENTECOST, from Greek -konta*, ten times.

V. Suffixed zero-grade form dk̑m-tom*, hundred, reduced to k̑mtom*.

1. HUNDRED, from Old English hundred, hundred (-red, from Germanic radam*, number; see ar-), from Germanic hundam*, hundred.
2. (see teuə-) Germanic thūs-hundi*, “swollen hundred,” thousand.

3. CENT, CENTAL, CENTAVO, (CENTENARIAN), CENTENARY, CENTESIMAL, CENTI-, CENTIME, (CENTNER), CENTUM, CENTURY; CENTENNIAL, CINQUECENTO, PERCENT, QUATTROCENTO, SEICENTO, (SEN²), (SENITI), SEXCENTENARY, TRECENTO, from Latin centum, hundred.
4. HECATOMB, HECTO-, from Greek hekatón, a hundred (? dissimilated from hem-katon*, one hundred; see sem-¹).
5. STOTINKA, from Old Church Slavonic sŭto, hundred.
6. SATEM, from Avestan satəm, hundred.

[Pokorny dekm̃ 191. See also compound root wik̃mtī.]

del-¹

Important derivatives are: linger, long¹, long², length, Lent, longitude, lunge, prolong.
Long.

Probably extended and suffixed zero-grade form dlon-gho-*.

- a. LONG¹, from Old English lang, long, long;
- b. LANGLAUF, from Old High German lang, long;
- c. BELONG, from Old English gelang, along;
- d. LONG², from Old English denominative langian, to grow longer, yearn for, from Germanic langōn*;
- e. LINGER, from Old English lengan, to prolong (possibly influenced by Old Norse lengja, to lengthen), from Germanic langjan*, to make long;
- f. LOMBARD, from Latin compound Longobardus, Langobardus (with Germanic ethnic name Bardi*). a, b, c, d, e, and f all from Germanic langaz*, long.
- g. LENGTH, from Old English lengthu, length;
- h. LENT, from Old English lengten, lencten, spring, Lent, from West Germanic langitinaz*, lengthening of day;
- i. LING¹, from Middle English leng, ling, ling, from a Low German source akin to Dutch lenghe, linghe, “long one.”

a, b, and c all from Germanic abstract noun langithō*.

4. LONGERON, LONGITUDE; ELOIGN, (ELONGATE), LONGEVITY, LUNGE, OBLONG, PROLONG, PURLOIN, from Latin longus, long.
5. Possibly suffixed variant dl̥ə-gho-*. DOLICHOCEPHALIC, DOLICHOCRANIAL, from Greek dolikhos, long.

[Pokorny 5. del- 196.]

del⁻²

Important derivatives are: tell, tale, talk.

To recount, count.

4. TELL, from Old English tellan, to count, recount, from Germanic taljan*.
5. TALL, from Old English getæl, quick, ready, from West Germanic (ge-)tala-*.
 - a. TALE, from Old English talū, story;
 - b. TAAL², from Middle Dutch tāle, speech, language. Both a and b from Germanic talō*.
6. TALK, from Middle English talken, to talk, from a source probably akin to Old English denominative talian, to tell, relate.

1. DOLERITE, SEDULOUS, from Greek dolos, ruse, snare, perhaps from del⁻².

[Pokorny 1. del- 193.]

dem-

Important derivatives are: dome, domestic, danger, domain, dominate, timber.

House, household.

6. Suffixed o-grade form dom-o-*, dom-u-, house.
 - a. DOME, DOMESTIC, DOMICILE; MAJOR-DOMO, from Latin domus, house;

- b. suffixed form dom-o-no-*. DAME, DAN², DANGER, DOM, DOMAIN, DOMINATE, DOMINICAL, DOMINIE, DOMINION, (DOMINO¹), DOMINO², DON¹, DUNGEON; (MADAM), MADAME, MADEMOISELLE, MADONNA, PREDOMINATE, from Latin dominus, master of a household (feminine domina).
7. Possibly lengthened-grade form dōm-ŋ-*. DOME, from Greek dōma, house.
 8. Compound dems-pot-, “house-master” (-pot-, powerful; see poti-). DESPOT, from Greek despotēs, master, lord.
 9. Root form dem(ə)-*, to build (possibly a separate root).
 - a. TIMBER, from Old English timber, building material, lumber, from Germanic timram*;
 - b. TOFT, from Old Norse toft, homestead, from Germanic tumftō*.

[Pokorny dem- 198.]

demə-

Important derivatives are: tame, daunt, adamant, diamond.

To constrain, force, especially to break in (horses).

6. Suffixed o-grade form dom(ə)-o-*. TAME, from Old English tam, domesticated, from Germanic tamaz*.
7. O-grade form domə-*. DAUNT; INDOMITABLE, from Latin domāre, to tame, subdue.
8. Zero-grade form dṃə-*. ADAMANT, (DIAMOND), from Greek daman, to tame (adamas, unconquerable, from ḡ-dṃə-nt-*).

[Pokorny (demə-), domə- 199.]

dent-

Important derivatives are: tooth, tusk, dental, dandelion, *indent*¹.

Tooth.

(Originally participle of ed- in the earlier meaning “to bite”).

5. O-grade form dōnt-*. TOOTH, from Old English tōth, tooth, from Germanic tanthuz*.
6. Zero-grade form d̥nt-*. TUSK, from Old English tūsc, tūx, canine tooth, from Germanic tunth-sk-*.
7. Full-grade form dent-*. DENTAL, DENTATE, DENTI-, DENTICLE, DENTIST; DANDELION, EDENTATE, EDENTULOUS, INDENT¹, (INDENTURE), TRIDENT, from Latin dēns (stem dent-), tooth.
8. O-grade variant form (o)dont-*. -ODON, -ODONT, ODONTO-; CERATODUS, MASTODON, from Greek odōn, odous, tooth.

[In Pokorny ed- 287.]

der-

Important derivatives are: *tear*¹, *tart*², turd, epidermis, *drab*¹, drape.

To split, peel, flay; with derivatives referring to skin and leather.

5. TEAR¹, from Old English teran, to tear, from Germanic teran*.
6. TART¹, from Old English teart, sharp, severe, from Germanic ter-t*.
7. Suffixed zero-grade form d̥r-tom*, “something separated or discarded.” TURD, from Old English tord, turd, from Germanic turdam*, turd.
8. Reduplicated form de-dr-u-*. TETTER, from Old English tet(e)r, eruption, skin disease.
9. DERRIS, from Greek derris, leather covering.
10. Suffixed form der-m̥n̥*. -DERM, DERMA¹, -DERMA, DERMATO-; EPIDERMIS, from Greek derma, skin.

[Pokorny 4. der- 206.]

deru-

Important derivatives are: tree, truce, true, truth, trust, tray, trough, trim, *tar*¹, endure, druid.

Also dreu-To be firm, solid, steadfast; hence specialized senses “wood,” “tree,” and derivatives referring to objects made of wood.

10. Suffixed variant form drew-o-*.

- a. TREE, from Old English trēow, tree, from Germanic trewam*;
- b. TRUCE, from Old English trēow, pledge, from Germanic trewwō*.

11. Variant form dreu-.

- a. TRUE, from Old English trēowe, firm, true;
- b. TROW, from Old English trēowian, trūwian, to trust;
- c. TRIG¹, from Old Norse tryggr, firm, true;
- d. TROTH, TRUTH; BETROTH, from Old English trēowth faith, loyalty, truth, from Germanic abstract noun trewwithō*;
- e. TRUST, from Old Norse traust, confidence, firmness, from Germanic abstract noun traustam*;
- f. TRYST, from Old French triste, waiting place (treysta, to trust, make firm. a, b, c, d, e, and f all from Germanic trewwaz*.

12. Variant form drou-*. TRAY, from Old English træg, trīg, wooden board, from Germanic traujam*.

13. Suffixed zero-grade form dru-ko-*. TROUGH, from Old English trog, wooden vessel, tray, from Germanic trugaz*.

14. Suffixed zero-grade form dru-mo-*.

- a. TRIM, from Old English trum, firm, strong;
- b. SHELTER, from Old English truma, troop. Both a and b from Germanic trum-*.

15. Variant form derw-*. TAR¹, from Old English te(o)ru, resin, pitch (obtained from the pine tree), from Germanic terw-*.

16. Suffixed variant form drū-ro-*. DOUR, DURAMEN, DURESS, DURUM; (DURA MATER), ENDURE, INDURATE, OBDURATE, from Latin dūrus, hard

(many of whose English derivatives represent a semantic cross with Latin dūrāre, to last long; see deuə-).

17. Lengthened zero-grade form drū-*. DRUPE, DRYAD; DRYOPITHECINE, GERMANDER, HAMADRYAD, from Greek drus, oak.
18. Reduplicated form der-drew-, dissimilated with suffix in der-drew-on. DENDRO-, DENDRON; PHILODENDRON, RHODODENDRON, from Greek dendron, tree.
19. DRUID, from Latin druides, druids, probably from Celtic compound dru-wid-, “strong seer” (wid-, seeing; see weid-), the Celtic priestly caste.
20. O-grade form doru-*. DEODAR, from Sanskrit dāru, wood, timber.

[Pokorny deru- 214.]

deu-¹

An important derivative is: *tire*¹.

To lack, be wanting.

1. Possibly suffixed form deu-s-*.
 - a. TIRE¹, from Old English tēorian, tyrian, to fail, tire (teuzōn*;
 - b. DEONTOLOGY, from Greek dein, to lack, want.
2. Suffixed form deu-tero-*. DEUTERO-; DEUTERAGONIST, (DEUTERIUM), DEUTERONOMY, from Greek deuteros, “missing,” next, second.

[Pokorny 3. deu- 219. (For suffixed zero-grade form du-s-, combining form of dew-es-, a lack, see dus-.)]

deu-²

Important derivatives are: bonus, bounty, benefactor, benefit, benign, beauty, embellish, dynamic, dynamite, dynasty.

To do, perform, show favor, revere.

11. Suffixed form dw-enos*. BONBON, BONITO, BONUS, BOON², BOUNTY;

BONANZA, BONHOMIE, DEBONAIR, from Latin bonus, good (< “useful, efficient, working”).

12. Adverbial form dw-enē*. BENEDICTION, BENEFACCTION, (BENEFACCTOR), (BENEFIC), (BENEFICENCE), (BENEFIT), BENEVOLENT, (BENIGN), (HERB BENNET), from Latin bene, well.
13. Diminutive dw-en-elo-*. BEAU, BEAUTY, BELLE; BELDAM, BELLADONNA, BELVEDERE, EMBELLISH, from Latin bellus, handsome, pretty, fine.
14. Possibly suffixed zero-grade form dw-eye-*. (BEATITUDE); BEATIFIC, (BEATIFY), from Latin beāre, to make blessed.
15. Possible (but unlikely for formal and semantic reasons) suffixed zero-grade form du-nə-*. DYNAMIC, (DYNAMITE), DYNAST, (DYNASTY); AERODYNE, from Greek dunasthai, to be able.

[Pokorny 2. deu- 218.]

deuə-

Important derivatives are: durable, duration, during.
Also dwəə-Long (in duration).

Suffixed zero-grade form dū-ro-* (< duə-ro-*). DURABLE, DURANCE, DURATION, DURING; PERDURABLE, THERMODURIC, from Latin dūrāre, to last.

[In Pokorny 3. deu- 219.]

deuk-

Important derivatives are: tug, wanton, *tow*¹, tie, team, *dock*¹, duct, duke, abduct, conduct, deduce, introduce, produce, reduce, subdue, educate.
To lead.

- c. TUG; WANTON, from Old English tēon, to pull, draw, lead;
 - d. ZUGZWANG, from Old High German ziohan, to pull. Both a and b from Germanic teuhan*.
5. Suffixed zero-grade form duk-ā-*. TOW¹, from Old English togian, to draw, drag, from Germanic tugōn*.
 6. Suffixed o-grade form douk-eyo-. TIE, from Old English tīegan, tīgan, to bind.

7. Suffixed o-grade form douk-mo-*. TEAM, from Old English tēam, descendant, family, race, brood, team, from Germanic tau(h)maz*.
8. TEEM¹, from Old English tēman, tīeman, to beget, from Germanic denominative tau(h)mjan*.
9. Basic form deuk-*. DOGE, DOUCHE, (DUCAL), (DUCAT), (DUCE), (DUCHESS), (DUCHY), DUCT, DUCTILE, DUKE; (ABDUCENS), ABDUCT, ADDUCE, CIRCUMDUCTION, (CON³), (CONDOTTIERE), CONDUCE, (CONDUCT), DEDUCE, (DEDUCT), EDUCE, (ENDUE), INDUCE, INTRODUCE, PRODUCE, (REDOUBT), REDUCE, SEDUCE, SUBDUCTION, SUBDUE, TRADUCE, TRANSDUCER, from Latin dūcere, to lead.
10. Suffixed zero-grade form duk-ā-*. EDUCATE, from Latin ēducāre, to lead out, bring up (ē- < ex-, out; see eghs).

[Pokorny deuk- 220.]

dhē-

Important derivatives are: *do*¹, deed, doom, -dom, deem, fact, factor, fashion, *feat*¹, feature, affair, *affect*¹, affection, amplify, benefit, defeat, defect, effect, efficient, infect, justify, modify, notify, perfect, profit, qualify, sacrifice, face, surface, difficulty, thesis, theme.

To set, put.

Contracted from dheǝ-*.

14. O-grade form dhō-*. DO¹; FORDO, from Old English dōn, to do, from Germanic dōn*.
15. Suffixed form dhē-ti-*, “thing laid down or done, law, deed.”
DEED, from Old English dǣd, doing, deed, from Germanic dēdiz*.
16. Suffixed o-grade form dhō-mo-*
 - a. DOOM, from Old English dōm, judgment (
 - b. -DOM, from Old English -dōm, abstract suffix indicating state, condition, or power;

- c. (see kā-) Old Norse -dōmr, condition;
 - d. DUMA, from Russian Duma, Duma, from a Germanic source akin to Gothic dōms, judgment;
 - e. DEEM, from Old English dēman, to judge, from Germanic denominative dōmjān. a, b, c, d, and e all from Germanic dōmaz.
17. Suffixed o-grade form dhō-t-*. (see sak-) Latin sacerdōs, priest, “performer of sacred rites.”
18. Zero-grade form dhə-*.
- a. prefixed form kom-dhə-*. ABSCOND, INCONDITE, RECONDITE, SCONCE², from Latin condere, to put together, establish, preserve (kom*, together; see kom);
 - b. prefixed and suffixed form kom-dh(ə)-yo-*. CONDIMENT, from Latin condire, to season, flavor;
 - c. compound kred-dhə-*. (see kerd-)
19. Suffixed zero-grade form dhə-k-.
- a. -FACIENT, FACT, FACTION¹, -FACTION, FACTITIOUS, FACTITIVE, FACTOR, FASHION, FEASIBLE, FEAT¹, FEATURE, (FETISH), -FIC, (-FY), HACIENDA; AFFAIR, AFFECT¹, (AFFECT²), (AFFECTION), (AMPLIFY), ARTIFACT, ARTIFICE, (BEATIFIC), BENEFACTION, (BENEFIC), (BENEFICE), (BENEFICENCE), (BENEFIT), CHAFE, COMFIT, CONFECT, (CONFETTI), COUNTERFEIT, (DEFEASANCE), DEFEAT, DEFECT, (DEFICIENT), (DISCOMFIT), (EDIFICE), (EDIFY), EFFECT, (EFFICACIOUS), (EFFICIENT), FACSIMILE, FACTOTUM, FORFEIT, INFECT, (JUSTIFY), MALEFACTOR, (MALFEASANCE), MANUFACTURE, MISFEASANCE, (MODIFY), (MOLLIFY), (NIDIFY), (NOTIFY), (NULLIFY), OFFICIAL, ORIFICE, PERFECT, (PETRIFY), (PLUPERFECT), PONTIFEX, PREFECT, (PROFICIENT), PROFIT, PUTREFY, (QUALIFY), RAREFY, (RECTIFY), REFECT, (REFECTORY), RUBEFACIENT, SACRIFICE, SATISFY, SPINIFEX, SUFFICE, (SUFFICIENT), SURFEIT, TUBIFEX, TUMEFACIENT, (VIVIFY), from Latin facere (< fak-yo-*), to do, make, and Latin combining form -fex (< fak-s*), “maker”;
 - b. FAÁADE, FACE, (FACET), (FACIAL), FACIES; (DEFACE), EFFACE,

- (SURFACE), from Latin derivative faciēs, shape, face (
- c. OFFICE, from Latin compound officium (< opi-fici-om*), service, duty, business, performance of work (opi-*, work; see op-);
 - d. further suffixed form dhā-k-li-*. FACILE, (FACILITATE), FACULTY, DIFFICULTY, from Latin facilis (facul), feasible, easy.
20. Suffixed zero-grade form dhā-s-* (probably identical with zero-grade of dhēs-). NEFARIOUS, from Latin fās, divine law, right.
 21. MULTIFARIOUS, OMNIFARIOUS, from Latin -fāriam, adverbial suffix, as in bifāriam, in two places, parts, double, from dwi-dh(ə)-, “making two” (dwi-, two; see dwo-).
 22. Reduplicated form dhi-dhā-*. THESIS, THETIC; ANATHEMA, ANTITHESIS, DIATHESIS, EPENTHESIS, EPITHET, HYPOTHESIS, METATHESIS, PARENTHESIS, PROSTHESIS, PROTHESIS, SYNTHESIS, from Greek tithenai, to put, with zero-grade noun thesis (dhā-ti-*), a placing, and verbal adjective thetos (dhā-to-*), placed.
 23. Suffixed form dhē-k-*. THECA, TICK³; AMPHITHECIUM, APOTHECARY, (APOTHECIUM), BIBLIOTHECA, (BODEGA), (BOUTIQUE), CLEISTOTHECIUM, ENDOTHECIUM, PERITHECIUM, from Greek thēkē, receptacle.
 24. Suffixed zero-grade form dhā-mṇ-*. (THEMATIC), THEME, from Greek thema, “thing placed,” proposition.
 25. Reduplicated form dhe-dhē-*. SANDHI, from Sanskrit dadhāti, he places.
 26. Basic form dhē-*. PURDAH, from Old Persian dā-, to place.
 27. Suffixed form dhē-to-, set down, created. (see s(w)e-) Old Iranian compound khvatō-dāta-, created from oneself.
 28. Reduced form dh-*. (see au-)

[Pokorny 2. dhē- 235.]

Important derivatives are: female, feminine, *fawn*², fetus, fennel, affiliate.
To suck.

Contracted from dheə(i)-*.

9. Suffixed reduced form dhē-mnā-*. FEMALE, FEMININE; EFFEMINATE, from Latin fēmina, woman (
10. Suffixed reduced form dhē-to-*. FAWN², (FETAL), FETUS; EFFETE, (FETICIDE), SUPERFETATE, from Latin fētus, pregnancy, childbearing, offspring, with adjective fētus, fēta, pregnant.
11. Suffixed reduced form dhē-kwondo-*. FECUND, from Latin fēcundus, fruitful.
12. Suffixed reduced form dhē-no-*. FENNEL, FINOCHIO; (FENUGREEK), SAINFOIN, from Latin fēnum, faenum, hay (< “produce”).
13. Perhaps suffixed zero-grade form dhī-lyo-* (< dhia-lyo-*). FILIAL, FILIATE; FILS¹; AFFILIATE, HIDALGO, from Latin fīlius, son, and fīlia, daughter (but these are equally possibly from the root bheuə-).
14. Suffixed reduced form dhē-lo-*. FELLATIO, from Latin fēlāre, fellāre, to suck.
15. Suffixed reduced form dhē-l-īk-*. FELICITATE, FELICITY; FELICIFIC, INFELICITY, from Latin fēlīx, fruitful, fertile, lucky, happy.
16. Suffixed reduced form dhē-lā-*. ENDOTHELIUM, EPITHELIUM, (MESOTHELIUM), from Greek thēlē, nipple.
17. Suffixed reduced form dhē-l-u-*. THEELIN, from Greek thēlus, female.

[Pokorny dhē(i)- 241.]

dheigh-

Important derivatives are: dairy, lady, dough, figure, faint, fiction, effigy, paradise.
To form, build.

6. DAIRY, from Old English dāege, bread kneader, from Germanic daigjōn-*.

7. LADY, from Old English compound hlāfdige, mistress of a household (hlāf, bread, loaf), from Germanic dīg-*.
8. Suffixed o-grade form dhoigh-o-*.
 - a. DOUGH, from Old English dāg, dough;
 - b. TEIGLACH, from Old High German teic, dough. Both a and b from Germanic daigaz*.
9. Suffixed zero-grade form dhigh-ūrā*. FIGURE; CONFIGURE, DISFIGURE, PREFIGURE, TRANSFIGURE, from Latin figūra, form, shape (
10. Nasalized zero-grade form dhi-n-gh-*. (FAINT), FEIGN, (FEINT), FICTILE, FICTION, FIGMENT; EFFIGY, from Latin figere, to shape.
11. Probable nasalized zero-grade form dhi-n-g(h)-*. THIGMOTAXIS, THIXOTROPY, from Greek thinganein, to touch.
12. Suffixed o-grade form dhoigh-o-*. PARADISE, from Avestan daēza-, wall (originally made of clay or mud bricks).

[Pokorny dheigh- 244.]

dher-

Important derivatives are: farm, *firm*¹, confirm, throne.

To hold firmly, support.

4. Suffixed form dher-mo-*. FARM, FERMATA, FIRM¹, FIRM², (FIRMAMENT); AFFIRM, CONFIRM, INFIRM, (INFIRMARY), from Latin firmus, firm, strong.
5. Perhaps extended form dhergh-*. (see bhergh⁻²) Latin fortis, strong (but this is also possibly from bhergh⁻²).
6. Suffixed zero-grade form dhr-ono-*. THRONE, from Greek thronos, seat, throne (< “support”).
7. Suffixed form dher-mṅ*. DHARMA, from Sanskrit dharma, statute, law (
8. Suffixed form dher-eno-*. DHARNA, from Prakrit dharana, a holding firm.

9. Suffixed o-grade form dhor-o-*. SIRDAR, TAHSILDAR, ZAMINDAR, from Iranian dāra-, holding, whence Persian -dār.

[Pokorny 2. dher- 252.]

dhers-

An important derivative is: dare.

To venture, be bold.

O-grade form dhors-* and zero-grade form dh̥rs-*. DARE, (DURST), from Old English dearr and durst, first and third person singular present and past indicative of durran, to venture, respectively from Germanic dors-* and durs-*.

[Pokorny dhers- 259.]

dhēs-

Important derivatives are: fair², feast, festival, fanatic, profane, atheism, enthusiasm.

Root of words in religious concepts.

Contracted from dheās-. Possibly an extension of dhē-.

11. Suffixed form dhēs-yā*. FAIR², FERIA, from Latin fēriae (fēsiae), holidays.
12. Suffixed form dhēs-to-*. FEAST, (-FEST), (FESTAL), FESTIVAL, FESTIVE, (FESTOON), (FETE), (FIESTA); (GABFEST), OKTOBERFEST, from Latin fēstus, festive.
13. Suffixed zero-grade form dh̥s-no-*. FANATIC; PROFANE, from Latin fānum, temple.
14. Suffixed zero-grade form dh̥s-o-*. THEO-; APOTHEOSIS, ATHEISM, ENTHUSIASM, PANTHEON, POLYTHEISM, from Greek theos (< thes-os*), god.

[Pokorny dhēs- 259.]

dheu-¹

An important derivative is: dew.

To flow.

- a. DEW, from Old English dēaw, dew;
- b. SUNDEW, from Middle Dutch dau, dew;
- c. (see melit-) Germanic compound melith-dauwaz*, “honeydew.” a, b, and c all from Germanic dauwaz*, dew.

[Pokorny 1. dheu- 259.]

dheu-²

Important derivatives are: dead, death, *die*¹, dwindle.

To die.

1. Suffixed o-grade form dhou-to-*. DEAD, from Old English dēad, dead, from Germanic daudaz*.
2. Suffixed o-grade form dhou-tu-*. DEATH, from Old English dēath, death, from Germanic dauthuz*.
3. Suffixed o-grade form dhow-yo-*. DIE¹, from Old Norse deyja, to die.
4. Suffixed extended zero-grade form dhwī-no-*. DWINDLE, from Old English dwīnan, to diminish, languish, from Germanic dwīnan*.

[Pokorny 2. dheu- 260. See dhū-no-.]

dheub-

Important derivatives are: deep, depth, dip, dive.

Deep, hollow.

1. DEEP, (DEPTH), from Old English dēop, deep, from Germanic deupaz*.
2. DIP, from Old English dyppan, to immerse, dip, from Germanic expressive denominative duppan*.
3. Parallel root form dheubh-*. DIVE, from Old English dȳfan, to dip, and dūfan, to sink, dive, from Germanic verb dūbjan*, from deub-, dub-.

[Pokorny dheu-b- 267.]

dheugh-

Derivatives are: doughty, Pentateuch..

To produce something of utility.

4. DOUGHTY, from Old English dyhtig, dohtig, strong (< “productive”), from Germanic extended form duht-*.
5. Suffixed form dheugh-os-*. HEPTATEUCH, (HEXATEUCH), PENTATEUCH, from Greek teukhos (< theukhos*), gear, anything produced, tool, container, scroll.

[Pokorny dheugh- 271.]

dhghem-

Important derivatives are: bridegroom, chamomile, humble, homage, homicide, human..

Earth.

5. Suffixed zero-grade form (dh)ghm-on-*, “earthling.” BRIDEGROOM, from Old English guma, man, from Germanic gumōn-*.
6. O-grade form dh(e)ghom-*. CHTHONIC; AUTOCHTHON, from Greek kthōn, earth.
7. Zero-grade form dhghm-*. CHAMAEPHYTE, CHAMELEON, CHAMOMILE, GERMANDER, from Greek khamai, on the ground.
8. Suffixed o-grade form (dh)ghom-o-*. HUMBLE, (HUMILIATE), (HUMILITY), HUMUS¹; EXHUME, INHUME, TRANSHUMANCE, from Latin humus, earth.
9. Suffixed o-grade form (dh)ghom-on-*, “earthling.”
 - a. HOMAGE, HOMBRE¹, HOMINID, HOMO¹, HOMUNCULUS, OMBRE; BONHOMIE, HOMICIDE, from Latin homō, human being, man;

- b. HUMAN, (HUMANE), from Latin hūmānus, human, kind, humane (in part from dhghem-).

10. Suffixed form (dh)ghem-yā*. CHERNOZEM, SIEROZEM, ZEMSTVO, from Old Russian zemĭ, land, earth.

11. Full-grade form (dh)ghem-*. ZAMINDAR, from Persian zamān, earth, land.

[Pokorny gh?em- 414.]

dhgh(y)es-

An important derivative is: yesterday.

Yesterday.

Suffixed (comparative) form (dh)ghes-ter-*. YESTER-, (YESTERDAY), from Old English geostran, giestran, “yester-,” from Germanic ges-ter-*.

[Pokorny gh?iÈs 416.]

dhīg^w-

Important derivatives are: dike¹, ditch, dig, fix, prefix.

To stick, fix.

- c. DIKE¹, DITCH, from Old English dīc, trench, moat;
- d. DIG, from Middle English diggen, to dig, from a source perhaps akin to Old French digue, trench. Both a and b from Germanic dīk-*.
1. FIBULA, FICHU, FINCA, FIX, (FIXATE), (FIXITY), (FIXTURE); AFFIX, ANTEFIX, CRUCIFY, INFIX, MICROFICHE, PREFIX, SUFFIX, TRANSFIX, from Latin fīgere, to fasten, fix.

[Pokorny dhēig^w- 243.]

dhreg-

Important derivatives are: drink, drench, drown.

To draw, glide.

4. DRINK, from Old English drincan, to drink, from nasalized

Germanic form drenkan*, to draw into the mouth, drink.

5. DRENCH, from Old English drenčan, to soak, from nasalized o-grade Germanic causative form drankjan*, “to cause to drink.”
6. DROWN, from a Scandinavian or late Old English source similar to Old Norse drukka, to drown, from Germanic zero-grade suffixed form drunk-nōn*.

[Pokorny dhreġ- 273.]

dhreibh-

Important derivatives are: drive, drift.

To drive, push; snow.

4. DRIVE, DROVE², from Old English drīfan, to drive, rush, from Germanic drīban*.
5. DRIFT, from Middle English drift, drove, herd, akin to Old Norse drift, snowdrift, and Middle Dutch drift, herd, from Germanic zero-grade suffixed form driftiz*.

[Pokorny dhreibh- 274.]

dhreu-

Important derivatives are: drizzle, dreary, drowse, drop, droop, drip.

To fall, flow, drip, droop.

1. Extended form dhreus-*. DRIZZLE, from Old English -drysnian (in gedrysnian, to pass away, vanish), from zero-grade Germanic derived verb drus-inōn*.
2. Extended o-grade form dhrous-*.
 - a. DREARY, from Old English drēor, flowing blood, from Germanic drauzaz*;
 - b. DROUSE, from Old English drūsian, to be sluggish, from Germanic drūsjan*.
3. Extended zero-grade form dhrub-*.

- a. DROP, from Old English dropa, drop, from Germanic drupan*;
 - b. DROOP, from Old Norse drūpa, to hang down, from Germanic drūpōn*, to let fall;
 - c. DRIP, from Middle English drippen, to drip, drop, from an unattested Old English dryppan* or another source akin to Old English droppa, drop, from Germanic geminated drupp-*.
4. Suffixed zero-grade form dhrubh-yo-*. LITHOTRIPTER, (LITHOTRITY), from Greek thruptein, to crumble.

[Pokorny dhreu- 274.]

dhughæter-

An important derivative is: daughter.

Daughter.

DAUGHTER, from Old English dohtor, daughter, from Germanic dohtēr*.

[Pokorny dhug(h)æter- 277.]

dhū-no-

Important derivatives are: *down*¹, dune, town.

Enclosed, fortified place.

Derivative of a verb dhuə-*, “to close, finish,” probably related to dheu-², “to die.”

- a. DOWN¹, DOWN³, from Old English dīm, hill;
 - b. DUNE, from Middle Dutch dūne, sandy hill. Both a and b from Germanic dūmaz*, possibly from dhū-no-.
3. TOWN, from Old English tīm, enclosed place, homestead, village, from Germanic tīmaz*, fortified place, borrowed from Celtic dīm-o-*, hill, stronghold.

[In Pokorny 4. dheu- 261.]

dhwer-

Important derivatives are: door, foreign, forest, forfeit, forum.

Door, doorway (usually in plural).

Originally an apophonic noun dhwor*, dhur-, in the plural, designating the entrance to the enclosure (dhwor-o-) surrounding the house proper.

1. Zero-grade form dhur-* in suffixed forms dhur-ŋs* (accusative plural) and dhur-o-* (neuter). DOOR, from Old English duru, door (feminine, originally plural), and dor, door (neuter), respectively from Germanic durunz* and duram*.
2. Suffixed o-grade form dhwor-āns* (accusative plural). FOREIGN, from Latin forās, (toward) out of doors, outside.
3. Suffixed o-grade form dhwor-ois* (locative plural). FOREST; (AFFOREST), FAUBOURG, FORECLOSE, FORFEIT, from Latin forīs, (being) out of doors.
4. Suffixed o-grade form dhwor-o-*. FORENSIC, FORUM, from Latin forum, marketplace (originally the enclosed space around a home).
5. DURBAR, from Old Persian duvara-, door, gate.
6. Zero-grade form dhur-*. THYROID, from Greek thura, door.

[Pokorny dhwǣr- 278.]

dŋghū-

Important derivatives are: tongue, language, linguist.

Tongue.

- a. TONGUE, from Old English tunge, tongue;
 - b. BILTONG, from Middle Dutch tonghe, tongue. Both a and b from Germanic tungōn-*.
1. LANGUAGE, LANGUET, LIGULA, LIGULE, LINGO, LINGUA, LINGUIST; (BILINGUAL), from Latin lingua (dīngua), tongue, language.

[Pokorny dŋghū 223.]

dō-

Important derivatives are: date, add, betray, edition, rent¹, surrender, tradition, traitor, vend, donation, pardon, endow, dose, antidote.

To give.

Contracted from doǝ-*.

- a. Zero-grade form dǝ-*. DADO, DATE¹, DATIVE, DATUM, DIE²; ADD, (BETRAY), EDITION, PERDITION, RENDER, (RENT¹), (SURRENDER), TRADITION, (TRAITOR), (TREASON), VEND, from Latin dare, to give;
 - b. (see 4) Greek dosis, something given.
1. Suffixed form dō-no-*. DONATION, (DONATIVE), (DONOR); CONDONE, PARDON, from Latin dōnum, gift.
 2. Suffixed form dō-t(i)-*.
 - a. DOT², DOWAGER, DOWER, (DOWRY); ENDOW, from Latin dōs (genitive dōtis), dowry;
 - b. DACHA, from Russian dacha, gift, dacha, from Slavic datja*;
 - c. SAMIZDAT, from Russian samizdat, samizdat, from dat', to give.
 3. Suffixed form dō-ro-*. LOBSTER THERMIDOR, from Greek dōron, gift.
 4. Reduplicated form di-dō-*. DOSE; ANECDOTE, ANTIDOTE, APODOSIS, EPIDOTE, from Greek didonai, to give, with zero-grade noun dosis (< dǝ-ti-*), something given.

[Pokorny dō- 223.]

dus-

A derivative is: dys-.

Bad, evil; mis- (used as a prefix).

Derivative of deu⁻¹. DYS-, from Greek dus-, bad.

dwo-

Important derivatives are: two, twelve, twilight, biscuit, twist, twice, twenty, twine, between, twin, binary, combine, twig¹, diploma, deuce¹, dozen, dual, duet, double, duplicate, doubt, dubious.

Two.

I. Variant form duwo*.

- a. TWO, from Old English twǣ, two (nominative feminine and neuter);
 - b. TWAIN, from Old English twēgen, two (nominative and accusative masculine). Both a and b from Germanic twa*, two.
2. TWELFTH, TWELVE, from Old English twelf, twelve, and twelfta, twelfth, from Germanic compound twa-lif-, “two left (over from ten),” twelve (-lif-, left; see leik^{w-}).

II. Adverbial form dwis* and combining form dwi-*.

- a. TWIBILL, TWILIGHT, from Old English twi-, two;
 - b. ZWIEBACK, ZWITTERION, from Old High German zwi-, twice. Both a and b from Germanic twi-*.
2. BI⁻¹, BIS; BALANCE, BAROUCHE, BEZEL, BISCUIT, from Latin bis (combining form bi-), twice.
 3. DI⁻¹, from Greek dis (combining form di-), twice.
 4. TWIST, from Old English -twist, divided object, fork, rope, from Germanic twis*.
 5. TWICE, from Old English twige, twiga, twice, from Germanic twiyes*.
 6. TWENTY, from Old English twēntig, twenty, from Germanic compound twēgentig*, “twice ten” (-tig*, ten; see dek^m).
 7. TWINE, from Old English twīn, double thread, from Germanic twīhna*, double thread, twisted thread.

8. BETWEEN, BETWIXT, (TWIXT), from Old English betwēonum and betweox, betwix, between, from Germanic compounds bi-twīhna* and bi-twisk*, “at the middle point of two” (bi, at, by; see ambhi).
9. TWILL, from Old English twilic, woven of double thread, from Germanic compound twilic-*, “two-threaded fabric.”
10. Suffixed form dwis-no-*.
 - a. TWIN, from Old English twinn, getwinn, two by two, twin, from Germanic twisnaz*, double;
 - b. BI-, BINAL, BINARY; COMBINE, from Latin bīnī, two by two, two each.
11. Suffixed form dwi-ko-*. TWIG¹, from Old English twigge, a branch, from Germanic twig(g)a*, a fork.
12. Compound dwi-plo-, twofold (-plo-, -fold; see pel-²). DIPLO-, DIPLOE, DIPLOID, DIPLOMA; ANADIPLOSI, from Greek diploos, diploos, twofold.
13. Suffixed reduplicated form dwi-du-mo-*. DIDYMIUM, DIDYMOUS; EPIDIDYMI, TETRADYMI, from Greek didumos, double, the testicles.
14. Suffixed form dwi-gha*. DICHASUM, DICO-, from Greek dikha, in two.

III. Inflected form duwō*.

1. DEUCE¹, DOZEN, DUAL, DUET, DUO, DUO-; DUODECIMAL, from Latin duo, two.
2. DUAD, DYAD; DODECAGON, HENDIADYS, from Greek duo, duō, two.

IV. Variant form du-*.

1. Compound du-plo-, twofold (-plo-, -fold; see pel-²). DOUBLE, (DOUBLET), DOUBLOON, DUPE, from Latin duplus, double.
2. Compound du-plek-, twofold (-plek-, -fold; see plek-). DUPLEX, DUPLICATE, DUPLICITY; CONDUPLICATE, from Latin duplex, double.

3. Suffixed form du-bhw-io-*. DOUBT, DUBIOUS; (REDOUBTABLE), from Latin dubius, doubtful (dubitāre, to be in doubt).

[Pokorny duō(u)- 228.]

ed-

Important derivatives are: eat, etch, edible.

To eat; original meaning “to bite.” See dent-.

- a. EAT, from Old English etan, to eat;
 - b. ETCH, from Old High German ezen, to feed on, eat;
 - c. ORT, from Middle Dutch eten, to eat;
 - d. FRET¹, from Old English fretan, to devour, from Germanic compound fra-etan*, to eat up (fra-, completely; see per¹). a, b, c, and d all from Germanic etan.
5. EDACIOUS, EDIBLE, ESCAROLE, ESCULENT, ESURIENT; COMEDO, COMESTIBLE, OBESSE, from Latin edere, to eat.
 6. PRANDIAL, from Latin compound prandium (syncopated from pram-ed-ium*), “first meal,” lunch (pram-*, first; see per¹).
 7. Suffixed form ed-un-ā*. ANODYNE, PLEURODYNIA, from Greek odunē, pain (
 8. SAMOYED, from Russian -ed, eater.

[Pokorny ed- 287.]

eg

Important derivatives are: I, ego.

I.

Nominative form of the personal pronoun of the first person singular. For oblique forms see me⁻¹.

12. I, from Old English ic, I, from Germanic ek*.
13. Extended form egō*. EGO, (EGOIST), (EGOTISM), from Latin ego, I.

eghs

Important derivatives are: ex-, exotic, external, extra-, strange, extreme.

Out.

5. Variant eks*.
 - a. EX¹, EX-, from Latin ex, ex-, out of, away from;
 - b. ECTO-, EXO-, EXOTERIC, EXOTIC; ELECTUARY, SYNECDOCHE, from Greek ex, ek, out of, from.
6. Suffixed (comparative) variant form eks-tero-*. EXTERIOR, EXTERNAL, EXTRA-, STRANGE, from Latin exter, outward (feminine ablative exterā, extrā, on the outside).
7. Suffixed (superlative) form. EXTREME, from Latin extrēmus, outermost (-mo-*, superlative suffix).
8. Suffixed form eghs-ko-*. ESCHATOLOGY, from Greek eskhatos, outermost, last.
9. EISTEDDFOD, from Welsh eistedd, sitting, from Celtic eks-dī-sedo-*.
10. SAMIZDAT, from Russian iz, from, out of, from Balto-Slavic iz*.

ēg^wh-

A derivative is: inebriate.

To drink.

Suffixed form ēg^wh-r-yo-*.

- a. INEBRIATE, from Latin ēbrius, drunk;
 - b. (see s(w)e-) Latin compound sōbrius (sē, without).
-

Important derivatives are: *ambition, circuit, exit*², issue, perish, sudden, transit, ion, commence, initial, janitor, January.

To go.

8. Full-grade form ei-*.

- a. ADIT, AMBIENT, (AMBITION), CIRCUIT, COITUS, COMITIA, EXIT, INTROIT, ISSUE, OBITUARY, PERISH, PRAETOR, PRETERIT, SEDITION, (SUBITO), SUDDEN, (TRANCE), TRANSIENT, (TRANSIT), (TRANSITIVE), from Latin īre, to go;
- b. ION; ANION, CATION, DYSPROSIUM, from Greek ienai, to go.

9. Suffixed zero-grade form i-t-*.

- a. further suffixed form i-t-yo-*. COMMENCE, INITIAL, INITIATE, from Latin initium, entrance, beginning (in-, in-; see en);
- b. COUNT², COUNTY; CONCOMITANT, CONSTABLE, (VISCOUNT), from Latin comes (stem comit-), companion (com-, with; see kom).

10. Suffixed form i-ter*. ERRANT, EYRE, ITINERANT, ITINERARY, from Latin iter, journey.

11. Extended form yā-* (< yaə-) in suffixed forms yā-no-, yā-nu-*.

- a. JANITOR, JANUARY, JANUS, from Latin iānus, archway, and Iānus, god of doors and of the beginning of a year;
- b. HINAYANA, MAHAYANA, from Sanskrit yānam, way (in Buddhism, “mode of knowledge,” “vehicle”).

[Pokorny 1. ei- 293.]

ēik-

Important derivatives are: *ought*¹, owe, own, freight.

To be master of, possess.

1. OUGHT¹, OWE, from Old English āgan, to possess, from Germanic aigan*, to possess.

2. OWN, from Old English āgen, one's own, from Germanic participial form aiganaz*, possessed, owned.
3. FRAUGHT, FREIGHT, from Middle Low German and Middle Dutch vrecht, vracht, “earnings,” hire for a ship, freight, from Germanic prefixed form fra-aihtiz*, absolute possession, property (fra-*, intensive prefix; see per¹).

[Pokorny ēik- 298.]

eis-

Important derivatives are: irate, hierarchy, iron.

In words denoting passion.

14. Suffixed form eis-ā-*. IRASCIBLE, IRATE, IRE, from Latin īra, anger.
15. Suffixed zero-grade form is-(ə)ro-*, powerful, holy. HIERATIC, HIERO-; HIERARCH, (HIERARCHY), HIEROGLYPHIC, HIEROPHANT, from Greek hieros, “filled with the divine,” holy.
 - a. IRON, from Old English īse(r)n, īren, iron;
 - b. GISARME, SPIEGELEISEN, from Old High German īsarn, īsan, iron. Both a and b from Germanic īsarno-*, “holy metal” (possibly from Celtic).
16. Suffixed o-grade form ois-tro-*, madness. ESTRUS; (ESTRONE), from Greek oistros, gadfly, goad, anything causing madness.

[Pokorny 1. eis- 299.]

ekwo-

Derivatives are: equestrian, hippopotamus.

Horse.

Probably originally derived from ōku-.

7. EQUESTRIAN, EQUINE, EQUITANT, (EQUITATION); EQUISETUM, from Latin equus, horse.
8. EOHIPPIUS, HIPPOCAMPUS, HIPPOCRENE, HIPPODROME, HIPPOGRIFF, HIPPOPOTAMUS, from Greek hippos, horse.

el-

An important derivative is: elbow.

Elbow, forearm.

Extended o-grade form olinā*, elbow.

- a. ELL², from Old English eln, forearm, cubit, from Germanic alinō*;
- b. ELBOW, from Old English elnboga, elbow, from Germanic compound alino-bugōn-, “bend of the forearm,” elbow (bugōn-, bend, bow; see bheug-);
- c. ULNA, from Latin ulna, forearm;
- d. lengthened variant form ōlenā-*. OLECRANON, from Greek ōlenē, elbow.

em-

Important derivatives are: example, exempt, premium, prompt, ransom, redeem, sample, vintage, assume, consume, resume.

To take, distribute.

7. ADEMPTION, EXAMPLE, (EXEMPLARY), (EXEMPLIFY), (EXEMPLUM), (EXEMPT), (IMPROMPTU), PEREMPTORY, PREEMPTION, PREMIUM, PROMPT, (RANSOM), REDEEM, (REDEMPTION), (SAMPLE), VINTAGE, from Latin emere, to obtain, buy.
8. SUMPTUARY, (SUMPTUOUS); ASSUME, CONSUME, PRESUME, RESUME, SUBSUME, from Latin sūmere (< sus(e)m-*), to take, obtain, buy (sus-, variant of sub-, up from under; see upo).

en

Important derivatives are: in¹, inner, en⁻¹, intro-, enter, intimate², industry, episode, and.

In.

- a. IN¹ (preposition), from Old English in, in;
 - b. IN¹ (adverb), from Old English inn, into, inne, inside;
 - c. INN, from Old English inn, habitation, inn;
 - d. TSIMMES, from Old High German in, in;
 - e. INNER, from Old English innera, farther in, inner, from Germanic (comparative) inn(e)ra*;
 - i. BEN, from Old English binnan, within;
 - ii. BILANDER, from Middle Dutch binnen, within (be, by; see ambhi + innan, in, within). Both (i) and (ii) from Germanic innan*. a, b, c, d, e, and f all from Germanic in*.
2. EN⁻¹, IN⁻², from Latin in, in-, in, into.
 3. EN⁻²; ENKEPHALIN, PARENCHYMA, PARENTHESIS, from Greek en, en-.
 4. Suffixed form en-t(e)ro-*.
 - a. INTRO-; INTRODUCE, INTROIT, INTROMIT, INTORSE, INTROSPECT, from Latin intrō, inward, within;
 - b. ENTER, INTRA-; (INTRADOS), from Latin intrā, inside, within;
 - c. INTERIM, INTRINSIC, from Latin interim, meanwhile, with ablative suffix -im; intrīnsecus, on the inside, from int(e)rim + secus, alongside (see sek^{w-1}).
 5. Suffixed form en-ter*. ENTRAILS, INTER-, INTERIOR, INTERNAL, from Latin inter, inter-, between, among.
 6. INTIMA, INTIMATE², from Latin (superlative) intimus, innermost (-mo-*, superlative suffix).
 7. Extended form en-do*.
 - a. INDUSTRY, from Latin industrius, diligent (stru-*, to construct; see ster⁻²);

- b. INDIGENT, from Latin indigēre, to be in need (egēre, to be in need). Both a and b from indu-, within, from Old Latin endo;
 - c. ENDO-, from Greek endo, endo-, within.
8. Suffixed form en-tos*.
- a. DEDANS, INTESTINE, INTINE, INTUSSUSCEPTION, from Latin intus, within, inside;
 - b. ENTO-, from Greek entos, within.
9. Suffixed form en-tero-*. (ENTERIC), ENTERO-, ENTERON; DYSENTERY, EXENTERATE, MESENTERY, from Greek enteron, intestine.
10. Extended form ens*.
- a. EPISODE, from Greek eis, into;
 - b. suffixed form ens-ō*. ESOTERIC, from Greek esō, within.
11. Possibly suffixed zero-grade form ǵ-dha*. AND, from Old English and, and, from Germanic anda*, unda*.

[Pokorny 1. en 311.]

epi

An important derivative is: epi-.

Also opiNear, at, against.

- 10. OB-, from Latin ob, ob-, before, to, against.
- 11. EPI-, from Greek epi, on, over, at.
- 12. OPISTHOBANCH, OPISTHOGNATHOUS, from Greek opisthen, behind, at the back.
- 13. Zero-grade pi*, on. (see sed-) Greek piezein, to press tight.
- 14. OBLAST, from Russian oblast', oblast, from Old Church Slavonic ob, on.
- 15. Prefix op-* in op-wer-yo-*, to cover over (see wer-⁴).

[Pokorny epi 323.]

er-¹

Important derivatives are: *are*¹, *earnest*¹, orient, origin, original, abort.

To move, set in motion.

9. ARE¹, ART², from Old English eart and aron, second person singular and plural present of bēon, to be, from Germanic ar-, or-, art(a)*, to be, exist, probably from er-¹.
10. EARNEST¹, from Old English eornoste, zealous, serious, from Germanic suffixed form er-n-os-ti-*, perhaps from er-¹.
11. Suffixed form or-yo-*. ORIENT, ORIGIN, (ORIGINAL); ABORT, from Latin orīrī, to arise, appear, be born.
12. Suffixed form or-smā-*. HORMONE, from Greek hormē, impulse, onrush.

[Pokorny 3. er- 326; ergh- 339.]

er-²

An important derivative is: earth.

Earth, ground.

Extended form ert-*.

- a. EARTH, from Old English eorthe, earth;
- b. AARDVARK, AARDWOLF, from Middle Dutch aerde, eerde, earth. Both a and b from Germanic erthō*.

[Pokorny 4. er- 332.]

erə-

Important derivatives are: *row*², rudder.

To row.

11. Variant form rē-* (< reə-*).
 - a. ROW², from Old English rōwan, to row, from Germanic

rō-*;

- b. suffixed form rō-tro-*. RUDDER, RUSSIAN, from Old English rōther and Old Norse rōdhr, steering oar, both from Germanic rōthra*, rudder;
- c. suffixed form rē-smo-*. BIREME, REMEX, TRIREME, from Latin rēmus, oar.

12. Oldest variant form areā-* becoming erē-*. TRIERARCH, from Greek triērēs, trireme.

[Pokorny 1. erā- 338.]

ers-

Important derivatives are: *race*², erratic, error.

To be in motion.

21. Variant form rēs-*. RACE², from Old Norse rās, rushing, from Germanic rēs-*.
22. Form ers-ā-*. ERR, ERRATIC, ERRATUM, ERRONEOUS, ERROR; ABERRATION, from Latin errāre, to wander.

[Pokorny 2. ere-s- 336.]

es-

Important derivatives are: *am*¹, is, yes, soothe, *sin*¹, essence, absent, interest, *present*¹, proud.

To be.

3. Athematic first person singular form es-mi*. AM¹, from Old English eam, eom, am, from Germanic izm(i)*.
4. Athematic third person singular form es-ti*. IS, from Old English is, is, from Germanic ist(i)*.
5. Optative stem sī-*. YES, from Old English gēse, yes, (gēa, yea; see i- + sīe), from sīe, may it be (so), from Germanic sijai-*.
6. Participial form sont-*, being, existing, hence real, true.
 - a. SOOTH, SOOTHE, from Old English sōth, true, from Germanic santhaz*;

- b. suffixed (collective) zero-grade form snt-yā*, “that which is.” ^{SIN}¹, from Old English synn, sin, from Germanic sun(d)jō*, sin (
 - c. SUTTEE; BODHISATTVA, SATYAGRAHA, from Sanskrit sat-, sant-, existing, true, virtuous.
7. Basic form es-*. ENTITY, ESSENCE; ABSENT, (IMPROVE), INTEREST, OSSIA, PRESENT¹, (PRESENT²), PROUD, (QUINTESENCE), (REPRESENT), from Latin esse, to be.
 8. Basic form es-*. -ONT, ONTO-; (-BIONT), HOMOIOUSIAN, PAROUSIA, (SCHIZONT), from Greek einai (present participle ont-, being), to be (in pareinai, to be present).
 9. Suffixed form es-ti-*. SWASTIKA, from Sanskrit sv-as-ti-, “well-being” (see su-).

[Pokorny es- 340. See extension (e)su-.]

(e)su-

A derivative is: eu-.

Good.

Suffixed form of es-. eu-, from Greek eu-, well, combining form of eus, good.

[Pokorny esu-s 342. See su-.]

eu-¹

A derivative is: endue.

To dress.

16. ENDUE, from Latin induere, to don (ind-, variant of in-, in, on; see en).
17. EXUVIAE, from Latin exuere, to doff (ex-, off; see eghs).
18. REDUVIID, from Latin reduvia, fragment (red-, back, in reverse; see re-).

[Pokorny 2. eu- 346. See extension wes-².]

eu-²

Important derivatives are: wane, want, vanish, vacant, vacation, vacuum, void, avoid, evacuate, waste.

Lacking, empty.

Extended forms euə-, wā-, wə-*.

11. Suffixed form wə-no-*.

- a. WANE, from Old English wanian, to lessen, and wana, lack, from Germanic wanēn*;
- b. WANT, from Old Norse vanta, to lack, from North Germanic wanatōn*.

12. Suffixed form wā-no-*. VAIN, VANITY, VAUNT; EVANESCE, VANISH, from Latin vānus, empty.

13. Extended form wak-*. VACANT, VACATE, VACATION, (VACUITY), VACUUM, VOID; (AVOID), (DEVOID), EVACUATE, from Latin vacāre (variant vocāre), to be empty.

14. Extended and suffixed form wās-to-*. WASTE; DEVASTATE, from Latin vāstus, empty, waste.

[Pokorny 1. eu- 345.]

euə-dh-ŕ

Derivatives are: udder, exuberant.

Udder.

Related to wē-r-.

29. Suffixed zero-grade form ūdh-ŕ*. UDDER, from Old English ūder, udder, from Germanic ūdr-*.

30. Suffixed o-grade form oudh-ŕ*. (EXUBERANT), EXUBERATE, from Latin adjective īber, fertile, derived from īber, “breast.”

[Pokorny ēudh- 347.]

gal-

Important derivatives are: call, clatter.

To call, shout.

9. CALL, from Old Norse kalla, to call, from Germanic expressive form kall-*.
10. CLATTER, from Old English clatrian*, to clatter, from Germanic klat-*.
11. Expressive form gall-*. GALLINACEOUS, (GALLINULE), from Latin gallus, cock (Gallus, Gallic, as if to mean “the bird of Gaul,” the cock being archaeologically attested as an important symbol in the iconography of Roman and pre-Roman Gaul).
12. Suffixed form gal-so-*. GLASNOST, from a Slavic source akin to Old Church Slavonic glasŭ, voice.
13. Reduplicated form gal-gal-. GLAGOLITIC, from a Slavic source akin to Old Church Slavonic glagolŭ, word.

[Pokorny 2. gal- 350.]

gāu-

Important derivatives are: *gaudy*¹, joy, enjoy, rejoice.

To rejoice; also to have religious fear or awe.

Contracted from gaəu-*.

14. Suffixed form gau-d-ē-*. GAUD, (GAUDY¹), GAUDY², JOY; ENJOY, REJOICE, from Latin gaudēre, to rejoice.
15. Form (with nasal infix) gə-n-u-*. GANOID, from Greek ganusthai, to rejoice.

[Pokorny gāu- 353.]

gel-

Important derivatives are: chill, cold, cool, jelly, glacier.

Cold; to freeze.

11. CHILL, from Old English c(i)ele, chill, from Germanic kaliz*, coldness.

12. COLD, from Old English ceald, cold, from Germanic kaldaz*, cold.
 - a. COOL, from Old English cōl, cold, cool;
 - b. KEEL³, from Old English cēlan, to cool, from Germanic kōljan*, to cool. Both a and b from Germanic kōl-*, cool.
13. Suffixed form gel-ā-*. GELATIN, GELATION, JELLY; CONGEAL, from Latin gelāre, to freeze.
14. Suffixed form gel-u-*. GELID, from Latin gelū, frost, cold.
15. Probably suffixed zero-grade form gl̥-k-*. (GLACÈ), GLACIAL, GLACIATE, GLACIER, GLACIS, from Latin glaciēs, ice.

[Pokorny 3. gel(a)- 365.]

gembh-

Important derivatives are: comb, unkempt, gem.

Tooth, nail.

- I. Suffixed o-grade form gombh-o-*.
 - a. COMB, KAME, from Old English comb, camb, comb;
 - b. CAM, from Dutch kam, cog, comb;
 - c. UNKEMPT, from Old English cemban, to comb, from Germanic denominative kambjan*, to comb. a, b, and c all from Germanic kambaz*, comb.
2. GOMPHOSIS, from Greek gomphos, tooth, peg, bolt.
- II. Suffixed zero-grade form gmbh-ōn-*. OAKUM, from Old English ā-cumba, oakum.
- III. CHIME², from Old English cim-, cimb-, rim (only in compounds), from Germanic kimb-*, perhaps from gembh-.
- IV. Possibly suffixed form gembh-mā*. GEM, GEMMA, GEMMATE, GEMMULE, from Latin gemma, bud, hence gem.

[Pokorny ġembh- 369.]

gemə-

Derivatives are: gamete, -gamous, -gamy.

To marry.

Suffixed zero-grade form gmə- o-*. GAMETE, GAMO-, -GAMOUS, -GAMY, from Greek gamos, marriage.

[Pokorny ġem(e)- 369.]

genə-

Important derivatives are: kin, king, kind¹, kind², gentle, general, generate, genius, engine, genuine, germ, genital, pregnant, nation, native, nature.

Also gen-To give birth, beget; with derivatives referring to aspects and results of procreation and to familial and tribal groups.

12. Suffixed zero-grade form gŋ-yo-*.

- a. KIN; KINDRED, from Old English cyn(n), race, family, kin;
- b. KING, from Old English cyning, king, from Germanic kuningaz*, king. Both a and b from Germanic kunjam*, family.

13. Suffixed zero-grade form gŋ-t-*.

- a. KIND², from Old English cynd, gecynd(e), origin, birth, race, family, kind, from Germanic kundjaz*, family, race;
- b. KIND¹, from Old English gecynde, natural, native, fitting (ge-, collective prefix; see kom), from Germanic kundiz*, natural, native;
- c. Suffixed form gŋ-ti-*. GENS, (GENTEEL), (GENTILE), GENTLE; GENDARME, from Latin gēns (stem gent-), race, clan;
- d. KINDERGARTEN, KRIS KRINGLE, from Old High German kind, child, from Germanic secondary full-grade variant kentham*.

14. Suffixed full-grade form *gen-es-.

- a. GENDER, GENERAL, GENERATE, (GENERATION), GENERIC, GENEROUS, GENRE, GENUS; CONGENER, DEGENERATE, (ENGENDER), MISCEGENATION, from Latin genus (stem gener-), race, kind;
- b. GENE; ALLOGENEIC, GENEALOGY, GENOCIDE, GENOTYPE, HETEROGENEOUS, SYNGENEIC, from Greek genos and genea, race, family;
- c. -GEN, -GENY; EPIGENE, from Greek suffix -genēs, “-born.”

15. Suffixed full-grade form *gen-yo-.

- a. GENIAL¹, GENIUS; (CONGENIAL), from Latin genius, procreative divinity, inborn tutelary spirit, innate quality;
- b. ENGINE, INGENIOUS, from Latin ingenium, inborn character (in-, in; see en).

16. Suffixed full-grade form *gen-ā-. INDIGEN, (INDIGENOUS), from Latin indigena, born in (a place), indigenous (indu-, within; see en).

17. Suffixed full-grade form *genə-wo-. (GENUINE), INGENUOUS, from Latin ingenuus, born in (a place), native, natural, freeborn (in-, in; see en).

18. Suffixed full-grade form *gen-men-. GERM, GERMAN², (GERMANE), GERMINAL, GERMINATE, from dissimilated Latin germen, shoot, bud, embryo, germ.

19. Suffixed secondary zero-grade form *gṇə-ti-. GENESIS, -GENESIS, from Greek genesis, birth, beginning.

20. Reduplicated form *gi-gn-. GENITAL, GENITIVE, GENITOR, GENT¹, (GINGERLY); CONGENITAL, PRIMOGENITOR, PRIMOGENITURE, PROGENITOR, (PROGENY), from Latin gignere (past participle genitus), to beget.

21. Suffixed zero-grade form *-gn-o-. BENIGN, MALIGN, from Latin benignus, good-natured, kindly (bene, well; see deu-²), and malignus, evil-natured, malevolent (male, ill; see mel-³).

22. Zero-grade form *g_hǵ- becoming *gnā-. PREGNANT¹, from Latin praegnās, pregnant (prae-, before; see per¹).
23. Suffixed zero-grade form *g_hǵ-sko- becoming *gnā-sko-. NAIVE, NASCENT, NATAL, NATION, NATIVE, NATURE, NÈE, NO”L; (ADNATE), AGNATE, COGNATE, CONNATE, ENATE, INNATE, NEONATE, PUISNE, (PUNY), RENAISSANCE, from Latin gnāscī, nāscī (present participle nāscēns, past participle gnātus, nātus), to be born.
24. Suffixed o-grade form *gon-o-. GONAD, GONO-, -GONY; ARCHEGONIUM, EPIGONE, from Greek gonos (combining form -gonos), child, procreation, seed.
25. Zero-grade form *g_hǵ-. (see k^wrmi-) Sanskrit kṛmi-ja-, “produced by worms,” from ja-.

[Pokorny 1. ĝen- 373.]

genu-¹

Important derivatives are: knee, kneel, diagonal.

Knee; also angle.

4. Variant form *g_hneu-.
 - a. KNEE, from Old English cnēo, knee, from Germanic knewam*;
 - b. KNEEL, from Old English cnēowlian, to kneel, from Germanic knewljan*.
5. Basic form *g_henu-. GENICULATE, GENUFLECT, from Latin genū, knee.
6. O-grade form *gonu-. POLYGONUM, PYCNOGONID, from Greek gonu, knee.
7. Suffixed variant form *gōnw-ǵǵ-. -GON, GONION; AMBLYGONITE, DIAGONAL, GONIOMETER, ORTHOGONAL, from Greek gōnia, angle, corner.

[Pokorny 1. ĝenu- 380.]

genu-²

An important derivative is: chin.

Jawbone, chin.

17. Form genw-*. CHIN, from Old English cin(n), chin, from Germanic kinnuz*.
18. Basic form genu-*. GENIAL², from Greek genus, jaw, chin.
19. Suffixed variant form gnə-dho-*. GNATHAL, GNATHIC, -GNATHOUS; CHAETOGNATH, from Greek gnathos, jaw.
20. Variant form g(h)enu-*. HANUMAN, from Sanskrit hanu, jaw.

[Pokorny 2. ĝenu- 381.]

ger-

Important derivatives are: cram, congregate, segregate, category.

To gather.

9. Extended form grem-*. CRAM, from Old English crammian, to stuff, cram, from Germanic kramm-*.
10. Reduplicated form gre-g-*. GREGARIOUS; AGGREGATE, CONGREGATE, EGREGIOUS, SEGREGATE, from Latin grex (stem greg-), herd, flock.
11. Earliest forms ager-, āgor-ā-. AGORA¹, AGORAPHOBIA, ALLEGORY, CATEGORY, PANEGYRIC, from Greek ageirein, to assemble, and aguris, agora, marketplace.

[Pokorny 1. ger- 382.]

gerbh-

Important derivatives are: carve, *crab*¹, *crawl*¹, *gram*¹, grammar, diagram, paragraph, program.

To scratch.

6. CARVE, from Old English ceorfan, to cut, from Germanic kerban*.
7. KERE, from Old English cyrf, a cutting (off), from zero-grade Germanic form kurbiz*.
8. Variant form grebh-*.

- a. CRAB¹, from Old English crabba, a crab, from Germanic krab(b)-*;
 - b. CRAYFISH, from Old High German kerbiz, edible crustacean, from Germanic krabiz-*;
 - c. CRAWL¹, from Old Norse krafla, to crawl, from Germanic krab-*, perhaps from gerbh-.
9. Zero-grade form grbh-*. GRAFFITO, GRAM¹, -GRAM, GRAMMAR, -GRAPH, -GRAPHER, GRAPHIC, -GRAPHY; AGRAPHA, AGRAPHIA, ANAGRAM, DIAGRAM, EPIGRAM, (EPIGRAPH), GRAPHITE, (ICONOGRAPHY), PARAGRAPH, PARALLELOGRAM, PROGRAM, PSEUDEPIGRAPHA, TETRAGRAMMATON, (TOPOGRAPHY), from Greek graphein, to scratch, draw, write, gramma (< grbh-mn̥*), a picture, written letter, piece of writing, and grammē, a line.

[Pokorny gerebh- 392.]

gerǝ-¹

An important derivative is: geriatrics.

To grow old.

9. Suffixed lengthened-grade form gērǝ-s-*. AGERATUM, GERIATRICS, from Greek gēras, old age.
10. Suffixed form gerǝ-ont-*. GERONTO-, from Greek gerōn (stem geront-), old man.

[Pokorny ger- 390.]

gerǝ-²

Important derivatives are: *crow*¹, crack, crane, cranberry, pedigree, geranium.

To cry hoarsely; also the name of the crane.

- I. Words meaning “to cry hoarsely”; also words denoting the crow.
 - a. CROW¹, from Old English crāwe, a crow;
 - b. CROW², from Old English crāwan, to crow;
 - c. CRACK, from Old English cracian, to resound;

- d. CRACKNEL, from Middle Dutch krāken, to crack;
 - e. CRAKE, from Old Norse krāka, a crow;
 - f. CROON, from Middle Dutch krōnen, to groan, lament. a, b, c, d, e, and f all from Germanic krē-*.
2. CUR, from Middle English curre, cur, akin to Old Norse kurra, to growl, from Germanic kur(r)-*, possibly from gerǣ-² (but more likely imitative).

II. Words denoting a crane.

- a. CRANE, from Old English cran, crane;
 - b. CRANBERRY, from Middle Low German kran, crane. Both a and b from Germanic kran-*, crane.
2. Extended form grū-*. GRUS; PEDIGREE, from Latin grūs, crane.
3. Suffixed variant form grā-k-*. GRACKLE, from Latin grāculus, jackdaw.
4. Suffixed extended form gerǣ-no-*. GERANIUM, from Greek geranos, crane.

[Pokorny 2. ger- 383.]

geus-

Important derivatives are: choose, choice, disgust.

To taste, choose.

- a. CHOOSE, from Old English cēosan, ceōsan, to choose, from Germanic keusan*;
 - b. CHOICE, from a Germanic source akin to Gothic kausjan, to test, taste, from Germanic causative kausjan*.
16. Zero-grade gus-*. (see welǣ-) Old Norse Valkyrja, “chooser of the slain,” Valkyrie (valr, the slain), from Germanic kur-* from kuz-*.
17. Suffixed zero-grade form gus-tu-*.
- a. (GUST)², GUSTO; RAGOUT, from Latin gustus, taste;

- b. DEGUST, DISGUST, from Latin gustāre, to taste.

[Pokorny ĝeus- 399.]

ghabh-

Important derivatives are: give, forgive, gift, able, habit, exhibit, inhabit, malady, prohibit, debt, due, duty, endeavor.

Also ghebh-To give or receive.

13. Form ghebh-*.

- a. GIVE, from Old English giefan, to give, and Old Norse gefa, to give;
- b. FORGIVE, from Old English forgi(e)fan, to give, give up, leave off (anger), remit, forgive, from Germanic compound far-geban*, to give away (far-, away; see per¹). Both a and b from Germanic geban.

14. Suffixed form ghebh-ti-*, something given (or received). GIFT, from Old Norse gipt, gift, a gift, from Germanic giftiz*.

15. O-grade form ghobh-*. GAVEL², from Old English gafol, tribute, tax, debt, from Germanic gab-ulam*, something paid (or received).

16. Form ghabh-ē-*.

- a. ABLE, BINNACLE, HABILE, HABIT, HABITABLE, (HABITANT), (HABITAT); (COHABIT), EXHIBIT, INHABIT, INHIBIT, MALADY, PREBEND, PROHIBIT, (PROVENDER), from Latin habēre, to hold, possess, have, handle (habitāre, to dwell);
- b. DEBENTURE, (DEBIT), DEBT, DEVOIR, DUE, (DUTY); (ENDEAVOR), from Latin dēbēre, to owe (dē-, away from; see de-).

[Pokorny ghabh- 407. Compare kap-.]

ghans-

Important derivatives are: *goose*¹, gosling, gander.

Goose.

- c. GOOSE¹; (GOSHAWK), from Old English gōs (nominative plural gēs), goose;
 - d. GOSLING, from Old Norse gās, goose;
 - e. GUNSEL, from Old High German gans, goose;
 - f. GONZO, from Spanish ganso, goose, from a Germanic source akin to Old High German gans, goose. a, b, c, and d all from Germanic gans-* (nominative plural gansiz*).
9. GANDER, from Old English ganra, gandra, gander, from Germanic gan(d)rōn-*.
10. GANNET, from Old English ganot, gannet, from Germanic ganōtōn-*.
11. Suffixed form ghans-er-*. ANSERINE; MERGANSER, from Latin ānser (< hanser*), goose.
12. Basic form ghans-*. CHENOPOD, from Greek khēn, goose.

[Pokorny ghans- 412.]

ghē-

Important derivatives are: go, ago, heir, heritage, inherit, gait.

To release, let go; (in the middle voice) to be released, go.

Contracted from gheə-*.

- 13. GO; AGO, FOREGO¹, FORGO, from Old English gān, to go, from Germanic variant form gaian*.
- 14. Suffixed form ghē-ro-*. HEIR, HEREDITAMENT, HEREDITY, (HERITAGE); INHERIT, from Latin hērēs, heir (? < “bereft”).
- 15. Possibly suffixed o-grade form ghō-ro-*, “empty space.”
 - a. CHOROGRAPHY, from Greek khōros, place, country, particular spot;
 - b. -CHORE; ANCHORITE, from Greek denominative khōrein, to move, go, spread about, make room for;

c. CHORIPETALOUS, from Greek khōris, khōri, apart, separate.

16. Possible suffixed zero-grade form ghə-t(w)ā-*.

a. GAIT, GATE²; RUNAGATE, from Old Norse gata, path, street;

b. (GANTLET¹), GAUNTLET², from Old Swedish gata, lane. Both a and b from Germanic gatwōn-*, a going.

17. Suffixed zero-grade form ghə-no-*. HINAYANA, from Sanskrit hīna-, inferior, verbal adjective of jahāti, he leaves, lets go (ghe-ghē-ti*, ghe-gheə-ti*).

[Pokorny 1. ghē- 418.]

ghebh-el-

Derivatives are: gable, cephalic.

Head.

23. GABLE, from Old Norse gafl, gable, from Germanic gablaz*, top of a pitched roof.

24. Form kephal-, dissimilated from khephal-. CEPHALIC, CEPHALO-, -CEPHALOUS; ENCEPHALO-, ENKEPHALIN, HYDROCEPHALUS, from Greek kephalē, head.

[Pokorny ghebh-el- 423.]

ghedh-

Important derivatives are: good, together, gather.

To unite, join, fit.

10. Lengthened o-grade form ghōdh-*. GOOD, from Old English gōd, good, from Germanic gōdaz*, “fitting, suitable.”

11. TOGETHER, from Old English tōgædere, together (tō, to; see de-), from Germanic gadurī*, “in a body.”

12. GATHER, from Old English gad(e)rian, to gather, from Germanic gadurōn*, “to come or bring together.”

[Pokorny ghedh- 423.]

ghei-

An important derivative is: hibernate.

Theoretical base of ghyem-, ghiem-, winter.

19. Form ghiem-*. HIEMAL, from Latin hiems, winter.
20. Suffixed variant form gheim-ri-no-*. HIBERNACULUM, HIBERNATE, from Latin hībernus, pertaining to winter.
21. Suffixed zero-grade form ghim-ṛ-ya*, “female animal one year (winter) old.” CHIMERA, from Greek khimaira, she-goat.

[Pokorny 2. ghei- 425.]

ghel¹

Important derivatives are: yell, yelp, nightingale.

To call.

- a. YELL, from Old English gellan, giellan, to sound, shout;
 - b. YELP, from Old English gielpan, to boast, exult;
 - c. NIGHTINGALE, from Old English galan, to sing. a, b, and c all from Germanic gel-, gal-.
15. Reduplicated form ghi-ghl-*. CICHLID, from Greek kikhlē, thrush, later also the name for a kind of wrasse (a sea fish that has bright colors and jagged waving fins, reminiscent of the plumage of a bird).
 16. CELANDINE, from Greek khelidwōn, khelidōn, the swallow.

[Pokorny ghel- 428.]

ghel²

Important derivatives are: yellow, gold, arsenic, *gall*¹, melancholy, gleam, glimpse, glimmer, glitter, glass, *glare*¹, glad, glee, glow, glide.

To shine; with derivatives referring to colors, bright materials (probably “yellow metal”), and bile or gall.

- I. Words denoting colors.

1. Suffixed form *ghel-wo-. YELLOW, from Old English geolu, yellow, from Germanic *gelwaz.
2. Suffixed variant form *ghlō-ro-. CHLORO-; CHLORITE¹, from Greek khlōros, green, greenish yellow.
3. Suffixed variant form *ghlo-wo-. CHLOASMA, from Greek khloos (< *khlo-wo-s), greenish color.
4. O-grade form *ghol-. PODZOL, from Russian zola, ashes (from their color).
5. Suffixed form *ghel-i-. HARE KRISHNA, from Sanskrit hari-, tawny yellow.
6. Possibly suffixed zero-grade form *ghl_o-wo-. GRISEOFULVIN, from Latin fulvus, tawny, perhaps from ghel-² (with dialectal f- as in fel, gall).

II. Words denoting gold.

1. Suffixed zero-grade form *ghl_o-to-.
 - a. GOLD, from Old English gold, gold;
 - b. GILD¹, from Old English gyldan, to gild, from Germanic denominative verb *gulthjan;
 - c. GUILDER, GULDEN, from Middle Dutch gulden, golden;
 - d. GOWAN, from Middle English gollan, yellow flower, possibly from a source akin to Old Norse gullinn, golden. a, b, c, and d all from Germanic *gultham, gold.
2. Suffixed o-grade form *ghol-to-. ZLOTY, from Polish złoto, gold.
3. Suffixed full-grade form *ghel-no-. ARSENIC, from Syriac zarnīkā, orpiment, from Middle Iranian *zarnik-, from Old Iranian *zarna-, golden.

III. Words denoting bile.

1. Suffixed o-grade form *ghol-no-. GALL¹, from Old English gealla, gall, from Germanic *gallōn-, bile.

2. Suffixed o-grade form ghol-ā*. CHOLE-, CHOLER, (CHOLERA); ACHOLIA, MELANCHOLY, from Greek kholē, bile.
3. Suffixed full-grade form ghel-n-*. FELON², from Latin fel, bile.

IV. A range of Germanic words (where no preforms are given, the words are late creations).

1. GLEAM, from Old English glāem, bright light, gleam, from Germanic glaimiz*.
2. GLIMPSE, from Middle English glimsen, to glimpse, from a source akin to Middle High German glimsen, to gleam.
3. GLANCE¹, GLINT, from Middle English glent, a glint, and glenten, to shine, from a source akin to Swedish dialectal glinta, to shine.
4. GLIMMER, from Middle English glimeren, to glimmer, from a source akin to Swedish glimra, glimmer.
5. GLITTER, from Old Norse glitra, to shine.
6. GLITZ, from Old High German glīzan, to sparkle.
7. GLISTEN, from Old English glisnian, to shine.
8. GLISTER, from Middle Dutch glinsteren or Middle Low German glisteren, to shine.
9. GLASS, GLAZE, (GLAZIER), from Old English glæs, glass, from Germanic glasam*, glass.
10. GLARE¹, from Middle English glaren, to glitter, stare, from a source akin to Middle Low German glaren, to glisten, from Germanic glaz-*.
11. GLOSS¹, from a source perhaps akin to Icelandic glossi, a spark.
12. GLANCE², from Old High German glanz, bright.
13. GLEG, from Old Norse gl̥ggr, clear-sighted.
14. GLAD, from Old English glæd, shining, joyful, from Germanic gladaz*.
15. GLEE, from Old English glēo, sport, merriment, from Germanic gleujam*.

- a. GLEED, from Old English glēd, ember;
 - b. GLOGG, from Swedish gl`d, ember. Both a and b from Germanic glō-di-*.
 - c. GLOW, from Old English glōwan, to glow;
 - d. GLOWER, from Middle English gloren, to gleam, stare, probably from a source akin to Norwegian dialectal glora, to gleam, stare;
 - e. GLOAT, from a source perhaps akin to Old Norse glotta, to smile (scornfully). a, b, and c all from Germanic glō-*.
16. GLOAMING, from Old English glōm, twilight, from Germanic glō-m-*.
- a. GLIDE, from Old English glīdan, to slip, glide;
 - b. GLISSADE, from Old French glier, to glide;
 - c. GLITCH, from Old High German glītan, to glide;
 - d. GLEDE, from Old English glīda, kite (< “gliding, hovering bird”), from derivative Germanic glidōn-. a, b, c, and d all from Germanic glīdan, to glide, possibly distantly related to ghel-².
17. GLIB, from a source possibly akin to Middle Low German glibberich, slippery.

[Pokorny 1. ǵhel- 429.]

ghend-

Important derivatives are: get, forget, guess, prison, apprehend, comprehend, surprise, prey.

Also ghed-To seize, take.

- a. GET, from Old Norse geta, to get;
- b. BEGET, from Old English beg(i)etan, to get, beget, from Germanic compound bigetan*, to acquire (bi-*, intensive prefix; see ambhi);

- c. FORGET, from Old English forg(i)etan, to forget, from Germanic compound fer-getan*, “to lose one's hold,” forget (fer-, prefix denoting rejection; see per¹). a, b, and c all from Germanic getan.
18. GUESS, from Middle English gessen, to guess, from a Scandinavian source akin to Old Swedish gissa, to guess, from Germanic getisōn*, “to try to get,” aim at.
19. Basic form ghend-*. PREHENSILE, PREHENSION, PRISON, PRIZE², (PRIZE³), (PRY²); APPREHEND, (APPRENTICE), (APPRISE), COMPREHEND, (COMPRISE), EMPRISE, ENTERPRISE, (ENTREPRENEUR), MISPRISION¹, PREGNABLE, REPREHEND, (REPRISAL), (REPRISE), SURPRISE, from Latin prehendere, prehendere, to get hold of, seize, grasp (pre-, prae-, before; see per¹).
20. Form ghed-*. PREDATORY, PREY, SPREE; DEPREDATE, OSPREY, from Latin praeda, booty (< prai-heda*, “something seized before”; prai-, prae-, before; see per¹). [Pokorny ghend- 437.]

gher-¹

Important derivative are: girdle, *yard*², orchard, kindergarten, garden, court, courteous, choir, choral.

To grasp, enclose; with derivatives meaning “enclosure.”

13. Suffixed zero-grade form ghr̥-dh-*.
- GIRD¹, from Old English gyrdan, to gird, from Germanic gurdjan*;
 - GIRDLE, from Old English gyrdel, girdle;
 - GIRTH, from Old Norse gj^rdh, girdle, girth.
14. Suffixed o-grade form ghor-to-* or (in Germanic) ghor-dho-*, an enclosure.
- YARD²; ORCHARD, from Old English geard, enclosure, garden, yard;
 - GARTH, from Old Norse gardhr, garden, yard;

- iii. KINDERGARTEN, from Old High German garto, garden;
- iv. GARDEN, from Old North French gart, garden;
- v. HANGAR, from Old French hangard, shelter, possibly from Germanic haimgardaz* (haimaz*, home; see tkei-);
- vi. (see medhyo-) Germanic compound midja-gardaz*, “middle zone,” earth. (i), (ii), (iii), (iv), (v), and (vi) all from Germanic gardaz*;

b. HORTICULTURE, ORTOLAN, from Latin hortus, garden.

15. Prefixed and suffixed zero-grade form ko(m)-ghr̥-ti-* (ko(m)-*, collective prefix, “together”; see kom). COHORT, CORTEGE, COURT, (COURTEOUS), COURTESAN, (COURTESY), (COURTIER), (CURTILAGE), (CURTSY), from Latin cohors (stem cohort-), enclosed yard, company of soldiers, multitude.
16. Perhaps suffixed o-grade form ghor-o-*. (CHOIR), (CHORAL), (CHORALE), CHORIC, (CHORISTER), CHORUS, HORA; CHORAGUS, TERPSICHORE, from Greek khoros, dancing ground (? perhaps originally a special enclosure for dancing), dance, dramatic chorus.

[Pokorny 4. gher- 442, gherdh- 444.]

gher-²

Important derivatives are: yearn, greedy, exhort, charisma.

To like, want.

10. Suffixed form gher-n-*. YEARN, from Old English giernan, gyrnan, to strive, desire, yearn, from Germanic gernjan*.
11. Possibly extended form ghrē-*.
- a. GREEDY, from Old English grædig, hungry, covetous, greedy, from Germanic grēdigaz*, hungry, formed from grēduz*, hunger;
 - b. CATACHRESIS, CHRÉSARD, CHRESTOMATHY, from Greek chrēsthai, to lack, want, use, from chrē, it is necessary.

12. Suffixed zero-grade form ghr̥-to-*. HORTATIVE; EXHORT, from Latin hortārī, to urge on, encourage (
13. Suffixed zero-grade form ghr̥-i-*. CHARISMA; EUCHARIST, from Greek kharis, grace, favor.
14. Suffixed zero-grade form ghr̥-yo-*. CHERVIL, from Greek khairein, to rejoice, delight in.

[Pokorny 1. gher- 440.]

gherə-

Important derivatives are: yarn, hernia, cord.

Gut, entrail.

15. Suffixed form gherə-no-*. YARN, from Old English gearn, yarn, from Germanic garnō*, string.
16. Suffixed form gherə-n-*. HERNIA, from Latin hernia, “protruded viscus,” rupture, hernia.
17. Suffixed o-grade form ghorə-d-*. (CHORD²), CORD, (CORDON); HARPSICORD, TETRACHORD, from Greek khordē, gut, string.
18. O-grade form ghorə-*. CHORION, from Greek khorion, intestinal membrane, afterbirth.
19. Possible suffixed zero-grade form ghr̥ə-u-*. HARUSPEX, from Latin haruspex, “he who inspects entrails,” diviner (-spex, “he who sees” < spek-*, “to see”; see spek-), but perhaps borrowed from Etruscan.

[Pokorny 5. gher- 443.]

gheslo-

Important derivatives are: kilo-, mile, million.

Seen by some as a base for words meaning “thousand.”

8. Suffixed form ghesl-yo-*. CHILLIAD, KILO-, from Greek khilioi, thousand.

9. MIL, MILE, MILLENARY, MILLESIMAL, MILLI-, MILLIARY, MILLIME, MILLION; MILFOIL, MILLENNIUM, MILLEPORE, MILLIPEDE, from Latin mille, thousand, which has been analyzed as smī-, “one” + a form ghslī-, but is of obscure origin.

[Pokorny ĝhÈslo- 446.]

ghesor-

Important derivatives are: surgeon, surgery.

Hand.

Reduced form ghesr-*. CHIRO-; (CHIRURGEON), ENCHIRIDION, (SURGEON), SURGERY, from Greek kheir, hand.

[Pokorny 1. ĝhesor- 447.]

gheu-

Important derivatives are: gut, funnel, fusion, confuse, *refund*¹, *refuse*¹.

To pour, pour a libation.

VIII. Extended form gheud-*.

1. Zero-grade form ghud-*. GUT, from Old English guttas, intestines, from Germanic gut-*.
2. Nasalized zero-grade form ghu-n-d-*. FOISON, FONDANT, (FONDUE), (FONT²), FOUND², (FUNNEL), FUSE², FUSILE, FUSION; AFFUSION, CIRCUMFUSE, CONFOUND, (CONFUSE), DIFFUSE, EFFUSE, INFUSE, PERFUSE, PROFUSE, REFUND, (REFUSE¹), (REFUSE²), SUFFUSE, TRANSFUSE, from Latin fundere, to melt, pour out.

IX. Extended form gheus-*.

- a. GUST¹, from Old Norse gustr, a cold blast of wind, from Germanic suffixed form gustiz*;
- b. GUSH, from Middle English gushen, to gush, perhaps akin to Icelandic gusa, to gush. Both a and b from Germanic zero-grade form gus-*.
2. GEYSER, from Old Norse geysa, to gush, from Germanic suffixed o-grade form gausjan*.

- a. Suffixed zero-grade form ghus-mo-*. (CHYME); ECCHYMOSIS, from Greek khumos, juice;
 - b. suffixed zero-grade form ghus-lo-*. CHYLE, from Greek khulos, juice.
- X. Suffixed form gheu-ti-*. FUTILE, from Latin fūtilis, “(of a vessel) easily emptied, leaky,” hence untrustworthy, useless.
- XI. Basic form gheu-*. CHOANOCYTE, PARENCHYMA, from Greek khein, to pour, with o-grade noun khoanē, funnel.

[Pokorny gheu- 447.]

gheu(ə)-

Important derivatives are: god, giddy.

To call, invoke.

Suffixed zero-grade form ghu-to-*, “the invoked,” god.

- a. GOD, from Old English god, god;
- b. GIDDY, from Old English gydig, gidig, possessed, insane, from Germanic gud-igaz*, possessed by a god;
- c. G[^]TTERD%oMMERUNG, from Old High German got, god. a, b, and c all from Germanic gudam*, god.

[Pokorny ghau- 413.]

ghos-ti-

Important derivatives are: guest, hostile, hospital, *host*¹, hostage.

Stranger, guest, host; properly “someone with whom one has reciprocal duties of hospitality.”

- 6. Basic form ghos-ti-*.
 - a. GUEST, from Old Norse gestr, guest, from Germanic gastiz*;
 - b. HOST², HOSTILE, from Latin hostis, enemy (< stranger).
- 7. Compound ghos-pot-, ghos-po(d)-, “guest-master,” one who symbolizes the relationship of reciprocal obligation (pot-*, master; see poti-). HOSPICE, HOSPITABLE, HOSPITAL, (HOSPITALITY), HOST¹, (HOSTAGE), (HOSTEL), (HOSTLER), from Latin hospes (stem hospit-), host, guest, stranger.

8. Suffixed zero-grade form ghs-en-wo-*. XENO-; EUXENITE, PYROXENE, from Greek xenos, guest, host, stranger.

[Pokorny ghosti-s 453.]

ghrē-

Important derivatives are: grow, green, grass.

To grow, become green.

Contracted from ghræ-*.

12. O-grade form ghrō-*. GROW, from Old English grōwan, to grow, from Germanic grō(w)an*.
13. Suffixed o-grade form ghrō-n-yo-*. GREEN, from Old English grēne, green, from Germanic grōnjaz*, green.
14. Suffixed zero-grade form ghræ-so-*. GRASS, GRAZE¹, from Old English græs, grass, from Germanic grasam*, grass.

[Pokorny ghrē- 454.]

ghrebh-¹

Important derivatives are: grasp, *grab*¹.

To seize, reach.

2. Zero-grade form ghṛbh-*. SATYAGRAHA, from Sanskrit gr̥bhṇāti, gr̥hṇāti, he seizes.
 - a. GRASP, from Middle English graspen, to grasp;
 - b. GRAB¹, from Middle Dutch or Middle Low German grabben, to seize. Both a and b from parallel (imitative) Germanic creations with base grab-, grap-.

[Pokorny 1 ghrebh- 455.]

ghrebh-²

Important derivatives are: engrave, *grave*¹, grub, groove.

To dig, bury, scratch.

7. O-grade form ghrobh-*.

- i. GRAVE³, (ENGRAVE), from Old English grafan, to dig, engrave, scratch, carve;
- ii. GRABEN, from Old High German graban, to dig;
- iii. GRAVLAX, from Swedish grava, to bury;
- iv. GRAVURE, from Old French graver, to engrave. (i), (ii), (iii), and (iv) all from Germanic graban*;

b. GRAVE¹, from Old English græf, trench, grave, from Germanic grabam*.

8. GRUB, from Old English grybban*, to dig, from Germanic grub(b)jan* (with secondary ablaut).

9. GROOVE, from Middle Dutch groeve, ditch, from Germanic grōbō*.

[Pokorny 2. ghrebh- 455.]

ghredh-

Important derivatives are: congress, progress, grade, degrade, degree.

To walk, go.

Suffixed zero-grade form ghṛdh-yo-*.

- a. GRESSORIAL; AGGRESS, CONGRESS, DEGRESSION, DIGRESS, EGRESS, INGRESS, PINNIGRADE, PLANTIGRADE, PROGRESS, REGRESS, RETROGRADE, RETROGRESS, TRANSGRESS, from Latin gradī (past participle gressus), to walk, go;
- b. GRADE; CENTIGRADE, DEGRADE, DEGREE, from Latin gradus (grad-u-*), step, stage, degree, rank.

[Pokorny ghredh- 456.]

ghrēi-

Important derivatives are: grisly, grime, Christ, christen, Christian, Christmas.
To rub.

5. GRISLY, from Old English grislic, terrifying, from Germanic gris-*, to frighten (
6. GRIME, from Middle English grime, grime, from a source akin to Middle Dutch grīme, grime, from Germanic grīm-*, smear.
7. Extended form ghrīs-*. CHRISM, CHRIST, (CHRISTEN), (CHRISTIAN); (CHRISTMAS), CREAM, from Greek khriein, to anoint.

[Pokorny ghrēi- 457.]

ghrendh-

Important derivatives are: grind, grist, *refrain*¹.
To grind.

4. GRIND, from Old English grindan, to grind, from Germanic grindan*.
5. GRIST, from Old English grīst, the action of grinding, from Germanic grinst-*, a grinding.
6. (FRAISE), FRENULUM, FRENUM; REFRAIN¹, from Latin frendere, to grind.
7. Variant form ghrend-*. CHONDRO-; HYPOCHONDRIA, MITOCHONDRION, from Greek khondros, granule, groats, hence cartilage, sometimes but improbably regarded as from ghrendh-.

[Pokorny ghren- 459.]

ghwer-

Important derivatives are: feral, fierce, ferocious, treacle.
Wild beast.

7. Suffixed form ghwer-o-*. FERAL, FIERCE, from Latin ferus, wild.
8. Compound ghwero-ək^w-, “of wild aspect” (-ək^w-, “-looking”);

see ok^w-). FEROCIOUS, from Latin ferōx (stem ferōc-), fierce.

9. Lengthened-grade form ghwēr-*. TREACLE; CHALICOTHERE, DINOTHERE, THEROPOD, from Greek thēr, wild beast.

[Pokorny ghuǝr- 493.]

gleubh-

Important derivatives are: *cleave*¹, *clove*², clever, hieroglyphic.

To tear apart, cleave.

I. Basic form gleubh-*.

1. CLEAVE¹, from Old English clēofan, to split, cleave, from Germanic kleuban*.
2. Probably o-grade gloubh-*. CLEVER, from Middle English cliver, nimble, skillful, perhaps akin to East Frisian kl, fer, klifer, skillful, and Old Norse kleyfr, easy to split, from Germanic klaubri-*.

II. Zero-grade form glubh-*.

- a. CLOVE², from Old English clufu, clove (of garlic);
 - b. KLOOF, from Middle Dutch clove, a cleft;
 - c. CLEVIS, from a Scandinavian source akin to Old Norse klofi, a cleft. a, b, and c all from Germanic klub-*, a splitting.
2. CLEFT, from Old English geclyft, fissure, from Germanic klufti-* (klub-ti-*).
 3. GLYPH, GLYPTIC; ANAGLYPH, HIEROGLYPHIC, from Greek gluphein, to carve.
 4. Suffixed zero-grade form glubh-mā-*. GLUME, from Latin glūma, husk of grain.

[Pokorny gleubh- 401.]

gnō-

Important derivatives are: know, *can*¹, cunning, uncouth, notice, recognize, ignore, noble, diagnosis, narrate.

To know.

Contracted from gnō-*.

5. Variant form gnē-, contracted from gnē-. KNOW, from Old English cnāwan, to know, from Germanic knē(w)-*.
6. Zero-grade form gn̥-*.
 - a. CAN¹, CON², CUNNING, from Old English cunnan, to know, know how to, be able to, from Germanic kunnan* (Old English first and third singular can from Germanic kann* from o-grade gon-*);
 - b. KEN, KENNING, from Old English cennan, to declare, and Old Norse kenna, to know, name (in a formal poetic metaphor), from Germanic causative verb kannjan*, to make known;
 - c. (COUTH); UNCOUTH, from Old English cūth, known, well-known, usual, excellent, familiar, from Germanic kunthaz*;
 - d. KITH AND KIN, from Old English cūth(the), cūththu, knowledge, acquaintance, friendship, kinfolk, from Germanic kunthithō*.
7. Suffixed form gnō-sko-*. NOTICE, NOTIFY, NOTION, NOTORIOUS; (ACQUAINT), COGNITION, (COGNIZANCE), (CONNOISSEUR), (QUAINT), RECOGNIZE, from Latin (g)nōscere, cognōscere, to get to know, get acquainted with.
8. Suffixed form gnō-ro-*. IGNORANT, IGNORE, from Latin ignōrāre, not to know, to disregard (i- for in-, not; see ne).
9. Suffixed form gnō-dhli-*. NOBLE, from Latin nōbilis, knowable, known, famous, noble.
10. Reduplicated and suffixed form gi-gnō-sko-*. GNOME², GNOMON, GNOSIS; AGNOSIA, DIAGNOSIS, PATHOGNOMONIC, PHYSIOGNOMY, PROGNOSIS, from Greek gignōskein, to know, think, judge, with gnōsis (< gnō-ti-*), knowledge, inquiry, and gnōmōn, judge, interpreter.

11. Suffixed zero-grade form gŋə-ro-*. NARRATE, from Latin narrāre (< gnarrāre*), to tell, relate, from gnārus, knowing, expert.

12. Traditionally but improbably referred here are:

- a. NOTE; ANNOTATE, CONNOTE, PROTHONOTARY, from Latin nota, a mark, note, sign, cipher, shorthand character;
- b. NORM, NORMA, NORMAL; ABNORMAL, ENORMOUS, from Latin norma, carpenter's square, rule, pattern, precept, possibly from an Etruscan borrowing of Greek gnōmōn, carpenter's square, rule.

[Pokorny 2. ĝen- 376.]

grə-no-

Important derivatives are: *corn*¹, kernel, grain, granite, grenade.
Grain.

- a. CORN¹, from Old English corn, grain;
 - b. KERNEL, from Old English derivative noun cyrnel, seed, pip;
 - c. EINKORN, from Old High German korn, grain. a, b, and c all from Germanic kornam*.
1. (GARNER), GRAIN, GRAM², GRANADILLA, GRANARY, GRANGE, GRANITE, GRANULE, (GRENADE); FILIGREE, POMEGRANATE, from Latin grānum, grain.

[In Pokorny ĝer- 390.]

g^wā-

Important derivatives are: come, welcome, become, adventure, convene, convenient, event, invent, prevent, revenue, souvenir, *base*¹, basis, acrobat, diabetes.

Contracted from g^waə-* Also g^wem-

To go, come.

- a. COME, from Old English cuman, to come;

- b. WELCOME, from Old English wilcuma, a welcome guest, and wilcume, the greeting of welcome, from Germanic compound wil-kumōn-, a desirable guest (wil-, desirable; see wel¹), from kumōn-*, he who comes, a guest;
- c. BECOME, from Old English becuman, to become, from Germanic compound bi-kuman*, to arrive, come to be (bi-, intensive prefix; see ambhi). a, b, and c all from Germanic kuman.
1. Suffixed form g^w(e)m-yo-*. VENIRE, VENUE; ADVENT, (ADVENTITIOUS), (ADVENTURE), (AVENUE), CIRCUMVENT, CONTRAVENE, CONVENE, (CONVENIENT), (CONVENT), (CONVENTICLE), (CONVENTION), (COVEN), (COVENANT), EVENT, INTERVENE, INVENT, (MISADVENTURE), PARVENU, PREVENIENT, PREVENT, PROVENANCE, (PROVENIENCE), REVENANT, REVENUE, SOUVENIR, SUBVENTION, SUPERVENE, from Latin venīre, to come.
 2. Suffixed zero-grade form g^wṃ-yo-*. BASE¹, BASIS; ABASIA, ACROBAT, ADIABATIC, AMPHISBAENA, ANABAENA, BATOPHOBIA, (DIABASE), DIABETES, HYPERBATON, KATABATIC, STEREOBATE, STYLOBATE, from Greek bainein, to go, walk, step, with basis (< g^wṃ-ti-*), a stepping, tread, base, -batos (< g^wṃ-to-*), going, and -batēs (< g^wṃ-to-, zero-grade of g^wā-), agential suffix, “one that goes or treads, one that is based.”
 3. Suffixed zero-grade form g^w(ə)-u-* in compound form pres-g^wu-*, “going before” (see per¹).
 4. Basic form g^wā-*. BEMA, from Greek bēma, step, seat, raised platform.
 5. JUGGERNAUT, from Sanskrit jigāti, he goes.

[Pokorny g^wā- 463.]

g^wei-

Important derivatives are: quick, vivid, revive, survive, vital, vitamin, whiskey, bio-, amphibious, microbe, hygiene.

Also g^weiā-To live.

- I. Suffixed zero-grade form g^wi-wo-, g^wī-wo- (< g^wiā-wo-*), living.

- a. QUICK, QUICKSILVER, from Old English cwic, cwicu, living, alive;
 - b. (COUCH GRASS), QUITCH GRASS, from Old English cwice, couch grass (so named from its rapid growth). Both a and b from Germanic kwi(k)waz*.
 - c. VIVIFY, VIVIPAROUS, from Latin vīvus, living, alive;
 - d. VIAND, VICTUAL, VIVA, VIVACIOUS, VIVID; CONVIVIAL, REVIVE, SURVIVE, from Latin denominative vīvere, to live.
2. AZOTH, from Sanskrit jīva-, alive.
 3. Further suffixed form g^wī-wo-tā*. VIABLE, VITAL; VITAMIN, from Latin vīta, life.
 4. Further suffixed form g^wi-wo-tūt-*. USQUEBAUGH, (WHISKEY), from Old Irish bethu, life.

II. Suffixed zero-grade form g^wiā-o-*. BIO-, BIOTA, BIOTIC; AEROBE, AMPHIBIAN, ANABIOSIS, CENOBITE, DENDROBIUM, MICROBE, RHIZOBIUM, SAPROBE, SYMBIOSIS, from Greek bios, life (biotē, way of life).

III. Variant form g^wγō-* (< g^wγoā-*).

1. AZO-, (DIAZO), from Greek zoē, life.
2. Suffixed form g^wγō-γo-*. -ZOIC, ZOO-, ZOON¹, -ZOON, from Greek zōon, zōion, living being, animal.

IV. Prefixed and suffixed form su-g^wiā-es-, “having good life” (su-, well; see su-). HYGIENE, from Greek hugiēs, healthy.

V. QUIVER¹, from Old English cwifer-, nimble, possibly from g^wei-.

[Pokorny 3. g^wei- 467.]

g^welə-

Important derivatives are: devil, emblem, metabolism, parable, parliament, parlor, problem, symbol, *ball*², ballad, ballet, *kill*¹.

Also g^wel-To throw, reach, with further meaning to pierce.

I. Words denoting to throw, reach. Variant g^wlē-*, contracted from *g^wleə-.

1. Suffixed zero-grade form *g^wl̥-n-ə-.
 - a. BALLISTA; AMPHIBOLE, ASTROBLEME, BOLIDE, DEVIL, (DIABOLIC), EMBLEM, EPIBOLY, (HYPERBOLA), HYPERBOLE, METABOLISM, (PALAVER), PARABLE, (PARABOLA), (PARLEY), (PARLIAMENT), (PARLOR), (PAROL), (PAROLE), PROBLEM, SYMBOL, from Greek ballein, to throw (with o-grade *bol- and variant *blē-);
 - b. BALL², (BALLAD), (BALLET), BAYADERE, from Greek ballizein, to dance.
2. Suffixed o-grade form *g^wolə-ā. BOLOMETER, from Greek bolē, beam, ray.
3. Possible suffixed o-grade form g^wol(ə)-sā. BOULE¹, ABULIA, from Greek boulē, determination, will (
4. Suffixed variant zero-grade form *g^welə-mno-. BELEMNITE, from Greek belemnōn, dart, javelin.

II. Words denoting to pierce.

1. Suffixed o-grade form *g^wol-eyo-.
 - a. QUELL, from Old English cwellan, to kill, destroy;
 - b. QUAIL², from Middle Dutch quelen, to be ill, suffer. Both a and b from Germanic kwaljjan*.
2. Suffixed zero-grade form *g^wl̥-yo-. KILL¹, from Middle English killen, to kill, perhaps from Old English cyllan*, to kill, from Germanic kuljan*.
3. Full-grade form *g^wel-. BELONEPHOBIA, from Greek belonē, needle.

[Pokorny 2. g^uel- 471, 1. g^uel- 470.]

g^wen-

An important derivative is: queen.

Woman.

1. Suffixed form *g^wen-ā-.

- a. QUEAN, from Old English cwene, woman, prostitute, wife, from Germanic kwenōn-*;
 - b. BANSHEE, from Old Irish ben, woman;
 - c. ZENANA, from Persian zan, woman.
2. Suffixed lengthened-grade form g^wēn-i-*. QUEEN, from Old English cwēn, woman, wife, queen, from Germanic kwēniz*, woman, wife, queen.
 3. Suffixed zero-grade form g^wŋ-ā-*. -GYNE, GYNO-, -GYNOUS, -GYNY; GYNECOCRACY, (GYNECOLOGY), GYNOECIUM, from Greek gunē, woman.

[Pokorny g^wenā 473.]

g^werə⁻¹

Important derivatives are: *grave*², grief, aggravate, baritone, guru, brute, blitzkrieg. Heavy.

I. Zero-grade form g^wŋə-*.

1. Suffixed form g^wŋə-u-i-*. GRAVE², GRAVID, GRAVITY, (GRIEF), GRIEVE; AGGRAVATE, (AGGRIEVE), from Latin gravis, heavy, weighty.
2. Suffixed form g^wŋə-u-*.
 - a. BARITE, (BARIUM), BARYON, BARYTA; BARITONE, BARYCENTER, BARYSPHERE, CHARIVARI, from Greek barus, heavy;
 - b. GURU, from Sanskrit guru-, heavy, venerable.
3. Suffixed form g^wŋə-es-*. BAR², BARO-; CENTROBARIC, ISALLOBAR, ISOBAR, from Greek baros, weight.
4. Possibly g^wŋ̄-. (see ud-) Greek compound u(d)-bri- from bri-.

II. Suffixed extended form g^wrū-to-*. BRUT, BRUTE, from Latin brūtus, heavy, unwieldy, dull, stupid, brutish.

III. Suffixed extended form g^wrī-g-.

- a. BRIO, from Spanish brio or Provençal briu, vigor, from Celtic brīg-o-*, strength;

- b. (BRIG), BRIGADE, (BRIGAND), (BRIGANTINE), from Old Italian briga, strife, from Celtic brīg-ā-*, strife;
- c. BLITZKRIEG, SITZKRIEG, from Old High German krēg, chrēg, stubbornness, from Germanic krīg-*.

IV. Suffixed full-grade form g^werə-nā-*, millstone. QUERN, from Old English cweorn, quern.

[Pokorny 2. g^wer- 476.]

g^werə⁻²

Important derivatives are: grace, grateful, gratitude, agree, congratulate, *bard*¹.
To favor.

1. Suffixed zero-grade form g^wṛə-to-*. GRACE, GRATEFUL, GRATIFY, GRATIS, GRATITUDE, GRATUITOUS, (GRATUITY); AGREE, CONGRATULATE, DISGRACE, INGRATE, INGRATIATE, MAUGRE, from Latin grātus, pleasing, beloved, agreeable, favorable, thankful, with related suffixed forms g^wṛə-ti-, g^wṛə-t-ā-, g^wṛə-t-olo-*.
2. Possible suffixed zero-grade form g^wṛə-d(h)o-*, “he who praises.” BARD¹, from Welsh bardd and Scottish and Irish Gaelic bard, bard, from Celtic bardo-, bard (but this is possibly from g^werə⁻¹).

[Pokorny 4. g^wer(ə)- 478.]

g^wet-

Derivatives are: bequeath, quoth.
To say, speak.

1. Basic form g^wet-*. BEQUEATH, QUOTH, from Old English cwethan, to say, speak, from Germanic kwithan*.
2. Suffixed form g^wet-ti-*. BEQUEST, from Old English -cwis, will, from Germanic kwessiz*.

[Pokorny 2. g^wet- 480.]

g^whedh-

Important derivatives are: bid, bead.

To ask, pray.

1. Suffixed form *g^whedh-yo-. BID, from Old English biddan, to ask, pray, from Germanic bidjan*, to pray, entreat.
2. BEAD, from Old English bed(u), gebed, prayer (ge-, intensive and collective prefix; see kom), from Germanic bidam*, entreaty.
3. Suffixed form *g^whedh-to-. INFEST, MANIFEST, from Latin -festus, probably in īnfestus, hostile, (< ŋ-g^whedh-to-, “inexorable”; ŋ-, not; see ne), and perhaps in manifestus, caught in the act, red-handed (manus, hand; see man-²).

[Pokorny g^whedh- 488, 2. bhedh- 114.]

g^when-

Important derivatives are: bane, gun, defend, fence, offend.

To strike, kill.

1. O-grade *g^whon-.
 - a. BANE, from Old English bana, slayer, cause of ruin or destruction;
 - b. AUTOBAHN, from Middle High German ban, bane, way, road (? a and b from Germanic suffixed form ban-ōn-*).
2. Suffixed zero-grade form *g^whŋ-tyā-.
 - a. GUN, from Old Norse gunnr, war;
 - b. GONFALON, from Italian gonfalone, standard, from Germanic compound gund-fanōn-, “battle flag” (fanōn-, flag; see pan-). Both a and b from Germanic gundjō*, war, battle.
3. Suffixed form *g^when-do-.
 - a. DEFEND, (DEFENSE), (FENCE), from Latin dēfendere, to ward off (dē-, away; see de-);

- b. OFFEND, (OFFENSE), from Latin offendere, to strike against, be offensive, offend (ob-, against; see epi).
4. Suffixed zero-grade form g^wh₂-tro-*. BEZOAR, from Persian zahr, poison, from Old Iranian jathra-*.

[Pokorny 2. g^when-(ə)- 491, bhen- 126.]

g^wher-

Important derivatives are: *burn*¹, brand, brandy, brandish, forceps, furnace.

To heat, warm.

1. Zero-grade g^whr-*.
 - a. BURN¹, from Old English beornan, byrnan (intransitive) and bærnan (transitive), to burn;
 - b. BRIMSTONE, from late Old English brynstān, “burning mineral,” sulfur (stān, stone; see stei-);
 - c. BRINDLED, from Old Norse brenna, to burn. a, b, and c all from Germanic brennan* (intransitive) and brannjan (transitive), formed from brenw-* with nasal suffix and analogical vocalism.
 - d. BRAND, from Old English brand, piece of burning wood, sword;
 - e. BRANDY, from Dutch branden, to burn, distill;
 - f. BRANDISH, from Old French brand, sword;
 - g. BRANDADE, from Old Provençal brand, sword. a, b, c, and d all from Germanic brandaz*, a burning, a flaming torch, hence also a sword.
2. Suffixed form g^wher-mo-*. THERM, -THERM, THERMO-, -THERMY; HYPOTHERMIA, from Greek thermos, warm, hot, and thermē, heat.
3. O-grade form g^whor-*. FORCEPS, FORCIPATE, from Latin forceps, pincers, fire tongs (-ceps, agential suffix, “-taker”; see kap-).

4. Suffixed o-grade form *g^whor-no-.

- a. FURNAX, FURNACE, HORNITO, from Latin furnus, fornus, fornāx, oven;
- b. FORNICATE, FORNIX, from Latin fornix, arch, vault (g^wher-

[Pokorny g^wher- 493, bhereu- 143.]

g^whī-

Important derivatives are: filament, file¹, profile.

Thread, tendon.

Contracted from *g^whiā-. Suffixed form *g^whī-slo-. FILAMENT, FILAR, FILARIA, FILE¹, FILLET, FILOSE, FILUM; (DEFILE²), ENFILADE, FILIFORM, FILIGREE, FILOPLUME, PROFILE, PURPLE, from Latin fīlum, thread.

[Pokorny g^wheiā- 489.]

g^whrē-

Important derivatives are: breath, breathe.

To smell, breathe.

Contracted from *g^whrea-. BREATH, (BREATHE), from Old English bræth, odor, exhalation, from Germanic suffixed form *brē-thaz.

g^whren-

Important derivatives are: frantic, frenetic, frenzy, phrase, paraphrase.

To think.

1. (FRANTIC), FRENETIC, (FRENZY), -PHRENIA, PHRENO-; (PHRENITIS), from Greek phrēn, the mind, also heart, midriff, diaphragm.
2. Extended zero-grade root form *g^whrη-d-. PHRASE; HOLOPHRASTIC, METAPHRASE, PARAPHRASE, PERIPHRASIS, from Greek phrazein, to point out, show.

[Pokorny g^whren- 496.]

g^wou-

Important derivatives are: *cow*¹, beef, *bugle*¹, bucolic, butter.

Ox, bull, cow.

Nominative singular form *g^wōu-s.

1. COW¹, (KINE); COWSLIP, from Old English cū, cȳ, cȳe, cow, from Germanic *kōuz (*kūz).
2. BEEF, BOVINE, BUGLE¹, from Latin bōs (stem bov-), ox, bull, cow.
3. BO[^]TES, BOUSTROPHEDON, BUCOLIC, BUGLOSS, BULIMIA, BUPRESTID, BUTTER, (BUTYRIC), from Greek bous, ox, bull, cow.
4. GAYAL, from Sanskrit go-, gauḥ, cow.
5. Suffixed form *g^wōu-ro-. GAUR, from Sanskrit gaurah, wild ox.
6. Zero-grade suffixed form *g^ww-ā-. HECATOMB, from Greek hekatombē, “sacrifice of a hundred oxen” (hekaton, hundred; see dekṃ).

[Pokorny g^wou- 482.]

i-

Important derivatives are: yonder, yea, yes, yet, if, identity, item.

Pronominal stem.

14. ILK¹, from Old English ilca, same, from Germanic *is-līk-, same (*līk-, like; see līk-).
15. YON, from Old English geon, that, from Germanic *jaino-, *jeno-.
 - a. YOND, (YONDER), from Old English geond, as far as, yonder, from Germanic *jend-;
 - b. BEYOND, from Old English geondan, beyond, from Germanic *jendana-.
16. Extended forms *yām, *yāi. YEA, YES, from Old English gēa, affirmative particle, and gēse, yes (see es-), from Germanic *jā, *jai.

17. YET, from Old English gīet, gīeta (preform uncertain), still.
18. Relative stem yo-* plus particle. IF, from Old English gif, if, from Germanic ja-ba*.
19. Basic form i-, with neuter id-em. ID, IDEM, (IDENTICAL), IDENTITY; (IDENTIFY), from Latin is, he (neuter id, it), and īdem, same.
20. Suffixed form i-tero-*. ITERATE; (REITERATE), from Latin iterum, again.
21. Suffixed and extended form it(ə)-em*. ITEM, from Latin item, thus, also.
22. Stem i-* plus locatival particle -dha-i*. IBIDEM, from Latin ibīdem, in the same place.
23. Suffixed variant form e-tero-*. (see ko-).

[Pokorny 3. e- 281.]

kā-

Important derivatives are: whore, caress, charity, cherish.

To like, desire.

Contracted from kaə-*.

24. Suffixed form kā-ro-*.
 - i. WHORE, from Old English hōre, whore;
 - ii. WHOREDOM, from Old Norse compound hōrdōmr, whoredom (-dōmr, “condition”; see dhē-). Both (i) and (ii) from Germanic hōraz* (feminine hōrōn-*), “one who desires,” adulterer;
- b. CARESS, CHARITY, CHERISH, from Latin cārus, dear.
25. Suffixed form kā-mo-*. KAMA; KAMASUTRA, from Sanskrit kāmaḥ, love, desire.

[Pokorny kā- 515.]

kad-

Important derivatives are: cadaver, cadence, cascade, case¹, chance, chute, accident, decay, incident, occasion.

To fall.

CADAVER, CADENCE, CADENT, CADUCOUS, CASCADE, CASE¹, CHANCE, CHUTE; ACCIDENT, DECAY, DECIDUOUS, ESCHEAT, INCIDENT, OCCASION, RECIDIVISM, from Latin cadere, to fall, die.

[Pokorny 1. kad- 516.]

kaə-id-

Important derivatives are: cement, chisel, scissors, circumcise, concise, decide, precise.

To strike.

16. CAESURA, CEMENT, CESTUS², CHISEL, -CIDE, SCISSOR; ABCISE, CIRCUMCISE, CONCISE, DECIDE, EXCISE², INCISE, PRECISE, RECISION, from Latin caedere, to cut, strike.

17. CAELUM, from Latin caelum (? < caedum*), sculptor's chisel.

[Pokorny (s)k(h)ai- 917.]

kai-

Important derivatives are: hot, heat.

Heat.

Extended form kaid-*.

- a. HOT, from Old English hāt, hot, from Germanic haitaz*;
- b. HEAT, from Old English hætu, from Germanic haitī-*.

[Pokorny kāi- 519.]

kailo-

Important derivatives are: whole, wholesome, health, heal, holy, hallow.

Whole, uninjured, of good omen.

- a. HALE¹, WHOLE, from Old English hāl, hale, whole;

- b. WHOLESOME, from Old English hālsom* (Middle English holsom), wholesome;
 - c. (HAIL²); WASSAIL, from Old Norse heill, healthy. a, b, and c all from Germanic hailaz*.
2. HEALTH, from Old English hǣlth, health, from Germanic hailithō*.
 3. HEAL, from Old English hǣlan, to heal, from Germanic hailjan*.
 - a. HOLY, from Old English hālig, holy, sacred;
 - b. HALLOW, from Old English hālgian, to consecrate, bless, from Germanic derivative verb hailagōn*. Both a and b from Germanic hailagaz*.

[Pokorny kai-lo- 520.]

kaito-

Important derivatives are: heath, heathen.

Forest, uncultivated land.

26. HEATH, from Old English hǣth, heath, untilled land, from Germanic haithiz*.
 - a. HEATHEN, from Old English hǣthen, heathen, “savage” (
 - b. HOYDEN, from Middle Dutch heiden, heathen. Both a and b from Germanic haithinaz*.

[Pokorny kaito- 521.]

kakka-

Derivatives are: poppycock, cacophony.

Also kaka-To defecate. Root imitative of glottal closure.

8. CUCKING STOOL, from Middle English cukken, to defecate, from a source akin to Old Norse kūka*, to defecate.
9. POPPYCOCK, from Latin cacāre, to defecate.
10. CACO-; CACODYL, CACO”THES, CACOPHONOUS, (CACOPHONY), from Greek kakos, bad.

[Pokorny kakka- 521.]

kan-

Important derivatives are: hen, chant, accent, enchant, incentive, charm.

To sing.

21. HEN, from Old English hen(n), hen, from Germanic han(e)nī*.
22. CANOROUS, CANT², CANTABILE, CANTATA, CANTICLE, CANTILLATE, (CANTO), CANTOR, CANZONE, CHANT; ACCENT, DESCANT, ENCHANT, (INCANTATION), INCENTIVE, PRECENTOR, RECANT, from Latin canere, to sing (cantāre, to sing, frequentative of canere).
23. OSCINE, from Latin oscen, a singing bird used in divination (< obs-cen*, “one that sings before the augurs”; ob-, before; see epi-).
24. Suffixed form kan-men-*. CHARM, from Latin carmen, song, poem.

[Pokorny kan- 525.]

kand-

Important derivatives are: candid, candidate, candle, candor, incandesce, incense.

To shine.

12. Suffixed (stative) form kand-ē-*. CANDENT, CANDID, (CANDIDA), (CANDIDATE), CANDLE, CANDOR; INCANDESCES, from Latin candēre to shine.
13. (INCENDIARY), INCENSE¹, INCENSE² from Latin compound incendere, to set fire to, kindle (in-, in; see en), from transitive candere*, to kindle.

[Pokorny kand- 526.]

kap-

Important derivatives are: have, heavy, haven, *hawk*¹, heave, cable, capable, caption, *captive, catch, chase*¹, accept, conceive, deceive, except, intercept, municipal, occupy, participate, perceive, receive, recover, capsule, chassis.

To grasp.

VI. Basic form kap-*.

1. HEDDLE, from Old English hefeld, thread used for weaving, heddle (a device which grasps the thread), from Germanic haf-*.
2. HAFT, from Old English hæft, handle, from Germanic haftjam*.
3. Form kap-o-*. HAVE, from Old English habban, to have, hold, from Germanic habai-, habēn.
4. HEAVY, from Old English hefig, heavy, from Germanic hafigaz*, “containing something,” having weight.
5. HAVEN, from Old English hæfen, a haven, from Germanic hafnō-*, perhaps “place that holds ships.”
6. HAWK¹, from Old English h(e)afoc, hawk, from Germanic habukaz*.
7. (see per¹) Latin combining form -ceps (< kap-s*), “taker.”
8. GAFF¹, from Provençal gafar, to seize, from Germanic gaf-*, probably akin to kap-.

VII. Suffixed form kap-yo-*.

1. HEAVE, from Old English hebban, to lift, from Germanic hafjan*.
2. CABLE, CAPABLE, CAPACIOUS, CAPIAS, CAPSTAN, CAPTION, CAPTIOUS, (CAPTIVATE), CAPTIVE, CAPTOR, CAPTURE, CATCH, (CHASE¹), ACCEPT, ANTICIPATE, CONCEIVE, DECEIVE, EXCEPT, INCEPTION, (INCIPIENT), INTERCEPT, INTUSSUSCEPTION, MUNICIPAL, NUNCUPATIVE, OCCUPY, PARTICIPATE, PERCEIVE, PRECEPT, RECEIVE, (RECOVER), RECUPERATE, (RX), SUSCEPTIBLE, from Latin capere, to take, seize, catch.

VIII. Lengthened-grade variant form kōp-*.

- a. BEHOOF, from Old English behōf, use, profit, need;
- b. BEHOOVE, from Old English behōfian, to have need of.

Both a and b from Germanic compound bi-hōf*, “that which binds,” requirement, obligation (bi-, intensive prefix; see ambhi), from hōf-.

2. COPEPOD, from Greek kōpē, oar, handle.

[Pokorny kap- 527. Compare ghabh-.]

kaput-

Important derivatives are: *head, cadet, capital*¹, caprice, captain, cattle, chapter, chief, biceps, decapitate, kerchief, mischief.

Head.

- a. HEAD, from Old English hēafod, head;
 - b. HETMAN, from Old High German houbit, head. Both a and b from Germanic haubudam*, haubidam*.
11. CADET, CAPE², CAPITAL¹, CAPITAL², CAPITATE, CAPITATION, CAPITELLUM, (CAPITULATE), CAPITULUM, CAPO¹, (CAPO²), CAPRICE, CAPTAIN, CATTLE, CAUDILLO, (CHAPITER), CHAPTER, CHIEF, CHIEFTAIN, CORPORAL²; BICEPS, DECAPITATE, KERCHIEF, MISCHIEF, OCCIPUT, PRECIPITATE, RECAPITULATE, SINCIPUT, TRICEPS, from Latin caput, head

[Pokorny kap-ut- 529.]

kar-

Important derivatives are: *hard, standard, hardy*¹, cancer, canker.

Hard.

III. Variant form ker-*.

1. Suffixed o-grade form kor-tu-*.
 - a. HARD, from Old English hard, heard, hard;
 - b. -ARD, from Germanic -hart*, -hard*, bold, hardy;
 - c. STANDARD, from Old French estandard, rallying place, perhaps from Frankish hard*, hard;
 - d. HARDY¹, from Old French hardir, to make hard. a, b, c, and d all from Germanic harduz*.

2. Suffixed zero-grade form kʷt-es-, from earlier full-grade form kret-es-. -CRACY, from Greek kratos, strength, might, power.

IV. Possible basic form kar-* in derivatives referring to things with hard shells.

1. CAREEN, CARINA, from Latin carīna, keel of a ship, nutshell, possibly from kar-.
2. KARYO-; EUCARYOTE, GILLYFLOWER, SYNKARYON, from Greek karuon, nut, possibly from kar-.
3. Reduplicated form kar-kr-o-*. (CANCER), CANKER, CHANCRE, from dissimilated Latin cancer, crab, cancer, constellation Cancer.
4. Suffixed form kar-k-ino-*. CARCINO-, CARCINOMA, from Greek karkinos, cancer, crab.

[Pokorny 3. kar- 531.]

kas-

An important derivative is: hare.

Gray.

- c. HARE, from Old English hara, hare;
 - d. HASENPEFFER, from Old High German haso, rabbit. Both a and b from Germanic hazōn-, hasōn-.
18. Suffixed form kas-no-*. CANESCENT, from Latin cānus, white, gray, grayed hair.

[Pokorny kas- 533.]

kat-

A derivative is: cata-.

Down.

17. CATA-, from Greek kata, down, possibly from kat-.
18. Suffixed form kat-olo-*. CADELLE, from Latin catulus, young puppy, young of animals (“dropped”).

kau-

Important derivatives are: hew, haggle, hoe, hay.

To hew, strike.

- a. HEW, from Old English hēawan, to hew;
 - b. HAGGLE, from Old Norse h[^]gg-va, to cut;
 - c. HOE, from Old French houe, a hoe. a, b, and c all from Germanic hawwan*.
13. HAG², from a source akin to Old Norse h[^]gg, a gap, a cutting blow, from Germanic hawwō*.
14. HAY, from Old English hīeg, hay, cut grass, from Germanic haujam*.
15. Suffixed form kau-do-*. INCUS, from Latin cūdere (< caudere*), to strike, beat.

ked-

Important derivatives are: cease, cede, abscess, access, ancestor, concede, de cease, exceed, precede, proceed, succeed, necessary.

To go, yield.

18. Lengthened-grade form kēd-*. CEASE, CEDE, CESSION; ABSCESS, ACCEDE, ACCESS, ANCESTOR, ANTECEDE, CONCEDE, (CONCESSION), DECEASE, EXCEED, INTERCEDE, PRECEDE, PREDECESSOR, PROCEED, RECEDE, RETROCEDE, SECEDE, SUCCEED, from Latin cēdere, to go, withdraw, yield.
19. Prefixed and suffixed form ne-ked-ti-, “(there is) no drawing back” (ne-, not; see ne). NECESSARY, from Latin necesse, inevitable, unavoidable.

keg-

Important derivatives are: *hook, heckle, hack*¹.

Hook, tooth.

- a. HAKE, from Old English haca, hook, akin to Old Norse haki, hook;
 - b. HARQUEBUS, from Middle Dutch hake, hook. Both a and b from Germanic hakan-*.
 - c. HOOK, from Old English hōc, hook;
 - d. HOOKER¹, from Middle Dutch hōk, hoec, hook;
 - e. HAČEK, from Old High German hāko, hook. a, b, and c all from Germanic lengthened form hōka-*.
25. HECKLE, from Middle Dutch hekel, hatchel, a flax comb with long metal hooklike teeth, from Germanic hakila-*.
26. HACK¹, from Old English -haccian, to hack to pieces as with a hooked instrument, from Germanic hakkijan*.

[Pokorny keg- 537.]

kei-¹

Important derivatives are: city, civic, civil, cemetery.

To lie; bed, couch; beloved, dear.

V. Basic form kei-*.

1. Suffixed form kei-wo-*.
 - a. HIND³, from Old English hīwan, members of a household, from Germanic hīwa-*;
 - b. HIDE³, from Old English hīgid, hīd, a measure of land (< “household”), from suffixed Germanic form hīwidō*.
2. Suffixed form kei-wi-*. CITY, CIVIC, CIVIL, from Latin cīvis, citizen (
3. Suffixed form kei-liyo-*. CEILIDH, from Old Irish cēle, companion.

VI. O-grade form koi-*.

1. Suffixed form koi-nā*. INCUNABULUM, from Latin cūmae, a cradle.
 2. Suffixed form koi-m-ā*. CEMETERY, from Greek koiman, to put to sleep.
- VII. Suffixed zero-grade form ki-wo-*. SHIVA, from Sanskrit śiva-, auspicious, dear.

[Pokorny 1. kei- 539.]

kei⁻²

Important derivatives are: cite, excite, incite, resuscitate, solicitous, kinetic.
To set in motion.

- I. Possibly extended o-grade from koid-*.
 1. HIGHT, from Old English hātan, to call, summon, order, from Germanic haitan*.
 2. Suffixed form koid-ti-*.
 - a. HEST, from Old English hāes, a command, a bidding;
 - b. BEHEST, from Old English compound behāes, a vow, promise, command (be-, intensive prefix; see ambhi). Both a and b from Germanic haissiz* from hait-ti-* (but Germanic hait-* of 1 and 2 is perhaps to be referred to a separate root kaid-*).
- II. Zero-grade form ki-. Suffixed iterative form ki-eyo-. CITE; EXCITE, INCITE, OSCITANCY, RESUSCITATE, SOLICITOUS, from Latin ciēre (past participle citus), with its frequentative citāre, to set in motion, summon.
- III. Extended root kyeu-. Nasal infix form ki-n-eu-. KINEMATICS, KINESICS, -KINESIS, KINETIC; CINEMATOGRAPH, HYPERKINESIA, KINESIOLOGY, KINESTHESIA, KININ, (TELEKINESIS), from Greek kinein, to move.

[Pokorny kēi- 538.]

kek^{w-}

A derivative is: copro-.
To excrete.

Suffixed o-grade form kok^w-ro-*. COPRO-, from Greek kopros, dung.

[Pokorny ĵek^u- 544.]

kel-¹

Important derivatives are: hell, hall, hull, hole, hollow, holster, apocalypse, eucalyptus, helmet, occult, color, cell, cellar, conceal.

To cover, conceal, save.

V. O-grade form kol-*.

- a. HELL, from Old English hell, hell;
 - b. HEL, from Old Norse Hel, the underworld, goddess of death. Both a and b from Germanic haljō*, the underworld (
 - c. HALL, from Old English heall, hall;
 - d. VALHALLA, from Old Norse h[^]ll, hall. Both a and b from Germanic hallō*, covered place, hall.
2. Suffixed form kol-eyo-*. COLEUS; COLEOPTERAN, COLEOPTILE, COLEORHIZA, from Greek koleon, koleos, sheath.

VI. Zero-grade form k_l-*.

- a. HOLD², HULL, from Old English hulu, husk, pod (
 - b. HOLE, from Old English hol, a hollow;
 - c. HOLLOW, from Old English holh, hole, hollow;
 - d. HAUGH, from Old English health, secret place, small hollow. a, b, c, and d all from Germanic hul-*.
 - e. HOLSTER, from Old High German hulft, covering;
 - f. HOUSING², from Medieval Latin hultia, protective covering. Both a and b from suffixed Germanic form hulftī-*.
2. Suffixed form k_l-to-*. (see III. 2. below) Latin occultus.
3. Extended form klā* (< k_lā-*). CLANDESTINE, from Latin clam, in secret.

4. Suffixed variant form kal-up-yo-*. CALYPSO¹, CALYPTRA; APOCALYPSE, EUCALYPTUS, from Greek kaluptein, to cover, conceal.

VII. Full-grade form kel-*.

- a. HELM², from Old English helm, protection, covering;
 - b. HELMET, from Middle English helmet, helmet, from a source akin to Frankish helm*, helmet. Both a and b from Germanic helmaz*, “protective covering.”
2. OCCULT, from Latin occulere < ob-kel-* (past participle occultus < ob-kl̥-to-; see II. 3. above), to cover over (ob-, over; see epi).
 3. Suffixed form kel-os-*. COLOR, from Latin color, color, hue (
 4. Suffixed form kel-nā-*. CELL, CELLA, CELLAR, CELLARER; (RATHSKELLER), from Latin cella, storeroom, chamber.
 5. Suffixed form kel-yo-*. CILIUM, SEEL; SUPERCILIOUS, (SUPERCILIUM), from Latin cilium, lower eyelid.

VIII. Lengthened-grade form kēl-ā-*. CONCEAL, from Latin cēlāre, to hide.

[Pokorny 4. kel- 553.]

kel⁻²

Important derivatives are: hill, excel, culminate, colonel, column.

To be prominent; hill.

18. Zero-grade form kl̥-*.

- a. HILL, from Old English hyll, hill, from suffixed Germanic form hul-ni-*;
- b. HOLM, from Old Norse hōlmr, islet in a bay, meadow, from suffixed Germanic form hul-ma-*.

19. Suffixed form kel-d-*. EXCEL, from Latin excellere, to raise up, elevate, also to be eminent (ex-, up out of; see eghs).

20. O-grade form kol-*.

- a. COLOPHON, from Greek kolophōn, summit;
- b. suffixed form kol(u)men-*. CULMINATE, from Latin culmen, top, summit;
- c. extended and suffixed form kolumnā*. COLONEL, COLONNADE, COLUMN, from Latin columna, a projecting object, column.

[Pokorny 1. kel- 544.]

kelə⁻¹

Important derivatives are: lee, chafe, caldron, chowder, scald¹, calorie.
Warm.

Variant klē-, contracted from kleə-.

21. Suffixed variant form klē-wo-*.

- a. LEE, from Old English hlēo, hlēow, covering, protection (as from cold);
- b. LUKEWARM, from Old English -hlēow, warm. Both a and b from Germanic hlēwaz*.

22. Suffixed zero-grade form kļə-ē-*.

- a. CALENTURE, CHAFE; DECALESCENCE, INCALESCENT, NONCHALANT, RECALESCENCE, from Latin calēre, to be warm;
- b. CALDRON, CAUDLE, (CHOWDER); SCALD¹, from Latin derivative adjective calidus, warm.

23. Suffixed zero-grade form kļə-os-*. CALORIC, CALORIE;

CALORECEPTOR, CALORIFIC, CALORIMETER, CALORIMETRY, from Latin calor, heat.

[Pokorny 1. kel- 551.]

kelə⁻²

Important derivatives are: claim, clamor, acclaim, exclaim, reclaim, haul, council, calendar, clear, declare, class.

To shout.

I. Variant form klā-* (< klaə-*).

1. LOW², from Old English hlōwan, to roar, low, from Germanic hlō-*.
2. Suffixed form klā-mā-*. CLAIM, CLAMANT, CLAMOR; ACCLAIM, DECLAIM, EXCLAIM, PROCLAIM, RECLAIM, from Latin clāmāre, to call, cry out.

II. O-grade form kolə-*.

- a. KEELHAUL, from Middle Dutch halen, to haul, pull (?)
- b. HALE², HAUL, from Old French haler, to haul. Both a and b from Germanic halōn*, to call.

III. Zero-grade form k|ə-* (kal-*).

1. Suffixed form kal-yo-*. CONCILIATE, COUNCIL, from Latin concilium, a meeting, gathering (con-, together; see kom).
2. Suffixed form kal-end-*. CALENDAR, CALEND, from Latin kalendae, the calends, the first day of the month, when it was publicly announced on which days the nones and ides of that month would fall.
3. Suffixed form kal-e-*. ECCLESIA, PARACLETE, from Greek kalein (variant klē-), to call.
4. Suffixed form kal-ā-*. INTERCALATE, NOMENCLATOR, from Latin calāre, to call, call out.
5. Suffixed form k|ə-ro-* or suffixed variant form klaə-ro-* contracted to klā-ro-*. CLEAR, GLAIR; CHIAROSCURO, CLAIRVOYANT, DECLARE, ÈCLAIR, (ECLAIRCISSEMENT), from Latin clārus, bright, clear.

IV. Possibly extended zero-grade form k|d-, becoming klad- in suffixed form klad-ti-*. CLASS, from Latin classis, summons, division of citizens for military draft, hence army, fleet, also class in general.

ken-

An important derivative is: recent.

Fresh, new, young.

15. Suffixed form ken-t-*. RECENT, from Latin recēns, young, fresh, new (re-, again; see re-).

16. Suffixed zero-grade form kη-yo-*. -CENE; CAINOTOPHOBIA, CENOZOIC, KAINITE, from Greek kainos, new, fresh.

[Pokorny 3. ken- 563.]

kenk-

Important derivatives are: cinch, precinct, succinct.

To gird, bind.

Variant form keng-*. CINCH, CINCTURE, CINGULUM; ENCEINTE¹, ENCEINTE², PRECINCT, SHINGLES, SUCCINCT, from Latin cingere, to gird.

[Pokorny 1. kenk- 565.]

kens-

Important derivatives are: ensor, census..

To proclaim, speak solemnly.

Form kens-ē-*. CENSOR, CENSUS; RECENSION, from Latin cēnsēre, to judge, assess, estimate, tax.

[Pokorny ĵens- 566.]

kent-

Important derivatives are: center, eccentric.

To prick, jab.

20. CENTER; AMNIOCENTESIS, DICENTRA, ECCENTRIC, from Greek kentein, to prick.

21. Suffixed form kent-to-*. CESTUS¹, from Greek kestos, belt, girdle.

[Pokorny ĵent- 567.]

ker-¹

Important derivatives are: horn, cornea, corner, cornet, Capricorn, unicorn, hornet, reindeer, cranium, migraine, cheer, carrot, cervix, carat, rhinoceros, cerebrum.

Horn, head; with derivatives referring to horned animals, horn-shaped objects, and projecting parts.

I. Zero-grade form *k_ɾ-.

1. Suffixed form *k_ɾ-n-.

- i. HORN, (HORNBEAM), from Old English horn, horn;
- ii. ALPENHORN, ALTHORN, FL_GELHORN, HORNBLLENDE, from Old High German horn, horn. Both (i) and (ii) from Germanic hurnaz*;

- b. CORN², CORNEA, CORNEOUS, CORNER, CORNET, CORNICULATE, CORNU; BICORNUATE, CAPRICORN, CORNIFICATION, LAMELLICORN, LONGICORN, TRICORN, UNICORN, from Latin cornū, horn.

2. Suffixed and extended form *k_ɾs-n-. HORNET, from Old English hyrnet, hornet, from Germanic hurznuta*-.

3. Suffixed form *kr-ei-.

- a. REINDEER, from Old Norse hreinn, reindeer, from Germanic hraina*-;

- b. RINDERPEST, from Old High German hrind, ox, from Germanic hrinda*-.

4. Suffixed extended form *k_ɾəs-no-. CRANIUM; MIGRAINE, OLECRANON, from Greek kranion, skull, upper part of the head.

5. Suffixed form *k_ɾ-ə-.

- a. CHARIVARI; CHEER, from Greek karē, kara, head;

- b. CAROTID, from Greek karoun, to stupefy, be stupefied (

- c. CARROT, from Greek karōton, carrot (from its hornlike shape).

6. Possibly extended form *krī-. CRIOSPHINX, from Greek krios, ram.

II. Suffixed form ker-wo-*.

1. CERVINE, SERVAL, from Latin cervus, deer.
2. CERVIX, from Latin cervix, neck.

III. Extended and suffixed form keru-do-*.

- a. HART, from Old English heorot, hart, stag;
- b. HARTEBEEST, from Middle Dutch hert, deer, hart. Both a and b from Germanic herutaz*.

IV. Extended form kerās-*.

1. CARAT, CERASTES, KERATO-; CERATODUS, CHELICERA, CLADOCERAN, KERATIN, MONOCEROS, RHINOCEROS, TRICERATOPS, from Greek keras, horn.
2. SIRDAR, from Persian sar, head.
3. Suffixed form kerās-ro*. CEREBELLUM, CEREBRUM, SAVELOY, from Latin cerebrum, brain.

V. Extended o-grade form koru-*.

1. CORYMB, from Greek korumbos, uppermost point (< “head”).
2. CORYPHEUS, from Greek koruphē, head.
3. Suffixed form koru-do-*. CORYDALIS, from Greek korudos, crested lark.
4. Suffixed form koru-nā*. CORYNEBACTERIUM, from Greek korunē, club, mace.

[Pokorny 1. ker- 574.]

ker-²

Important derivatives are: cereal, create, Creole, crescent, *crew*¹, concrete, decrease, increase, recruit, sincere.

To grow.

1. Suffixed form ker-es-*. CEREAL, CERES, from Latin Cerēs, goddess of agriculture, especially the growth of grain.
2. Extended form krē-* (< kreə-*).
 - a. suffixed form krē-yā-*. CREATE, CREOLE; PROCREATE, from Latin creāre, to bring forth, create, produce (
 - b. suffixed form krē-sko-*. CRESCENDO, CRESCENT, CREW¹; ACCRUE, (CONCRESCENCE), CONCRETE, DECREASE, EXCRESCENCE, INCREASE, RECRUIT, from Latin crēscere, to grow, increase.
3. Suffixed o-grade form kor-wo-*, “growing,” adolescent. DIOSCURI, HYPOCORISM, from Greek kouros, koros, boy, son, and korē, girl.
4. Compound sm̥-kēro-, “of one growth” (sm̥-, same, one; see sem-¹). SINCERE, from Latin sincērus, pure, clean.

[Pokorny 2. ker- 577.]

ker-³

Important derivatives are: hearth, carbon, cremate, ceramic.

Heat, fire.

4. Suffixed form ker-tā*. HEARTH, from Old English heorth, hearth, from Germanic herthō*.
5. Zero-grade form k_ṛ-*.
 - a. CARBON, CARBUNCLE, from Latin carbō, charcoal, ember;
 - b. extended form krem-*. CREMATE, from Latin cremāre, to burn.
6. Possibly suffixed and extended form kerə-mo-*. CERAMIC, from Greek keramos, potter's clay, earthenware.
7. Possibly variant extended form krās-*. CRASH², from Russian krasit', to color.

[Pokorny 3. ker(ə)- 571.]

kerd-

Important derivatives are: *heart, cordial, courage, quarry*¹, accord, discord, record, cardiac, credence, credible, credit, grant.

Heart.

9. Suffixed form kerd-en-*. HEART, from Old English heorte, heart, from Germanic hertōn-*.
10. Zero-grade form kꝛd-*.
 - a. CORDATE, CORDIAL, COURAGE, QUARRY¹; ACCORD, CONCORD, CORDIFORM, DISCORD, MISERICORD, RECORD, from Latin cor (stem cord-), heart;
 - b. suffixed form kꝛd-yā-*. CARDIA, CARDIAC, RADIO-; ENDOCARDIUM, EPICARDIUM, MEGALOCARDIA, MYOCARDIUM, PERICARDIUM, from Greek kardia, heart, stomach, orifice.
11. Possibly kred-dhā-, “to place trust” (an old religious term; dhā-, to do, place; see dhē-). CRENDENCE, CREDIBLE, CREDIT, CREDO, CREDULOUS, GRANT; MISCREANT, RECREANT, from Latin crēdere, to believe.

[Pokorny kered- 579.]

kerə-

Important derivatives are: *rare*², uproar, crater.

To mix, confuse, cook.

15. Variant form krā-* (< kraə-*).
 - a. RARE², from Old English hrēr, lightly boiled, half-cooked, possibly from kerə-;
 - b. UPROAR, from Middle Low German rōr, motion. Both a and b from Germanic hrōr-*.
16. Zero-grade form kꝛə-*.
 - a. suffixed form kꝛə-ti-*. IDIOSYNCRACY; DYSCRASIA, from Greek krasis, a mixing;
 - b. suffixed form kꝛə-ter-*. CRATER, from Greek kratēr, mixing vessel.

[Pokorny ĵkerǝ- 582.]

kerp-

Important derivatives are: harvest, carpet, excerpt, scarce.

To gather, pluck, harvest.

Variant karp-*.

3. HARVEST, from Old English hærfest, harvest, from Germanic harbistaz*.
4. CARPET; EXCERPT, (SCARCE), from Latin carpere, to pluck.
5. -CARP, CARPEL, CARPO-, -CARPOUS, from Greek karpos, fruit.

[In Pokorny 4. sker- 938.]

kers-

Important derivatives are: corridor, courier, course, current, cursive, cursor, concur, discourse, excursion, incur, intercourse, occur, recur, car, career, cargo, carry, charge, carpenter.

To run.

Zero-grade form kʷs-*.

10. CORRAL, CORRIDA, CORRIDOR, (CORSAIR), COURANTE, COURIER, COURSE, CURRENT, CURSIVE, CURSOR, CURULE; CONCOURSE, CONCUR, DECURRENT, DISCOURSE, EXCURSION, (HUSSAR), INCUR, INTERCOURSE, OCCUR, PERCURRENT, PRECURSOR, RECOURSE, RECUR, SUCCOR, from Latin currere, to run.
11. Suffixed form kʷs-o-*.
 - a. CAR, CAREER, CARGO, CARICATURE, CARIOLE, (CARK), CAROCHE, (CARRY), CHARGE, CHARIOT; (DISCHARGE), from Latin carrus, a two-wheeled wagon;
 - b. CARPENTER, from Latin carpentum, a two-wheeled carriage. Both a and b from Gaulish carros, a wagon, cart.

[Pokorny 2. kers- 583.]

kes-

Important derivatives are: castrate, castle, caste, chaste, incest, cashier.

To cut.

Variant kas-*.

6. Suffixed form kas-tro-*.
 - a. CASTRATE, from Latin castrāre, to castrate;
 - b. ALCAZAR, CASTLE, from Latin castrum, fortified place, camp (perhaps “separated place”).
7. Suffixed form kas-to-*. CASTE, CHASTE; CASTIGATE, INCEST, from Latin castus, chaste, pure (
8. Suffixed (stative) form kas-ē-*. CARET, from Latin carēre, “to be cut off from,” lack.
9. Extended geminated form kasso-*. (CASHIER), QUASH¹, from Latin cassus, empty, void.

[Pokorny kes- 586.]

keu-

Important derivatives are: hear, acoustic, show, scavenger, sheen.

Also əkeu-To perceive, see, hear. O-grade form əkou-*.

8. Extended form kous-*.
 - i. HEAR, from Old English hīeran, to hear;
 - ii. HEARKEN, from Old English he(o)rcnian, to harken. Both (i) and (ii) from Germanic hausjan*;
 - b. suffixed form əkous-yo-*. ACOUSTIC, from Greek akouein, to hear.
9. Variant skou-*.
 - i. SHOW, from Old English scēawian, to look at;

- ii. SCAVENGER, from Flemish scauwen, to look at;
 - iii. WELTANSCHAUUNG, from Old High German scouwōn, to look at. (i), (ii), and (iii) all from Germanic skauwōn*;
- b. SCONE, from Middle Dutch schoon, beautiful, bright (< “conspicuous, attractive”);
 - c. SHEEN, from Old English sciene, bright, sheen, from Germanic skauniz*.

[Pokorny 1. keu- 587.]

keuə-

Important derivatives are: cave, cavern, concave, excavate, cumulus, accumulate, church.

To swell; vault, hole.

I. O-grade form kouə-*.

1. Basic form kouə-* becoming kaw-*. CAVE, CAVERN, CAVETTO, CAVITY; CONCAVE, EXCAVATE, from Latin cavus, hollow.
2. Suffixed form kow-ilo-*.(-CELE²), CELIAC, -COEL, COELOM, from Greek koilos, hollow.
3. Suffixed lengthened-grade form kōw-o-*. CODEINE, from Greek kōos, hollow place, cavity.

II. Zero-grade form kū-* (< kuə-*).

1. Suffixed shortened form ku-m-olo*. CUMULATE, CUMULUS; ACCUMULATE, from Latin cumulus, heap, mass.
2. Basic form kū-*.
 - a. suffixed form kū-ro-*, “swollen,” strong, powerful. CHURCH, (KIRK), KYRIE, from Greek kurios (vocative kurie), master, lord;
 - b. suffixed form kuw-eyo-*. CYMA; PSEUDOCYESIS, from Greek kuein, to swell, and derivative kuma (< kū-mṅ*), “a swelling,” wave;

- c. suffixed form en-kū-yo-* (en*, in; see en-). ENCEINTE¹; from Latin inciēns, pregnant.

[Pokorny 1. keu- 592.]

klei-

Important derivatives are: decline, incline, recline, proclivity, lid, *lean*¹, client, clinic, climax, climate, ladder.

To lean.

I. Full-grade form klei-*.

1. Suffixed form klei-n-*. DECLINE, INCLINE, RECLINE, from Latin -clīnāre, to lean, bend.
2. Suffixed form klei-tro-*. CLITELLUM, from Latin clītellae, packsaddle, from diminutive of clītra*, litter.
3. Suffixed form klei-wo-*. ACCLIVITY, DECLIVITY, PROCLIVITY, from Latin clīvus, a slope.
4. Suffixed form klei-tor-*, “incline, hill.” CLITORIS, from Greek feminine diminutive kleitoris.

II. Zero grade form kli-*.

1. LID, from Old English hlid, cover, from Germanic hlid-*, “that which bends over,” cover.
2. Suffixed form kli-n-*. LEAN¹, from Old English hlinian and hleonian, to lean, from Germanic hlinēn*.
3. Suffixed form kli-ent-*. CLIENT, from Latin cliēns, dependent, follower.
4. Suffixed form kli-to-*. (see ous-) Latin auscultāre, “to hold one's ear inclined,” to listen to, from aus-klit-ā-*.
5. Suffixed form kli-n-yo-*. -CLINAL, CLINE, (-CLINE), (-CLINIC), CLINO-; ACLINIC LINE, ANACLISIS, CLINANDRIUM, ENCLITIC, MATRICLINOUS, PATROCLINOUS, PERICLINE, (PROCLITIC), from Greek klīnein, to lean.
6. Lengthened form klī-*.

- a. suffixed form klī-n-ā*. CLINIC; DICLINOUS, MONOCLINOUS, TRICLINIUM, from Greek klinē, bed;
- b. suffixed form klī-m-*. CLIMAX, from Greek klímax, ladder;
- c. suffixed form klī-mḡ*. CLIMATE, from Greek klíma, sloping surface of the earth.

III. Suffixed o-grade form kloi-tr-*. LADDER, from Old English hlǣd(d)er, ladder, from Germanic hlaidri-*.

[Pokorny klei- 600.]

kleu-

Important derivatives are: leer, listen, loud.

To hear.

III. Extended form kleus-*. LEER, from Old English hlēor, cheek (< “ear”), from Germanic hleuza-*.

IV. Zero-grade form klu-*.

1. LIST⁴, from Old English hlystan, to listen, from Germanic hlustjan*.
2. LISTEN, from Old English hlysnan, to listen, from Germanic hlusinōn*.
3. Suffixed lengthened form klū-to-*.
 - a. LOUD, from Old English hlūd, loud;
 - b. ABLAUT, UMLAUT, from Old High German hlūt, sound.
Both a and b from Germanic hlūdaz*, “heard,” loud.

V. Full-grade form kleu-*.

1. Suffixed form klew-yo-*. CLIO, from Greek kleiein, to praise, tell.
2. Suffixed form klew-es-*. HERCULES, from Latin Herculēs, from Greek Hēraklēs, Hēraклeēs.
3. Suffixed form kleu-to-*. SAROD, from Old Iranian srauta-.

ko-

Important derivatives are: *he*¹, him, his, her, it, here, hence, et cetera.

Stem of demonstrative pronoun meaning “this.”

I. Variant form ki-*.

- a. HE¹, from Old English hē, he;
 - b. HIM, from Old English him, him (dative of hē);
 - c. HIS, from Old English his, his (genitive of hē);
 - d. HER, from Old English hire, her (dative and genitive of heo, she);
 - e. IT, from Old English hit, it (neuter of hē);
 - f. HERE, from Old English hēr, here;
 - g. HENCE, from Old English heonane, heonon, from here. a, b, c, d, e, f, and g all from Germanic hi-*,
2. Suffixed form ki-tro-*. HITHER, from Old English hider, hither, from Germanic hi-thra-*.
 3. Suffixed form ki-s*. CIS-, from Latin cis, on this side of.

II. Variant form ke-*.

1. Preposed in ke-etero-* (e-tero-*, a second time, again; see i-). ET CETERA, from Latin cēterus (neuter plural cētera), the other part, that which remains.
2. (see nu-) Postposed in Latin -ce.
3. BEHIND, HIND¹, from Old English behindan, in the rear, behind (bi, at; see ambhi).
4. HINTERLAND, from Old High German hintar, behind.
5. HINDER¹, from Old English hindrian, to check, hinder, from Germanic derivative verb hindrōn*, to keep back. 1, 2, and 3 all from Germanic root hind-*, behind, attributed by some to this root (but more likely of obscure origin).

[Pokorny 1. ko- 609.]

kō-

An important derivative is: cone.

To sharpen, whet.

Contracted from koǝ-*.

2. Suffixed extended form koǝi-no-*. HONE¹, from Old English hān, stone, from Germanic hainō*.
3. CONE, CONIC; CONIFER, CONODONT, from Greek kōnos, cone, conical object (kō-).

[Pokorny kēi- 541.]

kob-

Important derivatives are: happen, happy, hapless, mishap.

To suit, fit, succeed.

HAP, (HAPPEN), (HAPPY); (HAPLESS), (MISHAP), from Old Norse happ, chance, good luck, from Germanic hap-*.

[Pokorny kob- 610.]

kom

Important derivatives are: enough, co-, contra-, contrary, *counter*¹, country, encouter.

Beside, near, by, with.

6. ENOUGH, GEMOT, HANDIWORK, YCLEPT; WITENAGEMOT, from Old English ge-, with, also participial, collective, and intensive prefix, from Germanic ga-*, together, with (collective and intensive prefix and marker of the past participle).
7. CUM; COONCAN, from Latin cum, co-, with.
8. (CO-), COM-, from Old Latin com, with (collective and intensive prefix).

9. (see merg-) British Celtic kombrogos*, fellow countryman, from Celtic kom-*, collective prefix.
10. Suffixed form kom-trā*. (CON¹), CONTRA-, CONTRARY, (COUNTER¹), COUNTER-, COUNTRY; ENCOUNTER, from Latin contrā, against, opposite.
11. Suffixed form kom-yo-*. COENO-; CENOBITE, EPICENE, KOINE, from Greek koinos, common, shared.
12. Reduced form ko-* (see gher-¹, mei-¹, smei-).

[Pokorny kom 612.]

konk-

Important derivatives are: hang, hinge.

To hang.

- a. HANG, from Old English hōn, to hang;
 - b. HANKER, from Dutch (dialectal) hankeren, to long for;
 - c. HINGE, from Middle English he(e)ng, hinge, hinge, possibly related (ultimately from the base of Old English hangian, to hang). a, b, and c all from Germanic hanhan* (transitive), hangēn (intransitive), hang.
1. Suffixed form konk-t-ā-*. CUNCTATION, from Latin cūnctārī, to delay.

[Pokorny kenk- 566, konk- 614.]

koro-

Important derivatives are: harbor, harbinger, herald, harry, harangue.

War; also war-band, host, army.

4. HERIOT, from Old English here, army.
5. ARRIÈRE-BAN, from Old French herban, a summoning to military service (ban, proclamation, summons; see bhā-²).

- a. HARBOR, from Old English herebeorg, lodging;
 - b. HARBINGER, from Old French herberge, lodging. Both a and b from Germanic compound harja-bergaz*, “army hill,” hill-fort, later shelter, lodging, army quarters (bergaz*, hill; see bhergh-²).
6. HERALD, from Anglo-Norman herald, from Germanic compound harja-waldaz*, “army commander” (wald-*, rule, power; see wal-).
 7. HARNESS, from Old French harneis, harness, from Germanic compound harja-nestam*, “army provisions” (nestam*, food for a journey; see nes-¹). 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5 all from Germanic harjaz*, army.

III. HARRY, from Old English hergian, to ravage, plunder, raid, from Germanic denominative harjōn*.

IV. HARANGUE, from Old Italian aringo, arringa, public square, from Germanic compound harihring*, assembly, “host-ring” (hringaz*, ring; see sker-²).

[Pokorny koro-s 615.]

kost-

Important derivatives are: coast, cutlet, accost.

Bone.

Probably related to ost-. COAST, COSTA, COSTARD, COSTREL, CUESTA, CUTLET; ACCOST, INTERCOSTAL, STERNOCOSTAL, from Latin costa, rib, side.

[Pokorny kost- 616.]

krei-

Important derivatives are: riddle¹, garble, crime, criminal, discriminate, certain, concern, decree, discern, excrement, secret, crisis, critic, hypocrisy.

To sieve, discriminate, distinguish.

4. Basic form with variant instrumental suffixes.

- a. suffixed form krei-tro-. RIDDLE¹, from Old English hridder, hriddel, sieve, from Germanic hridra-, a sieve;

- b. suffixed form krei-dhro-*. CRIBRIFORM, GARBLE, from Latin crībrum, a sieve.
5. Suffixed form krei-men-*.
- a. CRIME, (CRIMINAL); RECRIMINATE, from Latin crīmen, judgment, crime;
 - b. DISCRIMINATE, from Latin discrīmen, distinction (dis-, apart).
6. Suffixed zero-grade form kri-no-* (participial form kri-to-*). CERTAIN; CONCERN, DECREE, DISCERN, (EXCREMENT), EXCRETE, (INCERTITUDE), RECREMENT, SECERN, SECRET, from Latin cernere (perfect crēvī; past participle crētus), to sift, separate, decide.
7. Suffixed zero-grade form kri-n-yo-*. CRISIS, CRITIC, CRITERION; APOCRINE, DIACRITIC, ECCRINE, ENDOCRINE, EPICRITIC, EXOCRINE, HEMATOCRIT, HYPOCRISY, from Greek krinein, to separate, decide, judge (krinesthai, to explain).

[Pokorny 4. sker-, Section II. 945.]

kreuə-

Important derivatives are: raw, pancreas, crude, cruel.

Raw flesh.

1. Lengthened-grade form krēw-*. RAW, from Old English hrēaw, raw, from Germanic hrēwaz*.
2. Suffixed form krewə-s-*. CREATINE, CREODONT, CREOSOTE, PANCREAS, from Greek kreas, flesh.
3. Suffixed zero-grade form krū-do-* (< kruə-do-*).
 - a. CRUDE; ECRU, RECRUDESCE, from Latin crūdus, bloody, raw;
 - b. CRUEL, from Latin crūdēlis, cruel.

[Pokorny 1. A. kreu- 621.]

kreus-

Important derivatives are: crust, crustacean, crystal.

To begin to freeze, form a crust.

3. Suffixed zero-grade form krus-to-*.
 - a. CROUTON, CRUST, CRUSTACEAN, CRUSTACEOUS, CRUSTOSE; ENCRUST, from Latin crusta, crust;
 - b. CRYSTAL, CRYSTALLINE, CRYSTALLO-, from Greek krustallos, ice, crystal.
4. Suffixed zero-grade form krus-es-*. CRYO-, from Greek kruos, icy cold, frost.
5. Suffixed zero-grade form krus-mo-*. CRYMOTHERAPY, from Greek krumos, icy cold, frost.

[Pokorny 1. B. kreu- 621.]

ksun

Important derivatives are: syn-, sputnik.

Preposition and preverb meaning “with.”

3. SYN-, from Greek sun, xun, together, with.
4. Basic form su(n)-*.
 - a. SOVIET, from Old Russian compound sŭvětŭ, assembly, from sŭ(n)-, with, together;
 - b. SPUTNIK, from Russian sputnik, fellow traveler, sputnik (see pent-), from so-, s-, with, together, from sŭ(n).

[In Pokorny 2. sem- 902.]

k^we

Derivatives are: sesqui-, ubiquity.

And (enclitic).

SESQUI-, UBIQUITY, from Latin -que, and.

[Pokorny k^we 635.]

k^wei-¹

Important derivatives are: pain, penalty, punish, impunity, subpoena.
To pay, atone, compensate.

Suffixed o- grade form k^woi-nā*. PAIN, PENAL, (PENALTY), PINE², PUNISH; IMPUNITY, PENOLOGY, (PUNITORY), (REPINE), SUBPOENA, from Greek poinë, fine, penalty.

[Pokorny k^wei-(t-) 636.]

k^wei-²

Important derivatives are: cheetah, poem, poet.
To pile up, build, make.

O-grade form k^woi-*.

- a. CHEETAH, from Sanskrit kāyaḥ, body;
- b. suffixed form k^woi-wo-, making, in denominative verb k^woiw-eyo-. POEM, POESY, POET, POETIC, -POESIS, -POIETIC; EPOPEE, MYTHOPOEIC, ONOMATOPOEIA, PHARMACOPOEIA, PROSOPOEIA, from Greek poiein, to make, create.

[Pokorny 2. k^wei- 637.]

k^weiə-

Important derivatives are: while, tranquil, coy, quiet, acquiesce.
To rest, be quiet.

I. Suffixed zero-grade variant form k^wī-lo-* (< k^wīə-lo-*).

- a. WHILE, from Old English hwīl, while;
- b. WHILOM, from Old English hwīlum, sometimes. Both a and b from Germanic hwīlō*.

2. TRANQUIL, from Latin tranquillus, tranquil (trāns, across, beyond; see terə-²), possibly from k^weiə-.

II. Variant form k^wyē-* (< k^wyeə-*). COY, QUIET; ACQUIESCE, REQUIEM, REQUIESCAT, from Latin quiēs, quiet, requiēs, rest, and requiēscere, to rest.

kweit-

Important derivatives are: white, wheat..

White; to shine.

5. Suffixed form kweit-o-*.
 - a. WHITE, from Old English hwīt, white;
 - b. WITLOOF, from Middle Dutch wit, white;
 - c. WHITING², from Middle Dutch wijting, whitening;
 - d. EDELWEISS, from Old High German hwīz, wīz, white. a, b, c, and d all from Germanic hwītaz*.
6. Suffixed o-grade form kwoit-yo-*. WHEAT, from Old English hwāete, wheat (from the fine white flour it yields), from Germanic hwaitjaz*.

k^wel-¹

Important derivatives are: colony, cult, cultivate, culture, wheel, cycle, cyclone, bicycle, collar, pole¹, pulley, bucolic.

To revolve, move around, sojourn, dwell.

- I. Basic form k^wel-*. COLONY, CULT, CULTIVATE, (CULTURE); INCULT, INQUILINE, SILVICOLOUS, from Latin colere, to till, cultivate, inhabit.
- II. Suffixed form k^wel-es-*. TELIC, (TELIUM), TELO-; ENTELECHY, TALISMAN, TELEOLOGY, (TELEOST), TELEUTOSPORE, from Greek telos, “completion of a cycle,” consummation, perfection, end, result.
- III. Suffixed reduplicated form k^w(e)-k^wl-o-*, circle.
 1. WHEEL, from Old English hwēol, hweogol, wheel, from Germanic hwewlaz*.
 2. CYCLE, CYCLO-, CYCLOID, CYCLONE, CYCLOSIS; (BICYCLE), ENCYCLICAL, EPICYCLE, from Greek kuklos, circle, wheel.

3. CHAKRA, CHUKKER, from Sanskrit cakram, circle, wheel.
4. Metathesized form k^we-lk^w-o-. CHARKHA, from Old Persian carka-.

IV. O-grade form k^wol-*.

1. Suffixed form k^wol-so-*, “that on which the head turns,” neck.
 - i. HAWSE, from Old Norse hāls, neck, ship's bow;
 - ii. RINGHALS, from Middle Dutch hals, neck;
 - iii. HAUBERK, from Old French hauberc, hauberk, from Germanic compound h(w)als-berg-, “neck-protector,” gorget (bergan, to protect; see bergh-¹). (i), (ii), and (iii) all from Germanic h(w)alsaz*;
 - b. COL, COLLAR, COLLET, CULLET; ACCOLADE, DECOLLATE¹, DÉCOLLETÈ, MACHICOLATE, (MACHICOLATION), TORTICOLLIS, from Latin collum, neck.
2. Suffixed form k^wol-ā-*. -COLOUS; PRATINCOLE, from Latin -cola and incola, inhabitant (in-, in; see en).
3. Suffixed form k^wol-o-*.
 - a. ANCILLARY, from Latin anculus, “he who bustles about,” servant (an-, short for ambi-, around, about; see ambhi);
 - b. POLE¹, PULLEY, from Greek polos, axis of a sphere;
 - c. BUCOLIC, from Greek boukolos, cowherd, from -kolos, herdsman.
4. Suffixed form kwol-es-* (probably a blend of o-grade k^wol-o-* and expected e-grade k^wel-es-*). CALASH, KOLACKY, from Slavic kolo, koles-, wheel.
5. Suffixed o-grade form k^wol-eno-. (see wes-³) Old Iranian vahā-carana-, “sale-traffic,” from carana-*, trade, traffic.
6. Suffixed zero-grade form k^wl̥-i-*. PALIMPSEST, PALINDROME, PALINGENESIS, PALINODE, from Greek palin, again (< “revolving”).

[Pokorny 1. k^wel- 639.]

k^wel-²

Derivatives are: tele-, paleo-.

Far (in space and time).

7. Lengthened-grade form k^wēl-*. TELE-, from Greek tēle, far off.
8. Suffixed zero-grade form k^wl̥-ai*. PALEO-, from Greek palai, long ago.

[Pokorny 2. k^wel- 640.]

k^went(h)-

Important derivatives are: pathetic, pathos, sympathy.

To suffer.

1. Suffixed form k^wenth-es-*. NEPENTHE, from Greek penthos, grief.
2. Zero-grade form k^wŋth-*. PATHETIC, PATHO-, PATHOS, -PATHY; APATHY, (PATHOGNOMONIC), SYMPATHY, from Greek pathos, suffering, passion, emotion, feelings.

[Pokorny k^wenth- 641.]

k^wer-

An important derivative is: karma.

To make.

1. SANSKRIT, from Sanskrit karoti, he makes.
2. Suffixed form k^wer-ōr* with dissimilated form k^wel-ōr*. PELORIA, from Greek pelōr, monster (perhaps “that which does harm”).
3. Suffixed form k^wer-əs-*. TERA-; (TERATOCARCINOMA), TERATOGEN, TERATOID, TERATOMA, from Greek teras, monster.
4. Suffixed form k^wer-mŋ*. KARMA, from Sanskrit karma, act, deed.

[Pokorny k^wer- 641.]

kwes-

Important derivatives are: wheeze, *quarrel*¹, querulous, cyst.

To pant, wheeze.

1. WHEEZE, from Old Norse hvæsa, to hiss, from Germanic hwēsjan*.
2. QUARREL¹, QUERULOUS, from Latin querī, to complain.
3. Suffixed zero-grade form kus-ti-*. CYST, CYSTO-, from Greek kustis, bladder, bag (< “bellows”).

[Pokorny kwēs- 631.]

kwēt-

Important derivatives are: *squash*², discuss, rescue.

To shake.

Zero-grade form kwāt-, becoming kwat-.

- a. CASCARA, SCUTCH, SQUASH²; CONCUSS, DISCUSS, PERCUSS, RESCUE, SUCCUSSION, from Latin quatere (past participle quassus, in composition -cussus), to shake, strike;
- b. PASTE¹, from Greek passein, to sprinkle.

[Pokorny kwēt- 632.]

k^wetwer-

Important derivatives are: four, forty, fourteen, quatrain, squad, square, quadrant, quadrant, quarantine, tetra-, trapezium, fourth, farthing, quart, quarter.

Four.

I. O-grade form k^wetwor-*.

- a. FOUR, from Old English fēower, four;
- b. FORTY, from Old English fēowertig, forty;
- c. FOURTEEN, from Old English fēowertēne, fourteen (-tēne, ten; see dekṃ). a, b, and c all from Germanic fe(d)wor-, probably from k^wetwor-.

2. QUATRAIN; CATER-CORNERED, QUATTROCENTO, from Latin quattuor, four.
3. CZARDAS, from Old Iranian cathwārō, four.

II. Multiplicatives k^weturs*, k^wetrus*, and combining forms k^wetur-, k^wetru-.

1. CAHIER, (CARILLON), (CARNET), QUATERNARY, QUATERNION, QUIRE¹, from Latin quater, four times.
2. CADRE, QUADRATE, QUADRILLE¹, QUARREL², QUARRY²; (SQUAD), SQUARE, TROCAR, from Latin quadrum, square.
3. QUADRI-, from Latin quadri-, four.
4. QUADRANT, from Latin quadrāns, a fourth part.
5. QUARANTINE, from Latin quadrāgintā, forty (-gintā, ten times; see dekṃ).
6. Variant form k^wet(w)ṛ-*.
 - a. TETRA-, from Greek tetra-, four;
 - b. TESSERA; DIATESSARON, from Greek tessares, tettares (genitive tessarōn), four;
 - c. TETRAD, from Greek tetras, group of four;
 - d. zero-grade form k^wt(w)ṛ-*. TRAPEZIUM, from Greek tra-, four.

III. Ordinal adjective k^wetur-to-*.

- a. FOURTH, from Old English fēorþa, fēowerþa, fourth;
 - b. FIRKIN, from Middle Dutch veerde, fourth;
 - c. FARTHING, from Old English fēorþing, fēorþung, fourth part of a penny. a, b, and c all from Germanic fe(d)worthōn-*.
2. QUADRILLE², QUADROON, QUART, QUARTAN, QUARTER, QUARTO, from Latin quārtus, fourth, quarter.

k^wo-

Important derivatives are: who, what, why, which, how, when, where, whether, neither, either, quorum, quip, quasi, quote, quotient, quantity, quality, neuter, alibi.

Also k^wi-Stem of relative and interrogative pronouns.

- a. WHO, WHOSE, WHOM, from Old English hwā, hwæs, hwāem, who, whose, whom, from Germanic personal pronouns hwas, *hwasa, hwam;
- b. WHAT, from Old English hwæt, what, from Germanic pronoun hwat*;
- c. WHY, from Old English hwȳ, why, from Germanic adverb hwī*;
- d. WHICH, from Old English hwilc, hwelc, which, from Germanic relative pronoun hwa-līk-* (līk-*, body, form; see līk-);
- e. HOW, from Old English hū, how, from Germanic adverb hwō*;
 - i. WHEN, from Old English hwenne, hwanne, when;
 - ii. WHENCE, from Old English hwanon, whence. Both (i) and (ii) from Germanic adverb hwan-*;
- f. WHITHER, from Old English hwider, whither, from Germanic adverb hwithrē*;
- g. WHERE, from Old English hwær, where, from Germanic adverb hwar-. a, b, c, d, e, f, g, and h all from Germanic hwa-, hwi-*.
- h. WHETHER; NEITHER, from Old English hwæther, hwether, which of two, whether;
- i. EITHER, from Old English āghwæther, æther, either, from Germanic phrase aiwo gihwatharaz*, “ever each of two” (aiwo, aiwi, ever; see aiw-; gi-* from ga-, collective prefix; see kom). Both a and b from Germanic hwatharaz.

1. QUA, QUIBBLE, QUORUM, from Latin quī (genitive plural quōrum), who.
2. HIDALGO, QUIDDITY, QUIDNUNC, QUIP, from Latin quid, what, something.
3. QUASI, from Latin quasi, as if (quam + sī, if; see SWO-), from quam, as, than, how.
4. QUODLIBET, from Latin quod, what.
5. QUOTE, QUOTIDIAN, QUOTIENT; ALIQUOT, from Latin quot, how many.
6. QUONDAM, from Latin quom, when.
7. COONCAN, from Latin quem, whom.
8. QUANTITY, from Latin quantus, how great.
9. QUALITY, from Latin quālis, of what kind.
10. CUE², from Latin quandō, when (from k^wām* + -dō, to, til; see de-).
11. NEUTER, from Latin uter, either of two.
12. ALIBI, UBIQUITY, from Latin ubi, where, and ibi, there.
13. CHEESE³, from Old Persian ciš-ciy*, something (< k^wid-k^wid*).

[Pokorny k^wo- 644.]

kwon-

Important derivatives are: cynic, hound, dachshund, canary, canine, *kennel*¹.
Dog.

1. CYNIC; CYNOSURE, PROCYON, QUINSY, from Greek kuōn, dog.
2. Suffixed zero-grade form kwn̥-to-*.
 - a. HOUND, from Old English hund, dog;
 - b. DACHSHUND, from Old High German hunt, dog;

- c. KEESHOND, from Middle Dutch hond, dog. a, b, and c all from Germanic hundaz*.
3. Nominative form kwō*. CORGI, from Welsh ci, dog.
4. Variant kan-i-*. CANAILLE, CANARY, CANICULAR, CANINE, CHENILLE, KENNEL¹, from Latin canis, dog.

[Pokorny kuon- 632.]

k^wrep-

Important derivatives are: midriff, *corporal*¹, corporate, corporeal, corps, corpse, corpuscle, corsage, corset, leprechaun.

Body.

1. Suffixed form k^wrep-es-*. MIDRIF, from Old English hrif, belly from Germanic hrefiz-*.
2. Suffixed zero-grade form k^wrp-es-*. CORPORAL¹, CORPORAL³, CORPORATE, CORPOREAL, CORPOSANT, CORPS, CORPSE, CORPULENCE, CORPUS, CORPUSCLE, CORSAGE, CORSE, CORSET; LEPRECHAUN, from Latin corpus, body, substance.

[Pokorny 1. krep- 620.]

k^wṛmi-

An important derivative is: crimson.

Worm.

Rhyme word to wṛmi-*, worm (see wer-²). (CRIMSON), KERMES, from Arabic qirmiz, kermes, borrowed from Sanskrit compound kṛmi-ja-, “(red dye) produced by worms” (ja-, produced; see genə-), from kṛmi-, worm.

[Pokorny k^wṛmi- 649.]

laks-

A derivative is: *lox*¹.

Salmon.

Suffixed form laks-o-*.

- a. LOX¹, from Old High German lahs, salmon;
- b. GRAVLAX, from Swedish lax, salmon. Both a and b from Germanic lahsaz*.

[Pokorny lak- 653.]

las-

Important derivatives are: lust, wanderlust, lascivious.

To be eager, wanton, or unruly.

- a. LUST, from Old English lust, lust;
 - b. WANDERLUST, from Old High German lust, desire;
 - c. LIST⁵, from Old English lystan, to please, satisfy a desire, from Germanic denominative verb lustjan*. a, b, and c all from suffixed Germanic zero-grade form lustuz*.
18. Suffixed form las-ko-*. LASCIVIOUS, from Latin lascīvus, wanton, lustful.

[Pokorny las- 654.]

lau-

An important derivative is: lucrative.

Gain, profit.

16. Suffixed form lau-no-*. GUERDON, from Old High German lōn, reward from Germanic launam*.
17. Suffixed zero-grade form lu-tlo-*. LUCRATIVE, LUCRE, from Latin lucrum, gain, profit.

[Pokorny lāu- 655.]

lē-

Important derivatives are: *let*¹, liege, late, latter, *last*¹, alas, lenient.

To let go, slacken. Contracted from leǝ-*.

- V. Extended form lēd-*.

- a. LET¹, from Old English lætan, to allow, leave undone, from Germanic lētan*;
 - b. LIEGE, from Late Latin laetus, semifree colonist, from Germanic derivative lēthigaz*, freed.
2. Zero-grade form lād-*.
- a. LATE, LATTER, LAST¹, from Old English læt, late, with its comparative lætra, latter, and its superlative latost, last, from Germanic lataz*;
 - b. LET², from Old English lettan, to hinder, impede (latjan*);
 - c. suffixed form lād-to-*. LASSITUDE; ALAS, from Latin lassus, tired, weary.

VI. Suffixed basic form lē-ni-*. LENIENT, LENIS, LENITIVE, LENITY, from Latin lēnis, soft, gentle.

[Pokorny 3. lē(i)- 666.]

leb-

Important derivatives are: lip, labial.

Lip.

27. LIP, from Old English lippa, lip, from Germanic lep-*.

28. Variant form lab-*.

- a. suffixed form lab-yo-*. LABIAL, LABIUM, from Latin labium, lip;
- b. suffixed form lab-ro-*. LABELLUM, LABRET, LABRUM, from Latin labrum, lip.

[Pokorny lēb- 655.]

leg-

Important derivatives are: *leech*¹, lectern, lecture, legend, legible, legion, lesson, *coil*¹, *collect*¹, diligent, elect, intelligent, neglect, sacrilege, select, lexicon, catalog, dialect, dialogue, eclectic, legal, legitimate, loyal, legislator, privilege, legacy, allege, colleague, delegate, relegate, logic, analogous, apology, epilogue, logarithm, prologue, syllogism.

To collect; with derivatives meaning “to speak.”

11. LEECH¹, from Old English lāce, physician, from Germanic lēkjaz*, enchanter, one who speaks magic words, perhaps from leg-.
12. LECTERN, (LECTION), LECTURE, LEGEND, LEGIBLE, LEGION, LESSON; (COIL¹), COLLECT¹, DILIGENT, ELECT, INTELLIGENT, NEGLECT, PRELECT, SACRILEGE, SELECT, SORTILEGE, from Latin legere, to gather, choose, pluck, read.
13. LEXICON, LOGION, -LOGUE, -LOGY; ALEXIA, ANALECTS, ANTHOLOGY, CATALOG, DIALECT, (DIALOGUE), DYSLEXIA, ECLECTIC, HOROLOGE, PROLEGOMENON, from Greek legein, to gather, speak, with logos, speech (see 6).
14. Suffixed form leg-no-*. LIGNEOUS, LIGNI-, from Latin lignum, wood, firewood (
15. Possibly lengthened-grade form lēg-*.
 - a. LEGAL, LEGIST, LEGITIMATE, LEX, LOYAL; LEGISLATOR, PRIVILEGE, from Latin lēx, law (?)
 - b. LEGACY, LEGATE; COLLEAGUE, (COLLEGIAL), DELEGATE, RELEGATE, from Latin denominative lēgāre, to depute, commission, charge (leg-).
16. Suffixed o-grade form log-o-*. LOGIC, LOGISTIC, LOGO-, LOGOS, -LOGY; ANALOGOUS, APOLOGUE, APOLOGY, DECALOGUE, EPILOGUE, HOMOLOGOUS, LOGARITHM, PARALOGISM, PROLOGUE, SYLLOGISM, from Greek logos, speech, word, reason.

[Pokorny leǵ- 658.]

leg-

Important derivatives are: *lie*¹, *lay*¹, ledge, ledger, lair, beleaguer, lees, *low*¹, litter, law, fellow, outlaw.

To lie, lay.

25. Suffixed form leg-yo-*.
 - a. LIE¹, from Old English licgan, to lie, from Germanic LIGJAN*;

- i. LAY¹, LEDGE, (LEDGER), from Old English lecgan, to lay;
- ii. BELAY, from Old English belecgan, to cover, surround (be-, over; see ambhi). Both (i) and (ii) from Germanic lagjan*.

26. Suffixed form legh-ro-*.

- a. LAIR, from Old English leger, lair;
- b. LEAGUER¹; BELEAGUER, from Middle Dutch leger, lair, camp;
- c. LAAGER, LAGER; (STALAG), from Old High German legar, bed, lair. a, b, and c all from Germanic legraz*.

27. LEES, from Medieval Latin lia, sediment, from Celtic leg-yā-*.

28. Lengthened-grade form lēgh-*. LOW¹, from Old Norse lāgr, low, from Germanic lēgaz*, “lying flat,” low.

29. Suffixed form legh-to-*. COVERLET, LITTER; WAGON-LIT, from Latin lectus, bed.

30. Suffixed o-grade form logh-o-*.

- a. LAW; BYLAW, (DANELAW), from Old Norse lagu*, lag-, law, “that which is set down”;
- b. FELLOW, from Old Norse lag, a laying down;
- c. OUTLAW, from Old Norse lʰg, law;
- d. ANLAGE, VORLAGE, from Old High German lāga, act of laying. a, b, c, and d all from Germanic lagam*.

31. LAGAN, from Old Norse lʰgn, dragnet (lag-inō-*).

32. Suffixed o-grade form logh-o-*. LOCHIA, from Greek lokhos, childbirth, place for lying in wait.

[Pokorny legh- 658, 2. lēgh- 660.]

leg^wh-

Important derivatives are: *light*², leaven, lever, levity, alleviate, carnival, elevate, relieve, leprechaun, lung.

Light, having little weight.

14. Suffixed form leg^wh-t-*.
 - a. LIGHT², from Old English līht, lēoht, light;
 - b. LIGHTER², from Old English līhtan, to lighten. Both a and b from Germanic līht(j)az*.
15. Suffixed form leg^wh-u-i-*. LEAVEN, LEVER, LEVITY; ALLEVIATE, CARNIVAL, ELEVATE, LEGERDEMAIN, (MEZZO-RELIEVO), RELIEVE, from Latin levis, light, with its derivative levāre, to lighten, raise.
16. Variant form lag^wh-*. LEPRECHAUN, from Old Irish lū-, small.
17. Nasalized form l(e)ng^wh-*. LUNG, from Old English lungen, lungs (from their lightness), from Germanic lung-*.
18. (see lei-) Latin oblīvīscī, to forget, attributed by some to this root, is more likely from lei-.

[Pokorny leg^wh- 660.]

lei-

Important derivatives are: slime, slippery, slick, loam, slight, *slip*¹, oblivion, liniment. Also slei-Slimy.

- a. SLIME, from Old English sīm, slime;
- b. SLIPPERY, from Old English slipor, slippery;
- c. SLICK, from Old English slice*, smooth;
- d. LIME³, from Old English līm, cement, birdlime;
- e. LOAM, from Old English lām, loam;
- f. SLIGHT, from Middle English slight, slender, probably from a Scandinavian source akin to Old Norse slētrr, smooth, sleek;
- g. SLIP¹, from Middle English slippen, to slip, probably from a source akin to Middle Dutch and Middle Low German slippen, to slip, slip away;

- h. SCHLEP, from Middle Low German slēpen, to drag. a, b, c, d, e, f, g, and h all from Germanic slī-* with various extensions.
3. Suffixed form lei-mo-*. LIMACINE, LIMICOLINE, from Latin līmus, slime.
 4. Suffixed form lei-w-*. OBLIVION, OUBLIETTE, from Latin oblīvīscī, to forget (ob-, away; see epi).
 5. Extended form (s)leiə-, with metathesis (s)leə(i)-.
 - a. Zero-grade form with nasal infix li-n-ə-*. LINIMENT, from Latin linere (perfect lēvī), to anoint;
 - b. suffixed zero-grade form lī-* (< liə-*). LITOTES, from Greek litos, plain, simple;
 - c. suffixed metathesized form leə-wo-, whence lē-wo-. LEVIGATE, from Latin lēvis, smooth.

[Pokorny 3. lei- 662.]

leid-

Important derivatives are: ludicrous, allude, collude, delude, elude, illusion, interlude, prelude.

To play, jest.

Suffixed o-grade form loid-o-*. LUDIC, LUDICROUS; ALLUDE, COLLUDE, DELUDE, ELUDE, ILLUSION, INTERLUDE, PRELUDE, PROLUSION, from Latin lūdus, game, play, with its derivative lūdere, to play (but both words may possibly be from Etruscan).

[Pokorny leid- 666.]

leig-

Important derivatives are: league¹, liable, lien, alloy, ally, furl, oblige, rally, rely.
To bind.

12. LEECH², from Middle Low German līk, leech line, from Germanic līk-*.

13. Suffixed agent noun l(e)ig-tor-*. LICTOR, from Latin lictor, lictor.

14. Zero-grade form lig-ā-*. LEAGUE¹, LEGATO, LIABLE, LIEN, LIGASE, LIGATE, LIGATURE; ALLOY, (ALLY), COLLIGATE, FURL, OBLIGE, (RALLY¹), (RELIGION), RELY, from Latin ligāre, to bind.

[Pokorny 4. leig- 668.]

leigh-

Important derivatives are: lick, lecher.

To lick.

5. ELECTUARY, LICHEN, from Greek leikhein, to lick.
6. Zero-grade form ligh-*.
- LICK, from Old English liccian, to lick;
 - LECHER, from Old French lechier, to live in debauchery.
Both a and b from Germanic likkōn*.
7. Nasalized zero-grade form li-n-gh-*. ANILINGUS, CUNNILINGUS, from Latin lingere, to lick.

[Pokorny leigh- 668.]

leik^w-

Important derivatives are: eclipse, ellipsis, lend, loan, delinquent, derelict, relinquish.

To leave.

19. Basic form leik^w-*. ECLIPSE, ELLIPSIS, from Greek leipein, to leave.
20. O-grade form loik^w-*.
- suffixed form loik^w-nes-*. LOAN, from Old Norse lān, loan, from Germanic laihwniz*;
 - LEND, from Old English lānan, to lend, loan from Germanic denominative laihwnjan*.
21. Zero-grade form lik^w-*.
- (see oi-no-) Old English endleofan, eleven, from Germanic ain-lif-*, “one left (beyond ten)”;

- b. (see dwo-) Old English twelf, twelve, from Germanic twa-lif-, “two left (beyond ten).” Both a and b from Germanic -lif-, left.

22. Nasalized zero-grade form li-n-k^w-*. DELINQUENT, (DERELICT), RELINQUISH, from Latin linquere, to leave.

[Pokorny leik^u- 669.]

leip-

Important derivatives are: life, lively, live^l, leave^l, liver^l.

To stick, adhere; fat.

19. LIFE, LIVELY, from Old English lif, life (< “continuance”), from Germanic libam*.

- a. LIVE^l, from Old English lifian, libban, to live;
- b. LEBENSRAUM, from Old High German lebēn, to live. Both a and b from Germanic libēn*.
- c. LEAVE^l, from Old English lāfan, to leave, have remaining;
- d. DELAY, RELAY, from Old French laier, to leave, from Frankish laibjan*. Both a and b from o-grade Germanic causative -laibjan*.

20. LIVER^l, from Old English lifer, liver (formerly believed to be the blood-producing organ), from Germanic librō*.

21. Zero-grade form lip-*. LIPO-, from Greek lipos, fat.

22. Variant form aleibh-*. ALIPHATIC; SYNALEPHA, from Greek aleiphein, to anoint with oil.

[Pokorny leip- 670.]

leis-¹

Important derivatives are: last², lore^l, learn, delirium.

Track, furrow.

16. O-grade form lois-*.

- a. LAST³, from Old English lāst, lāest, sole, footprint, from Germanic laist-*;
 - b. LAST², from Old English lāestan, to continue, from Germanic laistjan*, “to follow a track”;
 - c. suffixed form lois-ā*. LORE,¹ from Old English lār, learning, from Germanic laizō*.
17. LEARN, from Old English leornian, to learn, from Germanic zero-grade form liznōn*, “to follow a course (of study).”
18. Suffixed full-grade form leis-ā*. DELIRIUM, from Latin lira, a furrow.

[Pokorny leis- 671.]

leis-²

Important derivatives are: least, less.

Small.

LEAST, LESS, from Old English comparative lāes, lāessa and superlative lāest, lāerest, from Germanic comparative lais-izō* and superlative lais-ista-*.

leit-

Important derivatives are: *lead*¹, load, lode, livelihood.

To go forth, die.

20. Suffixed o-grade form loit-eyo-*.
- a. LEAD¹, from Old English lādan, to lead;
 - b. LEITMOTIF, from Old High German leitan, to lead. Both a and b from Germanic laidjan*.
21. Suffixed variant o-grade form loit-ā*. LOAD, LODE; LIVELIHOOD, from Old English lād, course, way, from Germanic laidō*.

[Pokorny leit(h)- 672.]

lendh-

Important derivatives are: *land, landscape, hinterland, lawn*¹.

Open land.

- a. LAND; ISLAND, from Old English land, land;
- b. BILANDER, LANDSCAPE, UITLANDER, from Middle Dutch land, land;
- c. AUSLANDER, GEL%oNDESPRUNG, HINTERLAND, LANDSMAN², from Old High German lant, land;
- d. LANDGRAVE, (LANDGRAVINE), from Middle Low German lant, country;
- e. LANDSMÂL, from Old Norse land, land;
- f. LAWN¹, from Old French launde, heath, pasture. a, b, c, d, and e all from Germanic landam*; f from Germanic, or from Celtic landā*.

[Pokorny 3. lendh- 675.]

leu-

Important derivatives are: forlorn, -less, lose, loss, loose, analysis, paralysis, soluble, solve, absolute, absolve, dissolve, resolve.

To loosen, divide, cut apart.

VIII. Extended Germanic root leus-*.

- a. LORN, (LOSEL), from Old English -lēosan, to lose;
 - i. FORLORN, from Old English forlēosan, to forfeit, lose;
 - ii. FORLORN HOPE, from Dutch verliezen (past participle verloren), to lose. Both (i) and (ii) from Germanic fer-leusan*, far-leusan* (fer-, far-, prefix denoting rejection or exclusion; see per¹). Both a and b from Germanic leusan*.
- b. LEASING, -LESS, from Old English lēas, “loose,” free from, without, untrue, lacking;
- c. LOSE, (LOSS), from Old English los, loss;

- d. LOOSE, from Old Norse lauss, louss, loose;
- e. LOESS, from German dialectal l^{sch}, loose. a, b, c, and d all from Germanic lausaz*.

IX. Basic form leu-*.

- 1. LAG², probably from a source akin to Swedish lagg, barrel stave (lawwō*).
- 2. Zero-grade form lu-*.
 - a. LYO-, LYSIS, LYSO-, -LYTE, (LYTIC), -LYTIC; ANALYSIS, CATALYSIS, DIALYSIS, LYASE, PARALYSIS, TACHYLYTE, from Greek luain, to loosen, release, untie;
 - b. LUES, from Latin luēs, plague, pestilence (< “dissolution, putrefaction”);
 - c. prefixed form se-lu-* (se-, apart; see s(w)e-). SOLUBLE, SOLUTE, SOLVE; ABSOLUTE, (ABSOLVE), ASSOIL, CONSOLUTE, DISSOLVE, RESOLVE, from Latin solvere, to loosen, untie.

[Pokorny 2. leu- 681.]

leubh-

Important derivatives are: livelong, furlough, belief, believe, love, libido.
To care, desire; love.

IV. Suffixed form leubh-o-*. LIEF; LEMAN, LIVELONG, from Old English lēof, dear, beloved, from Germanic leubaz*.

V. O-grade form loubh-*.

- a. LEAVE², from Old English lēaf, permission (< “pleasure, approval”);
- b. FURLOUGH, from Middle Dutch verlof, leave, permission (ver-, intensive prefix, from Germanic fer-*; see per¹);
- c. BELIEF, from Old English gelēafa, belief, faith (bi-, about; see ambhi), from Germanic galaubō* (ga-, intensive prefix; see kom). a, b, and c all from Germanic laubō.

2. BELIEVE, from Old English gelēfan, belēfan, to believe, trust (be-, about; see ambhi), from Germanic galaubjan*, “to hold dear,” esteem, trust (ga-*, intensive prefix; see kom).

VI. Zero-grade form lubh-*.

1. Suffixed form lubh-ā-*. LOVE, from Old English lufu, love, from Germanic lubō*.
2. Suffixed (stative) form lubh-ē-*. QUODLIBET, from Latin libēre, to be dear, be pleasing.
3. LIBIDO, from Latin libīdō, pleasure, desire.

[Pokorny leubh- 683.]

leudh-

Important derivatives are: liberal, liberate, liberty, livery, deliver.

To mount up, grow.

1. Basic form leudh-*. LANDSLEIT, from Old High German liut, person, people, from Germanic liud-i-*.
2. Suffixed form leudh-ero-*. LIBERAL, LIBERATE, LIBERTINE, LIBERTY, LIVERY; DELIVER, from Latin liber, free (the precise semantic development is obscure).

[Pokorny 1. leudh- 684.]

leu(ə)-

Important derivatives are: lye, lather, lotion, deluge, dilute, latrine.

To wash.

21. Suffixed form lou-kā*. LYE, from Old English lēag, lye, from Germanic laugō*.
22. Suffixed form lou-tro-*. LATHER, from Old English lēthran, līthran, to lather.
23. Variant form law-*.
 - a. LOMENT, LOTION; ABLUTION, ALLUVION, COLLUVIUM, DELUGE,

DILUTE, (ELUANT), ELUTE, (ELUVIUM), from Latin lavere, to wash, with its derivative -luere, to wash;

- b. form law-ā-*. LAVE, from Latin lavāre, to wash;
- c. LATRINE, from Latin lavātrīna, lātrīna, a bath, privy.

24. O-grade form lou-*. PYROLUSITE, from Greek louein, to wash.

[Pokorny lou- 692.]

leugh-

Important derivatives are: warlock, belie, *lie*².

To tell a lie.

- a. WARLOCK, from Old English lēogan, to lie;
- b. BELIE, from Old English belēogan, to deceive (be-, about; see ambhi). Both a and b from Germanic leugan*.

24. LIE², from Old English lyge, a lie, falsehood, from Germanic lugiz*.

[Pokorny leugh- 686.]

leuk-

Important derivatives are: *light*¹, luminary, luminous, illuminate, lunar, lunatic, luster, illustrate, lea, lucid, elucidate, translucent, lynx.

Light, brightness.

V. Basic form leuk-*.

- 1. Suffixed form leuk-to-*.
 - a. LIGHT¹, from Old English lēoht, līht, light;
 - b. LIGHTNING, from Old English līhtan, to shine, from Germanic leuht-jan*, to make light. Both a and b from Germanic leuhtam*.
- 2. Unsuffixed form leuk-*. LUCINA, LUCULENT, LUX; LUCIFER, (LUCIFERIN), from Latin lūx, light.

3. Suffixed form leuk-smen-*. LIMN, LUMEN, LUMINARY, LUMINOUS; ILLUMINATE, PHILLUMENIST, from Latin lūmen, light, opening.
4. Suffixed form leuk-snā-*. LUNA, LUNAR, LUNATE, LUNATIC, LUNE, LUNULA; SUBLUNARY, from Latin lūna, moon.
5. Suffixed form leuk-stro-*.
 - a. LUSTER, (LUSTRUM), from Latin lūstrum, purification;
 - b. ILLUSTRATE, from Latin lūstrāre, to purify, illuminate.
6. Suffixed form leuko-dhro-*. LUCUBRATE, from Latin lūcubrāre, to work by lamplight.
7. Suffixed form leuk-o-*. LEUKO-, from Greek leukos, clear, white.

VI. O-grade form louk-*.

1. Suffixed form louk-o-*.
 - a. LEA, from Old English lēah, meadow (lauhaz*;
 - b. LEVIN, from Middle English levin, lightning, from Germanic lauh-ubni-*.
2. Suffixed (iterative) form louk-eyo-*. LUCENT, LUCID; ELUCIDATE, NOCTILUCA, PELLUCID, RELUCENT, TRANSLUCENT, from Latin lūcēre, to shine.

VII. Zero-grade form luk-*.

1. Suffixed form luk-sno-*. LINK², LYCHNIS, from Greek lukhnos, lamp.
2. LYNX, OUNCE², from Greek lynx, lynx (as if from its shining eyes), attributed by some to this root (but more likely of obscure origin).

[Pokorny leuk- 687.]

lik-

The following entry is not, strictly speaking, Indo-European, since it is represented in only one branch of the family. Important derivatives are: -ly¹, -ly², alike, like², each, likely, frolic, like¹. [Not, strictly speaking, Indo-European.

Body, form; like, same.

Germanic root.

17. Lych-gate, from Old English līc, form, body.

18. -LY¹, -LY², from Old English -līc, having the form of.

- a. ALIKE, LIKE², LIKELY, from Old English gelīc, similar, and Old Norse (g)līkr, like, both from Germanic galīkaz*;
- b. EACH; EVERY, from Old English ælc, each, from Germanic phrase aiwo galīkaz*, “ever alike” (aiwo*, aiwi*, ever; see aiw-).

19. (see i-) Old English ilca, the same, from Germanic is- līk-*.

20. ALIKE, from Old English onlīc, from Germanic ana-līkaz*.

21. FROLIC, from Middle Dutch -lijc, -like.

22. LIKE¹, from Old English līcian, to please, from Germanic līkjan*.

23. (see k^wo-) Germanic hwa-līk-*, which.

[Pokorny 2. lējig- 667.]

līno-

Important derivatives are: line¹, linen, lingerie, lint, linseed.

Flax.

22. Form līno-*. LINOLEIC ACID, from Greek linon, flax.

23. Form līno-*. LINE¹, LINE², LINEN, LINGERIE, LININ, LINNET, LINT; CRINOLINE, LINSEED, from Latin linum, flax, linen, thread.

[Pokorny lī-no- 691.]

lūs-

An important derivative is: louse.

Louse.

LOUSE, from Old English lūs louse, from Germanic lūs-*.

[Pokorny lūs- 692.]

mā⁻¹

Important derivatives are: mature, premature, matinee.

Good; with derivatives meaning “occurring at a good moment, timely, seasonable, early.”

1. Suffixed form mā-tu-*.
 - a. further suffixed form mā-tu-ro-*. MATURE; IMMATURE, PREMATURE, from Latin mātūrus, seasonable, ripe, mature;
 - b. further suffixed form mā-tu-to-*. (MATINEE), MATINS, (MATUTINAL), from Latin Mātūta, name of the goddess of dawn.
2. Suffixed form mā-ni-*.
 - a. MAÑANA, from Latin māne, (in) the morning;
 - b. MANES, from Latin mānis, mānus, good.

[Pokorny 2. mā- 693.]

mā⁻²

An important derivative is: mammal.

Mother. A linguistic near-universal found in many of the world's languages, often in reduplicated form.

1. MAMMA², MAMMAL, MAMMILLA, from Latin mamma, breast.
2. MAIA, MAIEUTIC, from Greek Maia, “good mother” (respectful form of address to old women), also nurse, probably from mā⁻².
3. MAMA, more recently formed in the same way.

[Pokorny 3. mā- 694.]

mag-

Important derivatives are: make, mason, *match*¹, mingle, among, mongrel, magma, mass, amass.

Also mak-To knead, fashion, fit.

- i. MAKE, from Old English macian, to make;
 - ii. MASON, from Old French masson, mason;
 - iii. MAQUILLAGE, from Middle Dutch maken, to make. (i), (ii), and (iii) all from Germanic verb makōn*, to fashion, fit;
- b. MATCH¹, from Old English gemæcca, mate, spouse, from Germanic compound noun ga-mak-(j)ōn-, “one who is fitted with (another)” (ga-, with, together; see kom). Both a and b from Germanic mak-*.
 - a. MINGLE, from Old English mengan, to mix;
 - b. AMONG, MONGREL, from Old English gemang, mixture, crowd (ge-, together; see kom). Both a and b from Germanic nasalized form mangjan*, to knead together.
1. Suffixed form mak-yo-*. MAGMA, from Greek magma, unguent, from massein (aorist stem mag-), to knead.
 2. Suffixed lengthened-grade form māg-ya-*. MASS; (AMASS), MAZAEDIUM, from Greek maza, a (kneaded) lump, barley cake.
 3. Suffixed lengthened-grade form māk-ero-*. MACERATE, from Latin mācerāre, to tenderize, to soften (food) by steeping.

[Pokorny mag̃- 696, 2. māk- 698, men(ə)k- 730.]

magh-

Important derivatives are: *may*¹, dismay, *might*¹, main, machine, mechanic, magic.
To be able, have power.

- a. MAY¹, from Old English magan, to be able;
- b. DISMAY, from Old French esmaier, to frighten. Both a and b from Germanic magan*, to be able.

1. MIGHT¹, from Old English miht, power, from Germanic suffixed form mah-ti-*, power.
2. MAIN, from Old English mægen, power, from Germanic suffixed form mag-inam*, power.
3. Suffixed lengthened-grade form māgh-anā-*, “that which enables.” MACHINE, MECHANIC, (MECHANISM), (MECHANO-), from Greek (Attic) mēkhanē, (Doric) mākhanā, device.
4. Possibly suffixed form magh-u-*. (MAGIC), MAGUS, from Old Persian maguš, member of a priestly caste (

[Pokorny magh- 695.]

maghu-

Important derivatives are: maid, maiden.

Young person of either sex.

Suffixed form magho-ti-*.

- a. MAID, MAIDEN, from Old English mægden, virgin;
- b. MATJES HERRING, from Dutch maagd, maid. Both a and b from Germanic magadi-, with diminutive magadin-.

[Pokorny maghos 696.]

māk-

Important derivatives are: meager, emaciate, macro-.

Long, thin.

Contracted from maək-*.

1. Zero-grade form mæk-* becoming mak-* in suffixed form mak-ro-*.
 - a. MEAGER; EMACIATE, from Latin macer, thin;
 - b. MACRO-, MACRON; AMPHIMACER, from Greek makros, long, large.

2. Suffixed form māk-es-*. MECOPTERAN, PARAMECIUM, from Greek mēkos, length.

[Pokorny māk- 699.]

man-¹

Important derivatives are: man, *Norman*¹, mannequin, ombudsman.

Also mon-Man.

1. Extended forms manu-, manw-.
 - a. MAN; NORMAN, from Old English man(n) (plural menn), man;
 - b. FUGLEMAN, LANDSMAN², from Old High German man, man;
 - c. MANIKIN, (MANNEQUIN), from Middle Dutch man, man;
 - d. NORMAN¹, OMBUDSMAN, from Old Norse madhr, mannr, man;
 - e. ALEMANNI, possibly from Germanic Ala-manniz*, tribal name (< “all men”: ala-, all; see al-³). a, b, c, d, and e all from Germanic manna-* (plural manniz*).
2. MENSCH, from Old High German mennisco, human, from Germanic adjective manniska-*, human.
3. MUZHNIK, from Russian muzh, man, male, from Slavic suffixed form mon-gyo-*.

[Pokorny manu-s 700.]

man-²

Important derivatives are: manacle, manage, manner, manual, maintain, maneuver, manicure, manifest, manipulation, manufacture, manure, manuscript, mastiff, emancipate, mandate, command, commando, commend, countermend, demand, recommend.

Hand.

1. MANACLE, MANAGE, (MANËGE), MANNER, MANUAL, MANUBRIUM, MANUS; AMANUENSIS, MAINTAIN, MANEUVER, MANICOTTI, MANICURE, MANIFEST, MANIPLE, MANIPULATION, MANSUETUDE, MANUFACTURE, MANUMIT, MANURE, MANUSCRIPT, MASTIFF, MORTMAIN, QUADRUMANOUS, from Latin manus, hand.

2. Suffixed form man-ko-*, maimed in the hand. MANQUÈ, from Latin mancus, maimed, defective.
3. EMANCIPATE, from Latin compound manceps, “he who takes by the hand,” purchaser (-ceps, agential suffix, “taker”; see kap-).
4. MANDAMUS, MANDATE; COMMAND, (COMMANDO), COMMEND, COUNTERMAND, DEMAND, (RECOMMEND), REMAND, from Latin compound mandāre, “to put into someone's hand,” entrust, order (-dere, to put; see dhē-).

[Pokorny mə-r 740.]

marko-

An important derivative is: *mare*¹.

Horse.

MARE¹, from Old English mere, miere, mare, from Germanic feminine marhjōn-*.

[Pokorny marko- 700.]

māter-

Important derivatives are: *mother*¹, maternal, maternity, matriculate, matrix, matron, matrimony, metropolis, material, matter.

Mother.

Based ultimately on the baby-talk form mā⁻², with the kinship term suffix -ter-*.

- a. MOTHER¹, from Old English mōdor, mother;
 - b. MOTHER², from Middle Dutch moeder, mother. Both a and b from Germanic mōdar-*.
1. MATER, MATERNAL, MATERNITY, (MATRICULATE), MATRIX, MATRON; MADREPORE, MATRIMONY, from Latin māter, mother.

2. METRO-; METROPOLIS, from Greek mētēr, mother.
3. MATERIAL, MATTER, from Latin māteriēs, māteria, tree trunk (< “matrix,” the tree's source of growth), hence hard timber used in carpentry, hence (by a calque on Greek hulē, wood, matter) substance, stuff, matter.
4. DEMETER, from Greek compound Dēmētēr, name of the goddess of produce, especially cereal crops (dē-, possibly meaning “earth”).

[Pokorny māter- 700.]

me⁻¹

Important derivatives are: me, myself, *mine*², my.

Oblique form of the personal pronoun of the first person singular.

For the nominative see eg.

1. ME, MYSELF, from Old English mē (dative and accusative), from Germanic mē-*.
2. Possessive adjective mei-no-*.
 - a. MINE², MY, from Old English mīn, my;
 - b. MYNHEER, from Middle Dutch mijn, my. Both a and b from Germanic mīn-*.
3. Possessive adjective me-yo-*. MADAME, MONSIEUR, from Latin meus, mine.
4. Genitive form me-wo*. MAVOURNEEN, from Old Irish mo, my.

[Pokorny 1. me- 702.]

me⁻²

Derivatives are: midwife, meta-.

In the middle of.

1. Suffixed form me-dhi*. MIDWIFE, from Old English mid, among, with, from Germanic mid-*.

2. Suffixed form me-ta*. META-, from Greek meta, between, with, beside, after.

[Pokorny 2. me- 702.] See also medhyo-.

mē-¹

Important derivatives are: *mood*¹, moral, morale, morose.
Expressing certain qualities of mind.

Contracted from meǝ-*.

1. Suffixed o-grade form mō-to-*.
 - i. MOOD¹, from Old English mōd, mind, disposition;
 - ii. GEM,TLICH, (GEM,TLICHKEIT); BISMUTH, from Old High German muot, mind, spirit. Both (i) and (ii) from Germanic mōthaz*.
2. MORAL, (MORALE), MORES, MOROSE, from Latin mōs (< mō-s-*), wont, humor, manner, custom, perhaps from mē-¹.

[Pokorny 5. mē- 704.]

mē-²

Important derivatives are: *meal*², piecemeal, measure, dimension, immense, *meter*¹, diameter, geometry, moon, Monday, month, menopause, menstruate, semester.
To measure. Contracted from meǝ-*.

I. Basic form mē-.

1. Suffixed form mē-lo-*. MEAL²; PIECEMEAL, from Old English māel, “measure, mark, appointed time, time for eating, meal,” from Germanic mēlaz*.
2. Suffixed form mē-ti-*.
 - a. MEASURE, (MENSURAL); (COMMENSURATE), DIMENSION, IMMENSE, from Latin mētīrī, to measure;
 - b. METIS, from Greek mētis, wisdom, skill.

3. METER¹, METER², (METER³), -METER, METRICAL, -METRY; DIAMETER, GEOMETRY, ISOMETRIC, METROLOGY, METRONOME, SYMMETRY, from Greek metron, measure, rule, length, proportion, poetic meter, possibly from mē-² (but this is referred by some to med-).

II. Extended and suffixed forms mēn*-, mēn-en*-, mēn-ōt*-, mēn-s*-, moon, month (an ancient and universal unit of time measured by the moon).

1. MOON; (MONDAY), from Old English mōna, moon, from Germanic mēnōn*-.
2. MONTH, from Old English mōnath, month, from Germanic mēnōth*-.
3. AMENORRHEA, CATAMENIA, DYSMENORRHEA, EMMENAGOGUE, (MENARCHE), MENISCUS, (MENOPAUSE) from Greek mēn, mēnē, month.
4. MENSES, MENSTRUAL, (MENSTRUATE); BIMESTRIAL, SEMESTER, TRIMESTER, from Latin mēnsis, month.

[Pokorny 3. mē- 703, mēnōt- 731.]

mē-³

Important derivatives are: more, most.

Big.

Contracted from meə*-.

1. Suffixed (comparative) form mē-is*-. MORE, from Old English māra, greater, and māre (adverb), more, from Germanic maizōn*-.
2. Suffixed (superlative) form mē-isto*-. MOST, from Old English māest, most, from Germanic maista*-.
3. Suffixed form mē-ro*-, mē-ri*-. M%_oRCHEN, from Old High German māri, news, narration.
4. Suffixed o-grade form mō-ro*-. CLAYMORE, from Gaelic mōr, big, great.

[Pokorny 4. mē- 704.]

mē-⁴

Important derivatives are: *mow*², aftermath, meadow.

To cut down grass or grain with a sickle or scythe.

Contracted from mē-*.

1. *MOW*², from Old English māwan, to mow, from Germanic mē-*.
2. Suffixed form mē-ti-*. AFTERMATH, from Old English māth, a mowing, a mown crop, from Germanic mēdiz*.
3. Suffixed form mē-twā-*, a mown field. *MEAD*², MEADOW, from Old English mād (oblique case mādwē), meadow, from Germanic mēdwō*.

[Pokorny 2. mē- 703.]

med-

Important derivatives are: *mete*¹, medicine, remedy, meditate, modest, moderate, mode, model, modern, modify, module, *mold*¹, accommodate, commodity, *must*¹, empty.

To take appropriate measures.

- a. *METE*¹, from Old English metan, to measure (out), from Germanic metan*;
 - b. *MEET*², from Old English gemæte, “commensurate,” fit (ge-, with; see kom), from Germanic derivative mætō*, measure.
 - a. MEDICAL, MEDICATE, (MEDICINE), (MEDICO); METHEGLIN, REMEDY, from Latin medērī, to look after, heal, cure;
 - b. MEDITATE, from Latin meditārī, to think about, consider, reflect.
1. Suffixed form med-es-*.
 - a. MODEST; IMMODEST, from Latin modestus, “keeping to the appropriate measure,” moderate;
 - b. MODERATE; IMMODERATE, from Latin moderārī, “to keep within measure,” to moderate, control. Both a and b from Latin modes-, replacing medes- by influence of modus (see 5 below).

2. MEDUSA, from Greek medein, to rule (feminine participle medousa < med-ont-ia*).
3. Suffixed o-grade form mod-o-*. MODAL, MODE, MODEL, MODERN, MODICUM, MODIFY, MODULATE, MODULE, MODULUS, MOLD¹, (MOOD²), (MOULAGE); (ACCOMODATE), (COMMODOE), COMMODIOUS, (COMMODITY), from Latin modus, measure, size, limit, manner, harmony, melody.
4. Suffixed o-grade form mod-yo-*. MODIOLUS, MUTCHKIN, from Latin modius, a measure of grain.
5. Possibly lengthened o-grade form mōd-*.
 - a. MOTE², MUST¹, from Old English mōtan, to have occasion, to be permitted or obliged;
 - b. EMPTY, from Old English æmetta, rest, leisure, from Germanic compound ē-mōt-ja-* (prefix ē-, meaning uncertain, from Indo-European ē, ō*, to). Both a and b from Germanic mōt-*, ability, leisure.

[Pokorny 1. med- 705.]

medhu-

Important derivatives are: *mead*¹, amethyst.

Honey; also mead.

1. MEAD¹, from Old English meodu, mead, from Germanic medu*.
2. AMETHYST, METHYLENE, from Greek methu, wine.

[Pokorny mĒdhu- 707.]

medhyo-

Important derivatives are: *mid*¹, amid, middle, *mean*³, medial, mediate, medium, intermediate, medieval, mediocre, mediterranean, meridian.

Middle.

- a. MID¹; AMID, from Old English midd(e), middle;
 - b. MIDDLE, from Old English middel, middle, from West Germanic diminutive form middila-*;
 - c. MIDGARD, from Old Norse Midhgardhr, Midgard, from Germanic compound midja-gardaz*, “middle zone,” name of the earth conceived as an intermediate zone lying between heaven and hell (gardaz*, enclosure, yard; see gher-1). a, b, and c all from Germanic midja-*.
1. MEAN³, MEDIAL, MEDIAN, MEDIASTINUM, MEDIATE, MEDIUM, MIZZEN, MOIETY, MULLION; INTERMEDIATE, MEDIEVAL, MEDIOCRE, MEDITERRANEAN, MERIDIAN, MILIEU, from Latin medius, middle, half.
 2. MESO-, from Greek mesos, middle.

[Pokorny medhi- 706.] See also me-2.

meg-

Important derivatives are: much, magnate, magnitude, magnum, magnanimous, magnificent, magnify, major, majority, mayor, majesty, maestro, magistrate, master, mister, mistress, maximum, May, mega-, maharajah.

Great.

- a. MICKLE, MUCH, from Old English micel, mycel, great;
 - b. MICKLE, from Old Norse mikill. Both a and b from Germanic suffixed form mik-ila-*.
1. Suffixed form mag-no-*. MAGNATE, MAGNITUDE, MAGNUM; MAGNANIMOUS, MAGNIFIC, (MAGNIFICENT), (MAGNIFICO), (MAGNIFY), MAGNILOQUENT, from Latin magnus, great.
 2. Suffixed (comparative) form mag-yos-*.
 - a. MAJOR, MAJOR-DOMO, MAJORITY, MAJUSCULE, MAYOR, from Latin māior, greater;
 - b. MAESTOSO, MAJESTY, from Latin māiestās, greatness, authority;
 - c. MAESTRO, MAGISTERIAL, MAGISTRAL, MAGISTRATE, MASTER, (MISTER), MISTRAL, (MISTRESS), from Latin magister, master, high official (

3. Suffixed (superlative) form mag-samo-*. MAXIM, MAXIMUM, from Latin maximus, greatest.
4. Suffixed (feminine) form mag-ya-*, “she who is great.” MAY, from Latin Maia, name of a goddess.
5. Suffixed form meg-ə-(l-)*. MEGA-, MEGALO-; ACROMEGALY, ALMAGEST, OMEGA, from Greek megas (stem megal-), great.
6. Variant form megh-* (< meg-ə-*). MAHARAJAH, MAHARANI, MAHARISHI, MAHATMA, MAHAYANA, from Sanskrit mahā-, mahat-, great.

[Pokorny meg(h)- 708.]

mei-¹

Important derivatives are: permeate, mad, molt, mutate, commute, mutual, mis-¹, amiss, mistake, miss¹, common, communicate, communism, municipal, remunerate, immune, amoeba, migrate, emigrate.

To change, go, move; with derivatives referring to the exchange of goods and services within a society as regulated by custom or law.

1. MEATUS; CONGÈ, IRREMEABLE, PERMEATE, from Latin meāre, to go, pass.
2. Suffixed o-grade form moi-to-*.
 - a. MAD, from Old English gemædan*, to make insane or foolish, from Germanic ga-maid-jan*, denominative from ga-maid-az*, “changed (for the worse),” abnormal (ga-*, intensive prefix; see kom);
 - b. MEW¹, MOLT, MUTATE; COMMUTE, PERMUTE, REMUDA, TRANSMUTE, from Latin mūtāre, to change;
 - c. MUTUAL, from Latin mūtuus, “done in exchange,” borrowed, reciprocal, mutual.
3. Suffixed extended zero-grade form mit-to-*.
 - a. MIS-¹, from Old English mis-, mis-, and Old French mes- (from Frankish miss-*);

- b. AMISS, MISTAKE, from Old Norse mis(s), mis(s)-, miss, mis-;
 - c. MISS¹, from Old English missan, to miss, from Germanic missjan*, to go wrong. a, b, and c all from Germanic missa-*, “in a changed manner,” abnormally, wrongly.
4. Suffixed o-grade form moi-n-* in compound adjective ko-moin-i-, “held in common” (ko-, together; see kom).
- a. MEAN², (DEMEAN²), from Old English gemāene, common, public, general, from Germanic gamainiz*;
 - b. COMMON, (COMMUNE¹), COMMUNE², COMMUNICATE, (COMMUNISM), from Latin commūnis, common, public, general.
5. Suffixed o-grade form moi-n-es-*.
- a. MUNICIPAL, MUNIFICENT, REMUNERATE, from Latin mūnus, “service performed for the community,” duty, work, “public spectacle paid for by a magistrate,” gift;
 - b. IMMUNE, from Latin immūnis, exempt from public service (in-, negative prefix; see ne).
6. Extended form (ə)meig^w-*.
- a. AMOEBIA, from Greek ameibein, to change;
 - b. MIGRATE; EMIGRATE, from Latin migrāre, to change one's place of living.

[Pokorny 2. mei-, 3. mei- 710, meig^w- 713, 2. meit(h)- 715.]

mei-²

Important derivatives are: menu, mince, *minute*², diminish, minor, minus, minimum, minestrone, minister.

Small.

1. MEIOSIS; MIOCENE, from Greek meiōn, less, lesser.
2. (see ne) Latin nimis, too much, very (< ne-mi-*s, “not little”; ne-, negative prefix).

3. Suffixed zero-grade form mi-nu-*.

- a. MENU, (MINCE), MINUEND, MINUTE²; COMMUNUTE, DIMINISH, from Latin minuere, to reduce, diminish;
- b. MINOR, MINUS; MINUSCULE, from Latin minor (influenced by the comparative suffix -or), less, lesser, smaller;
- c. further suffixed (superlative) form minu-mo-*. MINIMUM, from Latin minimus, least;
- d. MINISTRONE, MINISTER, MINISTRY, MYSTERY², from Latin minister, an inferior, servant (formed after magister, master; see meg-);
- e. MENSHEVIK, from Russian men'she, less.

[Pokorny 5. mei- 711.]

meigh-

Important derivatives are: mist, mistletoe.

To urinate.

- a. MIST, from Old English mist, mist;
 - b. MIZZLE¹, from Middle English misellen, to drizzle, from a source perhaps akin to Dutch dialectal mieselen, to drizzle;
 - c. (MISSEL THRUSH), MISTLETOE, from Old English mistel, mistletoe, from Germanic diminutive form mihst-ila-, mistletoe (which is propagated through the droppings of the missel thrush). a, b, and c all from Germanic suffixed form mih-stu-, urine, hence mist, fine rain.
1. Suffixed form migh-tu-*. MICTURATE, from Latin micturire, to want to urinate (desiderative of meiere, to urinate).

[Pokorny meik- 713.]

meik-

Important derivatives are: meddle, medley, mestizo, miscellaneous, mix, mixture, pell-mell, promiscuous, mash.

To mix.

1. Variant form meig-*. AMPHIMIXIS, APOMIXIS, PANMICTIC, PANMIXIA, from Greek mignunai, to mix, with zero-grade noun mixis (< mig-ti-*), a mingling.
2. Suffixed zero-grade form mik-sk-*. MEDDLE, (MEDLEY), (MELANGE), MESTIZO, MISCELLANEOUS, MISCIBLE, MIX, MIXTURE, MUSTANG; ADMIX, COMMIX, IMMIX, MISCEGENATION, (PELL-MELL), PROMISCUOUS, from Latin miscēre (past participle mixtus), to mix.
3. MASH, from Old English māsc*, mācs*, māx-, mashed malt, from a possible Germanic form maisk-*.

[Pokorny meik- 714.]

mei-no-

Important derivatives are: *moan, bemoan, mean*¹.

Opinion, intention.

1. MOAN, from Old English mān*, opinion, complaint, from Germanic main-*.
2. MEAN¹; BEMOAN, from Old English mānan, to signify, tell, complain of, moan, from Germanic mainjan*.

[Pokorny mei-no- 714.]

mel-¹

Important derivatives are: *melt, malt, mollify, mollusk, bland, smelt*¹, enamel, mild, mulch.

Soft; with derivatives referring to soft or softened materials of various kinds.

I. Extended form meld-*.

1. MELT, from Old English meltan, to melt, from Germanic meltan*.
2. MILT, from Old English milte, spleen, and Middle Dutch milte, milt, from Germanic miltja-*, possibly from mel-¹.

3. MALT, from Old English mealt, malt, from Germanic malta-*, possibly from mel¹.
4. Suffixed variant form mled-sno-*. BLENNY, from Greek blennos, slime, also a name for the blenny.
5. Suffixed zero-grade form mld-wi-*. MOIL, MOLLIFY, MOLLUSK, (MOUILLÈ); EMOLLIENT, from Latin mollis, soft.
6. Possibly nasalized variant form mlad-*. BLAND, BLANDISH, from Latin blandus, smooth, caressing, flattering, soft-spoken.

II. Variant form smeld-*.

- a. SMELT¹, from Middle Dutch or Middle Low German smelten, to smelt;
- b. SCHMALTZ, from Old High German smalz, animal fat;
- c. SMALT, from Italian smalto, enamel, glaze;
- d. ENAMEL, from Old French esmail, enamel;
- e. SMELT², from Old English smelt, smylt, a marine fish, smelt, perhaps from mel¹. a, b, c, d, and e all from Germanic smelt-*.

III. Extended form meldh-*.

1. MILD, from Old English milde, mild, from Germanic mildja-*.
2. MALTHA, from Greek maltha, a mixture of wax and pitch, possibly from mel¹.

IV. Suffixed form mel-sko-*. MULCH, from Old English mel(i)sc, mylsc, mild, mellow, from Germanic mil-sk-*.

V. Extended form mlǝk-*. BONANZA, CHONDROMALACIA, MALACOLOGY, OSTEOMALACIA, from Greek malakos, soft.

VI. MUTTON, from Old French moton, sheep, from Celtic molto-*, sheep, possibly from mel¹.

VII. Suffixed zero-grade form (ə)ml-u-*. AMBLYGONITE, AMBLYOPIA, from Greek amblyus, blunt, dull, dim.

mel-²

Important derivatives are: ameliorate, multi-, multitude.
Strong, great.

1. Suffixed (comparative) form mel-yos-*. (AMELIORATE), MELIORATE, MELIORISM, from Latin melior, better.
2. Suffixed zero-grade form m_{l̥}-to-*. MOLTO, MULTI-, MULTITUDE, from Latin multus, much, many.

[Pokorny 4. mel- 720.]

mel-³

Important derivatives are: mal-, malice, malign, dismal, malady, malefactor, malevolent.
Bad.

MAL-, MALICE, (MALIGN); DISMAL, MALADY, MALARIA, MALEDICT, MALEFACTOR, MALEFIC, MALENTENDU, MALEVOLENCE, MALVERSATION, from Latin malus, bad, and male, ill (malignus, harmful).

[Pokorny mēlo- 724.]

melə-

Important derivatives are: maelstrom, *meal*¹, *mill*¹, immolate, millet, malleable, mallet, maul.

Also mel-To crush, grind; with derivatives referring to various ground or crumbling substances (such as flour) and to instruments for grinding or crushing (such as millstones).

1. O-grade form mol-*. MAELSTROM, from Middle Dutch malen, to whirl, from Germanic mal-*.
2. Full-grade form mel-*. MEAL¹, from Old English melu, flour, meal, from Germanic suffixed form mel-wa-*.
3. Zero-grade form m_{l̥}-*. MOLD³, (MOLDER), from Old English molde, soil, from Germanic suffixed form mul-dō*.
4. Full-grade form mel-*.

- a. MILL¹, MOLA², MOLAR², MOLE⁴, (MOULIN); EMOLUMENT, IMMOLATE, ORMOLU, from Latin molere, to grind (grain), and its derivative mola, a millstone, mill, coarse meal customarily sprinkled on sacrificial animals;
 - b. possible suffixed form mel-iyō-*. MEALIE, MILIUM, MILLET, from Latin milium, millet.
5. Suffixed variant form mal-ni-*. MALLEABLE, (MALLET), MALLEUS, MAUL; PALL-MALL, from Latin malleus, hammer, mallet.
 6. Zero-grade form ml̥-*. AMYLUM, MYLONITE, from Greek mulē, mulos, millstone, mill.
 7. Possibly extended form mlī-*. BLIN, BLINTZ, from Old Russian blinŭ, pancake.

[Pokorny 1. mel- 716.]

melg-

Important derivatives are: emulsion, milk, galaxy, lacto-, lettuce.

To rub off; also to milk.

1. Zero-grade form ml̥g-*. EMULSION, from Latin mulgēre, to milk.
 2. Full-grade form melg-*.
 - a. MILK, from Old English meolc, milc, milk;
 - b. MILCH, from Old English -milce, milch, from Germanic suffixed form meluk-ja-*, giving milk;
 - c. MILCHIG, from Old High German miluh, milk. a, b, and c all from Germanic melkan*, to milk, contaminated with an unrelated noun for milk, cognate with the Greek and Latin forms given in II below, to form the blend meluk-*.
- II. Included here to mark the unexplained fact that no common Indo-European noun for milk can be reconstructed is another root g(a)lag-, g(a)lakt-, milk, found only in:
- a. (GALACTIC), GALACTO-, GALAXY; AGALACTIA, POLYGALA, from Greek gala (stem galakt-), milk;

- b. (LACTATE), LACTEAL, LACTESCENT, LACTO-, LETTUCE, from Latin lac (stem lact-), milk;
- c. the blended Germanic form cited in I. 2. above.

[Pokorny mēlǵ- 722, glag- 400.]

melit-

Important derivatives are: marmalade, mellifluous, molasses, mildew.

Honey.

- 1. HYDROMEL, MARMALADE, MELILOT, OENOMEL, from Greek meli, honey.
 - a. MELLIFEROUS, MELLIFLUOUS, MOLASSES, from Latin mel (stem mell-), honey, from meld-, syncopated from melid-;
 - b. suffixed zero-grade form młd-to-*, “honied.” MOUSSE, from Latin mulsus, honey-sweet.
- 2. MILDEW, from Old English mildēaw, honeydew, nectar, from Germanic compound melith-dauwaz*, honeydew (a substance secreted by aphids on leaves; it was formerly imagined to be distilled from the air like dew; dauwaz*, dew; see dheu⁻¹), from melith-*.

[Pokorny melit- 723.]

men⁻¹

Important derivatives are: mind, mental, mention, automatic, memento, comment, reminiscent, mania, mandarin, *mint*¹, money, monitor, monster, monument, muster, admonish, demonstrate, premonition, summon, mosaic, Muse, museum, music, amnesia, amnesty.

To think; with derivatives referring to various qualities and states of mind and thought.

- I. Zero-grade form mŋ-*.
 - 1. Suffixed form mŋ-ti-*.
 - a. MIND, from Old English gemynd, memory, mind, from Germanic ga-mundi-* (ga-*, intensive prefix; see kom);

- b. MENTAL¹; AMENT², DEMENT, from Latin mēns (stem ment-), mind;
 - c. MENTION, from Latin mentiō, remembrance, mention.
2. Suffixed form mŋ-to-*. AUTOMATIC, from Greek -matos, “willing.”
 3. Suffixed form mŋ-yo-*.
 - a. MAENAD, from Greek mainesthai, to be mad;
 - b. AHRIMAN, from Avestan mainiiuš, spirit.

II. Full-grade form men-*.

1. Suffixed form men-ti-*.
 - a. MINNESINGER, from Old High German minna, love;
 - b. MINIKIN, from Middle Dutch minne, love. Both a and b from Germanic minthjō*.
 - a. MEMENTO, from Latin reduplicated form meminisse, to remember;
 - b. COMMENT, from Latin commināscī, to contrive by thought (com-, intensive prefix; see kom);
 - c. REMINISCENT, from Latin remināscī, to recall, recollect (re-, again, back; see re-);
 - d. MINERVA, from Latin Minerva, name of the goddess of wisdom, possibly from men-¹.
 - a. MENTOR, from Greek Mentōr, Mentor, man's name (probably meaning “adviser”);
 - b. MANIA, MANIAC, MANIC, from Greek mania, madness;
 - c. -MANCY, MANTIC, MANTIS, from Greek mantis, seer.
2. MANDARIN, MANTRA, from Sanskrit mantraḥ, counsel, prayer, hymn.

III. O-grade form mon-*.

1. Suffixed (causative) form mon-eyo-*. MONISH, MONITION, MONITOR, MONSTER, MONUMENT, MUSTER; ADMONISH, DEMONSTRATE, PREMONITION, SUMMON, from Latin monēre, to remind, warn, advise.
2. Suffixed o-grade form mon-twə*. MOSAIC, MUSE, MUSEUM, MUSIC, from Greek Mousa, a Muse.

IV. Extended form mnā-, contracted from mnaə-.

1. AMNESIA, AMNESTY, ANAMNESIS, from Greek reduplicated form mimnēskein, to remember.
2. MNEMONIC, from Greek mnēmōn, mindful.

V. Indo-European verb phrase mens dhē-, “to set mind” (see dhē-), underlying compound m̥s-dhē-. AHURA MAZDA, (ORMAZD), from Avestan mazdā-, wise.

[Pokorny 3. men- 726, mendh- 730.]

men-²

Important derivatives are: mouth, menace, amenable, *demean*¹, promenade, eminent, imminent, prominent, *mount*¹, mountain, amount.

To project.

1. Suffixed zero-grade form m̥-to-* in a western Indo-European word for a projecting body part, variously “chin, jaw, mouth.”
 - a. MOUTH, from Old English mūth, mouth, from Germanic munthaz*;
 - b. MENTAL², from Latin mentum, chin.
2. MENACE, MINACIOUS; AMENABLE, DEMEAN¹, PROMENADE, from Latin minae, projecting points, threats.
3. EMINENT, IMMINENT, PROMINENT, (PROMONTORY), from Latin -minēre, to project, jut, threaten.
4. Suffixed o-grade form mon-ti-*. MONS, (MONTAGNARD), MONTANE, MONTE, MONTICULE, MOUNT¹, MOUNT², MOUNTAIN; AMOUNT, ULTRAMONTANE, from Latin mōns (stem mont-), mountain.

[Pokorny 1. men- 726, 2. menth- 732.]

men-³

Important derivatives are: manor, mansion, mÈnage, permanent, remain.

To remain.

Variant suffixed (stative) form man-ē-*. MANOR, MANSE, MANSION, (MÈNAGE); IMMANENT, PERMANENT, REMAIN, from Latin manēre, to remain.

[Pokorny 5. men- 729.]

men-⁴

Important derivatives are: monastery, monk, mono-, minnow.

Small, isolated.

1. MANOMETER, from Greek manos, rare, sparse.
2. Suffixed o-grade form mon-wo-*. MONAD, MONASTERY, MONK, MONO-; PSEUDOMONAD, from Greek monos, alone, single, sole.
3. Possibly also suffixed form men-i-*, a small fish. MINNOW, from Middle English meneu, a small fish, from a source akin to Old English myne, mynwe, minnow.

[Pokorny 4. men- 728, meni- 731.]

mendh-

Important derivatives are: mathematical, mathematics.

To learn.

Zero-grade form m̥ndh-*. MATHEMATICAL, (MATHEMATICS); CHRESTOMATHY, POLYMATH, from Greek manthanein (aorist stem math-), to learn.

[Pokorny mendh- 730.]

menegh-

An important derivative is: many.

Copious.

MANY, from Old English manig, mænig, many, from Germanic managa-*.

[Pokorny men(e)gh- 730.]

mer-

Important derivatives are: nightmare, mortar, mordant, morsel, remorse, morbid, murder, mortal, mortuary, mortgage, mortify, postmortem, ambrosia.

To rub away, harm.

1. NIGHTMARE, from Old English mare, mære, goblin, incubus, from Germanic marōn-*, goblin.
 2. MARASMUS; AMARANTH, from Greek marainein, to waste away, wither.
 3. Probably suffixed zero-grade form mṛ-* to-, “ground down.” MORTAR, from Latin mortārium, mortar.
 4. Possibly extended root merd-*. MORDACIOUS, MORDANT, MORDENT, MORSEL; PREMORSE, REMORSE, from Latin mordēre, to bite.
 5. Possibly suffixed form mor-bho-*. MORBID, from Latin morbus, disease (but this is more likely of unknown origin).
- II. Possibly the same root, but more likely distinct, is mer-*, “to die,” with derivatives referring to death and to human beings as subject to death.
1. Zero-grade form mṛ-*.
 - a. suffixed form mṛ-tro-*. MURDER, from Old English morthor, murder, from Germanic suffixed form mur-thra-*;
 - b. suffixed form mṛ-ti-*. MORT¹, MORTAL; AMORTIZE, MORTIFY, POSTMORTEM, from Latin mors (stem mort-), death;
 - c. suffixed form mṛ-yo-*. MORIBUND, MORTUARY, MURRAIN, MORTGAGE, (MORTMAIN), from Latin morī, to die, with irregular past participle mortuus (< mṛ-two-), replacing older mṛ-to- (for which see d);
 - d. prefixed and suffixed form ṅ-mṛ-to-, “undying, immortal.” (ṅ-, negative prefix; see ne).

- i. IMMORTAL, from Latin immortālis;
 - ii. AMBROSIA, from Greek ambrotos, immortal, divine (a- + -mbrotos, brotos, mortal);
 - iii. AMRITA, from Sanskrit amṛtam, immortality (a- + mṛta-, dead).
2. Suffixed o-grade form mor-t-yo-*. MANTICORE, from Greek mantikhōras (corrupted from martiokhōras), manticore, probably from Iranian compound martiya-khvāra-, “man-eater” (khvāra-, eating; see swel-), from Old Persian martiya-, a mortal man.

[Pokorny 4. mer-, 5. mer- 735.]

merg-

Important derivatives are: *mark*¹, marquee, marquis, demarcation, *mark*², remark, *march*¹, margin.

Boundary, border.

- a. MARK¹, from Old English mearc, boundary, landmark, sign, trace;
- b. MARGRAVE, from Middle Dutch marc, border;
- c. MARCH², (MARQUEE), MARQUIS, (MARQUISE), from Old French marc, marche, border country;
- d. MARCHESI, MARCHIONESS, from Medieval Latin marca, boundary, border;
- e. DEMARCATION, from Old Italian marcare, to mark out;
- f. MARK², from Old English marc, a mark of weight or money;
- g. MARKKA, from Swedish mark, a mark of money. a, b, c, d, e, f, and g all from Germanic mark-*, boundary, border territory; also to mark out a boundary by walking around it (ceremonially “beating the bounds”); also a landmark, boundary marker, and a mark in general (and in particular a mark on a metal currency bar, hence a unit of currency); these various meanings are widely represented in Germanic descendants and in Romance borrowings.

1. MARQUETRY; REMARK, from Old Norse merki, a mark, from Germanic markja-*, mark, border.
2. MARC, MARCH¹, from Frankish markōn*, to mark out, from Germanic denominative verb markōn*.
3. MARGIN; EMARGINATE, from Latin margō, border, edge.
4. Celtic variant form mrog-*, territory, land. CYMRY, from Welsh Cymro, Wales, from British Celtic kombrogos*, fellow countryman (kom-*, collective prefix; see kom), from -brogos, district.

[Pokorny mereĝ- 738.]

meuə-

Important derivatives are: mob, mobile, moment, momentous, momentum, motif, motion, motive, motor, move, movement, commotion, emotion, promote, remote, remove.

To push away.

(MOB), MOBILE, MOMENT, (MOMENTOUS), MOMENTUM, MOSSO, (MOTIF), MOTION, MOTIVE, MOTOR, MOVE, (MOVEMENT); COMMOTION, EMOTION, PROMOTE, (REMOTE), (REMOVE), from Latin movēre, to move.

[Pokorny 2. meu- 743.]

mori-

Important derivatives are: *mere*², mermaid, meerschaum, marsh, morass, marine, maritime, ultramarine.

Body of water; lake (?), sea (?).

- a. MERE²; (MERMAID), from Old English mere, sea, lake, pond;
- b. MARRAM, from a Scandinavian source akin to Old Norse marr, sea;

- c. MEERSCHAUM, from Old High German mari, sea. a, b, and c all from Germanic mari-*.
 - a. MARSH, from Old English mersc, merisc, marsh;
 - b. MORASS, from Old French maresc, mareis, marsh. Both a and b from Germanic mariska-*, water-logged land.
1. MARE², (MARINARA), MARINE, MARITIME; BÍCHE-DE-MER, MARICULTURE, ORMER, ULTRAMARINE, from Latin mare, sea.

[Pokorny mori 748.]

mregh-u-

Important derivatives are: brief, abbreviate, abridge, merry, mirth, brace, brassiere, pretzel, embrace.

Short.

- I. Suffixed form mregh-w-i-*. BRIEF, BRUMAL; ABBREVIATE, (ABRIDGE), from Latin brevis, short.
- II. Zero-grade form mr̥ghu-*.
 - a. MERRY, from Old English myrge, mirige, pleasant;
 - b. MIRTH, from Old English myrgth, pleasure, joy, from Germanic murgithō*, pleasantness. Both a and b from Germanic murgja-*, short, also pleasant, joyful.
2. BRACHY-; AMPHIBRACH, TRIBRACH, from Greek brakhus, short.
3. BRACE, BRACERO, BRACHIUM, BRASSARD, BRASSIERE, PRETZEL; (EMBRACE), from Greek comparative brakhiōn, shorter, hence also “upper arm” (as opposed to the longer forearm).

[Pokorny mreghu- 750.]

mūs-

Important derivatives are: mouse, muscle.

A mouse; also a muscle (from the resemblance of a flexing muscle to the movements of a mouse).

1. MOUSE, from Old English mūs (plural mȳs), mouse, from Germanic mūs-* (plural mūsiz*).

1. MURINE, MUSCLE, MUSTELINE, from Latin mūs, mouse.
2. MYELO-, MYO-; EPIMYSIUM, MYOSOTIS, MYSTICETE, PERIMYSIUM, SYRINGOMYELIA, from Greek mus, mouse, muscle.

[Pokorny mūs 752.]

nas-

Important derivatives are: nose, nuzzle, nostril, nasal, nasturtium, pince-nez.
Nose.

3. NOSE, (NUZZLE); NOSTRIL, from Old English nosu, nose, from Germanic zero-grade form nusō*.
4. NESS, from Old English næss, headland, from Germanic nasja-*.
5. Lengthened-grade form nās-*.
 - a. NARIS, from Latin nāris, nostril;
 - b. expressive form nāss-*. NASAL, NASO-; NASTURTIIUM, PINCE-NEZ, from Latin nāsus, nose.
6. NARK², from Romany nāk, nose, from expressive Indo-Aryan form nakka-*.

[Pokorny nas- 755, neu-ks- 768.]

nāu-

Important derivatives are: naval, navigate, navy, nausea, nautical, nautilus, noise, astronaut.
Boat.

Contracted from naəu-*.

4. NACELLE, NAVAL, NAVE¹, NAVICULAR, NAVIGATE, (NAVY), from Latin nāvis, ship.
5. NAUSEA, NAUTICAL, NAUTILUS, (NOISE); AERONAUT, AQUANAUT,

ARGONAUT, ASTRONAUT, COSMONAUT, from Greek naus, ship, and nautēs, sailor.

[Pokorny 1. nāu- 755.]

ndher-

Important derivatives are: under, inferior, infernal, inferno, infra-.

Under.

- a. UNDER, UNDER-, from Old English under, under;
 - b. U-BOAT, from Old High German untar, under. Both a and b from Germanic under-*.
4. INFERIOR, from Latin īnferus, lower.
 5. INFERNAL, (INFERNO), from Latin īnfernus, lower.
 6. INFRA-, from Latin īnfrā, below.

[Pokorny ndhos 771.]

ne

Important derivatives are: naught, naughty, neither, never, *no*¹, *no*², none, *nor*¹, not, nothing, nay, annul, nefarious, neuter, nice, null, nullify, annihilate, non-, neglect, negligee, negotiate, negate, deny, renegade.

Not.

- a. NAUGHT, (NAUGHTY), NEITHER, NEVER, NILL, NO¹, NO², NONE, (NOR¹), (NOT), (NOTHING), from Old English ne, not, and nā, no;
 - b. NAY, from Old Norse ne, not;
 - c. NIX², from Old High German ne, nī, not. a, b, and c all from Germanic ne-, na-.
5. ANNUL, NEFARIOUS, NESCIENCE, NEUTER, (NICE), NULL, NULLIFY, NULLIPARA, from Latin ne-, not, and nūllus, none (ne- + ūllus, any; see oi-no-).
 6. NIMIETY, from Latin nimis, too much, excessively, very (< ne-* mi-s, “not little”; mi-*, little; see mei-²).

7. NIHILISM, (NIHILITY), NIL; ANNIHILATE, from Latin nihil, nīl, nothing, contracted from nihilum, nothing (< ne-hīlum*, “not a whit, nothing at all”; hīlum, a thing, trifle; origin unknown).
8. NON-, from Latin nōn, not (< ne-oinom*, “not one thing”; oino-*, one; see oi-no-).
9. NISI, from Latin nīsī, unless (nī, not, from nei* + sī, if; see SWO-).
- a. NEGLECT, (NEGLIGEE), NEGOTIATE, from Latin prefix neg-, not;
- b. NEGATE; ABNEGATE, DENY, RENEGADE, (RENEGE), from Latin negāre, to deny. Both a and b from Italic nek*, not.
10. NEPENTHE, from Greek nē-, not.
11. Zero-grade combining form ŋ-*.
 - i. UN⁻¹, from Old English un-, not;
 - ii. ZUGUNRUHE, from Old High German un-, not. Both (i) and (ii) from Germanic un-*;
- b. IN⁻¹, from Latin in-, not;
- c. A⁻¹, (AN-), from Greek a-, an-, not;
- d. AHIMSA, AMRITA, from Sanskrit a-, an-, not.

[Pokorny ne 756.]

nebh-

Important derivatives are: nebula, nebulous, nimbus.
Cloud.

1. Suffixed form nebh-(e)lo-*.
 - a. NIFLHEIM, from Old Norse nifl-, “mist” or “dark,” probably from Germanic nibila-*;
 - b. NIBELUNG, from Old High German Nibulunc, Nibilung, from Germanic suffixed patronymic form nibul-unga-*, beside Old High German nebul, mist, fog, from Germanic nebla-*.

2. Suffixed form nebh-elā-*.
 - a. NEBULA, NEBULOUS, from Latin nebula, cloud;
 - b. NEPHELINE; NEPHELOMETER, from Greek nephelē, cloud.
3. Suffixed form nebh-es-*. NEPHOLOGY, from Greek nephos, cloud.
4. Nasalized form ne-m-bh-*. NIMBUS, from Latin nimbus, rain, cloud, aura.

[Pokorny (enebh-) 315.]

ned-

Important derivatives are: *net*¹, nettle, node, nodule, annex, connect.

To bind, tie.

3. O-grade form nod-*.
 - a. NET¹, from Old English net(t), a net, from Germanic nati-*;
 - b. NETTLE, from Old English netel(e), netle, nettle, from Germanic nat-ilo*, a nettle (nettles or plants of closely related genera such as hemp were used as a source of fiber);
 - c. OUCH², from Anglo- Norman nouch, brooch, from Germanic nat-sk-*.
4. Lengthened o-grade form nōdo-*. NODE, NODULE, NODUS; DÈNOUEMENT, from Latin nōdus, a knot.
5. With re-formation of the root. NEXUS; (ADNEXA), ANNEX, CONNECT, from Latin nectere (past participle nexus), to tie, bind, connect.

[Pokorny 1. ned- 758.]

nēhw-iz

The following entry is not, strictly speaking, Indo-European, since it is represented in only one branch of the family. Important derivatives are: near, neighbor, next, nigh. [Not, strictly speaking, Indo-European.]

Near.

Germanic root. NEAR, NEIGHBOR, NEXT, NIGH, from Old English nēah, near.

nek-¹

Important derivatives are: pernicious, nuisance, innocent, innocuous, noxious, obnoxious, necrosis, necromancy, nectar, nectarine.

Death.

4. INTERNECINE, PERNICIOUS, from Latin nex (stem nec-), death.
5. Suffixed (causative) o-grade form nok-eyo-*. NOCENT, NOCUOUS, NUISANCE; INNOCENT, INNOCUOUS, from Latin nocēre, to injure, harm.
6. Suffixed o-grade form nok-s-*. NOXIOUS; OBNOXIOUS, from Latin noxa, injury, hurt, damage entailing liability.
7. Suffixed full-grade form nek-ro-*. NECRO-, NECROSIS; NECROMANCY, from Greek nekros, corpse.
8. NECTAR, (NECTARINE), from Greek nektar, the drink of the gods, “overcoming death” (tar-*, overcoming; see terə-²).

[Pokorny nek̂- 762.]

nek-²

Important derivatives are: enough, oncology.

To reach, attain.

- I. O-grade form nok-*. ENOUGH, from Old English genōg, enough, from Germanic ganōga-, sufficient, from ga-nah, “suffices” (ga-*, intensive prefix; see kom).
- II. Variant form enk-*.
 1. ONCOGENESIS, ONCOLOGY, from Greek onkos, a burden, mass, hence a tumor, from reduplicated enenkein, to carry.

2. Compound root bhrenk-* (see bher¹).

[Pokorny enek- 316.]

nek^w-t-

Important derivatives are: night, nocturnal, equinox.

Night.

O-grade form nok^w-t-*.

5. NIGHT, from Old English niht, neaht, night, from Germanic naht-*.
6. NOCTI-, (NOCTURN), NOCTURNAL, EQUINOX, from Latin nox (stem noct-), night.
7. NOCTUID, NOCTULE, from Latin noctua, night owl.
8. NYCTALOPIA, NYCTITROPISM, from Greek nux (stem nukt-), night.

[Pokorny nek^u(t)- 762.]

nem-

Important derivatives are: numb, nimble, nemesis, economy, astronomy, autonomous, metronome, nomad, number, enumerate.

To assign, allot; also to take.

- a. NIM, NUMB; (BENUMB), from Old English niman, to take, seize;
 - b. NIMBLE, from Old English nāmel, quick to seize, and numol, quick at learning, seizing;
 - c. NIM², from Old High German n²man, to take. a, b, and c all from Germanic nem-*.
5. NEMESIS; ECONOMY, from Greek nemein, to allot.
 6. O-grade form nom-*.
 - a. NOME, -NOMY; ANOMIE, ANTINOMIAN, ANTINOMY, (ASTRONOMER), (ASTRONOMY), AUTONOMOUS, DEUTERONOMY, METRONOME, NOMOGRAPH, NOMOLOGY, NOMOTHETIC, NUMISMATIC, from

Greek nomos, portion, usage, custom, law, division, district;

- b. NOMA, from Greek nomē, pasturage, grazing, hence a spreading, a spreading ulcer;
- c. NOMAD, from Greek nomas, wandering in search of pasture;
- d. NUMMULAR, NUMMULITE, from Greek nomimos, legal.

7. Perhaps suffixed o-grade form nom-eso-*. NUMBER; ENUMERATE, SUPERNUMERARY, from Latin numerus, number, division.

[Pokorny 1. nem- 763.]

nepōt-

Important derivatives are: nephew, nepotism, niece.

Grandson, nephew. Feminine neptī-*.

NEPHEW, NEPOTISM, NIECE, from Latin nepōs, grandson, nephew, and neptis, granddaughter, niece.

[Pokorny nepōt- 764.]

ner-¹

Important derivatives are: Nordic, north, *Norman*¹, northern, Norse.

Under, also on the left; hence, with an eastward orientation, north.

Suffixed zero-grade form nṛ-t(r)o-*.

- a. NORDIC, NORTH, from Old English north, north;
- b. NORTHERN, from Old English northerne, northern;
- c. NORSE, from Middle Dutch nort, north;
- d. NORMAN¹, NORWEGIAN, from Old Norse nordhr, north.

[Pokorny 2. ner- 765.]

ner-²

A derivative is: andro-.

Also aner-Man; basic sense “vigorous, vital, strong.” Oldest root form aner-*.

ANDRO-, -ANDROUS, -ANDRY; PHILANDER, from Greek anēr (stem andr-, from zero-grade anr-*), man.

[Pokorny 1. ner-(t)- 765.]

nes-¹

Important derivatives are: harness, nostalgia.

To return safely home.

3. HARNESS, from Old French harneis, harness, possibly from a Germanic source akin to Old English, Old High German (in composition), and Old Norse nest, food for a journey, from Germanic nes-tam*.
4. Suffixed o-grade form nos-to-*. NOSTALGIA, from Greek nostos, a return home.

[Pokorny nes- 766.]

nes-²

Important derivatives are: us, our, ours.

Oblique cases of the personal pronoun of the first person plural.

For the nominative see we-.

1. Zero-grade form us-*. US, from Old English ūs, us (accusative), from Germanic uns*.
2. Suffixed (possessive) zero-grade form us-ero-*. OUR, OURS, from Old English ūser, ūre, our, from Germanic unsara-*.
3. O-grade form nos-*, with suffixed (possessive) form nos-t(e)ro-. NOSTRUM; PATERNOSTER, from Latin nōs, we, and noster, our.

[Pokorny 3. ne- 758.]

neu-

Important derivatives are: announce, denounce, enunciate, pronounce, renounce.
To shout.

Suffixed (participial) o-grade form now-ent-(yo-)*, “shouting.” NUNCIO;
ANNOUNCE, DENOUNCE, ENUNCIATE, PRONOUNCE, RENOUNCE, from Latin nūntius, “announcing,” hence a messenger, also a message, and nūntium, message.

[Pokorny 1. neu- 767.]

newŋ

Important derivatives are: nine, nineteen, ninety, ninth, November, novena, noon.
Nine.

5. NINE, NINETEEN, NINETY, NINTH, from Old English nigon, nine, with derivatives nigontig, ninety, and nigontēne, nineteen (-tēne, ten; see dekŋ), from Germanic nigun*, variant of niwun*.
6. NOVEMBER, NOVENA; (NONAGENARIAN), from Latin novem, nine (< noven*, with m for n by analogy with the m of septem, seven, and decem, ten).
7. Ordinal form neweno-*. NONA-, NONES, NOON; (NONAGON), (NONANOIC ACID), from Latin nōnus, ninth.
8. Prothetic or prefixed forms enewŋ*, enwŋ*. ENNEAD, from Greek ennea, nine (< ennewa*, enwa-*).

[Pokorny e-neuēn 318.]

newo-

Important derivatives are: new, neo-, neon, nova, novel¹, novel², novelty, novice, innovate, renovate.

New.

Related to nu-.

4. Suffixed form new-yo-*.
 - a. NEW, from Old English nēowe, nīwe, new;
 - b. SPAN-NEW, from Old Norse nȳr, new. Both a and b from Germanic neuja-*.

5. Basic form newo-*. NEO-, NEON, NEOTERIC; MISONEISM, from Greek newos, neos, new.
6. Suffixed form new-aro-*. ANEROID, from Greek nēron, water, from nēros, fresh (used of fish and of water), contracted from nearos, young, fresh.
7. Basic form newo-*. NOVA, NOVATION, NOVEL¹, NOVEL², (NOVELTY), NOVICE; INNOVATE, RENOVATE, from Latin novus, new.
8. Suffixed form new-er-ko-*. NOVERCAL, from Latin noverca, stepmother (

[Pokorny neuos 709.]

nobh-

Important derivatives are: *nave*², navel, umbilicus.

Also ombh-Navel; later also “central knob,” boss of a shield, hub of a wheel.

- c. NAVE², from Old English nafu, nafa, hub of a wheel;
- d. AUGER, from Old English nafogār, auger, from Germanic compound nabō-gaizaz*, tool for piercing wheel hubs (gaizaz*, spear, piercing tool). Both a and b from Germanic nabō*.
6. Variant form ombh-*. UMBO, from Latin umbō, boss of a shield.
7. Suffixed form nobh-alo-*. NAVEL, from Old English nafela, navel, from Germanic nabalō*.
8. Suffixed variant form ombh-alo-*.
 - a. UMBILICUS; NOMBRIL, from Latin umbilīcus, navel;
 - b. OMPHALOS, from Greek omphalos, navel.

[Pokorny 1. (enebh-) 314.]

nogh-

An important derivative is: nail.

Also enogh-, ongh-Nail, claw.

3. Suffixed (diminutive) form nogh-ela-*. NAIL, from Old English nægl, nail, from Germanic nagla-*.
4. Form ənogh-*. ONYX; PARONYCHIA, PERIONYCHIUM, SARDONYX, from Greek onux (stem onukh-), nail.
5. Variant form ongh-*. UNGUIS, from Latin unguis, nail, claw, hoof, with diminutive ungula, hoof, claw, talon (< ongh-elā-*).

[Pokorny onogh- 780.]

nog^w-

Important derivatives are: naked, nude, denude, gymnasium, gymnast.

Naked.

3. Suffixed forms nog^w-eto-, nog^w-oto-. NAKED, from Old English nacod, naked, from Germanic nakweda-, nakwada-.
4. Suffixed form nog^w-edo-*. NUDE, NUDI-; DENUDE, from Latin nūdus, naked.
5. Suffixed form nog^w-mo-*. GYMNASIUM, (GYMNAST); GYMNOSOPHIST, GYMNOSPERM, from Greek gymnos, naked.

[Pokorny nog^u- 769.]

nō-men-

Important derivatives are: name, nominal, nominate, noun, ignominy, misnomer, pronoun, renown, anonymous, eponym, homonymous, metonymy, pseudonym, synonymous.

Name.

Earlier form (ə)noə-mn̥, zero-grade form (ə)nə-men-.

7. NAME, from Old English nama, name, from Germanic namōn-*.
8. NOMINAL, NOMINATE, NOUN; AGNOMEN, (BINOMIAL), COGNOMEN, DENOMINATE, IGNOMINY, MISNOMER, NOMENCLATOR, NUNCUPATIVE, PRAENOMEN, (PRONOUN), RENOWN, from Latin nōmen, name, reputation.
9. ONOMASTIC, -ONYM, -ONYMY; ANONYMOUS, ANTONOMASIA, EPONYM,

(EPONYMOUS), EUONYMUS, HETERONYMOUS, HOMONYMOUS, METONYMY, METRONYMIC, ONOMATOPOEIA, (PARONOMASIA), PARONYMOUS, PATRONYMIC, PSEUDONYM, SYNONYMOUS, from Greek onoma, onuma, name.

10. MONIKER, from Old Irish ainm, name.

[Pokorny en(o)mŋ- 321.]

nu-

An important derivative is: now.

Now.

Related to newo-.

7. NOW, from Old English nū, now.
8. QUIDNUNC, from Latin nunc, now (< nun-ce*; -ce, a particle meaning “this,” “here”; see ko-).

[Pokorny nu- 770.]

od-

Important derivatives are: annoy, ennui, noisome, odium.

To hate.

ANNOY, ENNUI, (NOISOME), ODIUM, from Latin ōdī, I hate, and odium, hatred.

[Pokorny 2. od- 773.]

oi-no-

Important derivatives are: a¹, an¹, once, one, alone, atone, lone, lonely, none, eleven, inch¹, ounce¹, union, unite, unity, unanimous, unicorn, universe, any, unique.

One, unique.

I. Basic form oi-no-*.

- a. (A¹), AN¹, ONCE, ONE; (ALONE), ANON, (ATONE), (LONE), (LONELY), NONE, from Old English ān, one;
- b. ELEVEN, from Old English endleofan, eleven, from Germanic compound ain-lif-, “one left (beyond ten),” eleven (lif-, left over; see leik^w-);

- c. EINKORN, TURNVEREIN, from Old High German ein, one. a, b, and c all from Germanic ainaz*.
2. UNI-, UNION, UNITE, UNITY; COADUNATE, TRIUNE, UNANIMOUS, UNICORN, UNIVERSE, from Latin ūnus, one.
3. (see ne) Latin nōn, not (< ne-oinom*, “not one thing”; ne, not).

II. Suffixed form oino-ko-*.

- a. ANY, from Old English ǣnig, one, anyone, from Germanic ainigaz*;
- b. UNIQUE, from Latin ūnicus, sole, single.
- c. INCH¹, OUNCE¹, UNCIAL; (QUINCUNX), from Latin uncia, one twelfth of a unit (unc-, shortened form of ūnc-*).

III. Suffixed form oino-lo-*. (see ne) Latin ūllus, any.

[In Pokorny e- 281.]

oktō(u)

Important derivatives are: eight, octave, octet, October, octogenarian, octopus.
Eight.

- a. EIGHT, EIGHTEEN, EIGHTY, from Old English eahta, eight, with derivatives eahtatig, eighty, and eahtatēne, eighteen (-tēne, ten; see dekṃ);
- b. ATTO-, from Old Norse āttjān, eighteen (tjān, ten; see dekṃ). Both a and b from Germanic ahtō*.
6. OCTANS, OCTANT, OCTAVE, OCTAVO, OCTET, OCTO-, OCTOBER, OCTONARY; OCTODECIMO, OCTOGENARIAN, from Latin oktō, eight.
7. OCTAD, OCTO-; OCTOPUS, from Greek oktō, eight.

[Pokorny oktō 775.]

ōku-

A derivative is: accipiter.

Swift.

7. OXYTOCIC, from Greek ōkus, swift.
8. Possibly altered zero-grade form aku-* in compound aku-petro-, “swift-flying” (pet-ro-, flying; see pet-). ACCIPITER, from Latin accipiter, hawk.

[Pokorny ōku-s 775.] See also ekwo-.

ok^w-

Important derivatives are: eye, daisy, window, eyelet, ocular, inoculate, monocle, myopia, autopsy, synopsis, optic, optometry.

To see.

- e. EYE; DAISY, from Old English ēage, eye;
 - f. WALLEYED, WINDOW, from Old Norse auga, eye;
 - g. OGLE, from Low German oog, oge, eye. a, b, and c all from Germanic augōn-* (with taboo deformation).
12. Suffixed form ok^w-olo-*.
- a. EYELET, OCELLUS, OCULAR, OCULIST, ULLAGE; INOCULATE, MONOCLE, OCULOMOTOR, PINOCHLE, from Latin oculus, eye;
 - b. INVEIGLE, from French aveugle, blind, from Gallo-Latin compound ab-oculus*, blind, modeled on Gaulish ex-ops, blind.
13. Form ok^w-s*. METOPIC, MYOPIA, NYCTALOPIA, PELOPS, PHLOGOPITE, PYROPE, TRICERATOPS, from Greek ōps, eye (and stem op-*, to see).
14. Suffixed form ok^w-ti-*. (OPSIN), -OPIS, -OPSY; AUTOPSY, (IODOPSIN), (RHODOPSIN), SYNOPSIS, from Greek opsis, sight, appearance.
15. Suffixed form ok^w-to-*. OPTIC; DIOPTR, OPTOMETRY, PANOPTIC, from Greek optos, seen, visible.
16. Suffixed form ok^w-ā*. METOPE, from Greek opē, opening.

17. Suffixed form ok^w-mŋ*. OMMATIDIUM, OMMATOPHORE, from Greek omma (< opma*), eye.
18. Suffixed form ok^w-tro-*. CATOPTRIC, from Greek katoptron, “back-looker,” mirror (kata-, down, back; see kat-).
19. OPHTHALMO-; EXOPHTHALMOS, from Greek ophthalmos, eye (with taboo deformation).
20. Zero-grade form ək^w-* (of oldest full-grade form əok^w-*).
 - a. (see ant-) Latin antīquus, “appearing before, having prior aspect,” former (anti-*, before);
 - b. (see āter-) Latin ātrōx, “black-looking,” frightful (atro-*, black);
 - c. (see ghwer-) ferōx, “wild-looking,” fierce (ghwero-*, wild).

[Pokorny ok^w- 775.]

op-

Important derivatives are: *opera*¹, operate, opus, cooperate, inure, maneuver, manure, opulent, omni-, optimum, copious, copy, cornucopia.

To work, produce in abundance.

5. Suffixed form op-es-*. OPERA¹, OPERATE, OPEROSE, OPUS; COOPERATE, INURE, MANEUVER, MANURE, OFFICIAL, from Latin opus (stem oper-), work, with its denominative verb operārī, to work, and secondary noun opera, work.
6. (see dhē-) Latin officium, service, duty, business (< opi-fici-om*, “performance of work”; -fici-*, doing).
7. Suffixed form op-en-ent-*. OPULENT, from Latin dissimilated opulentus, rich, wealthy.
8. Suffixed form op-ni-*. OMNI-, OMNIBUS; OMNIUM-GATHERUM, from Latin omnis, all (< “abundant”).
9. Suffixed (superlative) form op-tamo-*. OPTIMUM, from Latin optimus, best (< “wealthiest”).

10. COPIOUS, COPY; CORNUCOPIA, from Latin cōpia, profusion, plenty, from prefixed form co-op-* (co-, collective and intensive prefix; see kom).

[Pokorny 1. op- 780.]

or-

Derivatives are: erne, ornitho-.

Large bird.

6. Suffixed form or-n-*. ERNE, from Old English earn, eagle, from Germanic arnuz*, eagle.
7. Suffixed form or-n-īth-*. ORNITHO-; AEPYORNIS, ICHTHYORNIS, NOTORNIS, from Greek ornis (stem ornith-), bird.

[Pokorny 1. er- 325.]

orbh-

Important derivatives are: orphan, robot.

To put asunder, separate.

Suffixed form orbh-o-*, “bereft of father,” also “deprived of free status.”

- a. ORPHAN, from Greek orphanos, orphaned;
- b. ROBOT, from Czech robota, compulsory labor, drudgery, from Old Church Slavonic rabota, servitude, from rabŭ, slave, from Old Slavic orbŭ*.

[Pokorny orbho- 781.]

ors-

Important derivatives are: *ass*², squirrel.

Buttocks, backside.

3. Suffixed form ors-o-*.
- a. ASS², from Old English ærs, ears, backside;
- b. DODO, from Middle Dutch ærs, backside, tail. Both a and b from Germanic arsaz*.

4. Suffixed form ors-ā-*.

- a. URO-², -UROUS; ANTHURIUM, ANURAN, CYNOSURE, DASYURE, EREMURUS, OXYURIASIS, SQUIRREL, TRICHURIASIS, from Greek oura, tail;
- b. SILURID, from Greek silouros, sheatfish (oura), probably from ors-.

[Pokorny ers- 340.]

ōs-

Important derivatives are: oral, usher.

Mouth.

9. ORAL, OS¹, OSCILLATE, OSCULATE, OSCULUM, OSTIARY, OSTIUM, USHER; INOSCULATE, ORIFICE, ORINASAL, OROTUND, OSCITANCY, (PERORAL), from Latin ōs (stem ōr-), mouth, face, orifice, and derivative ōstium (ōs-to-*), door.
10. AURIGA, from Latin aurīga, charioteer (< ōr-ig-*, “he who manages the (horse's) bit”; -īg-, lengthened from ig-, driving, from ag-*; see ag-), possibly from ōs-.

[Pokorny 1. ōus- 784.]

ost-

Important derivatives are: ossify, osteo-, ostracize, oyster.

Bone.

8. OS², OSSEOUS, OSSICLE, OSSUARY; OSSIFRAGE, OSSIFY, from Latin os (stem oss-), bone.
9. OSTEO-; ENDOSTEUM, EXOSTOSIS, PERIOSTEUM, SYNOSTOSIS, TELEOST, from Greek osteon, bone.
10. Suffixed form ost-r-*.
 - a. OSTRACIZE, OSTRACOD, from Greek ostrakon, shell, potsherd;

- b. OYSTER, from Greek ostreon, oyster;
- c. ASTRAGAL, ASTRAGALUS, from variant form in Greek astragalos, vertebra, ball of the ankle joint, knucklebone, Ionic molding.

[Pokorny ost(h)- 783.]

ous-

Important derivatives are: *ear*¹, *aural*¹, *scout*¹.

Also aus-Ear.

- 3. Suffixed form ous-en-*. EAR¹, from Old English ēare, ear, from Germanic auzōn-*.
- 4. Suffixed form aus-i-*. AURAL¹, AURICLE; AURIFORM, ORMER, from Latin auris, ear.
- 5. AUSCULTATION, SCOUT¹, from Latin auscultāre, to listen to (aus-* + kli-to-*, inclined; see klei-).
- 6. Suffixed basic form ous-os-*.
 - a. OTIC, OTO-; MYOSOTIS, PAROTID GLAND, from Greek ous (stem ōt-), ear;
 - b. (see slēg-) Greek lagōs, hare (< lag-ous-, “with drooping ears”; lag-, to droop).

[Pokorny ōus- 785.]

owi-

Important derivatives are: ewe, ovine.

Sheep.

- 5. EWE, from Old English ēwe, eōwu, ewe, from Germanic awi-*.
- 6. OVINE, from Latin ovis, sheep.

[Pokorny oui-s 784.]

pā-

Important derivatives are: fodder, forage, fur, pabulum, food, feed, foster, pasture, antipasto, pester, repast, pastor, pantry, companion, company.

To protect, feed.

Contracted from paə-*.

1. Suffixed form pā-trom*.
 - a. FODDER, from Old English fōdor, fodder;
 - b. FORAGE, from Old French feurre, fodder;
 - c. FUR, from Old French forre, fuerre, trimming made from animal skin, fur (< “sheath, case, lining”). a, b, and c all from Germanic fōdram*.
2. Suffixed form pā-dhlom* (doublet of pā-trom*). PABULUM, from Latin pābulum, food, fodder.
3. Extended form pāt-*.
 - a. FOOD, from Old English fōda, food, from Germanic fōd-*, food;
 - b. FEED, from Old English fēdan, to feed, from Germanic denominative fōdjan*, to give food to;
 - c. suffixed form pāt-tro-*. FOSTER, from Old English fōstor, food, nourishment, from Germanic fōstra-*.
4. Extended form pās-*.
 - a. suffixed form pās-sko-*. PASTURE; ANTIPASTO, REPAST, from Latin pāscere, to feed;
 - b. suffixed form pās-tor-*. PASTOR, PESTER, from Latin pāstor, shepherd;
 - c. suffixed form pās-t-ni-*. PANADA, PANATELA, PANNIER, (PANOCCHA), PANTRY, PASTILLE, (PENUCHE); APPANAGE, COMPANION¹, (COMPANY), from Latin pānis, bread.
5. Suffixed form pā-tor-*. BEZOAR, from Persian pād, protecting against, from Iranian pātar-* (Avestan pātar-).

6. Suffixed form pā-won-*, protector. SATRAP, from Old Persian khshathra-pāvā, protector of the province.

[Pokorny pā- 787, 1. pō(i)- 839.]

pag-

Important derivatives are: fang, *compact*¹, impinge, *pay*¹, peace, appease, pacific, pacify, pact, *pale*¹, palisade, *pole*², impale, travail, travel, palette, pagan, peasant, *page*¹, pageant, propagate, pectin.

Also pak-To fasten.

8. Lengthened-grade form pāk-*. FAY¹, from Old English fēgan, to fit closely, from Germanic fōgjan*, to join, fit.
9. Nasalized form pa-n-g-, also pa-n-k-.
- i. FANG, from Old English fang, feng, plunder, booty, from Germanic fangam*, fangiz*;
 - ii. VANG, from Dutch vangen, to catch, from remade Germanic verb fangan*;
 - iii. NEWFANGLED, from Middle English -fangel*, taken, akin to Old High German -fangolon, to close, from Germanic fanglōn*, to grasp. (i), (ii), and (iii) all derivatives of Germanic fanhan*, to seize;
- b. COMPACT¹, IMPINGE, from Latin pangere, to fasten.
10. Root form pāk-*.
- a. PACE², PAY¹, PEACE; APPEASE, PACIFIC, PACIFY, from Latin pāx, peace (
 - b. PACT, from Latin pacīscī, to agree.
11. Suffixed form pak-slo-*.
- a. PALE¹, PALISADE, PAWL, PEEL³, POLE²; IMPALE, TRAVAIL, (TRAVEL), from Latin pālus, stake (fixed in the ground);
 - b. PALETTE, PEEL², from Latin pāla, spade, probably from pag-.

12. Lengthened-grade form pāg-*.

- a. PAGAN, PEASANT, from Latin pāgus, “boundary staked out on the ground,” district, village, country;
- b. PAGE¹, PAGEANT, from Latin pāgina, “trellis to which a row of vines is fixed,” hence (by metaphor) column of writing, page;
- c. PROPAGATE, from Latin prōpāgāre, to propagate (prō-, before, in front; see per¹);
- d. PECTIN, PEGMATITE; AREOPAGUS, from Greek pēgnunai, to fasten, coagulate, with derivative pagos (< pag-o-*), mass, hill.

[Pokorny pāk- 787.]

pan-

Important derivatives are: vane, pane, panel.

Fabric.

- a. VANE, from Old English fana, flag, banner, weathercock;
 - b. (see g^when-) Germanic compound gund-fanōn-, “battle-flag.” Both a and b from Germanic fanōn.
9. Extended form panno-*. PANE, PANEL, from Latin pannus, piece of cloth, rag.

[Pokorny pan- 788.]

pant-

Derivatives are: pan-, pancreas.

All.

Attested only in Tocharian and Greek. PAN-; DIAPASON, PANCRATIUM, PANCREAS, from Greek pas (neuter pan, stem pant-), all.

[In Pokorny 1. keu- 592.]

papa

Important derivatives are: papa, pope.

A child's word for "father," a linguistic near- universal found in many languages.

21. PAPA, from French papa, father.
22. PAPPUS, POPE, from Greek pappas, father, and pappos, grandfather.

[Pokorny pap(p)a 789.]

past-

Important derivatives are: *fast*¹, steadfast, fasten, *fast*², breakfast.

Solid, firm.

- a. FAST¹; STEADFAST, from Old English fæst, fixed, firm;
 - b. AVAST, from Middle Dutch vast, firm, fast. Both a and b from Germanic fastuz*, firm, fast.
11. FASTEN, from Old English fæstnian, to fasten, establish, from Germanic fastinōn*, to make firm or fast.
 12. HANDFAST, from Old Norse fasta, to fix, affirm, from Germanic causative fastjan*, to make firm.
 - a. FAST², from Old English fæstan, to abstain from food;
 - b. BREAKFAST, from Old Norse fasta, to abstain from food. Both a and b from Germanic fastēn*, to hold fast, observe abstinence.

[Pokorny pasto- 789.]

pau-

Important derivatives are: few, paucity, paraffin, pauper, poor, poverty, foal, filly, pony, pullet, puerile, encyclopedia, orthopedics.

Few, little.

- I. Adjectival form pau-*, few, little.

1. FEW, from Old English fēawe, few, from Germanic fawaz*.

2. Suffixed form pau-ko-*. PAUCITY, POCO, from Latin paucus, little, few.
3. Suffixed form pau-ro-* in metathetical form par-wo-*. PARAFFIN, PARVOVIRUS, from Latin parvus, little, small, neuter parvum, becoming parum, little, rarely.
4. Compound pau-paros*, producing little, poor (par-os*, producing; see perə-¹). PAUPER, POOR, POVERTY, from Latin pauper, poor.

II. Suffixed reduced variant form pu-lo-*, young of an animal.

1. FOAL, from Old English fola, young horse, colt, from Germanic fulōn-*.
2. FILLY, from Old Norse fylja, young female horse, from Germanic derivative fuljō*.

III. Basic form pau-* and variant form pǔ-*, boy, child.

1. Suffixed form pu-ero-*. PUERILE, PUERPERAL, from Latin puer, child.
2. Extended form put-*.
 - a. POLTROON, PONY, POOL², POULARD, PULLET; CATCHPOLE, from Latin pullus (< putslo-*), young of an animal, chicken;
 - b. PUSILLANIMOUS, from Latin pusillus (< putslo-lo*), old diminutive of pullus.
3. Suffixed form paw-id-*. PEDO⁻²; ENCYCLOPEDIA, ORTHOPEDICS, from Greek pais (stem paid-), child (paideia, education).

[Pokorny pōu- 842.]

ped-

Important derivatives are: foot, fetter, fetlock, pawn², pedal, pedestrian, peon, pioneer, millipede, trivet, expedite, impede, impeach, pew, podium, octopus, platypus, podiatry, pajamas, fetch¹, impair, pessimism, impeccable.

Foot.

I. Nominal root.

1. Lengthened o-grade form pōd-*. FOOT, from Old English fōt, foot, from Germanic fōt-*.
2. Suffixed form ped-ero-*. FETTER, from Old English fetor, feter, leg iron, fetter, from Germanic feterō*.
3. Suffixed form ped-el-*. FETLOCK, from Middle English fitlock, fetlock, fetlock, from a Germanic source akin to Old High German vizzelach, fetlock, from Germanic fetel-*.
4. Basic form ped-*. PAWN², -PED, PEDAL, PEDATE, PEDESTRIAN, PEDI-, PEDICEL, PEDUNCLE, (PEON), PES, PIONEER; MILLIPEDE, SESQUIPEDAL, (TRIPEDAL), TRIVET, VAMP¹, from Latin pēs (stem ped-), foot.
5. Form ped-yo-*.
 - a. EXPEDITE, from Latin expedire, to free from a snare (ex-, out of; see eghs);
 - b. IMPEDE, from Latin impedire, “to put in fetters, hobble, shackle,” entangle, hinder (in-, in; see en).
6. Suffixed form ped-ikā*. IMPEACH, from Latin pedica, fetter, snare.
7. O-grade form pod-*.
 - a. (PEW), -POD, PODITE, PODIUM; ANTIPODES, APODAL, APPOGGIATURA, APUS, LYCOPODIUM, MONOPODIUM, OCTOPUS, (PELECYPOD), PHALAROPE, PLATYPUS, PODAGRA, PODIATRY, PODOPHYLLIN, POLYP, (POLYPOD), SYMPODIUM, from Greek pous (stem pod-), foot;
 - b. PODZOL, from Russian pod, under.
8. Suffixed form ped-ya*. TRAPEZIUM, from Greek peza, foot.
9. Suffixed form ped-o-*.
 - a. PEDO⁻¹; PARALLELEPIPED, from Greek pedon, ground, soil;
 - b. (PAISA), (PICE), PIE³, PUG³, from Sanskrit padam, footstep, foot, and pāt, foot;
 - c. PAJAMA, TEAPOY, from Middle Persian pāi, leg, foot;

d. lengthened-grade form pēd-o-*.

- i. PILOT, from Greek pēdon, rudder, steering oar;
- ii. DIAPEDESIS, from Greek pēdan, to leap.

10. Suffixed form ped-ī-. CYPRIPIEDUM, from Greek pedilon, sandal.

II. Verbal root ped-*, to walk, stumble, fall.

1. FETCH¹, from Old English fetian, feccean, to bring back, from Germanic fetēn*.
 - a. Suffixed (comparative) form ped-yos-*. PEJORATION; IMPAIR, from Latin pēior, worse (< “stumbling”);
 - b. suffixed (superlative) form ped-samo-*. PESSIMISM, from Latin pessimus, worst;
 - c. suffixed form ped-ko-*. PECCABLE, PECCADILLO, PECCANT; IMPECCABLE, from Latin peccāre, to stumble, sin. a, b, and c all from Latin ped-*.

[Pokorny 2. pěd- 790.]

pē(i)-

Important derivatives are: fiend, passion, passive, patient, compassion.

Also pē-, pī--To hurt. Contracted from peə(i)-*.

5. Suffixed (participial) form pī-ont-* (< piə-ont-*). FIEND, from Old English fēond, fīond, enemy, devil, from Germanic fijand-*, hating, hostile.
6. Possibly pē-* in suffixed zero-grade pə-to-*. PASSIBLE, PASSION, PASSIVE, PATIENT; COMPASSION, from Latin patī, to suffer.

[Pokorny pē(i)- 792.]

peiə-

Important derivatives are: fat, pituitary, *pine*¹, Irish.

To be fat, swell.

11. Extended o-grade form poid-*. FAT, from Old English fāet(t), fat, from Germanic past participle faitidaz*, fattened, from derivative verb faitjan*, to fatten, from faitaz*, plump, fat.

12. Possibly suffixed zero-grade form pī-tu-*. PIP⁵, PITUITARY, from Latin pītuīta, moisture exuded from trees, gum, phlegm.
13. Possibly suffixed zero-grade form pī-nu-*. PINE¹, PINEAL, PINNACE, PIÒON, PINOT; PIÒA CLOTH, from Latin pīnus, pine tree (yielding a resin).
14. Suffixed zero-grade form pī-won-*. PROPIONIC ACID, from Greek piōn, fat.
15. Suffixed zero-grade form pī-wer-*, “fat, fertile.”
 - a. (ERSE), IRISH, from Old English īras, the Irish, from īwer-iū*, the prehistoric Celtic name for Ireland;
 - b. PIERIAN SPRING, from Greek Pieria, a region of Macedonia, from Pīwer-iā*.

[Pokorny peǵ(ə)- 793.]

peig-

Important derivatives are: *file*², paint, picture, picturesque, pigment, pimento, pinto, depict.

Also peik-To cut, mark (by incision).

11. Alternate form peik-*. FILE², from Old English fīl, file, from Germanic fīhala*, cutting tool.
12. Nasalized zero-grade form pi-n-g-*. PAINT, PICTOR, PICTURE, PICTURESQUE, PIGMENT, PIMENTO, PINT, PINTO; DEPICT, PICTOGRAPH, from Latin pingere, to embroider, tattoo, paint, picture.
13. Suffixed zero-grade form pik-ro-*. PICRO-, from Greek pikros, sharp, bitter.
14. O-grade form poik-*. PLATY², POIKILOtherm, from Greek poikilos, spotted, pied, various.

[Pokorny 1. peig- 794.]

peku-

Important derivatives are: fellow, fee, pecuniary, peculiar.

Wealth, movable property.

- c. FELLOW, from Old Norse fē, property, cattle;
 - d. FEE, from Old French fie, fief;
 - e. FEUD², from Medieval Latin feudum, feudal estate. a, b, and c all from Germanic fehu-*.
7. PECORINO, from Latin pecus, cattle.
 8. Suffixed form peku-n-*. PECUNIARY; IMPECUNIOUS, from Latin pecūnia, property, wealth.
 9. Suffixed form peku-l-*. PECULATE, PECULIAR, from Latin pecūlium, riches in cattle, private property.

[In Pokorny 2. pek̂- 797.]

pek^w-

Important derivatives are: cook, cuisine, kitchen, apricot, biscuit, concoct, precocious, culinary, kiln, pumpkin, peptic, dyspepsia.

To cook, ripen.

7. Assimilated form (in Italic and Celtic) k^wek^w-*.
 - a. COOK, CUISINE, KITCHEN, QUITTOR; APRICOT, BISCUIT, CONCOCT, DECOCT, PRECOCIOUS, RICOTTA, TERRA COTTA, from Latin coquere, to cook;
 - b. CULINARY, KILN, from Latin culīna, kitchen, deformed from coquīna.
8. PEPO; PUMPKIN, from Greek pepōn, ripe.
9. PEPTIC, PEPTIZE; DRUPE, EUPEPTIC, PEPSIN, PEPTONE, from Greek peptein, to cook, ripen, digest (peptos, cooked).
10. DYSPEPSIA, from Greek -pepsia, digestion.
11. PUKKA, from Sanskrit pakva-, ripe.

[Pokorny pek^u- 798.]

pel-¹

Important derivatives are: *pale*¹, pallid, pallor, appall, palomino, falcon, poliomyelitis.

Pale.

4. Suffixed variant form pal-wo-*.
 - i. FALLOW DEER, from Old English fealu, fealo, reddish yellow;
 - ii. FAUVISM, from Frankish falw-, reddish-yellow. Both (i) and (ii) from Germanic falwaz*;
 - b. PALE², PALLID, PALLOR; APPALL, from Latin pallēre, to be pale;
 - c. PALOMINO, from Latin palumbēs (influenced in form by Latin columbus, dove), ringdove, “gray-bird.”
5. Probably suffixed form pel-ko-*. FALCON; (GYRFALCON), from Late Latin falcō, falcon, from Germanic falkōn-*, falcon (
6. Suffixed extended form peli-wo-*.
 - a. PELOPS, from Greek pelios, dark;
 - b. o-grade form poli-wo-*. POLIOMYELITIS, from Greek polios, gray.
7. PELARGONIUM, from Greek pelargos (< pelawo-argos*), stork (argos, white; see arg-), perhaps from pel-¹.

[Pokorny 6. pel- 804.]

pel-²

Important derivatives are: *fold*¹, -fold, multiple, triple.

To fold.

9. Extended o-grade form polt-*.
 - a. FOLD¹, from Old English fealdan, faldan, to fold;
 - b. FALTBOAT, from Old High German faldan, to fold;

- c. FURBELOW, from Italian falda, fold, flap, pleat;
 - i. FALDSTOOL, from Medieval Latin compound faldistolium, folding chair;
 - ii. FAUTEUIL, from Old French faldestoel, faldstool. Both (i) and (ii) from Germanic compound faldistōlaz*, “folding stool” (stōlaz*, stool; see stā-);
- d. -FOLD, from Old English -feald, -fald, -fold, from Germanic combining form -falthaz*, -faldaz*. a, b, c, d, and e all from Germanic falthan*, faldan*.

10. Combining form -plo-*.

- a. DECUPLE, MULTIPLE, OCTUPLE, QUADRUPLE, QUINTUPLE, SEPTUPLE, (SEXTUPLE), TRIPLE, from Latin -plus, -fold (as in tripplus, threefold);
- b. (-PLOID); TRIPLOBLASTIC, from Greek -plos, -ploos, -fold (as in haploos, haplous, single, and triploos, triple).

[Pokorny 3. a. pel- 802.]

pel⁻³

Important derivatives are: film, *pelt*¹, surplice.

Skin, hide.

- 9. Suffixed form pel-no-*. FELL³, from Old English fell, skin, hide, from Germanic felnam*.
- 10. FILM, from Old English filmen, membrane, from Germanic suffixed form fel-man-ja-*.
- 11. Suffixed form pel-ni-*. PELISSE, PELLICLE, (PELT¹), PELTRY, PILLION; PELLAGRA, SURPLICE, from Latin pellis, skin.
- 12. ERYSIPELAS, from Greek -pelas, skin.
- 13. Suffixed form pel-to-*. PELTATE, from Greek peltē, a shield (made of hide).

[Pokorny 3. b. pel- 803.]

pel-⁴

An important derivative is: monopoly.

To sell.

Lengthened o-grade form pōl-*. BIBLIPOLE, MONOPOLY, from Greek pōlein, to sell.

[Pokorny 5. pel- 804.]

pel-⁵

Important derivatives are: anvil, *felt*¹, filter, pulsate, *pulse*¹, push, compel, expel, propel, repel, polish, appeal.

To thrust, strike, drive.

I. Suffixed form pel-de-*.

a. ANVIL, from Old English anfilt(e), anfealt, anvil (“something beaten on”);

i. FELT¹, from Old English felt, felt;

ii. FILTER, from Medieval Latin filtrum, filter, piece of felt. Both (i) and (ii) from Germanic feltaz*, filtiz*, compressed wool. Both a and b from Germanic felt-, falt-, to beat.

2. PELT², POUSETTE, PULSATE, PULSE¹, PUSH; COMPEL, DISPEL, EXPEL, IMPEL, PROPEL, REPEL, from Latin pellere (past participle pulsus), to push, drive, strike.

a. Suffixed o-grade form pol-o-*, fuller of cloth. POLISH, from Latin polīre, to make smooth, polish (

b. suffixed o-grade form pol-o-* (with different accentuation from the preceding), fulfilled (of cloth). INTERPOLATE, from Latin compound adjective inter-polis (also interpolus), refurbished (inter-, between; see en).

II. Extended form pelə-*.

1. Present stem pelnā-*.

- a. APPEAL, from Latin appellāre, “to drive to,” address, entreat, appeal, call (ad-, to; see ad-);
 - b. COMPELLATION, from Latin compellāre, to accost, address (com-, intensive prefix; see kom).
2. Possible suffixed zero-grade extended adverbial form pl̥a-ti-, or locative plural pl̥a-si. PLESIOSAUR, from Greek plēsios, near (plāti* or plāsi*).

[Pokorny 2. a. pel- 801.]

pel̥-¹

Important derivatives are: *full*¹, fill, plenitude, plenty, replenish, folk, plural, plus, surplus, poly-, accomplish, complete, compliment, comply, deplete, expletive, implement, supply, plebeian, plethora.

To fill; with derivatives referring to abundance and multitude. Variant plē-, contracted from plea-.

I. Zero-grade form pl̥a-*.

1. Suffixed form pl̥a-no-* FULL¹, from Old English full, full, from Germanic fulnaz*, fullaz*, full.
2. FILL, from Old English fyllan, to fill (from Germanic derivative verb fulljan*, to fill), and fyllu, full amount (from Germanic abstract noun full-inō-*, fullness).
3. PLENARY, PLENITUDE, PLENTY, PLENUM; PLENIPOTENTIARY, REPLENISH, TERREPLEIN, from Latin plēnus, full, from Latin stem plēno-, replacing plāno- (influenced by Latin verb plēre, to fill; see III. 1. below).
4. Suffixed form pl̥a-go-*.
 - a. FOLK, from Old English folc, people;
 - b. VOLKSLIED, from Old High German folc, people. Both a and b from Germanic folkam*.

II. Suffixed form p(e)l̥a-u-*.

1. Obscure comparative form. PĪČ, PLURAL, PLUS; NONPLUS, PLUPERFECT, SURPLUS, from Latin plūs, more (Old Latin plous). See also III. 4.

below.

2. O-grade form pol(ə)-u-*. POLY-; HOI POLLOI, from Greek polus, much, many.
3. PALUDAL, PALUDISM, from Latin palūs, marsh, possibly from pelə-¹ (? < “inundated”; but probably rather from pel-¹).

III. Variant form plē-*.

1. (ACCOMPLISH), COMPLETE, COMPLIMENT, (COMPLY), DEplete, EXpletive, IMplement, REplete, SUPPLY, from Latin plēre, to fill.
2. Possibly suffixed form plē-dhw-*. (PLEBE), PLEBEIAN, PLEBS; PLEBISCITE, from Latin plēbs, plēbēs, the people, multitude.
3. Suffixed form plē-dhwo-*. PLETHORA; PLETHYSMOGRAPH, from Greek derivative verb plēthein, to be full.
4. Suffixed adjective (positive) form plē-ro-*. PLEROCERCOID, from Greek plērēs, full.
5. Suffixed (comparative) form plē-i(s)on-*. PLEO-, PLEONASM; PLEIOTAXY, PLEIOTROPISM, PLOCENE, from Greek pleōn, pleiōn, more.
6. Suffixed (superlative) form plē-isto-*. PLEISTOCENE, from Greek pleistos, most.

IV. POORI, from Sanskrit pūrah, cake (pelə-¹).

[Pokorny 1. pel- 798.]

pelə-²

Important derivatives are: field, floor, plain, plane¹, plane², explain, palm¹, palm², planet, plasma, plaster, plastic, polka.

Flat; to spread.

Variant plā-, contracted from plāə-.

6. Suffixed form pel(ə)-tu-*. FIELD, from Old English feld, open field, from Germanic felthuz*, flat land.
7. Suffixed form pel(ə)-t-es-* (by-form of pel(ə)-tu-*).
 - a. FELDSPAR, from Old High German feld, field;

- b. VELDT, from Middle Dutch veld, velt, field. Both a and b from Germanic feltha-*, flat land.
8. Variant form plā-*.
- a. suffixed form plā-ru-*. FLOOR, from Old English flōr, floor, from Germanic flōruz*, floor;
- b. suffixed form plā-no-*. LLANO, PIANO², PLAIN, PLANARIAN, PLANE¹, PLANE², PLANE³, PLANISH, PLANO-, PLANULA; EXPLAIN, (PIANOFORTE), from Latin plānus, flat, level, even, plain, clear.
9. Suffixed zero-grade form pl̥ə-mā*. PALM¹, PALM², from Latin palma (< palama*), palm of the hand.
10. Possibly extended variant form plan-*.
- a. PLANET; APLANATIC, from Greek planasthai, to wander (
- b. FL,NEUR, from French fl,ner, to walk the streets idly, from a Germanic source akin to Old Norse flana, to wander aimlessly, from Germanic flan-*, possibly from pelə⁻².
11. Suffixed zero-grade form pl̥ə-dh-*. -PLASIA, PLASMA, -PLAST, PLASTER, PLASTIC, (PLASTID), -PLASTY; (DYSPLASIA), METAPLASM, (TOXOPLASMA), from Greek plassein (< plath-yein*), to mold, “spread out.”
12. O-grade form polə-*.
- a. POLYNYA, from Russian polyŭ, open;
- b. POLACK, POLKA, from Slavic polje, broad flat land, field.

[Pokorny pelə- 805.] See also extensions plāk⁻¹, plat-

pelə⁻³

Important derivatives are: police, *policy*¹, politic, metropolis.

Citadel, fortified high place.

POLICE, (POLICY¹), POLIS, POLITIC, (POLITY); ACROPOLIS, COSMOPOLIS, COSMOPOLITE, MEGALOPOLIS, METROPOLIS, NECROPOLIS, POLICLINIC, PROPOLIS, from Greek polis, city.

penk^we

Important derivatives are: five, fifteen, penta-, pentad, pentagon, pentathlon, Pentecost, fifth, quintet, quintessence, finger, fist, foist.

Five.

I. Basic form *penk^we.

1. Assimilated form *pempe.

- a. FIVE; FIFTY, from Old English fīf, five, with derivative fiftig, fifty (-tēne, ten; see dekṃ);
- b. FIN², from Old High German finf, funf, five. Both a and b from Germanic fimf*.
- c. FIFTEEN, from Old English fīftēne, fifteen;
- d. FEMTO-, from Old Norse fimmtān, fifteen. Both a and b from Germanic compound fimftehun*, fifteen (tehun*, ten; see dekṃ).

2. Assimilated form *k^wenk^we.

- a. CINQUAIN, CINQUE, QUINQUE-; CINQUECENTO, (CINQUEFOIL), QUINCUNX, from Latin quīnque, five;
- b. KENO, QUINATE, from Latin distributive quīnī, five each;
- c. QUINDECENNIAL, from Latin compound quīndecim, fifteen (decem, ten; see dekṃ).

3. PENTA-, PENTAD; PENSTEMON, (PENTAGON), (PENTAMETER), (PENTATHLON), from Greek pente, five.

4. PUNCH³; PACHISI, from Sanskrit paŪca, five.

II. Compound penk^we-(d)konta, “five tens,” fifty (-(d)konta, group of ten; see dekṃ).

1. QUINQUAGENARIAN, QUINQUAGESIMA, from Latin quīnquāginta, fifty.
2. PENTECOST, from Greek pentēkonta, fifty.

III. Ordinal adjective *penk^w-to-.

1. FIFTH, from Old English fīfta, fifth, from Germanic fimftōn*-.
2. QUINT¹, QUINTAIN, QUINTET, QUINTILE; QUINTESSENCE, QUINTILLION, QUINTUPLE, from Latin quīntus (< quinc-tos*), feminine quīnta, fifth.

IV. Suffixed form *penk^w-ro-. FINGER, from Old English finger, finger, from Germanic fiŋwraz*, finger (

V. Suffixed reduced zero-grade form *pŋk-sti-.

- a. FIST, from Old English fīst, fist;
- b. FOIST, from Dutch vuist, fist. Both a and b from Germanic funhstiz*

[Pokorny penk^ue 808, pŋksti- 839.]

pent-

Important derivatives are: find, pontiff, pontoon, *punt*¹, sputnik, path.

To tread, go.

9. FIND, from Old English findan, to find, from Germanic finthan*, to come upon, discover.
10. Suffixed o-grade form pont-i*-.
 - a. PONS, PONTIFEX, PONTIFF, PONTINE, PONTOON, PUNT¹; (TRANSPONTINE), from Latin pōns (stem pont-), bridge (earliest meaning, “way, passage,” preserved in the priestly title pontifex, “he who prepares the way”; -fex, maker; see dhē-);
 - b. SPUTNIK, from Russian sputnik, fellow traveler, sputnik, from *put*¹, path, way.
11. Zero-grade form pŋt*-. PERIPATETIC, from Greek patein, to tread, walk.
12. Suffixed zero-grade form pŋt-ə*-.
 - a. PATH, from Old English pæth, path;

- b. FOOTPAD, from Middle Dutch pad, way, path. Both a and b from Germanic patha-, way, path, probably borrowed (? via Scythian) from Iranian path-.

[Pokorny pent- 808.]

per¹

Important derivatives are: far, paramount, paradise, for, forth, afford, further, foremost, *former*², first, prow, protein, proton, fore, forefather, before, from, furnish, vener, purchase, prone, reciprocal, approach, reproach, approximate, probable, probe, proof, prove, approve, improve, pre-, private, privilege, privy, deprive, proper, property, appropriate, premier, primal, primary, primate, prime, primitive, prince, principal, principle, pristine, priest.

Base of prepositions and preverbs with the basic meanings of “forward,” “through,” and a wide range of extended senses such as “in front of,” “before,” “early,” “first,” “chief,” “toward,” “against,” “near,” “at,” “around.”

- I. Basic form per* and extended form peri*.
 - a. TURNVEREIN, from Middle High German vereinen, to unite, from Old High German far-;
 - b. VEER², from Middle Dutch vieren, to let out, slacken;
 - c. (see ghend-) Germanic compound fer-getan*, “to lose one's hold,” forget.
 - d. FRUMP, from Middle Dutch verrompelen, to wrinkle. a, b, c, and d all from Germanic fer-, far-, used chiefly as an intensive prefix denoting destruction, reversal, or completion.
2. Suffixed (comparative) form per-ero-*, farther away. FAR, from Old English feor(r), far, from Germanic fer(e)ra*.
3. PER, PER-; PARAMOUNT, PARAMOUR, PARGET, PARVENU, from Latin per, through, for, by.
4. PERI-; PERISSODACTYL, from Greek peri, around, near, beyond.
 - a. PARADISE, from Avestan pairi-, around;
 - b. PURDAH, from Old Persian pari, around, over;

- c. (see wer-) Old Iranian pari-vāraka-, protective. a, b, and c all from Old Iranian pari-, around.
5. PERESTROIKA, from Old Russian pere-, around, again, from Slavic per-*.

II. Zero-grade form pŕ-*.

- a. FOR, from Old English for, before, instead of, on account of;
 - b. FOR-, from Old English for-, prefix denoting destruction, pejoration, exclusion, or completion. Both a and b from Germanic fur*, before, in.
2. Extended form pŕt-*. FORTH; AFFORD, from Old English forth, from Germanic furth-*, forward.
3. Suffixed (comparative) form pŕg-tero-*. FURTHER, from Old English furthra, furthor, farther away, from Germanic furthera-*.
- a. Compound pŕg-st-i-* (or por-st-i-, with o-grade form por-), “that which stands before,” stake, post (see stā-);
 - b. PORRECT, from Latin por-, forth, forward. Both a and b from Latin por- from pŕ-*.
4. Suffixed form pŕg-sōd*. PARGET, from Latin porrō, forward.

III. Extended zero-grade form pŕǝ-*.

1. Suffixed (superlative) form pŕǝ-mo-*.
- a. FOREMOST, FORMER², from Old English forma, first, foremost, from Germanic fruma-, furma-;
 - b. (see ed-) Latin compound prandium, “first meal,” late breakfast, lunch (probably < prām-d-ium* < pŕǝm-(e)d-yo-; second element (e)d-, to eat).
2. Suffixed (superlative) form pŕǝ-isto-*. FIRST, from Old English fyrst, fyrest, first, from Germanic furista-*, foremost.
3. Suffixed form pŕǝ-wo-*.

- a. PROW, from Greek prōira, forward part of a ship, from analogically suffixed form prōw-arya*;
 - b. PROTEIN, PROTIST, PROTO-, PROTON, from Greek prōtos, first, foremost, from suffixed (superlative) form prōw-ato-. Both a and b from Greek prōwo-, first, foremost.
4. Suffixed form pɾə-i*. ARPENT, from Latin arepennis, half-acre (second element obscure), from Gaulish ari (combining form are-), before, from Celtic (p)ari*, are*.

IV. Extended form pɾəǣ̃*.

- a. FORE, FORE-; (FOREFATHER), from Old English fore, for, before;
 - b. VORLAGE, from Old High German fora, before;
 - c. BEFORE, from Old English beforan, before, from Germanic prefixed and suffixed form bi-fora-na*, in the front (bi-, at, by; see ambhi). a, b, and c all from Germanic fura, before.
2. PARA⁻¹; PALFREY, from Greek para, beside, alongside of, beyond.

V. Extended form pɾǣ̃*.

- a. FRO; (FROWARD), from Old Norse frā, from, from Germanic fra*, forward, away from;
 - b. (see ed-, ēik-) Germanic fra-*, completely.
2. Suffixed form pɾǣ̃-mo-*.
- a. FROM, from Old English from, from, from Germanic fram*, from;
 - b. FURNISH, VENEER, from Old French f(o)urnir, to supply, provide, from Germanic derivative verb frumjan*, to further, from Germanic frum*, forward;
 - c. PRAM², from Czech pr·m, raft.
3. Suffixed form pɾō-wo-*. FRAU, (FR%0ULEIN), from Old High German frouwa, lady, from Germanic frōwō-, lady, lengthened-grade feminine of frawan-, lord.

4. Suffixed form prō-wo-*. NAPRAPATHY, from Slavic pravŭ, right.
5. PRO¹, PRO⁻¹, (PROUD); (IMPROVE), PURCHASE, from Latin prō, prō-, before, for, instead of.
6. Suffixed form prō-no-*. PRONE, from Latin prōnus, leaning forward.
7. Possible suffixed form pro-ko-*. RECIPROCAL, from Latin compound reciprocus, alternating, “backward and forward” (re-ko-*, backward; see re-).
8. Suffixed adverb pro-k^we*.
 - a. APPROACH, (RAPPROCHEMENT), REPROACH, from Latin prope, near;
 - b. suffixed form prok^w-ink^wo-*. PROPINQUITY, from Latin propinquus, near;
 - c. suffixed (superlative) form prok^w-samo-*. PROXIMATE; APPROXIMATE, from Latin proximus, nearest.
9. Compound pro-bhw-o-, growing well or straightforward (bhw-o-, to grow; see bheuə-). (PROBABLE), PROBE, PROBITY, (PROOF), PROVE; APPROVE, IMPROBITY, (REPROVE), from Latin probus, upright, good, virtuous.
10. PRO⁻², from Greek pro, before, in front, forward.
11. Suffixed (comparative) form pro-tero-*. HYSTERON PROTERON, PROTEROZOIC, from Greek proteros, before, former.
12. PRAKRIT, from Sanskrit pra-, before, forth.
13. (see wēro-) Celtic ro-, intensive prefix, in ro-wero-, sufficiency.

VI. Extended forms prai-, prei-.

1. PRE-; PRETERIT, from Latin prae, before.
2. Suffixed (comparative) form prei-yos-*. PRIOR², from Latin prior, former, higher, superior.
3. Suffixed form prei-wo-*.

- a. PRIVATE, PRIVILEGE, PRIVITY, PRIVY; DEPRIVE, from Latin prīvus, single, alone (
- b. PROPER, PROPERTY; APPROPRIATE, PROPRICEPTION, PROPRICEPTOR, from Latin proprius, one's own, particular (< prō prīvō, in particular, from the ablative of prīvus, single; prō, for; see V. 5.).

4. Extended form preis-*.

a. Suffixed (superlative) form preis-mo-*.

- i. PREMIER, PRIMAL, PRIMARY, PRIMATE, PRIME, PRIMITIVE, PRIMO, PRIMUS; IMPRIMIS, PRIMAVERA¹, PRIMEVAL, PRIMIPARA, PRIMOGENITOR, PRIMOGENITURE, PRIMORDIAL, from Latin prīmus (< prīsmus*; ablative plural prīmīs), first, foremost;
- ii. PRINCE, PRINCIPAL, PRINCIPLE, from Latin compound prīnceps, “he who takes first place,” leader, chief, emperor (-ceps, “-taker”; see kap-);

b. suffixed form preis-tano-*. PRISTINE, from Latin prīstinus, former, earlier, original.

VII. Extended form pres-* in compound pres-g^wu-, “going before” (g^w-u-, going; see g^wā-). PRESBYTER, (PRIEST); PRESBYOPIA, from Greek presbus, old, old man, elder.

VIII. Extended form proti*. PROS-, from Greek pros, against, toward, near, at.

[Pokorny 2. A. per 810.] Other possibly related forms are grouped under per⁻², per⁻³, per⁻⁴, per⁻⁵

per⁻²

Important derivatives are: firth, fjord, fare, wayfarer, welfare, pore², emporium, ferry, fern, ford, port¹, opportune, porch, portal, portable, portage, porter¹, export, import, important, portfolio, rapport, report, sport, support, transport.

To lead, pass over. A verbal root belonging to the group of per¹.

I. Full-grade form per-*.

- 1. Suffixed form per-tu-*. FIRTH, FJORD, from Old Norse fj^rdhr, an inlet, estuary, from Germanic ferthuz*, place for crossing over, ford.

2. Suffixed form per-onā*. PERONEAL, from Greek peronē, pin of a brooch, buckle (
3. Suffixed form per-yo-*. DIAPIR, from Greek peirein, to pierce.

II. O-grade form por-*.

- i. FARE; WAYFARER, WAYFARING, (WELFARE), from Old English faran, to go on a journey, get along;
 - ii. FIELDFARE, from Old English faran, possibly altered by folk etymology in Old English, from an uncertain original;
- b. GABERDINE, from Old High German faran, to go, travel. Both a and b from Germanic faran*, to go.
2. Suffixed form por-o-*, passage, journey. PORE²; EMPORIUM, POROMERIC, from Greek poros, journey, passage.
 3. Suffixed (causative) form por-eyo-*, to cause to go, lead, conduct. FERRY, from Old English ferian, to transport, from Germanic farjan*, to ferry.
 4. Lengthened-grade form pōr-*.
 - a. FERRE, from Old English (ge)fēra, “fellow-traveler,” companion (ge-, together, with; see kom), from Germanic suffixed form fōr-ja-*;
 - b. F_{HRER}, from Old High German fuoren, to lead, from Germanic suffixed (causative) form fōr-jan*.
 5. Possibly suffixed form por-no-*, feather, wing (
 - a. FERN, from Old English fearn, fern (having feathery fronds), from Germanic farnō*, feather, leaf;
 - b. PAN², from Sanskrit parṇam, leaf, feather.

III. Zero-grade form p_ɣ-*.

1. Suffixed form p_ɣ-tu-*, passage.

- a. FORD, from Old English ford, shallow place where one may cross a river, from Germanic furdu-*;
 - b. PORT¹; IMPORTUNE, OPPORTUNE, from Latin portus, harbor (< “passage”).
2. Suffixed form pr̥-tā-*. PORCH, PORT³, PORTAL, PORTCULLIS, PORTER², PORTICO, PORTIÈRE, PORTULACA, from Latin porta, gate.
 3. Suffixed (denominative) form pr̥-to-*. PORT⁵, PORTABLE, PORTAGE, PORTAMENTO, PORTATIVE, PORTER¹; COMPORT, DEPORT, EXPORT, IMPORT, (IMPORTANT), PORTFOLIO, PURPORT, RAPPORT, REPORT, (SPORT), SUPPORT, TRANSPORT, from Latin portāre, to carry.

[Pokorny 2. B. per 816.]

per⁻³

Important derivatives are: fear, peril, experience, experiment, expert, pirate, empiric.
To try, risk (

A verbal root belonging to the group of per¹.

4. Lengthened grade pēr-*. FEAR, from Old English fār, danger, sudden calamity, from Germanic fēraz*, danger.
5. Suffixed form perī-tlo-*. (PARLOUS), PERIL, from Latin perīclum, perīculum, trial, danger.
6. Suffixed form per-yo-*. EXPERIENCE, EXPERIMENT, EXPERT, from Latin experīrī, to try, learn by trying (ex-, from; see eghs).
7. Suffixed form per-ya-*. PIRATE; EMPIRIC, from Greek peira, trial, attempt.

[Pokorny 2. E. per 818.]

per⁻⁴

Important derivatives are: press¹, pressure, print, compress, depress, express, imprint, oppress, repress, reprimand, suppress.
To strike.

A verbal root possibly belonging to the group of per¹. Extended forms prem-*

, pres-*. PREGNANT², PRESS¹, PRESSURE, PRINT; APPRESSED, COMPRESS, DEPRESS, EXPRESS, IMPRESS¹, (IMPRINT), OPPRESS, REPRESS, (REPRIMAND), SUPPRESS, from Latin premere (past participle pressus), to press.

[Pokorny 3. per- 818.]

per-⁵

Important derivatives are: interpret, praise, precious, price, appraise, appreciate, depreciate, pornography.

To traffic in, sell (per¹). Base of two distinct extended roots.

I. Root form pret-*.

1. INTERPRET, from Latin compound inter-pres (stem inter-pret-), go-between, negotiator (inter-, between; see en).
2. Suffixed form pret-yo-*. PRAISE, PRECIOUS, PRICE; APPRAISE, (APPRECIATE), DEPRECIATE, from Latin pretium, price.

II. Root form perə-. Suffixed form p(e)r-n-ə-, with o-grade por(ə)-nā*. PORNOGRAPHY, from Greek pornē, prostitute, from pernanai, to sell.

[In Pokorny 2. C. per 817.]

perd-

Important derivatives are: fart, partridge..

To fart.

1. FART, from Old English feortan*, to fart, from Germanic fertan*, fartōn*.
2. PARTRIDGE, from Greek perdix, partridge (which makes a sharp whirring sound when suddenly flushed).

[Pokorny perd- 819.] See also pezd-.

perə-¹

Important derivatives are: parade, pare, parry, apparatus, apparel, disparate, emperor, imperative, imperial, parachute, parasol, prepare, rampart, *repair*¹, separate, sever, several, parent, repertory.

To produce, procure.

Possibly the same root as perə⁻². See also per⁻⁵ II. Zero-grade form *pṛə- (becoming *par- in Latin).

- a. root form *par-ā-. PARADE, PARE, (PARLAY), PARRY, (PARURE); APPARATUS, (APPAREL), COMPRADOR, DISPARATE, EMPEROR, (IMPERATIVE), (IMPERIAL), (PARACHUTE), PARASOL, PREPARE, RAMPART, REPAIR¹, SEPARATE, (SEVER), (SEVERAL), from Latin parāre, to try to get, prepare, equip;
- b. suffixed form *par-yo-. -PARA, PARENT, PARITY², -PAROUS, PARTURIENT, POSTPARTUM, REPERTORY, from Latin parere, parīre, to get, beget, give birth;
- c. suffixed form *par-o-, producing, in compound *pau-paros, producing little, poor (see pau-);
- d. suffixed form *par-ikā. PARCAE, from Latin Parcae, the Fates (who assign one's destiny).

[Pokorny 2. D. per 818.]

perə⁻²

Important derivatives are: parcel, parse, part, impart, repartee, portion, proportion, pair, par, parlay, peer², compare, nonpareil.

To grant, allot (reciprocally, to get in return). Possibly the same root as perə⁻¹. See also per⁻⁵ II. Zero-grade form *pṛə- (becoming *par- in Latin).

- a. suffixed form *par-ti-. PARCEL, (PARCENER), PARSE, PART; BIPARTITE, COMPART, IMPART, REPARTEE, from Latin pars (stem part-), a share, part;
- b. possibly suffixed form *par-tiō. PORTION, PROPORTION, from Latin portiō, a part (first attested in the phrase prō portiōne, in proportion, according to each part, perhaps assimilated from prō partiōne*);
- c. PAIR, PAR, (PARITY¹), PEER²; COMPARE, IMPARITY, NONPAREIL, PARI-MUTUEL, from Latin pār, equal, perhaps from perə⁻².

[Pokorny 2. per, Section C. 817.]

perk^wu-

Important derivatives are: fir, cork.

Oak.

1. Zero-grade form *p_ṛk^w-. FIR, probably from a Scandinavian source akin to Old Icelandic fýri, fir, from Germanic furh-jōn-*.
2. Assimilated form *k^werk^wu-. CORK, QUERCETIN; QUERCITRON, from Latin quercus, oak.

[Pokorny perk^u-s 822.]

pes-

Important derivatives are: pencil, penicillium, penis.

Penis.

Suffixed form *pes-ni-. PENCIL, (PENICILLIUM), PENIS, from Latin pēnis (< pesnis*), penis, tail.

[Pokorny 3. pes- 824.]

pet-

Important derivatives are: feather, petition, appetite, compete, perpetual, repeat, *pen*¹, propitious, ptomaine, symptom, hippopotamus.

Also petə-To rush, fly. Variant *ptē-, contracted from *pteə-.

3. Suffixed form *pet-rā. FEATHER, from Old English fether, feather, from Germanic fethrō*, feather.
4. -PETAL, PETITION, PETULANT; APPETITE, COMPETE, IMPETUS, PERPETUAL, REPEAT, from Latin petere, to go toward, seek.
5. Suffixed form *pet-nā. PANACHE, PEN¹, PENNA, PENNATE, PENNON, PIN, PINNA, PINNACLE, PINNATE, (PINNATI-), PINNULE; EMPENNAGE, from Latin penna, pinna, feather, wing.
6. Suffixed form *pet-ro- (see ōku-).
7. Suffixed form *pet-yo-. PROPITIOUS, from Latin propitius, favorable, gracious, originally a religious term meaning “falling or rushing forward,” hence “eager,” “well-disposed” (said of the gods; prō-, forward; see per¹).

8. Suffixed zero-grade form pt-ero-*. -PTER; ACANTHOPTERYGIAN, APTERYX, ARCHAEOPTERYX, COLEOPTERAN, MECOPTERAN, ORTHOPTERAN, PERIPTERAL, PLECOPTERAN, PTERIDOLOGY, PTERYGOID, from Greek pteron, feather, wing, and pterux, wing.
9. Suffixed zero-grade form pt-ilo-*. COLEOPTILE, from Greek ptilon, soft feathers, down, plume.
10. Suffixed variant form ptē-no-*. STEAROPTENE, from Greek ptēnos, winged, flying.
11. Reduplicated form pi-pt-*. PTOMAINA, PTOSIS; ASYMPTOTE, PERIPETEIA, PROPTOSIS, SYMPTOM, from Greek piptein, to fall, with nominal derivatives ptō-to-, ptō-ti-, ptō-ma.
12. O-grade form pot-*. HIPPOPOTAMUS, from Greek potamos “rushing water,” river (-amo-, Greek suffix).
13. Suffixed form pet-tro-*. TALIPOT, from Sanskrit pattram, feather, leaf.

[Pokorny 2. pet- 826.]

petə-

Important derivatives are: fathom, patent, *pace*¹, pass, compass, expand, petal, *pan*¹.
To spread.

1. Suffixed o-grade form pot(ə)-mo-*. FATHOM, from Old English fæthm, fathom, from Germanic fathmaz*, “length of two arms stretched out.”
2. Suffixed (stative) variant zero-grade form pat-ē-*. PATENT, PATULOUS, from Latin patēre, to be open.
3. Probably variant zero-grade form in remade nasalized form pat-no-*. PACE¹, (PAS), (PASS), PASSIM; (COMPASS), EXPAND, REPAND, from Latin pandere (past participle passus < pat-to-*), to spread out.

4. Suffixed form pet-alo-*. PETAL, from Greek petalon, leaf.
5. Suffixed form pet-ano-*. (PAELLA), PAN¹, PATEN, (PATINA¹), (PATINA²), from Greek patanē (? < petanā*), platter, “thing spread out.”
6. PETASOS, from Greek petasos, broad-brimmed hat, from Greek suffixed form peta-so-*.

[Pokorny 1. pet 824.]

peu-

Important derivatives are: putative, account, amputate, compute, *count*¹, dispute, impute, repute, pave.

To cut, strike, stamp.

5. Suffixed (participial) zero-grade form pu-to*, cut, struck.
 - a. PUTAMEN, PUTATIVE; (ACCOUNT), AMPUTATE, COMPUTE, COUNT¹, DEPUTE, DISPUTE, IMPUTE, REPUTE, from Latin putāre, to prune, clean, settle an account, think over, reflect;
 - b. PIT¹, from Latin puteus, well, possibly from peu-.
6. Variant form pau-*.
 - a. suffixed form pau-yo*. PAVE, (PAVÈ), from Latin pavīre, to beat;
 - b. suffixed (stative) form paw-ē-*. PAVID, from Latin pavēre, to fear (
 - c. ANAPEST, from Greek paiein, to beat, perhaps from peu-.

[Pokorny 3. pēu- 827.]

peuə-

Important derivatives are: pure, purge, Puritan, expurgate.

To purify, cleanse.

Suffixed zero-grade form pū-ro-* (< puə-ro*). POUR, PURE, PURGE, PURITAN; COMPURGATION, DEPURATE, EXPURGATE, (SPURGE), from Latin pūrus, pure, and pūrgāre, to purify (< pūr-igāre*; second element agere, to drive; see ag-).

[Pokorny 1. peu- 827.]

peuk-

Important derivatives are: pugilism, pugnacious, impugn, poignant, point, *pounce*¹, punctuate, puncture, pungent, expunge, pygmy.

Also peug-To prick. Zero-grade form pug-*.

4. Suffixed form pug-no-*. PONIARD, PUGILISM, PUGIL STICK, PUGNACIOUS; IMPUGN, OPPUGN, REPUGN, from Latin pugil, pugilist, and pugnus, fist, with denominative pugnāre, to fight with the fist.
5. Nasalized zero-grade form pu-n-g-*. BUNG, POIGNANT, POINT, POINTILLISM, PONTIL, (POUNCE¹), (POUNCE³), PUNCHEON¹, PUNCTUATE, PUNCTURE, PUNGENT; COMPUNCTION, EXPUNGE, SPONTOON, TRAPUNTO, from Latin pungere, to prick.
6. (PYGMAEAN), PYGMY, from Greek pugmē, fist.

[Pokorny peuk- 828.]

pezd-

Derivatives are: fizzle, petard.

To fart.

1. Suffixed form pezd-i-*. FEIST, FIZZLE, from Middle English fisten, to fart, from Germanic fistiz*, a fart.
2. PETARD, from Latin pēdere, to fart.
3. PEDICULAR, from Latin pēdis, louse (? pezd-).

[Pokorny pezd- 829, 2. peis- 796.] See also perd-.

pāter-

Important derivatives are: father, forefather, padre, paternal, patrician, patrimony, patron, expatriate, perpetrate, patriot, patriarch.

Father.

5. FATHER; (FOREFATHER), from Old English fæder, father, from Germanic fadar*.
6. PADRE, PATER, PATERNAL, PATRI-, PATRICIAN, PATRIMONY, PATRON, PÈRE; EXPATRIATE, PERPETRATE, from Latin pater, father.
7. PATRI-, PATRIOT; ALLOPATRIC, EUPATRID, PATRIARCH, SYMPATRIC, from Greek patēr, father.

[Pokorny pət ē'(r) 829.]

plāk-¹

Important derivatives are: *fluke*¹, *flake*¹, *flaw*¹, placebo, placid, plea, plead, pleasant, please, complacent, placate, plank, placenta, archipelago.

Also plak-To be flat. Extension of pelə-².

2. FLOE, from Old Norse flō, layer, coating, from Germanic flōhō*.
3. Variant form plāg-*.
 - a. FLUKE¹, from Old English flōc, flatfish, from Germanic flōk-*;
 - b. FLAKE¹, from Middle English flake, flake, from a Scandinavian source probably akin to Norwegian flak, flat piece, flake, from Germanic flakaz*;
 - c. FLAKE², from Old Norse flaki, fleki, hurdle, from Germanic flak-*.
4. Extended form plakā*. FLAG⁴, FLAW¹, from Old Norse flaga, layer of stone, from Germanic flagō*.
5. Possibly suffixed (stative) form plak-ē-*, to be calm (as of the flat sea). PLACEBO, PLACID, PLEA, (PLEAD), PLEASANT, PLEASE; COMPLACENT, from Latin placēre, to please, be agreeable.
6. Root noun plak-*. (SUPPLICATE), SUPPLE, from Latin supplex, suppliant (whence denominative supplicāre, to beg humbly, first attested in Archaic Latin as sub vos placō, I entreat you; sub, under; see upo.)
7. Lengthened suffixed form plāk-ā-*. PLACABLE, PLACATE, from Latin plācāre, to calm (causative of placēre).

8. Nasalized form pla-n-k-*. PLANCHET, PLANK, from Latin plancus, flat, flat-footed.
9. Variant form plag-*.
 - a. PLAGIARY, from Latin plaga, net (? plāk-¹;
 - b. PLAGAL, PLAGIO-, PLAYA, from Greek plagos, side.
10. Root form plak-*. PLACENTA, PLACOID; LEUKOPLAKIA, from Greek plax, flat, flat land, surface.
11. Possible variant form pelag-*. PELAGIC; ARCHIPELAGO, from Greek pelagos, sea.

[Pokorny 1. plā-k- 831.]

plāk-²

Important derivatives are: fling, plaint, complain, plankton, plague, apoplexy, paraplegia.

To strike.

1. Nasalized variant forms pla-n-k-, pla-n-g-.
 - a. FLING, from Middle English flingen to fling, from a Scandinavian source akin to Old Norse flengja, to flog, whip, from Germanic flang-*;
 - b. PLAINT, PLANGENT; COMPLAIN, from Latin plangere, to strike (one's own breast), lament;
 - c. suffixed form plang-yo-*. PLANKTON, from Greek plazein, to drive away, turn aside.
2. Variant form plāg-*. PLAGUE, from Latin plāga, a blow, stroke.
3. Suffixed form plāk-yo-*. PLECTRUM, -PLEGIA, PLEXOR; APLOPLEXY, CATAPLEXY, PARAPLEGIA, from Greek plēssein, to beat, strike.

[Pokorny 2. plāk- 832.]

plat-

Important derivatives are: flat¹, flatter¹, flat², flounder², clan, plan, plant, supplant, place, plate, plateau, platitude, plaza.

To spread.

Also *plet-. Extension of pelə-².

2. Variant form *plad-.
 - a. FLAT¹, from Old Norse flatr, flat;
 - b. FLATTER¹, from Old French flater, to flatter. Both a and b from Germanic *flataz, flat.
3. Suffixed variant form *plad-yo-. FLAT², from Old English flet(t), floor, dwelling, from Germanic *flatjam.
4. Basic form *plat-. FLAN, from Late Latin fladō, flat cake, pancake, from Germanic *flathō(n), flat cake.
5. FLOUNDER², from Anglo-Norman floundre, flounder, from a Scandinavian source probably akin to Old Swedish flundra, flatfish, flounder, from Germanic nasalized suffixed form *flu-n-th-r-jō-.
6. Nasalized form *pla-n-t-. CLAN, PLAN, PLANT, PLANTAIN¹, PLANTAR; PLANTIGRADE, SUPPLANT, TRANSPLANT, from Latin planta, sole of the foot, and denominative plantāre, to drive in with the sole of the foot, plant, whence planta, a plant.
7. Suffixed zero-grade form *pl̥t-u-. PIAZZA, PLACE, PLAICE, PLANE⁴, (PLANE TREE), PLATE, (PLATEAU), (PLATITUDE), (PLATY²), PLATY-, (PLAZA), from Greek platus, flat, broad.

[Pokorny plat- 833.]

plek-

Important derivatives are: *flax, multiplex, plait, pliant, plight*¹, *ply*¹, apply, complicate, deploy, display, employ, implicate, reply, complex, perplex.

To plait.

Extension of pel-².

1. Suffixed o-grade form *plok-so-. FLAX, from Old English fleax, flax, from Germanic *flahsam, flax.

2. Full-grade form plek-*. MULTIPLEX, from Latin -plex, -fold (in compounds such as duplex, twofold; see dwo-).
3. PLAIT, PLIANT, PLICA, PLICATE, PLIGHT¹, PLISSÉ, PLY¹; APPLY, COMPLICATE, COMPLICE, DEPLOY, DISPLAY, EMPLOY, EXPLICATE, IMPLICATE, REPLICATE, (REPLY), from Latin plicāre, to fold (also in compounds used as denominatives of words in -plex, genitive -plicis).
4. Suffixed forms plek-to-* and plek-t-to-*. PLEACH, PLEXUS; AMPLEXICAUL, COMPLECT, (COMPLEX), PERPLEXED, from Latin plectere (past participle plexus), to weave, plait, entwine.
5. PLECOPTERAN, PLECTOGNATH, from Greek plekein, to plait, twine, and plektos, twisted.

[Pokorny plek- 834.]

pleu-

Important derivatives are: plover, pulmonary, pneumonia, Pluto, flow, flood, *fly*¹, *fly*², flee, fledge, *flight*¹, fowl, *fleet*¹, *fleet*², float, flutter, flit, fluster.

To flow.

I. Basic form pleu-*.

1. (PLOVER), (PLUVIAL), PLUVIOUS, from Latin pluere, to rain.
2. PLEUSTON, from Greek pleusis, sailing.
3. Suffixed zero-grade form plu-elos*. PYELITIS, from Greek dissimilated puelos, trough, basin.
4. Suffixed form pl(e)u-mon-*, “floater,” lung(s).
 - a. PULMONARY, from Latin pulmō (< plumonēs*), lung(s);
 - b. PNEUMO-, PNEUMONIA, PNEUMONIC, from Greek pleumōn, pneumōn (influenced by pneuma, breath; see pneu-), lung.
5. Suffixed o-grade form plou-to*. PLUTO; PLUTOCRACY, PLUTOGRAPHY, from Greek ploutos, wealth, riches (< “overflowing”).
6. Lengthened o-grade form plō(u)-*.

- i. FLOW, from Old English flōwan, to flow;
 - ii. FLUE², from Middle Dutch vluwe, fishnet, perhaps from pleu-. Both (i) and (ii) from Germanic flōwan*, to flow;
- b. suffixed form plō-tu-*. FLOOD, from Old English flōd, flood, from Germanic flōduz*, flowing water, deluge.

II. Extended form pleuk-*.

1. FLY¹, from Old English flēogan, to fly, from Germanic fleugan*, to fly.
2. FLY², from Old English flēoge, a fly, from Germanic fleugōn-*, flying insect, fly.
3. FLEE, from Old English flēon, to flee, from Germanic fleuhan*, to run away, probably from pleu-.
4. FLEY, from Old English flȳgan, flēgan, to put to flight, from Germanic causative flaugjan*.
5. FLËCHE, FLETCHER, from Old French fleche, arrow, from Germanic suffixed form fleug-ika*.
6. Zero-grade form pluk-*.
 - a. FLEDGE, from Old English flycge*, with feathers (only in unfligge, featherless), from Germanic flugja-*, feather;
 - b. FLIGHT¹, FLIGHT², from Old English flyht, act of flying, and flyht*, act of fleeing, escape, from Germanic suffixed form flug-ti-*;
 - c. FOWL, from Old English fugol, bird, from Germanic fuglaz*, bird, dissimilated from possible (but unlikely) suffixed form flug-laz*;
 - d. FL, GELHORN, FUGLEMAN, from Middle High German vl, gel, wing, from Germanic suffixed form flug-ila*.

III. Extended form pleud-*.

1. FLEET¹, FLEET², from Old English flēotan, to float, swim (from Germanic fleutan*), and Old Norse fliōtr, fleet, swift (from Germanic fleutaz*).

2. Zero-grade form plud-*.
 - i. FLOAT, from Old English flotian, to float;
 - ii. FLOTSAM, from Old French floter, to float. Both (i) and (ii) from Germanic derivative flotōn*, to float;
 - b. FLOTILLA, from Old Norse floti, raft, fleet;
 - c. FLUTTER, from Old English floterian, flotorian, to float back and forth (-erian, iterative and frequentative suffix);
 - d. FLIT, from Old Norse flytja, to further, convey, from Germanic flutjan*, to float. a, b, c, and d all from Germanic flut-, flot-.
3. FLUSTER, probably from a Scandinavian source akin to Icelandic flaustr, hurry, and flaustra, to bustle, from Germanic flausta-, contracted from suffixed form flaut-stā-, probably from pleud-, o-grade ploud-.

[Pokorny pleu- 835, pl(e)u-mon- 837.]

pneu-

Important derivatives are: sneeze, snore, snort, pneumatic.

To breathe. Imitative root.

1. SNEEZE, from Old English fnēosan, to sneeze, from Germanic fnēu-s-*.
2. SNORE, (SNORT), from Old English fnora, sneezing, from Germanic fnu-s-*.
3. APNEA, DIPNOAN, DYSPNEA, EUPNEA, HYPERPNEA, HYPOPNEA, POLYPNEA, TACHYPNEA, from Greek pnein, to breathe, with o-grade nouns pnoia, breathing, and pnoē, breath.
4. Suffixed form pneu-mḡ*. PNEUMA, PNEUMATIC, PNEUMATO-, PNEUMO-, from Greek pneuma, breath, wind, spirit.

5. Germanic variant root fnes-*. SNEER, from Old English fnāeran, to snort, gnash one's teeth.

[Pokorny pneu- 838.]

pō(i)-

Important derivatives are: potable, poison, potion, beer, beverage, imbibe, symposium.

To drink. Contracted from poə(i)-*.

- I. Basic form pō(i)-*.
 - a. Suffixed reduced form pō-to-*. POTABLE, POTATION, POTATORY, from Latin pōtus, drunk; a drink (whence pōtāre, to drink);
 - b. suffixed form pō-ti-*. POISON, PORTION, from Latin pōtiō, a drink.
 2. Reduplicated form pi-pə-o-, whence pi-bo-, assimilated to bi-bo-*. BEER, BEVERAGE, BIB, BIBULOUS; IMBIBE, (IMBRUE), from Latin bibere, to drink.
 3. Suffixed zero-grade form pə-ti-, po-ti-. SYMPOSIUM, from Greek posis, drink, drinking.
- II. Zero-grade form pī-* (< piə-*).
 1. Suffixed form pī-ro-*. PIROG, from Old Church Slavonic pirŭ, feast.
 2. Suffixed (nasal present) form pī-no-*. PINOCYTOSIS, from Greek pinein, to drink.

[Pokorny 2. pō(i)- 839.]

pōl-

Important derivatives are: feel, palpable, palpitate, catapult, psalm.

To touch, feel, shake.

- a. FEEL, from Old English fēlan, to examine by touch, feel;

- b. SPRACHGEF_{HL}, from Old High German vuolen, to feel.
Both a and b from Germanic fōljan*, to feel.
1. Reduplicated zero-grade form pal-p-*.
 - a. PALP, from Latin palpus, a touching;
 - b. PALPABLE, PALPATE¹, PALPITATE, from Latin palpārī, palpāre, to stroke gently, touch;
 - c. PALPEBRA, from Latin palpebra, eyelid (
 2. Perhaps suffixed zero-grade form pal-yo-*. CATAPULT, from Greek pallein, to sway, brandish.
 3. Perhaps suffixed form psal-yo-*. PSALM, PSALTERY, from Greek psallein, to pluck, play the harp (but more likely of imitative origin).

[Pokorny 1. G. pel- 801.]

porko-

Important derivatives are: aardvark, porcelain, pork, porcupine, porpoise.

Young pig.

- a. FARROW¹, from Old English fearh, little pig;
 - b. AARDVARK, from Middle Dutch diminutive form varken, small pig. Both a and b from Germanic farhaz*.
1. PORCELAIN, PORCINE, PORK; PORCUPINE, PORPOISE, from Latin porcus, pig.

[Pokorny porġo-s 841.]

poti-

Important derivatives are: possess, power, possible, potent, impotent.

Powerful; lord.

1. PODESTA, POSSESS, POWER, from Latin potis (pots pos-*), powerful, able.
2. POSSIBLE, POTENT; (IMPOTENT), OMNIPOTENT, PREPOTENT, from Latin compound posse, to be able (contracted from potis, able + esse, to be; see es-).

3. Form pot-*.
 - a. compound ghos-pot-*, “guest-master,” host (see ghos-ti-);
 - b. compound dems-pot-*, “house-master,” ruler (see dem-).
4. PADISHAH, from Old Persian pati-, master.

[Pokorny poti-s 842.]

prek-

Important derivatives are: pray, *prayer*¹, precarious, deprecate, postulate.

To ask, entreat.

1. Basic form prek-. PRAY, PRAYER¹, PRECARIOUS; DEPRECATE, IMPRECATE, from prex, prayer (attested only in the plural precēs), with Latin denominative precārī, to entreat, pray.
2. Suffixed zero-grade form pṛk-sk-* becoming pork-sk-, contracted into posk- in suffixed form posk-to*, contracted into posto-*. POSTULATE; EXPOSTULATE, from Latin postulāre, to ask, request.

[Pokorny 4. perk̂- 821.]

preus-

Important derivatives are: freeze, frost, prurient.

To freeze, burn.

1. FREEZE, from Old English frēosan, to freeze, from Germanic freusan*, to freeze.
2. Suffixed zero-grade form prus-to-*. FROST, from Old English forst, frost, frost, from Germanic frustaz*, frost.
3. Suffixed form preus-i-*. PRURIENT, PRURIGO, PRURITUS, from Latin denominative prūrīre, to burn, itch, yearn for, from preusis*, preuris*, act of burning.

4. Suffixed zero-grade form prus-wīnā*. PRUINOSE, from Latin pruīna, hoarfrost.

[Pokorny preus- 846.]

pri-

Important derivatives are: free, filibuster, friend, afraid, Friday.

To love.

Contracted from priā-*.

1. Suffixed form priy-o-*.
 - a. FREE, from Old English frēo, free, and frēon, freogan, to love, set free;
 - b. (FILIBUSTER), FREEBOOTER, from Dutch vrij, free. Both a and b from Germanic frijaz*, beloved, belonging to the loved ones, not in bondage, free, and frijōn*, to love.
2. Suffixed (participial) form priy-ont-*, loving. FRIEND, from Old English frīond, frēond, friend, from Germanic frijand-*, lover, friend.
3. Suffixed shortened form pri-tu-*.
 - a. SIEGFRIED, from Old High German fridu, peace;
 - b. AFFRAY, AFRAID, from Old French esfreer, to disturb, from Vulgar Latin exfredāre*, to break the peace, from ex-, out, away (see eghs) + fridāre*, to make peace, from Germanic frithu-*, peace;
 - c. (see bhergh-²) Germanic compound berg-frij-, “high place of safety,” from frij-, peace, safety. a, b, and c all from Germanic frithuz*, peace.
4. Suffixed feminine form priy-ā*, beloved.
 - a. FRIGG, from Old Norse Frigg, goddess of the heavens, wife of Odin;

- b. FRIDAY, from Old English Frīgedæg, Friday, from Germanic compound frije-dagaz*, “day of Frigg” (translation of Latin Veneris diēs, “Venus's day”). Both a and b from Germanic frijjō*, beloved, wife.

[Pokorny prāi- 844.]

pŭ-

Important derivatives are: foul, filth, *defile*¹, fuzzy, putrid, potpourri, putrefy, purulent, pus..

To rot, decay.

1. Suffixed form pŭ-lo-*.
 - a. FOUL, from Old English fŭl, unclean, rotten;
 - b. FULMAR, from Old Norse fŭll, foul;
 - c. FILTH, from Old English fŷlth, foulness, from Germanic abstract noun fŷlithō*;
 - d. FILE³; DEFILE¹, from Old English fŷlan, to sully, from Germanic denominative fŷljan*, to soil, dirty. a, b, c, and d all from Germanic fŷlaz*, rotten, filthy.
2. Extended form pug-*. FOG², from Middle English fog, fogge, aftermath grass, from a Scandinavian source probably akin to Icelandic fŷki, rotten sea grass, and Norwegian fogg, rank grass, from Germanic fuk-*.
3. Extended variant form pous-*. FUZZY, from Low German fussig, spongy, from Germanic fausa-*.
4. Suffixed form pu-tri-*. PUTRESCENT, PUTRID; (OLLA PODRIDA), (POTPOURRI), PUTREFY, from Latin puter (stem putri-), rotten.
5. Suffixed form puw-os-*.
 - a. PURULENT, PUS; SUPPURATE, from Latin pŭs, pus;
 - b. PYO-, from Greek puon, puos, pus.
6. EMPYEMA, from Greek compound empuein, to suppurate (en-, in; see en).

[Pokorny 2. pŭ- 848.]

pūr-

Important derivatives are: fire, pyre.

Fire.

Contracted from puər-, zero-grade form of paəwɾ-.

1. FIRE, from Old English fȳr, fire, from Germanic suffixed form fūr-i-*.
2. PYRE, PYRETIC, PYRITES, PYRO-, PYRRHOTITE, PYROSIS; EMPYREAL, from Greek pur, fire.

[Pokorny peuōr 828.]

re-

The following entry is not, strictly speaking, Indo-European, since it is represented in only one branch of the family. It is included because of the many English words among its descendants. Important derivatives are: re-, retro-, arrears.

Also red-Backward. Latin combining form conceivably from Indo-European wret-, metathetical variant of wert-, to turn (wer-²).

7. RE-, from Latin re-, red-, backward, again.
 8. Suffixed form re(d)-tro-*. RETRAL, RETRO-; ARREARS, REAR GUARD, REARWARD², REREDOS, from Latin retrō, backward, back, behind.
 9. Suffixed form re-ko-*. (see per¹) Latin reciprocus, “backward and forward.”
-

rē-

Important derivatives are: *real*¹, republic.

To bestow, endow.

Contracted from reə-. Suffixed form reə-i-, goods, wealth, property. RE², REAL¹, REBUS, REIFY, REPUBLIC, from Latin rēs, thing.

[Pokorny 4. rei- 850.]

rēd-

Important derivatives are: *rodent, corrode, erode, rostrum, rash*², abrade, erase.
To scrape, scratch, gnaw.

13. O-grade form *rōd-.

- a. RODENT; CORRODE, ERODE, from Latin rōdere, to gnaw;
- b. suffixed (instrumental) form *rōd-tro-. ROSTRUM, from Latin rōstrum, beak, ship's bow.

14. Possibly variant form *rād-.

- a. RADULA, RASH², RASORIAL; ABRABE, CORRABE, ERASE, from Latin rādere, to scrape;
- b. suffixed (instrumental) form *rād-tro-. RACLETTE, from Latin rāstrum, rake.

[Pokorny 2. rēd- 854.]

reg-

Important derivatives are: *right, realm, rector, rectum, regent, regime, regiment, region, correct, direct, erect, rectangle, rectify, surge, rich, regal, reign, royal, maharajah, rail*¹, *regular, regulate, rule, rake*¹, *rack*¹, reckon, interrogate, prerogative, reckless.

To move in a straight line, with derivatives meaning “to direct in a straight line, lead, rule.”

I. Basic form *reg-.

1. Suffixed form *reg-to-. RIGHT, from Old English riht, right, just, correct, straight, from Germanic *rehtaz.
2. REALM, RECTITUDE, RECTO, RECTOR, RECTUM, REGENT, REGIME, REGIMENT, REGION; CORRECT, DIRECT, ERECT, (PORRECT), RECTANGLE, RECTIFY, RECTILINEAR, (RESURGE), (RISORGIMENTO), SURGE, from Latin regere, to lead straight, guide, rule (past participle rēctus, hence adjective rēctus, right, straight).
3. ANORECTIC, ANOREXIA, from Greek oregein, to stretch out, reach out for (with prothetic vowel from oldest root form *areg-).

II. Lengthened-grade form rēg-*, Indo-European word for a tribal king.

- a. BISHOPRIC, ELDRITCH, from Old English rīce, realm;
 - b. RIKSMÅL, from Old Norse rīki, realm;
 - c. REICHSMARK, from Old High German rīchi, realm;
 - d. RICH, from Old English rīce, strong, powerful, and Old French riche, wealthy. a, b, c, and d all from Germanic rīkja-, from Celtic suffixed form rīg-yo-.
2. REAL², REGAL, REGULUS, REIGN, ROYAL; REGICIDE, REGIUS PROFESSOR, VICERINE, VICEROY, from Latin rēx, king (royal and priestly title).
3. Suffixed form rēg-en-*. RAJ, RAJAH, (RANI), (RYE²); MAHARAJAH, MAHARANI, from Sanskrit rājā, rājan-, king, rajah (feminine rājōi, queen, rani), and rājati, he rules.

III. Suffixed lengthened-grade form rēg-olā*. RAIL¹, REGLET, REGULAR, REGULATE, RULE, from Latin rēgula, straight piece of wood, rod.

IV. O-grade form rog-*.

1. RAKE¹, from Old English raca, racu, rake (implement with straight pieces of wood), from Germanic rakō*.
2. RACK¹, from Middle Dutch rec, framework, from Germanic rak-*.
3. RANK², from Old English ranc, straight, strong, hence haughty, overbearing, from Germanic rankaz* (with nasal infix), possibly from reg-.
4. RECKON, from Old English gerecenian, to arrange in order, recount (ge-, collective prefix; see kom), from Germanic rakinaz*, ready, straightforward.
5. Suffixed form rog-ā-*. ROGATION, ROGATORY; ABROGATE, ARROGATE, CORVÈE, DEROGATE, INTERROGATE, PREROGATIVE, PROROGUE, SUBROGATE, SUPEREROGATE, from Latin rogāre, to ask (
6. Suffixed form rog-o-*. ERGO, from Latin ergō, therefore, in consequence of, perhaps contracted from a Latin phrase ē rogō*, “from the direction of” (ē < ex, out of; see eghs), from a possible Latin noun rogus*, “extension, direction.”

V. Lengthened o-grade form *rōg-.

1. RECK, Old English rec(c)an, to pay attention to, take care (formally influenced by Old English reccan, to extend, stretch out, from Germanic rakjan*), from Germanic rōkjan*.
2. RECKLESS, from Old English rēcelēas, careless (-lēas, lacking; see leu-), from Germanic rōkja-.

[Pokorny 1. reġ- 854.]

rei-

Important derivatives are: run, rill, rival, rivulet, derive.

To flow, run.

23. Suffixed zero-grade form ri-nu-*.

- a. RUN, RUNNEL, from Old English rinnan, to run, and Old Norse rinna, to run (from Germanic rinnan*, to run, from ri-nw-an*), and from Old English causative ærnan, eornan, to run (from secondary Germanic causative rannjan*);
- b. EMBER DAY, from Old English ryne, a running, from secondary Germanic derivative runiz*;
- c. RENNET, from Old English rynet*, from secondary Germanic derivative runita-*.

24. Suffixed zero-grade form ri-l-*. RILL, from Dutch ril or Low German rille, running stream, from Germanic ril-*.

25. Suffixed form rei-wo-*. RIVAL, RIVULET; DERIVE, from Latin rīvus, stream.

[Pokorny 3. er- 326.]

reidh-

Important derivatives are: ride, raid, road, ready, array.

To ride.

I. Basic form reidh-*.

- a. RIDE, from Old English rīdan, to ride;
 - b. RITTER, from Middle Dutch rīden, to ride. Both a and b from Germanic rīdan*.
2. PALFREY, from Latin verēdus, post horse, from Celtic wo-rēd-* (wo-*, under; see upo).

II. O-grade form roidh-*.

- a. RAID, ROAD, from Old English rād, a riding, road;
 - b. RADDLE¹, from Middle High German reidel, rod between upright stakes (reidh-. Both a and b from Germanic raid-*).
2. READY, from Old English ræde, geræde, ready (raid-ja-*, probably from reidh-).
3. ARRAY, CURRY¹, from Vulgar Latin -rēdāre*, to arrange, from Germanic raidjan*, probably from reidh-.

[Pokorny reidh- 861.]

reig-

Important derivatives are: reach, rigid, rigor.

To reach, stretch out.

- 4. O-grade form roig-*. REACH, from Old English rācan, to stretch out, reach, from Germanic raikjan*.
- 5. Possibly suffixed (stative) zero-grade form rig-ē-*. RIGID, RIGOR, from Latin rigēre, to be stiff (?).

[Pokorny (reiġ) 862.]

rep-

Important derivatives are: *rape*¹, rapid, rapt, ravish, surreptitious.

To snatch.

Suffixed zero-grade form rap-yo-*. RAPACIOUS, RAPE¹, RAPID, RAPINE, RAPT, (RAVEN²), RAVIN, RAVISH; EREPSIN, (SUBREPTION), SURREPTITIOUS, from Latin rapere, to seize.

ret-

Important derivatives are: Tory, rodeo, roll, rotary, rotate, rotund, roulette, round¹, control, prune².

To run, roll.

2. Prefixed form to-wo-ret-*, “a running up to” (to-, to; wo, under, up, up from under; see upo). TORY, from Old Irish tōir, pursuit.
3. Suffixed o-grade form rot-ā-*. RODEO, ROLL, ROTA, ROTARY, ROTATE, ROTUND, (ROTUNDA), ROULETTE, ROUND¹, ROWEL; BAROUCHE, CONTROL, PRUNE², ROTIFORM, ROTOGRAVURE, from Latin rota, wheel.
4. Suffixed (participial) form ret-ondo-*. ROTUND, from Latin rotundus, round, probably from retundus*, “rolling.”

reudh-

Important derivatives are: red, rufous, robust, corroborate, rambunctious, ruddy, rust, rouge, rubeola, ruby, rubric, russet.

Red, ruddy.

III. O-grade form roudh-*.

- a. RED, from Old English rēad, red;
- b. RORQUAL, from Old Norse raudhr, red. Both a and b from Germanic raudaz*.
2. ROWAN, from a source akin to Old Norse reynir, mountain ash, rowan (from its red berries), from Germanic raudnia-*.
3. RUFESCENT, RUFIOUS, from Latin rūfus (of dialectal Italic origin), reddish.
4. RUBIGINOUS, from Latin rōbus, red.
5. ROBLE, ROBORANT, ROBUST; CORROBORATE, (RAMBUNCTIOUS), from Latin rōbur, rōbus, red oak, hardness, and rōbustus, strong.

IV. Zero-grade form rudh-*.

1. Form rudh-ā-*.
 - a. RUDDLE, from Old English rudu, red color;
 - b. RUDDOCK, from Old English rudduc, robin;
 - c. RUDDY, from Old English rudig, ruddy. a, b, and c all from Germanic rudō*.
2. Suffixed form rudh-sto-*. RUST, from Old English rūst (also rust?), rust, from Germanic rust-*.
3. ROUGE, RUBEOLA, RUBY; RUBEFACIENT, from Latin rubeus, red.
4. RUBICUND, from Latin rubicundus, red, ruddy.
5. RUBIDIUM, from Latin rubidus, red.
6. Suffixed (stative) form rudh-ē-*. RUBESCENT, from Latin rubēre, to be red.
7. Suffixed form rudh-ro-*.
 - a. RUBELLA, RUBRIC; BILIRUBIN, from Latin ruber, red;
 - b. RUTILANT, from Latin rutilus, reddish;
 - c. ERYTHEMA, ERYTHRO-, from Greek eruthros, red (with prothetic vowel, from oldest root form əreudh-*);
 - d. ERYSIPELAS, from possibly remade Greek erusi-, red, reddening.
8. Suffixed form rudh-to-*. RISSOLE, ROUX, RUSSET, from Latin russus, red.

[Pokorny reudh- 872.]

reuə-

Important derivatives are: room, rummage, rural, rustic.

To open; space.

16. Suffixed variant form rū-mo-* (< ruə-mo-*).

- a. ROOM, from Old English rūm, space;
- b. LEBENSRAUM, from Old High German rūm, space;
- c. RUMMAGE, from Old Provençal run, ship's hold, space. a, b, and c all from Germanic rūmaz*;
- d. REAM², from Old English rȳman, to widen, open up, from Germanic denominative rūmjan*.

17. Suffixed form reu(ə)-es-*. RURAL, RUSTIC, from Latin rūs, “open land,” the country.

[Pokorny reuə-, rū- 874.]

reug-

An important derivative is: reek.

To vomit, belch; smoke, cloud.

- 15. REEK, from Old English rēocan, to smoke, reek, and rēcan, to fumigate, from Germanic reukan*.
- 16. Suffixed zero-grade form rug-to-*. ERUCT, from Latin ructāre, to belch.

[Pokorny 4. reu- 871.]

reup-

Important derivatives are: *rip*¹, bereave, rover, rob, robe, loot, usurp, *rout*¹, rupture, abrupt, bankrupt, corrupt, disrupt, erupt, interrupt.

Also reub-To snatch.

- I. Basic form reub-*. RIP¹, from Flemish ripen, to rip, from Germanic rupjan*.
- II. O-grade form roup-*.
 - a. REAVE¹, from Old English rēafian, to plunder;
 - b. BEREAVE, from Old English berēafian, to take away (be-, bi-, intensive prefix; see ambhi);
 - c. ROVER², from Middle Dutch and Middle Low German roven, to rob. a, b, and c all from Germanic (bi-)raubōn*.

- d. ROB, from Old French rober, to rob;
 - e. RUBATO, from Italian rubare, to rob. Both a and b from a Romance borrowing from Germanic raubōn*, to rob.
2. ROBE, from Old French robe, robe (raubō*, booty).
 3. Suffixed form roup-tro-*. LOOT, from Sanskrit loptam, booty.
 4. RUBLE, from Old Russian rubiti, to chop, hew, from Slavic rubje/a-*.

III. Zero-grade form rup-*.

1. USURP, from Latin ūsūrpāre (< ūsū-rup-*; ūsus, use, usage, from ūtī, to use), originally “to interrupt the orderly acquisition of something by the act of using,” whence to take into use, usurp.
2. Nasalized form ru-m-p-*. ROUT¹, RUPTURE; ABRUPT, BANKRUPT, CORRUPT, DISRUPT, ERUPT, INTERRUPT, IRRUPT, RUPICOLOUS, from Latin rumpere, to break.

[Pokorny 2. reu- 868.]

ṛtko-

Important derivatives are: arctic, Arthur.

Bear.

12. URSINE, from Latin ursus, bear (< orcsos*).
13. ARCTIC, ARCTURUS, from Greek arktos, bear.

[Pokorny ṛkto-s 875.]

sā-

Important derivatives are: sad, *sate*¹, satiate, asset, satisfy, satire, saturate.

To satisfy.

Contracted from saa-*.

10. Suffixed zero-grade form *sə-to-.
 - a. SAD, from Old English sæd, sated, weary, from Germanic sadaz*, sated;
 - b. SATE¹, from Old English sadian, to sate, from derivative Germanic verb sadōn*, to satisfy, sate.
11. Suffixed zero-grade form *sə-ti-. SATIATE, SATIETY; (ASSAI²), ASSET, SATISFY, from Latin satis, enough, sufficient.
12. Suffixed zero-grade form *sə-tu-ro-. SATIRE, SATURATE, from Latin satur, full (of food), sated.
13. Suffixed zero-grade form *sə-d-ro-. HADRON, from Greek hadros, thick.

[Pokorny sā- 876.]

sāg-

Important derivatives are: seek, *sake*¹, forsake, ransack, presage, sagacious, hegemony.

To seek out.

Contracted from saæg*-.

15. Suffixed form *sāg-yo-. SEEK, from Old English sāecan, sēcan, to seek, from Germanic sōkjan*.
16. Suffixed form *sāg-ni-. SOKE, from Old English sōcn, attack, inquiry, right of local jurisdiction, from Germanic sōkniz*.
17. Zero-grade form *sag-.
 - a. SAKE¹, from Old English sacu, lawsuit, case, from Germanic derivative noun sakō*, “a seeking,” accusation, strife;
 - i. FORSAKE, from Old English forsacan, to renounce, refuse (for-, prefix denoting exclusion or rejection; see per¹);
 - ii. RANSACK, from Old Norse saka*, to seek. Both (i) and (ii) from Germanic sakan*, to seek, accuse, quarrel. Both a and b from Germanic *sak-.

18. Independent suffixed form *sāg-yo-. PRESAGE, from Latin sāgīre, to perceive, “seek to know.”
19. Zero-grade form *sag-. SAGACIOUS, from Latin sagāx, of keen perception.
20. Suffixed form *sāg-eyo-. EXEGESIS, HEGEMONY, from Greek hēgeisthai, to lead (

[Pokorny sāg- 876.]

sak-

Important derivatives are: sacred, consecrate, execrate, saint, sanctum, sanctify.
To sanctify.

3. Suffixed form *sak-ro-.
 - a. SACRED; CONSECRATE, EXECRATE, from Latin sacer, holy, sacred, dedicated;
 - b. compound sakro-dhōt-, “performer of sacred rites” (-dhōt-, doer; see dhē-). SACERDOTAL, from Latin sacerdōs, priest.
4. Nasalized form *sa-n-k-. SAINT, (SANCTUM); CORPOSANT, SACROSANCT, SANCTIFY, from Latin sancīre (past participle sanctus), to make sacred, consecrate.

[Pokorny sak- 878.]

sal-

Important derivatives are: salt, silt, sauce, salad, salami, salary, saline, saltcellar, salt peter.
Salt.

26. Extended form *sald-.
 - a. suffixed form *sald-o-. SALT, from Old English sealt, salt, from Germanic *saltam;
 - i. SOUSE¹, from Old French sous, pickled meat;

- ii. SILT, from Middle English cylte, fine sand, from a source probably akin to Danish and Norwegian sylt, salt marsh. Both (i) and (ii) from Germanic zero-grade suffixed extended form sult-jō*;
 - b. (SALSA), SAUCE, from Latin sallere (past participle salsus < sald-to-*), to salt.
27. SAL, SALAD, SALAMI, SALARY, SALI-, SALINE; SALTCELLAR, SALTPETER, from Latin sāl (genitive salis), salt.
28. HALO-, from Greek hals (stem hal-), salt, sea.

[Pokorny 1. sal- 878.]

sāwel-

Important derivatives are: sun, Sunday, south, southern, solar, parasol, solstice, helium.

Also s(u)wel-, su(ə)el-, su(ə)en-, sun-The sun. Contracted from sāwel-*.

- 4. Variant forms swen-, sun-.
 - i. SUN, from Old English sunne, sun;
 - ii. SUNDEW, from Middle Dutch sonne, sun. Both (i) and (ii) from Germanic sunnōn-*;
 - b. SUNDAY, from Old English sunandæg, Sunday, from Germanic compound sunnōn-dagaz*, “day of the sun” (translation of Latin diēs sōlis);
 - c. SOUTH, SOUTHERN, from Old English sūth, south, and sūtherne, southern, from Germanic derivative sunthaz*, “sun-side,” south.
5. Variant form s(ə)wōl-*. SOL³, SOL, SOLAR, SOLARIUM; GIRASOL, INSOLATE, PARASOL, SOLANINE, SOLSTICE, TURNSOLE, from Latin sōl, the sun.
6. Suffixed form sāwel-yo-*. HELIACAL, HELIO-, HELIUM; ANTHELION, APHELION, ISOHEL, PARHELION, PERIHELION, from Greek hēlios, sun.

[Pokorny sāwel- 881.]

sē-

Important derivatives are: *sow*¹, seed, season, semen, seminary, disseminate.
To sow.

Contracted from sə-*.

6. *sow*¹, from Old English sāwan, to sow, from Germanic sēan*.
7. Suffixed form sē-ti-*, sowing.
 - a. SEED, from Old English sād, seed;
 - b. COLZA, from Middle Dutch saet and Middle Low German sāt, seed. Both a and b from Germanic sēdiz*, seed.
8. Reduplicated zero-grade form si-s(ə)-*. SEASON, from Latin serere, to sow, satiō (< sə-tiō*), sowing.
9. Suffixed form sē-men-*, seed. SEMÈ, SEMEN, SEMINARY; DISSEMINATE, from Latin sēmen, seed.

[In Pokorny 2. sē(i)- 889.]

sed-

Important derivatives are: sit, *set*¹, ersatz, settle, saddle, soot, seat, sÈance, sedentary, sediment, session, siege, assess, dissident, obsess, possess, preside, reside, subsidy, supersede, subside, *sedate*¹, *soil*¹, chair.

To sit.

5. Suffixed form sed-yo-*.
 - a. SIT, from Old English sittan, to sit;
 - b. SITZ BATH, SITZKRIEG, SITZMARK, from Old High German sizzen, to sit. Both a and b from Germanic sitjan*.
6. Suffixed (causative) o-grade form sod-eyo-*.
 - a. SET¹, from Old English settan, to place;
 - b. BESET, from Old English besettan, to set near;

- c. ERSATZ, from Old High German irsezzan, to replace, from sezzan, to set. a, b, and c all from Germanic (bi-)satjan*, to cause to sit, set.
7. Suffixed form sed-lo-*, seat. SETTLE, from Old English setl, seat, from Germanic setlaz*.
8. O-grade form sod-*. SADDLE, from Old English sadol, saddle, from Germanic sadulaz*, seat, saddle (perhaps from sod-dhlo-*).
9. Suffixed lengthened o-grade form sōd-o-*. SOOT, from Old English sōt, soot (sōtam*).
10. Suffixed lengthened-grade form sēd-i-, settler. COSSET, possibly from Old English sāeta, -sāete, inhabitant(s), from Germanic sāti-*.
11. Suffixed lengthened-grade form sēd-yo-*. SEAT, from Old Norse sæti, seat, from Germanic (ge)sētjam*, seat (ge-, ga-, collective prefix; see kom).
12. Form sed-ē-*. SÈANCE, SEDENTARY, SEDERUNT, SEDILE, SEDIMENT, SESSILE, SESSION, SEWER², SIEGE; ASSESS, ASSIDUOUS, DISSIDENT, (INSESSORIAL), INSIDIOUS, OBSESS, POSSESS, PRESIDE, RESIDE, SUBSIDY, SUPERSEDE, from Latin sedēre, to sit.
13. Reduplicated form si-zd-*.
- a. SUBSIDE, from Latin sīdere, to sit down, settle;
- b. SYNZESIS, from Greek hizein, to sit down, settle down.
14. Lengthened-grade form sēd-*. SEE², from Latin sēdēs, seat, residence.
15. Lengthened-grade form sēd-ā-*. SEDATE¹, from Latin sēdāre, to settle, calm down.
16. Suffixed o-grade form sod-yo-*. SOIL¹, from Latin solium, throne, seat.
17. Suffixed form sed-rā-*. -HEDRON; CATHEDRA, (CHAIR), EPHEDRINE, EXEDRA, SANHEDRIN, TETRAHEDRON, from Greek hedra, seat, chair, face of a geometric solid.

18. Prefixed and suffixed form pi-sed-yo-, to sit upon (pi, on; see epi). PIEZO-; ISOPIESTIC, from Greek piezein, to press tight.
19. Basic form sed-*.
- EDAPHIC, from Greek edaphos, ground, foundation (with Greek suffix -aphos);
 - UPANISHAD, from Sanskrit upaniṣad, Upanishad, from sad-;
 - TANIST, from Old Irish tānaise, designated successor, from Celtic tānihessio-, “one who is waited for,” from to-ad-ni-sed-tio, from to-ad-ni-sed-*, to wait for.
20. Suffixed form sed-o-*, sitting. EISTEDDFOD, from Welsh eistedd, sitting, from Celtic eks-dī-sedo-* (see eghs, de-).

[Pokorny sed- 884.]

segh-

Important derivatives are: hectic, eunuch, epoch, scheme, scholar, scholastic, *school*¹. To hold.

- Suffixed form segh-es-*. SIEGFRIED, from Old High German sigu, sigo, victory, from Germanic sigiz-*, victory (
- HECTIC; CACHEXIA, CATHEXIS, ECHARD, ENTELECHY, EUNUCH, OPHIUCHUS, from Greek ekhein, to hold, possess, be in a certain condition, and hexis, habit, condition.
- O-grade form sogh-*. EPOCH, from Greek epokhē, “a holding back,” pause, cessation, position in time (epi-, on, at; see epi).
- Zero-grade form sgh-*.
 - SCHEME, from Greek skhēma, “a holding,” form, figure;
 - (SCHOLAR), SCHOLASTIC, SCHOLIUM, SCHOOL¹, from Greek skholē, “a holding back,” stop, rest, leisure, employment of leisure in disputation, school.
- Reduplicated form si-sgh-*. ISCHEMIA, from Greek iskhein, to keep back.

sek-

Important derivatives are: scythe, *saw*¹, sedge, Saxon, skin, secant, section, sector, segment, dissect, insect, intersect, sickle.

To cut.

18. SCYTHE, from Old English sīthe, sigthe, sickle, from Germanic seĝithō*, sickle.
19. Suffixed o-grade form sok-ā-*. SAW¹, from Old English sagu, sage, saw, from Germanic sagō*, a cutting tool, saw.
20. Suffixed o-grade form sok-yo-*. SEDGE, from Old English secg, sedge, from Germanic sagjaz*, “sword,” plant with a cutting edge.
21. Suffixed o-grade form sok-so-*. SAXON, from Late Latin Saxō, (plural Saxonēs), a Saxon, from West Germanic tribal name Saxon-, Saxon, traditionally (but doubtfully) regarded as from Germanic sahsam, knife, sword (as if “warrior with knives”).
22. Extended root skend-*, to peel off, flay. SKIN, from Old Norse skinn, skin, from Germanic skinth-*.
23. Basic form sek-*. SECANT, -SECT, SECTILE, SECTION, SECTOR, SEGMENT; DISSECT, INSECT, INTERSECT, RESECT, (TRANSECT), from Latin secāre, to cut.
24. Lengthened-grade form sēk-*. SICKLE, from Latin sēcula, sickle.
25. Possible suffixed variant form sak-so-*.
 - a. ZAX, from Old English seax, knife;
 - b. SAXATILE; SAXICOLOUS, SAXIFRAGE, from Latin saxum, stone (

[Pokorny 2. sēk- 895, sken-(d-) 929.] See also extended roots skai-, sker⁻¹, sker⁻³ sek^{w-1}

Important derivatives are: sect, sequel, sequence, sue, suitor, consequent, ensue, execute, persecute, prosecute, pursue, subsequent, sequester, *second*², intrinsic, *seal*¹, sign, assign, designate, insignia, resign, social, society, associate, dissociate.

To follow.

17. SECT, SEGUE, SEGUIDILLA, SEQUACIOUS, SEQUEL, SEQUENCE, SUE, SUITOR; CONSEQUENT, ENSUE, EXECUTE, OBSEQUIOUS, PERSECUTE, PROSECUTE, (PURSUE), SUBSEQUENT, from Latin sequī, to follow.
18. SEQUESTER, SEQUESTRUM, from Latin sequester, “follower,” mediator, depository.
19. Suffixed (participial) form sek^w-ondo-*. SECOND², SECONDO, SECUND, SECUNDINES, from Latin secundus, following, coming next, second.
20. Suffixed form sek^w-os*, following. EXTRINSIC, INTRINSIC, from Latin secus, along, alongside of.
21. Suffixed form sek^w-no-*. SEAL¹, SEGNO, SIGN; ASSIGN, CONSIGN, DESIGNATE, INSIGNIA, RESIGN, from Latin signum, identifying mark, sign (
22. Suffixed o-grade form sok^w-yo-*. SOCIABLE, SOCIAL, SOCIETY, SOCIO-; ASSOCIATE, CONSOCIATE, DISSOCIATE, from Latin socius, ally, companion (< “follower”).

[Pokorny 1. sek^u- 896.]

sek^w-²

Important derivatives are: see¹, sight.

To perceive, see.

3. SEE¹, from Old English sēon, to see, from Germanic sehwan*, to see.
4. SIGHT, from Old English siht, gesiht, vision, spectacle, from Germanic abstract noun sih-tiz*.

[Pokorny 2. sek^u- 897.]

sek^w-³

Important derivatives are: say, saw², saga, scold.

To say, utter.

14. O-grade form sok^w-*.

- a. suffixed form sok^w-yo-*. SAY, from Old English secgan, to say, from Germanic sagjan*;
- b. suffixed form sok^w-ā-*.
 - i. SAW², from Old English sagu, a saying, speech;
 - ii. SAGA, from Old Norse saga, a saying, narrative. Both (i) and (ii) from Germanic sagō*, a saying.

15. Perhaps suffixed zero-grade form sk^w-e-tlo-*, narration. SCOLD, SKALD, from Middle English scolde, an abusive person, and Old Norse skāld, poet, “satirist” (to which the probable Scandinavian source of Middle English scolde is perhaps akin), from North Germanic skathla*.

[In Pokorny 2. sek^w- 897.]

sel-

Important derivatives are: salient, sally, sautÈ, assail, desultory, exult, insult, result, somersault, salmon.

To jump.

8. Suffixed zero-grade form sal-yo-*.

- a. SALACIOUS, SALIENT, SALLY, (SAUTÈ); ASSAIL, DESULTORY, DISSILIENT, EXULT, INSULT, RESILE, RESULT, SOMERSAULT, from Latin salire, to leap;
- b. HALTER², from Greek hallesthai, to leap, jump.

9. SALMON, from Latin salmō (borrowed from Gaulish), salmon (sel-).

[Pokorny 4. sel- 899.]

sem-¹

Important derivatives are: simultaneous, assemble, ensemble, single, Sanskrit, same, anomalous, seem, seemly, some, similar, assimilate, resemble, simplicity, simple.

One; also adverbially “as one,” together with.

I. Full-grade form sem-*.

- a. HENDECASYLLABIC, HENDIADYS, HENOTHEISM, HYPHEN, from Greek heis (hen-s* < hem-s*), one;
 - b. (see dekḿ) Greek he- in hekatón, one hundred (? dissimilated from hem-katón*). Both a and b from Greek hem-*.
2. Suffixed form sem-el-*. SIMULTANEOUS; ASSEMBLE, ENSEMBLE, from Latin simul, at the same time.
 3. Suffixed form sem-golo-*. SINGLE, from Latin singulus, alone, single.
 4. Compound sem-per-* (per*, during, for; see per¹). SEMPRE; SEMPITERNAL, from Latin semper, always, ever (

II. O-grade form som-*.

1. SAMSARA, SANDHI, SANSKRIT, from Sanskrit sam, together.
2. Suffixed form som-o-*.
 - a. SAME, from Old Norse samr, same, from Germanic samaz*, same;
 - b. HOMEO-, HOMO-; ANOMALOUS, from Greek homos, same;
 - c. HOMILY, from Greek homilos, crowd.
3. Suffixed form som-alo-*. HOMOLOGRAPHIC, from Greek homalos, like, even, level.

III. Lengthened o-grade form sōm-*.

1. Suffixed form sōm-i-*. SEEM, SEEMLY, from Old Norse sæmr, fitting, agreeable (sōmiz*).
2. Suffixed lengthened o-grade form sōm-o-*. SAMIZDAT, SAMOVAR, from Russian sam(o)-, self.

IV. Zero-grade form sm-*.

1. (ACOLYTE), ANACOLUTHON, from Greek compound a-kolouthos, accompanying (a- + keleuthos, way, path), from ha-, a-, together.

2. Compound form sṃ-plo-* (-plo-*, -fold; see pel⁻²). HAPLOID, from Greek haploos, haplous, single, simple.
3. Suffixed form sṃm-o-*.
 - a. SOME, from Old English sum, one, a certain one;
 - b. -SOME¹, from Old English -sum, -like. Both a and b from Germanic sumaz*.
4. Suffixed form sṃm-alo-*. SIMILAR; ASSIMILATE, RESEMBLE, from Latin similis, of the same kind, like.
5. Compound sṃ-kēro-*, of one growing (see ker⁻²).
6. Suffixed form sṃ-tero-*. HETERO-, from Greek heteros (earlier hateros), one of two, other.
7. Compound sṃ-plek-, “one-fold,” simple (plek-, -fold; see plek⁻). SEMPLICE, SIMPLEX, SIMPLICITY, from Latin simplex, simple.
8. Compound sṃ-plo-, “one-fold,” simple (-plo-, -fold; see pel⁻²). SIMPLE, from Latin simplus, simple.
9. Extended form sṃmma*. HAMADRYAD, from Greek hama, together with, at the same time.

[Pokorny 2. sem- 902.]

sem⁻²

An important derivative is: *summer*¹.

Also semə-Summer.

Suffixed zero-grade form sṃə-aro-*. SUMMER¹, from Old English sumor, summer, from Germanic sumaraz*.

[Pokorny 3. sem- 905.]

sēmi-

An important derivative is: semi-.

Half.

14. SAND-BLIND, from Old English sām-, half, from Germanic sēmi-*.

15. SEMI-, from Latin sēmi-, half.

16. SESQUI-, SESTERCE, from Latin sēmis, half.

17. HEMI-, from Greek hēmi-, half.

[Pokorny sēmi- 905.]

sen-

Important derivatives are: senate, senescent, senile, senior, sir, sire, surly.

Old.

SEIGNIOR, SENATE, SENECTITUDE, SENESCENT, SENILE, SENIOR, SENOPIA, (SIGNORY), (SIR), SIRE, (SURLY), from Latin senex, old, an elder.

[Pokorny sen(o)- 907.]

seng^wh-

Important derivatives are: sing, song.

To sing, make an incantation.

- a. SING, from Old English singan, to sing;
- b. MEISTERSINGER, MINNESINGER, SINGSPIEL, from Old High German singan, to sing. Both a and b from Germanic singan*.
3. Suffixed o-grade form song^wh-o-*, singing, song. SONG, from Old English sang, song, song, from Germanic sangwaz*.

[Pokorny seng^wh- 906.]

sent-

Important derivatives are: send¹, godsend, scent, sense, sentence, sentient, sentiment, sentinel, assent, consent, dissent, resent.

To head for, go.

1. WIDDERSHINS, from Old High German sin(d), direction, from Germanic form sinthaz*.
2. Suffixed (causative) o-grade form sont-eyo-*. SEND¹, from Old English sendan, to send, from Germanic sandjan*, to cause to go.

3. Suffixed o-grade form sont-o-*. GODSEND, from Old English sand, message, messenger, from Germanic sandaz*, that which is sent.
4. Perhaps suffixed form sent-yo-*. SCENT, SENSE, (SENSILLIUM), SENTENCE, SENTIENT, SENTIMENT, SENTINEL; ASSENT, CONSENT, DISSENT, PRESENTIMENT, RESENT, from Latin sentīre, to feel ( [Pokorny sent- 908.]

sep-

Important derivatives are: *sage*¹, sapient, savant, savor, savvy, insipid.

To taste, perceive.

Suffixed zero-grade form sap-yo-*. SAGE¹, SAPID, SAPIENT, SAPOR, SAVANT, SAVOR, SAVVY; INSIPID, from Latin sapere, to taste, have taste, be wise.

[Pokorny sap- 880.]

septm̥

Important derivatives are: seven, September, septet.

Seven.

13. SEVEN; SEVENTEEN, SEVENTY, from Old English seofon, seven, with derivatives (hund)seofontig, seventy, and seofontīne, seventeen (-tīne, ten; see dek̥m̥), from Germanic sebum*.
14. SEPTEMBER, SEPTENNIAL, SEPTET, SEPTUAGINT, SEPTUPLE; SEPTENTRION, from Latin septem, seven.
15. HEBDOMAD, HEPTA-, HEPTAD, from Greek hepta, seven.

[Pokorny septm̥ 909.]

ser-¹

Important derivatives are: conserve, observe, preserve, reserve, reservoir, hero.

To protect.

2. Extended form serw-*. CONSERVE, OBSERVE, PRESERVE, RESERVE, (RESERVOIR), from Latin servāre, to keep, preserve.
3. Perhaps suffixed lengthened-grade form sēr-ōs-*. HERO, from Greek hērōs, “protector,” hero.

[Pokorny 2. ser- 910.]

ser-²

Important derivatives are: series, assert, exert, insert, sermon, sorcerer, sort, assort, consort.

To line up.

13. SERIES, SERTULARIAN; ASSERT, DESERT³, DISSERTATE, EXERT, INSERT, from Latin serere, to arrange, attach, join (in speech), discuss.
14. Suffixed form ser-mon-*. SERMON, from Latin sermō (stem sermōn-), speech, discourse.
15. Perhaps suffixed form ser-ā-*. SEAR², (SERRIED), from Latin sera, a lock, bolt, bar (?)
16. Suffixed zero-grade form sṛ-ti-*. SORCERER, SORT; ASSORT, CONSORT, SORTILEGE, from Latin sors (stem sort-), lot, fortune (probably from the lining up of lots before drawing).
17. Suffixed o-grade form sor-mo-*. HORMOGONIUM, from Greek hormos, chain, necklace.

[Pokorny 4. ser- 911.]

seuə-¹

An important derivative is: son.

To give birth.

Suffixed zero-grade form in derivative noun su(ə)-nu-*, son. SON, from Old English sunu, son, from Germanic sunuz*.

[Pokorny 2. seu- 913.] See also sū-.

seuə-²

Important derivatives are: soup, *sup*², sop, sip, suck, soak, suction, succulent.
To take liquid.

IX. Suffixed zero-grade form suə-yo-, contracted to sū-yo. HYETAL; ISOHYET, from Greek huetos, rain, from huein, to rain.

X. Possible extended zero-grade form sūb-*.

- a. *SUP*¹, from Old English sūpan, sūpian, to drink, sip;
- b. SOUP, (*SUP*²), from Old French soup(e), soup. Both a and b from Germanic sūp-*.
- c. SOP, from Old English sopp- in soppcuppe, cup for dipping bread in;
- d. SIP, from Middle English sippen, to sip, from a source probably akin to Low German sippen, to sip, possibly from seuə⁻². Both a and b from Germanic supp-*.

XI. Possible extended zero-grade form sūg-*.

1. SUCK, from Old English sūcan, to suck, from Germanic sūk-*.
2. SOAK, from Old English socian, to steep, from Germanic shortened form sukōn*.
3. SUCTION, SUCTORIAL, from Latin sūgere, to suck.
4. Variant form sūk-*. SUCCULENT, from Latin sūcus, succus, juice.

[Pokorny 1. seu- 912.]

skand-

Important derivatives are: scan, scansion, ascend, descend, transcend, scandal, *scale*².
Also skend-To leap, climb.

4. SCAN, SCANDENT, SCANSION, SCANSORIAL; ASCEND, (CONDESCEND), DESCEND, TRANSCEND, from Latin scandere, to climb.
5. Suffixed form skand-alo-*. SCANDAL, from Greek skandalon, a snare, trap, stumbling block.
6. Suffixed form skand-slā-*. ECHELON, ESCALADE, *SCALE*², from Latin scālae, steps, ladder.

skei-

Important derivatives are: *shin*¹, science, conscious, nice, shit, schism, rescind, *shed*¹, sheath, ski, esquire, squire.

To cut, split.

Extension of sek-.

- a. SHIN¹, from Old English scinu, shin, shinbone (
 - b. CHINE, from Old French eschine, backbone, piece of meat with part of the backbone. Both a and b from Germanic suffixed form ski-nō-*.
8. SCIENCE, SCILICET, SCIOLISM; ADSCITITIOUS, CONSCIENCE, CONSCIOUS, NESCIENCE, (NICE), OMNISCIENT, PLEBISCITE, PRESCIENT, from Latin scīre, to know (
 9. Suffixed zero-grade form skiy-enā*. SKEAN, from Old Irish scīan, knife.
 10. Extended root skeid-*.
 - i. SHIT, from Old English scītan*, to defecate;
 - ii. SKATE³, from Old Norse skīta, to defecate;
 - iii. SHYSTER, from Old High German skīzzan, to defecate. (i), (ii), and (iii) all from Germanic skītan*, to separate, defecate;
 - b. suffixed zero-grade form sk(h)id-yo-*. SCHISM, SCHIST, SCHIZO-, from Greek skhizein, to split;
 - c. nasalized zero-grade form ski-n-d-*. SCISSION; EXSCIND, PRESCIND, RESCIND, from Latin scindere, to split.
11. Extended root skeit-*.
 - i. SHED¹, from Old English scēadan, to separate;
 - ii. SHEATH, from Old English scēath, sheath (skei-. Both (i) and (ii) from Germanic skaith-*, *skaidan;

- b. SKI, from Old Norse skīdh, log, stick, snowshoe, from Germanic *skīdam;
- c. o-grade form *skoit-. ÈCU, ESCUDO, ESCUTCHEON, ESQUIRE, SCUDO, SCUTUM, (SQUIRE), from Latin scūtum, shield (< “board”).

12. Extended root *skeip-.

- a. SHEAVE², from Middle English sheve, pulley (
- b. SKIVE, from a Scandinavian source akin to Old Norse skīfa, to slice, split;
- c. SHIVER², from Middle English shivere, scivre, splinter, possibly from a Low German source akin to Middle Low German schever, splinter. a, b, and c all from Germanic *skif-.

[Pokorny skei- 919.]

skel⁻¹

Important derivatives are: shell, shale, *scale*¹, scalp, shield, skill, cutlass, shelf, half, scalpel, sculpture.

Also kel-To cut.

- a. SHELL, from Old English scell, sciel, shell;
- b. SCAGLIOLA, from Italian scaglia, chip. Both a and b from Germanic *skaljō, piece cut off, shell, scale.
- c. SHALE, from Old English sc(e)alu, husk, shell;
- d. SCALE¹, from Old French escale, husk, shell. Both a and b from Germanic *skalō.
- e. SCALL, from Old Norse skalli, bald head (
- f. SCALP, from Middle English scalp, top of the head, from a source akin to Old Norse skalpr, sheath, shell. Both a and b from Germanic *skal-.

2. SCALE³, SKOAL, from Old Norse skāl, bowl, drinking vessel (made from a shell), from Germanic skēlō*.
3. SHIELD, from Old English sciold, shield (< “board”), from Germanic skelduz*.
 - a. SKILL, from Old Norse skil, reason, discernment, knowledge (< “incisiveness”);
 - b. SHELDRAKE, from Middle English scheld, variegated, from a Low German source akin to Middle Dutch schillen, to diversify, with past participle schillede, separated, variegated. Both a and b from Germanic skeli-*.
4. SCHOOL², SHOAL², from Middle Low German schōle, troop, or Middle Dutch scōle, both from Germanic skulō*, a division.
5. Suffixed variant form kel-tro-*. COULTER, CULTRATE, CUTLASS, from Latin culter, knife.
6. Suffixed zero-grade form skl̥-yo-*. SCALENE, from Greek skallein, to stir up, hoe (skalenos, uneven).
7. Extended root skelp-*.
 - a. SHELF, from Middle Low German schelf, shelf (skelf-*;
 - b. HALF, from Old English healf, half, from Germanic halbaz* (kelp-*), divided possibly from skel-¹;
 - c. perhaps variant skalp-*. SCALPEL, SCULPTURE, from Latin scalpere, to cut, scrape, with derivative sculpere (originally as the combining form of scalpere), to carve

[Pokorny 1. (s)kel- 923.]

skel-²

An important derivative is: shall.

To be under an obligation.

O-grade (perfect) form skol-*. SHALL, from Old English sceal (used with the first and third person singular pronouns), shall, from Germanic skal*, I owe, hence I ought.

sker-¹

Important derivatives are: shear, *share*¹, shears, scabbard, score, shard, short, shirt, skirt, skirmish, screen, carnage, carnal, carnation, carnival, carrion, carnivorous, incarnate, curt, cortex, sharp, *scrap*¹, scrape, *scrub*¹, *shrub*¹, screw.

Also ker-To cut.

VIII. Basic form *sker-, *ker-.

- a. SHEAR, from Old English scieran, sceran, to cut;
 - b. SHEER¹, from Low German scheren, to move to and fro, and Dutch scheren, to withdraw, depart. Both a and b from Germanic *skeran.
 - c. SHARE², from Old English scēar, plowshare;
 - d. SHARE¹, from Old English scearu, scaru, portion, division (but recorded only in the sense of “fork of the body,” “tonsure”). Both a and b from Germanic *skeraz.
 - e. SHEAR, from Old English scēar, scissors, from Germanic *skēr-ō- and *sker-ez-;
 - f. compound *skēr-berg-, “sword protector,” scabbard (see bhergh-¹). SCABBARD, from Old French escauberc, scabbard, possibly from a Germanic source akin to Old High German scarberc, scabbard. Both a and b from Germanic *skēr-.
2. SCORE, from Old Norse skor, notch, tally, twenty, from Germanic *skur-.
 3. SCAR², SKERRY, from Old Norse sker, low reef (*skar-jam).
 4. Suffixed o-grade extended form *skorp-o-. SCARE², from Old Norse skarfr, diagonally-cut end of a board, from Germanic *skarfaz.
 5. Suffixed o-grade extended form *skord-o-. SHARD, from Old English sceard, a cut, notch, from Germanic *skardaz.
 6. Extended form *skerd- in suffixed zero-grade form *skr̥d-o-.

- a. SHORT, from Old English scort, sceort, “cut,” short;
 - b. SHIRT, from Old English scyrte, skirt (
 - c. SKIRT, from Old Norse skyrta, shirt. a, b, and c all from Germanic skurtaz*.
 - d. SKIRMISH, from Old French eskermir, to fight with a sword, fence, and Old Italian scaramuccia, skirmish, from a source akin to Old High German skirmen, to protect;
 - e. SCREEN, from Middle Dutch scherm, shield. Both a and b from Germanic extended form skerm-*.
7. Variant form kar-*. CARNAGE, CARNAL, CARNASSIAL, CARNATION, CARNIVAL, CARRION, CARUNCLE, CHARNEL, CRONE; CARNIVOROUS, INCARNATE, from Latin carō (stem carn-), flesh.
 8. Suffixed o-grade form kor-yo-*. CORIACEOUS, CORIUM, CUIRASS, CURRIER; EXCORIATE, from Latin corium, leather (originally “piece of hide”).
 9. Suffixed zero-grade form k_ṛ-to-*. CURT, CURTAL, KIRTLE, from Latin curtus, short.
 10. Suffixed o-grade form kor-mo-*. CORM, from Greek kormos, a trimmed tree trunk.
 11. Suffixed o-grade form kor-i-*. COREOPSIS, from Greek koris, bedbug (< “cutter”).
 12. Suffixed zero-grade form. SHORE¹, from Old English scora, shore, from Germanic skur-ō*.

IX. Extended roots skert-, kert-.

1. Zero-grade form k_ṛt-* or o-grade form kort-*. CORTEX; DECORTICATE, from Latin cortex, bark (
2. Suffixed form kert-snā-*. CENACLE, from Latin cēna, meal (

X. Extended root skerp-*. SCURF, probably from a Scandinavian source akin to Old English sceorf, scab, scurf, from Germanic skerf-*.

XI. Extended root skerb(h)-, skreb(h)-.

- a. SHARP, from Old English scearp, slope;
 - b. SCARP, from Italian scarpa, embankment, possibly from a Germanic source akin to Gothic skarpō, pointed object. Both a and b from Germanic skarpaz*, cutting, sharp.
 - c. SCRAP¹, from Old Norse skrap, “pieces,” remains;
 - d. SCRAPE, from Old Norse skrapa, to scratch. Both a and b from Germanic skrap-*.
 - e. SCRABBLE, from Middle Dutch schrabben, to scrape;
 - f. SCRUB¹, from Middle Dutch schrobben, to scrape. Both a and b from Germanic skrab-*.
2. SHRUB¹, from Old English scrybb, shrub (skrub-*).
 3. SCROBICULATE, from Latin scrobis, trench, ditch.
 4. SCREW, SCROFULA, from Latin scrōfa, a sow (< “rooter, digger”).

[Pokorny 4. sker-, Section I. 938.]

sker-²

Important derivatives are: shrink, *ring*¹, ranch, range, *rank*¹, rink, arrange, ridge, curb, curve, crest, crepe, crisp, circle, search, crown.

Also ker-To turn, bend. Presumed base of a number of distantly related derivatives.

3. Extended form (s)kreg-* in nasalized form (s)kre-n-g-*.
 - a. SHRINK, from Old English scrincan, to wither, shrivel up, from Germanic skrink-*;
 - b. variant kre-n-g-*.
 - i. RUCK², from Old Norse hrukka, a crease, fold;
 - ii. FLOUNCE¹, from Old French fronce, pleat, from Frankish hrunkjan*, to wrinkle. Both (i) and (ii) from Germanic hrunk-*.
4. Extended form (s)kreg-* in nasalized form skre-n-gh-*.

- a. RING¹, from Old English hring, a ring;
 - b. RANCH, RANGE, RANK¹, RINK; ARRANGE, DERANGE, from Old French renc, reng, line, row;
 - c. RINGHALS, from Middle Dutch rinc (combining form ring-), a ring. a, b, and c all from Germanic hringaz*, something curved, circle.
5. Extended form kreuk-*.
 - a. RIDGE, from Old English hrycg, spine, ridge;
 - b. RUCKSACK, from Old High German hrukki, back. Both a and b from Germanic hrugjaz.
 6. Suffixed variant form kur-wo-*. CURB, CURVATURE, CURVE, CURVET, from Latin curvus, bent, curved.
 7. Suffixed extended form kris-ni-*. CRINOLINE, from Latin crīnis (< crisnis*), hair.
 8. Suffixed extended form kris-tā-*. CREST, CRISTA, CRISTATE, from Latin crista, tuft, crest.
 9. Suffixed extended form krip-so-*. CREPE, CRISP, CRISPATE, from Latin crispus (metathesized from crispus*), curly.
 10. Extended expressive form krīss-*. CRISSUM, from Latin crīsāre, (of women) to wiggle the hips during copulation.
 11. Perhaps reduplicated form ki-kr-o-*. (CIRCA), CIRCLE, (CIRCUM-), SEARCH; CRICOID, from Greek krikos (with metathesis), a ring.
 12. Suffixed o-grade form kor-ōno-*. (CORONA), CROWN, from Greek korōnos, curved.
 13. Suffixed variant form kur-to*. KURTOSIS, from Greek kurtos, bent.

[Pokorny 3. (s)ker- 935.]

sker⁻³

A derivative is: dreck.

Excrement, dung.

Extension of sek-, “to cut, separate,” hence “to void excrement.”

8. Suffixed unextended form sk-ōr/n-*. SCATO-, SCORIA, SKATOLE, from Greek skōr (genitive skatos < sk-ŋt-*), dung.
9. Extended form skert-* in taboo metathesis sterk-os-*.
 - a. STERCORACEOUS, from Latin stercus, dung;
 - b. variant forms (s)terg-, (s)treg-. DRECK, from Middle High German dr”c, dung, from Germanic threkka-*.

[Pokorny sker-d- 947, 8. (s)ter- 1031.]

(s)keu-

Important derivatives are: sky, meerschaum, scum, obscure, *hide*², cuticle, recoil, hose, hoard, *hide*¹, hut.

To cover, conceal.

Zero-grade form (s)ku-. Variant (s)keuə-, zero-grade form (s)kuə-, contracted to (s)kū-.

3. Suffixed basic form.
 - a. SKY, from Old Norse ský, cloud;
 - b. SKEWBALD, from a Scandinavian source akin to Old Norse ský, cloud. Both a and b from Germanic skeu-jam*, cloud (“cloud cover”).
4. Zero-grade form skū-*.
 - a. suffixed form skū-mo-*.
 - i. SKIM, from Old French escume, scum;
 - ii. MEERSCHAUM, from Old High German scūm, scum;
 - iii. SCUM, from Middle Dutch schūm, scum. (i), (ii), and (iii) all from Germanic skūmaz*, foam, scum (

- b. suffixed form skū-ro-*. OBSCURE; CHIAROSCURO, from Latin obscurus, “covered,” dark (ob-, away from; see epi).
5. Zero-grade form kū-*.
- a. suffixed form kū-ti-*. HIDE², from Old English hȳd, skin, hide, from Germanic hūdiz*;
- b. suffixed form ku-ti-*. CUTANEOUS, CUTICLE, CUTIS; CUTIN, from Latin cutis skin;
- c. possibly suffixed form kū-lo-*. CULET, CULOTTE; BASCULE, RECOIL, from Latin cūlus, the rump, backside;
- d. suffixed form ku-to-*. -CYTE, CYTO-, from Greek kutos, a hollow, vessel.
6. Extended zero-grade form kus-*.
- i. HOSE, from Old English hosa, hose, covering for the leg;
- ii. LEDERHOSEN, from Old High German hosa, leg covering. Both (i) and (ii) from Germanic husōn-*;
- b. suffixed form kus-dho-* (or suffixed extended form kudh-to-*). HOARD, from Old English hord, stock, store, treasure (huzdam*);
- c. KISHKE, from Russian kishka, gut (< “sheath”).
7. Suffixed extended zero-grade form kut-no-*. CUNNILINGUS, from Latin cunnus, vulva (< “sheath”).
8. Extended root keudh-*.
- a. HIDE¹, from Old English hȳdan, to hide, cover up, from Germanic suffixed lengthened zero-grade form hūd-jan*;
- b. HUT, from French hutte, hut, from Germanic suffixed zero-grade form hūd-jōn-*;
- c. HUDDLE, from Low German huden, to crowd together, probably from Germanic hūđ-*.

9. SHELING, from a Scandinavian source akin to Old Norse skāli, hut, from Germanic suffixed o-grade form skaw-ala-*.

[Pokorny 2. (s)keu- 951.]

skeud-

Important derivatives are: shoot, *shot*¹, shut, shuttle, *sheet*¹, *scuttle*¹.

To shoot, chase, throw.

14. SHOOT, from Old English scēotan, to shoot, from Germanic skeutan*, to shoot.
- SHOT¹, from Old English sceot, scot, shooting, a shot;
 - SCHUSS, from Old High German scuz, shooting, a shot;
 - SCOT, (SCOT AND LOT), from Old Norse skot and Old French escot, contribution, tax (
 - WAINSCOT, from Middle Dutch sc(h)ot, crossbar, wooden partition. a, b, c, and d all from Germanic skutaz*, shooting, shot.
15. SHUT, from Old English scyttan, to shut (by pushing a crossbar), probably from Germanic skutjan*.
16. SHUTTLE, from Old English scytel, a dart, missile, from Germanic skutilaz*.
- SHEET², from Old English scēata, corner of a sail;
 - SHEET¹, from Old English scēte, piece of cloth. Both a and b from Germanic skautjōn-*.
 - SCOUT², from a Scandinavian source akin to Old Norse skūta, mockery (
 - SHOUT, from Old Norse skūta, a taunt. Both a and b from Germanic skut-*.

[Pokorny 2. (s)keud- 956.]

skrihb-

Important derivatives are: scribble, scribe, script, Scripture, ascribe, circumscribe, conscript, describe, inscribe, manuscript, postscript, prescribe, subscribe, transcribe.
To cut, separate, sift.

Extension of sker-¹.

7. SCRIBBLE, SCRIBE, SCRIPT, SCRIPTORIUM, SCRIPTURE, SERIF, SHRIVE; ASCRIBE, CIRCUMSCRIBE, CONSCRIPT, DESCRIBE, FESTSCHRIFT, INSCRIBE, MANUSCRIPT, POSTSCRIPT, PRESCRIBE, PROSCRIBE, RESCRIPT, SUBSCRIBE, SUPERSCRIBE, TRANSCRIBE, from Latin scrībere, to scratch, incise, write.
8. SCARIFY¹, from Greek skariphos, scratching, sketch, pencil.

[Pokorny 4. sker-, Section II. 945.]

slēb-

An important derivative is: sleep.
To be weak, sleep.

Possibly related to slēg- through a hypothetical base slē-* (< sleə-*). SLEEP, from Old English slēpan, to sleep, and slēp, sleep, from Germanic slēpan*, slēpaz*.

[In Pokorny 1. leb- 655.]

slēg-

Important derivatives are: slack¹, lax, relax, languish.
To be slack, be languid.

Possibly related to slēb- through a hypothetical base slē-* (< sleə-). Zero-grade form slag-, becoming slag-*.

7. SLACK¹, from Old English slæc, “loose,” indolent, careless, from Germanic slak-*.
8. Suffixed form lag-so-*. LAX; RELAX, from Latin laxus, loose, slack.
9. Suffixed nasalized form la-n-g-u-*. LANGUISH, from Latin languēre, to be languid.
10. Compound lag-ous-, “with drooping ears” (ous-, ear; see ous-). LAGOMORPH, from Greek lagōs, lagos, hare.

11. Suffixed form lag-no-*. ALGOLAGNIA, from Greek lagnos, lustful, lascivious.

12. Basic form slēg-*. CATALECTIC, from Greek lēgein, to leave off.

[Pokorny (s)lēg- 959.]

sleubh-

Important derivatives are: sleeve, lubricate, cowslip, *slop*¹, sloop.

To slide, slip.

I. Basic form sleubh-*.

1. SLEEVE, from Old English slēf, slīf, slīef, sleeve (into which the arm slips), from Germanic sleub-*.
2. SLOVEN, from Middle Low German slÛven, to put on clothes carelessly, from Germanic slaubjan*.
3. Suffixed form sleubh-ro-*. LUBRICATE, LUBRICITY, LUBRICIOUS, from Latin lūbricus, slippery.
 - a. SLIP³; COWSLIP, OXLIP, from Old English slypa, slyppe, slīpa, slime, slimy substance;
 - b. SLOP¹, from Old English sloppe*, dung;
 - c. SLOP², from Old English (ofer)slop, surplice. a, b, and c all from Germanic slup-*.
4. SLOOP, from Middle Dutch slūpen, to glide. Both 1 and 2 from variant Germanic root form sleup-*.

[Pokorny sleub(h)- 963.]

slī-

Derivatives are: sloe, livid.

Bluish.

Contracted from slīa-*.

4. O-grade form sloi-*. SLOE, from Old English slāh, slā, sloe (slaihwōn*).

5. Suffixed form slī-wo-*. LIVID, from Latin līvēre, to be bluish.
6. Suffixed form slī-wā-*. SLIVOVITZ, from Serbo-Croatian šljīva, plum [Pokorny (s)lī- 965.]

smei-

Important derivatives are: smirk, smile, marvel, miracle, mirage, mirror, admire.

To laugh, smile.

8. SMIRK, from Old English smercian, to smile (with -k- formative), from Germanic reshaped forms smer-, smar-.
9. SMILE, from Middle English smilen, to smile, from a Scandinavian source probably akin to Swedish smila, to smile, from Germanic extended form smīl-*.
10. Suffixed form smei-ro-*. MARVEL, MIRACLE, MIRAGE, MIRROR; ADMIRE, from Latin mīrus, wonderful.
11. Prefixed zero-grade form ko(m)-smi-, smiling with (ko-, kom-*, together; see kom). COMITY, from Latin cōmis (< cosmis), courteous.

[Pokorny 1. (s)mei- 967.]

(s)mer-¹

Important derivatives are: mourn, memorable, memorandum, memory, commemorate, remember.

To remember.

12. Suffixed zero-grade form mṛ-no-*. MOURN, from Old English murnan, to mourn, from Germanic murnan*, to remember sorrowfully.
13. Reduplicated form me-mor-*.
 - a. MIMIR, from Old Norse Mimir, a giant who guards the well of wisdom, from Germanic mi-mer-*;
 - b. MEMORABLE, (MEMORANDUM), MEMORY; COMMEMORATE,

REMEMBER, from Latin memor, mindful.

[Pokorny (s)mer- 969.]

(s)mer-²

Important derivatives are: merit, emeritus.

To get a share of something.

4. Suffixed (stative) form *mer-ē-. MERETRICIOUS, MERIT; EMERITUS, TURMERIC, from Latin merēre, merērī, to receive a share, deserve, serve.
5. Suffixed form *mer-o-. -MERE, MERISTEM, MERO-, -MEROUS; (ALLOMERISM), (DIMER), (ISOMER), (MONOMER), (TRIMER), from Greek meros (feminine meris), a part, division.

[In Pokorny (s)mer- 969.]

snā-

Derivatives are: natant, natation.

To swim.

Contracted from *snaə-.

8. Extended form *snāgh-. NEKTON, from Greek nēkhein, to swim.
9. Suffixed zero-grade form *(s)nā-to-. NATANT, NATATION, NATATORIAL, (NATATORIUM); SUPERNATANT, from Latin natāre, to swim.
10. CHERSONESE, from Greek nēsos, island, attributed by some to this root (but more likely obscure).

[Pokorny snā- 971.] See (s)nāu-.

(s)nāu-

Important derivatives are: nourish, nurse, nutrient, nutrition.

To swim, flow, let flow, whence suckle.

Contracted from *snaəu-; extension of snā-.

6. Suffixed basic form nāw-yo-*. NAIAD, from Greek Naias, fountain nymph, probably from naein, to flow.
7. Variant root form (s)neu(ə)-*. NEUSTON, from Greek nein, to swim.
8. Zero-grade form (s)nū-* (< snuə-) in suffixed form nū-trī (with feminine agent suffix). NOURISH, NURSE, NURTURE, NUTRIENT, NUTRIMENT, NUTRITION, NUTRITIOUS, NUTRITIVE, from Latin nūtrīx, nurse, and nūtrīre, to suckle, nourish.

[In Pokorny snā- 971.]

(s)nē-

An important derivative is: needle.

Also nē-To spin, sew. Contracted from (s)neə-*.

1. Suffixed form nē-tlā*. NEEDLE, from Old English nādl, needle, from Germanic nēthlō*.
2. Suffixed form snē-mḡ*. NEMATODE; AXONEME, CHROMONEMA, PROTONEMA, SYNAPTINEMAL COMPLEX, TREPONEMA, from Greek nēma, thread.
3. Suffixed o-grade form snō-tā-*. SNOOD, from Old English snōd, headband, from Germanic snōdō*.

[Pokorny (s)nē- 973.]

(s)neəu-

Important derivatives are: neuron, nerve.

Tendon, sinew.

Extension of (s)nē-.

Suffixed form (s)neəw-r-*, with further suffixes.

- a. neu-r-o-*. NEURO-, NEURON; APONEUROSIS, from Greek neuron, sinew;
- b. metathesized form nerwo-*. NERVE; ENERVATE, from Latin nervus, sinew.

so-

Important derivatives are: *the*¹, she.

This, that (nominative).

For other cases see to-.

1. THE¹, from Late Old English the, masculine demonstrative pronoun, replacing se (with th- from oblique forms; see to-).
2. HOI POLLOI, from Greek ho, the.
3. Feminine form syā*. SHE, from Old English sēo, sīe, she, from Germanic sjō*.
4. Compound variant form sei-ke* (-ke*, “that”; see ko-). SIC¹, from Latin sīc, thus, so, in that manner.

sol-

Important derivatives are: solid, consolidate, catholic, solicitous, solemn, salute, safe, salvage, salvo, *save*¹.

Also solə-Whole.

I. Basic form sol-*.

1. Suffixed form sol-ido-*. SOLID; CONSOLIDATE, from Latin solidus, solid.
2. Suffixed form sol-wo-*. HOLO-; CATHOLIC, from Greek holos, whole.
3. Dialectal geminated form soll-o-*.
 - a. SOLICITOUS, from Latin sollus, whole, entire, unbroken;
 - b. SOLEMN, from Latin sollemnis (second element obscure), celebrated at fixed dates (said of religious rites), established, religious, solemn.

II. Variant form solə-*.

1. Suffixed zero-grade form sl̥-u- giving sal-u-*. SALUBRIOUS, SALUTARY, SALUTE, from Latin salūs, health, a whole or sound condition.
2. Suffixed zero-grade form sl̥wo-* giving sala-wo-*. SAFE, SAGE², SALVAGE, SALVO, SAVE¹, SAVE², from Latin salvus, whole, safe, healthy, uninjured.

[Pokorny solo- 979.]

spē-

Important derivatives are: speed, despair, prosper.

To thrive, prosper.

Contracted from speə-*.

2. Suffixed o-grade form spō-ti-*. SPEED, from Old English spēd, success, from Germanic spōdiz*.
3. Suffixed form spē-s-*. DESPAIR, ESPERANCE, from Latin spērāre, to hope, denominative of spēs (plural spērēs), hope.
4. Suffixed zero-grade form spə-ro-*. PROSPER, from Latin prosperus, favorable, prosperous (traditionally regarded as from prō spērē, according to one's hope; pro-, according to; see per¹).

[Pokorny 3. sp(h)ēi- 983.]

spek-

Important derivatives are: spy, espionage, specimen, spectacle, spectrum, speculate, aspect, circumspect, conspicuous, despise, expect, inspect, perspective, prospect, respect, respite, suspect, species, especial, despicable, skeptic, bishop, telescope.

To observe.

I. Basic form spek-*.

- a. ESPY, SPY, from Old French espier, to watch;
- b. ESPIONAGE, from Old Italian spione, spy, from Germanic derivative speh-ōn-, watcher. Both a and b from Germanic spehōn.

2. Suffixes form spek-yo-*. SPECIMEN, SPECIOUS, SPECTACLE, SPECTRUM, SPECULATE, SPECULUM; ASPECT, CIRCUMSPECT, CONSPICUOUS, DESPISE, EXPECT, FRONTISPIECE, INSPECT, INTROSPECT, PERSPECTIVE, PROSPECT, RESPECT, (RESPITE), RETROSPECT, SUSPECT, TRANSPICUOUS, from Latin specere, to look at.
3. SPECIES; ESPECIAL, from Latin speciēs, a seeing, sight, form.
 - a. (see gherə-) Latin haruspex, diviner;
 - b. (see awi-) Latin auspex, augur. Both a and b from Latin -spex (< -spek-*), “he who sees.”
4. Suffixes form spek-ā-*. DESPICABLE, from Latin (denominative) dēspicārī, to despise, look down on (dē-, down; see de-).
5. Suffixes metathetical form skep-yo-*. SKEPTIC, from Greek skeptesthai, to examine, consider.

II. Extended o-grade form spoko-*. SCOPE, -SCOPE, -SCOPY; BISHOP, EPISCOPAL, HOROSCOPE, TELESCOPE, from metathesized Greek skopos, one who watches, also object of attention, goal, and its denominative skopein (< skop-eyo-*), to see.

[Pokorny spek̂- 984.]

(s)pen-

Important derivatives are: spider, spin, spindle, pansy, *pendant*¹, *pension*¹, pensive, *poise*¹, append, appendix, compensate, depend, dispense, expend, penthouse, perpendicular, suspend, *span*¹, *pound*¹, ponder, spontaneous.

To draw, stretch, spin.

I. Basic form spen-*.

1. Suffixes form spen-wo-*.

- a. SPIDER, SPIN, from Old English spinnan, to spin, and spīthra, spider, contracted from Germanic derivative spin-thrōn-*, “the spinner”;
- b. SPINDLE, from Old English spinel, spindle, from Germanic derivative spin-ilōn-. Both a and b from Germanic spinnan, to spin.

2. Extended form pend-*. PAINTER², (PANSY), PENCHANT, PENDANT¹, PENDENTIVE, PENDULOUS, PENSILE, PENSION¹, PENSIVE, PESO, POISE¹; ANTEPENDIUM, APPEND, (APPENDIX), AVOIRDUPOIS, COMPENDIUM, COMPENSATE, DEPEND, DISPENSE, EXPEND, IMPEND, (PENTHOUSE), PERPEND, PERPENDICULAR, PREPENSE, PROPEND, SUSPEND, VILIPEND, from Latin pendēre, to hang (intransitive), and pendere, to cause to hang, weigh, with its frequentative pēnsāre, to weigh, consider.
3. Perhaps suffixed form pen-ya-*. -PENIA, from Greek penia, lack, poverty (
4. GEOPONIC, LITHOPONE, from Greek ponos, toil, and ponein, to toil, o-grade derivatives of penesthai, to toil.

II. O-grade forms spon-, pon-.

- a. SPAN², from Middle Dutch spannen, to bind;
- b. SPANNER, from Old High German spannan, to stretch.
Both a and b from Germanic spannan*.
2. SPAN¹, from Old English span(n), distance, from Germanic spanno-*.
3. SPANGLE, from Middle Dutch spange, clasp, from Germanic spangō*, perhaps from (s)pen-.
4. Suffixed and extended form pond-o-*. POUND¹, from Latin pondō, by weight.
5. Suffixed and extended form pond-es-*. PONDER, PONDEROUS; EQUIPONDERATE, PREPONDERATE, from Latin pondus (stem ponder-), weight, and its denominative ponderāre, to weigh, ponder.
6. Suffixed o-grade form spon-t-*. SPONTANEOUS, from Latin sponte, of one's own accord, spontaneously, possibly from (s)pen-, but more likely to a homophonous Germanic verb spanan*, to entice.

[Pokorny (s)pen-(d)- 988.]

spend-

Important derivatives are: sponsor, spouse, respond.

To make an offering, perform a rite, hence to engage oneself by a ritual act.

O-grade from spond-*.

5. Suffixed form spond-eyo-*. SPONSOR, SPOUSE; DESPOND, ESPOUSE, RESPOND, from Latin spondēre, to make a solemn promise, pledge, betroth.
6. Suffixed form spond-ā-*. SPONDEE, from Greek spondē, libation, offering.

[Pokorny spend- 989.]

sper-

Important derivatives are: sprawl, sprout, spurt, spread, Diaspora, *sperm*¹, spore, sporadic, *spray*¹.

To strew.

I. Zero-grade form spr-*.

1. SPRAWL, from Old English sprēawlian, to sprawl, from Germanic spr-*.
2. Extended form spreud-*.
 - a. SPROUT, from Old English sprūtan, to sprout;
 - b. SPRITZ, SPRITZER, from Middle High German spr, tzen, to spurt, spray;
 - c. SPRIT, from Old English sprēot, pole (< “sprout, stem”);
 - d. BOWSPRIT, from Middle Low German bōchsprēt, bowsprit.
a, b, c, and d all from Germanic sprūt-*.
3. Extended form spreit-*. SPRAY², SPREAD, from Old English -sprēdan, to spread, from Germanic spraidjan*.

II. Basic form sper-*.

1. Suffixed form sper-yo-*. DIASPORA, from Greek speirein, to scatter, with derivative spora, a scattering, sowing (see III. 1.).
2. Suffixed form sper-mŋ-*. SPERM¹, from Greek sperma, sperm, seed (

III. O-grade form spor-*.

1. Suffixed form spor-ā-*. SPORE, SPORO-, from Greek spora, a sowing, seed.
2. Suffixed form spor-ŋd-*. SPORADIC, from Greek sporas (stem sporad-), scattered, dispersed.

IV. Extended Germanic root sprē(w)-*. SPRAY¹, from Middle Dutch spraeien, sprayen, to sprinkle, from Germanic sprēwjan*.

[Pokorny 2. (s)p(h)er- 993.]

sperə-

Important derivatives are: spur, spurn, spoor.

Ankle.

Zero-grade form spr(ə)-*.

7. SPUR, from Old English spura, spora, spur, from Germanic suffixed form spur-ōn-*.
8. Nasalized form sprŋ-n-ə-*. SPURN, from Old English spurnan, spornan, to kick, strike against, from Germanic spurnōn*.
9. SPOOR, from Middle Dutch spor, spoor, track of an animal, from Germanic suffixed form spur-am*.

[Pokorny 1. sp(h)er- 992.]

sreu-

Important derivatives are: stream, diarrhea, hemorrhoid, rhythm.

To flow.

3. Suffixed o-grade form srou-mo-*.
 - a. STREAM, from Old English strēam, stream;
 - b. MAELSTROM, from Middle Dutch stroom, stream. Both a and b from Germanic straumaz*, stream.
4. Basic form sreu-*.

- a. RHEO- , -RRHEA; CATARRH, DIARRHEA, HEMORRHOID, RHYOLITE, from Greek rhein, to flow, with o-grade rhoos, flowing, a flowing;
 - b. suffixed form sreu-mṇ*. RHEUM, from Greek rheuma, stream, humor of the body.
5. Suffixed zero-grade form sru-dhmo-*. RHYTHM, from Greek rhuthmos, measure, recurring motion, rhythm.
 6. Zero-grade extended form srug-*. SASTRUGA, from Russian struga, deep place, perhaps from sreu-.

[Pokorny sreu- 1003.]

stā-

Important derivatives are: steed, *stud*², stool, stage, stance, stanza, *stay*¹, arrest, circumstance, constant, contrast, cost, distant, instant, obstacle, obstetric, *rest*², substance, stand, understand, standard, *stem*¹, station, static, destine, obstinate, state, statue, statute, institute, prostitute, substitute, superstition, establish, *stable*¹, assist, exist, insist, resist, ecstasy, system, *post*¹, store, *steer*¹, *steer*².

To stand; with derivatives meaning “place or thing that is standing.” Contracted from staə-*.

I. Basic form stā-*.

1. Extended form stādh-*.
 - a. STEED, from Old English stēda, stallion, studhorse (stōd-jōn-*);
 - b. STUD², from Old English stōd, establishment for breeding horses, from Germanic stōdō*.
2. Suffixed form stā-lo-*.
 - a. STOOL, from Old English stōl, stool;
 - b. (see pel-²) Germanic compound faldistōlaz*. Both a and b from Germanic stōlaz*.
3. ESTANCIA, STAGE, STANCE, STANCH¹, STANCHION, (STANZA), STATOR, STAY¹, STET; ARREST, CIRCUMSTANCE, CONSTANT, CONTRAST, (COST), DISTANT, EXTANT, INSTANT, OBSTACLE, OBSTETRIC, (OUST), REST², RESTIVE, SUBSTANCE, from Latin stāre, to stand.

4. Suffixed form stā-men-*. ETAMINE, STAMEN, STAMMEL, from Latin stāmen, thread of the warp (a technical term).
5. Suffixed form stā-mon-*. PENSTEMON, from Greek stēmōn, thread.
6. Suffixed form stā-ro-*. STARETS, from Old Church Slavonic starŭ, old (“long-standing”).

II. Zero-grade form stə-* (before consonants).

1. Nasalized extended form stə-n-t-*.
 - a. STAND, from Old English standan, to stand;
 - b. UNDERSTAND, from Old English understandan, to know, stand under (under-, under-; see ndher);
 - c. STANDARD, from Frankish standan*, to stand;
 - d. STOUND, from Old English stund, a fixed time, while, from secondary zero-grade form in Germanic stund-ō*.
a, b, c, and d all from Germanic standan*.
2. Suffixed form stə-tyo-*. STITHY, from Old Norse stedhi, anvil, from Germanic stathjōn-*.
3. Suffixed form stə-tlo-*. STADDLE, STARLING², from Old English stathol, foundation, from Germanic stathlaz*.
4. Suffixed form stə-mno-*. STEM¹, from Old English stefn, stem, tree trunk, from Germanic stamniz*.
5. Suffixed form stə-ti-*.
 - i. STEAD, from Old English stede, place;
 - ii. STADHOLDER, from Dutch stad, place;
 - iii. SHTETL, from Old High German stat, place. (i), (ii), and (iii) all from Germanic stadiz*;
- b. STAT², from Latin statim, at once;
- c. STATION, from Latin statiō, a standing still;

- d. ARMISTICE, SOLSTICE, from Latin -stitium, a stoppage;
 - e. STASIS, from Greek stasis (see III. 1. b.), a standing, a standstill.
6. Suffixed form stǝ-to-*.
- a. BESTEAD, from Old Norse stadhr, place, from Germanic stadaz*, placed;
 - b. -STAT, STATIC, STATICE, STATO-; ASTASIA, (ASTATINE), from Greek statos, placed, standing.
7. Suffixed form stǝ-no-*.
- a. DESTINE, from Latin dēstināre, to make firm, establish (dē-, thoroughly; see de-);
 - b. OBSTINATE, from Latin obstināre, to set one's mind on, persist (ob-, on; see epi).
8. Suffixed form stǝ-tu-*. STATE, STATISTICS, (STATUE), STATURE, STATUS, STATUTE; CONSTITUTE, DESTITUTE, INSTITUTE, PROSTITUTE, RESTITUTE, SUBSTITUTE, SUPERSTITION, from Latin status, manner, position, condition, attitude, with derivatives statūra, height, stature, statuere, to set up, erect, cause to stand, and superstes (< -stǝ-t-*), witness (“who stands beyond”).
9. Suffixed form stǝ-dhlo-*. STABLE²; CONSTABLE, from Latin stabulum, “standing place,” stable.
10. Suffixed form stǝ-dhli-*. ESTABLISH, STABLE¹, from Latin stabilis, standing firm.
11. Suffixed form stǝ-tā-*. -STAT; ENSTATITE, from Greek -statēs, one that causes to stand, a standing.

III. Zero-grade form st-, st(ǝ)- (before vowels).

1. Reduplicated form si-st(ǝ)-*.
- a. ASSIST, CONSIST, DESIST, EXIST, INSIST, INTERSTICE, PERSIST, RESIST, SUBSIST, from Latin sistere, to set, place, stop, stand;
 - b. APOSTASY, CATASTASIS, DIASTASIS, ECSTASY, EPISTASIS, EPISTEMOLOGY, HYPOSTASIS, ICONOSTASIS, ISOSTASY, METASTASIS,

PROSTATE, SYSTEM, from Greek histanai (aorist stanai), to set, place, with stasis (stə-ti-*), a standing (see II. 5. e.);

c. HISTO-; HISTIOCYTE, from Greek histos, web, tissue (

2. Compound form tri-st-i-*, “third person standing by” (see trei-).
3. Compound form por-st-i-, “that which stands before” (por-, before, forth; see per¹). POST¹, from Latin postis, post.
4. Suffixed form st-o-* in compound upo-st-o-*, “one who stands under” (see upo).

IV. Extended root stāu-* (< staū-), becoming stau- before consonants, stāw-* before vowels; basic meaning “stout-standing, strong.”

1. Suffixed extended form stāw-ā*. STOW, from Old English stōw, place, from Germanic stōwō*.
2. Probable o-grade suffixed extended form stōw-yā*. STOA, STOIC, from Greek stoa, porch.
3. Suffixed extended form stau-ro-*.
 - i. STORE; INSTAURATION, from Latin īnstaūrāre, to restore, set upright again (in-, on; see en);
 - ii. RESTORE, from Latin restaurāre, to restore, rebuild (re-, anew, again; see re-);
- b. STAUROLITE, from Greek stauros, cross, post, stake.
4. Variant tau-ro-*, bull (see tauro-).

V. Zero-grade extended root stū-* (< stuə-). Suffixed form stū-lo-. STYLITE; AMPHISTYLAR, ASTYLAR, EPISTYLE, HYPOSTYLE, PERISTYLE, PROSTYLE, STYLOBATE, from Greek stulos, pillar.

VI. Secondary full-grade form steuə-. Suffixed form steuə-ro-. THERAVADA, from Sanskrit sthavira-, thick, stout, old.

VII. Variant zero-grade extended root stu-. Suffixed form stu-t-. STUD¹, from Old English stuthu, studu, post, prop.

VIII. Secondary full-grade form steu-*.

1. Suffixed form steu-rā*. STARBOARD, from Old English stēor-, a steering, from Germanic steurō*, “a steering.”
 - a. STEER¹, from Old English stīeran, stēran, to steer;
 - b. STERN², from Middle English sterne, stern of a boat, possibly from a source akin to Old Norse stjörn, a rudder, a steering, derivative of stýra, to steer. Both a and b from Germanic denominative steurjan*.
2. Suffixed form steu-ro-*, a larger domestic animal. STEER², from Old English stēor, steer, from Germanic steuraz*, ox.
3. STIRK, from Old English stīrc, stierc, calf, from Germanic diminutive steur-ika-*, probably from stā-.

[Pokorny stā- 1004.]

(s)teg-

Important derivatives are: thatch, *deck*², *deck*¹, thug, tile, detect, protect.
To cover.

- I. O-grade form tog-*.
 - a. THATCH, from Old English theccan, to cover;
 - b. DECK², from Middle Dutch decken, to cover;
 - c. DECKLE, from Old High German decchen, to cover. a, b, and c all from Germanic thakjan*.
 - d. THATCH, from Old English thæc, thatch;
 - e. DECK¹, from Middle Dutch dec, decke, roof, covering. Both a and b from Germanic thakam*.
 2. Suffixed form tog-ā-*, covering. TOGA, from Latin toga, toga.
 3. THUG, from Sanskrit sthaḡayati, he covers, possibly from (s)teg-
.
- II. Basic form steg-*. STEGODON, from Greek stegenin, to cover.
 - III. Basic form teg-*.

1. TECTRIX, TECTUM, TEGMEN, TEGMENTUM, TEGULAR, TEGUMENT, TILE, TUILLE; DETECT, INTEGUMENT, OBTECT, PROTECT, from Latin tegere, to cover, and tēgula, tile (with lengthened-grade root).
2. TAJ, from Persian tāj, crown.

[Pokorny 1. (s)teg- 1013.]

stegh-

Important derivatives are: sting, stag.

To stick, prick; pointed.

1. Perhaps nasalized form stengh-*. STING, from Old English stingan, to sting, from Germanic stingan*.
2. O-grade form stogh-*.
 - a. STAG, from Old English stagga, stag, from Germanic stag-*;
 - b. STOCHASTIC, from Greek stokhos, pointed stake or pillar (used as a target for archers), goal.

[Pokorny stegh- 1014.]

stei-

Important derivatives are: stone, tungsten, stein.

Stone.

Possibly contracted from staði-*.

1. Suffixed o-grade form stoi-no-*.
 - a. STONE, from Old English stān;
 - b. STEENBOK, from Middle Dutch steen, stone;
 - c. TUNGSTEN, from Old Norse steinn, stone;
 - d. STEIN, from Old High German stein, stone. a, b, c, and d all from Germanic stainaz*.
2. Possibly suffixed form stāy-ŕ* (earlier staði-ŕ*). STEARIC, STEARIN, [Pokorny stāi- 1010.]

steig-

Important derivatives are: stitch, stick, etiquette, ticket, distinguish, instinct, stigma, tiger, instigate, steak.

To stick; pointed. Partly blended with stegh-.

I. Zero-grade form stig-*.

1. STICKLEBACK, from Old English sticel, a prick, sting, from Germanic suffixed form stik-ilaz*.
2. Suffixed form stig-i-*. STITCH, from Old English stice, a sting, prick, from Germanic stikiz*.
3. STICK, from Old English sticca, stick, from Germanic expressive form stikkōn-*.
4. (ETIQUETTE), TICKET, from Old French estiquier, to stick, from Germanic stative stikkēn*, “to be stuck.”
5. SNICKERSNEE, from Middle Dutch steken, to stick, stab, from Germanic blended variant stekan*.
6. Nasalized form sti-n-g-*. DISTINGUISH, EXTINGUISH, INSTINCT, from Latin stinguere, to quench, perhaps originally to prick, and its apparent derivative distinguere, to separate (phonological and semantic transitions obscure).
7. Suffixed form stig-yo-*. STIGMA; ASTIGMATISM, from Greek stizein, to prick, tattoo.
8. Suffixed reduced form tig-ro-*. TIGER, from Greek tigris, tiger (from its stripes), from the same Iranian source as Old Persian tigra-, sharp, pointed, and Avestan tighri-, arrow.

II. Basic form steig-*. INSTIGATE, from Latin īnstīgāre, to urge, from -stīgāre, to spur on, prod.

III. Suffixed o-grade form stoig-ā-*. STEAK, from Old Norse steik, roast, steak, and steikja, to roast (on a spit), from Germanic staikō*.

steigh-

Important derivatives are: stirrup, acrostic, stair.

To stride, step, rise.

- I. Basic form steigh-*. STY²; STIRRUP, from Old English stīgan, to go up, rise, from Germanic stīgan*.
- II. Zero-grade form stigh-*.
 1. STILE¹, from Old English stigel, series of steps, from Germanic stigila-*.
 2. Suffixed form stigh-to-*. STICKLE, from Old English stiht(i)an, to settle, arrange, from Germanic stihtan*, “to place on a step or base.”
 3. Suffixed form stigh-o-*. STICH; ACROSTIC, CADASTRE, DISTICH, HEMISTICH, PENTASTICH, STICHOMETRY, STICHOMYTHIA, from Greek stikhos, row, line, line of verse.
- III. O-grade form stoigh-*.
 1. Suffixed form stoigh-ri-*. STAIR, from Old English stā̅ger, stair, step, from Germanic staigrī*.
 2. STOICHIOMETRY, from Greek stoikheion, shadow line, element.

stel-

Important derivatives are: *still*¹, apostle, epistle, *stall*¹, *installment*¹, stallion, pedestal, install, gestalt, *stole*¹, *stalk*¹, stilt, stout.

To put, stand; with derivatives referring to a standing object or place.

- I. Basic form stel-*.
 1. Suffixed form stel-ni-*. STILL¹, from Old English stille, quiet, fixed, from Germanic stilli-*.
 2. Suffixed form stel-yo-*. APOSTLE, DIASTOLE, EPISTLE, PERISTALSIS, SYSTALTIC, from Greek stellein, to put in order, prepare, send, make compact (with o-grade and zero-grade forms stol- and stal-).

II. O-grade form stol-*.

1. Suffixed form stol-no-*.

- a. STALL¹; FORESTALL, from Old English steall, standing place, stable;
- b. STALE¹; INSTALLMENT¹, from Old French estal, place;
- c. STALLION, from Anglo-Norman estaloun, stallion;
- d. PEDESTAL, from Old Italian stallo, stall;
- e. INSTALL, from Medieval Latin stallum, stall;
- f. GESTALT, from Old High German stellen, to set, place, from Germanic denominative stalljan*. a, b, c, d, e, and f all from Germanic stalla-*.

2. Suffixed form stol-ōn-*. STOLON, from Latin stolō, branch, shoot.

3. Suffixed form stol-ido-*. STOLID, from Latin stolidus, “firm-standing,” stupid.

4. Suffixed form stol-ā-*.

- a. STALK¹, from Old English stalu, upright piece, stalk, from Germanic stalō-*;
- b. STOLE¹, from Greek stolē, garment, array, equipment.

III. Zero-grade form stl̥-*.

1. Suffixed form stl̥-to-*. STULTIFY, from Latin stultus, foolish (< “unmovable, uneducated”).

2. Suffixed zero-grade form stl̥-no-*. STULL, (STOLLEN), from Old High German stollo, post, support, from Germanic stullōn-*.

3. Suffixed zero-grade form stal-nā-*. STELE, from Greek stēlē, pillar.

IV. Extended form steld-*.

- a. STILT, from Middle English stilte, crutch, stilt, from a source akin to Low German and Flemish stilte, stick, from Germanic stiltjōn-*;
- b. zero-grade form stl̥d-*. STOUT, from Old French estout, stout, from Germanic stult-*, “walking on stilts,” strutting.

[Pokorny 3. stel- 1019.]

(s)tenə-

Important derivatives are: thunder, Thursday, tornado, astonish, detonate, stun.
To thunder.

- 1. Zero-grade form stn̥ə-*.
 - a. THUNDER; THURSDAY, from Old English thunor, thunder, Thor;
 - b. BLUNDERBUSS, DUNDERHEAD, from Middle Dutch doner, donder, thunder.
 - c. THOR, from Old Norse Thōrr (older form Thunarr), “thunder,” thunder god. a, b, and c all from Germanic thunaraz*.
- 2. O-grade form tonə-*. TORNADO; ASTONISH, DETONATE, STUN, from Latin tonāre, to thunder.

[Pokorny 1. (s)ten- 1021.]

ster-¹

Important derivatives are: stare, stark, starch, *stern*¹, stereo-, stork, strut, start, startle, starve, torpedo, torpor.
Stiff.

- I. O-grade form stor-*.
 - 1. Suffixed form stor-ē-*. STARE, from Old English starian, to stare, from Germanic staren*.
 - 2. Extended form stor-g-*.

- a. STARK, from Old English stearc, hard, severe, from Germanic starkaz*;
- b. STARCH, from Old English stercan*, to stiffen, from Germanic denominative starkjan*.

II. Full-grade form ster-*.

1. STERN¹, from Old English stierne, styrne, firm, from Germanic sternjaz*.
2. Suffixed form ster-ewo-*. STERE, STEREO-; CHOLESTEROL, from Greek stereos, solid.
3. Lengthened-grade form stēr-*. STERIGMA, from Greek stērizēin, to support.

III. Zero-grade form str-*.

1. Extended form strg-*. STORK, from Old English storc, stork (probably from the stiff movements of the bird), from Germanic sturkaz*.
2. STRUT, from Old English strūtian, to stand out stiffly, from Germanic strūt-*.

IV. Extended form sterd-*.

1. REDSTART, from Old English steort, tail, from Germanic stertaz*.
 - a. START, from Old English styrtan*, to leap up (
 - b. STARTLE, from Old English steartlian, to kick, struggle. Both a and b from Germanic stert-*.

V. Extended form sterbh-*. STARVE, from Old English steorfan, to die (sterban*).

VI. Extended form (s)terp-* in suffixed (stative) zero-grade form tṛp-ē-*. TORPEDO, TORPID, TORPOR, from Latin torpēre, to be stiff.

[Pokorny 1. (s)ter- 1022.]

ster-²

Important derivatives are: structure, construct, destroy, instruct, obstruct, industry, strew, straw, street, stratagem.

Also sterə-To spread.

I. Extended form streu-*.

1. STRAIN², from Old English strēon, something gained, offspring, from Germanic suffixed form streu-nam*.
2. STRUCTURE; CONSTRUCT, DESTROY, INSTRUCT, OBSTRUCT, SUBSTRUCTION, from Latin struere, to pile up, construct.
3. Zero-grade form stru-*. INDUSTRY, from Latin industrius, diligent, from Old Latin indostruus (endo-, within; see en).
4. BREMSSTRAHLUNG, from Old High German strāla, arrow, lightning bolt, from Germanic strēlō*.

II. O-grade extended form strou-*.

1. Suffixed form strou-eyo-*.
 - a. STREW, from Old English strē(o)wian, to strew;
 - b. STREUSEL, from Old High German strouwen, strowwen, to sprinkle, strew. Both a and b from Germanic strawjan*.
2. Suffixed form strow-o*. STRAW, from Old English strēaw, straw, from Germanic strawam*, “that which is scattered.”

III. O-grade extended form stroi-*. PERESTROIKA, from Old Russian strojǐ, order.

IV. Basic forms ster-, sterə-.

1. Nasalized form ster-n-ə-*. STRATUS, STREET; CONSTERNATE, PROSTRATE, SUBSTRATUM, from Latin sternere (past participle strātus from zero-grade strə-to-*), to stretch, extend.
2. Suffixed form ster-no-*. STERNUM, from Greek sternon, breast, breastbone.

V. Zero-grade form str̥-, str̥ə-.

1. Suffixed form str̥-to-*. STRATAGEM; STRATOCRACY, from Greek stratos, multitude, army, expedition.
2. Suffixed form str̥ə-to-*. STRATH, from Old Irish srath, a wide river valley, from Celtic s(t)rato-*.

3. Suffixed extended form str̥ə-m̥ŋ-*. STROMA; (STROMATOLITE), from Greek strōma, mattress, bed.

[Pokorny 5. ster- 1029.]

ster⁻³

Important derivatives are: star, stellar, constellation, aster, asterisk, asteroid, disaster.
Star.

1. Suffixed form ster-s-*. STAR, from Old English steorra, star, from Germanic sterzōn-*.
2. Suffixed form stēr-lā-*. STELLAR, STELLATE; CONSTELLATION, from Latin stēlla, star.
3. Oldest root form aster-*. ASTER, ASTERATED, ASTERISK, ASTERISM, ASTEROID, ASTRAL, ASTRO-; ASTRAPHOBIA, DISASTER, from Greek astēr, star, with its derivative astron, star, and possible compound astrapē, asteropē, lightning, twinkling (ōps, stem op-, eye, appearance; see ok^{w-}).
4. ESTHER, from Persian sitareh, star, from Iranian stem stāř-*.

[Pokorny 2. ster- 1027.]

streb(h)-

Important derivatives are: strop, strophe, apostrophe¹, catastrophe, stroboscope.
To wind, turn.

1. STREPTO-, STROP, STROPHE, STROPHOID, STROPHULUS; ANASTROPHE, APOSTROPHE¹, BOUSTROPHEDON, CATASTROPHE, DIASTROPHISM, from Greek strephein, to wind, turn, twist, with o-grade derivatives strophē, a turning, and strophion, headband.
2. Unaspirated o-grade form strob-*. STROBILUS; STROBOSCOPE, from Greek strobos, a whirling, whirlwind.
3. Unaspirated zero-grade form str̥b-*. STRABISMUS, STRABOTOMY, from Greek strabos, squinting.

streig-

Important derivatives are: *strike, streak, stroke*¹, *strain*¹, strict, stringent, constrain, prestige, restrict.

To stroke, rub, press.

I. Basic form streig-*.

- a. STRIKE, from Old English strīcan, to stroke;
 - b. TRICOT, from Old French estriquier, to strike. Both a and b from Germanic strikan*.
2. STRICKLE, from Old English stricel, implement for leveling grain, from Germanic diminutive strik-īla-*.
 3. STREAK, from Old English strica, stroke, line, from Germanic strikōn-*.

II. O-grade form stroig-. STROKE¹, from Old English strāc, stroke, from Germanic straik-*.

III. Zero-grade form strig-*.

1. Suffixed form strig-ā-*. STRIGOSE, from Latin striga, row of grain, furrow drawn lengthwise over the field.
2. Suffixed form strig-yā-*. STRIA, from Latin stria, furrow, channel.
3. Nasalized form stri-n-g-*. STRAIN¹, STRAIT, STRICT, STRINGENDO, STRINGENT; ASTRINGENT, CONSTRAIN, DISTRAIN, PRESTIGE, RESTRICT, from Latin stringere, to draw tight, press together.
4. STRIGIL, from Latin strigilis, strigil, possibly akin to stringere.

su-

A derivative is: swastika.

Well, good.

1. SWASTIKA, from Sanskrit sv-asti, well-being, good luck, from su-, well- (see es-).
2. Compound su-g^wiǝ-es-*, “having good life” (see g^wei-).

[Pokorny su- 1037.]

sū-

Important derivatives are: swine, hog, socket, *sow*², hyena.

Pig.

Contracted from suǝ-*; probably a derivative of seuǝ⁻¹.

1. Suffixed form suǝ-īno-*.
 - a. SWINE, from Old English swīn, swine;
 - b. KEELSON, from Old Norse svīn, swine. Both a and b from Germanic swīnam*.
2. Suffixed form su-kā*.
 - a. HOG, from Old English hogg, hog, from British hukk-*;
 - b. SOCKET, from Anglo-Norman soc, plowshare, perhaps from sū-. Both a and b from Celtic expressive form sukko-*, swine, snout of a swine, plowshare;
 - c. SOW², from Old English sugu, sow, from Germanic sugō*.
3. Basic form sū-*. SOW², from Old English sū, from Germanic sū-*.
4. SOIL², from Latin sūs, pig.
5. HYENA; HYOSCINE, from Greek hus, swine.

[Pokorny sū-s 1038.]

swād-

Important derivatives are: sweet, dissuade, persuade, suave, hedonism.

Sweet, pleasant.

1. SWEET, from Old English swēte, sweet, from Germanic swōtja-*.
2. Suffixed form swād-ē-*. SUASION; (ASSUASIVE), DISSUADE, PERSUADE, from Latin suādēre, to advise, urge (
3. Suffixed form swād-w-i-*. SOAVE, SUAVE; ASSUAGE, from Latin suāvis, delightful.
4. Suffixed form swād-es-*. AEDES, from Greek ēdos, pleasure.
5. Suffixed form swād-onā*. HEDONIC, HEDONISM, from Greek hēdonē, pleasure.

[Pokorny suād- 1039.]

s(w)e-

Important derivatives are: self, gossip, *bustle*¹, suicide, secede, seclude, secret, secure, sedition, seduce, segregate, select, separate, sure, sober, *sole*², solitary, solitude, solo, sullen, desolate, soliloquy, custom, ethic, ethnic, idiom, idiot, idiosyncrasy..

Pronoun of the third person and reflexive (referring back to the subject of the sentence); further appearing in various forms referring to the social group as an entity, “(we our-)selves.”

1. Suffixed extended form sel-bho-*. SELF, from Old English self, sylf, self, same, from Germanic selbaz*, self.
2. Suffixed form s(w)e-bh(o)-*. SIB; GOSSIP, from Old English sibb, relative, from Germanic sibja-*, “one’s own,” blood relation, relative.
3. Suffixed form se-ge*. BUSTLE¹, from Old Norse -sk, reflexive suffix, as in būask, to make oneself ready, from sik, oneself (reflexive pronoun), from Germanic sik*, self.
4. Suffixed form swoi-no-*. SWAIN; (BOATSWAIN), from Old Norse sveinn, herdsman, boy, from Germanic swainaz*, “one’s own (man),” attendant, servant.
5. Suffixed form s(u)w-o-*, one’s own.
 - a. SUICIDE, from Latin suī (genitive), of oneself;
 - b. SWAMI, from Sanskrit svāmin, “one’s own master,” owner, prince, from sva- (< swo-*), one’s own.

6. Extended form sed*. SECEDE, SECERN, SECLUDE, SECRET, SECURE, SEDITION, SEDUCE, SEDULOUS, SEGREGATE, SELECT, SEPARATE, (SURE), from Latin sēd, sē, sē-, without, apart (
 - a. SOBER, from Latin compound sōbrius, not drunk (ēbrius, drunk; see ēg^wh-).
7. Possibly suffixed lengthened o-grade form sō-lo*. SOLE², SOLITARY, SOLITUDE, SOLO, SULLEN; DESOLATE, SOLILOQUY, SOLIPSISM, from Latin sōlus, by oneself alone.
8. Extended root swēdh-*, “that which is one's own,” peculiarity, custom.
 - a. SODALITY, from Latin sodālis, companion (< “one's own,” “relative”);
 - b. suffixed form swēdh-sko-*. (CONSUETUDE), CUSTOM, DESUETUDE, MANSUETUDE, MASTIFF, from Latin suēscere, to accustom, get accustomed;
 - c. ETHIC, ETHOS; CACOETHES, from Greek ēthos, custom, disposition, trait;
 - d. suffixed form swedh-no-*. ETHNIC, ETHNO-, from Greek ethnos, band of people living together, nation, people (
9. Suffixed extended form swet-aro-*. HETAERA, from Greek hetairos, comrade, companion, earlier hetaros.
10. Suffixed extended form swed-yo-*. IDIO-, IDIOM, IDIOT; (IDIOPATHY), (IDIOSYNCRASY), from Greek idios, personal, private (“particular to oneself”).
11. Suffixed form swei-no-*. SINN FEIN, from Old Irish fēin, self.
12. Suffixed (ablatival) form swe-tos*, from oneself. KHEDIVE, from Old Iranian khvadāta-, lord, by haplology from compound form khvatō-dāta-*, created from oneself (dāta-, created; see dhē-).

[Pokorny se- 882.]

An important derivative is: sweat.

Sweat; to sweat.

I. O-grade form swoid-*.

1. SWEAT, from Old English swǣtan, to sweat, from Germanic swaitaz*, sweat, with its denominative swaitjan*, to sweat.
2. Suffixed form swoid-os-*. SUDORIFIC; SUDORIFEROUS, from Latin sūdor, sweat.
3. O-grade form swoid-ā-*. SUDATORIUM, SUINT; EXUDE, TRANSUDE, from Latin sūdāre, to sweat.

II. Suffixed zero-grade form swid-r-os-*. HIDROSIS, from Greek hidrōs, sweat.

[Pokorny 2. sueid- 1043.]

s(w)eks

Important derivatives are: six, semester, sestet, sextant, hexa-.

Six.

I. Form seks*.

1. SIX; SIXTEEN, SIXTY, from Old English s(i)ex, six, with derivatives sixtig, sixty, and sixtȳne, sixteen (-tȳne, ten; see dekŋ), from Germanic seks*.
2. SENARY, SEX-; SEICENTO, SEMESTER, from Latin sex, six.
3. Suffixed form seks-to-*. SESTET, SESTINA, SEXT, SEXTANT, SEXTILE; SEXTODECIMO, from Latin sextus, sixth.

II. Form sweks*. HEXA-, HEXAD, from Greek hex, six.

[Pokorny sueks 1044.]

swel-

Important derivatives are: swill, *swallow*¹.

To eat, drink.

1. SWILL, from Old English swilian, to wash out, gargle, from Germanic swil-*, perhaps from swel-.

2. Extended form swelk-*. SWALLOW¹; GROUNDSEL¹, from Old English swelgan, to swallow, from Germanic swelgan*, swelhan*.
3. MANTICORE, from Greek mantikhōras, manticore, probably from Iranian khvāra-*, eating.

[Pokorny 1. suel(k)- 1045.]

swen-

Important derivatives are: swan, sonic, sonnet, *sound*¹, unison, sonata, sonorous, consonant, dissonant, resound.

To sound.

1. Suffixed o-grade form swon-o-*.
 - a. SWAN, from Old English swan, swan, from Germanic swanaz*, swanōn-*, “singer”;
 - b. SONE, SONIC, SONNET, SOUND¹; UNISON, from Latin sonus, a sound.
2. Form swen-ā-*. SONANT, SONATA, SONOROUS; ASSONANCE, CONSONANT, DISSONANT, RESOUND, from Latin sonāre, to sound.

[Pokorny suen- 1046.]

swep-

Important derivatives are: insomnia, hypnosis.

To sleep.

1. Suffixed form swep-os-*. SOPOR; (SOPORIFIC), from Latin sopor, a deep sleep.
2. Suffixed form swep-no-*. SOMNI-, SOMNOLENT; INSOMNIA, from Latin somnus, sleep.
3. Suffixed zero-grade form sup-no-*. HYPNO-, (HYPNOSIS), HYPNOTIC, from Greek hupnos, sleep.

[Pokorny 1. suep- 1048.]

swer-

Important derivatives are: swear, answer..

To speak, talk.

O-grade form swor-*

- a. SWEAR, from Old English swerian, to swear, proclaim, from Germanic swarjan*;
- b. ANSWER, from Old English andswaru, answer, from Germanic and-swarō*, “a swearing against,” “rebuttal” (andi-*, against; see ant-).

[Pokorny 1. swer- 1049.]

swesor-

Important derivatives are: sister, cousin, sorority.

Sister.

1. Zero-grade form swesr-*.

- a. SISTER, from Old English sweostor, sister, and Old Norse systir, sister, both from Germanic swestr-*;
- b. suffixed form swesr-īno-*. COUSIN, from Latin sobrinus, maternal cousin.

2. SORORAL, SORORITY, from Latin soror, sister.

[Pokorny swesor- 1051.]

SWO-

Important derivatives are: *so*¹, such.

Pronominal stem; so.

Derivative of s(w)e-.

- a. *so*¹, from Old English swā, so;
- b. SUCH, from Old English swylc, such, from Germanic compound swa-līk-, “so like,” of the same kind (līk-, same; see lik-).

1. Adverbial form swai*. NISI, QUASI, from Latin sī, if, in nisi, unless (nī, not; see ne- + sī, if), quasi (quam, as; see k^wo- + sī, if).

[In Pokorny 2. seu- 882.]

syū-

Important derivatives are: sew, seam, suture, couture, hymen.

To bind, sew.

- I. Basic form syū-*. SEW, from Old English seowian, siowan, to sew, from Germanic siwjan*.
- II. Variant form sū-*.
 1. SEAM, from Old English sēam, seam, from Germanic saumaz*.
 2. SUTURE; COUTURE, from Latin suere (past participle sūtus), to sew.
 3. Suffixed form sū-dhlā-*. SUBULATE, from Latin sūbula, awl (
 4. Suffixed form sū-tro-*. SUTRA; KAMASUTRA, from Sanskrit sūtram, thread, string.
- III. Suffixed shortened form syu-men-*. HYMEN, from Greek humēn, thin skin, membrane.

[Pokorny sjū- 915.]

tag-

Important derivatives are: tact, tangent, tangible, taste, tax, attain, contact, intact, entire, integer, contaminate.

To touch, handle.

14. Nasalized form ta-n-g-*. TACT, TANGENT, TANGIBLE, TASTE, TAX; ATTAIN, CONTACT, INTACT, TACTORECEPTOR, TANGORECEPTOR, from Latin tangere, to touch, with derivatives taxāre, to touch, assess (possibly a frequentative of tangere, but probably influenced by Greek tassein, taxai, to arrange, assess), and tāctus, touch.
15. Compound form ŋ-tag-ro-, “untouched, intact” (ŋ-, negative prefix; see ne). ENTIRE, INTEGER, INTEGRATE, INTEGRITY, from Latin integer, intact, whole, complete, perfect, honest.

16. Suffixed form tag-smen-*. CONTAMINATE, from Latin contāmināre, to corrupt by mixing or contact (< con-tāmen-*, “bringing into contact with”; con-, com-, with; see kom).

[Pokorny tag- 1054.]

tauro-

Important derivatives are: Taurus, toreador, torero.

Bull.

Derivative of stā-, but an independent word in Indo-European.

21. TAURINE¹, TAURUS, TOREADOR, TORERO; BITTERN¹, from Latin taurus, bull.

22. TAURINE²; TAUROCHOLIC ACID, from Greek tauros, bull.

[In Pokorny tēu- 1083.]

tegu-

An important derivative is: thick.

Thick.

THICK, from Old English thicce, thick, from Germanic thiku-*.

[Pokorny tegu- 1057.]

tek-

A derivative is: thane.

To beget, give birth to.

5. Suffixed form tek-no-*, child. THANE, from Old English thegn, freeman, nobleman, military vassal, warrior, from Germanic thegnaz*, boy, man, servant, warrior.
6. Suffixed o-grade form tok-o-*. OXYTOCIC, POLYTOCIOUS, TOCOLOGY, from Greek tokos, birth.

teks-

Important derivatives are: text, tissue, context, pretext, subtle, architect, technical, technology.

To weave; also to fabricate, especially with an ax; also to make wicker or wattle fabric for (mud-covered) house walls.

29. TEXT, TISSUE; CONTEXT, PRETEXT, from Latin texere, to weave, fabricate.
30. Suffixed form teks-lā*.
 - a. TILLER², TOIL², from Latin tēla, web, net, warp of a fabric, also weaver's beam (to which the warp threads are tied);
 - b. SUBTLE, from Latin subtilis, thin, fine, precise, subtle (< sub-tēla*, “thread passing under the warp,” the finest thread; sub, under; see upo).
31. Suffixed form teks-ōn*, weaver, maker of wattle for house walls, builder (possibly contaminated with teks-tōr*, builder). TECTONIC; ARCHITECT, from Greek tektōn, carpenter, builder.
32. Suffixed form teks-nā-*, craft (of weaving or fabricating). TECHNICAL, (POLYTECHNIC), TECHNOLOGY, from Greek tekhne, art, craft, skill.
 - a. DACHSHUND, from Old High German dahs, badger;
 - b. DASSIE, from Middle Dutch das, badger. Both a and b from Germanic thahsu-*, badger, possibly from teks- (“the animal that builds,” referring to its burrowing skill) but more likely borrowed from the same pre-Indo-European source as the Celtic totemic name Tazgo-, Gaelic Tadhg, originally “badger.”

telə-

Important derivatives are: *toll*¹, philately, tolerate, retaliate, talent, tantalize, Atlantic, Atlas, collate, elate, legislator, relate, superlative, translate, extol.

To lift, support, weigh; with derivatives referring to measured weights and thence to money and payment.

7. Suffixed form telə-mon-*. TELAMON, from Greek telamōn, supporter, bearer.
8. Suffixed form tel(ə)-es-*.
 - a. TOLL¹; PHILATELY, from Greek telos, tax, charge;
 - b. TOLERATE, from Latin tolerāre, to bear, endure.
9. Suffixed zero-grade form tl̥ə-i-*. TALION; RETALIATE, from Latin tālīō, reciprocal punishment in kind, possibly “something paid out,” from tali-* (influenced by tālis, such).
10. Suffixed variant zero-grade form tala-nt-*. TALENT, from Greek talanton, balance, weight, any of several specific weights of gold or silver, hence the sum of money represented by such a weight.
11. Perhaps (but unlikely) intensive reduplicated form tantal-*. (TANTALIZE), TANTALUS, from Greek Tantalos, name of a legendary king, “the sufferer.”
12. Perhaps (but unlikely) zero-grade form tl̥ə-*. ATLANTIC, ATLAS, from Greek Atlas (stem Atlant-), name of the Titan supporting the world.
13. Suffixed zero-grade form tl̥ə-to-*. ABLATION, COLLATE, DILATORY, ELATE, ILLATION, LEGISLATOR, OBLATE¹, PRELATE, PROLATE, RELATE, SUBLATE, SUPERLATIVE, TRANSLATE, from Latin lātus, “carried, borne,” used as the suppletive past participle of ferre, to bear (see bher-¹), with its compounds.
14. Suffixed zero-grade form tl̥ə-ā-*. TOLA, from Sanskrit tulā, scales, balance, weight.
15. Nasalized zero-grade form tl̥-n-ə-*. EXTOL, from Latin tollere, to lift.

[Pokorny 1. tel- 1060.]

Important derivatives are: tome, anatomy, atom, diatom, epitome, *temple*¹, contemplate.

Also temə-To cut.

IV. Form temə*-. Nasalized form t(e)m-n-ə*-. TMESIS, TOME, (-TOME), -TOMY; ANATOMY, ATOM, DIATOM, DICHOTOMY, ENTOMO-, EPITOME, from Greek temnein, to cut, with o-grade forms tomos, cutting, a cut, section, volume, and tomē, a cutting.

V. Form tem*-.

1. Suffixed form tem-lo*-. TEMPLE¹, TEMPLE³; CONTEMPLATE, from Latin templum, temple, shrine, open place for observation (augury term)
2. Extended root tem-d*- becoming tend*- in o-grade suffixed (iterative) form tond-eyo*-. TONSORIAL, TONSURE, from Latin tondēre, to shear, shave.

[Pokorny 1. tem-, tend- 1062.]

ten-

Important derivatives are: *tend*¹, tendon, *tense*¹, *tent*¹, attend, contend, extend, intend, pretend, hypotenuse, sitar, tenacious, tenant, tenement, tenor, tenure, contain, continue, detain, entertain, lieutenant, maintain, obtain, pertain, retain, sustain, thin, tenuous, *tender*¹, tone.

To stretch.

III. Derivatives with the basic meaning.

1. Suffixed form ten-do*-.
 - a. TEND¹, TENDER², TENSE¹, TENT¹; ATTEND, CONTEND, DETENT, DISTEND, EXTEND, INTEND, OSTENSIBLE, PRETEND, SUBTEND, from Latin tendere, to stretch, extend;
 - b. PORTEND, from Latin portendere, “to stretch out before” (por-, variant of pro-, before; see per¹), a technical term in augury, “to indicate, presage, foretell.”
2. Suffixed form ten-yo*-. TENESMUS; ANATASE, BRONCHIECTASIS, CATATONIA, EPITASIS, HYPOTENUSE, PERITONEUM, PROTASIS, SYNTONIC, TELANGIECTASIA, from Greek teinein, to stretch, with o-grade form ton- and zero-grade noun tasis (< tŋ-ti-*), a stretching, tension, intensity.

3. Reduplicated zero-grade form te-tan-o-*. TETANUS, from Greek tetanos, stiff, rigid.
4. Suffixed full-grade form ten-tro-*.
 - a. TANTRA, from Sanskrit tantram, loom;
 - b. SITAR, from Persian tār, string.
5. Basic form (with stative suffix) ten-ē-*. TENABLE, TENACIOUS, TENACULUM, TENANT, TENEMENT, TENET, TENON, TENOR, TENURE, TENUTO; ABSTAIN, CONTAIN, (CONTINUE), DETAIN, ENTERTAIN, LIEUTENANT, MAINTAIN, OBTAIN, PERTAIN, PERTINACIOUS, RETAIN, (RETINACULUM), SUSTAIN, from Latin tenēre, to hold, keep, maintain (

IV. Derivatives meaning “stretched,” hence “thin.”

1. Suffixed zero-grade form tŋ-u-*. THIN, from Old English thynne, thin, from Germanic thunniz*, from thunw-*.
2. Suffixed full-grade form ten-u-*. TENUOUS; ATTENUATE, EXTENUATE, from Latin tenuis, thin, rare, fine.
3. Suffixed full-grade form ten-ero-*. TENDER¹, (TENDRIL), from Latin tener, tender, delicate.

V. Derivatives meaning “something stretched or capable of being stretched, a string.”

1. Suffixed form ten-ōn-*. TENDON, TENO-, from Greek tenōn, tendon.
2. Suffixed o-grade form ton-o-*. TONE; (BARITONE), TONOPLAST, from Greek tonos, string, hence sound, pitch.
3. Suffixed zero-grade form tŋ-ya-*. TAENIA; POLYTENE, from Greek tainia, band, ribbon.

[Pokorny 1. ten- 1065.]

Important derivatives are: trite, detriment, thrash, thresh, threshold, turn, contour, return, *drill*¹, throw, thread, trauma, truant.

To rub, turn; with some derivatives referring to twisting, boring, drilling, and piercing; and others referring to the rubbing of cereal grain to remove the husks, and thence to the process of threshing either by the trampling of oxen or by flailing with flails. Variant trē-, contracted from treə-.

V. Full-grade form ter(ə)-*.

- a. TRITE, TRITURATE; ATTRITION, CONTRITE, DETRIMENT, from Latin terere (past participle trītus), to rub away, thresh, tread, wear out;
 - b. TEREDO, from Greek terēdōn, a kind of biting worm.
2. Suffixed form ter-et-*. TERETE, from Latin teres (stem teret-), rounded, smooth.
 3. Suffixed form ter-sko-*.
 - a. (THRASH), THRESH, from Old English therscan, to thresh;
 - b. THRESHOLD, from Old English therscold, threscold, sill of a door (over which one treads; second element obscure). Both a and b from Germanic therskan*, threskan*, to thresh, tread.

VI. O-grade form tor(ə)-*.

1. TOREUTICS, from Greek toreus, a boring tool.
2. Suffixed form tor(ə)-mo-*, hole. DERMA², from Old High German darm, gut, from Germanic tharma-*.
3. Suffixed form tor(ə)-no-*. TURN; (ATTORN), CONTOUR, (DETOUR), (RETURN), from Greek tornos, tool for drawing a circle, circle, lathe.

VII. Zero-grade form tr-*. DRILL¹, from Middle Dutch drillen, to drill, from Germanic thr-*.

VIII. Variant form trē-* (< treə-*).

1. THROW, from Old English thrāwan, to turn, twist, from Germanic thrēw-*.

2. Suffixed form trē-tu-*. THREAD, from Old English thrǣd, thread, from Germanic thrēdu-*, twisted yarn.
3. Suffixed form trē-mŋ* (< treǝ-* or tʀǝ-*). MONOTREME, TREMATODE, from Greek trēma, perforation.
4. Suffixed form trē-ti-* (< treǝ-* or tʀǝ-*). ATRESIA, from Greek trēsis, perforation.

IX. Extended form trī-* (< triǝ-*).

1. Probably suffixed form trī-ōn-*. SEPTENTRION, from Latin triō, plow ox.
2. Suffixed form trī-dhlo-*. TRIBULATION, from Latin tribulum, a threshing sledge.

X. Various extended forms

1. Forms trō-, trau-. TRAUMA, from Greek trauma, hurt, wound.
2. Form trīb-*. DIATRIBE, TRIBOELECTRICITY, TRIBOLOGY, TRYPSIN, from Greek tribein, to rub, thresh, pound, wear out.
3. Form trōg-, trag-.
 - a. TROGON, TROUT, from Greek trōgein, to gnaw;
 - b. DREDGE², from Greek tragēma, sweetmeat.
4. Form trup-*. TREPAN¹; TRYPANOSOME, from Greek trupē, hole.
5. Possible form trūg-*. TRUANT, from Old French truant, beggar.

[Pokorny 3. ter- 1071.]

terǝ⁻²

Important derivatives are: thrill, nostril, thorough, through, trans-, transient, trench, trunk.

To cross over, pass through, overcome. Variant trā-, contracted from traǝ-.

I. Zero-grade form tʀ(ǝ)-*.

1. THRILL; NOSTRIL, from Old English thyr(e)l, thýrel, a hole (thur-ila-*).

2. Suffixed form tṛə-k^we*. THOROUGH, THROUGH, from Old English thurh, thuruh, through, from Germanic thurh*.
3. (see nek⁻¹) Greek nek-tar, overcoming death.
4. Zero-grade form tṛə-* and full-grade form ter(ə)-*. AVATAR, from Sanskrit tirati, tarati, he crosses over.

II. Variant form trā-* (< traə-*).

1. TRANS-, TRANSIENT, (TRANSOM), from Latin trāns, across, over, beyond, through (perhaps originally the present participle of a verb trāre*, to cross over).
2. Suffixed form trā-yo-*. CARAVANSARY, from Persian sarāy, inn, from Middle Persian srāyīdhan, to protect, from Iranian thrāya-, to protect.

III. Possible extended form tru-*.

1. Suffixed form tru-k-*. TRUCULENT, from Latin trux (stem truc-), savage, fierce, grim (< “overcoming,” “powerful,” “penetrating”).
2. Suffixed nasalized form tru-n-k-o-*. TRENCH, TRUNCATE, TRUNK, from Latin truncus, deprived of branches or limbs, mutilated, hence trunk (? < “overcome, maimed”).

[Pokorny 5. ter- 1075.]

terk^w-

Important derivatives are: queer, thwart, torch, torment, torque¹, tortuous, distort, extort, nasturtium, retort¹.

To twist.

Extension of terə⁻¹.

23. Possible variant form t(w)erk-*.

- a. QUEER, from Middle Low German dwer, oblique;
- b. THWART, from Old Norse thverr, transverse. Both a and b from Germanic thwerh-*, twisted, oblique.

24. Suffixed (causative) o-grade form tork^v-eyo-*. TORCH, TORMENT, TORQUE¹, TORQUE², TORSADE, TORT, TORTUOUS, TRUSS; CONTORT, DISTORT, EXTORT, NASTURTIVUM, RETORT¹, TORTICOLLIS, from Latin torquēre, to twist.

[Pokorny terk- 1077.]

ters-

Important derivatives are: thirst, terrace, terrain, terrier, territory, inter, mediterranean, subterranean, *toast*¹, torrent, torrid.

To dry.

5. Suffixed zero-grade form tʀs-*.
- THRIST, from Old English thurst, dryness, thirst, from Germanic suffixed form thurs-tu-*;
 - CUSK, from Old Norse thorskr, cod (a and b from Germanic thurs-*).
6. Suffixed basic form ters-ā-*. TERRACE, (TERRAIN), TERRAN, TERRENE, TERRESTRIAL, TERRIER, TERRITORY, TUREEN; FUMITORY, INTER, MEDITERRANEAN, PARTERRE, SUBTERRANEAN, TERRAQUEOUS, TERREPLEIN, TERRE-VERTE, TERRICOLOUS, TERRIGENOUS, TURMERIC, VERDITER, from Latin terra, “dry land,” earth.
7. Suffixed o-grade form tors-eyo-*. TOAST¹, TORRENT, TORRID, from Latin torrēre, to dry, parch, burn.
8. Suffixed zero-grade form tʀs-o-*. TARSUS, from Greek tarsos, frame of wickerwork (originally for drying cheese), hence a flat surface, sole of the foot, ankle.

[Pokorny ters- 1078.]

teuə-

Important derivatives are: thigh, thousand, thimble, thumb, tumor, truffle, tuber, butter, tomb.

Also teu-To swell.

16. Extended form teuk-*. THIGH, from Old English thēoh, thigh, from Germanic theuham*, “the swollen or fat part of the leg,” thigh.

17. Extended form tūs-*. THOUSAND, from Old English thūsend, thousand, from Germanic compound thūs-hundi-, “swollen hundred,” thousand (hundi-, hundred; see dekṃ).
18. Probably suffixed zero-grade form tu-l-*.
 - a. THOLE PIN, from Old English thol(l), oar pin, oarlock (thul-*;
 - b. TYLECTOMY, TYLOSIS¹, from Greek tulos, callus, lump.
19. Extended zero-grade form tūm-*.
 - a. THIMBLE, THUMB, from Old English thūma, thumb (thūmōn-*;
 - b. suffixed (stative) form tum-ē-*. TUMESCENT, TUMID, TUMOR; DETUMESCENCE, INTUMESCE, TUMEFACIENT, (TUMEFY), from Latin tumēre, to swell, be swollen, be proud;
 - c. suffixed form tum-olo-*. TUMULUS, from Latin tumulus, raised heap of earth, mound.
20. Extended zero-grade form tūbh-*. TRUFFLE, TUBER; PROTUBERATE, from Latin tūber, lump, swelling.
21. Suffixed zero-grade form tū-ro-* (< tuə-ro-*).
 - a. BUTTER, TYROSINE, TYROTHRIN, from Greek turos, cheese (
 - b. OBTURATE, from Latin -tūrāre, to stop up, possibly from tūros*, swollen, coagulated, stopped up.
22. Suffixed variant form twō-ro-*. SORITES, SORUS, from Greek sōros, heap, pile.
23. Suffixed variant form twō-mṇ-*. SOMA, SOMATO-, -SOME³; PROSOMA, from Greek sōma, body (
24. Suffixed zero-grade form twə-wo-*. CREOSOTE, SOTERIOLOGY, from Greek sōzein, to save, rescue, derivative of saos, sōs, safe, healthy (< “swollen,” “strong”).
25. Perhaps nasalized extended form tu-m-b(h)-* (or extended zero-grade form tum-*). TOMB, from Greek tumbos, barrow, tomb.

[Pokorny tēu- 1080.]

teutā-

Important derivatives are: Dutch, Teuton, total.

Tribe.

- a. DUTCH, from Middle Dutch duutsch, German, of the Germans or Teutons;
 - b. PLATTDEUTSCH, from Old High German diutisc, of the people. Both a and b from Germanic theudiskaz*, of the people, derivative of theudā-*, people.
10. Suffixed form teut-onōs*, “they of the tribe.” TEUTON, from Latin Teutōnī, the Teutons, borrowed via Celtic from Germanic tribal name theudanōz*.
11. TOTAL, TUTTI; FACTOTUM, TEETOTUM, from Latin tōtus, all, whole, possibly from teutā- (?)

[In Pokorny tēu- 1080.]

tkei-

Important derivatives are: home, hamlet, haunt, hangar, situate.

To settle, dwell, be home.

10. Suffixed o-grade form (t)koi-mo-*.
- a. HOME, from Old English hām, home;
 - b. NIFLHEIM, from Old Norse heimr, home;
 - c. HAIMISH, from Old High German heim, home;
 - d. HAME, from Middle Dutch hame, hame (< “covering”);
 - e. HAMLET, from Old French ham, village, home;
 - f. HAUNT, from Old French hanter, to frequent, haunt, from Germanic haimatjan*, to go or bring home;

- g. HANGAR, from Old French hangard, shelter, possibly from Germanic haimgardaz* (gardaz*, enclosure; see gher¹). a, b, c, d, e, f, and g all from Germanic haimaz*, home.

11. Zero-grade form tki-*.

- a. AMPHICTYONY, from Greek ktizein, to found, settle, from metathesized kti-;
- b. SITUATE, SITUS, from Latin situs, location, from suffixed form si-tu-* from si-, probably from tki-*.

[Pokorny 1. kei- 539, ktei- 626.]

to-

Important derivatives are: *the*¹, decoy, though, these, this, than, then, there, they, their, them, that, those, thus, tandem.

Demonstrative pronoun.

For the nominative singular see so-.

- a. THE²; NATHELESS, from Old English thē, thȳ (instrumental case), by the;
 - b. DECOY, from Middle Dutch de, the. Both a and b from Germanic thē-*.
18. THOUGH, from Middle English though, though, from a Scandinavian source akin to Old Norse thō, though, from Germanic thauh*, “for all that.”
19. THESE, THIS, (THOSE), from Old English thes, this, this, from Germanic thasi-*.
20. THAN, THEN, from Old English thanne, thænne, thenne, than, then, from Germanic thana-*.
21. THENCE, from Old English thanon, thence, from Germanic thanana-*.
22. THERE, from Old English thāer, thēr, there, from Germanic thēr*.
23. THITHER, from Old English thæder, thider, thither, from Germanic thathro*.

24. THEY, from Old Norse their, they, from Germanic nominative plural thai*.
25. THEIR, from Old Norse their(r)a, theirs, from Germanic genitive plural thaira*.
26. THEM, from Old Norse theim and Old English thāem, them, from Germanic dative plural thaimiz*.
27. Extended neuter form tod-*. THAT, from Old English thæt, that, from Germanic that*.
28. THUS, from Old English thus, thus, from Germanic thus-*.
29. Adverbial (originally accusative) form tam*. TANDEM, TANTAMOUNT, from Latin tandem, at last, so much, and tantus, so much.
30. Suffixed reduced form t-āli-*. TALES, from Latin tālis, such.
31. TAUTO-, from Greek to, the.

[Pokorny 1. to- 1086.]

tolk^w-

Important derivatives are: loquacious, circumlocution, colloquium, elocution, soliloquy, ventriloquism.

To speak.

Metathesized form tlok^w-*. LOCUTION, LOQUACIOUS; ALLOCUTION, CIRCUMLOCUTION, COLLOQUIUM, (COLLOQUY), ELOCUTION, GRANDILOQUENCE, INTERLOCUTION, MAGNILOQUENT, OBLOQUY, SOLILOQUY, VENTRILLOQUISM, from Latin loquī, to speak.

[Pokorny tolk^w- 1088.]

tong-

Important derivatives are: thank, think, thought.

To think, feel.

4. THANK, from Old English thanc, thought, good will, and thancian, to thank, from Germanic thankaz*, thought, gratitude, and thankōn*, to think of, thank.

5. BETHINK, THINK, from Old English (bi)thencan, to think, from Germanic (bi-)thankjan*.
6. THOUGHT, from Old English (ge)thōht, thought, from Germanic (ga)thanht-* (ga-*, collective prefix; see kom).
7. METHINKS, from Old English thyncan, (third person singular present indicative thyncth), to seem, from Germanic thunkjan*.

[Pokorny 1. tong- 1088.]

treb-

Derivatives are: thorp, trave.

Dwelling.

5. Zero-grade form tr̥b-*. THORP, from Old English thorp, village, hamlet, from Germanic thurp-*.
6. TRABEATED, TRABECULA, TRAVE; ARCHITRAVE, from Latin trabs, beam, timber.

[Pokorny treb- 1090.]

trei-

Important derivatives are: three, thrice, thirteen, thirty, trio, third, tertiary, triple, testament, testimony, attest, contest, detest, protest, testify, sitar, trinity.

Three.

- I. Nominative plural form treyes*.
 - a. THREE, THRICE; THIRTEEN, THIRTY, from Old English thrīe, thrēo, thrī, three, with its derivatives thrīga, thrīwa, thrice, thritig, thirty, and thrēotīne, thirteen (-tīne, ten; see dekṃ);
 - b. TRILLIUM, from Old Swedish thrīr, three. Both a and b from Germanic thrijiz*,
2. TREY; TRAMMEL, TRECENTO, TREPINE, TRIUMVIR, TROCAR, from Latin trēs, three.

3. TRISKAIDEKAPHOBIA, from Greek treis, tris, three.

II. Zero-grade form *tri-.

1. Suffixed form *tri-tyo-.

i. THIRD, from Old English thrid(d)a, thirdda, third;

ii. RIDING², from Old Norse thridhi, third. Both (i) and (ii) from Germanic thridjaz*, third;

b. TERCEL, TERCET, TERTIAN, TERTIARY, TIERCE; SESTERCE, from Latin tertius (neuter tertium), third.

2. Combining form *tri-.

a. TRI-, TRIBE, TRIO, TRIPLE, from Latin tri-, three;

b. TRI-; TRICLINIUM, TRICROTIC, TRIDACTYL, TRIGLYPH, TRITONE, from Greek tri-, three;

c. TRIMURTI, from Sanskrit tri-, three.

3. TRIAD, from Greek trias, the number three.

4. TRICHOTOMY, from Greek trikha, in three parts.

5. TRIERARCH, from Greek compound triērēs, galley with three banks of oars, trireme (-ērēs, oar; see erə-).

6. Suffixed form *tri-to-. TRITIUM; TRITANOPIA, from Greek tritos, third.

7. Compound form tri-pl-, “threefold” (-pl- *-plo-; see pel-²). TRIPLOBLASTIC, from Greek triploos, triple.

8. Compound form tri-plek-, “threefold” (-plek-, -fold; see plek-). TRIPLEX, from Latin triplex, triple.

9. Compound form *tri-st-i-, “third person standing by” (see stā-). TESTAMENT, (TESTIMONY); ATTEST, CONTEST, DETEST, OBTEST, PROTEST, TESTIFY, from Latin testis, a witness.

10. SITAR, from Persian si, three.

III. Extended zero-grade form *tris, “thrice.”

1. TERN²; TERPOLYMER, from Latin ter, thrice.
2. TRISOCTAHEDRON, from Greek tris, thrice.
3. Suffixed form tris-no-*. TRINE, (TRINITY), from Latin trīnī, three each.

IV. Suffixed o-grade form troy-o-*. TROIKA, from Russian troje, group of three.

[Pokorny trei- 1090.]

trep-

Important derivatives are: trope, contrive, retrieve, trophy, tropic, entropy.

To turn.

4. -TROPOUS; APOTROPAIC, (ATROPOS), TREPONEMA, from Greek trepein, to turn, with o-grade tropos, turning.
5. O-grade form trop-*.
 - a. suffixed form trop-o-*. TROPE, (TROUBADOUR), (TROVER); CONTRIVE, (RETRIEVE), from Greek tropos, a turn, way, manner;
 - b. suffixed form trop-ā-*. TROPHY, TROPIC, TROPO-; ENTROPY, from Greek tropē, a turning, change.

[Pokorny 2. trep- 1094.]

treud-

Important derivatives are: threat, thrust, intrude, protrude.

To squeeze.

18. Suffixed o-grade form troud-o-*. THREAT, from Old English thrēat, oppression, use of force, from Germanic thrautam*.
19. Variant form trūd-*. THRUST, from Old Norse thrýsta, to squeeze, compress, from Germanic thrūstjan*.
20. ABSTRUSE, EXTRUDE, INTRUDE, OBTRUDE, PROTRUDE, from Latin trūdere, to thrust, push.

tu-

Important derivatives are: thee, *thou*¹, thine, thy.

Second person singular pronoun; you, thou.

5. Lengthened form tū* (accusative te*, tege*). (THEE), THOU¹, from Old English thū (accusative thec, thē), thou, from Germanic thū* (accusative theke*).
6. Suffixed extended form t(w)ei-no-*. THINE, THY, from Old English thīn, thine, from Germanic thīnaz*.

ud-

Important derivatives are: out, utmost, carouse, outlaw, *utter*¹, *utter*², but, about, ersatz, hubris.

Also ūd-Up, out.

- a. OUT; UTMOST, from Old English ūt, out;
 - b. CAROUSE; AUSLANDER, from Old High German ūz, out;
 - c. OUTLAW, from Old Norse ūt, out;
 - d. UITLANDER, from Middle Dutch ute, uut, out;
 - e. UTTER¹, from Middle Low German ūt, out;
 - f. UTTER², from Old English ūtera, outer, from Germanic suffixed (comparative) form ūt-era-*;
 - g. BUT; ABOUT, from Old English būtan, būte, outside (adverb), from Germanic compound bi-ūtana*, “at the outside” (bi-, by, at; see ambhi). a, b, c, d, e, f, and g all from Germanic ūt-, out.
17. Extended form uds*.
- a. ERSATZ, from Old High German irsezzan, to replace, from ir-, out;

- b. ORT, from Middle Dutch oor, out;
 - c. (see dail-) Germanic uz-dailjam*, “a portioning out,” judgment;
 - d. URSPRACHE, from Old High German ur-, out of, original. a, b, c, and d all from Germanic uz*, uz-*, out.
18. Suffixed (comparative) form ud-tero-*. HYSTERESIS, HYSTERON PROTERON, from Greek husteros, later, second, after.
19. HUBRIS, from Greek compound hubris, violence, outrage, insolence (bri-, perhaps “heavy,” “violent”; see g^werə⁻¹), from hu-.
20. VIGORISH, from Russian vy-, out.

[Pokorny ūd- 1103.]

uper

Important derivatives are: over, sovereign, super-, superior, supreme, sirloin, superb, sum, summit, soprano, somersault, hyper-.

Over.

23. Extended form uperi*.
- a. OVER, from Old English ofer, over;
 - b. ORLOP, from Middle Low German over, over. Both a and b from Germanic uberi*.
24. Variant form (s)uper*.
- a. SOUBRETTE, SOVEREIGN, SUPER-, SUPERABLE, SUPERIOR, SUPREME, (SUPREMO), SUR-; SIRLOIN, from Latin super, super-, above, over;
 - b. suffixed form (s)uper-no-*. SUPERNAL, from Latin supernus, above, upper, top;
 - c. suffixed form super-bhw-o-, “being above” (bhw-o-, being; see bheuə-). SUPERB, from Latin superbus, superior, excellent, arrogant;

- d. suffixed (superlative) reduced form sup-mo-*. SUM, SUMMIT, from Latin summus, highest, topmost;
- e. suffixed form super-o-*. (SOPRANINO), SOPRANO, SUPRA-; SOMERSAULT, from Latin suprā (feminine ablative singular), above, beyond.

25. Basic form uper*. HYPER-, from Greek huper, over.

[Pokorny uper 1105.]

upo

Important derivatives are: up, uproar, open, above, often, eaves, eavesdrop, sub-, *supine*¹, supple, hypo-, valet, vassal, opal.

Under, up from under, over.

- a. UP, from Old English up, uppe, up;
 - b. UP-, from Old English ūp-, upp-, up;
 - c. UPROAR, from Middle Low German up, up;
 - d. AUFKLÄRUNG, from Old High German ūf, up. a, b, c, and d all from Germanic upp-*, up.
7. OPEN, from Old English open, open, from Germanic upanaz*, “put or set up,” open.
8. ABOVE, from Old English būfan, above, over, from Germanic compound bi-ufana*, “on, above” (bi-*, by, at; see ambhi).
9. Possibly suffixed form up-t-*. OFT, OFTEN, from Old English oft, often, from Germanic ufta*, frequently.
10. Extended form upes-*.
- a. EAVES, from Old English efes, eaves;
 - b. EAVESDROP, from Old English yfesdrype, water from the eaves, from Germanic obisdrup-, dripping water from the eaves (drup-, to drip, from dhrub-; see dhreu-). Both a and b from Germanic ubaswō, ubizwō*, vestibule, porch, eaves ( 11. Variant form (s)up-*.

 - a. SOUTANE, SUB-, from Latin sub, under;
 - b. SUPINE, from Latin supīnus, lying on the back (
 - c. suffixed form sup-ter*. SUBTERFUGE, from Latin subter, secretly;
 - d. (see plāk-¹) Latin supplex, suppliant, from sub, under.
12. Basic form upo*. HYPO-, from Greek hupo, under.
13. Suffixed variant form ups-o-*. HYPSO-, from Greek hupsos, height, top.
14. Basic form upo-*. (see reidh-) Latin verēdus, post horse, from Celtic wo-*, under.
15. Probably compound upo-st-o-. (VALET), (VARLET), VASSAL, from Vulgar Latin vassus, vassal, from Celtic wasso-, “one who stands under,” servant, young man (sto-, standing; see stā-).
16. OPAL, UPANISHAD, from Sanskrit upa, near to, under (in upaniṣad, Upanishad).

[Pokorny upo 1106.]

wal-

Important derivatives are: *valence, valiant, valid, valor, value, avail, convalesce, equivalent, invalid*¹, prevail, wield.

To be strong.

21. Suffixed (stative) form wal-ē-*. VALE², VALENCE, VALETUDINARIAN, VALIANT, VALID, VALOR, VALUE; AMBIVALENCE, AVAIL, CONVALESCE, COUNTERVAIL, EQUIVALENT, (INVALID¹), INVALID², PREVAIL, (VALEDICTION), from Latin valēre, to be strong.
22. Extended o-grade form wold(h)-*.
 - a. WIELD, from Old English wealdan, to rule, and wieldan, to govern, from Germanic waldan*, to rule;
 - b. (see koro-) Germanic harja-waldaz*, “army commander,” from wald-*, power, rule.

23. Suffixed extended o-grade form wold-ti-*. OBLAST, from Old Church Slavonic vlastĭ, rule.

[Pokorny ual- 1111.]

we-

An important derivative is: we.

We. For oblique cases of the pronoun see nes-².

Suffixed variant form wey-es*. WE, from Old English wē, we, we, from Germanic wīz*.

[Pokorny uě- 1114.]

wē-

Important derivatives are: weather, *wind*¹, window, vent, ventilate, wing, nirvana.
To blow.

Contracted from weǝ-; oldest basic form ǝwē- (< ǝweǝ-*).

26. Suffixed irregular shortened form we-dhro-*. WEATHER, from Old English weder, weather, storm, wind, from Germanic wedram* wind, weather.

27. Suffixed (participial) form wē-nt-o-*, blowing.

- i. WIND¹, from Old English wind, wind;
- ii. WINDOW, from Old Norse vinđr, wind. Both (i) and (ii) from Germanic windaz*;

- b. VENT¹, VENTAIL, VENTILATE, from Latin ventus, wind.

28. WING, from Middle English wenge, wing, from a Scandinavian source akin to Old Norse vængr, wing, from suffixed Germanic form wē-ingjaz*.

29. Basic form wē-*. NIRVANA, from Sanskrit vāti (stem vā-*), it blows.

[Pokorny 10. au(ē)- 81.]

webh-

Important derivatives are: weave, web, weevil, wafer, *waffle*¹, wave, wobble.
To weave, also to move quickly.

17. WEAWE, WOOF¹, from Old English wefan, to weave, from Germanic weban*.
18. WEFT, from Old English wefta, weft, cross thread, from Germanic wefta-*.
19. Suffixed o-grade form wobh-yo-*. WEB, WEBSTER, from Old English web(b), web, from Germanic wabjam*, fabric, web.
20. WEEVIL, from Old English wifel, weevil (webila-*.
 - i. GOFFER, from Old French gaufre, honeycomb, waffle;
 - ii. WAFER, from Old North French waufre, wafer. Both (i) and (ii) from a source akin to Middle Low German wāfel, honeycomb;
- b. WAFFLE¹, from Middle Dutch wāfel, waffle. Both a and b from suffixed Germanic form wabila-*, web, honeycomb.
- c. WAVE, from Old English wafian, to move (the hand) up and down;
- d. WAVER, from Middle English waveren, to waver;
- e. WOBBLE, from Low German wabbeln, to move from side to side, sway. a, b, and c all from Germanic wab-*, to move back and forth as in weaving, possibly from webh-.
21. Suffixed zero-grade form ubh-ā-*. HYPHA, from Greek huphē, web.

[Pokorny uebh- 1114.]

wed-¹

Important derivatives are: water, wet, wash, winter, hydrant, hydro-, undulate, abound, inundate, redundant, surround, otter, Hydra, whiskey, vodka.

Water; wet.

33. Suffixed o-grade form wod-ōr*.
 - a. WATER, from Old English wæter, water;
 - b. KIRSCHWASSER, from Old High German wassar, water.
Both a and b from Germanic watar*.
34. Suffixed lengthened-grade form wēd-o-*. WET, from Old English wǣt, wēt, wet, from Germanic wēd-*.
35. O-grade form wod-*. WASH, from Old English wæscan, wacsan, to wash, from Germanic suffixed form wat-skan*, to wash.
36. Nasalized form we-n-d-*. WINTER, from Old English winter, winter, from Germanic wintruz*, winter, “wet season.”
37. Suffixed zero-grade form ud-ōr*. (HYDRANT), HYDRO-, (HYDROUS), UTRICLE; ANHYDROUS, CLEPSYDRA, DROPSY, HYDATHODE, HYDATID, from Greek hudōr, water.
38. Suffixed nasalized zero-grade form u-n-d-ā-*. UNDINE, UNDULATE; ABOUND, INUNDATE, (REBOUND), REDUNDANT, SURROUND, from Latin unda, wave.
39. Suffixed zero-grade form ud-ro-, ud-rā-, water animal.
 - a. OTTER, from Old English otor, otter, from Germanic otraz*, otter;
 - b. NUTRIA, from Latin lutra, otter (with obscure l-);
 - c. HYDRUS, from Greek hudros, a water snake;
 - d. HYDRA, from Greek hudra, a water serpent, Hydra.
40. Suffixed zero-grade form ud-skio-*. USQUEBAUGH, (WHISKEY), from Old Irish uisce, water.
41. Suffixed o-grade form wod-ā-*. VODKA, from Russian voda, water.

wed-²

Important derivatives are: ode, comedy, melody, parody, rhapsody, tragedy.
To speak.

16. Oldest root form ǵwed-* becoming awed-* in possible reduplicated form awe-ud-, dissimilated to aweid-, with suffixed o-grade form awoid-o-* (but more likely a separate root ǵweid-* becoming Greek aweid-*, to sing). ODE; COMEDY, EPODE, HYMNODY, MELODY, MONODY, PARODY, RHAPSODY, TRAGEDY, from Greek aeidein (Attic aidein), to sing, and aoidē (Attic ōidē), song, ode, with aoidos (Attic ōidos), a singer, singing.
17. THERAVADA, from Sanskrit vādaḥ, sound, statement.

[Pokorny 6. au- 76.]

weg-

Important derivatives are: wake¹, waken, watch, bivouac, wait, vegetable, vigor, vigil, vigilante, reveille, velocity.
To be strong, be lively.

3. Suffixed o-grade form wog-ē-*. WAKE¹, from Old English wacan, to wake up, arise, and wacian, to be awake, from Germanic wakēn*.
4. Suffixed o-grade form wog-no-*. WAKEN, from Old English wæcnan, wæcnian, to awake, from Germanic waknan*.
5. WATCH, from Old English wæccan, to be awake, from Germanic wakjan*.
6. Suffixed form weg-yo-*. (WICCA), (WICKED), WITCH; (BEWITCH), from Old English wicca, sorcerer, wizard (feminine wicce, witch), from Germanic wikkjaz*, necromancer (
7. BIVOUAC, from Old High German wahta, watch, vigil, from Germanic wahtwō*.
 - a. WAIT, from Old North French waitier, to watch;
 - b. WAFT, from Middle Dutch and Middle Low German wachten, to watch, guard. Both a and b from Germanic waht-*.

8. Suffixed (causative) o-grade form wog-eyo-*. VEGETABLE, from Latin vegēre, to be lively.
9. Suffixed (stative) form weg-ē-*. VIGOR, from Latin vigēre, to be lively.
10. Suffixed form weg-(e)li-*. VEDETTE, VIGIL, (VIGILANT), VIGILANTE; REVEILLE, SURVEILLANT, from Latin vigil, watchful, awake.
11. Suffixed form weg-slo-*. VELOCITY, from Latin vēlōx, fast, “lively.”

[Pokorny ueĝ- 1117.]

wegh-

Important derivatives are: *weigh*¹, wee, weight, way, always, away, wagon, *wag*¹, vogue, earwig, wiggle, vector, vehicle, convection, via, voyage, convey, deviate, devious, *envoy*¹, obvious, previous, trivial, vex, convex.

To go, transport in a vehicle.

4. WEIGH¹, from Old English wegan, to carry, balance in a scale, from Germanic wegan*.
5. WEE, from Old English wæg(e), weight, unit of weight, from Germanic lengthened-grade form wēgō*.
6. Suffixed form wegh-ti-*. WEIGHT, from Old English wiht, gewiht, weight, from Germanic wiht-*.
 - a. WAY; ALWAYS, AWAY, from Old English weg, way;
 - b. NORWEGIAN, from Old Norse vegr, way. Both a and b from Germanic wegaz*, course of travel, way.
7. Suffixed o-grade form wogh-no-*.
 - a. WAIN, from Old English wæ(g)n, wagon;
 - b. WAGON, from Middle Dutch wagen, wagon. Both a and b from Germanic wagnaz*.
8. Suffixed o-grade form wogh-lo-*.

- a. WALLEYED, from Old Norse vagl, chicken roost, perch, beam, eye disease, from Germanic waglaz*;
 - b. OCHLOCRACY, OCHLOPHOBIA, from Greek okhlos, populace, mob (
9. Distantly related to this root are:
- i. WAG¹, from Middle English waggen, to wag, possibly from wegh-;
 - ii. GRAYWACKE, from Old High German waggo, wacko, boulder rolling on a riverbed. Both (i) and (ii) from Germanic wag-*, “to move about”;
- b. VOGUE, from Old French voguer, to row, sail, from Old Low German wogōn*, to rock, sway, from Germanic wēga-*, water in motion;
 - i. EARWIG, from Old English wicga, insect (
 - ii. WIGGLE, from Middle Dutch and Middle Low German wiggelen, to move back and forth, wag. Both (i) and (ii) from Germanic wig-*.
10. Basic form wegh-*. VECTOR, VEHEMENT, VEHICLE; ADVECTION, CONVECTION, EJECTION, INVEIGH, from Latin vehere (past participle vectus), to carry.
11. Suffixed basic form wegh-yā*. FOY, VIA, VOYAGE; CONVEY, DEVIATE, DEVIOS, (ENVOI), ENVOY¹, OBVIOUS, PERVIOUS, PREVIOUS, (TRIVIAL), TRIVIUM, (VIADUCT), from Latin via, way, road.
12. Suffixed form wegh-s-*. VEX, from Latin vexāre, to agitate (
13. Probably suffixed form wegh-so-*. CONVEX, from Latin convexus, “carried or drawn together (to a point),” convex (com-, together; see kom).

[Pokorny uegh- 1118.]

wei-

Important derivatives are: wire, ferrule, vis, viticulture, iris.

Also weia-To turn, twist; with derivatives referring to suppleness or binding.

XI. Form wei-*.

- a. WIRE, from Old English wīr, wire;
 - b. GARLAND, from Old French garlande, wreath, from Frankish wiara*, weara*, wire. Both a and b from Germanic suffixed form wī-ra-, wē-ra-.
2. SEAWARE, from Old English wār, seaweed, from suffixed Germanic form wai-ra-*, probably from wei-.
 3. Suffixed zero-grade form wi-ria-*. FERRULE, from Latin viriae, bracelets (of Celtic origin).
 4. Suffixed form wei-ti-*. WITHY, from Old English wīthig, willow, withy, from Germanic wīth-*, willow.
 5. Suffixed zero-grade form wi-t-*. WITHE, from Old English withthe, supple twig, from Germanic withjōn-*.

XII. Form weia-, zero-grade wī- (< wia-*).

1. Suffixed form wī-ti-*. VISE; VITICULTURE, from Latin vītis, vine.
2. Suffixed form wī-tā-* becoming wittā*. VITTA, from Latin vitta, headband.
3. Suffixed form wī-men-*. MIMBRES, from Latin vīmen, withy, wicker.
4. Probably suffixed form wī-ri-*. (IRIDACEOUS), IRIDO-, IRIS, IRIS; (IRIDIUM), (IRITIS), from Greek iris, rainbow, and Iris, rainbow goddess.
5. Perhaps suffixed form wī-n-*. INION; EXINE, INOSITOL, INOTROPIC, from Greek is (genitive inos), sinew.

[Pokorny 1. wei- 1120.]

weid-

Important derivatives are: guide, *wise*¹, wisdom, guise, idol, kaleidoscope, Hades, *wit*¹, unwitting, view, visa, vision, advice, clairvoyance, envy, evident, interview, provide, review, supervise, survey, idea, history, story¹, penguin.

To see.

IV. Full-grade form *weid-.

- a. TWIT, from Old English wītan, to reproach;
- b. GUIDE, from Old Provençal guidar, to guide;
- c. GUY¹, from Old French guier, to guide;
- d. WITE, from Old English wīte, fine, penalty, from Germanic derivative noun wīti-. a, b, c, and d all from Germanic wītan, to look after, guard, ascribe to, reproach.

2. Suffixed form *weid-to-.

- a. WISE¹, from Old English wīs, wise;
- b. WISDOM, from Old English wīsdōm, learning, wisdom (-dōm, abstract suffix; see dhē-);
- c. WISEACRE, from Old High German wīssago, seer, prophet;
 - i. WISE², from Old English wīse, wīs, manner;
 - ii. GUISE, from Old French guise, manner. Both (i) and (ii) from Germanic wīssōn-, appearance, form, manner. a, b, c, and d all from Germanic wīssaz.

3. Suffixed form *weid-es-. EIDETIC, EIDOLON, IDOL, IDYLL, -OID; IDOCRASE, KALEIDOSCOPE, from Greek eidōs, form, shape.

V. Zero-grade form *wid-.

- a. WIT¹, from Old English wit, witt, knowledge, intelligence;
 - b. WITENAGEMOT, from Old English wita, wise man, councilor. Both a and b from Germanic wit-*.
2. WIT²; UNWITTING, from Old English witan, to know, from Germanic witan*.
 3. Suffixed form *wid-to-. IWIS, from Old English gewis, gewiss, certain, sure, from Germanic wissaz*, known.

4. Form wid-ē-* (with participial form weid-to-*). VIDE, VIEW, VISA, VISAGE, VISION, VISTA, VOYEUR; ADVICE, (ADVISE), BELVEDERE, BLACK-AVISED, CLAIRVOYANT, ENVY, EVIDENT, INTERVIEW, PREWISE, PROVIDE, REVIEW, SUPERVISE, SURVEY, from Latin vidēre, to see, look.
5. Suffixed form wid-es-ya*. IDEA, IDEO-, from Greek idea, appearance, form, idea.
6. Suffixed form wid-tor-*. HISTORY, (STORY¹); POLYHISTOR, from Greek histōr, wise, learned, learned man.
7. HADAL, HADES, from Greek Haidēs (also Aidēs), the underworld, perhaps “the invisible” and from wid-*.
8. Suffixed nasalized form wi-n-d-o-*.
 - a. COLCANNON, from Old Irish find, white (
 - b. PENGUIN, from Welsh gwyn, gwynn, white.
9. (see deru-) Celtic compound dru-wid-, “strong seer” (dru-, strong).

VI. Suffixed o-grade form woid-o-*. VEDA; RIG-VEDA, from Sanskrit vedaḥ, knowledge.

[Pokorny 2. u(e)di- 1125.]

weiə-

Important derivatives are: vim, violate, violent.

Vital force. Related to wī-ro-.

Zero-grade form wī-* (< wiə-*). VIM, VIOLATE, VIOLENT, from Latin vīs, force, with irregular derivatives violāre, to treat with force, and violentus, vehement.

[In Pokorny 3. uei- 1123.]

weik-¹

Important derivatives are: village, villain, vicinity, diocese, ecology, economy, parish.

Clan (social unit above the household).

25. Suffixed form weik-slā*. VILLA, VILLAGE, VILLAIN, VILLANELLE, (VILLEIN); (BIDONVILLE), from Latin vīlla, country house, farm.

26. Suffixed o-grade form woik-o-*.

- a. (VICINAGE), VICINITY; (BAILIWICK), from Latin vīcus, quarter or district of a town, neighborhood;
- b. ANDROECIUM, AUTOECIOUS, DIOCESE, DIOECIOUS, DIOICIOUS, ECESIS, ECOLOGY, ECONOMY, ECUMENICAL, HETEROECIOUS, MONOECIOUS, PARISH, from Greek oikos, house, and its derivatives oikia, a dwelling, and oikēsis, dwelling, administration.

27. Zero-grade form wik-*. VAISYA, from Sanskrit viśah, dwelling, house.

[Pokorny ueik- 1131.]

weik⁻²

Important derivatives are: wicker, wicket, weak, week, vicar, vicarious.

Also weig-To bend, wind.

IV. Form weig-*.

- a. WYCH ELM, from Old English wice, wych elm (having pliant branches);
 - b. WICKER, from Middle English wiker, wicker, from a Scandinavian source akin to Swedish viker, willow twig, wand;
 - c. WICKET, from Old North French wiket, wicket (vikja, to bend, turn. a, b, and c all from Germanic wik-*).
 - d. WEAK, from Old Norse veikr, pliant;
 - e. WEAKFISH, from Middle Dutch weec, weak, soft. Both a and b from Germanic waikwaz*.
2. WEEK, from Old English wicu, wice, week, from Germanic wikōn-*, “a turning,” series.

V. Form weik-. Zero-grade form wik-.

- a. VICAR, (VICARIOUS), VICE-; VICISSITUDE, from Latin *vix (genitive vicis), turn, situation, change;
- b. VETCH, from Latin vicia, vetch (

[Pokorny 4. ueik- 1130.]

weik-³

Important derivatives are: vanquish, victor, convince, evict.

To fight, conquer.

- 26. WIGHT², from Old Norse vīgr, able in battle, from Germanic *wīk-.
- 27. Nasalized zero-grade form *wi-n-k-. VANQUISH, VICTOR, VINCIBLE; CONVINCED, EVICT, from Latin vincere, to conquer.
- 28. Zero-grade form *wik-. ORDOVICIAN, from Celtic Ordovices (*ordo-wik-), “those who fight with hammers” (*ordo-, hammer).

[Pokorny 2. ueik- 1128.]

weip-

Important derivatives are: waive, wipe, whip, vibrate.

To turn, vacillate, tremble ecstatically.

- 12. O-grade form *woip-. WAIF¹, WAIF², (WAIVE), (WAIVER), from Anglo-Norman waif, ownerless property, from a Scandinavian source probably akin to Old Norse veif, waving thing, flag, from Germanic *waif-.
- 13. Variant form *weib-.
 - a. WIPE, from Old English wīpian, to wipe;
 - b. GUIPURE, from Old French guiper, to cover with silk;
 - c. WHIP, from Middle English wippen, to whip. a, b, and c all from Germanic *wīpjan, to move back and forth.
- 14. Perhaps suffixed nasalized zero-grade form *wi-m-p-ila-.

- a. WIMPLE, from Old English wimpe, covering for the neck (
- b. (GIMP¹), GUIMPE, from Old High German wimpal, guimpe;
- c. WIMBLE, from Middle Dutch wimmel, auger (weip-.

15. Suffixed zero-grade variant form wib-ro-*. VIBRATE, from Latin vibrāre, to vibrate.

[Pokorny ueip- 1131.]

wekti-

Important derivatives are: *wight*¹, *aught*², naught, not.

Thing, creature.

- c. WIGHT¹; (AUGHT²), NAUGHT, (NOT), from Old English wiht, person, thing;
- d. NIX², from Old High German wiht, thing, being. Both a and b from Germanic wihti-*.

[Pokorny uek-ti- 1136.]

wek^w-

Important derivatives are: vocal, voice, vowel, equivocal, vocation, vouch, advocate, avocation, evoke, invoke, provoke, revoke, epic.

To speak.

32. O-grade form wōk^w-*.

- a. VOCAL, VOICE, VOWEL; EQUIVOCAL, UNIVOCAL, from Latin vōx (stem vōc-), voice;
- b. CALLIOPE, from Greek ops, voice.

33. Suffixed o-grade form wok^w-ā-*. VOCABLE, VOCATION, VOUCH; ADVOCATE, AVOCATION, CONVOKE, EVOKE, INVOKE, PROVOKE, REVOKE, from Latin vocāre, to call.

34. Suffixed form wek^w-es-*. EPIC, EPOS; EPOPEE, ORTHOEPY, from Greek epos, song, word.

wel-¹

Important derivatives are: *well*², wealth, *will*¹, *will*², gallop, gallant, volition, voluntary, benevolent, malevolent, voluptuous.

To wish, will.

8. WELL², from Old English wel, well (wel*-).
9. WEAL¹, WEALTH, from Old English wela, weola, well-being, riches, from Germanic welōn*-.
10. WILL¹, from Old English willa, desire, will power, from Germanic wiljōn*-.
11. WILL²; NIL, from Old English willan, to desire, from Germanic wil(l)jan*.
12. (see g^{wā}-) Germanic compound wil-kumōn*-.
13. O-grade form wol*-.
 - a. GALLOP, from Old French galoper, to gallop;
 - b. WALLOP, from Old North French waloper*, to gallop;
 - c. GALLANT, from Old French galer, to rejoice, from Frankish Latin walāre*, to take it easy, from Frankish wala*, good, well. a, b, and c all from Germanic wal*-.
14. Basic form wel*-. VELLEITY, VOLITION, VOLUNTARY; BENEVOLENT, MALEVOLENCE, from Latin velle (present stem vol-), to wish, will.
15. Suffixed form wel-up*-. VOLUPTUARY, VOLUPTUOUS, from Latin voluptās, pleasure.

wel-²

Important derivatives are: waltz, willow, walk, *well*¹, wallow, *vault*¹, *vault*², volume, evolve, involve, revolve, vulva, valve, valley, helix.

To turn, roll; with derivatives referring to curved, enclosing objects.

- a. WALTZ, from Old High German walzan, to roll, waltz;
 - b. WELTER, from Middle Low German or Middle Dutch welteren, to roll. Both a and b from Germanic walt-*.
7. WHELK¹, from Old English weoluc, weoloc, mollusk (having a spiral shell), whelk, from Germanic weluka-*.
8. WILLOW, from Old English welig, willow (with flexible twigs), from Germanic wel-*, perhaps from wel-².
9. WALK, from Old English wealcan, to roll, toss, and wealcian, to muffle up, from Germanic welk-*, perhaps from wel-².
10. O-grade form wol-*.
- a. WELL¹, from Old English wiella, wælla, welle, a well (
 - b. GABERDINE, from Old High German wallōn, to roam;
 - c. WALLET, possibly from Old North French walet*, roll, knapsack. a, b, and c all from Germanic wall-*.
11. Perhaps suffixed o-grade form wol-ā-*.
- a. WALE, from Old English walu, streak on the skin, weal, welt;
 - b. (see wrād-) Old High German wurzwalu*, rootstock, from -walu*, a roll, round stem. Both a and b from Germanic walō*.
12. Extended form welw-*.
- a. WALLOW, from Old English wealwian, to roll (in mud), from Germanic walwōn*;
 - b. VAULT¹, VAULT², (VOLT²), VOLUBLE, VOLUME, VOLUTE, VOLUTIN, VOLVOX, VOUSOIR; CIRCUMVOLVE, CONVOLVE, DEVOLVE, EVOLVE, INVOLVE, REVOLVE, from Latin volvere, to roll;
 - c. suffixed o-grade form wolw-ā-*. VOLVA, VULVA, from Latin vulva, volva, covering, womb;
 - d. suffixed zero-grade form w|w-ā-*. VALVE, from Latin valva, leaf of a door (

- e. Suffixed zero-grade form *w_lu-ti-. ALYCE CLOVER, from Greek halusis, chain;
 - f. suffixed form *welu-tro-. ELYTRON, from Greek elutron, sheath, cover.
13. Suffixed form wel-n-. ILEUS; NEURILEMMA, from Greek eilein (< welnein*), to turn, squeeze.
 14. Perhaps variant wall-*. VAIL¹, VALE¹, VALLEY, from Latin vallēs, vallis, valley (
 15. Possibly suffixed form wel-enā*. ELECCAMPANE, INULIN, from Greek helenion, elecampane, from the Greek name Helenē (earliest form Welenā), Helen.
 16. Suffixed form wel-ik-*. HELIX, from Greek helix, spiral object.
 17. Suffixed form wel-mi-nth-*. HELMINTH; ANTHELMINTIC, PLATYHELMINTH, from Greek hēlmis, hēlmīns (stem hēlmīnth-), parasitic worm.

[Pokorny 7. wel- 1140.]

welə-

An important derivative is: vulnerable.

To strike, wound.

1. Suffixed o-grade form wol(ə)-o-*.
 - a. VALHALLA, from Old Norse Valh^{all}, Valhalla;
 - b. VALKYRIE, from Old Norse Valkyrja, “chooser of the slain,” name of one of the twelve war goddesses (-kyrja, chooser; see geus-). Both a and b from Old Norse valr, the slain in battle, from Germanic walaz*.
2. Suffixed basic form welə-nes-*. VULNERABLE, from Latin vulnus (stem vulner-), a wound.
3. Suffixed zero-grade form wlə-to-. BERDACHE, from Old Iranian varta- (Avestan varəta-), seized, prisoner.

[In Pokorny 8. wel- 1144.]

wemə-

Important derivatives are: vomit, emetic.

To vomit.

6. WAMBLE, from Middle English wam(e)len, to feel nausea, stagger, from a Scandinavian source probably akin to Old Norse vamla, qualm, and Danish vamle, to become sick, from Germanic wam-*.
7. NUX VOMICA, VOMIT, from Latin vomere, to vomit.
8. EMESIS, EMETIC, from Greek emein, to vomit.

[Pokorny wem- 1146.]

wen-¹

Important derivatives are: win, winsome, wont, *wean*¹, wish, venerate, venereal, Venus, venom, venial, venison.

To desire, strive for.

21. Suffixed form wen-w-*. WIN, from Old English winnan, to win, from Germanic winn(w)an*, to seek to gain.
22. Suffixed zero-grade form wŋ-yā*. WYNN, WINSOME, from Old English wynn, wen, pleasure, joy, from Germanic wunjō*.
23. Suffixed (stative) zero-grade form wŋ-ē-*, to be contented. WON¹, (WONT), from Old English wunian, to become accustomed to, dwell, from Germanic wunēn*.
24. Suffixed (causative) o-grade form won-eyo-*. WEAN, from Old English wenian, to accustom, train, wean, from Germanic wanjan*.
25. WEEN, from Old English wēnan, to expect, imagine, think, from Germanic denominative wēnjan*, to hope, from wēniz*, hope.
26. Suffixed zero-grade form wŋ-sko-*. WISH, from Old English wýscan, to desire, wish, from Germanic wunsk-*.
27. Perhaps o-grade won-*.

- a. VANIR, from Old Norse Vanir, the Vanir;
 - b. VANADIUM, from Old Norse Vanadís, name of the goddess Freya. Both a and b from Germanic wana-*.
28. Suffixed form wen-es-*.
- a. VENERATE, VENEREAL, VENERY¹, VENUS, from Latin venus, love;
 - b. suffixed form wen-es-no-*. VENOM, from Latin venēnum, love potion, poison.
29. Possibly suffixed form wen-eto-*, “beloved.” WEND, from Old High German Winid, Wend, from Germanic Weneda-*, a Slavic people.
30. Suffixed form wen-yā*. VENIAL, from Latin venia, favor, forgiveness.
31. Lengthened-grade form wēn-ā-*. VENATIC, VENERY², VENISON, from Latin vēnārī, to hunt.
32. Suffixed basic form wen-o-*. WANDEROO, from Sanskrit vanam, forest.
33. Possibly zero-grade suffixed form wŋ-ig-*. BANYAN, from Sanskrit vaṇik, vāṇijaḥ, merchant (?)

[Pokorny 1. uen- 1146.]

wen-²

An important derivative is: *wound*¹.

To beat, wound.

- 7. Suffixed zero-grade form wŋ-to-*. WOUND¹, from Old English wund, a wound, from Germanic wundaz*.
- 8. Suffixed o-grade form won-yo-*. WEN¹, from Old English wen(n), wæn(n), wen, from Germanic wanja-*, a swelling.

[In Pokorny 1. uā- 1108.]

wep-

An important derivative is: evil.

Bad, evil.

From earlier awep-. Suffixed zero-grade form up-elo-. EVIL, from Old English yfel, evil, from Germanic ubilaz*, evil.

wer-¹

Important derivatives are: artery, aerial, air, aria, malaria, aura.

To raise, lift, hold suspended.

Earlier form awer-*.

7. Basic form awer-*. AORTA, ARSIS, ARTERIO-, ARTERIOLE, ARTERY, from Greek aeirein, to raise, and artēria, windpipe, artery.
8. (Obscure basic form āwer-*). AERIAL, AERO-, AIR, ARIA; MALARIA, from Greek aēr, air, possibly referred to this root.
9. Zero-grade form aur-*. AURA, from Greek aura, breath, vapor (related to Greek aēr, air).

[Pokorny 1. uer- 1151.]

wer-²

Important derivatives are: inward, *worth*¹, stalwart, weird, versatile, *verse*¹, version, versus, vertebra, vertex, adverse, anniversary, avert, controversy, convert, divert, invert, pervert, prose, universe, wreath, writh, wrath, worry, wring, wrong, wrench, wrinkle, converge, wry, wriggle, wrist, wrestle, *briar*¹, warp, reverberate, wrap, rhapsody, worm, vermin.

Conventional base of various Indo-European roots; to turn, bend.

I. Root wert-*, to turn, wind.

- i. -WARD, from Old English -weard, toward (
- ii. INWARD, from Old English inweard, inward, from Germanic inwarth*, inward (in*, in; see en). Both (i) and (ii) from Germanic variant warth*;
- b. WORTH¹; STALWART, from Old English weorth, worth, valuable, and derivative noun weorth, wierth, value, from Germanic derivative werthaz*, “toward, opposite,” hence “equivalent, worth,” perhaps from wer-². Both a and b from Germanic werth-*.

2. WORTH², from Old English weorthan, to befall, from Germanic werthan*, to become (
3. Zero-grade form wrt-*. WEIRD, from Old English wyrd, fate, destiny (wurthi-*.
4. VERSATILE, VERSE¹, VERSION, VERSUS, VERTEBRA, VERTEX, VERTIGO, VORTEX; ADVERSE, ANNIVERSARY, AVERT, BOULEVERSEMENT, CONTROVERSY, CONVERSE¹, CONVERT, DEXTRORSE, DIVERT, EVERT, EXTRORSE, (EXTROVERSION), EXTROVERT, INTRORSE, INTROVERT, INVERT, MALVERSATION, OBVERT, PERVERT, PROSE, RETRORSE, REVERT, SINISTRORSE, SUBVERT, TERGIVERSATE, TRANSVERSE, UNIVERSE, from Latin vertere, to turn, with its frequentative versāre, to turn, and passive versārī, to stay, behave (
5. VERST, from Russian versta, line, from Balto-Slavic wirstā-*, a turn, bend.

II. Root wreit-*, to turn.

- a. WREATH, from Old English wriþa, band (
- b. WRITHE, from Old English wriþan, to twist, torture;
- c. WRATH, WROTH, from Old English wrāth, angry (< “tormented, twisted”). a, b, and c all from Germanic wrīth-, wraith-.

III. Root wergh-*, to turn.

1. WORRY, from Old English wyrgan, to strangle, from Germanic wurgjan*.
2. Nasalized variant wreng-*.
 - a. WRING, from Old English wringan, to twist, from Germanic wreng-*;
 - i. WRONG, from Middle English wrong, wrong, from a Scandinavian source akin to Old Norse vrangr*, rangr, curved, crooked, wrong;

- ii. WRANGLE, from Middle English wranglen, to wrangle, from a Low German source akin to wrangeln, to wrestle. Both (i) and (ii) from Germanic wring-*.

IV. Root werg-*, to turn.

1. Nasalized variant form wreng-*.
 - a. WRENCH, from Old English wrencan, to twist;
 - b. WRINKLE, from Old English gewrinclian, to wind (ge-, collective prefix; see kom). Both a and b from Germanic wrankjan*.
2. VERGE²; CONVERGE, DIVERGE, from Latin vergere, to turn, tend toward.

V. Root wreik-*, to turn.

- a. WRY, from Old English wrīgian, to turn, bend, go;
 - b. WRIGGLE, from Middle Low German wriggeln, to wriggle. Both a and b from Germanic wrīg-*.
 - c. WRIST, from Old English wrist, wrist;
 - d. GAITER, from Old French guietre, gaiter, from Frankish wrist-. Both a and b from Germanic wristiz, from wrihst-*.
2. WREST, WRESTLE, from Old English wrāstan, to twist, from secondary Germanic derivative wraistjan*.
 3. Possibly o-grade form wroik-*. BRIAR¹, (BRUSQUE), from Late Latin brūcus, heather, from Gaulish brūko-*.

VI. RIBALD, from Old French riber, to be wanton, from Germanic root wrib-*.

VII. Root werb-, also werbh-, to turn, bend.

1. WARP, from Old English weorpan, to throw away, from Germanic werp-, warp-, “to fling by turning the arm.”
2. REVERBERATE, from Latin verber, whip, rod.

3. VERBENA, (VERVAIN), from Latin verbēna, sacred foliage.
4. Zero-grade form wṛb-*. RHABDOMANCY, RHABDOVIRUS, from Greek rhabdos, rod.
5. Nasalized variant form wrembh-*. RHOMBUS, from Greek rhombos, magic wheel, rhombus.

VIII. Root werp-*, to turn, wind.

1. Metathesized form wrep-*. WRAP, from Middle English wrappen, to wrap, from a source akin to Danish dialectal vrvle, to wind, from Germanic wrap-*.
2. Zero-grade form wṛp-*. RAPHE, RHAPHIDE; RHAPSODY, STAPHYLORRHAPHY, TENORRHAPHY, from Greek rhaptein, to sew.

IX. Root wṛmi-*, worm; rhyme word to k^wṛmi-.

1. WORM, from Old English wyrm, worm, from Germanic wurmiz*.
2. VERMEIL, VERMI-, VERMICELLI, VERMICULAR, VERMIN, from Latin vermis, worm.

[Pokorny 3. uer- 1152.]

wer-³

Important derivatives are: wary, aware, ward, lord, steward, warden, award, reward, wardrobe, guard, panorama, *revere*¹.

To perceive, watch out for.

III. O-grade form wor-*.

1. Suffixed form wor-o-*.
 - a. WARY, from Old English wær, watchful;
 - b. AWARE, from Old English gewær, aware (ge-, collective and intensive prefix; see kom);
 - c. WARE², from Old English warian, to beware. a, b, and c all from Germanic waraz*.
2. Suffixed form wor-to-.

- i. WARD; LORD, STEWARD, from Old English weard, a watching, keeper;
 - ii. WARDER², from Old English weardian, to ward, guard;
- b. WARDEN; AWARD, REWARD, WARDROBE, from Old North French warder, to guard;
 - c. GUARD, from Old French guarder, to guard;
 - d. REARWARD², from Anglo-Norman warde, guard. a, b, c, and d all from Germanic wardaz*, guard, and wardōn*, to guard.
3. WARE¹, from Old English waru, goods, protection, guard, from Germanic warō*.
 4. Suffixed form wor-wo-*. ARCTURUS, PYLORUS, from Greek ouros, a guard.
 5. Probably variant (s)wor-, s(w)or-. EPHOR, PANORAMA, from Greek horan, to see.

IV. Suffixed (stative) form wer-ē-*. REVERE¹, from Latin verēri, to respect, feel awe for.

[Pokorny 8. uer- 1164.]

wer-⁴

Important derivatives are: weir, aperture, overt, overture, cover, warn, warrant, warranty, garage, garret, garrison, warren, garment, garnish.

To cover.

XII. Basic form wer-*.

1. WEIR, from Old English wer, dam, fish trap, from Germanic wer-jōn-*.
2. Compound form ap-wer-yo-* (ap-*, off, away; see apo-). APERIENT, APÈRITIF, APERTURE; OVERT, OVERTURE, PERT, from Latin aperīre, to open, uncover.
3. Compound form op-wer-yo-* (op-*, over; see epi). COVER, OPERCULUM, from Latin operire, to cover.

4. Suffixed form wer-tro-*. AMBARELLA, from Sanskrit vāṭaḥ, enclosure, from lengthened-grade derivative vārt(r)a-*.

XIII. O-grade form wor-*.

1. WARN, from Old English war(e)nian*, to take heed, warn, from Germanic war-nōn*.
 - i. GUARANTY, from Old French garant, warrant, authorization;
 - ii. WARRANT, (WARRANTEE), WARRANTY, from Old North French warant, warrant, and warantir, to guarantee;
- b. GARAGE, from Old French garer, to guard, protect;
- c. GARRET, GARRISON, from Old French g(u)arir, to defend, protect;
- d. WARREN, from Old North French warene, enclosure, game preserve;
- e. GARMENT, GARNISH, from Old French g(u)arnir, to equip.
a, b, c, d, and e all from Germanic war-*.
2. Suffixed form wor-o-. BARBICAN, from Old Iranian compound pari-vāraka-, protective (pari-*, around; see per¹).

[Pokorny 5. wer- 1160.]

wer⁻⁵

Important derivatives are: word, verb, verve, adverb, proverb, irony.

Also werə-To speak. Variant wrē-, contracted from wreə-.

14. Suffixed zero-grade form wŕ-dho-*. WORD, from Old English word, word, from Germanic wurdam*.
15. Suffixed form wer-dho-*. VERB, VERVE; ADVERB, PROVERB, from Latin verbum, word.
16. Suffixed form wer-yo-*. IRONY, from Greek eirein, to say, speak.

17. Variant form wrē-* in suffixed form wrē-tor-*. RHETOR, from Greek rhētōr, public speaker.

[Pokorny 6. uer- 1162.]

wē-r-

An important derivative is: urine.

Contracted from wes-r-*. Water, liquid, milk. Related to euə-dh-ŕ.

Suffixed zero-grade form ūr-īnā-*. URINE, from Latin ūrīna, urine.

[In Pokorny 9. au(e)- 78.]

werg-

Important derivatives are: work, boulevard, allergy, dramaturge, energy, liturgy, metallurgy, surgery, wrought, wright, organ, orgy.

To do.

I. Suffixed form werg-o-*.

- a. WORK, from Old English weorc, werc, work;
 - b. (BOULEVARD), BULWARK, from Old High German werc, work. Both a and b from Germanic werkam*, work.
2. ERG, -URGY; ADRENERGIC, ALLERGY, ARGON, CHOLINERGIC, DEMIURGE, DRAMATURGE, ENDERGONIC, ENDOERGIC, ENERGY, ERGOGRAPH, ERGOMETER, ERGONOMICS, EXERGONIC, EXERGUE, EXOERGIC, GEORGIC, LITURGY, METALLURGY, SURGERY, (SYNERGID), SYNERGISM, THAUMATURGE, from Greek ergon, work, action.

II. Zero-grade form wŕg-*.

1. Suffixed forms wŕg-yo-, wŕg-to-.
 - a. WROUGHT, from Old English wyrčan, to work;
 - b. IRK, from Old Norse yrkja, to work. Both a and b from Germanic wurkjan*, to work, participle wurhta-*.
2. Suffixed form wŕg-t-*. WRIGHT, from Old English wryhta, maker, wright, from Germanic wurhtjō-*.

III. O-grade form worg-*.

- a. ORGAN, ORGANON, from Greek organon (with suffix -ano-), tool;
- b. ORGY, from Greek orgia, secret rites, worship (< “service”).

[Pokorny 2. uerĝ- 1168.]

wēro-

Important derivatives are: warlock, verity, very, verdict, verify, severe, persevere. True.

10. WARLOCK, from Old English wāer, faith, pledge, from Germanic wēra-*.
11. VERACIOUS, VERISM, VERITY, VERY; AVER, VERDICT, VERIDICAL, VERIFY, VERISIMILAR, VOIR DIRE, from Latin vērus, true.
12. SEVERE; ASSEVERATE, PERSEVERE, from Latin sevērus, grave, serious; regarded by some as a compound of se-, sed, without (see s(w)e-), and vērus, true, but the semantic difficulties make this explanation improbable.
13. Normal grade wero-, from werə-o-. GALORE, from Old Irish roar, enough, from ro-wero-, sufficiency (ro-, intensive prefix, from pro-*; see per¹).

[Pokorny 11. uer- 1165.]

wers-

Important derivatives are: war, guerrilla, worse, worst, liverwurst.

To confuse, mix up. Compare ers-.

I. Suffixed basic form.

- a. WAR, from Old North French werre, war;
- b. GUERRILLA, from Spanish guerra, war. Both a and b from Germanic werra-, from werz-a-.

2. WORSE, from Old English wyrsa, worse, from Germanic comparative wers-izōn-*.
3. WORST, from Old English wyrsta, worst, from Germanic superlative wers-istaz*.

II. Suffixed zero-grade form wrs-ti-*. WURST; (LIVERWURST), from Old High German wurst, sausage (< “mixture”), from Germanic wursti-*.

[Pokorny wers- 1169.]

wes-¹

Important derivatives are: was, were, astute.

To stay, dwell, pass the night, with derivatives meaning “to be.”

9. O-grade form wos-*. WAS, from Old English wæs, was, from Germanic was-*.
10. Lengthened-grade form wēs-*. WERE, from Old English wāre (subjunctive), wāron (plural), were, from Germanic wēz-*.
11. WASSAIL, from Old Norse vesa, vera, to be, from Germanic wesan*.
12. Perhaps suffixed form wes-tā-*. VESTA, from Latin Vesta, household goddess.
13. Possibly suffixed variant form was-tu-*. ASTUTE, from Latin astus, skill, craft (practiced in a town), from Greek astu, town (
14. Suffixed form wes-eno-*. DIVAN, from Old Persian vahanam, house.

[Pokorny 1. ues- 1170.]

wes-²

Important derivatives are: wear, vest, invest, travesty.

To clothe.

Extension of eu-¹.

13. Suffixed o-grade form wos-eyo-*. WEAR, from Old English werian, to wear, carry, from Germanic wazjan*.

14. Suffixed form wes-ti-*. VEST; DEVEST, INVEST, REVET, TRAVESTY, from Latin vestis, garment.
15. Suffixed form wes-nu-*. HIMATION, from Greek hennunai, to clothe, with nominal derivative heima, hima (< wes-mḡ*), garment.

[Pokorny 5. ues- 1172.]

wes-³

Important derivatives are: vend, bazaar.

To buy.

5. Suffixed form wes-no-*. VENAL, VEND, from Latin vēnum, sale.
6. Suffixed o-grade form wos-no-*. DUOPSONY, from Greek ōneisthai, to buy.
7. Suffixed form wes-ā-*. BAZAAR, from Persian bāzār, from Old Iranian vahā-carana-*, “sale-traffic.”

[Pokorny 8. ues- 1173.]

wes-pero-

Important derivatives are: west, western, Visigoth, vesper.

Evening, night.

III. Reduced form wes-*.

1. Suffixed form wes-to-*.
 - a. WEST, from Old English west, west;
 - b. WESTERN, from Old English westerne, western;
 - c. WESTERLY, from Old English westra, more westerly. a, b, and c all from Germanic west-*.
2. VISIGOTH, from Late Latin Visigothī, “West Goths” (Gothī, the Goths), from Germanic wis-*, possibly from wes-pero-.

IV. Basic form wespero-*.

1. VESPER, VESPERTILIONID, from Latin vesper, evening.
2. HESPERIAN, from Greek hesperos, evening.

[Pokorny uesperos 1173.]

wesr

An important derivative is: vernal.

Spring.

VERNAL; PRIMAVERA¹, from Latin vēr, spring (phonologically irregular).

[Pokorny ues-r̥ 1174.]

wet-¹

Important derivatives are: Wednesday, *fan*¹, atmosphere.

To blow, inspire, spiritually arouse.

Related to wē-.

12. Lengthened-grade form wōt-*.
 - a. WODEN, from Old English Wōden, Woden;
 - b. WEDNESDAY, from Old English Wōdnesdæg, “Woden's day”;
 - c. ODIN, from Old Norse ōdhinn, Odin;
 - d. WOTAN, from Old High German Wuotan. a, b, c, and d all from Germanic suffixed form wōd-eno-, wōd-ono-, “raging,” “mad,” “inspired,” hence “spirit,” name of the chief Teutonic god Wōd-enaz*;
 - e. WOOD², from Old English wōd, mad, insane, from Germanic wōdaz*.
13. Lengthened variant form wāt-*. VATIC, from Latin vātēs, prophet, poet.
14. Variant form wat-*. WEDELN, from Old High German wedil, fan, from Germanic suffixed form wath-ila-*.

15. Suffixed variant form wat-no-*. FAN¹, VAN³, from Latin vannus, a winnowing fan.
16. Oldest basic form əwet-* becoming awet-* in suffixed form awet-mo-*. ATMOSPHERE, from Greek atmos (< aetmos*), breath, vapor.

[Pokorny uāt- 1113.]

wet-²

Important derivatives are: wether, veteran, inveterate, veterinary, veal.

Year.

14. Suffixed form wet-ru-*. WETHER, from Old English wether, wether, from Germanic wethruz*, perhaps “yearling.”
15. Suffixed form wet-es-*.
 - a. VETERAN; INVETERATE, from Latin vetus, old (
 - b. VETERINARY, from Latin veterīnus, of beasts of burden, of cattle (perhaps chiefly old cattle);
 - c. ETESIAN, from Greek etos, year.
16. Suffixed form wet-olo-*. VEAL, VITELLUS, from Latin vitulus, calf, yearling.

[Pokorny uet- 1175.]

wi-

Important derivatives are: wide, with.

Apart, in half.

6. Suffixed form wi-itos*. WIDE, from Old English wīd, wide (wīdaz*).
7. Suffixed (comparative) form wi-tero-*.
 - a. WITH, WITHERS, from Old English wither, against, with its derivative with, with, against;
 - b. GUERDON; WIDDERSHINS, from Old High German widar, against. Both a and b from Germanic withrō*, against.

[Pokorny 1. ũ- 1175.]

wīkṃtī

A derivative is: vigesimal.

Twenty.

Compound of wi-, in half, hence two, and (d)kṃt-ī* (nominative dual), decade, reduced zero-grade form of dekṃ.

11. VICENARY, VIGESIMAL, from Latin vīgintī, twenty.
12. ICOSAHEDRON, from Greek eikosi, twenty.
13. PACHISI, from Sanskrit viṃśatiḥ, twenty.

[Pokorny ũ-kṃt-ī 1177.]

wī-ro-

Important derivatives are: werewolf, world, virile, virtue, virtuoso.

Man.

Derivative of weīə-.

- a. WEREWOLF, WERGELD, from Old English wer, man;
 - i. WORLD, from Old English weorold, world;
 - ii. WELTANSCHAUUNG, from Old High German weralt, world. Both (i) and (ii) from Germanic compound wer-ald-, “life or age of man” (-ald-, age; see al²);
 - b. LOUP-GAROU, from Old French garoul, werewolf, from Frankish wer-wulf*, “man-wolf” (wulf*, wolf; see wl̥k^wo-). Both a and b from Germanic weraz*, from shortened form wiraz*.
9. VIRAGO, VIRILE, VIRTUE, (VIRTUOSA), (VIRTUOSO); DECEMVIR, DUUMVIR, TRIUMVIR, from Latin vir, man.
 10. CURIA, from Latin cūria, curia, court, possibly from wī-ro-, if regarded as from co-vir*, “men together” (co-*, together; see kom).

[Pokorny uīro- s 1177.]

w!k^wo-

An important derivative is: wolf.

Wolf.

- a. WOLF, from Old English wulf, wolf;
 - b. AARDWOLF, from Middle Dutch wolf, wulf, wolf;
 - c. WOLFRAM, from Old High German wolf, wolf;
 - d. (see wī-ro-) Frankish wulf*, wolf. a, b, c, and d all from Germanic wulfaz*.
4. Taboo variant lupo-*. LOBO, (LUPINE¹), LUPINE², LUPUS; LOUP-GAROU, from Latin lupus, wolf.
 5. Taboo variant luk^wo-*.
 - a. LYCANTHROPE, LYCOPODIUM, from Greek lukos, wolf;
 - b. suffixed form luk^w-ya*. LYTTA; ALYSSUM, from Greek lussa, martial rage, madness, rabies (“wolf-ness”).

[Pokorny u!k^uos 1178.]

w!p-ē-

A derivative is: vulpine.

Fox.

6. VULPINE, from Latin vulpēs, fox.
7. Taboo variant alōpēk-*. ALOPECIA, from Greek alōpēx, fox.

[Pokorny u!p-, lup- 1179.]

An important derivative is: rendezvous.
You (plural).

RENDEZVOUS, from Latin vōs, you.

[In Pokorny 1. iu- 513.]

wrād-

Important derivatives are: *root*¹, wort, radical, radish, eradiate, ramify, licorice.
Branch, root.

III. Basic form wrād-*. ROOT¹; RUTABAGA, from Old Norse rōt, root, from Germanic wrōt-*.

IV. Zero-grade form wr̥ad-*.

- a. WORT¹, from Old English wyrt, plant, herb;
 - b. GEWURZTRAMINER, from Old High German wurz, plant, root;
 - c. MANGEL-WURZEL, from German Wurzel, root (< wurz-wala*, rootstock; -wala*, a roll, round stem; see wel²). a, b, and c all from Germanic wurtiz*.
2. Suffixed form wr̥ad-yā-*. WORT², from Old English wyrt, brewer's wort, from Germanic wurtjō-*.
 3. RADICAL, RADICLE, RADISH, RADIX; DERACINATE, ERADICATE, from Latin rādīx, root.
 4. Suffixed form wr̥ad-mo-*. RAMOSE, RAMUS; RAMIFY, from Latin rāmus, branch.
 5. Perhaps suffixed reduced form wr̥(ə)d-ya*. RHIZO-, RHIZOME; COLEORHIZA, LICORICE, MYCORRHIZA, from Greek rhiza, root.

[Pokorny u(e)rād- 1167.]

yē-

Important derivatives are: *jet*², abject, adjacent, adjective, conjecture, ease, eject, inject, object, project, reject, subject, catheter, enema.

To throw.

Contracted from yeə-*.

24. Extended zero-grade forms yak-yo-* and yak-ē-* (stative). GIST, (GITE), JACTITATION, JESS, JET², JOIST; ABJECT, ADJACENT, ADJECTIVE, AMICE, CONJECTURE, DEJECT, (EASE), EJACULATE, EJECT, INJECT, INTERJECT, OBJECT, PARGET, PROJECT, REJECT, SUBJACENT, SUBJECT, SUPERJACENT, TRAJECT, from Latin iacere, to throw, lay, and iacēre, to lie down (iaculum, dart).

25. Basic form yē-* and zero-grade form yə-*. CATHETER, DIESIS, ENEMA, PAREISIS, SYNESIS, from Greek hienai, to send, throw.

[Pokorny ĵē- 502.]

yeg-

An important derivative is: icicle.

Ice.

ICICLE, from Old English gicel, icicle, ice, from Germanic jakilaz*, jekilaz*.

[Pokorny ĵeg- 503.]

yek-

Important derivatives are: jewel, jocular, joke, juggle, jeopardy.

To speak.

Suffixed o-grade form yok-o-*. JEWEL, JOCOSE, JOCLAR, JOKE, JUGGLE, (JUGGLER); JEOPARDY, from Latin iocus, joke.

[Pokorny ĵek- 503.]

yěk^wŕ

An important derivative is: hepatitis.

Liver.

30. HEPATIC, HEPATO-; HEPARIN, (HEPATITIS), from Greek hēpar, liver.

31. GIZZARD, from Persian jigar, liver.

[Pokorny iek^u-rt 504.]

yēr-

Important derivatives are: year, hour, horoscope.

Year, season.

22. Suffixed basic form yēr-o-*. YEAR, from Old English gēar, year, from Germanic jēram*.

23. Suffixed o-grade form yōr-ā-*. HOUR; HOROLOGE, HOROLOGY, HOROSCOPE, from Greek hōra, season.

[In Pokorny 1. ei- 293.]

yes-

Important derivatives are: yeast, eczema.

To boil, foam, bubble.

42. YEAST, from Old English gist, yeast, from Germanic jest-*.

43. KIESELGUHR, from Old High German j^ʷsan, to ferment, and jerian, to cause to ferment, from Germanic jes-*.

44. ECZEMA, ZEOLITE, from Greek zein, zein, to boil.

[Pokorny ies- 506.]

yeu-

Important derivatives are: youth, young, junior, juvenile, rejuvenate.

Vital force, youthful vigor. Earliest form yeu-; variant of aiw-. Suffixed zero-grade form yuwen- (< yu-æn-*), “possessing youthful vigor,” young.

18. Further suffixed form yuwŋ-ti-*. YOUTH, from Old English geoguth, youth, from Germanic jugunthi-, jugunthā-.

19. Further suffixed form yuwŋ-ko-*.

i. YOUNG, from Old English geong, young;

ii. JUNKER, from Old High German junc, young;

iii. YOUNKER, from Middle Dutch jonc, young. (i), (ii), and (iii) all from Germanic jungaz* from juwungaz*;

b. GALLOWGLASS, from Old Irish ōac, from Celtic yowanko-*.

20. JUNIOR, JUVENILE; REJUVENATE, from Latin iuvenis, young.

[Pokorny 3. jeu- 510.]

yeug-

Important derivatives are: yoke, jugular, subjugate, joust, adjust, juxtapose, join, junction, junction, junta, conjugal, injunction, yoga.

To join.

VI. Zero-grade form yug-*.

1. Suffixed form yug-o-*.

a. YOKE, from Old English geoc, yoke, from Germanic yukam*;

b. JUGATE, JUGULAR, JUGUM; CONJUGATE, SUBJUGATE, from Latin iugum, yoke;

c. ZYGO- ZYGOMA, ZYGOTE, -ZYGOUS; (AZYGOUS), SYZYGY, from Greek zugon, yoke, and zugoun, to join;

d. YUGA, from Sanskrit yugam, yoke.

2. Suffixed (superlative) form yug-istos*. JOUST; ADJUST, JUXTAPOSE, (JUXTAPOSITION), from Latin iuxtā, close by, from iugistā* (viā), “on a nearby (road).”

3. Nasalized form yu-n-g-*. JOIN, JUNCTION, JUNCTURE, JUNTA; ADJOIN, CONJOIN, (CONJUGAL), (CONJUNCT), ENJOIN, INJUNCTION, SUBJOIN, from Latin iungere, to join.

VII. Suffixed form yeug-mḡ*. ZEUGMA, from Greek zeugma, a bond.

VIII. Suffixed o-grade form youg-o-*. YOGA, from Sanskrit yogaḥ, union.

[Pokorny 2. jeu- 508.]

yewes-

Important derivatives are: *jurist, jury*¹, *conjure, injury, perjure, judge, prejudice, just*¹..

Law.

14. JURAL, JURIST, JURY¹; ABJURE, ADJURE, CONJURE, INJURY, JURIDICAL, JURISCONSULT, JURISDICTION, JURISPRUDENCE, (NONJUROR), OBJURGATE, PERJURE, from Latin iūs (stem iūr-), law, and its derivative iūrāre, “to pronounce a ritual formula,” swear.
15. Compound form yewes-dik-*, “one who shows or pronounces the law.” (see deik-) Latin iūdex, judge.
16. Suffixed from yewes-to-*. JUST¹, from Latin iūstus, just.

[Pokorny īeyos 512.]

yewo-

A derivative is: zein.

Grain.

Suffixed form yew-ya*. ZEIN, from Greek zeia, one-seeded wheat.

[Pokorny īeyo- 512.]

yu-

Important derivatives are: *ye*², you.

You. Second person (plural) pronoun.

YE², YOU, from Old English gē and ēow, you, from Germanic jūz* (nominative) and iwwiz* (oblique).

[Pokorny 1. īu- 513.]

- Файл взят с сайта
- <http://www.natahaus.ru/>
-
- где есть ещё множество интересных и редких книг.
-
- Данный файл представлен исключительно в
- ознакомительных целях.
-
- Уважаемый читатель!
- Если вы скопируете данный файл,
- Вы должны незамедлительно удалить его
- сразу после ознакомления с содержанием.
- Копируя и сохраняя его Вы принимаете на себя всю
- ответственность, согласно действующему
- международному законодательству .
- Все авторские права на данный файл
- сохраняются за правообладателем.
- Любое коммерческое и иное
- использование
- кроме предварительного ознакомления
- запрещено.
-
- Публикация данного документа не
- преследует за
- собой никакой коммерческой выгоды. Но
- такие документы

- способствуют быстрейшему профессиональному и
- духовному росту читателей и являются рекламой
- бумажных изданий таких документов.
-
- Все авторские права сохраняются за правообладателем.
- Если Вы являетесь автором данного документа и хотите
- дополнить его или изменить, уточнить реквизиты автора
- или опубликовать другие документы, пожалуйста,
- свяжитесь с нами по e-mail - мы будем рады услышать ваши
- пожелания.